Letter Carriers Ask For Your Co-Operation

Rural mail carriers are not required to affix stamps to mail deposited in rural boxes for collection, especially during the month of December. The Postoffice Department Bulletin of November 22, urges that stamps be affixed to mail deposited in rural boxes. In order to facilitate the collection and dispatch of mail matter on rural routes, particularly during the impending holiday season, all first and third class matter deposited in rural letter boxes for collection by the carrier should have stamps affixed at the proper rate of postage. The rural carriers from the Tawas City office are amply supplied with all denominations of stamps, and stamped envelopes for purchase in advance by the patrons on the rural routes. Any information concerning the proper postage for all mail matter will be gladly given by the rural carriers or the post office staff.

Tawas City Skating Rink Ready for Cold Weather

Early Thursday morning city employees were out viewing the possibilities of icing Tawas City's new skating rink. They were disappointed, however, for while the temperature had been down to 18 degrees during the night, it was again near the thawing point and the mercury was continuing to rise. It is early in the season, though, and we shall have temperature that will furnish plenty of ice.

The new skating rink was sponsored by the city, County School Commissioner Russell Rollin, and the American Legion. It was built under the direction of Charles Brown, Matt Pfeiffer and Ed Lemke, WPA recreation advisors, who also did much of the labor. Beryl Hughes plowed and leveled the 200 foot square plot of land with his tractor. The rink is located on city property near the disposal plant.

An ice skating rink for the young people of this city has been discussed every winter for a number of years. While at times there is excellent skating ice on the bay, usually most of the winter it is rough, unsafe and snow covered, or there is no ice at all. Last fall the ground was prepared and those responsible should be commended for this excellent project. All we need now is some freezing weather.

M. C. Train Wrecked Hits Open Switch

The train crew and a score or more of passengers miraculously escaped death or serious injury Tuesday morning when a north bound Michigan Central passenger train hit an open switch near Standish. The engine and tender ploughed into the roadbed and overturned. Jerome McCauley, engineer, and Joseph Woods, fireman, were scalded by the steam from broken pipes.

Owing to the condition of the rails and roadbed at Standish, a second train made up at Bay City was routed over the Detroit & Mackinac railroad. Engineer Wm. Gurley piloted the train over the road.

Railroad officials stated at Standish that there was a possibility that the switch had been tampered with. Hearings were held Tuesday, but arrived at no decision. Hasty preliminary examination failed to reveal the exact cause. Railroad police and other officials are continuing their investigation. Capt. Edward Gleason, Bay City railroad police officer, is heading the procedure.

100% First Iosco Group Passes Physical Test

The first five men in Class 1 registrants for selective military service have passed their preliminary physical examinations and are now in Class 1-A. The men are Arthur Bigelow, of Tawas City; B. Russ Sheffer, of Oscoda; Alva John Caswell, of Au Sable; Francis LeRoy Drumm, of East Tawas; and Maxwell A. Elliott, of Oscoda.

Two of the registrants, Arthur Bigelow and B. Russ Sheffer, have volunteered for service. Bigelow has been called and is now at Fort Sheridan. The remaining four are awaiting call.

Passing physical examinations with a score of five out of five men is unusual. Such conditions might be desired but cannot be hoped for through the remainder of the list. Iosco county has a fine bunch of upstanding young men, but not that good.

John Mielock, chairman of the draft board, said today that the first 125 men, arranged according to order number, had been sent their questionnaires and had been classified.

The Mobile Recruiting Station has been sent out by Lt. Col. Joseph L. Bachus, Recruiting Officer for the State of Michigan, to make a tour of towns that have no recruiting stations to explain the advantages of the Army to eligible young men and give them the opportunity to enlist.

The Unit consists of a 1½ ton GMC truck and an auto trailer with accommodations for five men. It is complete with cooking equipment, beds, and public address system.

The bride wore a street length dress of light blue with a shoulder corsage of white baby mums and roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Harry Ross, of Olivet, Michigan, sister of the groom, wore a street length dress of royal blue with a corsage of yellow baby mums and roses.

Edward S. Grabow, brother of the groom, was best man.

The wedding party and members of the immediate families enjoyed a wedding supper at the home of the bride's parents at Long Lake.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Allen, of Pontiac, and Mrs. V. G. Chisholm, of Detroit.

They will make their home at 465 West Grand Boulevard, Detroit.

If a man kicks to you about the lack of enterprise in your town, ask him if he is doing any boosting, individually or otherwise, to make his town or country neighborhood better. It is the easiest and laziest thing on earth to sit on a curbstone and find fault.—Exchange.

HALE MASONS WIN CIRCUIT COURT DECISION

Plainfield Man Leaves Estate to Hale Lodge

An instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of Wesley Vaughn, deceased, of Plainfield township, was brought into circuit court last Monday for interpretation. After considering various points in question, Judge Herman Dehnke determined that the will indicated the desire of the deceased in giving property, estimated to amount to $20,000.00, to the Hale Masonic Lodge.

The case was brought into circuit court by a sister of Mr. Vaughn, Mrs. Lola A. Hague, of Detroit, who questioned the validity of the will and the interpretation of its contents.

George F. Cartwright, of Detroit, and Prosecuting Attorney John A. Stewart were attorneys for the plaintiff and B. J. Henderson, of Bay City, was attorney for the defense. Attorney Howard Bowman, of Hale, had been named in the will as executor of the estate.

The suit proved of considerable interest to the people of the county. Mr. Vaughn, during the last several years of his life, had been very much interested in the welfare of Hale Masonic Lodge and had said many times that he planned that the lodge should have a suitable hall.

In the case of Lloyd Shellenbarger vs. Edith Shellenbarger, in circuit court November 19 and 20, a decree of divorce was granted to Edith Shellenbarger. The Shellenbargers are residents of Plainfield township.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

By Edward C. Wayne

Germany's Most Powerful Air Army Is Now Being Used to Crush England; Labor Peace in U. S. Is Not So Near; First Draft Evaders Sent to Prison

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

During the strike at the Vultee Aircraft plant in Downey, Calif., U. S. army defense orders for training planes became sidetracked but union heads allowed pilots to cross picket lines and take delivery on 17 planes completed. The planes were to be used at the army training field at Sunnyvale, Calif. Above, army officers are pictured running one of the planes out of the plant.

AIR BLITZ: Over England

The fourth German air army contains the veteran and most expert of Nazi bombers. It never had been used over England, although it is the best equipped and largest of the German air forces. The fourth air army was trained in Spain, used to smash Poland in four days and dive-bombed the French army into submission and out of the Maginot line.

Now many believe it has been assigned a mission across the English channel. The mission would be to grind to debris the British industrial Midlands area. Two such attacks have been made.

The first was on ancient Coventry, historical cathedral city when Lady Godiva made her famous horseback ride. Coventry in modern times had become the "Detroit of England." Here was made the larger portion of British airplanes and thousands of her 169,000 people were employed in defense industries.

In a single 10½-hour night raid, Coventry was turned into a shambles, hardly a single home being left unscathed. Berlin said all of the plane factories were in ruins from explosive and incendiary bombs. The British denied this but gave no details. It was admitted, however, that almost 1,000 civilians were killed, many air raid shelters which were thought bombproof being crushed like paper. The three-towered cathedral, almost a thousand years old, was left with hardly one stone atop another, except for a single spire.

After a lapse of a few days the raiders concentrated on Southampton, city of a million people, also in the Midlands. Berlin said the hometown of the late Neville Chamberlain, who appeased Hitler at Munich, was given the same treatment. Southampton is a textile town and also had been turning out a large cargo of automobiles and munitions.

Greeks Fight On

In the Italo-Greek war neutral observers shook their heads and admitted they could not understand how Greece was holding out. Out-numbered three to one, the ballet-skirted, pom-pom slipped Evzone troops cut the Italians to ribbons and pushed them back into Albania on all fronts.

These observers still believed the Greeks were putting up a valiant but futile battle. No one in authority considers the Italian army seriously, estimates running from derision to contempt. But the Greek's military supplies were known to be low. Also there is no opportunity to give them help, for all Greek guns, both rifles and artillery, are of a special Greek manufacture and no ammunition of foreign make will fit their weapons. Once spring rolls around and the Italian mechanical force can get into action, there may be a different story.

Mare Nostrum

One thing seemed certain. Mussolini in his attempt to carry on a war by himself was tangling up the plans of the entire Axis. Control of the Mediterranean which the Italians call Mare Nostrum (Our Sea) may come diplomatically rather than militarily.

Adolf Hitler came to the Duce's rescue in this respect, once it was certain the Italians had bogged

HEADLINES . . . in the news

Diplomacy — U. S. Ambassador Joseph C. Grew got a nod of approval from the Japanese emperor at the banquet commemorating 26 centuries of the empire in Tokyo. The diplomat expressed in a speech, the hope that Japan would "increasingly contribute to the well-being of mankind." The ruler nodded emphatic approval.

Who's Boss?

Two former secretaries to congressmen, Gordon Canfield (right), of New Jersey and Herbert Bonner (left), of North Carolina, are to take the places of their former bosses in Congress. Canfield replaces the late Rep. George N. Segar and Bonner replaces Lindsay C. Warren, who resigned to become U. S. Comptroller General.

ESPIONAGE: Diplomats Accused

Chairman Dies of the house committee investigating un-American activities, called before him in secret session various officials of "German and Italian organizations."

Dies charged that members of the German diplomatic corps have been engaging in a "quiet campaign" to raise funds in the United States to finance German rearmament. He also said German money was being sent here for investment in vital industries and to promote an "appeasement" group.

Emphasizing that his committee has moved cautiously to avoid a "strain" on international relations, Dies asked Secretary of State Cordell Hull if his department had any objection to exposure of diplomatic corps intrigues. The secretary disclaimed any responsibility, terming the investigation "purely a congressional affair."

Dies said he would ask the next congress for a million dollars to continue the investigations.

Two Theories

Three other departments of the government, however, were somewhat less than enthusiastic over the Dies hearings. The army and navy intelligence and the FBI were letting it be known discreetly that they consider Dies is doing more harm than good.

Everything uncovered by the special house committee, they said, has been known to them for a long time. For years these agencies have worked cautiously to get U. S. agents into alleged subversive groups. These U. S. agents have listed and catalogued a vast array of information which can be used at the proper time. In the meantime they have made it possible to keep a watch on all suspects and these suspects, not aware their identities are known, have exposed the whole network through which they work.

But the Dies committee, it is said, has by raids and publication of names, revealed the fact that the identity of these alleged foreign agents is known. This makes their work ineffectual, so they are recalled. Then new agents and new networks are set up by the foreign powers and the army and navy intelligence and the FBI must start all over again. Tracking down these new agents may take many months of effort, to cover a field which once was well protected.

MEXICAN MISSION: In Spanish

Vice President-elect Henry A. Wallace went through the Southwest in his recent campaign speaking Spanish. A new assignment in that language was his first after-election duty. He attended the inauguration of Gen. Avilo Camacho, president of Mexico, as the representative of President Roosevelt. It's an old Latin American custom for nations to send official representatives to each other's inaugurations. The U. S. has never indulged before. But now it's part of the Good Neighbor policy and is looked upon as effective. Several days after the decision was announced Mexico revealed it had granted the United States air and naval bases on the Mexican east coast.

The C. I. O. asked first that all of its unions, including many set up in mass industries since the split, be admitted to a new joint organization intact. This presented two problems. First was the claim of certain craft unions (like the moulders, for example) for jurisdiction in some of the mass industries (like the automobile plants, for example.) Second, the A. F. of L. was believed unwilling to accept certain small "leftwing" C. I. O. unions.

The C. I. O. asked also that any unity movement include an attempt to bring into the national scope certain of the railroad brotherhoods, several of which now are independent of either national body.

President Roosevelt sent an appeal to both conventions. Both conventions also were split internally over administrative questions. John L. Lewis made it known on the first day that he would not again accept the C. I. O. presidency. Philip Murray, head of the steel workers, was boomed for the job from the start, but hesitated to accept because, it is believed, he felt Lewis' mine union would attempt domination.

The A. F. of L. battle which brewed for a time under the surface, was led by David Dubinsky, president of the ladies' garment workers.

New Wings for the U. S. Army

This line of 33 new basic training planes is shown on the Vultee Aircraft field at Downey, Calif., just before they were delivered to the United States army air corps. Thirty-three veteran air instructors flew the planes to the army's new air center at Moffett field, Moffett, Calif.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON (Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—It probably isn't safe to score the runs, hits and put-outs of this war too definitely, but it looks as though the retirement of scraggly old Gen. J. B. Hertzog from South African politics could well be put down as a count for England. The former premier, a stubborn hold-out against war aid or closer alliance with Britain, relinquishes his leadership and resigns from the reunited Nationalist party.

He had formed this party early in the war, to unite dissident elements after his bitter political enemy, the durable Gen. Jan Smuts, had wrested the premiership from him on the issue of closer adherence to the British empire and its war aims. The issue was fairly close and he recruited formidable opposition. His withdrawal appears to make this particular outpost of empire much safer for the British.

He would have made a good breathitt county feudist, with a quick trigger-finger and a long memory. He fought like one, in the hills and the veldt in the Boer war and of his ragged mustache and hardscrabble white beard an interviewer once said: "His whiskers bristled when I mentioned England."

Calling himself a "loose associationist," he has sought to make the tie with Britain looser and looser. He has been no apologist for Chancellor Hitler, but most of his views and attitudes have been those of a believer in the authoritarian state. He vigorously has opposed votes, beer and property for the blacks and has elaborated, with great intellectual facility, a scheme for a disciplined state, in which the supremacy of white culture is the keystone.

He is a Johannesburg lawyer and politician, brilliantly educated, the son of a Dutch clergyman. A stern old pietist, with the sharpest tongue in the commonwealth, he scolds the burghers for their unseemly behavior.

In the spring of 1929, the current high kicking and low thinking stirred him to an atablisious outbreak in which he said all this foolishness would be punished in a few months by the worst crash the world had ever known. He advised all hands to hide or bury anything they might have. Similar predictions have given him somewhat the role of a prophet in South Africa. "Old Jeremiah was right," they are apt to say.

With the equally tough and bellicose old General Smuts he has engaged in much bare-handed political milling for many years, although they once were allies. General Hertzog became premier in 1933 and General Smuts never ceased firing until his victory last fall.

FRANK LLOYD WRIGHT, the more internationally than nationally famous architect, sees the doom of the big city and the main hope for happy days in a generally de-centralized cosmos. Having heard him lecture several times, I cannot help thinking there is much wistful thinking in his prophecy.

Trapped in any big city, Mr. Wright should soon be a hospital case. Ever since he came from the prairie town of Richland Centre, Wis., he has had a feud with the big towns. He now finds a new ally in the imminence of bombing.

One of the world's great innovators, if not rebels, in architecture, he has won far more acclaim in other countries than his own. His greatest achievement was the Imperial hotel, in Tokyo. His unique blend of aesthetics and utility, passionately expounded in a wide philosophical context has stirred controversy, but always seized attention. In person, the unrelenting foe of the city is a big-town citizen, custom-made from tip to toe, easy and assured, but not urbane, because he's too displeased with cities.

HEADING the U. S. government's new flying wedge against Nazi propaganda in Latin-American countries is the genial James W. Young, chief of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. Mr. Young is chairman of the newly formed committee on communications, with $3,000,000 to spend. Mr. Young was the first experienced business man to head the above bureau. At the age of 42, he had retired with a comfortable fortune as chairman of the board of the Lane Publishing company of Chicago.

Plan for 'Federal Union of Democracies' Would Unite English-Speaking Nations

By Frank Parker Stockbridge

(The author of this article has made a study of the "Federal Union" plan and his views on it are presented herewith. His opinions are not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

For a year and a half now people have been hearing talk about a Federal Union of Democracies. Now that the three great dictatorships, Germany, Italy and Japan, have ganged up together for the express purpose of putting all the democracies out of business, including our own, we are hearing more talk about getting together with the other English-speaking nations for the common defense. And now that the Presidential election is over, and folks in public life can talk freely without facing the charge that what they are talking about is a partisan affair, we are going to hear a great deal more about the Federal Union plan.

The people of the United States are already pretty solidly behind the proposal that we must give every possible aid to the British, in their gallant stand to preserve the democratic ideal against the dictatorial gangsters. Why, folk are asking, shouldn't we go even farther and do some ganging up ourselves? Suppose the people of the British Commonwealth of Nations and of the United States of America should agree to pool their interests and their resources and stand together against the aggressor powers, how far could Hitler, Mussolini and the Mikado get with their project of dividing the earth among them?

You'd be surprised at the seriousness with which that plan is being discussed all over the country, by men in high places and serious students of world affairs.

Plan Is 'Simple'

It's simple, the Federal Union plan; as simple as the Federal Union under which our own 13 original little nations got together 150 years ago. The United States united with one another to be able to do jointly what none of them could do separately. None of them surrendered any control over its internal affairs, but in dealing with other nations they acted as a unit.

Suppose, now, the United States, the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the Union of South Africa and Eire all agreed to form a Federal Union. They could do it by mutual agreement, without changing their present forms of government. It would not be an alliance or a league of nations. The trouble with alliances and leagues is that they don't work, while a real union does. It was because he had seen so many alliances and leagues fail that Clarence K. Streit, the American newspaper man whose book "Union Now" planted the Federal Union idea in so many people's minds, pointed out that the only way to save democracy was by a real union of peoples. Peoples, please note—not nations.

In a union of peoples, every citizen would have equal weight with every other citizen. If there were 50 members of the Inter-Continental congress, which would be set up provisionally until a more perfect union was formed, representation on a population basis would give the United States 27 members, the United Kingdom, 11, Canada and Australia 3 each, New Zealand, South Africa and Eire 2 each. The United States would have a clear majority over all the others put together. I point that out to make it clear that Federal Union is not a British scheme but a definitely American project.

Above—Gunners from the British navy are being instructed by American naval gunners in the operation of a secret device that is part of the guns aboard the over-age destroyers recently turned over to Britain in exchange for naval and air bases. Scenes like this might become common if the Federal Union of Democracies, described in the accompanying article, ever became an actuality, for according to Mr. Stockbridge, under this plan, "defense forces, air, sea and land . . . would be pooled."

What Do We Give Up?

All right, then; what do we give up and what do we get if we go in? First, the defense forces, air, sea, and land—except, no doubt, national militia, would be pooled under the Union government. Such a force would make potential enemies think twice.

Every citizen of any of the member states would be a citizen of the Union, as in America today—free to travel, settle, engage in business, work at a trade or develop the resources of any part of the enormous area included in the Union. Broader horizons and wider opportunities for all. Commerce would be free of artificial barriers between member states; the Union could set up barriers for all against non-members.

In the territory controlled by the Federal Union would be the bulk of the world's raw materials; in its factories would be most of the world's productive capacity. Its citizenry would include by far the highest technical skills in the world with the best-equipped research laboratories in which to develop and maintain their supremacy. It would control the strategic ports and seaways of commerce of most of the world. It could and should be the most powerful influence for peace ever created.

How the Federal Union would be governed would be for the convention at which it is formed to decide. The plan proposed would place the executive power in the hands of a premier and cabinet subject to removal by the legislative assembly. A proposal to establish what would be in effect, a world capital somewhere on this side of the Atlantic, perhaps even in the central part of the United States, has been made. There would be no more clash between the government of the United States and the Federal Union than there is now between the government of, say, Kansas, and that of the United States. Each would continue to function in its own sphere as before.

Membership Requirements.

The major requirement for membership in the Federal Union would necessarily be that of democracy. And as Clarence Streit defines democracy, it is a condition or system in which the majority controls but must respect the rights of every minority, however small—even a minority of one. For human rights are not conferred by the state, but are inherent in the individual, and must not be infringed by government.

It is too soon to make even vague predictions as to the prospects of the Federal Union plan. But a large and growing body of influential advocates of the plan is urging that our government call a preliminary convention of delegates from all the eligible nations, perhaps in Independence hall, where the Continental congress met and adopted the Declaration of Independence. The dream of a new declaration, a Declaration of Interdependence may not be too far from realization, once the people of the world recognize it as the surest path to permanent peace and prosperity for all.

It is not something which will be brought about by those who seek to make personal political capital out of arousing international hatreds and racial jealousies. It will be brought about, when it comes, by the peoples themselves, the ordinary folk of the democratic nations, the ones who have to fight wars and pay for them, who have most to gain and least to lose by uniting in a Federal Union.

Little-Known Metal Plays Defense Role

NEW YORK.—Behind the official secrecy that enfold details of the national defense program a metal called beryllium is daily playing a more and more important role—a role so vital that army officials believe it may help break the "bottle-neck" in the machine tool industry caused by a shortage of skilled workers.

Army ordnance men reveal that beryllium alloys have been successfully tested for use in mass production of parts for the new Garand rifles.

Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, board chairman of Pan American Airways, sponsored research in the metal—at a cost of more than $400,000 in the past seven years—and helped make possible the timely "graduation" of the substance from a laboratory toy to an instrument of commerce and defense.

Whitney saw huge potentialities in beryllium, largely in aviation because of the metal's resistance to fatigue and corrosion, its extraordinary light weight and electrical conductivity. The metal is only two-thirds as heavy as aluminum.

"Until recently," he said, "the great problem of beryllium was its high cost of production. Half a century or so ago the pure metal would have cost about $5,000 a gram. Today it sells in quantities at about $15 a pound.

Scientific Achievement.

"That is a scientific achievement which some day I believe will make possible beryllium's volume use in the hulls of seaplanes and ships, because it is non-corrosive."

A pinch of beryllium added to copper, aluminum, magnesium and other metals increases the fluidity of the mixture when it is melted so that the alloy fills every tiny crevice in a casting mold. Steel and other materials used for manufacture of gun parts must be subjected to long processes of forging, machining and finishing with cutting tools before they finally arrive in a rifle. This work needs skilled machine tool artisans.

As a result of these tests, the war department asked immediately for sample castings.

Beryllium alloys have the highest tensile strength known. Beryllium-nickel (2 per cent beryllium and 98 per cent nickel), for instance, has a tensile strength of 260,000 pounds to the square inch, but structural steel only 60,000 and stainless steel 90,000.

A beryllium-copper spring can be flexed 20,000,000 times before it will break, compared with 2 or 3 million times for one which is constructed out of steel.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D., Dean of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for December 1

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education, used by permission.

AN EXACTING DISCIPLESHIP

LESSON TEXT—Luke 9:49-62.
GOLDEN TEXT—No man, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God.—Luke 9:62.

Weak-kneed, watered-out, and "sickly" religious philosophies and activities have no right to call themselves Christian. Following Christ is not just a sweet sentimental impulse expressed in smooth words and formal religious exercises. It is a vital, virile, sacrificial faith which leads the true follower of Christ to be willing not only to die for Him, but also to live for Him in the face of opposition, hatred, yes, "through peril, toil and pain."

Let us put away these insipid imitations of Christianity which so often masquerade under its name and face our time with a call to discipleship which demands every fine, noble, manly and womanly quality. The lesson for today reveals that following Jesus (and please remember you are not ready to live for Him until you have been born again) calls for

I. Co-operation (vv. 49, 50).

The placing of the little child in their midst (vv. 46-48) and Jesus' words concerning true greatness revealed to John that he had been wrong in condemning the one who was working for Christ but who was not of their party. The true disciple recognizes that the man who truly loves and serves Christ is to be accepted in His name. We may not like his appearance, or his language, or his methods, or his friends, but we ought to love him and co-operate with him. Let us begin to practice that as well as to say we believe it.

II. Humility (vv. 51-53).

Gross discourtesy, evidently inspired by national hatred (the Jews and Samaritans had no dealings with each other), was shown toward the Lord Himself. His reaction gives us an example of humility, for He said not a word against them. The true follower of Jesus should expect such treatment from a hostile, devil-inspired world and emulate his master by showing love and

III. Patience (vv. 54-56).

The disciples wanted to show their power and authority by bringing the fires of destruction upon the enemies of Christ. That spirit has persisted in the church, the desire to call the fires of heaven (and possibly of hell) to destroy those who hinder or oppose us. Such is not the spirit of our God and His Christ, for He is "long-suffering to us-ward, but not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance."

IV. Sacrifice (vv. 57, 58).

The writer dislikes to use the word "sacrifice" in connection with our life and service for Christ, for in reality we sacrifice nothing which is not more than replaced (read Matt. 19:29). But at the same time it is true that God does call upon us as Christians to hold nothing dearer than our devotion to Him.

Following Christ is more than singing glibly or carelessly, "I'll go where you want me to go, dear Lord." The one who starts out with Him is to count the cost (Luke 14:28-33). He must expect the same treatment as Christ (II Tim. 3:12) and be willing to take it gladly (John 15:20; I Pet. 2:21). We ought to make this plain to professed believers. Tell young people the truth and you will see that they are ready to respond to it. They are willing to give themselves sacrificially for causes of this earth—why not for Christ?

V. Devotion (vv. 59-62).

It has been said that Christ is either Lord of all or He is not Lord at all. Even the demands which love may present on behalf of our aged father must not be permitted to stand between the Lord and His disciple.

Christianity is considerate and courteous, and our Lord is not here suggesting any neglect of the duties or amenities of life. The point is rather that the Lord must have first place whatever else may call for second thought.

The blight on the life and service of most Christians is that almost anything and everything else is allowed to take first place and the Lord must be satisfied with second or third place. Sometimes one wonders if He is given any real place at all in some lives.

No one who puts his hand to the plough in God's Kingdom and then wants to defer following through until a more convenient season, or who wants to go back to "bid farewell" to someone who for the moment is more important than the Lord, is fit for His service. The way of joy and usefulness is the way of full and unconditional yielding to Him.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

THE other day I went to a Hobby Show and there, hanging on the wall with a blue ribbon pinned on it, were the spool shelves from SEWING Book 3! Of course, I searched out the proud girl who had made them, and she told me that she had also made the end table of spools that is in Book 5. I felt most as proud as she did. All her friends are saving spools for her and her urgent need at the moment was, "something to make for Mother for Christmas."

Here is my suggestion. An adorable set of three corner shelves made of a lid from a tin candy box, one from a cracker can and a coffee can put together with wire, spools and two beads. These shelves were painted cherry red and hung up with a brass hook to hold salt and pepper shakers, vinegar cruet, and other things for making salads. Any homemaker will think of a dozen places where this handy set of shelves could be used. All the directions are here in this sketch.

There is time to make the hanging book shelves in Book 3, or the end table in Book 5, before Christmas, if you mail your order for these booklets today. Send order to:

"What? WORMS in my Child? ... Never!"

Don't be so sure, Mother!

Yes, right now, crawling round worms may be growing and multiplying inside your child without your knowing it! This nasty infection may be "caught" easily, everywhere. And the outward signs are very misleading. For example: Squirming and fretting. Nose-picking, and scratching other parts. Uneasy stomach. Finicky appetite. Biting nails.

If you even suspect that your child has round worms, get JAYNE'S VERMIFUGE right away! JAYNE'S is the best known worm expellant in America. It is backed by modern scientific study, and has been used by millions, for over a century.

JAYNE'S VERMIFUGE has the ability to drive out large round worms, yet it tastes good and acts gently. It does not contain castor oil. If no worms are there it works merely as a mild laxative. Ask for JAYNE'S VERMIFUGE at any drug store.

Alien Fingerprinting Increases Work for FBI

WASHINGTON.—Fingerprint records of the some 3,000,000 aliens now being registered in the United States are adding materially to the work of the fingerprinting division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

In addition to this increase, the division's regular work has increased steadily in recent months. At present the division has on file fingerprints of 13½ million persons. When the first returns of the alien registration started coming in, the division handled 16,500 sets of fingerprints to set a record for "busy days."

Fingerprints are being sent to the division from civic organizations whose members have carried out fingerprinting as a measure of personal security.

Live-Stock Show Attracts Entries From 35 States

CHICAGO.—Stockmen and farmers from 35 states and Canada have listed exhibits of live stock and crops for the 1940 International Live Stock exposition, the country's largest agricultural show.

The exposition is being held in the International Amphitheatre at the Chicago Stock Yards November 30 to December 7. Cash premiums totaling $100,000, will be awarded.

There are more than 2,000,000 such sets in the files. In addition, all government agencies are fingerprinting job applicants.

In three months, the division has received 77,678 sets from the war department, 53,917 from the Civilian Conservation Corps, 50,832 from civil service, 32,000 from the navy, 3,728 from the marine corps, 910 from the coast guard and 712 from the maritime commission.

All these are filed under an intricate mathematical system based on the shape of the markings on the finger tips. They are divided so only a few score of each type are filed together. The fingerprint expert thus is able to effect an identification of any set of prints in about three minutes.

In addition to the large active files, the division has inactive files for persons past 60. After a person has reached 90, his prints are transferred to the dead files, unless the division has been questioned on the individual.

Softening Rubber Articles

Practically all rubber articles which have grown hard and lost their elasticity may be softened by a simple process utilizing glycerine. First cleanse the article by scrubbing thoroughly with a brush dipped in warm water and place in a solution of one part of ammonia to two parts of water allowing it to remain an hour or so until the ammonia has evaporated. Then rinse with a dilute solution of glycerine and water, wipe off and dry. This handy idea is borrowed from the rubber industry where glycerine is used extensively in various points of processing.

Burning up Your Calories

A 150-pound person who walks at the rate of 2.6 miles an hour normally uses about 70 calories a mile; he would have to walk four miles to use the energy from a five-cent chocolate bar, five to seven miles to use that from an ice cream sundae, and 6½ miles to use that from an average-sized piece of mince pie.

PREPAREDNESS for the unexpected

The National Defense Program is one of numerous situations that can cause a tremendous increase in the number of telephone calls. Some occasions can be foreseen—a national convention, a holiday, a World's Series, an election. Others come without warning—the death of a prominent person, changes in the market, a storm or flood. The Telephone Company must adjust its forces and equipment quickly to unexpected "peak" loads. That requires closest co-operation between highly trained workers. The ability of telephone men and women to rise to emergency is an important reason for this Company's preparedness to do its part in the Nation's defense activity.

Hidden Ways

By FREDERIC F. VAN DE WATER

CHAPTER I

I heard the man killed in the Ferriter apartment. I heard the words that brought about his murder, too, but just then the wheel came off Miss Agatha Paget's wheel chair and drove all else from my mind.

The thick voice that I heard over the telephone and the dull sounds that followed seemed trite. They hid, rather than revealed, tragedy, and I forgot them. Later, they became important. They were small facts, about which men made monstrous theories, as scientists rebuild dinosaurs from tiny bits of bone.

Afterward, the call pad showed that it was three-thirty on the afternoon of February twenty-third when the switchboard clicked and whirred. I was alone in the foyer of the Morello, for Eddie Hoyt had slipped out for a bite and Wilson, the doorman, was ill. Higgins, the superintendent, who was filling in for him, had taken the elevator upstairs.

The operator was slow and I scribbled the number on the call pad while I waited. A voice buzzed in my ear again, apparently speaking to someone in the Ferriter flat, in a tongue I did not know. I thought it might be German, for it was blunt and guttural.

Then I heard an odd sound, half grunt, half cough, and a faraway bump that must have been the lamp, or the body, falling. At the time, though, I thought it was Miss Paget's wheel chair.

Warren, her chauffeur, was trundling her in. He had had trouble at the door for there was no one there to help him. I looked up and saw a wheel rolling down the hall. The chair had sagged. Miss Paget was hanging to its upper arm and laughing while Warren struggled to keep it from overturning. I ran to help Miss Paget.

She was the oldest tenant by age and residence in the old Morello Apartments. This was one of the rare buildings in Manhattan that had endured into mellow age. The foyer was furnished in mahogany, tile and gloom, and on the ceiling dim cherubs were tangled in fading ribbons. The Morello Apartments sat, brown and ornate, between bleaker, newer buildings with a calm weathered dignity nothing could break—rather as Miss Agatha Paget sat between Warren and me when at last we had righted her wrecked chair.

I had been hallman at the Morello less than a week but already I knew that she was important. The pompous ass, Higgins, had squirmed the passages of her wheel chair between elevator and car as though they were royal progresses.

Now the old lady sat and preened herself like a ruffled little hawk. She was oddly alive for one whose legs were useless. Time had worn but not blunted her. Years had sharpened her high-bridged nose and wrinkled her face but they had not loosened her mouth or quenched the zest in her blue eyes.

She caught my eye and grinned, broad, warm and vivid.

"Thank you, David," she said. "You are David, aren't you? You all look alike in those uniforms. Warren, I know what that pious look of yours means. I remember quite well you've warned me that this chair was going to pieces. And I said it would outlive me, didn't I?"

She cocked an eye at me, parrot-wise and as we half carried, half propelled her along the hall, I felt her looking at me again. Higgins and the elevator still were upstairs. I rang the bell.

From the street came the sound of a protesting motor horn. I rang again. Miss Agatha clicked her teeth sharply and announced:

"I've lived here forty years and there's never been a day that the service didn't get worse. Who's on the elevator?"

"Higgins," I told her.

She gave again the little audible bite.

"His wife is away, isn't she?" The racket of the horn continued in the street. Miss Agatha said crisply:

"Ring that bell, David, I tell you to stop."

Above the distant shrilling, I heard at last the old winch in the basement groan and start. The bell's trill came down toward us. Outside the horn kept up its blating. Warren stirred and said:

"I fancy I'm in someone's way, ma'am."

"I know you are," Miss Agatha returned. "If Timothy Higgins—"

Higgins threw open the door and found me with my finger on the bell. He wore Wilson's maroon and gold livery—he was the only man on the house force it would fit—and as he glared at me, he seemed to swell inside it. His long upper lip twitched over the words he dared not utter under the old lady's sharp regard, but he did growl: "I'm not deaf."

From the day he had hired me on Eddie Hoyt's recommendation for a cubby in his basement flat and thirty dollars a month, he had regretted it. He had told me several times that I was "above my place" and now his look filled my stomach with qualms. I needed this humble refuge from the storm of destitution that blew coldly through New York, and knowledge of my helplessness made me foolishly angry. Before I could speak, Miss Agatha said:

"Agatha," the girl cried and stared.

"Deaf! We began to think, Timothy, that you were dead. Or else—"

Her sharp eyes prodded him and his uniformed bulk quailed. I saw that the aglet on his coat was loose and dangling. The noise of horns in the street grew louder. Miss Agatha said:

"Warren, I think they want you to move that car. David and Timothy can get me upstairs quite nicely."

The chauffeur went. Miss Agatha continued to look at Higgins. I heard him breathe harder and saw sweat shining on his full red face. He said with stumbling eagerness:

"Indeed I will, Miss Paget. The chair's broke! Dear, dear, ain't that too bad now? Maybe I can mend it for you, ma'am. I'll find time somehow. With Wilson sick and me taking his place on the day shift and a new man in the hall here, I'm fair drove. I am indeed, Miss Paget, with Wilson's and me own work to do. That's why—"

His voice died away under her severe regard and he buttoned his gilt aglet into place with uncertain fingers. I wondered at his ill ease, and madness made me say:

"That's why he's doubling in brass."

Caution cried out against the sorry jest. Higgins squinted at me. His ire rather than my wit pleased Miss Agatha. There were mirth wrinkles about her eyes as she looked up and said:

"Timothy will hold this wreck, David, if you'll lift me onto the elevator seat, please."

"I'll manage, Miss Paget, don't you have a moment's worry, ma'am," Higgins babbled.

"You," Miss Agatha corrected, "will take that chair down cellar and dispose of it. If you were to spend more time in the basement or at the door, Timothy, and less on the fourth floor, I think matters would run much more smoothly for everyone."

She humbled him.

"Yes'm," he said meekly. Miss Agatha's crippled body was angular and very light against me as I bore her into the car and lowered her to the black leather seat in its rear. The door slid shut on Higgins. Miss Agatha marked the parting glare he gave me. There was little that she actually missed. She said, more to herself than to me:

"Mr. Toad, himself."

I knew that Higgins would be waiting below to tell me—if he did not fire me outright—how lowly was my lot. The livery I wore, the mocking memory of ambition I had brought to New York, made me reckless and I reached up from servitude toward equality with my passenger.

"She cried," I quoted, "'who is that handsome man?' They answered: 'Mister Toad!'"

Abashed by the silence behind me, I checked the car at the third floor and opened the door. I thought I heard a chuckle but when I turned about, Miss Agatha's face was grave and she took her latchkey from her purse.

"If you'll open the door, David," she said and her words rebuffed my levity, "and then carry me into the workroom—"

I unlocked the door. As I again turned toward the elevator, I saw, across the shallow hall, the portal of the Ferriter apartment, white and reticent as an uncarved tombstone. I picked up Miss Agatha and bore her carefully into her apartment.

The deep carpet of the hall hushed my footsteps and we appeared at the open door of a high-ceiled room so quietly that we alarmed the man and girl who stood by the desk in its center. Her face was lifted to his and I thought her hand had been on his arm, but they sprang apart before I could be sure.

"Agatha," the girl cried and stared. I had watched her pass through the foyer with a swinging, boyish stride, but she actually saw me now for the first time, and I was aware how miserably my inherited uniform fitted. She was young and fair and she carried her lovely head with the alert vitality of a deer.

"In person," Miss Agatha replied dryly. "That chair by the table, if you please, David."

The man had bent hastily over the desk. I disliked his plump sleekness, the bald spot on his crown, his waxed mustache, the hysterical flutter of the papers he sorted and arranged. The girl looked from my burden to him and then grinned shamelessly.

"Just what is this?" she demanded as I set the old lady in the chair. "Understudying for Sappho, Agatha? Darling, you aren't hurt, are you?"

"I am not," Miss Agatha replied, and told of her chair's collapse. "That basement Don Juan," she concluded grimly. "I'll have a talk with him. And now will you find Annie and tell her to come here? I've had a rather trying afternoon."

"Both of us, darling," the girl assured her and left the room. I turned to go.

"One minute, David," Miss Agatha interposed. As I paused, the plump man at the desk lifted a pink face from his papers. His perpetually arched eyebrows gave him the weakly haughty look of one about to sneeze. His voice was soft, and at the moment, nervous.

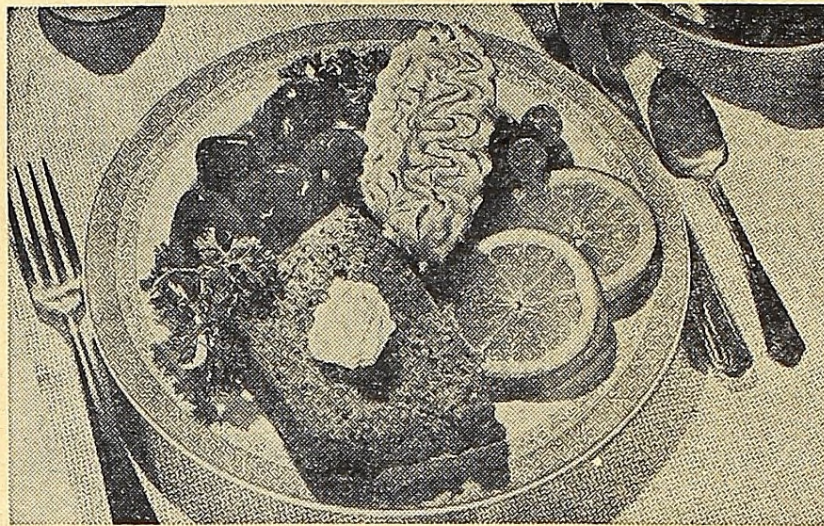

"We're progressing, Miss Paget," he assured her unasily, his hands still straying among the stacked papers on the desk. "I'm going back to the genealogical society for an hour or so. Things are falling into shape. I've been hard at work."

"So I noticed," the old lady told him. He looked at her uncertainly but her face was without expression. "Tomorrow then, at the same time, Mr. Ferriter," she said. He bowed jerkily and walked with some stiffness from the room. His ears were red. As he opened the hall door, I heard the elevator bell.

"Excuse me," I began, but she held up her hand, as Allegra reentered.

THE COMMUNITY SUPPER
(See Recipes Below)

So you're to manage the next community supper? And you're panicky about it! Of course it's a job to feed 200 people appetizingly and leave $25 profit in the treasury. But it can be done! If you must eye the nickels when serving church or club suppers, study the following eight-point program for "feeding the multitude":

- (1) Pick a general chairman who can picture the job as a whole.
- (2) Appoint a responsible person in charge of each food.
- (3) Arrange the kitchen conveniently for the different jobs.
- (4) Prepare as many foods ahead of time as possible.
- (5) Have utensils ready and garnishes at hand.
- (6) Name a hostess to direct waitresses.
- (7) Plan a uniform method of serving.
- (8) Plan menus well ahead of time.

If the meat dish is different, the whole meal seems to have variety. And there's many a trick for serving thrifty cuts differently.

Take meat loaf, for instance. A ham loaf de luxe with a good mustard-horseradish sauce will "make" any meal. Beef stew can be thickened a little, ladeled into dripping pans, covered with rounds or squares or diamonds of biscuit, and when baked it appears crustily and temptingly yours. If you wish to make it more "de luxe" bake and serve in individual casseroles.

For something different, plan for meat balls with rice. You can serve buttered turnips, and a salad made of cabbage, celery, green peas and pimiento which certainly sells the men this menu.

Now if pennies needn't be watched so closely and you want to do a fall or winter dinner up brown, here's a "ringer": Baked ham, raisin and cider sauce, raw vegetable salad, cranberry muffins, pumpkin pie, coffee, or milk.

Ham Loaf de Luxe.

- (Serves 50)
- 5 pounds smoked ham (ground)
 - 3 pounds veal (ground)
 - ¼ cup green pepper (minced)
 - ¼ cup onion (chopped)
 - 2 teaspoons salt
 - ½ teaspoon pepper
 - 8 eggs (beaten)
 - 1 quart tomato soup (canned)
 - 1 quart bread crumbs or uncooked cereal

Combine the meat, green pepper, onion and seasonings. Add beaten eggs, tomato soup, and bread crumbs or uncooked cereal. Pack into bread loaf pans and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 1½ hours.

Beef Stew With Biscuits.

- (Serves 50)
- 9 pounds beef round (cut into 1-inch cubes)
 - 2 cups flour
 - 1 cup hot beef drippings
 - 3 quarts boiling water
 - ½ teaspoon peppercorns
 - 2 bay leaves
 - 1 quart turnips (diced)
 - 1 quart carrots (diced)
 - 1 cup onions (sliced)
 - Salt and pepper to taste

Cut beef into 1-inch cubes. Dredge in the flour and brown in hot beef drippings. Place in kettle and add boiling water. Cook slowly for 2 to 3 hours. Add peppercorns and bay leaves. Add carrots and turnips 1 hour before serving. Add salt and pepper. If necessary, thicken with flour paste. Serve hot with baking powder biscuits on top.

Meat Balls With Rice.

- (Serves 40 to 45)
- 4 pounds beef (ground)
 - 3 pounds pork (ground)
 - 2 onions (minced)
 - 2 cups rice (uncooked)
 - 2 cups cracker crumbs
 - 4 eggs (beaten)
 - 4 tablespoons salt
 - 1 teaspoon pepper
 - 2 cups milk

Combine ingredients and mix well. Form into balls. Place in shallow roasting pans. Pour over 2 quarts tomato sauce or tomato soup. Cover pans. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 1½ to 2 hours,

Mix sugar, cornstarch, salt, cider and raisins together. Place spices in a cheesecloth bag and add to mixture. Boil gently for 15 minutes. Remove spice bag and serve hot sauce over ham.

Cabbage and Celery Salad With Peas.

 - 2½ quarts cabbage (shredded)
 - 2 quarts celery (diced)
 - Pimiento (cut fine)
 - Salt to taste
 - Mayonnaise
 - 3 heads lettuce
 - Drain peas (reserving liquid for soup, gravy, etc.) and chill. Add cabbage, celery, pimiento, salt and mayonnaise, and mix well. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

Lemon Cream Scones.

- (Makes 30 scones)
- 2 cups flour (sifted)
 - 2 teaspoons baking powder
 - ½ teaspoon salt
 - 1 tablespoon sugar
 - 4 tablespoons butter or other shortening
 - 1 teaspoon lemon rind (grated)
 - 2 eggs
 - ¼ cup light cream
 - 1½ tablespoons lemon juice
 - 3 tablespoons sugar
 - 1 teaspoon lemon rind (grated)

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and the 1 tablespoon of sugar together. Cut in butter and add 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Reserving 1 tablespoon egg white for glaze, beat remaining eggs well and add cream. Combine with flour mixture. Add lemon juice and stir until soft dough forms. Turn out on slightly floured board and knead 30 seconds. Roll dough to ¼-inch thickness and cut into 3-inch squares, then cut each square from corner to corner, making triangles. Place on ungreased baking sheet. Brush tops lightly with slightly beaten egg white and sprinkle with mixture made of 3 tablespoons sugar and 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) 12 minutes, or until brown. Before serving, spread with orange marmalade and reheat.

Cabbage and Carrot Salad With Peanuts.

- (Serves 25)
- 5 quarts cabbage (shredded)
 - 20 carrots (grated)
 - 2½ cups peanuts (chopped)
 - 2 cups salad dressing

Mix together the cabbage, carrots, peanuts and salad dressing. Chill thoroughly and serve.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS

Add finely cut mint leaves to orange juice and chill. Just before serving add 1½ cups pale dry ginger ale to each two cups of orange juice.

For variety sprinkle some grated cheese over the top of raisin, apple or mince pie and heat for five minutes in a moderate oven. Serve at once.

THE SUNNY SIDE OF LIFE

Clean Comics That Will Amuse Both Old and Young

By L. L. STEVENSON

James J. Hines is now merely a number. He's a member of that gray-clad colony behind gray stone walls in a palace known as Sing Sing. As perhaps you know, his sentence is from four to eight years. Prosecuted by Thomas E. Dewey, he was convicted of using his political influence to help Dutch Schultz and his hoodlums to run pennies, nickels and dimes of scrubwomen, laundresses, elevator operators and other little people into millions of dollars a year in a racket known as "numbers." Hines' case went to the highest court in the state. There the fight stopped. Hines, who had been at liberty under $35,000 bonds and who was at the race track when he received the news that the court of appeals had upheld his conviction, gave up then. At once, he made arrangements to take that trip up to Ossining.

Only a few years ago, had there been the suggestion in the Eleventh district that some day Jimmy Hines would go to prison, there would have been laughter. Hines was not only all powerful in his district but powerful over the entire city as well. He had friends among other leaders and in some instances, power over them. As a result, his word was law in various councils. If he had so desired he easily could have been elected leader of Tammany Hall. But he preferred to reign in his district as an absolute political monarch. That was what he was. A somewhat pudgy, grayish man with a twinkle in his eye, soft-spoken, seldom moved to anger, he issued orders and the boys always carried them out.

Jimmy Hines was the last of the old-line district leaders. Just how many thousands of dollars he contributed in one form or another of charity, possibly never will be known. One of Hines' closest friends once told me that Hines never kept track of what he gave away. When it was known that he would be at his Monongahela Democratic club, there was always a crowd on hand. Mostly they were down at the heel. White, black and yellow, they were all waiting for Jimmy Hines. Each had trouble or a problem. Hines listened to the troubles and problems. Most of the troubles could be cured with a dollar or so. It was always forthcoming. Hines paid rent, hired doctors, sent around coal or groceries, did a thousand and one things for residents of his district. And when the time came, his district voted right.

Following the old axiom that children of today are voters of tomorrow, Hines always made much of the youngsters in his district. Each year, he gave a "June Walk" in Central park. No invitations were necessary; the children merely came one by one, or in groups as organizations. Many were gaily costumed. Ice cream, peanuts, popcorn, soft drinks, with milk for babies, all were provided in quantities. Should supplies run out, there never was any trouble. More were ordered and charged to Jimmy Hines. Once when bad boys stole all the ice cream, Hines merely laughed and within a half hour twice as much as had been taken was delivered.

We lived at 444 Central Park West, which figured much in the testimony in Hines' trial, when he was a resident there. Every morning, there was a long line of men and women waiting for Hines to come out. But no one ever saw Jimmy Hines in his home unless he so wished. Every employee of the house was his friend. Daily he tipped each a minimum of $1. Elevator men, hall boys, porters and even firemen hated to see Jimmy Hines move to another address. But other tenants were relieved. Those who waited for Jimmy Hines out in front were not always ornamental.

Recipients of Jimmy Hines' bounty never asked where the money came from. It was all right with them so long as their wants were filled. To them, their leader was more or less of a patron saint. If he wanted a little thing like a vote, that was all right. Even today, there are many who believe that Jimmy Hines was unjustly convicted. But he is behind gray stone walls in a gray uniform and instead of being Jimmy Hines, he's No. 98719.

Isn't This Why You Are Constipated?
 What do you eat for breakfast? Coffee, toast, maybe some eggs? What do you eat for lunch and dinner? White bread, meat, potatoes? It's little wonder you're constipated. You probably don't eat enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean the amount you eat. It's a kind of food that forms a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a movement. If this is your trouble, may we suggest a crunchy toasted cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran—for breakfast. All-Bran is a natural food, not a medicine—but it's particularly rich in "bulk." Being so, it can help you not only to get regular but to keep regular. Eat All-Bran regularly, and drink plenty of water. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

A number of our hunters have been successful in shooting their bucks. As far as we know, the only women hunters who were successful are Mrs. Joe Schneider, who shot a nice one near Rose City, and Mrs. Dewey Ross, who shot hers in the Grayling vicinity. Namon Bessey is credited with shooting the largest one so far. The buck he shot weighed well over 250 pounds dressed. With the recent snow fall, the rest of the hunters are hopeful of filling their license before the season ends Saturday.

Livestock Growers Given Timely Advice

With these good fresh northeast breezes that bring, many times, good heavy blankets of snow, farmers are compelled to bring the young cattle home from pasture and rest the sheep in out of the wet. Crowding livestock of any kind into close winter quarters which are often improperly ventilated creates a source of trouble and may bring problems from many directions, such as improper feeding, colds, sickness, and parasite multiplication until loss in weight and general unthriftiness may greatly impair livestock health with economy of handling diminishing at the same time.

Prevention is of course more economical than to attempt control when dealing with parasites upon any class of livestock. At this time of year louse control must be limited, in most cases, to dusting rather than to use liquid washes or sprays. Any good commercial louse powder may well be used according to the manufacturer's specifications or dependable powder may be mixed at home.

Do not wait until the livestock begin itching and rubbing but make the job one of today and save trouble later.

Untreated lice, according to County Agent W. L. Finley, are known to reduce the production of dairy cattle by 10% to 15%, while calves and beef cattle will gain 5% to 10% faster if they are free from external parasites. Frequently calf ailments such as pneumonia and scours may start because of a heavy parasite infection.

Cattle, horses and sheep should be treated with one of the good louse powders which contain 20 to 25% derris or pyrethrum or one-half of one percent rotenone. Dusting should be applied to all parts of the animals' body and should be repeated in 13 or 14 days so as to completely delouse the animal and kill all newly hatched pests. A home mixed powder may be made by mixing one pound of pyrethrum with three pounds of cheap flour.

The most economical sheep tick control may be had by dipping the sheep in the spring about three weeks after shearing, however, in extreme cases they should be dusted at this time of year.

Hogs get lousy too, says Finley, so be sure not to neglect them either. Give swine a chance to get to oil and lye and mange seldom become serious problems. Give the pigs a thorough brushing with old crankcase oil, use lots of it as it costs nothing, or better still provide a rubbing post. Set a post deep in the ground at a 60° angle, wrap with burlap or an old hay rope, give the post a good soaking about once a week and the porkers will do the rest.

Watch the chickens also. Place a small stream of nicotine sulphate along each roost just before dark and the fumes will kill all of the poultry body parasites. You may even want to control mites in the poultry house by thoroughly spraying it with a mixture of ½ kerosene and ½ used crankcase oil.

Horse bots treated now may save farmers a great deal in feed and condition of their horses. Bot eggs attached to the horses' hair should now be washed with a 3% coal tar dip solution (one ounce to one quart of warm water). This will prevent future hatching of the eggs. It requires about 30 days for the bot after hatching to reach the stomach of the horse, therefore let the 30 days elapse after washing the bot eggs then group up with your neighbors and have your veterinarian administer the carbon disulphid treatment. Keep the horses off feed for 18 hours.

Be sure to check these numerous parasites, a little extra effort right now will then pay dividends all winter, says County Agent Finley.
