200 ATTEND BEEF GROWERS 1ST BANQUET

Hotel Holland Scene of Very Successful Meeting

The First Annual meeting and noon luncheon of the Northeastern Michigan Hereford Calf Association held January 16 in Isoco county proved to be a most successful event.

More than 200 Michigan Cattle-men and their wives attended the event at which two of the leading beef herds of the county were visited and the group dined together upon prime Hereford beef that had been prepared by the Holland Hotel in East Tawas.

C. T. Prescott, Sr., local cattleman and Hereford enthusiast, who is President of the Association, was chairman of the luncheon session. Mr. Prescott, in his opening remarks, stressed the opportunities which this locality provides in a natural way for the production of feeder calves to be sold into Southern Michigan counties there to be grown and fitted for market. "Hay and pasture are natural to this district so lets join together and market this valuable product in its most useful form, upon the back of a good thick well grown Hereford calf" said President Prescott.

Mayor Lyman McAuliff, of East Tawas, welcomed the visitors who came from 13 Michigan counties and turned over the city key to the entire group. He as well as Herman Butler representing the East Michigan Tourist Association encouraged the visitors to again call upon the local community, where during winter months skating, skiing, coasting and tobogganing stand second to none. During warm weather, they told of the refreshing breezes and splendid fishing.

Principal speaker of the afternoon and one of the highlights of the meeting was a discussion by Professor George A. Brown, head of the Animal Husbandry Department at Michigan State College, on "The Opportunities for Beef Calf Production in Northeastern Michigan." Brown showed not only opportunities, but also explained the cost of producing beef calves and expressed the hope that farmers in this locality would keep farm records showing the profitability of this industry.

Variety and interest was added to the program by the Orville Leslie & Sons Motor Sales who were responsible for the banquet.

Will Hold Mattress Demonstration Feb. 25

Isoco county people are planning to make cotton mattresses in their local communities during the coming spring months.

As a means of formally introducing this program into Isoco county, a demonstration upon the actual construction of a cotton mattress will be given Saturday, January 25, at the American Legion hall in Tawas City.

Assistant State Home Demonstration Leader, Miss Margaret Harris, and Extension Specialist Miss Ruth Peck from Michigan State College will be present to explain the details of the program and assist local committees in the making of this first demonstration mattress.

It is the hope of those who are planning this program that families who have net incomes of $500.00 per year or less will be given the first opportunity to avail themselves of these new mattresses. This net income of $500.00 may be increased by $50.00 per child in families of more than four people. Each family wishing to take advantage of this opportunity must make an application for the cotton and ticking, upon forms provided for this purpose at the Agricultural Conservation office in the basement of the court house in Tawas City. Families whose applications are approved may receive material for one mattress for each two persons in the family, but not to exceed a total of three mattresses. Where one family constitutes a family he may be considered eligible to receive materials for one mattress.

Each family must be willing to (first) pay 50c to 75c to cover the cost of needles, thread and twine, (second) to spend one day to make the mattress and (third) be willing to help some one else. The cotton and ticking will be furnished without cost.

If sufficient applications are received as much as one car load of cotton and 4800 yards of ticking may be had in Isoco county. A car load of cotton weighs approximately 24,000 pounds and comes in bales weighing 500 pounds each. It requires 50 pounds of cotton and 10 yards of ticking to make one large mattress.

A family interested in making themselves one of these cotton mattresses should encourage their township supervisor, Home Extension Project Leader, Community A. C. P. Committee member or some one within your own community to attend this demonstration at the Legion Hall Saturday of this week.

Ladies Literary Club Celebrates 56th Year

On Wednesday evening, January 22, at seven o'clock, in the dining room of the Holland Hotel, 79 members of the Ladies' Literary Club and their husbands and friends, observed their 56th Anniversary by partaking of a delicious turkey dinner.

The tables were decorated with Cala lilies and pink snapdragons in silver bowls and white lighted tapers in crystal holders. The tables were set in U shape.

Miss Bertha Leaser played the march and also rendered music during the banquet hour.

First Vice President Mrs. W. A. DeGrow escorted the guest speaker, the Hon. Judge Dehnke, to his place at the speakers' table and after the invocation by Second Vice President Mrs. Frances Schriber, the East Tawas School band played two numbers. Battle Scene Shifts to Mediterranean

Willkie Backs FDR on Lease-Lend Bill;
U. S. Navy Split Into Three New 'Fleets'

DEFENSE:
Parties Split

Congress debated President Roosevelt's plan to loan or lease munitions of war to Great Britain. Party lines were broken and politics forgotten both by political leaders in congress and through the nation.

Leading the attack against the bill within congress was Senator Wheeler (D. Mont.). Former President Hoover and former Gov. Alf M. Landon, the G. O. P. standard bearer in 1936, lined up behind him.

But President Roosevelt had the support of Wendell L. Willkie, who ran against him last fall. And in the senate he was supported by Senator Austin (R. Maine). Willkie suggested several changes in the measure, however. He proposed that a time limit be fixed during which the President will have exceptional powers to deal with embattled democracies. He also proposed that the nations to be given help be named in the bill.

Administration senators were quick to adopt the view. As the proposal moved into house and senate hearings, amendments were added to carry out the Willkie suggestions. Meanwhile Willkie and three of his friends were arranging to go to London during the first days in February. The head of the Republican party wished to see first hand just what was going on in England. He made application to Secretary Hull for a passport. The request was granted in three hours.

The Fleets

Many months ahead of delivery of ships which will give the United States a two-ocean navy, orders were issued which split the present war vessels into three "fleets." The main forces will remain in the Pacific, but there will be an independent command in the Atlantic and a third independent command in Asia.

Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel was named commander in chief. He and President Roosevelt are old friends. They worked together in another defense problem—when Mr. Roosevelt was assistant secretary of the navy in 1916-1917. At the same time orders were issued to increase the navy personnel from 192,000 to 232,000.

More Planes

Dr. George Mead, aircraft production head of the national defense commission, announced that the nation's three largest automobile corporations had agreed to take a larger hand in the making of fighting planes. Ford, General Motors and Chrysler will make parts for 1,200 planes each. They have completed arrangements with Consolidated Aircraft, Douglas and Glenn Martin to make the assemblies. The cheapest of the 3,600 planes will cost $100,000.

Meanwhile there still is some dispute over the lack of aluminum. The Aluminum Corporation of America, which holds a monopoly, said production has more than doubled and that the firm is spending $15,000,000 of its own money for further expansion. Since aircraft today is almost wholly aluminum in the bodies, the demand is high and there yet may be a senate investigation over Alco's affairs and national defense.

Otherwise on the defense front: The North Carolina, first battleship to be built for the United States navy in 20 years, will go into commission April 11.

A fighting plane built for the U. S. army attained a speed of 620 miles an hour in a power dive test. It was driven by a reserve officer, Lieut. Andrew C. McDonough. The speed of the plane is faster than sound, so that when it is heard approaching for bombing it is too late to duck—the plane already has passed.

HELP TO ITALY:
Germans Take Over

Mussolini began to slip. In Egypt the British bombed him out of the air while on the ground his troops were retreating farther and faster westward until it seemed as though all of eastern Libya would be lost to the Fascist empire. The Greeks were threatening the last line of resistance in southern Albania and there wasn't much for the Italians to fall back on after that.

More and more it became apparent that the Duce's Axis partner would be forced to send German troops to extract the Italians from the tangled mess. Even the Italian home front began to crackle, perhaps the first rumble of revolution. Benito Mussolini was being referred to as Finito Mussolini.

Only German planes appeared, at first piloted by Italians. The planes were sent to Albania. After that followed German "instructors" to teach the Italians how to fight in the air. Finally all pretense was dropped and Germans began to arrive in numbers, taking over Italian bases.

Were the Germans invading Italy? Perhaps not. Maybe it was only a case of holding Italy in "protective custody." Be that as it may, when Germans took up the battle themselves, Italy could no longer be considered an equal partner in the Axis. The Germans don't work that way. They dominated the fight. Mussolini needed their help and could get it only on the German terms.

Mediterranean War

The Germans' first attack came in the Mediterranean, off Catania. Here the inland sea narrows down to a slight channel between Sicily and the North African mainland. Through this channel must flow all British supplies and reinforcements to Greece and Egypt.

A large convoy was passing through the channel escorted by the royal navy, including the 23,000-ton cruiser Southampton. Nazi dive bombers appeared in force and what is believed to be the first battle ever fought between war vessels and aircraft took place. The British admit both war vessels were hit. The Italians claim more were damaged.

The battle ended at nightfall and the British ships made harbor. But the Germans sallied forth the following day and continued raids on British shipping in the Mediterranean for the five days. They said that 15 ships were sent to the bottom. When the truth can be learned definitely, it may be one of the "classic" battles of history, for it may establish what long has been a moot question—whether aircraft can successfully challenge armed surface craft.

Looking Ahead

The British felt the German force, now based in Italy, may be a definite challenge to the campaign in the Near East. It may mean that Hitler will seek to cut off all communications between England and Cairo.

On the other hand the British still anticipate an attack on England itself. And they doubt that the attempt will be long delayed. German bombings of Irish cities were seen as "training" flights toward this objective. The British took no chances. They bombed "invasion ports" in Germany, Holland, Belgium and France nightly.

SCHOOLS CRITICIZED:
By College Heads

Present-day educational methods are inadequate to cope with the needs of democracy, speakers told the twenty-seventh annual meeting of the Association of American Colleges. Dr. Theodore M. Greene, Princeton philosophy professor, and Dr. John M. Mason, president of Swarthmore college, led the discussion. The Rev. Edward V. Stanford, president of Villanova, agreed with them.

TOO MUCH COTTON:
Reduction Asked

Because the export market for cotton has disappeared with the war, Farm Secretary Claude Wickard believes a reduction must be made in the previously announced government production goal of 12,000,000 bales for the 1941 crop. To achieve the cut, he offers cotton growers $25,000,000 worth of cotton goods free if they will reduce the acreage.

Under the plan, cotton growers would receive stamps which would be redeemable at any retail store for cotton goods. Stamps would be given at the rate of 10 cents for each pound of cotton which farmers normally would have produced on the unplanted portion of their acreage allotment.

For example, a farmer with a 10-acre allotment, would receive $25 worth of stamps if he planted only nine acres, assuming that his normal yield was 250 pounds per acre. Voluntary reductions will not affect allotments under the 1942 program.

By this method Wickard hoped to prevent further increases of surpluses under the government loan plan and also to increase employment in cotton mills, while allowing cotton farmers to plant more garden and feed crops.

The National Billiard Tournament went ahead without Willie Hoppe, the first time since he won the championship in 1910. In a preliminary play with Jake Schaeffer, he had appeared in the regulation dinner clothes for two days while his temperature was above 101. When Schaeffer learned about this he withdrew the challenge and the game came to an end.

FLU MOVES EAST:
Nation Warned

The wave of influenza which began on the West coast during fall swept eastward and by mid-January registered 100,000 victims east of the Mississippi.

In Boston 20,000 children were absent from school. There were 32,000 cases listed in Texas and 45,000 in Memphis. Schools were closed in the Carolinas and Tennessee. Five thousand were ill in St. Louis. In the first two weeks of last year, there were but 9,500 cases in the whole nation.

Most encouraging was that the type of influenza is a mild one, not the fatal type that swept over the nation like a plague in 1917. This year few deaths have been recorded.

Nevertheless, national health service authorities advised people to avoid crowds, to get plenty of rest and eat sparingly of wholesome foods. Extra precautions were being taken in army camps.

Neverthless, national health service authorities advised people to avoid crowds, to get plenty of rest and eat sparingly of wholesome foods. Extra precautions were being taken in army camps.

MISCELLANY:

Lieut.-Gen. Lord Baden-Powell became famous in Africa in another war. Greatly outnumbered by Boers, he stood them off by sheer bluff and for 217 days stalled an attack. When he returned home to England in 1910, after a life-time on the Dark Continent, he was a national hero. He founded the Boy Scouts, dressed them in short pants, like those worn by the British colonial armies. Last year his health failed and he returned to Africa, where his dreams have always been. He died there at the age of 84, while other British soldiers, also dressed in the short pants, were again making British history in Africa.

Dolores Frances, aged nine, has had her share of tough luck. She contracted infantile paralysis when she was 18 months old. But she had one piece of luck she will always remember. She was chosen as the most typical child aided by the Infantile Paralysis Foundation at Warm Springs. Along with the title went a visit to the White House as the guest of Mrs. Roosevelt.

George Herman ("Babe") Ruth was sued for $5,000 after an automobile accident on a New Jersey highway.

Ancient Egypt in Role of Modern War

'War' in Snow Here and War in Sand Over There

The picture at the left looks like the real thing, winter warfare as it is probably being waged in the mountains of Greece, but it was made at Lake Placid, N. Y., and the troops are of the U. S. army engaged in winter maneuvers. To the right a British soldier posted as a lookout somewhere in western Egypt, looks as though he is buried in snow. The white sand of the desert and his white overalls form an effective camouflage.

London Took This But Fights On

The very core of London, the "ancient city," presents this woeful aspect as famous old buildings and modern structures gape to the sky from which German raiders rained down thousands of fire bombs. Crumbling walls, flame weakened timbers, and twisted steel attest to the fury of the raid. This photograph was made from the dome of St. Paul's cathedral.

Sein' Double in the Navy

The navy will be seeing double from now on. Two sets of identical twins, whose names are quite similar, are shown taking the oath as they enlist in New York city. They are, left to right, Charles B. Pierpont and William Charles Pierpont, 19, of Woodstock, N. Y., and Charles Francis Heil and Francis Charles Heil, 17, of Newburgh, N. Y.

Better Bomb?

Russell Hart, inventor, demonstrates in Los Angeles the effectiveness of his new type bomb, which may excel any device now used against submarines. The new bomb, Hart said, has one-third the weight of depth bombs now used, and equal power. It costs less, too.

NEW YORK.—Just how far Dr. Arnulfo Arias, new president of Panama, will co-operate with the U. S. A. in defending the Canal Zone has been a topic of considerable argument in the last several weeks, some of it out in the open. Several correspondents have flocked to the president with charges of Fascist leanings and have quoted him as saying that any grants for naval bases would not of necessity be limited to the United States. Not necessarily as a riposte to these thrusts, he now pledges co-operation with his northern neighbor, but makes certain qualifications. He proposes to abandon no sovereignty and demands "understanding and unselfishness from the United States." Which seems fair enough at this distance.

President Arias, son of a wealthy cattle-raiser, attended Hartwick college, Oneonta, N. Y., took a bachelor of science degree at the University of Chicago, and a medical degree at Harvard. He began practice as a surgeon, but was diverted to politics in 1931, being in the diplomatic service at Paris and Rome. At the age of 39, he is the youngest chief executive in Latin-America.

One cause of much pulling and hauling over the president's political leanings was the new constitution which he promulgated within 17 days of his election last fall. It withdrew citizenship from about 90,000 non-Spanish speaking Panamanians, many from the West Indies, and left them without a country. It extended the powers of the state in the expropriation of property; and the president, in decreeing its adoption, said it would provide "state socialism consonant with new social movements." This take-off, with many later references to a "disciplined people" stirred, possibly irresponsible, talk of foreign derivation of the new constitution.

Good-looking, handsomely tailored, a facile orator, Dr. Arias was elected by the largest majority ever given a Panamanian president. Washington has shown no official concern over the liberal and left charges of doubtful allegiance.

JOHN P. FREY, president of the metal trades department of the A. F. of L., announces the "no strike" and full co-operation policy of his organization in the national defense effort. Mr. Frey, one of the most eminent of the elder statesmen of the labor movement, is, like Ernest Bevin of England, a staunch conservative who has cracked down on the left-wingers and has singled out radicals, rather than employers as the most dangerous foes of labor.

When the C. I. O. was established he raked John L. Lewis as "a tool of Moscow" and never ceased firing until Mr. Lewis' withdrawal. It is understood that his animus is considerably less toward Philip Murray, Mr. Lewis' successor, and the more optimistic among labor critics and onlookers see hope of peace, under the unifying stress of the defense call. Mr. Frey has great influence in the A. F. of L. and his metal trade workers, nearly a million of them, are in a key spot.

White-haired, baldish, clerical in appearance, facile in speech and a ready writer and controversialist, Mr. Frey is a veteran jouster in many wordy tournaments in which he has expounded the old-line Sam Gompers gospel of labor paddling its own canoe and not getting caught in any errant political or intellectual drifts.

Gompers repeatedly warned labor to fight shy of governmental entanglements, and Mr. Frey has carried on from where he left off. This drive has brought him into some violent collisions with the New Deal labor program. He has vigorously assailed the Labor Relations board and the wages and hours act.

Mr. Frey has been known as a "labor educator" for many years. Among the half-dozen books and scores of labor tracts and pamphlets that he has written, there is only one that deviates from orthodox conservative opinion, "Bankers' Domination," written in 1933 and charging the depression to the bankers. He is 70 years old. He was editor of the Molders' Journal from 1903 to 1927. He has lectured on trade unionism at the University of Chicago, and was president of the Ohio State Federation of Labor from 1924 to 1928.

Brazil Speeds Construction of New Warships

Fleet Greatly Strengthened By Eleven New Vessels In Recent Months.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

RIO DE JANEIRO.—Launching the eleventh warship within a few months, Brazil leads the parade of South American nations now rapidly "arming for defense" of the Western Hemisphere. The destroyer "Mariz e Barros" was launched in the Marine Arsenal shipyards on "Isle of Snakes" at Rio de Janeiro amid wild enthusiasm of cheering Brazilians, Americans and masses of spectators.

President Getulio Vargas personally officiated at the ceremonies, then laid the keels of four other war vessels to be rushed to completion in Brazil's rearmament program to build 50 warships as rapidly as possible.

"Sister ship" of the mighty destroyer, Marcilio Dias, launched last July, the Mariz e Barros is of the harbors and sites for naval bases which are being already strengthened against attack by warring Europe. And while the U. S. rushes construction of the chain of naval and oil bases to bridge the long ocean gap between the two Americas, Brazil's president is extending this "arm of steel" down the long coastline of South America.

Joint use of these naval bases to form a continuous All-American fortification against attack, is part of the Pan-American defense plans. U. S. "borrowed" naval and air bases in British Guiana, for example, are very close to those of northern Brazil, while Argentina's shorter coastline to the south is also being fortified. With the ABC nations of South America, Argentina, Brazil and Chile, all re-arming at high speed, the security of the Western hemisphere is assured.

President Vargas, speaking at the launching of the Mariz e Barros, made a strong plea for "continental solidarity, and warned Brazilians that the moment called for preparedness in all phases of life, in order to cope with what the future might bring for the warring nations and for the Americas. "We understand that the present moment is pregnant with great apprehensions and uncertainties. The security and sovereignty of the Americas demand strict solidarity."

Expand Merchant Fleet.

Expansion of Brazil's merchant marine is also under way, as part of the defense program. While on his trip to the Amazon region, President Vargas visited the shipyards of Belem, where 27 ships are under construction and repair, including many new vessels. Old-fashioned wood-burning river boats long known on the Amazon river, are being rapidly replaced by the newer fuel-burning steamers to speed up transportation of supplies, trade and arms and fighting forces, in case of war.

Brazil has increased her army to 300,000 men, backed by a Brazilian armament industry which is fast being augmented by factories and industrial plants. Brazil's first airplane motor factory is now under construction, and two airplane factories already working at high speed are rushing completion on 100 war planes ordered by President Vargas for immediate defense. Brazil's first parachute factory opened this year. At present Brazil has two battle-ships, two flotilla leaders, four submarines, five destroyers, eight mine-layers, two mine-sweepers, six torpedo boats, and about 20 auxiliary ships. Air forces include about 215 planes, to which 100 more are being added as rapidly as possible.

Extensive war maneuvers in Brazil demonstrated the increased efficiency of all branches of her fighting forces. A sham battle in the Parahyba valley gave Brazil's armies, navy and air fleets a chance to "defend" southern Brazil from revolt or attack from the South, where large German populations are concentrated, as well as many Italians.

GETULIO VARGAS
President of Brazil

Class A type. Patterned after the U. S. destroyer Mahan, it is the most perfect in construction and striking force ever built in Brazil. With the trawler Almirante Guilhem, and the eight mine-layers recently built, the Mariz e Barros is the eleventh warship to be launched by Brazil in recent months. All are planned to assist the U. S. Atlantic fleet in protecting the long coastline of South America to make the Western hemisphere safe for the democracies.

The new destroyer has a displacement of 1,500 tons and a speed of 35 1/2 knots delivered by its 45,000 horsepower engines. It is armed with five five-inch guns, four double anti-aircraft machine guns and 12 torpedo tubes in three groups of four each. The ship is larger than the other vessels recently launched by more than a hundred tons, and has an extra cannon in her armament.

Material From Brazil.

Ninety per cent of all materials used in the destroyer came originally from Brazil. It was built with the cooperation of U. S. experts and technicians.

Brazil's tremendous importance is stressed in U. S. and Pan-American plans for the defense of the Western hemisphere. The proximity of her long coastline to enemy bases in West Africa makes Brazil the most vulnerable of all American nations. The country has many excellent Recent visit of the military chiefs-tains of Brazil and other Latin countries to the U. S. comprised an important step toward the unity of all American nations in defense of the Western hemisphere. During the tour the U. S. gave visiting officers a preview of the military displays and spectacular war maneuvers, for the primary purpose of giving them a clear picture of the tremendous program for defense now under way.

Stress Air Defense.

Importance of air defense is also stressed in Brazil, following the plan of Pan-American defense. Brazil is watching closely developments of an "all plastic" plane, now under staff experimental tests in the U. S., having in mind that future planes in Brazil may be made—at least in part—from coffee plastics, which are among the strongest and best plastics known. The plants for making the coffee plastic powder will be opened very soon. U. S. machinery is already being installed, ready for rapid development of the "cafe-lite" industry, which may finally solve Brazil's defense needs also.

U. S.-built bombers are now being delivered by "mass flight" to Brazil, two groups of six planes each having arrived in Rio recently. The balance of 24 big bombing planes will be delivered as fast as completed in California airplane factories.

Possibility of a great U. S.-Brazilian dirigible line to be built by Goodyear, is also under discussion, and it is planned to establish the line of dirigibles between Miami and Rio, thus greatly strengthening continental air power. At the same time, the Condor, German sponsored air transport company, will delay its installation of a transatlantic service, as Brazil feels "the time is not opportune" for such an air service to be established.

Making a strong plea for continental solidarity, President Vargas said recently: "We all feel that, if it should be necessary, the American peoples—as during their struggles for independence—will unite their soldiers and their arms in the defense of their own sovereignty and of continental integrity."

U. S. Army Creates Real 'Boom Town'

FORT BRAGG, N. C.—In his sweetest dream probably no secretary of any Chamber of Commerce, however ardent a booster he might be, has visualized a 1,200 per cent increase in the population of his town during a single year. Yet that is what is being achieved here.

Although this post long has been the largest military reservation in the country (insofar as area is concerned), there were only a few more than 5,000 soldiers here last June. Next June, according to the army schedule, there will be 67,000 troops stationed at the post. But even that is not the whole story of the "boom" which has this section of the North Carolina sandhills busier than ever before.

Fort Bragg for years has been a sort of military suburb of the town of Fayetteville—population approximately 20,000. That was still true six months ago. But now the suburb has more than 22,000 troops plus approximately 24,000 workmen. Not only is the tail wagging the dog but it's growing and wagging faster every day.

"It's a madhouse," is the favorite description of Fort Bragg today. There are 2,478 buildings just completed or under construction (no official Bragg figure one day can be counted on by the thousands. The 24,000 workmen—to be exact, 23,546 one day last week—live in tourist camps and every available room for miles around. What is an undisturbed stretch of pinewoods one day will have a road through it the next. A week later a hundred or more buildings—each housing between 60 and 70 men—will be half finished.

Undoubtedly, it is a madhouse. But probably it is as efficient a madhouse as ever operated. The contractors and the army builders themselves are well ahead of schedule on their 2,478 new building program. The military police keep abreast of each day's developments to the point they can help old timers—stationed here for years—to find their way through the new roads and streets. And over in Fayetteville the soldiers on leave grin cheerfully as they stand in line waiting for a seat in a cafe—just as they stand in line for "chow" here on the post.

CHRIST'S CONCERN FOR THE LOST

LESSON TEXT—Luke 15:1-10.
GOLDEN TEXT—The Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.—Luke 19:10.

Lost! What fear and disquietude grips our hearts when we hear that word! A little boy strays away into the forest, and the whole countryside gives up its work to go and seek him. An airship fails to reach its destination, and hundreds of ships go to seek after it, while an entire nation waits in suspense. A ship is lost at sea, and the whole world grieves.

But listen! It is only when applied to the spiritual life that the word "lost" finds its real depth of meaning. To be "without God in the world" (Eph. 2:12) and without hope—that is to really be lost. Yet parents who would not rest a moment while their child was physically lost go on without concern over his spiritual condition.

Our Lord had no such unconcern. He was deeply moved over the lost condition of men; He came "to seek and to save that which was lost." The two parables of our lesson teach us three truths.

I. Lost and Lamented (vv. 1-4, 8).
The publicans and sinners recognized their need of a Saviour and He, knowing their lost condition, received them, much to the disgust of the Pharisees and scribes who felt no need to be saved. They have their descendants in our churches today.

The good shepherd cannot rest while one of the sheep is lost. Though "there were ninety and nine that safely lay in the shelter of the fold," he sought the lost one. His grief-stricken heart compelled him to go out into the night to find him.

One wonders how we who profess to follow Christ, the Good Shepherd, can be so complacent about the lost. What if we do have the ninety and nine in church—where is the lost one? Even if we do have a large Sunday School class—where are the boys and girls who are lost? Do our hearts grieve over them? If so, we will go and seek them. We who would quickly join the woman in seeking for her coin—will we join our Saviour in seeking the lost?

II. Sought by Sacrifice (vv. 4, 8).
The woman laid aside her usual duties and the pleasures of life to seek her coin. The shepherd left the warmth, the comfort, and the rest which he had earned to go out into the wilderness to seek his sheep.

"But none of the ransomed ever knew
How deep were the waters crossed;
Nor how dark was the night that
The Lord passed through
Ere He found His sheep that was lost."

Soul-winning calls for sacrifice. If the love of Christ constrains us, we will do it gladly, but if the self-seeking, comfort-loving spirit of this age controls our lives, we will always find some excuse (not a reason, but an excuse).

III. Restored With Rejoicing (vv. 5-7, 9, 10).
The lost coin back in the owner's hand brought joy to her and her neighbors. The shepherd calls in friends and neighbors to rejoice over the restored sheep. How intensely human that is, and how altogether appropriate.

The great truth, however, is found in verses 7 and 10, where we learn that the repentance of one sinner sets even the bells of heaven ringing as the angels of God rejoice.

How long is it, my Christian friend, since you caused such joy by permitting yourself to be used of God in winning a soul? Yes, I know that it is God who seeks, but He uses human beings as His messengers, as His seekers. That is our first business after we ourselves have been saved.

Our lesson will not be complete unless we consider the rest of the chapter—the parable of the prodigal son. In its main points it is like the other two parables, but there is this vital difference—the shepherd sought his sheep, the woman searched for her coin—the father did not seek the son; the son sought the father.

Some prodigal, far from the house of his heavenly Father, may read these lines and say, "I wish someone would seek me out and bring me to God." But, my friend, you need not wait for anyone. Do as the prodigal did—"arise and go" to God. He is waiting for you; His love has never faltered; He wants you to come now. Make His heart rejoice, and set the choirs of heaven singing, by coming to Him by faith—just now.

As Ye Go, Preach
And as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand. Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils; freely ye have received, freely give.—Matthew X, 7-8

'A Noble Animal'

A Hindu student was asked to write an essay on the horse. He said:

"Horse is wild animal of four feet. He has longh mouth and he suppose himself to be obedient to men. Its food is generally grass and grains. He is also useful to take on his back a man or lady, as well as some cargo. Also he is useful to drive the carriages.

"He has power to run as fast as he could. He has got no sleep at night and always standing awoken. Its appearance is very long. Also there are horses of short size. They do the same as the others are generally doing. Probably the Arabian horses are always bigger."

Traffic Courts Need More Dignity, According to Judge

Adoption of the elaborate regalia and the pomp and dignity of English law in our traffic courts would materially decrease America's huge auto death toll by impressing violators with the importance of the traffic laws and the seriousness of their violation, suggests Judge Harry H. Porter of the Municipal court of Evanston, Ill., in an article in a recent issue of Northwestern university's Journal of Criminal Law and Criminology.

"I have always maintained that the proper time to teach a defendant respect for the traffic laws is the first time he appears in court," states this jurist. "If he is duly impressed with the majesty of the law at this time you have gone a long way to cut him from the ranks of the repeaters. The dignity of the court should have a psychological effect on the offender calculated to accomplish fully as much as the actual passing of sentence."

Tawas City, Michigan, Jan. 14, 1941 Honorable Board of Supervisors: We, the members of the Judiciary Committee recommend the adoption of the following resolution:

Whereas, The amount of money received by the Iosco County Road Commission from the Gas and Weight tax is insufficient to properly maintain the county's highways, much less take care of improvement work, or snow removal in McNitt roads, and Whereas, snow removal was not contemplated when the township roads were turned over to the counties, and Whereas, because of the 15 mill amendment it is impossible to supplement these funds from property tax and would be unfair even if it were possible, and

Whereas, The consolidation of rural schools has brought about a great demand for the improvement of school bus routes that can not be taken care of with present funds, and

Whereas, The demands of the public are becoming very strong for roads that are passable a great portion of the year, therefore, be it resolved that We, the members of the Iosco County Board of Supervisors, do hereby request the Legislature to provide an increase in funds equal to the present McNitt Funds for county road work.

We further recommend that one copy of the above resolution be mailed to each of the following: Senator Ben Carpenter and Representative Alexander (Sandy) McKay. We further recommend that the committee representing this Board at the annual meeting of the State Association of Supervisors, be instructed to present the above resolution to the rules committee of said association, to be presented at the next session of the State Legislature. SALUTE to Telephone Pioneers

The badge which telephone men and women with 21 years of service may wear.

THERE always have been pioneers in the Bell System, and there always will be. Not only among veteran employees but throughout the organization there is a pioneering spirit that pushes steadily on to new frontiers of efficient telephone service. Today, the nation's defense calls for unusual foresight and pioneering. Telephone needs created by our increasing military establishments and new defense plants must be met. The traditions and experience of the Telephone Pioneers are valuable influences in the training of fresh forces to insure a continuance of good telephone service.

Inventor of Linotype
The linotype was the invention of a watchmaker, not a typesetter. Until he was employed to help produce a printing machine, about 1875, Ottmar Mergenthaler, it appears, had given no thought to compositors' or printers' problems. It was after the abandonment of the writing machine that he developed the linotype.

"You're looking at Quality when you see the name 'John Deere.'"

QUALITY in TRACTOR PERFORMANCE means SIMPLICITY . . . DEPENDABILITY . . . LONG LIFE

OWNERS with continuous heavy loads, in every field and crop condition—in all sorts of weather—need a strong, simple John Deere Tractor—one they can depend on all the time. Uninterrupted service, long life, adjustability, operating economy, and quality construction are combined in John Deere General Purpose Tractors.

John Deere quality begins with raw materials. Every shipment received at the factory meets exacting specifications. Laboratories are continually testing to determine the best material for all tractor parts.

Skilled workmen, using modern precision equipment, test, inspect, and examine the parts—in many cases, holding variations to one ten-thousandths of an inch. 18,000 gauges check the parts. On the tractors, quality safeguards—oil-wash air cleaner, fuel filter, oil filter, crankcase ventilation, and positive lubrication—protect these quality wearing parts from dust and dirt.

Because of quality materials, equipment, and inspections and two-cylinder simplicity, a John Deere Tractor will give you more for your money, for a longer time, at lower cost.

Accenting the Width Of a Narrow Room

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS
ON A Thursday afternoon the south end of a certain dining room was as shown here in the upper sketch. The following Monday it appeared as shown below. Cupboards had been added to display china and give storage space, yet the room actually seemed wider and more spacious than before. The transformation was made by the handy man with no tools but a hammer, saw and screw driver plus the aid of his willing helper with needle, thread and paint brush. The new curtain treatment, shown in the sketch, made the window seem wider and the strong horizontal lines of the cupboards also helped to create an illusion of width. The cupboards were eight inches deep and made of one-inch lumber with doors of plywood for the lower part.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears' Books 1 and 3 are full of other practical ideas for making and hanging curtains. Each book has 22 pages of pictures showing you how to modernize and beautify your home. Send order to:

Watch Your Kidneys! Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, grumbling up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Hidden Ways

By FREDERIC F. VAN DE WATER

SYNOPSIS

David Mallory, in search of newspaper work in New York, is forced to accept a job as switch-board operator in a swank apartment house, managed by officious Timothy Higgins. There David meets Miss Agatha Paget, a crippled old lady, and her charming niece, Allegra. One day, talking with Higgins in the lobby, David is alarmed by a piercing scream. David finds the scream came from the Ferriter apartment, not far from the Pagets'. The Ferriters include Lyon and Everett, and their sister, Ione. Everett, a genealogist, is helping Agatha Paget write a book about her blue-blooded ancestors. Inside the apartment they find a black-bearded man—dead. No weapon can be found. The police arrive. Higgins, who actively dislikes David, informs him that he is fired. David is called to the Paget apartment. Agatha Paget offers him a job helping write her family history—which will unearth a few family skeletons. He accepts the offer. Meanwhile, police suspect Lyon Ferriter of the murder. Jerry Cochrane of the Press offers David a job helping solve the murder. David accepts. He is to keep on working for Miss Paget. Later David meets Grosvenor Paget, Allegra's brother. Then, that night, David sees Grosvenor prowling through the Ferriter apartment. David confronts Grosvenor with the story. He is told to mind his own business. Then David goes to Higgins' basement flat to retrieve his luggage. In the darkness he brushes against an unknown person, and in attempting to capture him, falls over his own suitcase.

The cab's brakes squealed. Cochrane thrust open its door.
"The Artists and Writers," he said, "and just in time to save one very precious life."
He led me down a crooked hall to an iron door with a wicket and rang the bell.

"A newspaper hangout," he explained. "It masqueraded as a restaurant during prohibition. Now it poses as a speakeasy. Newspaper men are romantic."
"That's because," I told him, "they meet so many interesting people."

"Gene," Cochrane bade the face that appeared at the wicket, "two hot Scotchies, quick, and I'll close the door myself."
Cochrane was sipping his second drink and talking in a low voice. Blackbeard's body lay in the morgue, still unidentified. The Ferriters had been easier to trail. Lyon and his sister had been in Alaska where he had run a combined saloon and store on the Tanana River.

"A year ago," Cochrane went on, "it seems Ione and Lyon and a newcomer, a guy named Horstman, went prospecting, and were out all winter. They found gold, but Horstman got lost in a blizzard and his body never was recovered. Lyon sold his claim and came to New York. He's comfortably fixed. His sister doesn't do anything, either. And right now, she doesn't look as if it agreed with her."
He made a design of wet rings on the table with the bottom of his glass and asked, still watching them, "Do you know anything of a tie-up between the Paget boy and Ione?"
"Why?" I stalled and my voice must have been sharp, for he grinned.
"You and I," said Cochrane, "have the same sort of dirty mind. The idea may lead nowhere, but the lad comes into an inheritance in a few days now—three million or thereabouts, which is no small sum to shoot at, even in inflated currency. Ione."

He broke off. A man came, walking stiffly, from the barroom. He said, "Hi, Jerry," to Cochrane, started to pass on and then stopped, staring at me. It was Duke of the Sphere. I found myself disliking him again.
"Hello, Larry," Cochrane said and his face was guileless. "Have a drink?"
"Thanks," Duke answered. "I've had mine."
He had. He swayed as he spoke and kept on looking at me. We watched each other like hostile dogs. Cochrane said quietly:
"This is David Mallory. He—"
"We've met before," I broke in.
Duke sat down with a long sigh. Drink had turned him pale and sweating. I knew he was trouble-hunting and felt my own temper rise to meet his. He asked carefully, for his tongue was thick:
"Private conspiracy, or can I horn in?"
Cochrane grinned.
"I knew Dave in Omaha," he said so smoothly that the lie sounded like truth. "I've been trying to pump him. Help yourself."
"Thanks," Duke replied and looked at me briefly. "Turned in your copy, Jerry?"
"Still trying to find something to write about."
Duke mopped his glistening face. "You had no trouble yesterday. Why don't you let your stool loose on young Paget's affair with Ione?"
Cochrane glanced at me and I held fast to myself. He said easily, "Just one of Shannon's 'theories.' There's nothing in it."
"Isn't there?" Duke asked. "The reason this thing is locked up so tight is because the Pagets are in it up to their necks. The Pagets are people in this town. They've got the immunity of cash and position. If we could tear the lid off this thing, we'd find a Grove-Ione tie-up and probably Allegra mixed up in it."
I got up.
"I hope," Duke said, fumbling with his words, "that I'm not offending you."
I said to Cochrane:

"I don't care for your friend's manners, or his mind or his smell. Unless he cares to argue it, I'll be on my way."
My voice must have been loud for men at other tables looked at me, and Gene, the waiter, came hurrying across the room. Breath went from Duke with a hiss. He lurched and tried to rise but Cochrane threw himself sidewise and held him down.
"Easy, Larry," he soothed, "you're drunk," and to me, "Make it fast."
I obeyed. He overtook me at the Broadway corner.
"Young Lochinvar!" he said, panting.
"I don't like that guy," I told him sulkily.
He grinned.
"So I gathered. It was a fool play to bring you there. We better meet in your room hereafter, accomplish."

He left me at the subway station. I walked on uptown and wished that I had thrown his job after him. And then I was sorry that I had not told Cochrane all I had learned of Grosvenor. I knew that I could not do that either. Loyalties pulled me two ways.
I stood aside on the stair to let my landlady descend. She stopped and peered down severely.
"If anyone calls when I'm away, Mrs. Shaw," I told her, "you can let him in my room."
"Him?" said Mrs. Shaw and sniffed. "I've no objection to 'hims,' people than probable perpetrators of a murder."

Her mind was straight and merciless as a bayonet thrust. I stammered:
"You think then that—that—"
"Never mind boggling," Miss Agatha ordered. "I think that, anywhere but in detective fiction, the persons nearest to a crime are those most likely to have been involved. That need not prevent my asking them to lunch. You forget that a spectator of life must have her vicarious thrills."
"I never said a word," I told her. "With a face like yours," she replied, "you didn't have to. Of course I suspect the Ferriters. So do you."
She rolled her chair to the desk side and jumped upon her project. For a half-hour we talked. Or rather, I listened while she elaborated her purpose to me and outlined the scope and set the tone for the first chapter. At last, she paused and grinned.
"Any questions?"
I shook my head.
"Let me do a few pages and see whether I've caught your idea."
"Excellent," Miss Agatha said with a jerk of her head. "Everett would have spent the next half-hour in qualms and objections."
"You may, when you see my copy," I told her.
She chuckled again as she rolled toward the door.
"What ho!" he said in response to my greeting and waved a plump hand.

I thought of Allegra, standing provocatively beside him. I thought of Duke's slander and bent again to my work. Everett had a softness that shook instead of hardened under stress but, even in his agitation, he had not forgotten his cologne. I don't like cologne. With the reek of it in my nose, I found him standing beside me. He smiled and picked up the two pages I had completed.
"Do you mind?" he asked and read them without waiting. The points of the waxed mustache twitched and color came to his pudgy cheeks. It isn't pleasant to have another recast your own work. I understood his irritation. He dropped the sheets on the desk and dusted his hands together before he lit a cigarette.
"Of course," he said with a gesture of resignation, "if that's the sort of thing she wants—"
"So what?" I asked, but his faintly popped eyes slid away from mine. He laid his cigarette on an ash tray and shrugged.
"No offense, my dear chap. I mean—well, isn't it a bit ghoulish and horrible, this—er, exhumation of all the family skeletons? I mean—it's really not my sort of work."
He stood quite still a minute before he said, in a voice that tried hard to be careless:
"Anything new?"
"Don't you read the papers," I asked, "or is journalism too—ghoulish and horrible?"
He didn't resent that but answered, quite humbly:
"Of course. I just meant, have you—has anyone, I mean—found out anything else?"
I shouldn't have deviled him further, but he asked for it. I shrugged and put a fresh sheet of paper in the typewriter.
"I'm a rewrite man," I told him.
"Not a detective."
I heard breath go through his nose. He mopped his face with a plaid-bordered silk handkerchief. The smell of cologne drove away my pity.
"But," he faltered, "you do know something, eh?"
"Plenty," I answered.
"What?" he asked as though the word hurt him.
"You're nervous enough already."
He made a desperate gesture with both hands as though trying to push something away.
"Nervous! Why shouldn't I be nervous? I've been humiliated by a lot of foul police. Asses that have no respect for the commonest decency. We've all been hounded by them, because they're too ignorant ever to find out who did that dreadful thing."
Something clicked inside me and I looked at him hard. It might be only the indignation of the innocent that rode him. It might be something more. I couldn't picture Everett Ferriter as a murderer, but I had been fooled too often in the last two days to trust my own senses. So I said:
"Don't underestimate the cops. They are unrefined, but the Homicide Bureau in this town ranks pretty high. I've been a newspaper man long enough to know that when a detective seems dumbest he's probably being smartest. I'll bet you, even money, that they clear up this case in a week."
I knew I had hit him. He gagged a little and gave a sick smile.
"I hope you're right," he told me. "It can't be a minute too soon for me—for all of us."
He left so quickly and silently that I heard the front door shut before I knew he was gone.
I sat and scowled at the wall while I tried to pull that jittery figure into a pose of guilt. Then I remembered his alibi. It had been the nature of this alibi, and Allegra's part in it, that had made me vindictive. I thrust my mind away from current crime and into the annals of Miss Agatha's forebears (TO BE CONTINUED)

"You may, when you see my copy," I told her.

Mr. Mallory, but you simply cannot receive well—ladies here."
She glared at me with the sour air of morality that fat women so often wear.
"Good God," I answered, "what put that into your mind?"
"I'm sure," she told me, "more suspicious than most, Mr. Mallory, but a lady called to see you an hour ago."
"A lady?" I asked with what breath I had. "Did she have blue eyes and blond hair?"
Mrs. Shaw might have looked so at Brigham Young.
"This," said she, "was a dark lady. Anxious to see you she was, I'm sure. But she would leave no message or name."
I watched her go on down the stairs. At the landing, she flung back:
"Very good-looking—if you like that type."

CHAPTER VIII

It was long before I got to sleep. There were too many things in the room with me. The visit of the woman who had roused Mrs. Shaw's morality joined the procession of puzzles that marched endlessly round my bed. It made no sense. Neither did my conclusion that the caller must have been seeking some other David Mallory. Neither did anything else.
When slumber caught me at last, I overslept and again reached the Paget apartment breathless and just on time. Annie led me to the workroom. The sanity of winter sunlight, streaming in through the window, the stacked papers on the desk, the typewriter, the very couch on which Grosvenor had sat glowering the evening before, all were solid, normal things that tangled further my suspicions. I looked through the window. Beyond the casement across the air shaft, I had seen the boy at his future mission. As I watched, a dim figure drew up the shade. The Ferriters had come home. I turned and faced Miss Agatha.
"Good morning, David," she said briskly. "You and I are among the few punctual people in this world. Mr. Ferriter hasn't arrived?"
"I haven't seen him," I replied. "Perhaps he is next door. The apartment—"
She bit through an invisible thread and nodded.
"Yes. They have come back. I've invited them all to lunch. Perhaps my precious genealogist thinks he is not to report till then."
She peered at me and pursued:
"You needn't look shocked, David. I've broken bread during a long life with many more disreputable

MID-WINTER MENUS

(See Recipes Below)

You may have a mental filing system for your menus, or you may jot down your meal ideas and slip them into a recipe box. Either way, the chances are that mid-winter finds you in the market for some fresh and workable ideas for what to feed the family.

First and foremost, you will want your winter menus to be warming and heartening. The calorie content may be a little higher because more energy is needed to supply heat and because the cold stimulates us to more activity. Vitamin suppliers need to be carefully watched. With your garden adrift with snow, not so many fresh vegetables and fruits will find their way to your table without a special effort on your part.
Even if fresh peas, green beans and vine-ripened tomatoes are out of reach, almost any market boasts whole bins filled with apples, sweet potatoes, cabbage and carrots—all of them potent sources of vitamins. Plenty of grapefruit, oranges and tomato juice will help to replace the fresh tomatoes.
But now for the menus! Two are dinners—one built around a fragrant, red-brown dish of Hungarian goulash served with plenty of hot buttered noodles; the other, sausages baked under a covering of Yorkshire pudding. The third meal is a hot soup luncheon.

- Hungarian Goulash
- Buttered Noodles
- Salad Bowl (spinach, carrot, raw cauliflower)
- Brazil Nut Cherry Pie
- Coffee
- Milk
- Yorkshire Sausages
- Canned Green Beans with Mustard Butter Sauce
- Whole Carrots
- Red Cabbage Salad

- 1 cup grated carrot
- 4 tablespoons brown sugar
- 3 tablespoons vinegar
- 2 tablespoons French dressing (prepared)
- Buy a small, solid young head of red cabbage, one with thin, tender leaves. Remove core, and shred very fine. Place shredded cabbage in ice water for 30 minutes to crisp it. Combine cabbage, diced apple and grated carrot. Mix brown sugar, vinegar and French dressing and pour over salad. Toss lightly, until dressing is thoroughly mixed with salad.

- Hungarian Goulash (Serves 4 to 5)
- 1½ pounds beef round (cubed)

Remove garlic and bay leaf, and add potatoes cut in ½-inch cubes. Cook 30 minutes, then remove ¼ cup of broth from pan and cool. Combine with melted butter, flour, and paprika and blend into a smooth paste. Add to goulash, stirring constantly; cook until thick, about 5 minutes. Add sieved tomato and cook 10 more minutes.

- Brazil Nut Cherry Pie. (Makes 1 9-inch pie)
- 2½ cups sour, red cherries (canned)
- 1 cup cherry juice
- 3 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon butter
- ½ cup sliced Brazil nuts
- Drain cherries, and set aside the juice. Blend cornstarch and sugar in a saucepan; add cherry juice. Place over heat and cook, stirring constantly until thickened, about 3 minutes. Remove from the heat, add drained cherries, butter and Brazil nuts. Pour the filling into a 9-inch pie plate lined with pastry. Moisten the edge of the pie with cold water; arrange lattice of pastry strips across pie. Press down rim with fork. Bake in hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) 15 minutes, then in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for 30 minutes.
- Honey Spice Cake.
- 3 cups sifted cake flour
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon soda
- 1½ teaspoons cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon cloves
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- ¾ cup butter or other shortening
- ½ cup sugar
- ¾ cup strained honey
- 2 egg yolks, well beaten
- ½ cup chopped nut meats
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ¾ cup water
- 2 egg whites (stiffly beaten)
- Sift cake flour once, add baking powder, salt, soda, and spices and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add honey gradually. Beat after each addition. Add egg yolks, nuts, and vanilla; beat well. Add flour, alternately with water, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in a paper-lined greased loaf pan (9 by 13 by 2 inches) in moderate oven (350 degrees) for 50 minutes.

- Apricot Sweet Potatoes. (Serves 6)
- 6 medium-sized sweet potatoes
- ½ pound dried apricots
- ¾ cup water
- ¾ cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Peel sweet potatoes and cook in boiling salted water (1 teaspoon per quart) until tender, about 35 minutes. Mash with a potato masher. Cover apricots with water and let soak for 30 minutes. Then simmer until tender, about 25 minutes. Mash the fruit to a pulp and add sugar and salt. Whip apricot pulp with sweet potatoes until very well blended. Serve very hot. Apricot sweet potatoes are especially good with ham and broccoli.

Explosive Dusts

Among the various household dusts that have been known to explode when coming in contact with a flame or a spark are those of face powder, chocolate, dried milk, sugar and flour, says Collier's.
Not so long ago in England a woman threw a bag of old flour down the incinerator shaft of an apartment house and the resultant explosion killed her and three other tenants, and wrecked the building.

PREPARE COWS IN DRY PERIOD

Special Care Assures Better Production.

By GEORGE E. TAYLOR

(Extension Dairyman, Rutgers University.)

Cows that are properly fitted and managed during the dry period may produce as much as 25 per cent more milk and butterfat during the following lactation period.

During the lactation period, especially during the first six months, the animal's body reserve of minerals, protein and fat becomes depleted. And the cow does not have an opportunity to build up this reserve again until the animal is given a six to eight weeks' rest period prior to the following calving.

Neglect on the part of the owner regarding proper feed, care and management of dry cows may cost the owner the value of one ton of milk. The loss in dollars and cents may be computed by using the market value of one ton of milk under any known market condition.

The amount of hay and grain which should be fed during the dry period depends upon the condition of the cow at the time she is turned dry. Animals that are in fair condition may be properly fitted on a liberal allowance of quality roughage, including pasture, hay and silage. Other cows may require some grain in addition to all the roughage they will eat. A daily grain allowance of six pounds is usually ample. Thus not more than 250 pounds to 350 pounds of grain in addition to one-quarter ton of hay, is needed to put a cow in proper condition.

Figure the cost of 250 to 350 pounds of grain and one-quarter ton of hay and compare it with the value of one ton of milk. The figure proves that a rest period of six to eight weeks along with proper feed and care during the dry period, really pays dividends.

Seed Treatment Proves

Good Crop Insurance

Seed treatment is one of the most important phases of crop insurance. Not only can the crops be disease-free, but in most cases freedom from disease results in increased yield. Therefore, the use of high quality treated seed is a big step forward toward success.

Now is the time to make preparation for treating wheat, oats, and barley for smut. There are several materials on the market that, if properly used, will give good results. The first important step is to learn exactly the method recommended. If instructions as to the proper method of treatment are not followed, it is a waste of time and material.

Copper carbonate and mercurial dusts are suitable for the control of seed-borne diseases in a wide range of seeds, because they control a large number of seed-borne diseases besides smut. For this reason they can be used with crops of wheat, oats, barley, beans, and others.

Formaldehyde is still popular with many farmers but this material must be properly applied to give good results. The placing of a teaspoonful of formaldehyde in the top of a sack of grain and then turning the sack upside down for treatment is ineffectual. Formaldehyde when exposed to the air vaporizes as a gas; this gas is heavier than air. The above procedure prevents the formaldehyde from coming in contact with the seed.

Week-Old Calves

Can Be Dehorned

Horns, at one time, were a necessary part of a cow's equipment. They were necessary for protection, but under present modern methods of management, cows do not need horns. Horns may be taken off when the calf is a week old without any loss and not too much discomfort to the calf. Do the job of dehorning as soon as the horn button can be found; clip the hair around this tiny bump and place a ring of vaseline on the lower side to prevent any drainage into the eye itself. Roughen the spot gently where the horn is starting with a corn cob or by scraping it. Moisten a stick of caustic potash and rub it on until the skin is a distinct pink. Caution: Use gloves on your hands and let no liquid from the caustic stick get into your eyes or the calf's eyes—it's dangerous.

Repair Now

The "stitch in time" adage applies forcibly to machinery care, according to Ray W. Carpenter of the University of Maryland. He says that an hour at this time of year, when the machinery is in storage, spent in oiling all polished surfaces to prevent rust, repainting bared wood parts, and checking, ordering, and replacing badly worn or broken parts will avoid delays, aggravation, and hours of valuable time when the spring season rush is on.

Bloomin' Parrot Was Passing Its Lesson On

Bert had spent hours trying to teach his parrot to say "Hello, Uncle," ready for the visit of his wealthy relative.

To no purpose. Uncle came—and went—and the parrot was dumb.

Bert seized the bird by the throat. "Say 'Hello, Uncle,' or I'll wring your bloomin' neck," he roared.

And when silence continued he twisted the bird's neck and threw it into the fowl pen.

Queer squawks drew him to the fowl pen next morning. On the ground were three dead hens. The parrot had a fourth by the neck, shaking him and shouting: "Say, 'Hello, Uncle,' or I'll wring your bloomin' neck."

sible for the appearance of the noted musicians and entertainers "The Ford Mountaineers."

During the forenoon Thursday, the group visited the John A. Campbell Hereford ranch in Reno township where they saw a fine group of 72 Hereford cows and 20 feeder steers. A second stop was made at the James P. Mielock farm in Alabaster township where 66 splendid Hereford cows recently purchased through the Kansas City stock yards, were seen. This group of cows are beginning to freshen and according to the cattle authorities are dropping a fine group of well marked, thick bodied calves that should be a credit to any feed lot this coming fall.

Several noted speakers and cattlemen from all corners of Michigan added value to the meeting. "Services the Purebred Breeder May Render" was the topic discussed by Harold Harwood, of Ionia, president of the Michigan Purebred Hereford Breeders association. Robert Mackie, of Metamora, president of the Michigan Cattle Feeders association, told "How Michigan's Commercial Feeders May Co-operate by the Purchase of Cattle in Michigan."

O. B. Price, agricultural representative of the New York Central Railway Co., outlined a tour through western states which is being planned by the Michigan Farmer and the railway company.

The farm program as developed in this area was discussed by E. L. Bentin, extension specialist in animal husbandry at Michigan State college, and W. L. Finley, local county agent, introduced county agents in charge of farm work in nine other counties. These included: Earl McCarthy, St. Clair county; Harry Wakefield, Isabella county; Charles Blivin, Alpena; Paul Gibson, Clare; Jesse Huggert, Gladwin; R. B. Coulter, Ogemaw; Casper Blumer, Alcona and Osceola; and C. M. Meredith, Arenac. Other groups were present from Ionia, Genesee and Lenawee counties.

During the program Mielock, secretary of the association, explained the aims of the group and urged members to produce feeder calves to be sold in the southern Michigan corn belt counties. He also introduced the board of directors, including: Isoco county, Prescott and Waldo I. Curry, both of Tawas City; Alcona county, Dallas Ford, of Glennie, and Wallas Clemens, of Harrisville; Arenac county, Frank Lentz, of Standish; Ogemaw county, W. A. Crandall and George Diebold, both of West Branch; and Oscoda county, C. T. Bartow, of Mio, and E. J. Handrich, of Fairview.

BASKET BALL

NOTES

T. C. H. S. LOSES FIRST GAME

On the evening of January 21, the Tawas City High basketball team traveled to Whittemore where in many minutes of thrilling minutes of play they collected two victories.

The second team started the evening's battles. They suffered a defeat of 16 to 4.

The lassies of Tawas City High with splendid team work, co-ordination and timely passes, rang up the first victory of the season with a score of 20 to 14.

After the girls had won such a well fought victory the boys' first team had only one alternative "Do or Die." They almost did the latter, but fine team work on the part of the Tawas boys during the last half of the game brought another thrilling victory.

The sinking of two foul shots by Capt. H. Ross coupled with the assistance of a toss through our basket by a Whittemore player, plus good team work by the rest of the fellows gave the first team the second victory of the evening 14 to 16. In the dressing room, Coach Forsten said "you still need plenty of practice."
