WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK—Whether Benedict Crowell is a good prophet or not may yet be revealed. Mr. Crowell, assistant secretary of war in the World War, has been named special consultant on defense, by Secretary Stimson. Addressing the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia, July 11, 1931, Mr. Crowell said:

"Should a great war ever again engulf our country, American manufacturers, including the new industrialism of the South, as well as the older industrialisms of the North and East, without waste of time, material or priceless human lives, will perform their essential function of munitions supply... our national security is on a sound foundation."

Mr. Crowell, who was a consulting engineer before he became a Cleveland banker and industrialist, is a brigadier general in the ordnance reserve. His specialty, as assistant secretary of war, was in organizing our munitions industries for the war effort.

He was widely praised for his efficiency in this and gained fame as the most ruthless cutter of red-tape in the army high command. This may have something to do with his selection as defense consultant at this moment. Yale university, his alma mater, recognized the above service by giving him an honorary master of arts degree in 1918.

A native of Cleveland, 71 years old, Mr. Crowell began his business career as a chemist with the Otis Steel company. He rose in executive positions and at the same time gained technical qualifications which made him a metallurgist and consulting engineer.

He is the author of several books, including a six-volume series called "America Went to War," of which Robert Forrest Wilson was co-author. One of these volumes is entitled "The Armies of Industry," singularly pertinent to problems and backgrounds of our present national endeavor.

Reporters, interviewing Mr. Crowell in the old days, frequently used to note his resemblance to ruby Bob Fitzsimmons, and deduce, from this his capacity for hitting and staying-power.

IN HIS novel, "Le Couple," published in 1925, Victor Margueritte, the French writer, foresaw the disaster which was to overtake France. He described the debacle quite accurately, but put the date at 1943 instead of 1940. Today, the author accepts the conquest, which he tragically described and makes common cause with the conquerors. He denounces General De Gaulle and his followers as the hirelings of England.

In present and future clinical research into the fall of France and its causes, M. Margueritte's lament and prophecy, as of 1925, will be interesting. After describing the alliance of French politicians with "Prussian and Bavarian junkers," and the subsequent collapse and conquest, he says:

"And then we shall be reaping what we have sown. It will be the result of our policy of attempting the semblance of grandeur—stupid because it is not warranted by our power, nor by our national wealth, nor by our trinkling birth-rate, nor by our exhausted finances."

Years of self-indulgence, mad pleasure-seeking, the softening of moral fiber and the ebbing of national vitality, he said, would precede the final destruction of the French nation. The League of Nations, he predicted, would be a ghastly failure.

M. Margueritte is the son of a famous French general of the Franco-Prussian war. In his study were medals and memorials of his father's war service. He is a stalwart man, tall and straight with abundant pompadour hair and a Van Dyke beard.

He was a member of the Legion of Honor and honorary president of the French Society of Men of Letters. Poincare, no defeatist, had urged his Legion of Honor decoration. This and all his other honors were stripped from him when he published an offending book, "La Garconne."

He had been for 10 years an officer in the French army. In his books, which he continued to write during his army service, he championed virile French nationalism. Now, at 73, he watched France "reap what she has sown."

House and Senate Set 21-35 Age Limit In Draft Bill, Volunteer Plan Dropped; 'Total Air War' Blasts London Area; 32 Killed in Munitions Plant Explosion

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

DRAFT:

In November

Prospects are that no American youth will be conscripted into army service until after election. Just before the house passed the draft bill by a vote of 185 to 155, and announcement to this effect was made by Representative Wadsworth (R., N. Y.) co-author of the bill.

To make sure of this, however, the house inserted an amendment,

Lieut. Col. Lewis B. Hershey, pictured here, now head of the joint army and navy committee in charge of selective service plans, who more than likely will become "the power behind the draft," after the conscription machinery gets underway. While a civilian may be named titular head of the draft, Col. Hershey will contribute a major share of the work since he has spent four years developing draft plans.

sponsored by Representative Fish (R., N. Y.) to postpone peacetime draft for 60 days while the President appealed for volunteers.

The house bill differed in two other essentials from the measure passed by the senate. The senate called for an age limit of 21 to 30, inclusive. The house wanted registration extended to 45 years, in order to get a greater number of trained mechanics. The house also modified the "draft industry" amendment so that factories where owners refused defense contracts would be taken over by the government on lease or rental. The senate called for seizure and operation.

Ironing out the differences, house and senate conferees agreed upon a bill that, (1) fixed the age limit at 21 to 35 years inclusive, (2) modified the plant seizure amendment, and (3) eliminated the 60-day volunteer plan.

Wendell Willkie, G. O. P. presidential nominee, added his opposition to that of President Roosevelt on the 60-day delay amendment.

MUNITIONS:

Disaster

In what was declared to be the worst disaster in the history of the American munitions industry, 32 persons were known dead, 22 missing (also believed to have perished) and 200 persons were injured in a series of earth-shaking explosions which destroyed the Hercules Powder company's Kenvil, N. J., plant. While the cause of the blast was not immediately determined, federal, state and local authorities began immediate investigations because the plant was busy at work on United States defense orders.

EGYPT:

Offensive

Italy's long awaited offensive against English forces in Egypt got under way as artillery fire rumbled up and down the Egypt-Libya border. Fresh Italian troops moved up near the border as British and Italian flyers clashed in the first exchange of military blows on this front. Observers were of the opinion that Italy was really beginning to play her role in the "Battle of Britain." This role consists mainly in diverting the attention of the English to some other quarter while Hitler's attempt at an invasion of the British isles is carried out. Egypt is an ally of Britain but as yet has not declared war with the axis powers. As soon as the Italian forces slash very deeply into Egyptian territory this declaration is expected.

WOMEN

... in the news

Founder of the Henry Street Settlement, Lillian D. Wald, died at the age of 73, in Westport, Conn. She also helped found the federal children's bureau.

At Atlantic City, Miss Frances Marie Burke, 19, of Philadelphia, was chosen Miss America of 1941. She is 5 feet 9 inches tall, has brown hair and weighs 120 pounds.

THE WAR:

London Battered

In the fifty-third week of the war Nazi air power began the long-proclaimed action which it declared would end in British surrender or the destruction of the world's largest city.

Previous raids and previous bombings were as nothing. Reichsmarshal Hermann W. Goering, from a safe seat in France, personally took charge of the Luftwaffe's operations. Thousands of gigantic bombers were sent across the channel in waves at 30 minute intervals. All were aimed at London, seat of the British empire. Alarms continued from dusk until dawn. Even in daylight, while air precaution wardens were digging helpless from the debris left the night before, new planes arrived. They dropped incendiary bombs, which set great fires and led the night fliers to their targets through blackouts.

None now was raiding only of defense points and industries. Except for German propaganda sources, none challenged the announcement that purely residential areas were being subjected to devastating explosions. In world-famous Fleet street, home of the greatest British newspapers, some of the largest buildings in the city were wrecked.

Hospitals were wrecked, subways demoralized, gas mains broken and set afire. In a two-day period the British admitted 600 killed and 2,500 maimed. Even as they made the announcement the bombardments grew worse.

Morale

A delayed action bomb struck a section of Buckingham palace, the royal residence. No one was injured.

Objective of the terror was to undermine the morale of the ordinary citizen. Berlin said when this was accomplished, the Churchill cabinet would fall and a new cabinet willing to deal with the Reich would take its place.

In the battered, shell-torn city, however, the first day of the raids showed no loss of determination to hold out. The king visited a slum section where bombs had ripped great craters in the street, where homes of hundreds had been torn to bits. Out of the window of a house still standing, a woman shouted: "Are we downhearted?" And the crowd gathered around the king cried, "No." The king smiled. That night there were worse bombings.

Retaliation

British fliers, reported by the German air arm to be reduced to ineffective operation, were still able to get into the air and fight. Moreover they went visiting on their own. Docks at Hamburg, ports along the channel coast, in Denmark and Norway were given a treatment of aerial bombardments. The British air ministry said the retaliation was so severe that the areas could not be used by the Germans to launch a land invasion.

Nightly there were air raid alarms in Berlin, too. At least one bomb was dropped on the Reichstag building, seat of Hitler's rubber-stamp parliament.

APPOINTMENTS:

Labor Board

Charles Fahy, soft-spoken council of the National Labor Relations board, was promoted by President Roosevelt to assistant solicitor general. The man who piloted the NLRB through five years of injunction battles and Supreme court tests now goes to the office which prepares the government's side in hearings before the nation's highest judicial tribunal.

TREND

how the wind is blowing

Congress—A recess of several weeks beginning before October 1 is expected in Washington.

Vatican—All attacks on the Reich have been halted by the pope, now that hope for a quick peace are lost, in a campaign to help Catholics in the conquered areas.

Plastics—Bausch and Lomb, leading optical manufacturers, are testing a new eye-glass lens of transparent plastics.

Rayon—Japan may be dislodged as the leading rayon manufacturing country with development of a U. S. process using rayon with woolen and worsted fabrics.

Labor—Unemployment is estimated at the lowest since 1929, by an American Federation of Labor survey. Volume is set at 4,500,000. Last year it was 9,650,000. All time top was 13,270,000 in 1933. The 1929 figure was 1,864,000, but the natural growth of population has increased several million since then and therefore more people actually have jobs.

Education—The federal office of education estimates that one-fourth of the nation will be in school by October 1. The various classifications add up to 32,000,000 persons. This includes 2,000,000 adults in night or part-time schools.

VICHY:

Battle for Empire

Hurried changes in the line-up of the Petain cabinet sent Gen. Maxime Weygand to the French African colonies. It is hoped his presence will halt the growing shift of allegiance of France's outlying colonies away from the Vichy government and toward the "Free France" committee headed by General de Galle, now in London.

General Weygand was relieved of the post of secretary of war and Gen. Charles Huntziger named in his place. General Huntziger was one of the signers of the armistice terms with Adolf Hitler.

The Petain government also ordered detention of more wartime cabinet leaders, including former Premier Edouard Daladier and Paul Reynaud, and Gen. Maurice Gamelin. All are being held in a chateau near Riom, where the "war guilt" trials are now in progress. Former Air Ministers Pierre Cot and Guy La Chambre also were ordered arrested. Both are in the United States.

Seizure of the fortunes of 15 bankers, writers and industrialists was revealed. Heading the list was a group of the leaders of the House of Rothschild, many of whom fled France ahead of Hitler. Some of the industrialists shipped millions of francs ahead of them, but all leave behind vast holdings in French railroads and factories which now become property of the state.

MISCELLANY:

As an estimated 100,000 American Legionnaires converged on Boston, Mass., for their twenty-first national convention, the war and U. S. peacetime conscription cast a serious light over the sessions. Plenty of the usual Legion merrymaking was in store too, however, with a program including a concert by Boston's famed "Symphony orchestra, a gala "Cavalcade of Stars" to be shown before 40,000 at Braves field, under sponsorship of Schenley post, No. 1150, and the big parade of 400 bands, drum and bugle corps. Among leading candidates for national commander are Ray Fields, Guthrie, Okla., and Lynn Stambaugh, Fargo, N. D.

Herschel Grynszpan, the young Polish Jew who assassinated a Nazi consular officer in Paris in November, 1933, is in the hands of the Gestapo. He was turned over to the government of Marshal Petain when he surrendered to the French after being released on the fall of Paris. Gen. Jose Estigarribia, president of Paraguay, and his wife were killed in an airplane accident. He formerly was ambassador to Washington and was hero of the Chaco war. The cabinet designated War Minister Gen. Higinio Morinigo as provisional president.

Underweight Child Needs More Exercise

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

I HAVE spoken before of the number of recruits who were rejected for war service because the chest was too small.

Practically every one of these young fellows, on questioning, stated that they had never played games because their parents were afraid they would get hurt.

When parents see that their children are not as others, underweight, tall for their age, round or drooping shoulders, it is only natural that they are somewhat alarmed at the thought of games or vigorous exercise. The result is that these youngsters do not get any exercise and properly directed exercise at this "growing" age is exactly what the body, including heart and lungs, greatly needs.

"There are children who show pallor, excessive growth, muscular weakness, bad posture—sitting and standing. There are rapid fatigue, palpitation of the heart, stitches in the side, stomach ache, headache, dizziness and fainting spells."

Dr. L. F. Meyer, in Oriental Journal of Internal Medicine, reports that the general test of circulation by exercise (10 deep bends of the knees) shows that this group reacts otherwise than completely healthy children. The pulse remains fast in one-third of the children for longer than five minutes after exercise. The blood pressure differs from normal for it also remains high for more than five minutes. These two tests—heart beat and blood pressure—increased for longer than five minutes show insufficiency of circulation and inability to react properly after exercise.

Group Games Improve Circulation.

Dr. Meyer suggests that as these children are nearing puberty, the circulation may improve and be equal to the demands made upon it. However, the treatment recommended is: "Invigoration of the body by gymnastics and sport, especially by breathing exercises."

The point then for parents is to have these slender, gangling, pale, overgrown children attend a gymnasium where exercise and group games are supervised. All group games not only strengthen the circulation by calling on the heart and lungs for more blood, but develop self-reliance in these delicate children.

Liver Extract Is Good for Pimples

IT WOULD now appear that another use for liver extract has been discovered which may mean much to the appearance and thus the happiness of many girls and boys and young men and women. Until recently, acne—pimples—was considered a distressing ailment which often came with puberty and had to be endured for 10 or 15 years—the most important years in life from the appearance standpoint.

Some skin specialists were able to help many patients by prescribing a diet. Then X-ray treatment was found effective. Recently, the injection of pituitary extract has given splendid results, as has also the use of viosterol by mouth. Now comes liver extract.

Boiling Increases Efficiency.
Dr. W. Marshall, Appleton, Wis., in the Journal of Investigative Dermatology (skin diseases), reports his use of boiled liver extract in the treatment of 14 cases of acne in which he obtained satisfactory results. The injection of liver extract—six drops—is given so that a sufficient amount of the specific (or needed) vitamin may be had. When injectable liver extract is boiled for 30 minutes, its acne-improving factor seems to increase. "When this boiled extract is given to patients already taking liver extract regularly, their improvement appears more rapid."

This means then that to our present knowledge of the beneficial effects of X-rays, injection of pituitary extract and taking viosterol by mouth, is added the further knowledge that the use of liver extract boiled for 30 minutes and injected under the skin also cures many cases of acne.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—How many thyroid glands does one have? After the removal of the thyroid gland, is medicine substituted for the lost secretion? Is X-ray a successful way to treat a goiter?

A.—1. There is only one thyroid gland but it is in two sections.
2. If there is a great increase in weight after removal of thyroid gland, thyroid extract is given.
3. X-ray is an effective method of removing a goiter but takes a long time.

SUNDAY NIGHT SUPPERS
(Recipes Below)

Have you ever juggled a cup of coffee in one hand, a salad plate in the other, and at the same time attempted to eat the appetizing food the hostess has served you? It is a feat that even the most experienced cannot often manage.

To save a guest the embarrassment of having his suit ruined by a cup of coffee tipping over, or salad dressing trickling over the side of the plate which is being precariously balanced on the knees, serve your supper on individual trays.

Simplicity is the keynote of the Sunday night supper. That is why the "meal-on-the-tray" has become so popular. Plan your Sunday supper around one central dish. It may be a salad, a creamed dish served on toast, or even a casserole dish. Here is a favorite supper menu for warm fall evenings which easily adapts itself to buffet style of serving, or a tray supper.

Cranberry Molded Salad
Cottage Cheese with Chives
Olives
Potato Chips
Hot Rolls
Coffee

As you glance through the menu you can see that nothing in the meal, with the exception of the hot rolls, requires last minute preparation in the kitchen. The buffet should be as inviting as it is possible to make it. The cranberry molded salad with a mound of cottage cheese and chives in the center of the ring mold makes an especially attractive center piece for serving table. The rolls may be placed in a cunning bread basket, covered with a napkin to keep them hot. The serving table must also have the necessary silverware, dishes, napkins and trays on it. When the meal is ready, each guest helps himself, and delights in the informality of the occasion.

Instead of using the buffet style of serving, you may want to prepare the trays in the kitchen. Then with the aid of the members of the family, the trays are served to the guests. The following menu is an excellent one to serve when fall evenings are a little nippy, and a warm dish is appealing.

Welsh Rabbit on Toast
Cole Slaw
Baked Apple
Coffee
Tea
Molded Cranberry Salad.
(Serves 8)
1 package lemon flavored gelatin dessert
1 1/2 cups boiling water
1 cup cranberry sauce
1/2 cup pineapple (diced)
1/4 cup nuts (chopped fine)

Pour boiling water over gelatin and stir until dissolved. Crush cranberry sauce with a fork and add to the gelatin mixture. Pour into a ring mold and let stand until partially set. Fold in pineapple and nuts. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Fill ring with chilled cottage cheese to which finely chopped chives have been added; or use any other salad mixture which may be desirable.

Stuffed Tomato Salad.
(Serves 5)
5 medium sized tomatoes
Dash celery, onion or garlic salt
1 cup canned kidney beans
2 tablespoons celery (chopped)
2 tablespoons green onion (minced)
2 tablespoons ripe olives (chopped fine)

2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 hard cooked egg (grated)
Select firm, medium sized tomatoes and peel. Hollow out the interiors and sprinkle with celery, garlic or onion salt. Mix together the kidney beans, celery, onion, olives and mayonnaise, and stuff the tomatoes with this mixture. Chill, and serve on lettuce leaves. Garnish with hard cooked egg, which has Hot Muffins.

(Makes 10 medium sized muffins)
2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
1/4 cup shortening
1 egg (beaten)
3/4 cup milk

Mix and sift together the flour, salt, baking powder and sugar. Cut in the shortening. Combine beaten egg and milk, and add to mixture. Mix lightly, blending only until the dry ingredients are moistened. Place in greased muffin pans and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) approximately 25 minutes.

Tomato French Dressing.
(Makes 2 cups)
1/2 can condensed tomato soup (7% cup)
3/4 cup vinegar
3/4 cup oil
2 tablespoons sugar
1 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
3/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon paprika

Place all of the ingredients in a mixing bowl and beat until blended. Store in refrigerator in a quart jar.

SOIL DRAINAGE IMPROVES LAND

Lower Water Table Aids Better Root Growth.

By H. B. ROE
(Professor of Agricultural Engineering, University Farm, St. Paul.)
Proper soil drainage does not rob the land of needed moisture during times of drouth, but instead it helps plants develop deep roots early in the season thus resulting in better crop yields. Drouths have been no more severe in this country since drainage programs were started about 1905.

In the spring of the year or during periods of excessive rainfall, fields often become saturated with moisture and the water table, or level of "free" water, comes close to the surface. The roots of most crop plants cannot live long in "free" water and they will not grow down into it, but instead, they mature while still very short and shallow and after that practically cease to grow. As a result, when later dry spells come along, evaporation takes place, the "free" water surface drops and the topsoil dries out, leaving the shallow rooted plants "high and dry." Poor quality and yields of crops thus result from poor drainage.

Tile drainage removes only the excess or free water from the ground, it cannot drain off the capillary moisture that surrounds each grain of soil and is so necessary for plant growth. When the land is tile-drained, excess water is taken off early in the spring and plants develop normal, vigorous roots that are better able to reach moisture during dry periods.

That shortage of soil moisture is not caused by open drainage ditches, is proved by a study made in 1929, with state and federal agencies co-operating. It was found that where ditches average about eight feet deep, with two feet of water in them, no drainage effect was evident beyond 330 feet away from the ditch, and the average lowering of the moisture level by ditches a mile apart was only three inches. This has only a negligible influence.

Drainage programs started in Minnesota in 1905 have not been the cause of our recent dry years. During the 20-year period 1882 to 1901, Minnesota enjoyed an average of only one inch more rainfall per year than during the "drouth" period of 1918 to 1937, and going still farther back, the period from 1837 to 1886 was even drier, with an average precipitation nearly two inches below the 1918 to 1937 level.

Terraces Can Be Built

By Farm Operations

Terraces now being built for erosion control on thousands of farms can be successfully maintained without special equipment and without loss of time by planning farming operations and cropping systems, in the opinion of E. L. Hansen, assistant in agricultural engineering at the University of Illinois college of agriculture.

Building up the terrace ridge, rather than tearing it down, is easiest when farming operations are parallel to the terrace. Back furrowing to the ridge when plowing is probably the most effective. Disking also helps when the ridge is not straddled, especially with a single disk.

Cultivating parallel to the terraces eliminates the possibility of loosening the soil on top of the ridge which may result in over-topping of the terrace during a heavy rain. This often occurs when the direction of cultivation is across the terrace, since the depth is difficult to regulate when crossing. The ridge height may be lowered several inches as a result of one crop of corn.

If more maintenance is required, Hansen recommends a few rounds with a blade grader to keep terraces working efficiently.

Watch Silo Walls,

Farmers Warned

Farmers who contemplate putting up grass silage are being reminded by agricultural engineers to check the reinforcements around their silo wall and to make sure the inner silo surface has a protective coating.

Grass silage exerts a greater bursting pressure in silos than does normal corn silage, and its juices are more strongly acid, and hence more likely to corrode masonry walls than corn silage.

Fall Plowing

When plowing for wheat this fall it is best to "jump" all draws where grasses have healed old gullies. Where raw gullies are plowed in, it will pay to work them down at once and sow them to grasses or winter barley. With the remainder of the field left rough until wheat sowing time, fall rains will soak into the soil instead of gathering into the old gullies. By the time the wheat crop is sown, the gullies will be protected by the mass of grass roots.

Is your child a NOSE PICKER?

It may be just a nasty habit, but sometimes nose picking is a sign of something nastier. It may mean that your child has round worms—especially if there are other symptoms, such as fretting, finicky appetite, restless sleep and itching in certain parts.
Many mothers don't realize how easy it is to "catch" this dreadful infection and how many children have it. If you even suspect that your child has round worms, get JAYNE'S VERMIFUGE right away! Drive out those ugly, crawling things before they can grow and cause serious distress.
JAYNE'S VERMIFUGE is the best known worm expellant in America. It is backed by modern scientific study and has been used by millions for over a century. JAYNE'S VERMIFUGE has the ability to drive out large round worms, yet it tastes good and acts gently. It does not contain salutarin. If there are no worms it works merely as a mild laxative. Ask for JAYNE'S VER-MI-FUGE at any drug store.

AMERICAN BOY IS COMPANION TO THOUSANDS

Hundreds of thousands of boys and young men read THE AMERICAN BOY Magazine every month and consider it more as a living companion than as a magazine. "It's as much a buddy to me as my neighborhood chum" writes one high school senior. "THE AMERICAN BOY seems to understand a boy's problems and considers them in such a sympathetic and helpful way. It gives advice and entertaining reading on every subject in which a young fellow is interested. It is particularly helpful in sports. I made our school basketball team because of playing tips I read in THE AMERICAN BOY."

Many famous athletes in all sports credit much of their success to helpful suggestions received from sports articles carried in THE AMERICAN BOY Magazine. Virtually every issue offers advice from famous coaches or players. Football, basketball, track, tennis, in fact every major sport is covered in fiction and fact articles.

Teachers, librarians, parents and leaders of boys' clubs also recommend THE AMERICAN BOY enthusiastically. They have found that as a general rule regular readers of THE AMERICAN BOY advance more rapidly and develop more worthwhile characteristics than do boys who do not read it.

Trained writers and artists, famous coaches and athletes, explorers, scientists and men successful in business and industry join with an experienced staff to produce THE AMERICAN BOY, the sort of reading matter boys like best.

YOU'LL like the size of this trim new Buick SPECIAL for '41—its room, its softer ride, its Permi-firm steering, its fresh smart style and all that.

But what you'll go for is what happens under that broad bonnet—the thrill and the thrust you get from that husky, big, 115-hp. Buick FIREBALL* Eight.

For in each flame-packed cylinder of that silk-smooth power plant a flaring ball of fire is set off with each spark-leap.

Packed to higher compression than ever before, fuel gives up more power and more mileage — power when you need it, economy throughout the whole driving range.

Indeed, so great is the power at your command that at 30 you use only one-eighth of the energy at your disposal. All the rest is there waiting for pick-up, hill-climb and sudden getaway.

Even at 50 you use less than one-quarter of your available power, and at 75 still have nearly half "on call" for emergency use.

More than that, to this engine you can likewise add Compound Carburetion—and step up both power output and your mileage. At 30 you'll get nearly one and one-half more miles per gallon, at 50 almost two, and at 70 an extra mile and one-fifth.

But that's just one side of the story—the facts side. Only one thing will give you the stirring feel of Buick's thrill-packed behavior on the road.

That's a demonstration — and it's yours for the asking. When will you be in to ask for it?

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS
In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worthy while service which saves us many dollars a year.
It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.
When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. This advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

WNU SERVICE

THE STORY THUS FAR

Summoned to the C.C. ranch in central Nevada, desert-wise Walt Gandy is on his way to help his old range partner, Bill Hollister. Walt is stopped short by a girl—who holds a rifle in firing position. She knows him, tells him how to get to the ranch, and tells him that they will meet again. Within a quarter of a mile from his destination, Walt is stopped again. This time by a grotesque, misshapen man who tells him to get out and then tells him the C.C. crew is in Emigrant, the closest town, for an inquest. Someone has been murdered. Riding to the livery stable, Walt leaves his horse at the livery stable. Walt learns that Cash Cameron, owner of the C.C. ranch, is in trouble. A hard but honest man, Cash has been murdered and Sheriff Ed Battle has been trying to pin the blame on Cash Cameron. The girl is called to the stand. She is Helen Cameron, Cash's daughter. She seems faint and, as Gandy rushes to her aid, she slips something in his hand. It is the bullet from Drake's body. Walt rents a post office box and leaves the bullet in it, leaving the post office he is accosted by a dark, swarthy man who offers him a job. He draws the man out, finds that he wants to usurp Cameron's public range land. Gandy then turns him down in biting fashion. The man leaps at Walt, who whips him after a hard battle. The man is Pete Kelso, foreman of the 77 ranch, an outfit hostile to Cameron. Gandy is called to the sheriff's office, where he meets Hollister.

Walt Gandy leaned over and studied the floor boards between his boots. It came to him that this man showed surprising intelligence after all. If he would use it!

"Cash Cameron," Battle was saying, "has represented the power in control here. With the example of a big fellow like him holding the lid screwed on, and able to buy out any man who wanted to quit, there hasn't been much cause for trouble. Wasn't no need for the little fellows to jump his range rights nor each other's. But if the C.C. crumbles and its grass on public domain and in the national forest is open for anyone to grab, there's going to be hell." Battle roared suddenly, "I won't have it!"

Under his heavy brows Bill Hollister was no longer smiling. "You're dead certain, are you," he asked, "that the C.C. is going to crumble?"

Battle leaned forward over the flat top of his desk. "Yes." His eyes narrowed and glittered. "A man in Cameron's hole right now don't dare take up a gun—even if his range is being crowded in on!"

"The C.C. don't own title to five thousand acres of land. It's using close to a hundred thousand, all public. Every man who rode in to the inquest today is figuring on just that. Get the C.C. tangled with the law, get you people tied up in court and you might as well start raising hogs on your five thousand acres, because your power on the open cattle range is gone, and nobody will be afraid to crowd you. Wait!" Battle waved his cigar as Hollister started to speak.

"The power on this range has shifted from Cameron's hands now, back into mine, where it belongs! And I'm going to use it to the advantage of everybody, big man and little man alike. You people can't even chew what you've bit off out there, let alone swallow it; I guess Ranger Powell was beginning to see that himself when he announced the C.C. allotment in the national forest is going to be cut next summer." Battle clamped his cigar righteously, saying around the end, "Time for the little fellow to have a show here, and I'm seeing that he gets it!"

"Little fellows," Bill Hollister's quiet voice asked, "like the 77?"

Battle stiffened. His smoking stopped.

Hollister uncrossed his knees, and the C.C. foreman and the sheriff of Emigrant County traded long measuring looks.

"What do you mean by that?" asked the sheriff evenly.

"This," Hollister stated. "Funny thing, isn't it, that every man, woman and child on the Emigrant Bench from here north to Salt Flat and west to the Barricades, came to the hearing today—everyone except those from the 77!"

Still sitting stiffly upright, Battle made no reply.

"You're right about what is going to happen here," Hollister went on. "This range is over-stocked. Someone has got to move out. There isn't enough land here of any sort, private, public or national forest to hold the flood of animals that has been poured onto the Bench lately. That's too almighty true! But don't you talk to me about the little fellows." He eyed Ed Battle, took a long breath and rocked his body forward in a lightly balanced motion.

"Cash Cameron has played square with them. He figured when he bought a man's brand, taking his cows, he bought range rights too. That's custom. But no, these little fellows have hung on, getting a few more cows and only waiting to jump his grass at any chance. Little fellows!"

77 is the biggest contender for range rights that we control. But they aren't troubled about how this inquest will fall. The 77 knows!"

"Meaning that I've been bought, huh?" Battle asked suddenly.

"Meaning," said Hollister, "that someone who keeps his name off the records is part owner of the 77 brand."

Visibly the tension went out of Sheriff Ed Battle. He relaxed, shaking his head. "Nope. You guessed wrong that time. I own nary a cow in any size, shape or form, not on paper nor on the 77. If Jeff Stoddard and his bunch didn't come in today, they had their own reasons."

He gave Hollister a placating grin. "But we're sort of wrangling ourselves off the track, aren't we? I called you in here to make a proposition . . . for the good of everybody. Want to listen?"

With an abruptness of action not usual in him, Bill Hollister rose and his lank form towered. "Battle," he said, evenly, "you're a plain white-ridden skunk! Your bait's good all right, but it stinks of next election's votes!"

Color flooded hotly into the fleshy face of Sheriff Battle. He gripped his desk edge. Control over some quick and revealing retort came only after a minute of struggle.

When at last he got up onto his feet, the red flood of anger had drained away. He looked out with cold, hard eyes. "I said I had another piece of evidence, Hollister; something I didn't bring up at the inquest."

His ponderous figure came around to the open door.

Watching, Walt Gandy wondered. Battle's gaze went down, came back. "Hollister," he asked, "why did you have Paul Champion run water into that corn row where Chino Drake was lying dead?"

At Ed Battle's questioning thrust, Hollister's jaw had sprung shut. Muscles bulged. He stood planted as if to take a blow, a fighting man, yet to Walt Gandy it seemed the dogged courage of someone plodding on grimly to an end, without fire nor vital care for what would come after that end was reached. Whatever had happened to Bill Hollister had struck him at the roots.

Battle had the knife in and he gouged with it. "Well? Want me to say why you had that corn row flooded? To cover some boot tracks! Some almighty big ones!"

Again the sheriff's eyes went downward, and following them Walt Gandy's rested upon the black stitched boots that Bill Hollister wore. They were big; number elevens. These that he had on today were brand-new.

"The trouble with that trick," said Battle, "was that you slipped up. One track didn't get flooded. My deputy ran cement into it and I've got the cast. Never mind about the pair of boots that left the track; we've probably got those too."

CHAPTER VII

SOMETHING was wrong at the C.C. Riding abreast, but strangely silent for a pair who had not seen each other for two years, Walt Gandy and Bill Hollister topped the last bench and looked ahead to the home buildings. Out upon the open flat they had ridden in waning daylight. Here under the mountain wall night had come, darkening the ranch basin and spreading a gray mist close to the ground.

Hollister's long-legged black caught up beside the palomino. They loped through a lane between post corrals, passed the saddle sheds and reached an open yard. And then, almost before seeing them, they were upon three men standing motionless in front of a bunk house door. The door was open. No light showed inside.

"Place has been searched, Bill," said Cameron. "All the buildings. Someone while we were gone."

Until that moment Walt did not see a fourth figure which had remained crouched back on the dark doorstep. It rose as the ranch owner spoke, came out with a scuffling limp, and the twisted body of the deformed man seemed at night more gruesome than ever. He dragged past within touching distance, slanted his sunken eyes up in a direct stare into Gandy's, yet showed no recognition.

Walt had thought this afternoon that the man was more than a little off; he changed the opinion now. Something with a worse twist than insanity looked out from those deep eye-slits. He caught the feeling of a mind as warped as the body.

"What about Bent?" Hollister asked, indicating the retreating figure with a jerk of his chin. "He's been around all day. Hasn't he anything to tell?"

"Says he knows nothing about it," Cameron answered. "Bent couldn't have heard anyone, and he was mending the south pasture fence this afternoon. So he couldn't have seen, either, if it was somebody who came in from any other direction."

Only the youngest cowhand, Paul Champion, appeared from whatever it was that gripped these others. He swung the knotted end of his halter rope and kept running one hand back to the throat of his horse. A grin of repressed excitement looked almost foolish on his boyishly eager face.

"I'd say we better . . ." he began.

"Never mind, Paul," Cameron stopped him gently.

Walt Gandy had begun the making of a cigarette. Now he flung the unfinished tube away. He faced Cameron, saying, "There's one thing I guess ought to be made known right now, before anybody starts to check up."

Cash Cameron's white head pivoted.

"I was on your place this afternoon," said Gandy.

It was Hollister's voice, snapped out in the dark: "Why didn't you tell me that!"

Only Cash Cameron's features were visible from where Walt stood; the others were blotted in the night. But he could feel the quick stab of eyes toward him. He did not know yet who the cowpuncher was, making a squat shapeless form at the ranch-owner's right side. Cameron's mouth opened, closed. A hand came up and smoothed down the coarse hair of his gray mustache.

"Say, look here!" Gandy blazed. But he felt that he was only throwing words against a stone wall. The silence of these men was that thick. Battling a rise of impatient anger he turned from them, pulling the tobacco sack from his shirt pocket.

"No lights!" Cameron warned. "Listen!" Then almost at once: "It's all right. Go ahead." His daughter came abruptly around the bunk shack end.

She reached Cash, and standing close up to his raw-boned size, seemed to Walt Gandy once again as she had this afternoon, a small and fragile girl in spite of the rough garb in which she clothed herself, and far too rare a person to be caught in the black war that was gathering around her.

"I've gone all through the house again, Dad," she said, her voice low and controlled. "Whoever did it wasn't trying to rob us."

"No," said Cameron. "No, of course not." He asked no further, and it was Bill Hollister who spoke up.

"Then there's nothing missing, Helen?"

Slowly she turned and lifted her face to him, though in the dark she could not possibly read his features. "A rifle," she said, "and a pair of boots. Yours."

All others stood fixed, but the effect of her words upon Bill Hollister was sudden action, almost as if from relief.

"Paul," he ordered rapidly, "put up the horses. Walt, throw your war bag down here. You can turn Sunspot in the end corral by himself tonight and give him something extra. Bent Lavic will show you the lanterns and where the grain bins are." He turned away into the dark, alone.

His voice came back over departing shoulders: "I'll rustle firewood for whoever's going to cook."

As Walt kicked straw across the stable floor for Sunspot's bedding, he looked at Bent Lavic's feet. They were big—all out of proportion on that shrunken body. The boots he wore would be about size eleven.

Cash Cameron was in the kitchen trying unfamiliarly to get together a meal in his own house, and as Walt Gandy entered, he asked, "You know anything about pot-bust-other cowpuncher who had stood at Cash Cameron's right hand out there in the dark, emerged from a lean-to storage room with a gunnysack full of potatoes balanced on his left shoulder. He walked on short legs, bandy enough to fit the roughest horse ever born. A calf could jump between them and not scrape his boots. His face was homely, good-natured, and now solemnly intent upon the job of carrying potatoes.

He put the sack down on the floor. Cash Cameron said: "Horsethief, shake hands with our new cook. Gandy, this is Horsethief Fisher, and that name's no joke! But he has sort of weaned himself away from the habit the last ten, fifteen years."

A humorous twinkle of some past experience lighted Cameron's blue eyes, banishing momentarily the strain that this day had put there, and Walt Gandy had a glimpse of a hugely likeable old man.

Horsethief Fisher grinned and put out a knobby paw. "Glad to meet you, Gandy."

Walt shook. Here, he knew at once, was a tough and loyal henchman of the C.C. Horsethief took off his hat to hang it on a nail next the door, showing a head as bald as a hen's brown egg.

Hired hands on the C.C. ate in a dining-room that opened through an archway directly off the kitchen. Cash Cameron took his accustomed chair at the table's end opposite the kitchen arch. Bill Hollister ranged around on his right, Walt Gandy next. On Cameron's left was an empty place, then Paul Champion, Horsethief Fisher and Bent Lavic.

No one spoke of the seat that remained unoccupied, but all through the meal Bill Hollister kept staring there, as if he could not keep his eyes from picturing the girl in it, and again that somber studious look was set upon his face.

In the end he seemed to have thought something out. He pushed back his chair, saying: "I'm going to move down to the bunk house, Cash. If Gandy is going to cook, he ought to have my room here so he can roll out and get the fires built early."

It sounded reasonable. Cameron nodded. But somehow the ease and forgetfulness that had been upon the room for a little while was gone.

Gandy stood up when Hollister did. There before the men he said only: "I'll go down with you, Bill, and bring up my war bag." But outside when they had passed beyond earshot of the house, he stopped short in his tracks.

Hollister's lank form halted too, and turned in the dark.

Walt wet his thumb to roll a cigarette. "You know," he said, his words slow and dragging, "there's a lot of country between here and the border, mostly desert."

Hollister dropped his head forward. "Huh?" He sounded startled.

"Most hot desert, too," Walt went on, "and the wild flowers weren't blooming, and there wasn't much moon, and one place they forgot to put up the trail signs. Did I make that ride for any purpose, Bill?"

Closing up the short space that separated them, Hollister asked, "Are you crazy? Too much heat or something?"

"Too much something," Walt admitted. He put his next question flatly:

"What am I here for, Bill? Am I needed now, or did I come in too late? A man has already been killed. Things point mighty straight to someone here on the C.C. I'm not asking if it's so or not; I'm using my own head. But this business of every last one of you appearing to have it all doped out and yet acting like you're afraid to tell, is making me itch. Is this ranch split against itself? Is that it? What's happened anyway?"

He paused, then as Hollister said nothing, finished, "Well, no, you don't need to go into details until you're ready. But I've got to know one thing—do you need me or not?"

It seemed to take Bill Hollister an unreasonably long time to form his answer, yet when it came, there was no room for the slightest doubt that he meant every word.

"Walt," he said, "I need you now more than I've ever needed a partner in all my life! You've got to take that much and believe it. It's all I can tell you, because, boy, it's the only thing I know for certain!"

A sudden grip on Walt's arm spilled tobacco from an unfinished cigarette.

Hollister started to speak, the grip digging in, but then bit off the word and stood tight-mouthed, staring back toward the ranch house.

THE VOICE OF WISDOM

LESSON TEXT—Proverbs 4:10-27. GOLDEN TEXT—Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life.—Proverbs 4:23.

What to do and how to do it—these are the vital things which the book of Proverbs imparts. It deals with every condition of life, good and bad, in the revealing light of God's holiness and love. Good advice may have its value, but we also need to know how to put it into practice. Therein is wisdom distinguished from knowledge. A man may have an unbelievably great store of knowledge, and yet be a foolish man because he does not have the wisdom to use it.

Knowing that these notes are used by a great many boys and girls, as well as by their teachers, the writer would suggest an outline for next Sunday which can be remembered by everyone who has ever crossed a railroad track. What does the warning sign say? "Stop, Look, and Listen." Then what? If all is clear, go ahead. That is just what our lesson tells us. Stop, for someone has a message for you; look, at the two ways of life; listen, to the wise words of counsel. Then go straight ahead in the right way.

I. Stop (vv. 10-13). Life moves on at a rapid pace. One of the devices of the devil to gain and keep his hold on us is to keep things moving so fast that we never stop to think, or to heed the counsel of others. The wise man has something of importance to say to the young man whom he calls his "son." Let us stop and give heed to his warning, for we are assured that it will mean for us a long and happy life (vv. 10, 12).

Nobody but a fool would hasten past such a "stop" signal, nor thrust aside this opportunity for life-giving instruction (v. 13). Here is something far more important than mathematics, literature, or economics. Here is life.

II. Look (vv. 14-19). There are really only two ways of life—"the path of the just . . . that shineth more and more unto the perfect day" (v. 18), and "the way of the wicked," which is only darkness and stumbling (v. 19). There is no middle way. We cannot walk in both paths; it is "either—or." Young people should get hold of that fact, for—in these days there is a constant attempt to blur the colors, making things neither black nor white, but gray; neither good nor bad, but just advisable or inadvisable.

The moral laws of God are not changed; right is still and will eternally be right, just as wrong is and always will be wrong. Wickedness is so wrong that it causes men to spend sleepless nights trying to entrap others (v. 16). But no one need go that way; just do not "enter" that path, "avoid it," and if by chance you have wandered into it, "turn from it" (v. 15). God will help you.

III. Listen (vv. 20-25). Listening is important business, calling for real attention and application. Especially is that true as one listens to the truth of God. It should be received by an attentive ear (v. 20), kept before one's eyes, and pondered in the heart (v. 21). Such listening is sure to bring results, and we find them enumerated in verses 22 to 25.

Life is assured to those who heed the words of God's messenger; not just a bare existence, but a healthy life (v. 22). God's spiritual children are not (or at least should not be) invalids or weaklings.

Keeping the heart right (v. 23) keeps the whole life right, and the way to be sure that the heart is right is to fill it with God's Word (v. 21). Then see how the whole life responds; the lips speak no forward (R. V. wayward) or perverse words, and the eyes look straight ahead along the shining path of the just.

Now that we have stopped to give attention to the Lord's word through His messenger, and looked carefully at the two ways of life, and listened to words of wisdom and guidance, what comes next? Do we stand idly by and commend ourselves for our wisdom, or do we sit down and take our ease? No. Being assured that the way is clear, we

IV. Go Ahead (vv. 26, 27). God wants His people to move on to greater glory and usefulness. At the Red sea, God told Moses, "Speak unto the children of Israel that they go forward."

"Move forward! valiant men and strong, ye who have prayed and labored long; The time has come for you to rise. For lo! the sun rolls up the skies."

Thoughtful, vigilant, lest he be led into a bypath on the right or left, turning his feet away from every evil path, the child of God goes forward, and as he goes the road becomes brighter and brighter with the glory of the presence of the Lord, shining more and more until that perfect day when he shall find himself at the end of his journey and at home forevermore in the Father's house.

To Check Constipation Get at Its Cause!

If constipation has you down so you feel heavy, tired and dopey, it's time you did something about it. And something more than just taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat the super-refined food most people eat, the chances are the difficulty is simple—you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.

If this common form of constipation is your trouble, eat Kellogg's All-Bran regularly, and drink plenty of water. All-Bran isn't a medicine—it's a crunchy, toasted cereal. And it will help you not only to get regular but to keep regular. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Seed of Science
Men love to wonder and that is the seed of our science.—Emerson.

The one you see in the sketch became a side chair for the living room dressed in richly colored cretonne in soft red and blue-green tones with deep wine bindings. The legs of the chair were sandpapered and stained mahogany to tone in with the cover. The cane seat was inexpensively repaired with a ready made seat of plywood reshaped to fit the seat of the chair and then using the pattern as a guide as indicated here. Next week I will show you how the other one of these old chairs was used.

AROUND THE HOUSE

It is a good plan to disinfect sinks and other drains once each week.

Potatoes that are to be French fried should stand in cold water at least an hour before cooking.

One soon learns by handling pots when managing house plants that if pots are light the plants are dry; if heavy they may be left without water for a time.

A teaspoon of salt and dessertspoon of lemon juice answer the same purpose as "salts of Lemon" for removing iron mold from linen. It is not a poison and will not prove injurious to the linen.

Dogs having access to the house should be kept thoroughly clean and free from fleas. Serious damage may be done if fleas enter rugs or upholstered furniture.

A rug sometimes becomes badly creased. To remedy this, turn it upside down and wet the crease with a moistened broom, until the rug is quite wet; stretch the rug tight and let it remain over night after fastening it with tacks which do not rust.

HIGH SCHOOL

There are several new subjects being offered this year, namely commercial law, biology, junior business training and composition.

The work in several classes has been retarded due to the lack of books.

Latin I is being taught in preference to Latin II this term. The present class is the largest in several years, being composed of twenty-four students.

The class in American government is studying the establishment of the Federal Constitution. Another part of the present study is the functioning and relationship between the State and Federal Governments.

Both English and American literature are being taught this year. Previously one had been taught each year.

The Major League will start their league schedule Monday evening, September 23, at 7:30 and 9:30, with a twelve team league. Alabaster will postpone their two opening games owing to working conditions, these games will be made up during the week ends.

Tuesday will see the Inter-City Teams starting with twelve teams. A few new teams have been added to this league and it should be an interesting race.

On Wednesday evening the Ladies' league will swing into action with the same teams starting. We should see a lot better brand of bowling this year as some of these teams have been strengthened.

Thursday evening the Minor league will start and some new teams have been added to this league so they too will have a better balanced league.

The schedules are made out and will be mailed to the team captains this week.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday will be open bowling for the present.

Several week end match games have been lined-up. Such as Morley Bros. team of Saginaw, Garber Buick of Saginaw, Sheriff Department team of Bay City, and a Ladies team also of Bay City.

Most Spanish Spot

The most Spanish spot under the American flag is the romantic city of Ponce, on the southern coast of the United States territory of Puerto Rico. Although Ponce was the first city to be entered by the Americans who took Puerto Rico in 1898, it has been the last to give up the Latin heritage it derived from its Conquistadores. English is spoken widely in Puerto Rico, but Spanish is the prevailing language in this stronghold of old Castille.

Chemicals in Textiles
