Political Notice

I wish to thank the voters of Iosco County for their support at the September primaries and will appreciate your support and vote for the office of Coroner on the Republican ticket at the General Election.

E. JOHN MOFFATT.

Business again entered normal channels in Tawas City when two lanes of the newly paved Lake street were opened today (Friday) to traffic. The first cement for the pavement was poured by Thomas McNally, contractor, October 2, and the two two-lane slabs were completed Wednesday afternoon of this week.

With the completion of widening of Lake street (a portion of US-23) the people of the Tawas will see the dream of the past ten years materialize, and another important link will be added to the Lake Huron Scenic highway. This fall this important highway will be open for traffic from Toledo, Ohio, to the Straits of Mackinac.

Actual operations in the construction of the road were delayed so that they would not interfere with the tourist traffic. When work on the grade started in September, every effort was then put forward to have the road open before deer season. The successful accomplishment of this aim was due to the extra efforts of contractor Thomas McNally and the state highway department, especially the men in charge of operations here.

These are Howard C. Bacon, district engineer; W. W. Dalzell, project engineer; Chester Finster instrument engineer; George Gruenwald, concrete paving inspector; Lloyd Hilliard, grade and sewer inspector; Donald Akers, concrete plant inspector; Charles Terry and Philip Salmon, chainmen.

Eighty-five men have been employed in constructing the pavement and the contractor's payroll, up to October 19, had amounted to $16,600.00. Seventy carloads of cement from Alpena and 390 carloads of sand and gravel from Greenbush, hauled here over the Detroit & Mackinac railroad, were used in the two twenty-two foot slabs.

The two slabs are equivalent to three and three-fourths miles of pavement. The highway when complete will consist of the two 22-foot slabs, a four-foot asphalt center strip and an eight foot gravel shoulder, making a total width of 56 feet.

Classes for Service in Public Eating Places

During the coming months food handlers employed in public eating places will have an opportunity of "going to school." Classes consisting of one or two meetings will be held in various convenient sections throughout District Health Unit No. 2.

Motion pictures and other visual aids will be used to show the right and wrong way of handling and serving food. Employers of all eating establishments will be notified regarding the place and time of each meeting and will be invited to cooperate with this program. The time for classes will be so arranged that all employees will be able to attend without interfering with their busy working hours.

The purpose of this plan is to aid employers and employees in complying with the standards of the Health Department regarding the approval of eating establishments. These establishments complying with the standards in every way will receive cardboard signs reading, "Sanitation Approved, Michigan State Health Department."

According to Frank J. Mayer, Sanitarian, these classes will deal with such subjects as: Proper Construction and Maintenance of Buildings; Serving Food; Water Supply and its Dispensing; Toilet and Laboratory Facilities; Sewage and Garbage Disposal; and Source of Food with particular emphasis on handling and serving of milk. The classes will be small enough so that individuals may feel free to ask questions and to be fully informed regarding existing standards.

New AAA Provision to Benefit Iosco Farmers

Under a provision of the 1941 AAA Program, Iosco county farmers will be able to receive conservation materials in the form of lime and superphosphate in an amount not to exceed 70% of their conservation payment.

The lime and superphosphate, of which much of Iosco county land is in need, will be obtained at very low prices through the county agricultural conservation committee.

Harry A. Goodale, chairman of the Iosco County Agricultural Conservation Committee, said this week: "This is one of the first conservation provisions that has been introduced to date under the national farm program. Many of us have wanted for years to apply lime and superphosphate to our land, but could not afford to."

"Under this provision we can afford the conservation materials our soil has so long needed. It should be a great thing for the county. It's a good business policy, too, turning back into the business some of the earnings for upkeep."

"I am sure that the majority of Iosco county farmers will avail themselves of this opportunity to build up sweet soil. A soil survey of the county has shown that much of our land needs the application of these materials if good yields and profitable farming are maintained through the many years to come."

"The county AAA office will be glad to explain the program in greater detail as it applies to the individual farm and will assist all interested farmers in obtaining these materials."

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

National Lottery for Peacetime Draft Holds Spotlight of Defense Program; Germany Changes Tactics in Air War; Tension in Far East Affairs Grows

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Interest in the current draft program has led the government to place on display in the Washington office of the Selective Service board this first World War draft register. The register shows that the draft lottery began 9:16 a. m., Friday, July 20, 1917, and ended 16 hours and 46 minutes later, with the drawing of the 10,500th capsule. The same method is being used to determine the order in which men shall be called for the 1940 peacetime conscription program.

DEFENSE:

Numbers Called

To War Secretary Henry L. Stimson went the honor of selecting the first number in the national selective service lottery. President Roosevelt was to pick the first capsule out of the goldfish bowl that was used in the 1917 draft lottery, but graciously yielded to Stimson. The late Newton D. Baker, secretary of war under President Wilson, selected the first number in 1917.

Contracts

The industrial program of national defense entered its second phase. First was drafting and awarding of contracts. Billions of dollars worth of goods, from battleships to paper clips, were contracted for.

The job now is one of procurement, actual manufacture on the speed-up scale demanded by the Defense Commission in order to achieve the two-ocean navy and equip an army that will number close to 1,500,000 within a few months.

Chief bottleneck is machine tools, the machinery and gear necessary in the process of turning automobile shops into tank factories, and the mass production of warplanes and munitions. William S. Knudsen, head of the production division of the commission, said tool makers are swamped with orders, sold out a year in advance. President Roosevelt issued an order permitting seizure of tool machines being made for foreign countries, wherever the material is necessary in American defense.

Outside tools, however, the vast industrial capacity of the United States seemed to be taking both defense and expanding civilian orders in its stride toward record production figures. The climb in manufacturing indices since last spring still has left a margin of surplus in manpower, raw materials and money.

But despite the rise of various business statistics to new peaks since 1929, Wall Street security markets remained inert.

WAR AT NIGHT:

Tactics Change

England was emerging from almost three months of continual bombing with greater confidence in its ability to withstand whatever the Luftwaffe can deliver. As the stormy weather wore on and German planes were not halted by fog and freezing weather, British air leaders increased the fury of their own raids over France, Germany and Italy. Prime Minister Winston Churchill made bold to predict that by spring, 1941, with the help of American production, England will seize supremacy of the air.

The German air attack on London was reduced in one respect. Daylight raids were fewer and less violent. In the beginning Air Marshal Goering sent large formations in daylight raids. During this period the British scored heavily. Then the tactics shifted to single planes at varying heights. The German losses were reduced, but still remained high.

Now raids are confined largely to night. Bombers drop their packages from the stratosphere and scoot for home. The result is that the Joy of Childhood?

U. S. army guns, tanks and toy soldiers in miniature are the favorite of the current season's new crop of toys as far as Nick Tassalo, 6, is concerned. Nick is shown at the preview of the toy manufacturers' display in New York. A large percentage of the new toys for the coming Christmas season reflect the national defense program preparations.

POWER:

On the St. Lawrence

An agreement between the United States and Canada looking toward development of a hydroelectric system along the St. Lawrence river has been advocated by four Presidents but never achieved. The war need for greater power has brought about a start.

With the consent of the United States, Canada will take more water from the Niagara river to generate power for its defense industries. So as to maintain the level of the Great Lakes, waterways now flowing into the Albany river and Hudson bay will be diverted southward to the lakes.

The announcement immediately awoke echoes of the two-decade fight for a Great Lakes-to-the-Sea waterway. Existing navigation above Montreal is limited to 14 feet. Locks are sought to provide a 32-foot draft.

Farmers of the West favor the plan. It would permit ocean liners to dock at Great Lakes ports and load wheat. Advocates of public power look upon the proposal as providing cheap electricity.

Opposition comes chiefly from ports in the Gulf of Mexico and along the Atlantic, as well as transshippers of grain. On the Canadian side the same is true.

President Roosevelt has allotted $1,000,000 of special defense funds for a survey.

SABOTAGE:

Mr. Dies Again

A wave of fires and explosions in U. S. defense industries "like the recent Hercules powder blast in New Jersey," is predicted by Representative Dies (D., Texas), chairman of the house committee investigating un-American activities. He called attention to the fact that a former member of the German American Bund told his committee several weeks before the New Jersey disaster that it could be expected.

Dies said there are more than 250,000 alien agents in the United States and more than 5,000 in defense industrial plants in the Detroit area alone.

Meanwhile members of the same committee declared they have proof that Friedhelm Draeger, German consul in New York, has for six years been the actual head of the National Socialist party in the United States. They said the German diplomat has been "under observation for a long time" and is head of a vast ring of espionage, sabotage and propaganda.

It was revealed that Draeger's connections were linked up when a raid was made on the German Tourist Information Bureau and Transocean Press, both in New York.

Far East Bloc

In Manila, Capt. Rufo Romero, a native Filipino, graduate of West Point and officer of the Fourteenth Engineers at Fort McKinley, was formally arrested and charged with plotting to sell confidential military papers to an unnamed foreign power. He was taken into custody in the basement of his home while allegedly photographing documents showing defense fortifications at the entrance to Manila bay. Two civilian accomplices were arrested. His American-born wife was sought.

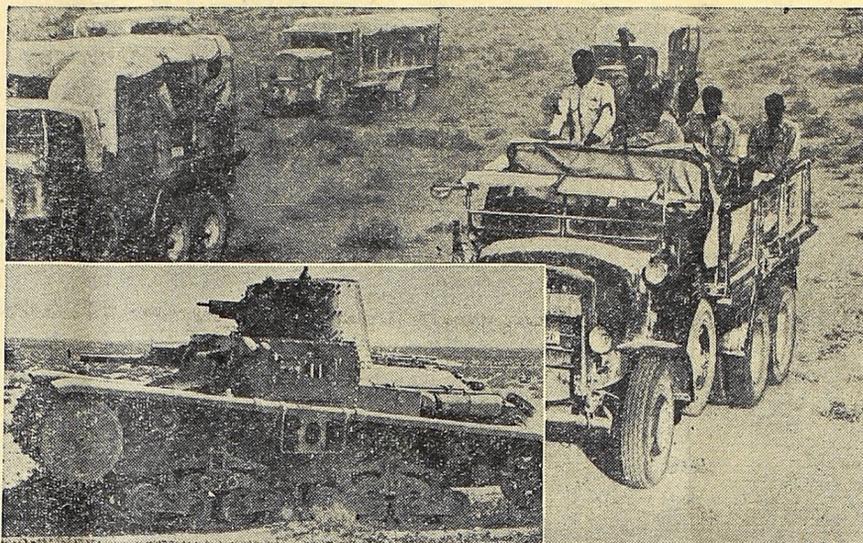

Meanwhile a Japanese, who feigned insanity, was seized on the U. S. aircraft carrier Langley, at Olangapo. He was found when still in a wet bathing costume and apparently had swum from shore to the ship.

MISCELLANY:

President Roosevelt borrowed a dollar from Postmaster General Walker to buy $6 worth of the new defense stamps. The stamps were exhibited at the White House on the first day of sale, but when the President went to make a purchase for his collection he had only $5 in his pocket.

An attendance record was established in the national parks during the 1940 travel year. Visitors numbered 16,741,855, a million more than last year.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—In 1933, young Nelson A. Rockefeller was handed a delicate job of commercial and cultural co-ordination, indeed a Rockefeller Well stiff assignment for a Qualified for His beginner in this field. It was to persuade the fiery Diego Rivera to x-out that head of Lenin in his murals at Rockefeller Center. He managed the affair with tact and restraint, undisturbed by the thunder from the left.

Now he has progressed to full-time work in that highly specialized field. He is co-ordinator of commercial and cultural relations between the United States and other Western hemisphere nations. Currently he is in the news as he appoints John Hay Whitney to his staff, to take care of motion picture details of the above co-ordinating.

I remember talking to one of his teachers at Lincoln school, New York. She said Nelson was good material for progressive education, as he had a way of getting on with people. He was a good student, too, romping so far ahead of schedule at Dartmouth that they gave him his senior year off. He devoted it to a wanderjahr, in which he went to India and had a long chat with Mahatma Gandhi, and studied photography. Taking up the rich man's burden, he devoted himself mainly to the family real estate, becoming president of Rockefeller Center, which, incidentally, is one of the most successful feats of commercial and cultural co-ordination in the world.

Mr. Rockefeller, born in Bar Harbor, Maine, in 1907, is tall, blonde and reticent, an abstainer from alcohol and tobacco, always deeply in earnest. With his manifold business interests he combines a careful and diligent trusteeship of the Museum of Modern Art. This department can't help but feel a bit doubtful about co-ordinating commerce and the arts—unless there is a John Masefield around to write a poem like "Cargoes."

KING BORIS of Bulgaria is doing the best he can for his little Cinderella kingdom, but things don't look so good. He reviews troops

King Boris Would and shifts his tanks and Rather Be 'Casey' Jones around smartly, but there is a hint that he is just making himself a lot of unnecessary trouble. As a king, he never did have his heart in his work.

He has a passion for trains and never misses a chance to drive a locomotive. Engines fill his life and his dreams. When his father, Ferdinand, abdicated in 1918, the young man insisted that he be allowed to go to America and be a railroad engineer, but his father forbade it.

Ascetic in appearance, always of seemly behavior, he moved immaculately through Balkan wars, revolutions and internecine dogfights. Ferdinand had apprenticed him to a versatile fighting man in 1912, when he was only 18 years old. He fought dutifully, but seemed always to be listening for the whistle of old 97, coming round the bend.

His wardrobe, one of the best in Europe, runs mainly to pinstripes. He is a nimble dancer, good at all such orthodox sports as boar-hunting and timber-topping, but aroused and eager only when he has his hand on the throttle of a locomotive.

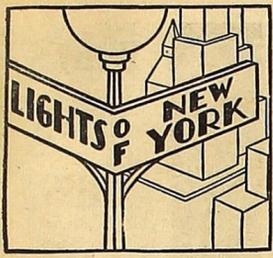

In 1930, he married the Princess Giovanna of Italy. This alliance was regarded, among other dynastic ties, as a stabilizing and safeguarding influence for his kingdom, but now seems of small account. In 1934, internal stress led the king to set up a dictatorship, by a military coup. It didn't help much. About 80 per cent of the exports of Bulgaria continued to go to totalitarian countries, and it came more and more under their thrall. The king flirted with Russia for a while, with no gratifying results. He has been in frequent peril of assassination—and nothing seems to matter much, since they won't let him be a railroad engineer.

IN 1935, he lost his job selling oil burners when the company folded up. Julia, his wife, said, "Now's your chance to do some of that singing you were always going to do." So he piped up right away and sang his way right through to the dotted line on a Metropolitan Opera contract. That's young Arthur Kent, one of the ten new singers booked this season at the Met. He began singing in cafes and churches and then got 46 weeks in "I Married an Angel." His repertoire includes Italian, Spanish, French.

Romance—Martha Jane Mooney, 24, daughter of a vice president of General Motors corporation, went to England last spring to drive an ambulance. Her parents protested but to no avail. By L. L. STEVENSON

Mrs. Mary Somers is 60 years old. She lives in a furnished room. Living in a furnished room, especially when one has reached threescore, is not a cheerful existence. Also it's lonely. The house may be full of roomers but there are more barriers between friendships than mere brick walls. The turnover of the population is too great. Folks are always moving in and out. Then, too, there is no telling who a neighbor might be. He or she may look respectable. He or she may look satisfied the landlady as to reliability. But, with rooms often going begging for occupants, that isn't too hard. So it is just as well to keep to oneself and thus avoid getting mixed up with something unpleasant. But getting back to Mrs. Somers. Loneliness and lack of cheer are not decreased when one has to live on home relief. Home relief provides food and shelter but not much else.

Mrs. Somers was on her way down to the home relief office to get her weekly dole. Possibly she was thinking that a few extra dollars would make a great deal of difference to her. I can't say as to that because when I called at her rooming house, she was out. At any rate, on Eighth avenue, between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh streets, she saw what looked like a roll of green paper. Something caused her to turn back and pick it up. But instead of being mere pieces of paper the roll consisted of $5 and $10 bills which, when she had recovered sufficiently from her surprise to be able to make a count, totaled $370. And to Mrs. Mary Somers at that moment, $370 was a fortune indeed.

So far as she knew, no one had seen her make that find. There was nothing about the roll to indicate ownership. Five-dollar and ten-dollar bills awaken no suspicions when presented at stores and thus can be exchanged for necessities or luxuries without question. But instead of slipping the money into her all but empty handbag, Mrs. Somers went up to Patrolman George McNulty, who accompanied her to the station house where she turned the $370 over to a lieutenant. Then she went on down to the home relief office, walking to save a nickel. In her mind had been the thought that perhaps the one who lost the money needed it more than she did.

The $370 is now at police headquarters in custody of the property clerk. It's up to whoever lost it to prove ownership beyond the shadow of a doubt before he or she can get it back. If no valid claim is made within the next six months, the money will become the property of Mrs. Somers. And it's my earnest hope that next March she will receive notice that she is $370 richer.

Feminine red lips are costing the city money. That's on the word of Russell Forbes, commissioner of purchases. Recently he sent a notice to the various department heads of the borough of Queens calling attention to the fact that lipstick smeared on towels runs up maintenance costs. He didn't ask the department heads to see to it that their underlings used no more lipstick. Instead, he merely suggested that there be more care in using towels furnished by the city.

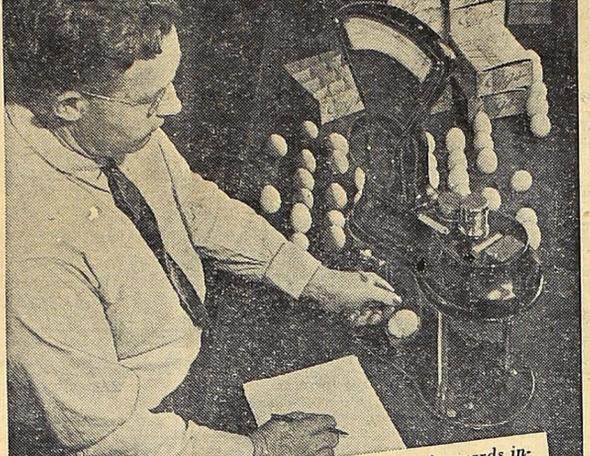

Speaking of lipstick reminds me that at nine o'clock the other morning, I saw an intoxicated gentleman in full evening attire, white tie, tails, topper and all, weaving his way toward a Broadway taxicab. If he is a married man, undoubtedly on his arrival home he had to answer a lot of questions, not only because he had been out all night but because the broad expanse of once white shirt bosom was ruddy with lip prints.

Ilka Chase and hubby, Bill Murray, were having luncheon at the Savoy Plaza and it being the crowded hour, they were joined at the table by an impressive looking English couple. The Britisher and his wife left first and on arising, he spilled a glass of water all over his trousers. He started to make profuse apologies until stopped by Miss Chase's query, "Why do you beg my pardon? You didn't touch me." "No," replied the Englishman, surveying the scene, "but it was your glass of water."

Uncle Sam Peers Into Nature For Benefit of One and All

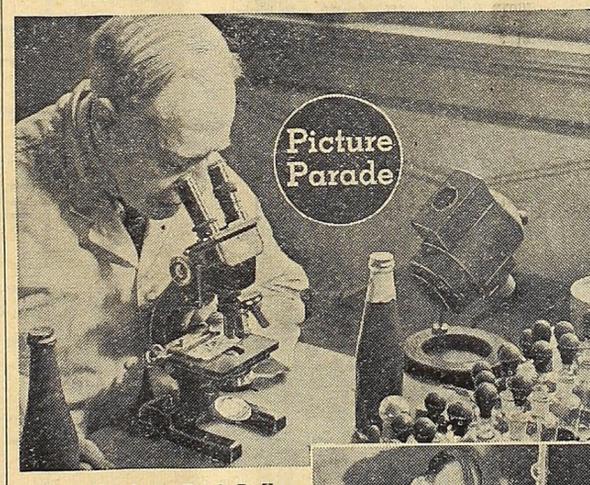

The government is constantly making experiments that lead towards the discovery of new uses for everything that comes from the soil, as well as towards the correction of many natural evils which seriously affect the national well being. This experimentation, in the long run, pays big dividends. Here are a few pictures showing how Uncle Sam goes about this important work.

Cod Liver Oil For Treatment Of Skin Ulcers

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

JUST why some ulcers on the skin are so indolent or slow in healing is often hard to understand. Sometimes eating more of the foods containing lime or taking lime direct—calcium lactate, gluconate, and a specially prepared chloride—stimulate old ulcers to heal.

Vitamin D as it occurs in cod liver oil has been found effective in healing old or chronic bone inflammations—osteomyelitis. The bone is scraped out thoroughly and the cod liver oil fills in the hollow left by the removal of the diseased bone. It was only natural therefore that physicians, particularly skin specialists, should try using cod liver oil in the treatment of old or chronic ulcers of the skin.

Dr. James R. Driver, Dr. G. W. Brinkley and Dr. Maurice Sullivan, Cleveland, outline their method in the Urological and Cutaneous (Skin) Review.

"After experimenting with various formulas for application to indolent ulcers this one was found to be satisfactory:

"Commercial cod liver oil—88 per cent.
"White wax—12 per cent."
The wax prevents the too rapid absorption of the oil in the dressings and when the dressing is removed it usually clings to the dressing, thus making it possible to prevent injuring the healing surface. A generous amount of ointment, usually one-fourth inch in thickness, is spread on gauze or muslin, then covered with oiled silk or oiled paper, and bandaged in place. A warm, moist chamber about the ulcer is thus produced.

Precaution to Be Taken.
Following the first application a marked activity (ulcer is no longer indolent) is generally set up, resulting in an increased amount of pus and the liquid part of blood. The ulcer soon assumes a ruddy, clear, healthy appearance and new surface skin can be seen growing in from the margins of the ulcer. When this condition is noted, the dressing need be changed only every four or five days (instead of daily), and extreme care must be used to avoid injury, by wiping with cotton or gauze.
If any of the pus gets on surrounding skin it should be wiped off with soap and water.

Cause of Chills And Treatment

A PHYSICIAN walking along the street one morning felt some chills run down his back and throughout his body. He turned back home, removed his clothing, and climbed into bed. The family were astonished and naturally asked the reason for going to bed.

"I don't know what is the matter. I felt the chills and I find my temperature is up 2 degrees. I do not feel sick but something is likely attacking me and by going to bed instead of staying on my feet, I'll give my heart more strength to fight off whatever is coming.

A physician was called in, made an examination of heart, lungs, abdomen, but as there was no pain or other symptoms he was unable to locate any trouble aside from a little redness of the throat. The physician remained in bed almost a week as the heart rate was up to 120 most of this time. No definite ailment occurred.

When something is causing trouble inside the body anywhere, the blood from the surface goes to this point to fight it. This causes the chill or chilliness of the skin and is a distinct warning that some trouble—slight or severe—is present.

A chill, for instance, is usually a sign of a cold, of influenza, pneumonia or other acute ailments. The fever that follows the chill is really the effort of the body to fight off the ailment.

Bed, a hot drink, with hot water bottles at the beginning and end of the attack, is the best treatment. Don't neglect a chill. It may mean very little, but, on the other hand, it may be the first sign of a severe infection.

First Postmark

Great Britain, it is said, can claim the honor of having originated the postmark. The first one, which was used in London as long ago as 1660, was a very simple affair, consisting of a small circle divided into two parts. In the top portion were two letters indicating the month, while in the lower half the day of the month was shown. No endeavor was made to denote the year, and it is only by the dates of the letters on which the mark is impressed that it is possible to fix the date of its use. The earliest known was on a letter written in 1680.

RE-ELECT
Your Representative in Congress
ROY O. WOODRUFF
Able and Experienced

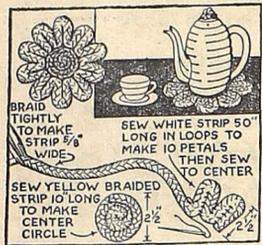

He is a proven friend of the American farmer. He believes the farmer is entitled to the American market so far as he can reasonably supply that market.
William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, in a letter to Mr. Woodruff states: "During your entire incumbency you have invariably supported measures advocated by the American Federation of Labor."
Woodruff believes American labor and industry are entitled to the American market so far as they can reasonably supply that market.
HE IS ONE OF THREE MEMBERS OF CONGRESS TO FIRST URGE THE ADOPTION OF ADEQUATE OLD AGE PENSION. HE HAS BEEN FIGHTING FOR THIS FOR MORE THAN 15 YEARS.
His every effort has been devoted to protecting the welfare of the great mass of American people.
He is a veteran of the Spanish War and the World War and has consistently voted for every appropriation for the national defense. He believes the future welfare of this country can be secured only through a national defense sufficiently strong to prevent any hostile force setting foot on American soil.
He believes the scandalous waste of the public funds must cease. More than seven years' experience teaches us that this cannot be brought about under the present Administration.
He believes Wendell L. Willkie, a man of unquestioned integrity, ability and business judgment, is the one man to lead this nation out of the economic wilderness in which it finds itself.
That ROY O. WOODRUFF has the confidence of his Republican colleagues is shown by the fact that They made him their Chairman. He calls and presides over all their meetings.
They made him a member of the ways and Means Committee, the most powerful committee of the House of Representatives.
They made him a member of the Committee on Committees.
They made him a member of the Republican Steering Committee of the House.
They made him their representative on the National Forest Reservation Commission.

Daisy Hot Dish Mat
An Appropriate Gift

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS
IT WAS the flower handle of the tea-pot lid that suggested this daisy mat. I had been thinking of making a hot dish out of firmly braided strips of cotton cloth. I wanted it to be thick and sewn firmly like a rag rug, so that it would stand frequent scrubbing. The design had to be novel and gay so that it would be appropriate for a Christmas gift or would attract attention if used to sell at a church bazaar. All the directions you need to make one are right here in the sketch.

Cotton flannel or heavy cotton knitted material are good to use for the braided strips. Cut the strips two inches wide if the goods is heavy or wider if light weight. Braid tightly and then use No. 8 white cotton thread to sew, as shown. A set of these mats are pretty on the table; and mats for oval dishes may be made by sewing two daisies together.

NOTE: There are directions for a hot dish mat made of cable cord in SEWING, BOOK 4. Books 2 and 3 also contain directions for many gifts and novelties. These booklets are a service to our readers and each contains 32 pages of illustrated directions for things to make for the home. That Nagging Backache

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risks of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

Gandy swung up onto his palomino and followed, at first lifting the horse into an incautious running walk. Bent Lavic was deaf; he could crowd close to the man, and yet those gray eyes were sharp as an owl's. He pulled down.

Beyond timber and out upon the bench the trail forked, one west, one south, and again with a match held low Gandy found fresh tracks holding to their southward course.

In an hour it was certain they were leading to Willow Spring. He moved at last along the dark hollow of the hill cove, came to a familiar shallow ravine sloping gently upward. Here he dismounted as on that first day and left the palomino.

The ravine topped out a good hundred yards above the black-looking willow clump. Nothing showed down there to indicate life, either animal or human. And then as Gandy stood uncertain, waiting for a guide-sign, a gray shape moved a little, near the edge of trees and there came the restless thud of a hoof. He had located the gray nag.

When he was within five paces of the nag, the gray head lifted, turned, hung for a moment suspended in air. Then it dropped wearily without sound. Gandy took a free breath and entered the corridor.

Now he could see nothing. Trees roofed low overhead, and the tight thicket of their trunks made walls spaced no farther apart than the width of a steer. He reached a point where the pool's reflection was dimly visible. The trick of squinting in the dark brought a sharper outline of the water and its surrounding basin. And then the surface broke.

Ripples formed and widened across the faint gray disc. At once there came a sucking sound as of a boot pulled from soft mud. In less than two minutes after that Walt Gandy knew someone was coming stealthily along the black corridor of tree trunks.

He had no time to move aside, but stood hands down, one lifting on the butt of his thirty-eight. Then a better plan came, and he waited, as rooted as the willows themselves, until human closeness could almost be felt.

As the dim blob of a face emerged from the pitch dark, his arms shot out, closed. Instantly he would have released them for they were locked around the body of a girl. She went all at once limp, unstruggling, with only a single short outcry, and Gandy knew it was Helen Cameron hugged there hard against him.

He spoke her name. But the unnerveing jar of his lunge reacted in violent trembling after the momentary shock, and swiftly putting one hand under her knees, he lifted the girl and turned to carry her out upon the open hill slope.

At the willow edge she stiffened suddenly in his arms. "Don't stop here! Wait! Get away from the spring!"

Within Gandy himself a dull bitterness was rising. Helen had come here to meet someone. He could see nothing else in this secret night ride. And that one must be Stoddard. She had seen the 77 man yesterday afternoon. Now again . . .

By the time he reached the ravine bottom the dull bitterness had grown close to a flood of anger. He set the girl on her feet and released her, dropping the gray nag's reins close to the palomino's. For a moment, saying nothing, he looked down into the upturned face.

Then before Gandy could launch his accusation, Helen Cameron frowned. "What do you think you're doing? Coming here like this? I told you once before, Walt Gandy, that everything you do is all wrong! Now what do you mean, following me? What did you expect to find out, anyway?"

They stared at each other through the vague light, until at last Gandy said in a quiet, even voice, "I expected to find a traitor to the C C, Helen. And I think I have. You were meeting Stoddard, weren't you?"

"I was meeting . . .!" The words choked off in a gasp. A gloved hand flew to the girl's mouth. Wide-eyed, she stepped back from him.

"Oh!" she uttered. And then he had a display of the Cameron temper. "So that's what you think! That's where you hold me in your mind—meeting the 77 out here!"

She spun around and would have fled, but his two hands gripped her shoulders. "Listen, Helen! Listen to what I mean!" He turned her until at arm's length she was facing him again.

"I didn't follow you. I trailed the gray nag and thought Lavic was riding. But now, it's you I found—what am I to think? Can't you tell me, Helen? Can't you put me straight?"

She moved a little closer to him then, still with his hands holding her shoulders, and the flare of temper was gone. In its place came a gentleness of surrender, not to him nor anything he might ask, but to what she was going to say.

"No, Walt, I was not meeting Jeff Stoddard out here, and I rode the gray nag because my roan had already been in to Emigrant and back. I . . ." Her voice trailed off, the word ending, and yet hanging strangely upon the night in a way that filled Walt Gandy with a dull foreboding.

It was a moment before she began again. "I must talk to you, Walt. You're right. Only, I don't know how. I've been putting it off, hoping . . . I don't know what for." Her eyes pierced through the dark to his.

He laughed softly, uneasily. "Go ahead. I can take it, I guess—all but one thing."

"What is that?" she asked quickly. "Never mind," he evaded.

Out of the silence, Helen asked, "Will you do something for me?" He turned his head to her.

"What?" It was a wary question, regardless of what he had just felt. "Do as I asked you to do the other day—leave this country. Go now, tonight; head off south where you came from."

"Sure!" he said. "Fine!" And have the sheriff of Emigrant County on my trail for a year or so!"

She shook her head. "No. Battle won't trail you. I can promise that."

"You can!" "Yes."

Walt Gandy looked down at this puzzling girl. "Helen," he asked, "why do you want me to leave?" "Because," she answered, "I'm afraid of you."

"Afraid?" "Yes. You know too much. You know about the inquest bullet, and me, and you're gathering facts all the time and putting them together. Walt, you mustn't! Listen. If you knew Bill Hollister was clear of all trouble, then you'd go, wouldn't you? That's what you came up here for. I know. Well, he is. Bill is safe."

Walt Gandy denied it with a slow movement of his head. "No, he isn't. I'm not convinced that Hollister is guilty here, but Ed Battle will do his best to hang it all onto him. Battle has three bullets now. If he has Bill's rifle . . ."

"He hasn't."

The girl spoke so surely that Gandy stared into her face a moment before demanding, "How do you know?"

She looked away. "He hasn't. That's all I can tell you."

Gandy stood silent, watching her with an ache in his arms. Did she think that he still had only one purpose in being here? How could she not know!

"Helen!" he said. "You're not blind! I came here to help Bill Hollister, but that isn't all of my reason for staying. Why can't you talk to me? You know the truth! I'm going to see this thing through, and when that . . ."

It was not plain to Walt Gandy himself why he broke off.

Her eyes had dropped quickly from his, and she stood with head bowed. He put out a hand to her, but she avoided it and suddenly lifted one of her own to her cheek.

"Helen!" he begged. Her head jerked up. Then with a queer, short laugh she told him, "Walt, you're fine. But it's no use. The other afternoon I said I was working out the C C troubles, in my own way. I have. There's going to be no range war, and no more killing. The only thing is, you'd better go. Please don't misunderstand me, and don't ask me to explain any more. A way to keep peace on the Emigrant Bench was offered, and I've taken it."

Before the girl finished, Walt Gandy knew what she was going to say, and he stood with the life gone from him, heavy and cold, while Helen Cameron's voice sounded far off: "I am going to marry Jeff Stoddard."

CHAPTER XVIII

WALT GANDY stood alone in the bottom of the dark ravine. Helen had not wanted him to ride back with her, and he was glad that his offer had been refused. He had to get hold of himself first.

Then reason told him that what the girl had said, could never happen. She would never marry Jeff Stoddard. No matter in what spirit she had promised herself to the 77 owner, the thing was too ungodly. Unless she loved him. Clinging to his own hope, Walt Gandy refused to believe that she did.

In a little while, leading the palomino, he made his way back to the spring. Adroitly, he realized now, Helen had evaded answer why she had come here tonight. He had to know.

There came to mind the faint sounds he had heard while waiting, unaware of who was at the pool; the rippled surface and sucking as of boots drawn from mud. The girl had warned him away from the spot, then had given no sign that she was afraid someone else might come.

He left his horse at the willow edge and groped on along the short tree-trunk corridor. Warily he struck a match. The disc of water and its small basin leaped out of the dark; nothing more.

Lighting one match from another and holding the flame low, he traced where the girl had walked once around the pool. Then she had backtracked. She had stopped, as if for considerable time, her boots sinking in deep. He went into his pockets and brought out more matches, for now the mud showed an imprint of her hand.

Through a minute more he stood imagining moves she might have made here, and then, fitting his own boots into the holes hers had left, squatted down and felt in the dark water.

Only a press of cold ooze touched his fingers. The shelving bottom was shallow. But cattle wading here had churned a soft pit, and suddenly Walt Gandy knew that the girl had used Willow Spring to hide a secret; could almost say what she had hidden.

He rolled up his sleeves, stretched both arms far out and thrust them down. It took many minutes' exploring in the slime until his hands struck something hard, and straightening, he tugged upward, drawing out at last a mud-coated rifle.

There was little need to clean the gun. He hunched down again, working with slow deliberation on an unwanted job.

Gandy laid the rifle down. Hollister's. Carried those years they had been on border duty together. Used up here to shoot a man in the back. He sat staring into the black night; felt all at once old with knowing too much. But it was more than the shooting that put this weight in his feeling against Bill Hollister. Hollister must have known how desperately the girl was trying to shield him. Did he even know Helen had promised to marry Stoddard?

It was plain what she had done. No deputy sheriff had taken this rifle from the C C ranch house. Helen herself had, then pretended it had been stolen. Walt knew now that she was hiding it here the first day they met, and had come back tonight to make certain the law had not discovered her secret. All to shield Hollister! Only a girl would go to such scheming. The gun would never have been found in this pool, with cattle tramping it deeper until it rusted away.

Gandy sat unmoving for a long time, trying to see what was ahead for him; saw only that he would stick and go through to the end. Once he had sworn that if Hollister had done the cold-blooded killing here, he'd quit. Not now.

At last he got up, took the rifle and thrust it back into the mud. The green-tinted mountain dawn was in his face by the time he reached the C C.

Ground mist was rising. Through it he saw vague movement of figures. Three horses stodd saddle at the corral post. Horstheif Fisher came hurriedly from the bunk shack. At sight of him Gandy lifted his pony into a lope.

Fisher was armed, and at the sudden thudding of hoofs, he about-faced, hand on his gun, unusually jumpy.

"Where the devil you been?" he wanted to know, as Gandy reined his Sunspot in close.

Walt cast a quick look over the lot, swinging off beside the bronc rider. "Never mind me," he answered. "What's up?"

"Declaration of war, boy!" Horstheif told him. "I'm ridin' in to get Bailey and the bunch! Hollister's orders!" He clamped down on the news with grim satisfaction.

Hollister's tall black was not among the horses which stood saddled, nor in the corral. "Where's Bill now?" Gandy asked.

"Rode off before daybreak," said Fisher, looking worried for the moment. "Told me he was going to try for a last talk with Stoddard to see if his herd mightn't be turned back without gunfight. But I just now saw that Bill's sixshooter ain't hangin' there at the head of his bunk. Boy, I'll bet it's more than talk he's gone after!"

"He go alone?" "Fisher nodded.

"Good Lord!" Gandy burst out. "I know," Fisher agreed. "But Bill slammed out of here before anyone figured what he was doing. As I said, I only just now saw his gun was missin'. Anyway I'm dustin' for town!"

Young Champion appeared from around the bunk house. Gandy tossed over the palomino's reins. "Feed him, Paul, will you? I'm ridin' again." In the act of moving on up-slope he turned and asked over one shoulder, "What orders did Hollister give you for today?" "I'm to stick right here," the boy said, grave-faced. He was wearing his big forty-five. "With Helen," he finished.

"Where's Lavic?" "Dunno. Haven't seen him."

Helen was not in sight when Gandy tramped into the kitchen to grab a fast breakfast. The gallon granite-ware coffee pot was simmering on the back of the stove. He poured a mug full, drank it while eggs and a round of ham were frying, then with those cooked, poured more coffee, got biscuits hot from the oven and ate standing at a window overlooking the ranch yard.

Impatience goaded him, but it was a safe bet that this meal would be his last for many hours. He filled up.

Helen came into the kitchen before he had quite finished. He promptly stacked his plate and cup on the sinkboard and turned to the outer door, wanting no talk with anyone, not even the girl. It was past time for any more words.

But she called quickly; and what she said jerked him around.

"Wait! Did Lavic find you?" He moved a step nearer, and would have given everything he possessed to tell this girl that she need worry no more, that it was all close to an end.

"Lavic?" he asked. "Looking for me? What did he want?"

"I don't know. The poor fellow was worked up over something and was hunting every place for you. Have you seen him at all since last night when Battle was here?"

Impatient to be gone and knowing that every minute was carrying Hollister closer to an enemy camp, still Gandy waited, feeling an unexplainable portent in what the girl was saying.

"No," he answered, his words hurried. "I haven't seen him. Why, Helen? What is it?"

Again she said, "I don't know. Bent wouldn't talk to me. Only . . ." With an unexpected movement she came across to him. At arm's length she stopped. "Only, Walt, Bent Lavic knows something! I almost think he knows exactly what has happened here, and I've tried to make him tell. It's no secret that he is terribly bitter and hates dad, maybe Hollister, too. And last night . . ."

Her voice trailed off. "Last night," Gandy put in, "you thought Lavic was going to talk to me here in the kitchen, so you hung around until he went out! I saw that play, Helen. Why?"

"Because I didn't want him to! He has nothing to tell you. Nothing! He hasn't seemed to mind having you here, and I saw how he looked at you last night when Battle was talking. But he has nothing that you should know!"

"I know it already, Helen." They were close, staring at each other. "You can't go on with what you're doing," Gandy said. "You aren't hiding anything from me; I found Bill Hollister's rifle there at Willow Spring."

She recoiled as if he had struck her, one hand against her cheek.

Quickly he added: "It's all right. I put it back in the mud. No one will ever know. Only you can't go on shielding Hollister forever. Girl, you've done your part!" He turned from her, reaching for the door. "Do you know that Bill is headed for the 77 right now?"

"No!" "I'm trailing him."

"No!" she cried again. "Let me go! Let me handle this. Walt Gandy, you stay out of it!"

He spun back and was suddenly close upon her. He stood rigid, looking into her desperate face. "Let you go?" he asked. "Go and talk to Stoddard? Make more promises, to save the C C men? That it? Listen to me." His voice was all at once low and surprisingly sure. "You will never marry Jeff Stoddard."

She stared up. "I will. You don't know—you have no reason to say anything else."

"I haven't?" Then arms that had been held rigidly at his sides swept the girl to him. Close to her lips he said, "I've got the best reason in the world!" And madly he kissed her.

CHAPTER XIX

YOUNG Champion had fed the palomino and shifted him into a dry saddle blanket. Freshened, the horse stood ready to go.

Gandy came down to the corral on a run. "Good," he said. "Thanks, boy." Mounted, he asked, "Is there a direct trail to the 77?"

"So-so," Paul answered, "as far as our Outpost Camp. That's the limit of C C range and is at the south end of the sink. Only a shanty. You can't miss it if you keep angling in that direction. No trail from there on. All you can do is get up to the rims somehow and travel straight west from the Outpost. Walt?" The boy hesitated.

Gandy looked down from his saddle. "What is it?" "I've figured it out, maybe, who I shot at the other night. If it'll do any good. Bent Lavic."

"Not certain?" "Again the boy hesitated, reluctant. "Well," said Gandy, "suppose you keep it under your hat. All right?"

"Sure!" Paul agreed. Then impulsively, "Wish I could go with you!" But Gandy shook his head.

JESUS DECLARES HIS MISSION

LESSON TEXT—Luke 4:16-30. GOLDEN TEXT—"For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."—Luke 19:10.

Ready for service! It's an exciting and auspicious occasion when the one who has prepared for a life work is ready to set forth on his mission. Joy and sorrow mingle; encouragement and opposition both appear and become his constant companions. Recognizing God and following His Word is of greatest importance on such a day.

The mission upon which Jesus entered on the day of our lesson was important far beyond any service of man, for, while He set out upon an earthly ministry of doing good, it led to the cross where He wrought out deliverance for the captives of Satan. That day found Him back with His own people in the synagogue in His home town.

I. Prophecy Fulfilled (vv. 16-22). It is significant and appropriate that Jesus' declaration of Himself as the fulfillment of Isaiah 61:1, 2 was made in the synagogue on the Sabbath day. He met with the people in the house and at the time set apart for God's worship. He opposed spiritual deadness, the misinterpretation of the truth, the distortion of religious principles; but He was not, as some would have us believe, a religious free lance who despised the established worship of His people.

Having been prepared by the years of silence, and more particularly by the baptism and the temptation in the wilderness, He appeared at the synagogue in Nazareth to declare Himself as the fulfillment of prophecy.

Those who teach that Jesus was only a young Jewish teacher with a new philosophy of life have evidently not read the Scriptures. He knew Himself to be God's Son come into the world to bring the good news of salvation by His own blood to poor, sin-captive, blinded and bruised humanity. He is the Saviour!

Look at Isaiah 61:1, 2 and note that Jesus stopped reading before the end of the sentence. "The day of vengeance of our God" will come when Christ returns. This is the day of grace. Sinners are urged to accept God's love now, and thus to escape the terrible day of judgment.

II. Faith Recognized (vv. 23-27).

The Jews gloried in the fact that they were the chosen people of God and insisted it was through the exercises of their formal worship that God's blessing must be received. Now this one whom they erroneously call "Joseph's son" (v. 22) comes to disturb them in their self-satisfaction. Seeing their rising resentment, He declares by striking words and example that the benefits and blessings of God come through faith and not because of any racial relationship.

The glory of Christianity is that its grace and power are to be received by faith and are fully and freely available to the simplest and poorest of men. Race, position, wealth, education, have nothing to do with it. All too often they are a hindrance, although they ought rather to be a help.

Every reader of these notes, regardless of age, education, wealth or any other condition or circumstance of life, stands on an equal footing before God and has a full and unlimited opportunity to take right now, by faith in Christ, all that God has for him—salvation, spiritual strength and usefulness, joy, peace, and all the other blessing of God. Will you do it?

III. Truth Rejected (vv. 28-30).

Like a torch cast into gunpowder, His words set off all the explosive power of narrow bigotry, national pride, jealousy, and they were all "filled with wrath" (v. 28).

They rejected not only the truth of His words, but they rejected Him who is the Truth (John 14:6). Note it carefully—in rejecting or neglecting His Word, you reject and neglect Him.

Observe that until the time had come for Him to be "delivered" (Rom. 4:25) into the hands of wicked men to be crucified they could not touch Him. There is no more majestic scene than that in verse 30 where the Son of God turned at the brow of the hill and, walking through the midst of the crowd, went His way.

What have I to fear at the hands of wicked and gainsaying men as long as I follow this all-powerful Son of God? He that is for us and in us is greater than he (the devil) that is in the world (I John 4:4). We follow the victorious Christ, who quietly but majestically walks through the ranks of His helpless enemies and goes "His way." Will you join us—today?

Be Temperate

Woe to them that rise up early in the morning that they may follow strong drink; that continue until night, till wine inflame them.—Isa. 5:11.

Apprehensions

Let us trust in God, and not fatigue ourselves with indiscreet and unwarrantable apprehensions. Let us depend on the divine assistance for the conduct and issue of our lives, and let us not yield ourselves up to disconsolateness and despair.—Pascal.

LEGUMES RAISE SOIL FERTILITY

Nitrogen-Rich Crops Need Special Handling.

By C. B. WILLIAMS
(Head, N. C. State College Agronomy Department)

Legumes plus proper fertilization hold the key to fertile, productive soils.

The most practical method in building up the productive power of soils calls for the proper growth and handling of suitable legume crops in rotation with properly fertilized major crops.

The mere growing of legumes does not assure added fertility unless these crops are handled properly. If the legumes are removed from the field, leaving on the land only the stubble and roots, their use in this manner alone will prove a delusion so far as being an effective means of increasing the producing power of the soil in a permanent way is concerned.

Effective methods of increasing the fertility of soils must be those that will leave the soil at the end of each year fairly well supplied with thoroughly decomposed organic matter and an increasing amount of readily available plant foods. This will be the effect which the proper growth and handling of legumes will have on the land.

Anyone at all familiar with the simple principles of soil management knows that fertility cannot be maintained when the crops removed take off the land more plant foods than are returned to it. That's why it's so important to turn under some of the legumes.

The best time to apply ground limestone is from three months to one year before seeding legumes. This gives the stone sufficient time to contact acid in the soil particles and counteract it.

The application of lime to cultivated land should be made after plowing, and the material should be mixed with the topsoil. Little benefit may be expected if lime is plowed under before being properly mixed with the topsoil. On pastures it is only necessary to scatter the lime on top of the sod; however, better results will be obtained if it can be worked in by light harrowing.

Good Laying Hens Do Not Die Young

The hen that lays the golden egg, and lays it regularly, can live as long as her less productive sister, according to a five-year study made at the Pennsylvania State college by Dr. Dean R. Marble, associate professor of poultry husbandry.

"Many poultrymen believe that the high mortality of laying hens is due to breeding for standards of egg production which are so high that the bird's physique is weakened," Dr. Marble stated. "However, during a five-year period we cut the mortality of selected poultry in half and proved that we can breed longer-lived poultry without any loss in egg production, egg size, or body weight. Selecting and breeding for all these characteristics is practical."

During the past decade mortality has been increasing, Dr. Marble claims. He believes that careful breeding could help to solve the problem.

Sheet Erosion Destroys Fertility of Farm Land

That crop yields decrease as soil erosion increases is shown by tests made on farms last summer by the Soil Conservation Service.

In tests made on five farms, it was found that fields with less than 25 per cent of the topsoil gone produced 51 bushels of oats or 47 bushels of barley per acre; fields with 25 to 50 per cent of the topsoil washed away yielded 42 bushels of oats or 28 bushels of barley per acre; fields with 50 to 75 per cent of the topsoil gone produced 35 bushels of oats or 23 bushels of barley, and land with more than 75 per cent of the topsoil washed away yielded only 23 bushels of oats and 17 bushels of barley.

"There is an evident relation shown here between topsoil losses and crop losses," says M. A. Thorfinsson, soil conservationist. "Sheet erosion removes the top, or most productive layer of the soil. With each inch that washes away, there is left a material that is not only less productive, but that is more subject to erosion."

New Worm Treatment

Phenothiazine, a new and powerful drug which is now being used experimentally for treating sheep and goats for worms, has been giving splendid results on flocks around Columbia. Flocks that have been treated twice have been doing splendidly. It takes about five days after treatment to clean the animals of worms, and all worms are killed, except possibly some tapeworms. Even the nodule worms are killed.

Both the girls and boys basketball squads have begun practice and most of this season's games have been scheduled. New suits for both groups and also individual lockers have been ordered.

This week the girls practiced from four to five p. m. and the boys from five to six p. m. Next week the boys will practice the first hour after school and the girls the second. This system will enable both groups to get an equal and ample amount of practice.

Let us all, both parents and friends, give our full support toward the welfare of our teams.

Juniors Have Hamburg Fry and Treasure Hunt

On October 25, the Junior Class of Tawas City High school went to Silver Valley where they had a hamburg fry. Cookies and cocoa supplemented the menu. It was dark by the time the dishes were cleared by students who thought of the hearty meal they had just disposed of.

Now for the treasure hunt. The class was divided into two groups. The slips on which the directions were written led them up hill, down to the creek, across the bridge, down to a large log, and through all kinds of rough country. At last, the tree where the treasure was buried was located by Mrs. Polycutt's group who won the prize of the two boxes of kisses. Mr. Polycutt's group continued to hunt, and returned to the camp fire some time later, to find the treasure was already secured.

Mr. Polycutt felt quite blue until Arthur Biggins cheered him up by offering to kiss him.

After sitting around the fire telling stories and swapping yarns, they all returned home tired, but hoping Miss Van EENwyk would take them again.

TRIBUTE

Last week Tuesday, Mr. Mayer, sanitary engineer from the State Health Department and the Couzen's Fund Unit for this district, addressed the high school students after showing films on health.

During his discussion, he paid a real tribute to our student body in stating that he had never shown these films to a student body that gave courtesy of attention as our students did.

Attention while someone is making a demonstration or speaking is a distinct mark of good breeding and a courtesy. It speaks well for the training background of young people. It acknowledges appreciation on the part of the boys and girls. It demonstrates a culture too often lacking in youth today.

I thought the finest thing said at this assembly was when Mr. Mayer remarked to our boys and girls, "Well, you're just tops that's all."

Further, I was reminded that many times, perhaps, it takes the fellow on the outside looking in, to observe and appreciate what we on the inside fail to recognize and appreciate.

School Spirit

School spirit, what is school spirit? How does it effect you? School spirit is an ideal an ideal that should live within each student. An ideal is something that is finer, more beautiful, an farther above ordinary things. So it should be with our ideal of school spirit. Those who have school spirit have a beautiful ideal, a faith in their school, their teachers, and their teammates.

Do you have that faith in your school? I believe you do, remember that thrill of pride that surged through you when one of our ball players made a fine hit, remember how you cheered for the player, for Tawas. That was school spirit. But do we have enough school spirit. No, I think not. When school is dismissed for a ball game, do you go to cheer for Tawas.

Do you attend band concerts and other functions? Probably you do, at least part of the time. It is easy to cheer the team when they are in a tense combat with a strong foe, or when they stand out above the rest. But what is more important, how durable is your school spirit when it comes to the grind of every day af-airs? Do you show proper school spirit when you go to your daily classes, or when the teacher turns his back? Do you help a classmate who has trouble with his lessons? Can you be trusted to back up your class, your teachers, and your school to the limit.

Congratulations

On the Opening of

U. S. 23

The people of Tawas City and East Tawas are especially fortunate to have a major trunk-line paved and opened in their community. This road, although not yet completed, will form another important link in the chain of tourist and scenic highways being built in this territory. We all shall benefit in our business and social contacts as a result of the completion of this program.

We public spirited citizens of the community offer special congratulations to Murray D. Van Wagoner, State Highway Commissioner of Michigan. No lesser thanks go to Mr. Thomas McNally whose construction firm has hastened the opening of this highway. To the merchants of the two towns who have been inconvenienced during the construction period we can only say "Thanks" and point to the benefits that should accrue to them as a result of the construction job.

We believe that the opening of US-23 is added testimony to a man who has come to be characterized by the statement, "... he gets things done."

(This advertisement is sponsored by and paid for by people who believe that the election of Murray D. Van Wagoner to the office of Governor will further the program of "getting things done" for the Michigan tourist industry.)
