OGEMAW MAN KILLS WOMAN; ENDS OWN LIFE

Roy Greenier Slays Mrs. Leta Rehil, Then Shoots Self

Roy Greenier, of Hill township, Ogemaw county, early Sunday morning, shot his sister-in-law, Mrs. Leta Rehil, and then turned the gun on himself. Death came instantly to Greenier and Mrs. Rehil died a short time later.

Mrs. Rehil had been housekeeper for her brother-in-law since December of 1939 following the death of his wife. Estranged from her husband, Ray Rehil, of Plainfield township and now employed at Flint, she had instituted divorce action before Judge Herman Dehnke in Iosco county circuit court last spring. Rehil had been awarded custody of their three children pending final action of the court. The children are with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ranger, of Hale.

State Troopers Victor Beck and Arnold Schuiteman of the West Branch post, who investigated the case, quoted the eleven year old daughter of Greenier as saying that her father shot Mrs. Rehil with a 30-30 rifle and then turned the gun on himself. Alfred Crawford and John Pacolo, of Detroit, who were at the Greenier home on a week end rabbit hunt, said that Greenier and Mrs. Rehil had quarreled several times during the night.

Greenier is survived by seven children. Mrs. Rehil is survived by the estranged husband and four children, one an infant born in November.

Double funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from the Friends church at Selkirk. Rev. A. G. Bryan officiated, with burial in the Selkirk cemetery.

Mrs. Hannah Menzies

Mrs. Hannah Menzies, widow of the late John Menzies, Tawas township resident, passed away last Thursday at the Traverse City State hospital where she had been taken for treatment. Mrs. Menzies survived her husband's death by only three weeks.

Hannah Ologhlin was born April 2, 1863, at Seaford, Huron county, Canada. A few years following her marriage to Mr. Menzies they moved to the United States, going first to Saginaw and then to the farm in Tawas township where they have since resided. The deceased is survived by two nieces in Canada and one nephew, Thomas P. Johnson, of Romeo, Michigan. The latter was here to attend the funeral of his aunt.

Funeral services were held Monday from the Moffatt Funeral home, Rev. Frank Metcalf officiated. Interment was in the Tawas City cemetery.

Twentieth Century Club

The Twentieth Century club offered an unusually interesting program on Wednesday, January 8. The general theme was "Good Citizenship, The Keynote of Democracy."

Roll Call—Requisites of a Good Citizen. Mrs. Giddings played a medley of patriotic airs.

Mrs. W. C. Davidson acting as chairman of the Citizenship Symposium, called on Judge H. Read Smith, who dealt with the subject, "Our American Government." Judge Smith reminded us that our government consisted of three branches, legislative, executive and judicial, each serving as a check, one on the other, which is very important in our democracy.

James F. Mark spoke briefly, but to the point on comparative forms of government, citing monarchies, oligarchies and democracies as illustrations.

Basic ideas of each form of government was capably and most enthusiastically handled by a prominent business man and former school teacher, Eugene Bing.

Rev. S. A. Carey, Methodist pastor, told of the contribution of each form of government to the progress of civilization. The meeting was then opened to questions and general discussion followed.

Plans are being made for Gentleman's Night to be held at a later date.

New Skating Rink Popular Attraction

One of the most popular places for the young people in this city is the new skating rink near the disposal plant. The ice is in fine condition and every evening the rink is crowded with merry skaters. "Keeping the rink in condition is a lot of work," said Charles Brown, one of the recreation workers in charge. "After the skaters are through at night we have to sweep it thoroughly and then spray it with water. Two hundred feet square sounds like a moderate space, but when you sweep it its a different story."

At a meeting of the Tawas City Club last Tuesday evening it was voted to appropriate $5.00 for prizes to be used in contests at the rink. Other organizations in the city are also planning to co-operate in giving prizes.

The skating rink is open to everyone in the county. Come and enjoy a pleasant evening. The ice is safe and there are warming shelters.

JUDGE DEHNKE WILL SPEAK IN AFTERNOON

Will Dedicate Handsome New Warming Shelter

Judge Herman Dehnke will give the dedication address Saturday afternoon when the new log warming shelter at Silver Valley will be dedicated during the Iosco County day program. Arrangements have been made for a program of ice and snow sport contests preceding the address. With good weather conditions the skating rink and slides should be in fine condition. "Everyone is urged to attend" said Fred J. Adams, chairman of the winter sports committee. Bring your skates and toboggan and enjoy a day in our winter sports area.

The new warming shelter is a handsome structure built last fall by the CCC boys of Camp Silver creek. It is constructed of massive logs and roofed with large shingles cut out of timber from the local forest. A huge fireplace and hand constructed furnishings gives the interior a pleasant atmosphere.

Program

- 10:00 A. M.—Opening tobogganing slide.
- 10:15 A. M. to 1:00 P. M.—Fun period. Skiing, tobogganing, coasting and skating.
- 1:00 P. M.—Snowshoe races.
- 1:15 P. M.—Ski races.
- 2:00 to 3:00 P. M.—Skating races. Five classes, Boys under 12 years. Girls under 12 years. Boys over 12 years. Girls over 12 years. Free-for-all. First prize, silver dollar each; second prize 50c each.
- 3:00 P. M.—Dedication address by Judge Herman Dehnke.

Saturday evening will be the first of the series of Winter Sport dances which will be given during Silver Valley season. Music will be by the Silver Valley Serenaders. Everyone is invited to attend these dances.

Judges will select the Queen of Silver Valley at 7:45 o'clock Wednesday evening at the Family theatre. The contest is open to all girls between the ages of 16 and 60, and unmarried, in Iosco county. Through the co-operation of the owners of the Family theatre, the show Wednesday night will be given as a benefit for Silver Valley Winter sports. The picture will be Henry Fonda and Dorothy Lamour in "Chad Hanna," with "Alice in Movieland" and other shorts. Admission: Children 10c, students 20c, adults 33c.

The Winter Sports committee announces that Silver Valley will be open to school groups at four o'clock every Wednesday afternoon. Under supervision.

At a Winter Sports meeting held Tuesday evening final arrangements for the week-end Iosco County Day events were completed. The purchase of additional skis and toboggans was authorized. Daily weather reports will be furnished from Alpena.

Due to the widespread publicity given Silver Valley, a letter sent from Carthage, Missouri, to the "Winter Sports Committee, Silver Valley, Michigan," arrived here safely and delivered the inquiry for information relative to winter sports.

Ladies Literary Club

The regular meeting of the Ladies Literary club was held at the home of Mrs. Francis Schriber on Wednesday, January 8. The program featured an interesting lesson on the appreciation of art, presented by Mrs. Howard Hatton, of Tawas Point.

Plans were made for the club's anniversary banquet to be held at Hotel Holland on January 22 at seven o'clock. The Young Women's League have been invited to attend the banquet.

The table at which Mrs. Palmer Burrows poured coffee and served wafers and Arabian rolls, was covered with a beautiful hand-crocheted table cloth. The center piece was a poinsettia plant flanked on either side with lighted tapers.

German Airforce Aids Italy in Attacks Upon British Forces in Mediterranean; Munitions Production and Shipbuilding Are Vital Spots in U. S. Defense Work

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

INVASION:
England Cautious

In contrast to the cheerful, bombless Christmas holiday, London was gloom the first days of the New Year. The Nazi airforce had "Coven-trized" the City of London, that district in the central section of the metropolis where financial houses are located.

Thousands of incendiary bombs were dropped. Hundreds of roaring fires were out of control at the same time. The losses were estimated in millions of pounds and the dead could not be counted. Three days later a man wandering into the section of a policeman the way to Paternoster Row, famous for centuries for its bookshops. The bobby replied: "There is no Paternoster Row, sir."

Mostly the British feared an attack through Ireland. Earlier warnings that the Axis thrust into the Balkans might only be a winter sortie and not a full-dress attack, were being taken seriously.

The actions there were being watched with interest. Germany moved 300,000 troops through Hungary and into Rumania. The Germans were posted along the border of Bulgaria where it was freely announced that as soon as they were in position and the time was ripe, an advance would be made on Salonika, Greece.

Bulgaria was belligerent in talk, but made no move to mobilize for defense or call upon Turkey and Russia for aid. Russia, however, countered the action by lining the border of Rumania with Soviet divisions. The Germans abruptly shifted a part of their force to sit opposite them.

It looked like the real thing. But experts didn't believe it. They believed Hitler was merely protecting his rear in the Balkans in preparation for the attack on England, much as he had protected his flanks when

DEFENSE:
Full Speed Ahead

As soon as President Roosevelt's "Big Four"—Knudsen, Hillman, Stimson and Knox—can get industrial plants working at capacity turning out munitions, look for an acceleration of ship building in cargo carrier classes. Washington is beginning to be alarmed at a quiet survey which showed that if Britain should fall, the Axis powers would have ship building capacities in conquered nations six times larger than U. S. capacity.

First note on this line was sounded by Republican Rep. Hamilton Fish, from the President's own N. Y. district. Representative Fish has been a critic of the administration since 1932. In turn he has plenty of critics of his own and ran into a fury of angry words when he went calling on dictators in Europe in the summer of 1939, while an official delegate of congress to the Inter-parliamentary Congress in Norway.

WILLIAM RHODES DAVIS, international oil operator who, according to Verne Marshall, head of the recently organized "No Foreign War" committee, was bearer of a Nazi peace plan naming President Roosevelt as arbiter in 1939.

But Fish's warning on ship building has not been taken lightly. If a successful Axis would take advantage of such ship-building capacities, they could control the high seas within a short time, even if the American two-ocean navy already were sailing the briny deep.

500 Planes a Day?

Another plan which will not be cast aside lightly, was presented by pint-sized Walter Reuther, manager of the General Motors division of the C. I. O.'s United Automobile Workers. Presentation to President Roosevelt actually was by Philip Murray, C. I. O. chieftain, but the plan was Reuther's.

The proposal calls for activating 554,000 feet of existing automobile plants space in the Detroit area, which once belonged to such forgotten firms as Hupmobile and Graham-Paige. Reuther and Murray also maintained that there are thousands of skilled workers in the same area still waiting for jobs. Cited were lay-offs recently by Fisher Body, Chevrolet and Ternstedt.

Blue prints and tables submitted with the proposal were based on production of 150,000 planes a year, six months after it was put into effect. Only light craft and training planes would be made. The manufacture of heavy craft and bombers would be retained by the present aircraft industry.

The President handed the data to his Big Four. But even before that it had been examined privately by Undersecretary of War Patterson, who is charged with mobilization of industry. He was much impressed. It will be opposed by the aircraft industry.

There were indications too that the drive soon will be put in force to speed up defense by compelling plants manufacturing "non-essentials" to forego their schedules and "accept" war department orders.

THE ARMY:
More Men Called

During the latter half of January more thousands of young men will be called for a year's army training, under the selective service law. The first call was in December and in virtually every one of the nation's 6,500 draft boards the quota was filled by youths who volunteered. In most local areas, however, the January call will, for the first time, take men who do not volunteer.

Altus G. Moore of Washington, D. C., is one man who advanced from private to major when the call came. He is a private in the capital police force. Called to duty, he took up his assignment as a reserve officer, major of infantry.

In St. Louis, Sergt. William Schneider was called into service with the Missouri National Guard. On the first day he was in camp he was tapped on the shoulder by an officer who demanded a salute. The officer was Lieut. William Schneider Jr., his son, just commissioned in the air corps.

FATEFUL YEAR:
President Warns

The seventeenth month of the war opened against a sombre background. The year 1941 dawned with a general admission that before its close may come the decisive test, not only of the war, but also the American economic system.

America was given a grave report by President Roosevelt in a speech that took the joy out of New Year's celebrations. He said that the danger to the nation is the greatest since Jamestown and Plymouth Rock. He said if Great Britain was defeated the Axis powers would control Europe, Africa, Australasia and the high seas. He said that a victorious Axis would not hesitate to occupy South America and the United States would be living at the point of a gun. He said that already secret agents of these powers are operating in the Americas.

Before the President spoke, he had received uninvited advice from two sources. German and Italian dispatches said that if the President promised aid to Britain by permitting use of Irish ports by American merchantmen or giving Britain stranded German merchantships in U. S. harbors it would be viewed as intervention in the war. From a bloc of U. S. senators, among them Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.), came urgings that the President originate a movement for a "negotiated" peace.

He pledged that he would do everything in his power to keep the United States out of the war, declared there was not even the remotest thought of sending troops to Europe, called for defense production to the utmost, hinted it may be necessary to use machinery now engaged in manufacture of luxury goods to turn out armament, and forecast that the Axis powers would not win the war.

Reaction

Throughout the United States the speech was received with pledges of support on all sides, even from personal and political enemies of Mr. Roosevelt like former Gov. Alfred Smith, former Gov. Alf Landon, Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.); Senator Austin (R., Maine).

But there was no enthusiasm among the totalitarian powers. Berlin was silent for 48 hours during which time Adolf Hitler went into seclusion and studied the document. Der Fuehrer then replied indirectly. He spoke to his army, not mentioning the name Roosevelt. But he promised his army a victory in 1941. He said God was on the side of Germany and "would not abandon those who were determined with courageous heart to help themselves."

Premier Mussolini was blunter. His mouthpiece, Virginia Gayda, said America already was in the war.

NAMES

... in the news

Ousted—The Overseas Press Club in New York consists of newsmen who are or have been foreign correspondents for U. S. newspapers in the past. There are few active members abroad now, most are back home. The club dropped from its rolls George Sylvester Viereck, saying it objected to his bringing "bundists and gestapo agents" to its meetings. Viereck, an American, is registered with the state department as the $500-a-month correspondent for a Munich newspaper.

Death—Daniel Frohman, 89, one of America's greatest theatrical producers, died in New York. Agnes Ayres, 42, star of the silent movies and leading lady to Rudolph Valentino, died in Hollywood.

Job—Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., 27, was graduated by the University of Virginia last June. Now he has a job as a lawyer with the New York firm of Wright, Gordon, Zachry and Parlin. He and five others asked for jobs through the firm's employment department. All were hired.

Sued—Gloria Jean, the 12-year-old film star, has been sued for $535,000. The action was brought against the child and her parents by a theatrical agent who said he "discovered" her and by terms of a contract is entitled to 10 per cent of her earnings.

Three Killed in West Coast Train Wreck

This picture shows the wreckage of the engine and three freight cars after a northbound Santa Fe freight train struck a "mushy" spot in the rain-soaked roadbed and crashed off the ledge into a sand bed, at Del Mar, Calif. Three of the train crew were killed.

Lesson in Perspective for Prospective Pilots

Remember how the railroad tracks seemed to meet in the distance? Well, nowadays a string of airplanes has the same effect. The imaginary line of the wing tips is drawing towards a point in the distance. These are some of the training craft at the "West Point of the Air," Randolph Field, Texas. The planes will be used for training the 500 flying cadets.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)
NEW YORK.—Joseph C. Grew, ambassador to Japan, got his start by crawling into a cave and getting a half-nelson on a tiger. No wonder he isn't afraid to talk back to Foreign Minister Matsuoka and to tell him that "The American people are firmly determined in certain matters."

About that tiger. Just out of Harvard, the young Bostonian headed for Singapore, to piece out his sheepskin with a tiger skin. He hunted big game for two years in southern Asia, engaging in a great deal of jungle milling before he found the open door in China—the entrance to the tiger's cave which was his gateway to a distinguished diplomatic career.

When the tiger story was published, it caught the eye of President Theodore Roosevelt, but it was a later bear story which really stirred his interest. Young Mr. Grew took three straight falls from an angry bear. Naturally, T. R. saw in that the makings of a diplomat. Cables the next day routed the bear-wrangler and tiger-filter into a lifetime career in diplomacy, starting a post with the Egyptian consulate-general at Cairo.

He was paced steadily on up through posts at Mexico City, Petrograd, Berlin, Vienna, Copenhagen and Bern. He is rounding 60, 36 years in the diplomatic service, tall, erect, weathered, graying. His durable career typewriter has come along with him down the years, and on it he raps out his terse reports to the state department. Bear-wrangling, diplomacy and this and that has left him with only one good ear, but it serves to register a bigger earful than most diplomats get with two.

Mrs. Grew is a granddaughter of Commodore Perry, who opened Japan to the western world—or vice versa. Living with them at the embassy is their daughter, Mrs. Cecil Lyon, with her two children.

VERNE MARSHALL was born and grew up in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and for 26 years has been editor of the Cedar Rapids Gazette.

He likes to Scribe Stays Put, stay put, and believes the U. S. ought to do the same.

In New York, he becomes the organizer and director of the No Foreign War Committee, which puts him in the opposite corner to William Allen White, the other sage of mid-western newspapering, who heads the Committee to Defend America. But that Mr. White wants war, but their ideas are so opposed that they already are pumping large-caliber editorials at each other.

Mr. Marshall lost one war. For his courageous anti-graft campaign in Cedar Rapids, he was awarded the Pulitzer prize, on May 4, 1938. But while the cheers were still echoing, the Iowa Supreme court, the next day, knocked out his graft charges against 31 persons. He kept on slugging, however, and is highly esteemed in those parts as a self-starting, hard-hitting editor.

He was in London in 1911, writing for the London Chronicle, returned home and later left his newspaper desk for a stretch of machine-gunning in the big war. He didn't like it and now says enough is enough. He is the father of six children.

NO CUSTOMER who ever dropped in at Jacques De Sienes' Fifth avenue perfume shop for a spot of "fleur d'amour" would ever have thought of the elegant M. De Sienes as a fighting man. But that's the way it is with the French—elegant, but tough, on occasion. M. De Sienes was a flying ace in the World war, lost a leg, was wounded five times and is now looking for a return engagement as he serves as the personal representative of Gen. Charles De Gaulle, to rally the "free French" in this country. Just now, with three other members of General De Gaulle's American committee, he gives vehement assurance that the present political machinations of the Nazis will consolidate France and steel it for final resistance.

M. De Sienes was a classmate and intimate friend of General De Gaulle at the St. Cyr military academy. They lost touch with each other during the World war and M. De Sienes has not seen his old friend since he left Paris in 1920. But he cabled the general when the latter made a new base in London and issued his stirring appeal for the support of free Frenchmen throughout the world, pledging unchanged loyalty. The result was his personal representation of the general here.

Child Labor in War Material Production Puts New Angle on Vital U. S. Problem

By WILSON ADLAR
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Exigencies of war again bring the problem of child labor to the fore. Foreign nations, their "unessential" industries bled white of manpower, are looking to the children as a large, untapped source of labor.

While these nations are seeking to obtain more work from their children, a campaign is in progress in the United States to restrict child labor. This campaign reaches its climax each year in the national Child Labor day which will be observed this year on January 25.

Opponents of child labor in this country are urging the ratification of the Child Labor Amendment to the Constitution which would empower congress to regulate the labor of persons under 18 years of age. It has already been ratified by 28 states, only eight short of the two-thirds majority required.

When the First Child Labor day was observed in this country in 1906 the civilized world was approaching the end of a period of comparative security. The result of this lull in the cycle of blood and warfare was the growth of a more humane and see boys and girls of 12 and 13 years running tractors and other mechanized farm units in this province."

Italy Mobilizes Youth.

Last spring shortly before Italy became a belligerent the Italian cabinet approved a bill providing for civil mobilization in war time which would include children of both sexes of 13 years up. About the same time Rumania was reported to be drafting, from the National Youth Movement, 4,000,000 school children between the ages of 7 and 18 in an "agricultural army."

Since 1938 the wages and hours act has played a large part in regulating the employment of children under 16 and in regulating hours and wages for older workers in interstate commerce industries. But this act is only a beginning.

Entirely excluded from national regulation are all children employed in industries which are intrastate. Large numbers of boys and girls under 16 are in personal service trades, at work in laundries, hotels, beauty parlors and filling stations. Many serve as clerks or messengers. Their hours are long and their wages low. This fact is even more serious than at first it appears, since the fields in which children are today in greatest demand are those which do not come under federal law.

Accidents occur more frequently among minors than they do among adults. Youth's immature nerves are more easily susceptible to routine, mental fatigue and the strain resulting from frequent speed-ups. The following report from an analysis, issued this year by the Pennsylvania department of labor and industry, speaks for itself. "A minor girl employed by a food products manufacturing concern, while engaged in assorting tomatoes, had her thumb crushed, necessitating amputation at the first joint. This accident occurred just four hours after she was accepted for work without an employment certificate.

"The cause of this accident can readily be traced to the fact that this girl was given no opportunity to learn gradually the intricacies of the operation of such machinery. Had she received the proper instructions concerning it, the accident might not have happened."

Migratory Problem.

In the field of child labor our most serious problem today is that of migratory labor. Last year in New Jersey legislation was passed which seeks to better the conditions of children employed in industrial agriculture. For 35 years families have been brought into New Jersey from other states, notably Pennsylvania, to work in cranberry bogs and on truck farms. Miserable conditions, excessive work and low pay have been the rule. The new law raises the age at which children may leave school to work. It also makes illegal the work of non-resident children when the schools of the district in which they are living are in session or when the schools of the states in which they maintain local residence would require their attendance.

The effect of industrial migration upon the children of migrant families, was described as detrimental by Paul S. Taylor before the LaFollette civil liberties committee.

"Incessant migration retards the education of children. A few American parents are beginning to complain that their children cannot write as good English as they. There is a growing consciousness that for many of their kind the future portends not progress from generation to generations, but retrogression."

Members of the national child labor committee deplore the fact that 16 years is the minimum age at which children may leave school for work in only 12 states.

In defense of their position, they point out that "those who are now our children will in future years become our citizens. How will they meet the difficult problem ahead of us as a nation? How can they solve the democratic and educational challenge of the future?"

Transients Require Medical Assistance

Transients, variously estimated at 200,000 to 1,000,000, are "on the road" and for the most part are unable to procure the necessities of life without assistance. The general welfare of the whole country is closely linked to the health problem presented by this class of needy persons, according to a bulletin recently published by the U. S. Public Health Service.

These "on the road" people are discriminated against in programs of material aid and public medical care through the application of residence and related requirements. Passed Assistant Surgeon Charles F. Blankenship and Fred Safer, Associate Social Science Analyst, authors of the study, state in this new bulletin.

The Public Health Service points out that "migration is an outstanding characteristic of the United States." Economic improvement is the main incentive for migration.

Since it is true that almost two-thirds of the agencies giving medical care to transients restrict care to either emergency or selected cases, the difficulties facing the transient who required public medical care are matters of serious concern.

Illness Rate High.

"Transients, either interstate or intrastate, have considerably more disabling illness than persons who have resided in communities long enough and under such conditions as to have the status of residents. Intrastate transients have even higher disabling illness rates than have the interstate group.

"However, as illness strikes more frequently, the result seems to be that further migration is delayed and often the migrant settles down in some community and eventually becomes a resident. This tendency may be responsible for the high rate of illness and disease found in cities among the local homeless, many of whom may well be former interstate transients disabled for migration by chronic or recurring diseases."

Data on medical care received by transients reflect the results of the limitations imposed on the group. No class or type of nonresidents, except special beneficiaries of the federal health services, receives as much medical care as even the poor in resident groups. Although most students of the subject agree that care received by many residents is not adequate for the maintenance of health, the report shows that transients receive even less care than do residents. As a result illness is more common among transients.

Operate for Gall Bladder Inflammation

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON

WHEN a patient has an attack of acute gall bladder trouble with severe pain in upper right abdomen going over into the shoulder it has been the custom to wait until all symptoms have disappeared before operating. This would appear to be wise when we think of how "low" these patients are in spirits aside from the exhausting results of the attack.

It comes then as a surprise when we learn that physicians and surgeons today are advising early operation in acute inflammation of the gall bladder as they believe that less damage to the patient's general health results from operation than allowing a severe or repeated attack to affect the general health.

Dr. F. Glenn, New York, in Surgery, Gynecology and Obstetrics,

Chicago, records the histories of the 219 patients with acute cholecystitis (inflammation of the gall bladder) who have been treated at the New York hospital in the last six years. Early operation is not difficult, there was not a greater number of complications, nor was the death rate higher than for ordinary or chronic gall bladder diseases.

Dangers of Delay.

Dr. Glenn states that as the outcome of an acute inflammation of the gall bladder cannot be predicted (even as in acute appendicitis), delay in operating may lead to dangerous complications which greatly increase the difficulty of operation and increase the death rate also. The younger the patient undergoing operation, the better the chance of an uneventful recovery and good result from operation.

From his observation of these 219 cases, Dr. Glenn recommends that patients with disease of the gall bladder and bile tubes or ducts undergo operation as soon as it is known that this disease is present unless the general condition of the patient is such that further medical treatment should first be given.

Facts Regarding High Blood Pressure

THERE was a time when the first thought when a patient had a temperature was to give a drug—acetanilid, phenacetin, quinine, or other—to reduce the temperature. Today, the physician takes the temperature and pulse as usual but searches around to find the cause of the temperature. If the temperature gets very high, he may give some drug to reduce it slightly but he knows that the rise in temperature shows that nature is putting up a fight against some invader.

It would seem that the time has come for patients and physicians to take the same stand about blood pressure. A patient learns that his blood pressure is a little above normal and wants to take medicine or follow a diet to bring it down.

Dr. Edward Weiss of Philadelphia in "Practical Talks on Kidney Disease," says:

"Let us take the example of a middle-aged man who has been turned down by a life insurance company because of high blood pressure. He goes to his physician and demands to know the blood pressure figures; on each visit to the physician he waits with anxious concern to hear the latest reading and frequently has ideas of 'stroke,' 'heart failure,' or 'Bright's disease in the back of his mind.'"

Why Nature Raises Blood Pressure.

Now, what about high blood pressure? As a matter of fact, nature has raised the blood pressure because it was necessary to raise or increase it due to some condition present in the body. This condition may be a real or organic condition such as hardening of the arteries, or it may be some condition such as eating too much or worrying too much. It is possible that some infection is present which is giving the body processes more work to do and the blood pressure increases accordingly.

All that is necessary in many cases is smaller meals, more rest and relaxation, and not bothering to have the blood pressure taken more than two or three times a year.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—Could you suggest any sort of ear plugs to keep noises from preventing me from sleeping? I am having a great deal of trouble.

A.—Rubber ear stoppers used by swimmers to keep water out of the ears can be purchased in most drug stores. Absorbent cotton helps to some extent. A special wax which you can mold yourself to fit in ear canal likewise can be purchased in some stores.

Miss Had Another Chance After the Final Good-By

The fellow threatened to commit suicide every time a certain girl turned him down. She refused him again the other night, and the next morning a messenger boy called with this note:

"Darling—By the time you read this, my body will be floating down the river. Life without you is not worth while. Shed no tears over me, but remember I have always loved you. Good-by for ever."

The girl went white and nearly fainted. Then she noticed that the messenger boy was still there.

"What are you waiting for?" she asked.

"The man who gave me that note said I was to wait for an answer," said the boy.

Expect Farm Income to Increase

LaSalle Map of Business Conditions

Income of farmers throughout the country is expected to rise over five per cent this year. The shrinking foreign export market is still more than replaced by an increasing domestic demand. The gain in income, however, will be slightly offset by higher prices of production.

By L. G. ELLIOTT
(President, LaSalle Extension University)

The farmers of the country will probably receive $500,000,000 larger income this year than they did in 1940. During the next few months they will be marketing the remainder of their last year's crop, which was larger than average. For most of these crops they will receive prices which are above the level of a year ago.

Farmers benefit when employment and pay rolls in the cities are high. Demand for their products is increased whenever the income of industrial workers rises, as it has

Courtesy and Justice

District Judge C. D. Murane of Casper, Wyo., one day complained of the noise from a truck engine being tuned up just below the courtroom window. After silencing the disturber, the bailiff of the court noted frequent locomotive whistle blasts near the courthouse. So he wrote a letter to the railroads ordering them to silence their whistles. Worried railroad officials called the judge and said they would be glad to comply with the order but there was a city ordinance that required them to blow whistles at crossings. The judge, who hadn't heard about the letter, told them to go right on whistling.

House of Cotton

The Farm Security administration is conducting experiments in the use of cotton as a building fabric. A house has been erected in Coffee, Ala., with roof and walls covered with cotton duck. The material is nailed to a smooth backing of plywood, plaster or composition board. It is painted with a mixture of white lead and linseed oil. The cost of such a house, including modern plumbing and electric wiring, is only about $1,350.

Birds With Fingers

A primitive bird called for Archaeopteryx once lived which had three sharp clawed fingers on each wing. It is believed by scientists who have studied its fossil remains to be a link between bird life and reptiles. The strange creature had no beak, but rather a long jaw equipped with teeth. It was about the size of a crow.

Maggot Treatment

Modern medicine uses the blowfly maggot in the treatment of gangrene, tuberculosis of the hip and other bone diseases. The maggots devour the diseased tissue and destroy infectious bacteria.

Nation's Petroleum Deposits

If the present rate of consumption continues, the nation's petroleum deposits will be exhausted in about 66 years, Dean Harry A. Curtis of the Missouri university engineering school, has predicted. He said the most likely substitute would be obtained from coal.

Hot Paint, Cold Job

When painting, always remember that—for best results—the temperature of the paint and the temperature of the surface to which it is applied should be approximately the same. If warm paint is applied to a surface that is cold, the paint will likely run, sag or streak, whereas, if cold paint is spread on a warm surface it may expand in volume.

Wealth From Waste
 Wealth out of waste is being made by the village of Esholt, England. By turning wool grease into soap the village is giving employment to many persons and adding to its revenues. More than 70 mills discharge into the sewers waste matter which enters the sewage works at Esholt. Ten tons of soap powder are turned out of the plant at frequent intervals. The plant was constructed to exploit new commodities found in the recovered wool fat as a result of research at the Esholt laboratory. In addition by-products useful in the manufacture of paint are sold. Large sums have been collected in taxes from these operations.

Hidden Ways

By FREDERIC F. VAN DE WATER

SYNOPSIS

David Mallory, in search of newspaper work in New York, is forced to accept a job as switch-board operator in a swank apartment house, managed by officious Timothy Higgins. There David meets Miss Agatha Paget, a crippled old lady, and her charming niece, Allegra. One day, talking with Higgins in the lobby, David is alarmed by a piercing scream. David finds the scream came from the Ferriter apartment, not far from the Pagets'. The Ferriters include Lyon and Everett, and their sister, Ione. Everett, a genealogist, is helping Agatha Paget write a book about her blue-blooded ancestors. Inside the apartment they find a black-bearded man—dead. No weapon can be found. The police arrive. Higgins, who actively dislikes David, informs him that he is fired. David is called to the Paget apartment. There he finds elderly, prim-appearing Agatha Paget sipping a cocktail. She offers him a job helping write her family history—which will unearth a few family skeletons. He accepts the offer. Meanwhile, police suspect Lyon Ferriter of the murder. Jerry Cochrane of the Press offers David a job helping solve the murder. David accepts. He is to keep on working for Miss Paget. Later David meets Grosvenor Paget, Allegra's brother.

"But how did he get out again?" I then asked.

"That," Cochrane said and grinned at me, "is something to be disclosed to our readers in a later installment. And, by the way, our friend Blackbeard had been places. The Medical Examiner says he had been shot in the chest. Not recently. In a way perhaps—World or rum. It may mean much, or nothing, like the rest of this case. The Ferriters are at the Babylon, eh?"

I nodded and was galled once more by the feeling that somehow I was betraying Miss Agatha. Then I looked at the clock and knew I was. As we left, Cochrane asked: "Still living in the basement?"

I gave him my address.

"You can find me there any evening," I told him, "but not till late tonight. I've a lot still to go over when I get back to the Morello."

"The maid, Annie, let me in. Remorse for my neglect hurried me down the hall. I came into the room so quickly that I caught Allegra and her brother off guard.

They became in an instant two beautiful, well-bred youngsters, yet in the split second of surprise I thought I saw fear on the boy's face and I was certain the girl's eyes held tears. She had turned toward the window. Grosvenor spoke pleasantly enough but I was sure suspicion echoed in his voice:

"We thought you had gone for the day, Mr. Mallory."

"I don't wonder," I said. "I was delayed. If you're busy I can wait."

"No," he said nervously, "oh, no, no; not at all."

Allegra turned from the window and smiled. It wasn't a great success. Neither was the carelessness she pumped into her voice.

"Grove and I were having another of our squabbles, Mr. Mallory. You'll get used to them."

She went to the door, trying so hard to appear at ease that she was pitiful. She said from the threshold:

"Well, it's just as unsettled as when we began, Grove." And this I knew was sheer play-acting that hid something.

The boy lingered after she had left, wandering about the room, peering at titles on the bookshelves. I sat down, switched on the desk light and bent to my work. Twice I thought he was going to speak. At last, he said, with a wide yawn:

"I'm dead on my feet. I think I'll pass up supper tonight and go to bed now."

"Pleasant dreams," I told him. He smiled uncertainly and left.

It was nine o'clock when I finished. I stacked the papers neatly on the desk, swung about in the swivel chair and glanced upward at the narrow strip of sky above the upper row of lighted windows in the area wall. There were stars.

I started to rise, checked myself and sat, staring.

Those dark panes across the way were in the Ferriter apartment and behind one of them I had seen a light turned on. It showed the corner of a bureau, the foot of a bed and a man's moving figure. One of Shannon's cops, I thought, still searching the flat for what plainly was not there.

Belatedly, the intruder came to the window and drew the shade. I saw his face clearly for a second. It was Grosvenor Paget.

I sat still. For a few minutes my mind didn't work at all. It kept jumping at theories and falling short. Its first sensible act was its counsel: "It's none of your business, Dave; it's none of your business."

But I knew it was. The boy was deeper in this thing than anyone dreamed. That wasn't entirely his business. It was his sister's and his aunt's and, since I owed Miss Agatha much, mine as well. I thought of Cochrane, too, and swore to myself.

When I looked again, all windows across the court were dark. I sat down and stared at some papers. I heard the latch of the front door turn. Feet crept along the hall. A door closed. I waited a minute. Then I picked up my hat and coat and rang the desk bell.

"Will you tell Miss Paget," I asked the maid, "that I'll be back promptly at nine tomorrow?"

She led me to the door and let me out. I did not ring for the elvator. I went loudly down the first flight of stairs. Then I tiptoed back, crossed the hall and pressed the Ferriters' bell.

CHAPTER VI

Deep in the Ferriter apartment, the bell shrilled. It was so loud in the silence that I jerked my finger from the button.

I heard the far-off torrent of traffic and the muffled squawk of a radio, filtering in from the area. I heard a steady thumping in my own ears and wind muttering in the elevator shaft but no sound, no hint of movement beyond the Ferriters' door.

I pressed the button again and held it down just to show the bell that its noise didn't scare me. It stopped, when at last I dropped my hand, as abruptly as the voice at the telephone had been checked the day before. I was sweating and inside me the wise, or timid, voice had begun again:

"It's none of your business, Dave; it's none of your business."

I was mired too deep now, to climb out and walk away griggishly while Allegra and Miss Agatha and that fool boy teetered on the brink of a slough. I couldn't make Grosvenor a murderer—at least not this murderer. He hadn't the brains. He hadn't had even the common sense to pull down the shade before turning on the light. Yet the flat's silence damned him. It proved that he, unknown to the police, unknown to Higgins, had a key.

I saw his face clearly for a second.

The wheedling voice inside me died away. Shannon was no fool. Shannon might have set a trap into which a young idiot had stumbled. I knew now what I must do. I crossed the hall and rang the Pagets' bell.

Grosvenor himself opened the door and the lie I had prepared for Annie served for him.

"Sorry," I said; "I forgot something," and stepped forward. He was in a dressing gown but his hair was sleek and his eyes were quick. I walked to the room where I had worked and turned on the lights. He stood in the hall, watching me and he looked in his brocade, tasseled robe like a poster for men's socks. I could see he was relieved it was only I. He was easy to read.

"Could you come here a minute, Mr. Paget?" I called and I closed the door when he had entered. That frightened him. He turned white but he had enough backbone to keep his face stiff. He sat down and pulled his robe about him. I leaned against the desk. He cleared his throat, looked up at me and asked: "Well?"

The way he spoke made me feel clumsy. It was hard to begin and I found myself saying aloud:

"It's none of my business, but—" There I stuck. His eyelids flickered. I felt my muscles jerk as he slid a hand into the pocket of his robe. He took a cigarette from a silver case and then, remembering his manners, offered one to me. I held a match for him and then lit my own. Then I tried again:

"I'd like you to believe that I'm not hounding in. I'm not asking for your confidence, but I'll be glad to help you in any way I can."

His eyebrows arched a trifle.

"Kind of you," said he and his upstage stiffness irked me. I picked my words less carefully:

"I've proved that already, whether you like it or not. If I weren't in your corner, I'd be phoning Captain Shannon now. You can drop the air of patrician bewilderment, if you don't mind. All I really want to give is advice. The next time you prou about the Ferriters' apartment, pull down the shades before you light up."

That hit him. He turned green and creased his lips to keep them from trembling. He did not heed the ash that shook from his cigarette onto his knees.

"If," I told him, "you want to leave it there, that's your affair. After all, it's none of my business."

He had got hold of himself. He took a long drag on his cigarette and ground out the butt in an ash tray.

"Which is, of course," he said, "the correct answer. It is none of your business. But if you insist on making it so, go ahead. I'll only say that you lie."

I could have smacked him down with great joy, but I held myself in. "I'm not a cop," I reminded him. He had picked his course. He was going to bluff it out.

"No," he said, "you're not. You're my aunt's—hiring."

I think he knew how close he came to a sock in the nose, for he half rose and his eyes widened. I didn't move. I only said:

"Thanks for putting me in my place. That makes everything simpler. I won't keep you any longer."

We heard the front door open and women's voices. They stirred more panic in Grosvenor than I had. He got up with a hiss of breath.

"Sit down, you ass," I told him softly. "Sit down and get hold of yourself."

He obeyed. I rumaged in my mind and then recited, loudly:

"D'Armaillac was the greatest I ever saw. Utterly unbeatable if you let him come to you. His composed attack was like a song. Once you were on the defensive you were lost. He had a disarming trick that was sheer wizardry. I saw his epee jerk Kurthoff's and throw it away. And Kurthoff was no weakling. I learned the elements of that stunt once myself, but it's over a year now since I last touched a sword. Fencing is—"

I jerked up from my lounging position against the desk. Grosvenor rose and gave a weak smile as Allegra Paget pushed her aunt's wheel chair into the room. The old lady looked at me. Behind her I saw the girl stare at her brother and I wondered how much she knew. The thought made me sick. Miss Agatha said, crisply:

"David, I hired a writer. Maybe you thought I said 'lodger.'"

I felt Allegra look at me but I kept my eyes on the sharp old face before me and grinned.

"My fault," I said. "I started home an hour ago, but we got to talking about fencing and I never knew when to stop."

"H'm," Miss Agatha said and turned upon her nephew who once more was a fashion plate for what the half-dressed man should wear. "I thought you were going to bed, fader?"

"I started to," he said, "but I couldn't sleep."

"You should have come to your Uncle Stanley's," she told him. "Allegra and I dozed so much that now we're wide awake again. Take some beer, Grove. It's relaxing and it's plebeian. It would be good for you on both counts."

"It might at that," he admitted. Allegra was watching him so hard that I feared her aunt would see it. I picked up my hat and said loudly: "I'm really going now. And I'll be a less permanent resident, hereafter."

"No," Miss Agatha corrected. "We'll all have beer and cheese as a nightcap. My tastes get lower as my age increases. Allegra, my dear, ring for Annie—no, don't. She's probably gone to bed. Grove, if you can pull yourself out of your insomnia and actually wake up, you can help me in the pantry. We'll be right back."

The girl started to follow them. She checked herself at the door and watched them down the hall. I saw her brace her shoulders before she turned around.

"You're fast on your feet, aren't you?" she asked me. "I think you actually fooled my aunt."

Something rode her. She seemed calm and there was a mocking glint in her level eyes but I could feel her worry. Thought of where it might lead made me feel sick again. I wanted her in my arms for many reasons. Not the least of them was that I knew she was scared. I grinned.

"I fooled you!" I told her. "We were just talking."

She brushed that aside. Her eyes admitted her fright and her bright mouth trembled.

"You and he have been quarreling," she whispered. "What about?"

I almost told her but I knew that it wouldn't be square, after what I'd said to Grove. I knew, as she stood near me and seemed to forget I was a hallman emeritus, that I needed my self-respect because I wanted her. She was one of the people who make you more decent than you are. So I said:

"You're wrong. We were just talking. Ask him yourself."

It didn't satisfy her.

"He's a fool," she said half to herself, "but a dear fool. What's he been doing?"

"You don't retain very well, do you?" I asked. "I said he'd been talking to me."

"You lie like a gentleman," she said and smiled.

I heard the clink of glass in the hall, and dropped my voice.

"Merely a vestige," I told her. "We were talking about fencing. If he were to ask me himself, that is all I could remember."

I think she understood what I did not say. She gave me a look that willed me again and then, turning, helped her brother guide a laden tea-wagon over the threshold. Behind it, Miss Agatha propelled her chair into the room.

"I could have smacked him down with great joy, but I held myself in. 'I'm not a cop,' I reminded him. He had picked his course. He was going to bluff it out.

Declaring God's truth and His love for man by worship and by work for Him—that is the right way to use the Lord's Day. Let's get back to its proper observance.

II. What and What Not to Do for Advancement (vv. 7-11).

Getting ahead, even at the expense of others, seems to have been quite the thing in our Lord's time, as it is today. Looking at that smug, self-satisfied crowd of "grabbers," Jesus made good use of His presence at the feast to expose their folly and selfishness. Again we agree with Dr. Morgan that one should not "try for the chief seat. Why not? Because the place of honor is for the honorable man; and a man who struggles to sit in the place of honor proves thereby that he is not an honorable man." Think it over!

The way up in spiritual things is always down. Humility, which is so despised by the world, is precious in the sight of God, and will be rewarded by Him. The principle stated in verse 11 is and always will be true. The young man or woman who really wants to get ahead will do well to let it control both thought and deed. It is a far better rule for the New Year than any resolution you may have made—and probably forgotten by now.

III. Who and Who Not to Invite for Dinner (vv. 12-14).

Is the Lord interested in such a matter as that? Indeed He is! Everything about life concerns Him, and, as a matter of fact, this is a very important point. Here an attitude toward life is revealed which is vital and fundamental.

Hospitality is a virtue highly regarded by the Bible (see such passages as Rom. 12:13; I Tim. 3:2; Titus 1:8; I Pet. 4:9). To debase it by asking only those whom we expect will ask us in return, is really to destroy it. It is not hospitality at all to limit our invitations to those who invite us. Obviously we are not to cut them off simply because they do ask us. That is not the point. We are not to let that be the controlling factor.

Ask those who cannot pay you back, if you really want to get a blessing out of it. There is so much need in the world that we who follow Christ have little time to spend merely entertaining those who have no need. God will recompense. Dr. J. W. Bradbury in The Gist of the Lesson well says, "There is a good reason not to seek recompense here; there are more enduring and valuable recompenses hereafter (Matt. 6:1-6, 16-18). When we get no recompense here for the good we do, we ought rather to rejoice than be sad. It assures better recompense hereafter."

He goes on to say, "The professing church has often followed the world's method rather than Christ's (James 2:1-6)." Sad—but true. What shall we do about it?

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

CHRIST'S VALUATION OF PERSONALITY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 14:1-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment?—Matthew 6:25.

People, people, and more people! Have you ever said, "I'm just so tired of people. I wish I could get away from everybody"? Most of us have felt that way some time and have possibly needed and deserved a rest. We must not permit that feeling to so color our thinking, however, that we lose our interest in men and women, boys and girls.

Jesus had His times of prayer and quiet communion with the Father, but for the most part we find Him out among people. He loved them and consequently dealt faithfully with them, showing tenderness to those who needed it, and often being severely plain and direct in dealing with those who were hypocrites. He valued human personality highly, hence He gave Himself in sacrificial devotion to winning, guiding, controlling and, above all, saving men.

The lesson presents some interesting contrasts.

I. How and How Not to Use the Sabbath (vv. 1-6).

Jesus was at a formal gathering with invited guests (v. 7) in one of the chief houses of the community, on the Sabbath Day. That such a gathering was held on that day was a sign of the degeneracy of the age. "The same thing is being done on Sunday by Christian people today. They go to church (if convenient) in the morning and devote the afternoon and evening to recreation and social" occasions. We agree with Dr. Morgan that "the whole thing is a sign of spiritual decadence." That's how not to spend the day of rest and worship.

Another wrong thing was that they used the occasion to try to entrap Jesus. He was at the feast, not to "have a good time," but to minister to their spiritual needs. They brought the sick man in to tempt Jesus to heal on the Sabbath Day. He used their trickery to condemn them and to silence them (vv. 4, 6).

Declaring God's truth and His love for man by worship and by work for Him—that is the right way to use the Lord's Day. Let's get back to its proper observance.

A CHANGE IN THE MEAT COURSE
(See Recipes Below)

"Meat makes the meal," especially when there are husky, hard-working men to feed. But for those behind the scenes in the kitchen, thinking up a different and a flavorome meat dish for each day out of the seven is no small task.

There are two ways to approach 'the problem.' First, investigate some of the less-common cuts. You'll find them thrifty to buy because the demand for them is less.

Most of them fairly abundant in good flavor and need only to be properly cooked to be serious rivals to more expensive cuts.

If you are buying pork, ask the meat dealer to prepare you a handsome rolled sirloin roast. It's a thrifty cut not so well known as the pork loin roast but it has decided advantages. Two sections of the pork sirloin are boned and tied together into a solid roll of meat. The round, compact slices offer no obstructions to the knife, and are the answer to a carver's prayer. The picnic shoulder of pork is another cut of exceptional flavor. Have it boned, stuff it with spinach and roast it.

If it's too soon for another leg of lamb, buy a section of lamb breast and have it rolled with a layer of sausage. Slice off the meat as you would a jelly-roll; you'll have the neatest pinwheels imaginable. Lamb shoulder and lamb shoulder chops are two other not-so-well-known possibilities.

The second way to coax some variety into your meat dishes is to try new ways of flavoring cuts that you serve often. If much of your meat supply comes from a frozen foods locker, this is your best bet. Have pork chops cut double thick and stuff them with a tart mixture of sauerkraut and apple. Your family will beam approval when you serve that combination! Or make your next ham loaf like an upside-down cake so that when you turn it out, there are rows of bright-as-a-dollar apricots across the top. Try canned gooseberries as a relish with ham or beef, or canned Damsion plums with veal.

Pork Chops Stuffed With Sauerkraut And Apple.
(Serves 6)

6 loin pork chops (cut 1-inch thick)
1 cup sauerkraut (drained)
1 cup tart, red cooking apple (diced) (unpared)
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons fat
½ cup sauerkraut juice.

Have a pocket made from the outside of each chop. Combine sauerkraut with finely diced unpeeled apple and stuff the chops with the mixture. Season them with salt and pepper and brown on both sides in hot fat in a heavy skillet. Add sauerkraut juice, cover, and finish the cooking in a moderate oven (350 degrees). Bake for 1½ hours, and remove the cover during the last 15 minutes of baking to brown the chops.

Round Steak, Western Style.
(Serves 6)

2 pounds round steak
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 medium onions (sliced)
½ lemon (sliced)
1 No. 1 can condensed tomato soup (1½ cups)
1 cup water

Have round steak cut ¾ inch thick. Spread with butter and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Arrange slices of thinly cut onion and lemon over steak. Dilute tomato soup with water and pour over steak. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 2 hours uncovered.

Boneless Sirloin Pork Roast With Stuffed Apples.

Have the meat retailer remove the tenderloin and bones from two sirloin sections, reverse the ends, and tie the two boneless pieces together in a compact rolled roast. Season with salt and pepper and place with the fat side up in an open roasting pan. Make an incision to the center of the roast and insert a meat thermometer so that the center of the bulb reaches the center of the fleshiest part of the meat. Place the roast in a moderate oven (350 degrees) and roast until the thermometer registers 185 degrees Fahrenheit. Allow about 30 minutes per pound for roasting. Serve with rice-stuffed apples.

Rice-Stuffed Apples.

6 medium-sized baking apples
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 cup rice (cooked)
1 tablespoon butter
½ cup water

Wash apples and cut a slice from the top of each. Remove the cores and seeds and sprinkle the cavities with brown sugar. Mix cooked rice with melted butter and stuff each apple. Arrange them in a baking pan with the water in the bottom and bake for 1½ hours, or until tender in a moderate oven (350 degrees).

Lamb Pinwheels.
(Serves 5)

Boned breast of lamb (about 3½ pounds)
¾ pound bulk pork sausage
2 tablespoons fat
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 small onion (sliced)
1 cup tomatoes (canned)
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce

Have the lamb breast boned, spread with bulk pork sausage, rolled, and tied or skewered into shape at the market. Wipe the meat with a damp cloth and dry. Then brown on all sides in hot fat.

Pour off the fat in the pan, leaving 2 tablespoons only. Season the roll with salt and pepper. Add sliced onion, tomatoes and Worcestershire sauce. Cover tightly and cook very slowly until done, about 1½ hours. Slice into pinwheels, using a very sharp knife.

Cushion Style Pork Shoulder With Spinach Stuffing.
(Serves 10)

Boned picnic shoulder (about 5 pounds)
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups drained spinach (cooked or canned)
2 tablespoons onion (minced)
4 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 cups fine, soft bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper

Have the picnic shoulder boned and sewed on two sides at the market. This leaves one side open for inserting the stuffing. Season the surface of the pork shoulder with salt and pepper. Combine the spinach, onion, butter, lemon juice and bread crumbs. Season with salt and pepper and use to fill the cavity of the roast. Sew or skewer the edges together. Place the shoulder, fat side up, on a rack in an open roasting pan and roast in a moderate oven (350 degrees) until done. Allow about 40 minutes per pound for the roasting.

THE JANUARY BIRTHDAY

The food makes the party, especially for a round-eyed youngster of six or eight. If you have a January birthday coming up you will find both menu and recipe help in Eleanor Howe's Cook Book "Easy Entertaining." Party food for all ages, from the three-year-olds to the teen-age group is but one of the sections in her book.

If you need new suggestions for your hostessing, send 10 cents in coin to "Easy Entertaining" care of Eleanor Howe, 919 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, for your copy.

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

● In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worthwhile service which saves us many dollars a year.

● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world; the feeling of being adequately prepared.

● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facts—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

School Notes

Student Body Sees Film (Ruth Herriman)

A film entitled "The Chance To Lose" was shown to the high school Tuesday afternoon through the courtesy of the Plymouth Motor Car Company. This was a very timely film as it pointed out the causes of the ever increasing list of fatalities caused by automobile accidents.

Every motorist thinks he is a careful driver and usually thinks that it is impossible for him to have an accident.

Under obviously dangerous conditions such as rainstorms, snowstorms, or icy pavements, comparatively few accidents occur, because the motorists realize the danger and drive accordingly.

More accidents occur when clear weather conditions prevail. At these times, many drivers throw caution to the wind and drive as fast as possible.

Fatigue is one of the leading causes of accidents. For this reason, most accidents occur during the hours from 1:00 a. m. to 6:00 a. m.

The picture showed how brakes are tested in Police Lanes under various weather conditions. It pointed out that only sixty-eight per cent of the automobiles have safe brakes.

This type of picture contains valuable information for the students as most of them either drive now or will learn to drive in the next few years.

Senior Class
The Senior Class of Tawas City will hold an informal dance on January 17, at the auditorium. The music will be furnished by Ted Jacques with the added attraction of square dances. Parents and patrons are invited to attend this dance. The admission for adults is fifteen cents and for students ten cents.

Remember the pancake supper on January 29. Plan to attend and eat heartily upon pancakes and pork sausage.

THIRD and FOURTH GRADES
Jean Terice, a fourth grade pupil, has moved to Bay City.

Louis Pfeiffer, another member of the fourth grade, it at home ill this week. We wish him a speedy recovery.

In language class we told about our Christmas presents. Santa Clause remembered everyone this year, apparently.

PRIMARY ROOM
We enjoyed our vacation time very much. Pupils of the second grade gave some interesting reports about their holidays.

Donna Jean Bublitz has not returned from her vacation which she expected to spend in Chicago and Florida.

We are sorry to have Paul Terice leave our first grade. His parents have moved back to Bentley.

Rosalin Gackster, Kathleen Frank and Patsy Lincoln are absent from the first grade because of illness.

Next week's matches in the Inter-City, Ladies, and Minor leagues will end the first half of the season.

There will be two match games at the Tawas City Recreation Sunday, January 12. In the afternoon at two o'clock the Dow Metal team of Midland will bowl the Tawas City Recreation. And in the evening the West Branch team will furnish the opposition for the Tawas City Recreation.

Rags in Paper Making
During the early 1830s, rags for paper making were so scarce that they frequently brought as high as 20 cents a pound. Peddlers, traveling in red wagons, called on householders and traded bibles, testaments, and other books for the good-wife's rag supply.

The "Bugge Bible"
The "Bugge Bible" is an old edition, so called because in the Nine-first Psalm where it says, "Thou shalt not be afraid for the terrors by night," the "Bugge Bible" reads: "Thou shalt not be afraid for any bugge (one word bogey) by night!"

New Diamond Field
Nearly $250,000 worth of diamonds have been found in the Zoutpan field of South Africa since it was discovered in June, 1938.

Trout Favored by Fishermen
Great strength and a fighting heart in a small body make the trout a favorite of fishermen. No fish as small fights so long when hooked. It protects itself by changing color to blend with that of the bottom of a stream. It is something of a weather prophet, too. Eight or nine hours before a freshet, caused by rains miles away, floods its home stream, a trout stops feeding.

Algebra: 1522 Style
Plus and minus signs were published in a book on algebra in 1522.

Undaunted Courage?
Pat Hogan of Westwood, Calif., and Muriel Dwyer of Santa Cruz, went to Reno, Nev., to be married. Pat, after getting the license, was knocked down by an auto and his leg was fractured. Undaunted, he had the leg set at a hospital, summoned a clergyman and the marriage was performed on schedule at the bedside.

Greek Training Taboo
Candidates for athletic games to ancient Greece lived on new cheese, dried figs, boiled grain with warm water and no meat.
