flowed from the audience inside Gospel Hall. The Hall was a store building with sales counters removed, and through the glass front he could look upon the pack within. A drifting haze of cigarette smoke filled the room. There was nothing definite to be made out over the heads of those seated upon the gospel benches. For a time he stood shading his face with both hands, peering in, yet only vaguely saw the principal figures up front where, behind a long table, the coroner was putting his questions.

He thrust farther in among the watchers at the doorway; asked as a ranchman turned to look at him, "Inquest decided anything yet?"

The man spat down between his boot toes. "Nothin' to decide, mister. Cash Cameron has got himself in a hole!"

Grim satisfaction rang in the voice, and Walt Gandy shifted his gaze away, brown eyes narrowing. What was this now? Cash Cameron was in a hole. The fellow here was glad of it!

His mind flicked over what Bill Hollister had written about Cameron, the cattleman who had made himself king of this range not by the old method of gunplay, but by the power of the ready dollar. "Cash" was his byword and had become his name. He avoided credit as if it might be something that crawled and had rattles on its tail. Owed no one; let no one owe him. "Cash on the barrel-head," was his expres-sion. "Cash, I'm offering." "How much, for cash?'

The coroner had just called a new witness, and a young, smooth-faced cowboy was standing now at the front of the room. There was no witness box. A long table had been pushed out from the rear wall. Behind it sat a thin person with a sour face who plainly wished to give his verdict and be done. But on his left, a big man with heavy jowls tipped his chair back against the partition, scowled importantly and rumbled questions in a voice that came from his stomach. He wore the badge of sheriff. The cowboy looked scared. He was less than twenty, a likeable kid, ill at ease before the hard glare of the law.

The sheriff aimed a thick finger at him. "Now remember, Paul," he admonished, "where you are. Perjury means jail. You tell the truth, exactly what you seen and when. The law ain't asking you to go against your boss, but the law wants facts. You understand?"

"Yes, sir." The boy's face reddened. Too many eyes were focused upon him.

During a minute that seemed to Walt Gandy as long as an hour, the room hung in heavy silence. He could have heard his heart beat, but every sense was focused up front, where each figure on the platform was caught and fixed as motionless as stone-Sheriff Battle hunched forward on the edge of his chair, Coroner Daggett halfway along the table from him, scowling impatiently, young Paul Champion standing at the table end and behind him on the witness bench, Cash Cameron, his brown-haired girl, and Bill Hollister.

Ponderously Ed Battle rose. He pointed to the table top near the C C cowboy. "Is that the gun?"

fire speculation. No one knew; but he had it and many a small rancher, pinched for money, had sold cattle and land to Cameron because of dollars ready on the spot. Naturally they sold cheap, and Cash Cameron took the profit. Cameron, Walt Gandy knew, was on the square. At least Bill Hollister had given him no reason to believe otherwise. Yet sooner or later a man like that made enemies. His growth would stick in the craws of those who had been forced by circumstance to sell to him. They would hold on at the fringes of his increasing domain, cursing their own luck and hoping for a day when his would break.

A stir on the far edge of the crowd turned him. A ranchman, with two women in starched white dresses and a small boy, was pushing into the outer air from Gospel Hall. There was a shifting of men to take their places in the room. It seemed a chance of forcing an entrance. Walt stepped back and walked around.

He had to pass halfway across the street to skirt the overflow of men, and there in the open the constant shift of his eye was suddenly caught and held farther along the block.

Unbelieving, he stopped dead still, for a roan horse stood not fifty paces from him. There were other roans in town, sure; roans on any range were as common as loaded dice. But this one was unmistakable.

How long it had been standing there he couldn't say. Not for very long, and it had been ridden hard. It was wet. Its flanks still heaved from running. Then Gandy's meas-uring eye fixed upon the stirrup, and he saw beyond doubt that it was just long enough for the legs of a medium-sized girl.

His turn from the horse was abrupt, and he leaned against the backs of men, one shoulder edging in among them.

CHAPTER IV

G OSPEL HALL was a low, shal-low room. Benches without backs crossed it, leaving a narrow aisle down the middle. At the far end a platform was raised about six inches. Two small windows gave dim light from the right side. The left side was solid against the adjoining building.

"Four, no, five years, ever since my dad died, and Cash, Mr. Cameron took me-" "Never mind," Coroner Daggett cut in. "You were the one who found the body?" "Yes, sir."

"Tell exactly when." "About . The sheriff interrupted. "Exactly!" he warned, gruff-voiced. Coroner Daggett faced along the table to him. "See here, Battle," he complained a little angrily,

'we've had all this. Let's finish." The sheriff turned ponderously and stared at the thin man. For a moment the two county departments traded scowling looks. Then Sher-iff Battle said, "The law ain't satisfied." He again confronted the boy. "Paul, you tell exactly what time you found Chino Drake!" "My watch," said the cowboy flatly, "was busted."

Snorted laughter broke over the room. Boots scuffed and there came a babble of talk as tension was momentarily relieved. The law banged his heavy fist on the table. Silence followed instant-The young cowboy was talking.

'It was about three o'clock. In the morning I had turned water into the vegetable patch, and coming back to the ranch about three, I went in to shift the water onto a corn row. Maybe Chino Drake was going to cook us up some corn for our supper, because he was there in the row and an empty flour sack was near him. But I knew he was dead because his face was blue, and I saw the bullet hole.' 'Where?" Sheriff Battle prodded, taking the inquest into his own hands. "Where was that bullet hole, and which way was Chino Drake lying?"

"The hole was in his forehead on the right side, and Chino was lying up the slope.

"Uh huh!" Battle emphasized. "So the bullet had come from those pine trees to the right of the garden patch."

This was not a question, and as Battle pushed on, it seemed to Walt | the boy.

"And no human is going to be killed in this county, even on the C C, without somebody scorching. Furthermore," he accused, "someone in this inquest is lying like hell!"

Cameron was up onto his feet. 'Look here-"

"And Forest Ranger Sam Powell for that instant across the fifteer was with him, that right?"

"Yes." Something like the tremor of an electric current ran through the packed room at Ed Battle's sudden flinging into the inquest the name of a United States forest ranger. Walt Gandy felt it, even before the low buzz of voices rose about him.

"There now!" said a stranger appeal.

seated at his side. Puzzled, Walt stared front, yet he was beginning to see deeper into the warfare that these men wanted to carry against Cash Cameron. Cheap grazing in the national forest was an important and touchy factor almost everywhere. Cameron must control a big slice here, being allotted forest grass in proportion to the number of cattle he owned. There was a rub. Walt Gandy drew a full breath, exhaled slowly, having for the moment a vision of how very far this thing might go-or had already gone.

The low buzz died and Ed Battle continued: "Cameron and Ranger Powell was arguing about grass privileges for C C cattle next summer, wasn't they?"

Dr. Jonathan Forman, Columbus, in Ohio State Medical Journal, states that a room can be made free of substances that could possibly cause the attacks by removing every object from the room and thoroughly cleaning the walls and woodwork with a brush and clean warm water to which has been added some water softener such as tribasicphosphate. Furniture such as an unupholstered rocking chair, a hard straight chair, and an army cot, is also washed carefully and returned to the room. The Detroit News of Saturday, August 31, had the following to say: THE ANTI-BOSS CANDIDATE

O. L. Smith, of Detroit, is the "anti boss" candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor.

As our interview with him stated the other day, it does not nec-essarily follow that all the other candidates are boss-ruled. The bosses are not so dumb that they would scatter their support among six as_ pirants for the office.

O. L. Smith, however is one candidate for the Republican nom-ination who has made the specific pledges to rid Michigan politics of bossism.

The Paramount issue of his bid for the office is, as he has stated it, the "greedy tax consuming political machine of Boss McKay(Grand Rapids), Boss McKeighan(Flint), and Boss Barnard (Detroit and Wayne County)

So Smith offers Republican voters at the primary, Sept. 10, their chance to do something practical about a matter that has irked them for a long while; namely boss rule, It is a chance not often repeated.

Local Republicans have tried repeatedly to wrest control of Wayne convention from Boss Edward N. Barnard, McKay's and McKeighan's local ally. They succeeded just once, under then Pros-ecutor Harry S. Toy. But that success did not last, largely because Barnard, acating to wield as a complete const the proven of State Barnard continued to wield, as a comeback asset, the power of State patronage.

That would not happen again if O. L. Smith became Governor. It can be taken for granted that, with Smith Governor, Barnard would have no State political jobs at all to dispense-not only because Smith is against bossism but also because he favors a strict, non-political state Civil Service.

Apart from his stand on bossism, the voters can be confident Smith is in other respects of gubernatorial stature. His record in State and Federal office and as an attorney has been excellent, He is an able

So are there other able candidates for the governorship. But if the voters want to be sure of an unbossed Government at Lansing and of an unhorsing of bosses generally, O. L. Smith offers them the chance to vote for it. — The Detroit News.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

U. S. Senate Passes 'Men and Property' Draft Bill as Defense Program Spurts; Retarded Blitzkrieg Credited to Franco; Duce Whips Up Hate Against Greece

(EDITOR'S NOTE-When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union

This Nazi plane is used to help buy more British fighters. A little British girl is contributing to the Red Cross fund after paying her ad-mission to view a German Messerschmitt plane which was shot down near Croydon. When the Germans bombed the town, one attacking plane which was hit landed in good condition. It was put on display by the Red Cross to raise money for the Croydon Spitfire fund. Spectators pay sixpence to look at it.

CONSCRIPTION:

'Men and Property'

Climaxing 14 days of debate in which a coalition of administrationists and Republicans overcame the opposition of an anti-conscription bloc, the senate passed the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill after inserting an amendment authorizing the government to draft private industrial plants when such action is necessary to insure production of defense materials. The roll call vote was 58 to 31. Proponents of the amendment argued that "if you conscript manpower, you must conscript property, too."

The draft measure would require 12,000,000 men between the ages of 21 and 31 to register for a year of compulsory military training. Endorsed unequivocally by President Roosevelt as an integral part of his $14,000,000,000 rearmament measure, the bill went to the house of representatives where a fight loomed to raise the age bracket to 21 to 45-in effect doubling the reservoir of potential draftees. Wendell Willkie during the week had come out for a "draft bill now" which helped kill delay attempts by the isolationist group.

DETOUR:

Hitler Late

Delay of Adolf Hitler in arriving in England is attributed in Washington to Spain. Plan was for General Franco to attack Gibraltar first. That would seal British ships in the Mediterranean, and make them unavailable to battle Nazi transports in the channel. Franco began a press campaign to work up the Spanish people toward this end. He had students march in the streets crying for Gibraltar. But just then a British mission arrived in Madrid. It promsed Franco food for his people immediately and a share in control of Gibraltar after the war. Franco hurriedly sent a delegation to Berlin to get a counter offer. He decided to play both ends. It's an old Spanish custom. Meanwhile Hitler's blitzkrieg was stalled.

Last year 2,350 school children from 5 to 14 years of age were killed and 156,000 injured in traffic accidents.

OIL AND GREECE: Next Hot Spot

Beyond Greece lies oil for the Axis powers, pipe lines from Per-sia coming into Turkish ports. So Rome has turned eyes east, and Premier General "Little John" Metaxas, a great friend of Germany's, isn't so sure that his next caller won't be his friend's friend, Mr. Mussolini.

Mussolini is whipping up a great campaign in the Italian and Albania papers against Greece. It seems the Greeks have been maltreating the Albanians, who Mussolini placed under the protection of Fascist bayonets two years ago. More Italian soldiers therefore were dis-patched to Albania to fill the strategic mountain passes bordering on Greece. Greece has accused Italian planes of invading its terri-tory and an Italian submarine of sinking its best warship, while that vessel was riding at anchor and the crew were ashore at a religious festival. The Greeks have two words for it. If they can get the backing of Turkey and Turkey can get the backing of Russia, the word is war. Otherwise it is surrender. Britain has guaranteed Greece's independence, but Britain has plenty of homework to do just now. ASSASSINATION:

No sooner had he sat down than he became aware of the fact that the family pet is a kinkajou. He tried to ignore the little animal but the kinkajou, evidently having other ideas, climbed to his shoulder, threw its tail firmly around his neck and began to chatter into his ear. That might have been all right since the visitor managed to hide all signs of displeasure, but just as he had become resigned to the situation his host asked him not to make a sudden move because if he did, the kinkajou might bite. So he sat rigid a whole evening firm in the grip of a kinkajou. He didn't get bitten but he is

So there was an investigation with the idea of catching and administering due discipline to the culprits. The club has five trustees. The investiclub has five trustees. The investi-gation disclosed the startling fact that the trustees, after business was out of the way, had been in the habit of turning the meeting into a penny ante session. So there was no action, the trustees of course being the ones who would set the punishment. And there are no more penny ante games.

In the Air

Raids by Marshal Goering's Luftwaffe on British industrial and military centers grew progressively heavier. Gradually more attention was being paid to London and the visits extended as long as six and seven hours. High explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped and the air ministry admitted the toll of casualties and property damage was growing. Fires swept over fashionable West End as well as the poorer workingmen's sections.

The British returned the calls promptly. In murky flying weather they dropped in on Berlin several nights in succession. Heavy explosions were heard on Unter den Linden, Berlin's Broadway. The German war office said, however, only suburban spots had been hit and the central city was untouched.

Held with him is a Brooklyn civil service worker, Sylvia Ageloff. She arranged the introduction of Jackson to Trotsky, but is believed not to be a party to the murder.

STRIKES OUT: Joyless Mudville

Ernest L. Thayer, who told in 13 stanzas the shattered hopes of Mud-ville in "Casey at the Bat," died in Santa Barbara, Calif., age 77. Harvard graduate, Ivy orator of his class, he spoke in a soft New England accent and could not well recite the verses. But DeWolf Hopper, towering comedian, could and did-some 15,000 times beginning on a spring day in 1888. The poem became identified more with Hopper than Thayer. Ivory—On the Auction Block

One of the world's strangest marts is the ivory market at the London, England, docks, center of the world's ivory trade. Here in a squalid warehouse the tusks of elephants from Africa and Asia are auctioned in quarterly sales, about 30 tons at each sale. Most of the ivory comes from carcasses found in the jungles and from stores accumulated by natives ... stores that may have taken generations to acquire. The elephant has no such mythical death rendezvous as fictioneers have built up. While the war has, undoubtedly, made great inroads into Britain's ivory business, these pictures show what it was like when business was flourishing.

Top: View of an auction floor before the opening of one of the quarterly sales. The floor is divided into spaces containing numbered lots. Dealers bid on the lots, not on separate tusks. Lower: A lot of ivory that has been knocked down to a bidder and weighed on the official scale.

INVITING OTHERS TO WORSHIP GOD

LESSON TEXT—Psalm 96. GOLDEN TEXT—O magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt his name to-gether.—Psalm 34:3.

Worship is not only fitting, but altogether natural to the soul aglow with the love of God. Yet it is a sacred privilege to which we may call ourselves and others and in the doing of which we may be helped by an intelligent understanding of its nature and preparation for its practice.

What is worship? How does it dif-fer from prayer, or from praise (which we studied last week)? While prayer, praise and worship belong together and often merge in one blessed art of devotion, we may possibly distinguish between them by saying that in prayer we are concerned with our needs; in praise, with our blessings; and in worship, with God Himself. I. The Call to Worship (vv. 1-3). This psalm has to do with collective rather than individual worship. It is not enough that man should worship God in his own soul, there is an added blessing which comes to us only as we worship with oth-ers. So we need to be called to-to make the bride feel that they gether for worship.

True worship centers in "a new song" that is the song of a regener-ated heart. Worship is only a formality without life until there is a new song in the heart, and then it becomes life's greatest joy and satisfaction.

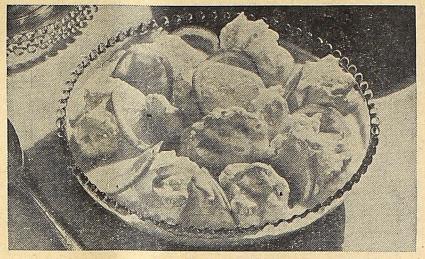

Real worship is a "day to day" matter (v. 2), not just something we put on like our "Sunday-go-tomeeting" clothes. Every day we are to worship, and as we do, we shall "declare his glory among the heathen"; among those nearest to us, but ultimately to all the nations of the earth. Worship leads out in a desire that its blessing may be shared with all the people of the earth. II. The Reason for Worship (vv.

Why should we worship God? He is "great" and is a God so good and gracious that He is "greatly to be praised." He made the heav-ens. "Honor and majesty" stand before Him like sentinels; "strength and before Him like sentinels; "strength and beauty" fill the holy place which is "his sanctuary." The very words bespeak that glorious majesty and gracious loving-kindness which impel the heart to worship. They encourage us who need and seek strength and beauty of life to seek communion with Him who dwells eternally in such an atmosphere. III. The Manner of Worship (vv.

With fall fast creeping upon us, you brides of the past few months are eagerly looking forward to the end of the vacation season. Then you can proudly show to your friends and newly acquired relatives that you are becoming not only a pro-ficient hostess and homemaker, but also a first-rate cook.

Perhaps you'll decide upon a tea for your friends, serving dainty sandwiches, small cookies or tiny frosted cakes. But the families usually anwill arrive with an extremely healthy appetite and a critical eye. When you plan your first family dinner, select a menu that is not only simple to prepare and easy to serve, but one that will require only a few minutes in the kitchen.

Start the meal off with a bang! Create a favorable impression right at the beginning of the meal. An appetizer that is fairly highly seasoned, small in amount, piping hot or well chilled, and one that whets the appetite instead of retarding it, will insure a successful meal. The guests' natural curiosity will be appeased, and they will settle back in their chairs satisfied that the "new cook" is a good one.

The bride who can make a per-fect floating island need not dread the problem of company dessert. There is nothing more delicious or generally welcome than the old favorite, especially when it is made with orange juice and combined with slices or segments of the fresh fruit.

shees or segments of the riesh funt. It is not the only "easy-to-make" beginner's recipe, but you will find that the others will help you in se-lecting your company desserts. Many of them are suitable when you entertain at a dessert luncheon, or after an evening of cards.

When separating the yolks from the whites of eggs, break them over a funnel. The whites will pass through, leaving the yolks in the funnel.

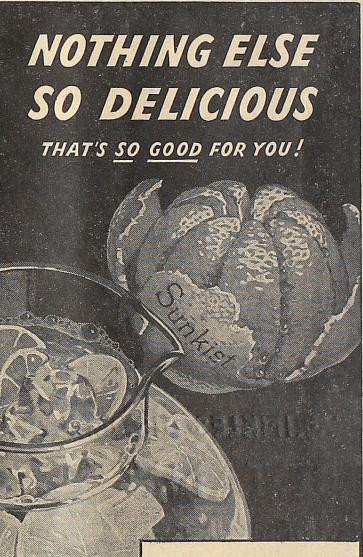

Keep the sifter holes on spice boxes closed, otherwise the spices will lose much of their flavor.

When putting away clean clothes place the freshly ironed ones on the bottoms of the various piles. Then towels, handkerchiefs, napkins, etc., will be used in turn and some will not wear out more quickly than others.

Save left-over pieces of soap in small sugar or salt bags. Use the bags in cleaning the bathtub or lavatory. The bag and soap serve both as a sponge and a cleansing agent.

We have suggested that fellowship with God prompts us to worship. Some would feel that nothing more is needed, but experience tells us that, while we may worship any-where, we are helped to do so by proper surroundings and circumstances. We are told to "come into his courts" (v. 8) and to worship "in the beauty of holiness" (v. 9), or, as the Revised Version puts it,

"in holy array." John Ruskin wisely said: "It can-not be questioned at all, that, if once familiarized with a beautiful form and color, we shall desire to see this also in the house of prayer; its absence will disturb instead of assisting devotion; and we shall feelit as vain to ask whether, with our own house full of good craftsmanship, we shall worship God in a house destitute of it, as to ask whether a pilgrim, whose day's journey led him through fair woods and by sweet waters, must at evening turn aside into some barren place to pray.'

We are to give or ascribe unto the Lord praise and glory among our "kindred" (v. 7); that is, our own family, as well as in "his courts," His sanctuary. Note that one of the outstanding ways of wor-shiping is to "bring an offering" (v. a), which means more than casually slipping a small coin in the "collection." If our "offerings" are liberal and regular the church will be able to send the news that "the Lord reigneth" to the whole world (v. 10). IV. The Universality of Worship (vv. 11-13)

A world which has felt the blow of man's sin (Rom. 8:22) and has suffered from his wickedness and destructive violence will so rejoice in the righteousness of God's judgment that even the realm of nature will break into joyous worship. What a beautiful picture we see in these verses, how God's creation will lift itself up in praise, the sea in tumultuous joy, when "the hills shall break forth before you into singing, and all the trees shall clap their hands" (Isa. 55:12).

Can man then hold his peace? Must not "mortal tongues awake" and "all that breathe partake" in wholehearted worship of God? Who then will want to stand among "them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ" (II Thess. 1:7, 8), and with whom God can deal only in judgment of flaming fire?

See how oranges help!

Fully half our families are getting too little vitamins and minerals to feel their best, says the Department of Agriculture.

It's easy to get more of these essentials merely by making oranges your family's daily refreshment!

Peel and eat them. Keep ready a big pitcher of fresh orangeade. Or better yet-Have big, 8-ounce glasses of fresh orange juice with breakfast daily. This gives you all the vitamin C you normally need. Adds vitamins A, B₁ and G and the minerals calcium, phosphorus and iron. Sunkist is sending you the pick of Cali-fornia's best-ever crop of wonderfully juicy oranges. Order a supply next time you buy groceries!
