Of interest to their many friends is the approaching marriage of Miss Janet D. Keiser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Keiser, of this city, and Byron Holland, son of Mrs. Alice Holland, of Detroit. The wedding will take place on April 26. A shower was held in the bride-elects honor Friday evening at the Kelly home by the Misses Muriel Kelly and Jessie King, with 22 friends present. A large par-sol made of yellow and white crepe paper with similiar smaller parsols were suspended in the large bay window with the gifts underneath. Favcrs were yellow baskets with white parsols. The evening was spent in playing whoopee. Several other par-ties are being planned. Mr. and Mrs. John Gillespie, of Whitemore spent Sunday in the site and finance, rather than a selfinterested participant. Although he did gather a few more millions, as a speculator, as he has frankly said, it was in the same mood of detachment with which he has appraised the social scene, and it is in this mood that he has been the adviser of every President since Taft.

Each day in the news brings some new demand that the tall, pleasant, snowy-haired Mr. Baruch, surely our elder statesman of such bottleneck urgency as that of today, be given a free hand, in the chartroom, or perhaps the wheel-house, to steer our emergency defense course. Some of these nominations come from the established school of Baruch men, such as Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, Herbert Bayard Swope and George N. Peek; others from those who remember Mr. Baruch's achievements as head of the War Industries board, and his alert, speculator's awareness of what has been going on in Europe for the last few years.

As to this business of being a speculator, Mt. Baruch says, "I make no apologies. I am a speculator. The word comes from the Latin word 'speculari,' meaning to observe. I observe.

Like all seasoned speculators, he never pounds his desk or runs a temperature or inclines to high bloodpressure, although he is 70. He keeps fit by his own system of calisthenics, pragmatically arrived at, like his financial operations.

As head of the War Industries board, he tooled the 20-mule team of labor, industry, raw-materials and government deftly through many a narrow defile and hazardous passage, and a large section of his public would like to see him again in the driver's seat.

Naturally a skeptic as to the grand solution, like most speculators, he has stood at few, if any false dawns. He was a prophet of doomo for the Dawes plan, from the first. In 1927, he predicted that it would be scrapped within two years. "A demand might be morally reasonable as a business proposi-

NAZIS:

Spread Sub Zone

A spreading of the submarineactive zone to include Iceland and a considerable portion of the North Atlantic westward toward the shores of the United States was another sensational announcement that caused watchers on the "when shall we get in" front anxious moments.

They started making maps of the 42-degree line of longitude, and showed how close it is to the American neutrality zone area. It did not touch yet, but was coming perilously close.

It meant that if American naval vessels took up the convoying of aidto-Britain ships to the end of the neutrality zone, they would be within a very few miles (as oceans are reckoned) of the lines where they might expect action from German submarines.

One news analyst, after a tour of western plane factories, reported that heavy bombers, at the rate of four or five a day, were being flown across the continent and thence to Britain under the lease-lend bill, and that still more than these were being delivered to the army, but that it was thought a good portion of these were going overseas as well. There was little danger to this type of shipment except from adverse weather and mechanical fail-ures over the ocean. But Americans were concerned over what was going to happen to American shipping and to foreign bottoms carrying aid to Britain. The British, losing heavily at sea, were issuing a request to the Norwegian government to turn over to it about 100 vessels now plying American and Latin-American waters, so that they could be added to the transatlantic trade.

His early definition of his attitude as that of a diagnostician might have denoted a sympathetic identification with his distinguished father, Dr. Simon Baruch of South Carolina, a widely known surgeon and health authority who took a leading part in developing the Saratoga spa. Born in South Carolina, Bernard M. Baruch took an earned degree at the College of the City of New York in 1889 and subsequently six honorary degrees from various other colleges.

For the last few years he has been calmly, but earnestly prescribing preparedness. Returning from Eu-rope in 1937, he said, "Europe is hopeless." In January, 1939, he offered to supply from his own funds $3,300,000 which the army lacked for certain equipment. An adjustment of an appropriation bill made this unnecessary. He has been friendly to the New Deal, but has chided and warned it on many occasions.

As the war fever rose steadily in Jugoslavia and as the people cheered the new regime that had its army lined up in defiance of the Axis, the ever-stormy Balkans took the spot-light of World war II. No matter what the outcome Jugoslavia had at least tendered a serious diversion to the timetable of Adolf Hitler. De-feating Jugoslavia would be no simple task, many military experts predicted. It was assumed that the great northern plains of the nation would have to be abandoned as they would offer easy going for the swiftly moving mechanized Nazi legions. Real battle would come, it seemed, in the mountain terrain of central and southern sections of the country, Jugoslavia has a comparatively good army, and is considered the best of the small Balkan nations. It numbers 1,200,000 men. The U.S. reaction to the new government in the tiny Balkan nation was immediately favorable. The state department assured Jugoslavia that it would assist that nation in resisting any aggression.

The resumption of work at the Harvill plant, bottleneck of Pacific plane building, provided no respite for Uncle Sam's headaches in production spasms, for Washington frankly was expectant of strikes in 12 more vital plants.

Chief public indignation over the strikes was directed at C. I. O. organizations, with Congressman Dies claiming that the labor troubles could be traced directly to "Reds." This also was the public focus after William Green, head of the A. F. of L. organizations, disclaimed any anti-defense attempts, and proved it by sending his men through C. I. O. picket lines in one instance. WILLKIE:

Keeps Hand In

Wendell Willkie, avowedly keeping his eye on the next presidential race, was keeping himself before the public by making a personal goodwill tour of Canada.

He was greeted with wild enthusiasm in Toronto and in Montreal, his first two stops.

In the first he appealed for all American ships, naval and mer-chant, for Britain that can be spared, and "that means giving until it hurts." This remark was cheered to the echo. In Montreal, the next day, he was showered with ticker tape and given a triumphal entry into the city

In Montreal his theme was similar. He said: 'Give Britain ships until the airplanes start to roll and give Britain superiority in the air—then, good-by Hitler, you're on the way out." He said further:

"This is a test as to whether the democratic enterprise system can outproduce the totalitarian enslaved method of production. Well, I put it up to you, now. I put it up to

DEFENSE: 42 Billions

With the passage of the $7,000, 000,000 bill implementing the British aid bill by a vote of 61 to 9, total moneys allotted in one way or another for national defense or British and democratic aid in Europe reached the staggering total of 42 billions of dollars.

Most of the floor debate (seven hours) on the seven billion bill was devoted to explanations by various senators of why they had voted against British aid and now were switching to vote for the bill giving the bill the funds President Roosevelt asked.

OPM, the Office of Production Management, furnished the figures. The direct government outlays, including the seven billion, reached the total of $39,100,000,000. In addition came British orders of more than three billions, bringing the grand total to past the forty-two billion mark.

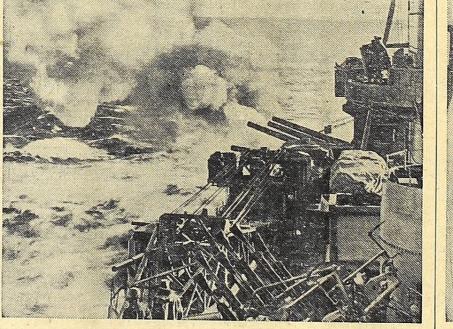

Of these huge sums not more than 31/2 billion actually have been spent. But an enormous part of the whole has been contracted for, and factories the length and the breadth of the land were being built or were "tooling up" to carry out the contracts.

In fact, of the 42 billions, OPM says that nearly 30 billions already have been appropriated or contracted, and that nine billions represents the budget allowance for 1942.

Almost coincidental with recent news that America would send food to unoccupied France for distribution under the watchful eyes of the American Red Cross, who were supposed to see that none of it got into the hands (or mouths) of Germans, came word that this distribution already had begun, and that the Red Cross workers were satisfied that all statement, "our diplomacy never of it was going to French men, women and children.

By L. L. STEVENSON

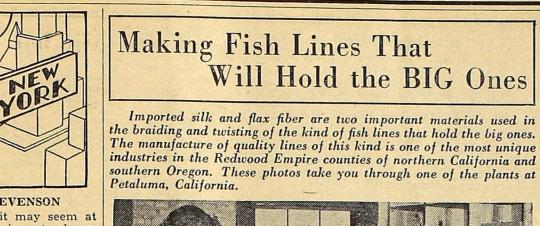

No matter how it may seem at times, New York is not always hardhearted. The case of Leonard Weisberg is proof. You undoubtedly have read how Weisberg, a taxicab driver, went to the assistance of Edward Maher, a policeman who was battling for his life with Fifth avenue bandits. Maher was killed and Weisberg suffered such a serious neck wound that it was not known for hours whether he would live or die. The widow of the heroic Maher received a death benefit from the police department. The police department officially commended the heroic Weisberg. The department could go no farther. The city of New York makes no provision for heroes killed or wounded while assisting its officers of the law. So it seemed as if Weisberg would have to pay hospital, medical and other bills himself besides losing his earnings while convalescing.

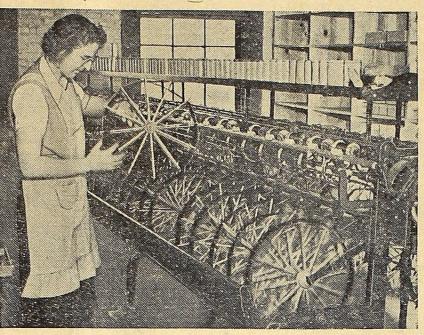

Not that Weisberg was destitute. The taxi job was only a stop gap. Having completed his education, he took the first honest work he could find. The earnings of a New York taxi driver by no means bring him into the higher brackets when it comes to paying income taxes. But Weisberg, who is 39 years old, and his wife, through various economies and much self-denial, had succeeded in saving some money. They were planning that when enough had been laid by, Weisberg would go into business for himself. But confronted with unexpected and heavy expenses, it looked very much as if such a dream would never come true, and that Weisberg, on his recovery, would have to keep right on driving a cab for someone else.

When this became known, New York's heart-of-stone reputation went blooey. Almost immediately three different movements to raise funds for Weisberg got under way. Money sufficient to meet hospital and other expenses rolled in. That wasn't all. A motorcar dealer, on vacation down in Florida, wired his firm to turn over to Weisberg, as soon as he left the hospital, one of the newest and best cabs. Only one more thing remained to be done before Weisberg would be his own boss. To operate a taxi in New York, a police medallion is neces-The quota having been sary. reached, no more were being issued. . . .

Among the many who admired Weisberg's heroism was 60-year-old James McKenna, a veteran taxi driver. McKenna started driving away back in the days of Stanford White and John Jacob Astor, his stand having been near the old Union club and the old Waldorf. Stricken

CHRIST PROMISES POWER

LESSON TEXT—Acts 1:1-12. GOLDEN TEXT—But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me, both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the aryth Acts 1/8 of the earth .- Acts 1:8.

Important things bear repetition. Luke, who wrote both the Gospel and the Acts, presents the ascension of Christ, His promise of power, and His command to witness, at the conclusion of the Gospel and at the beginning of the Acts. "The one is all suffused with evening light; the other is radiant with the promise of a new day. The one is the record of a tender farewell; in the other, the sense of parting has almost been absorbed in the forward look to the new phase of relationship which is to begin."-(Alexander Maclaren).

I. The Proof of Christ's Resurrection (vv. 1-3).

Before telling of "the day in which he was taken up," Luke makes it hanced if it is set off with a valance around the bed. They knew clear that the ascended Christ, who had made the promise of power to His disciples, was the very one who died for our sins, but who could not be holden of death or the grave. He arose, of which there are indeed 'many infallible proofs" (v. 3). At Easter time we recall the fact that leading historians and experts in the field of evidence have declared that the resurrection is the best established fact in all history.

The fact that for forty days after His resurrection Christ was among His disciples, speaking to them of the things of the kingdom of God, is significant and conclusive proof in itself.

As the indispensable dynamic of their service as His witnesses, He now assures them that they will receive power.

The disciples had an important spected and wound question to ask (v. 6) regarding the restoration of the kingdom. The reply of Jesus turned their attention with illness, he knew that his days behind the wheel were over. Since he had been an owner-driver, he had a medallion. It was a valuable possession. But, without hesitation, he turned it over to Weisberg.

* * *

As this is being written, Weisberg is convalescing in his Brooklyn home. So far as I can learn, he is the only taxi driver ever given an official police escort, with screaming sirens, when he left a hospital. he was discharged from When French hospital where he was taken after he was shot, a big delegation of police was on hand to do him honor and see that he got home all right. So was that shiny new taxi which he will pilot about the streets when he gets well. He rode home in that with a uniformed chauffeur at the wheel. If his eyes strayed to a silver plaque inside the cab, he couldn't be blamed. The plaque is a record of his heroic deed. * * *

Just a few lines more. Because of a holdup, Weisberg has been set up in business. Max Spaas, who happened to be on the spot with a fast lens camera, has received several hundred dollars for pictures he snapped. And the two Esposito brothers, who were the bandits, are awaiting trial for murder.

Jimmy Van Heusen, tunesmith, instead of headlight neckties, wears eye-blinding handkerchiefs . Meyer Davis is allergic to feathers and won't allow his vocalists or members of his family to wear them as ornaments . . . Benny Leonard, ex-champ, never wears a brown suit because he thinks it's bad luck . . And here I am at THE END. (Bell Syndicate-WNU Service.)

Driver Unable to Read Signs if Wife Sleeps SPARTANBURG, S. C .-- A fellow charged with driving the wrong way on the highway told the magistrate, "I don't know it." The jurist exploded. "Can't you read?" he demanded. "There are dozens of one-way signs."

"Well, I can't read, your honor. My wife was with me and she can read, but she was asleep."

followers are to lack interest in the Kingdom which Christ will one day establish, nor that they should fail to be interested in prophecy and its fulfillment. It does clearly mean that we must leave times, seasons and dates to the Lord and be diligently about the business of witnessing for Him.

How greatly the little band of disciples needed power in that day to face a hostile, unbelieving world, sunken in bondage to Satan, and bring to it the convicting and converting message of the gospel. They received that power, and in spite of every hindrance the gospel through the centuries has made its way to the hearts of men, and won its victories for God.

We need that power today. The Holy Spirit is here to give it to us, as we yield our lives to God. There are many Spirit-empowered men and women in the Church today, but relatively their number is small. Who is ready to yield to His control now, and thus swell the host of faithful and effective witnesses?

III. The Pledge of Christ's Return (vv. 9-12).

We mentioned last week that sermons are seldom preached on the ascension of Christ, although it has an important place in the Bible. Even more glaring and disturbing is the failure of preachers and teachers to declare the truth of the second coming of Christ. The promise of it is written large on the pages of the Bible, but some men seem to ignore it.

How plain and understandable is the promise in this passage. "This Jesus"—not some other—"shall so come"; that is, personally, literally, and visibly. There is no ground here for spiritualizing, to say, for example that He comes in death, or that this was but a metaphorical expression.

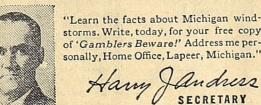

The text is very plain and emphatic. In agreement, we find, among others, such texts as Luke 21: John 14:3; Philippians 3:20, 21; I Thessalonians 1:7-10; I Thessalonians 4:16; II Timothy 4:8; Hebrews 9:28; Revelation 1:7. Unless we reject God's Word, we must receive this truth, and should receive it with joy, for it is the blessed hope of the Church (Titus 2:13). He is coming again!

Smelt go up the streams to spawn in late March and April. With waders and hand-nets, the crowd waits for the night run of fish to begin.

Each spring local girls are chosen to reign as "Queens" of the various Smelt Festivals which take place during April.

Tons of smelt are frozen in huge slabs and stored for use as feed on mink and fox farms in Michigan and neighboring states.

BIG CHIGAN INDUSTRY

SMELT are running! Around Escanaba and Menominee, Beulah, Boyne City and other smelt centers, that means busy days and busy nights. Thousands of people join in the activity, netting tons of fish every night.

The annual catch of smelt in Michigan is over 9,000,000 pounds and growing every year. In the Escanaba area alone, it's a $50,000 industry.

Like all fish, smelt are highly perishable, and handling the catch requires lightning communication between packer, shipper and city market. In locating the places where smelt are in demand, speeding up shipments, routing fast orders, modern telephone service helps get the succulent little fish from river to frying-pan in the shortest possible time.

"Intelligent people!" Cochrane grinned. "But you missed something this morning. The Sphere had a picture of Ione Ferriter. I suspect that our competitor, Mr. Duke. bribed some cop to steal it from the flat across the hall. Anyway-he tied a knot in my tail, or thought he did. Now I'm ready to tie two in his."

He paused to enjoy the drama of suspense. The doorbell thwarted him Shannon strode into the room. His companion lingered in the hall, satchel in hand. The Captain glared at Cochrane, who beamed in reply, and whatever question he was about to ask concerning the reporter's presence was blown away by Miss Agatha's voice.

"I sent for you, Captain," she said precisely, "because we have found the knife that stabbed Mr. Ferriter's visitor."

At my side I heard Jerry grunt. He uttered no other sound while Shannon rapped out questions and Miss Agatha replied as calmly as though she were giving census information. The Captain strode to the table and gingerly undid the handkerchief.

"Yes," he grunted, almost as though he regretted it, "it looks like

He held it by forefingers pressed to point and butt and turned it this way and that.

He wheeled and glared at me. "You didn't wipe it, or mess it up, did you?" he barked.

Miss Agatha's voice cut:

"Mr. Mallory and I found it together as I told you. If we had wished to suppress evidence, we should have suppressed it entirely." The bullying note left Shannon's voice as she looked at him.

"Right you are, Miss Paget," he granted and turned to his assistant. "We'll be going over it, Al. Miss Paget, is there a bathroom handy? We'll make a bit of a mess here.' Miss Agatha rang for Annie. They followed the maid down the hall. Cochrane looked reproachfully at me and more sympathetically at aunt and niece, who sat still and stiff in their anxiety. The silence grew unbearable. Jerry said at last: "And I thought I had hold of some-

Rigid and intent she watched the doorway. Miss Agatha asked:

"And it has no importance now?"

Cochrane had forgotten his pretense of indifference. He frowned and shrugged.

"It may, or it may not," he grumbled, "according to what Shannon finds on that knife. Dave has told you of the mysterious siren who called on him?"

Color came to it and her eyes woke up and moved quickly from speaker to speaker. Sight of her helped me stand up to Shannon. From the second when I lifted my voice, I knew the least faltering would emphasize the desperate fantasy I put forward. At first I feigned confidence, linking fact to fact in ar-bitrary union. Then, as I spoke, I converted myself. It seemed as though speech washed away mystery to bare at least coherent outlines.

Cochrane sat beside me. His innocent face was drowsy but his nimble mind kept pace with mine, endorsing my contentions, supplying pointed comment when Shannon balked. Miss Agatha said little, but her rare words cut. We outraged the policeman's sense of propriety and stripped that from him. We pried his mind loose from official procedure. He withstood us stubbornly, tramping to and fro, rumpling his hair, now and then shaking his head like a fly-pestered horse. He took that afternoon the sweating he and his associates had

LET'S SERVE POTATOES

Guests are coming for dinner. You have your meat and vegetables, and you have planned your dessert. You have potatoes on hand. But have you decided how you're going to prepare them?

I'll wager you haven't. It's an oftrepeated story in kitchens from Washington to Florida, Maine to California. Because the POTATO is such an old standby, you perhaps wait 'til the last minute to decide its preparation. Then it's too late to try "something different."

Don't treat the potato as though it were the Cinderella of the vegeta-

"Because," said Cochrane, resuming his sleepy air, "she has recognized the picture of Ione Ferriter in the Sphere as Dave's would-be visitor. There seems to be no question about the identification. Mrs. Shaw is positive. Why should Lyon F'erriter's beloved sister want to see you, Dave?"

Allegra looked at me and turned away. I did not answer at once. Her glance and the derisive emphasis laid by Cochrane on "beloved" had thrust an idea into my mind. It was so fantastic that I tried to evict it but it stayed while I said: "You can search me."

"That's been done already," Cochran crooned, "by the late Mr. Ferriter who was looking for that very knife. Dave, could it have been a woman in the basement that night?"

His question chimed in so neatly with the idea I had branded as idiocy that I gaped at him a moment. "I don't know," I answered at last.

"No?" Cochrane asked. "I just wondered, Dave. Don't let it agitate you, laddie.'

But the question had rocked me. The wonder it had started did not subside and I heard, with odd indifference, the clump of feet as Shannon and his aid came along the hall. Miss Agatha's head went up. I could see by Allegra's stiff face how tightly she held herself and even Cochrane forgot to look tired.

The thrust of Shannon's jaw, the little narrowed eyes that darted at each of us were ominous. He carried the knife no longer gingerly, even a little scornfully. No one dared to pry into his silence, until Cochrane drawled:

"All right. I'll ask it. What did you find, Captain?"

said Shannon in a "Nothing," bleak voice. I heard Allegra let go words.

"And now," he said softly, "when you announce you've found the murder weapon, but no clue to how it got in the basement, or who left it there, you're through-whipped, outwitted, scuttled. Mr. Ferriter, who hasn't been sure where that knife has been, wins. He'll sleep easier from now on."

"All right," Shannon snarled in angry helplessness; "that's like most of the newspaper suggestions. It's a help, isn't it? What would you do, wise boy?"

Cochrane shook his head. I heard Miss Agatha say: "I know what I'd do. We looked at her. Her face was hard and her voice, that spoke what I had feared to utter, was firm: "If Lyon Ferriter has a weakness, it is his love for his sister. I think he can be reached by attacking her.

Shannon had not the sort of brain that is fired by abstract theory.

There was scorn in his grunt. "Would you then? And how?" If the old lady's suggestion had roiled his mind, it had clarified mine. Her speech had been a key, unlocking the door of my mind behind which that wild, originally fantastic idea had waited. I said, before Miss Agatha could speak again: "Arrest Ione Ferriter."

I had uttered her thought. I saw her start and look at me in wonder. "Arrest her?" Shannon jeered.

'For what?" His crooked smile was mocking. Allegra's eyes widened. Cochrane looked at me as though he were dozing. I stood their combined regard.

"For murder. For the murder of Blackbeard. There's enough to make it stick-for a while." "For a while," the policeman echoed in derision.

Miss Agatha said quickly, sitting straight and flushed in her wheel chair:

"Captain Shannon, Lyon Ferriter killed that man. I know it. Mr. Mallory knows it. You suspected it at first. But you could not reach him. His story, his alibi, had no apparent weakness. Yet he has a weakness. It is his love for his sister." Shannon stared as though he wondered whether she had lost her mind. I prodded him further:

back our play. His story will be with a mixture of finely chopped that he didn't want to get a lady into sweet spanish onions and ground trouble.

I did not wait for Shannon's objection but opened the door, almost upsetting Al who guarded it. I found pends on size of potatoes. Hoyt at the switchboard. I told him, as quickly as I could, what I wanted and why. He gasped and boggled and at last consented, when I reminded him of his earlier offer of aid. Then he whispered something that sent me hot-footing it up the stair again.

I saw when I re-entered the workroom that Shannon wavered. "Personally, Captain Shannon," was unconventional. Why der shouldn't the arrest be equally so? I know he did it. You think he did. If he didn't, Ione or Everett did and the two survivors are accessories after and, perhaps, before the fact. Are you always so-wedded to legal formality, Captain?" Cochrane leaned forward. "Listen," he wheedled, "what can you lose? Say it doesn't click. So what? Are you worse off? It's a crazy idea. Sure. But so is this whole set-up. We're trying to give you the chance to tear this case wide open-and solo at that. Do you want to be just a captain all your life?"

Allegra was watching me. She alone in the room seemed to feel the tidings I bore. Shannon spoke with the muffled roar of the hardpressed.

"All right. Suppose I go goofy and throw in with you? How are you gonna work it? Tell me that! Call up Lyon-at the Babylon-and say, 'Can we bother you to come on down here so we can tell you what we've got on your sister, before we make a collar?' '

In the silence he glared about and breathed loudly through his nose.] said as quietly as I could: "If that's all that's worrying you, Lyon is next door now. He came in a while ago, Hoyt says." "By God!" Shannon said at last in an unwilling voice. I went on: "Eddie will ask him to stop in here, when he starts to

Shannon wavered for the last time. Then he squared his shoulders, inhaled like one entering a cold plunge and called: "Al!" (TO BE CONTINUED)

LYNN SAYS:

Baking potatoes is perhaps the most healthful method of preparing them, because steam escapes from them and results in a mealy product. No valuable minerals are lost, and, if the skin is also eaten with the contents, all benefits of the potato are realized.

If you are not quite ready to serve your potatoes when they are ready to come out of the oven, cover them with a towel so that moisture will be absorbed, and at the same time warmth will be retained.

Sweet potatoes bake in less time than white potatoes.

It is important to retain vitamin C in potatoes, as well as in all vegetables. In order to do this, store them in a cool place; peel just before cooking; cook whole, if possible; have the water boiling rapidly before plunging them in; use a small amount of cooking water; cook only until tender.
