Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hatton received the following letter from Private Herbert Zollweg whose outfit is on field Mr. and Mrs Wm. Hatton spent maneuvers near Mt. Rainier in Wash-

Ft. Lewis, Washington.

We came up from the presidio for our field maneuvers and will be here voy. There were 1260 men and 600 trucks and it took us four days to make the trip. We laid over one day at Vancouver, Washington. I saw a lot of beautiful timber as we came through Oregon. Mt. Hood and Mt. Shasta were very pretty with the snow on them, but in coming over the mountains we darned near froze to death with our overcoats on. It gets colder than heck when you get in the high altitudes. Give me good old level Michigan. We are now camped right near Mt.

Last night we were out on a night problem and we camped in a swamp. Then to make matters worse it rained. You know the grief of an infantrugged individual to keep pace with what they put you through. I can feel the ruggedness showing on me already! You soon learn how to sleep in the rain, and cold, and mud. We marched through mud to the tops of our galoshes last night. If we had to fall down, we didn't mind it.

We are really getting some swell training up here. I can realize now what it means to be well trained. The 30th was a crack outfit in World War No. 1, and I guess they always want it to be that.

The attack on Belgrade may or may not have put the city entirely hors du combat, but the immediate effect was to shut off all communi-cation with the outside world, and that caused the reports of the early phases of the new way to be from phases of the new war to be frag-mentary and conflicting to the utmost degree.

STRIKES: New Turn

Strike news continued sensational but took somewhat a turn for the better, with the Dykstra Mediation board settling the Allis-Chalmers strike and making headway both on the threatened walkout against U.S.

Steel and the big Ford strike at River Rouge. But the news, while somewhat bet ter from the standpoint of the national defense, was still disquieting enough. Most sensational of the stories was the claim that C.I.O. chieftains had been canvassing local unions throughout the United States seeking to find what sentiment, if any, there was for a general strike if the Bridges deportation move should be carried out. The Bridges case was in the hearing stage when this move was uncovered in Washington when Sidney Hillman of OPM was asked by a house committee investigating the national defense program to investi-

QUESTION: A house that we bought last year was freshly painted, but within two months the outside paint blistered, except on porches and other places that did not touch the inside walls. In winter, windows steam so badly that water runs down and has rotted the window casings and spoiled the paper below. Upstairs is not finished, and paint outside of upstairs does not blister. le have hot air heat and a cistern in the basement. What causes the trouble?

Answer: That trouble all comes Answer: That trouble all comes from too much dampness in the air of the house. This may be from over use of the humidifier in your furnace. Another cause may be the burning of natural gas in open burn-ers; every gas burner should be coners; every gas burner should be con-nected to a flue to carry the vapors outdoors. The cistern may also be responsible; it should have a tight cover. You can check the steaming on your windows by applying storm sash and tight weatherstrips. You should also fill the joints between window frames and outside walls with caulking compound. Banging Steam Pines

Banging Steam Pipes.

Question: We are annoyed by a loud banging in the steam pipes to the second floor. This occurs mainly at night when the radiators are cold, and automatic heat goes on. The house is five years old, and the owner says the noise has been present from the first. One plumber tells us that nothing can be done about it. Can you make any suggestions?

Answer: That banging is due to a section of the pipe that is level, or on a bank slant, instead of being slanted toward the boiler. As a re-sult, water collects in it, and interferes with the passage of steam to the radiator. Very often raising the radiator on blocks of wood one-half inch thick, or even more, will end the trouble. Otherwise, the watertrap in the pipe must be located and straightened out.

Basement Finish.

Question: My house has now been built about six months, and condensation that troubled me has now disappeared. In finishing a basement room, what can I use for the floor and walls?

Answer: For the walls, use cement paint of a kind intended for masonry. For the floor, the kind of ive that you name should be exce lent. This will give color, but you will not be able to use rugs or mats on the floor. You should look forward to laying asphalt tiles, or a new kind of linoleum that is proof against rotting when laid on the con-crete floor of a basement.

ing of Belgrade, the cutting of vital railroad lines.

Only the British reports seemed to carry conviction, together with those from Athens. The former predicted a general withdrawal, and the latter told how that withdrawal was being carried out.

But from the start it had been expected by this country that Salonika would be defended, and that the British had 150,000 to 200,000 troops in that general neighborhood, and were prepared to make a serious defense of the port.

Then the British announced that Salonika might fall, and gave rise to the general belief that perhaps the British forces were not so numerous or so strong as at first stated.

Suddenly came the word that the British had only 60,000 to 90,000 troops on the scene, and that they were in the second line of defense, "ready to veer to east or west as the situation demanded."

This was the answer to the dispatches of the first few days, which did not reveal the British in contact with the enemy at any point. They were, in this report, placed in the vicinity of Katerine, which put them somewhat in the center, between two main forces of Greeks.

Closely following this dispatch came a report from Berlin claiming that their troops had entered Salonika, and from Athens itself came the following terse, yet disquieting report:

"The German blitz has split Greek forces in two with a wedge driven down west of Salonika, trapping uncounted thousands of troops defending the line of the Truma river."

Right on the heels of this report, unpleasant to Americans who were hoping that the Nazi attack on northern Greece might be halted, came the word from London "German the sole remaining point of military troops have entered Salonika follow-

The war was not only taking a Nazi turn in Jugoslavia and Greece, combined Fascist-Nazi troops definitely on the forward move again. As in a football game, the British had evidently "lost the ball," and be a drive to a touchdown in Libya. It was odd that the reports of the advances in Libya by the Italo-German forces should have coincided with dispatches saying that Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell and large numbers of "picked troops" had been sent to Greece.

Whether this was true or not could not be learned, but if so, it was an interesting coincidence that the backward movement of the British in Libya tallied in time with the rumor that Wavell was gone to another field

The British, in their forward drive, had gone past Sidi Barrani to Derna, and thence to Bengasi, the Libyan capital. Photos of British troops taking down street signs, putting up their own, and other reports tended to the belief that Italy was knocked out of the war in Africa, and that it was "all over but the shouting.'

Suddenly Berlin reported a minor success on the Libyan front, and then, with equal suddenness Britain began announcing that there would be withdrawals, that Wavell's forces would pick their own line of defense and fall back to that. Came the fall of Bengasi, and then the fall of Derna, with the British still back-pedalling and fighting a rear-guard action all the way. In Eritrea and Ethiopia, however, the British continued their success, making mass attacks on Massaua,

In the meantime there were signs that the mediation efforts in the Ford strike were bearing fruit, when Governor Van Wagoner of Michigan wired President Roosevelt as follows:

"Please do not approve certification of the Ford strike to the Defense Mediation Board before I have talked with you. I am in conference now with Philip Murray and James Dewey (the conciliator)."

This made it look, at least for the moment, as though some settlement of the dispute, which has tied up $155,000,000 in defense material, might be at hand.

SHIP AID:

On Move

The ships-for-Britain end of the aid law was well on the move, with the President formally seeking from congress the right to take possession of the 36 Danish merchantmen now in American waters.

Mr. Roosevelt said his advisers were convinced they had every right to take over the German and Italian ships, regardless of the protests of the two Axis governments.

It was plain from the White House comment that the government proposed to combine the three groups of ships into one fleet, and in time to use the whole fleet in defense transport.

The government will go far, it was believed, to keep this line of transport open and under way until deliveries begin on the 950 new merchant ships now being constructed. In addition, at the same time, the British announced that this country is turning over to them 10 United States coast guard cutters for aid in the war against Nazi subs.

Mice in a Car.

Question: How can mice be kept from gnawing holes in the upholstery of a car stored for the winter in a country garage?

Answer: Scatter quantities of moth balls all over the inside of the car. If the car is of the closed type, and the doors and windows are shut, the odor inside will keep any small animals from entering. If the car is open, it should be covered with canvas, building paper, or in some other way, so that the vapor of the moth balls cannot escape. It may be necessary to replenish the moth balls some time during the winter.

Poison Ivy.

Question: My backyard is in a natural state, with a rocky ledge and trees. Poison ivy is growing there. How can I get rid of it?

Answer: In every locality you can find someone who is immune to ivy poisoning, and who can grub up the plants and get rid of them once and for all. Sprinkling the leaves with a solution of rock salt and water, with a little soap added, will make them shrivel. If this is continued, as new leaves and shoots show the roots will eventually die. Do not let this solution get on the ground, for it will kill all vegetation.

White Cast on Doors.

Question: Can anything be done to restore stained doors that have a whitish cast from being wiped with a wet cloth?

Answer: The whitish misty cast can be removed by wiping with a mixture of 1 tablespoon of cider vinegar in a quart of water; rub this on with a soft cloth in the direction of the grain, and wipe dry. A thin coat of wax well rubbed in will protect the finish.

Hollow Sound.

Question: The eight steps to my stoop are against brick walls, with one side open. When entering or leaving there is a hollow sound. How can I overcome it?

Answer: The space underneath is empty, so that you get the effect of a drum. If the hollow sound is a recent development, it may be hecause the under parts are rotting. You should investigate.

Prevention of Pneumonia by Food and Rest

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON (Released by Western Newspaper Union.) SO STARTLING has been the drop in the death rate in pneumonia due to sulphanilimide and similar drugs that a movie shows two physicians trying TODAY'S to reduce the HEALTH death rate to nothing as they feel COLUMN that there should now be no deaths in pneumonia.

Despite this new and effective drug, the number of cases of pneumonia is not decreasing, in fact it is increasing, because one attack of pneumonia in an individual does not prevent further at-

In one country where there has been stress, strain, overwork and undernutrition for some years, one of the re-Dr. Barton ports from the physicians of that country shows a great increase in the number of cases of pneumonia. It was found that the number of cases increased greatly during the satisfying cream soups. cold months. This was thought to be due to there being less sunshine during the winter months, but further investigation showed that coldness and dampness were equally, if not more, to blame.

Most of us are aware of the chill experienced after being heated by exercise or after having a hot bath. The chilliness or coldness of the air seems to stiffen or tighten the muscles. This is well known to baseball pitchers, who often on a warm day put on a sweater or put their pitching arm in the sleeve of their sweater while their team is at bat.

Blood Chilled.

Cold air striking the warm body means that the blood going back to the lungs is chilled and not able to take on oxygen or throw off wastes as well. This blood is therefore not able to throw off, or prevent, the or-ganisms of pneumonia or other diseases from starting trouble.

Heat is life to the body and its defenses and cold has the opposite effect, particularly in those who are rundown and undernourished.

To avoid pneumonia then, we should eat well, get plenty of sleep, and avoid draughts, dampness and cold when we are heated.

The story of Pentecost, therefore, is the first chapter in the history of the Church as it witnesses for Christ, and it embodies the impressive lesson that in all successful witnessing the power is that of the Spirit and the instrument is the message of the gospel.'

The outpouring of the Spirit on the day of Pentecost was accompanied by signs of great power, and a special enduement which enabled all the strangers in Jerusalem to hear the gospel in their own tongue. "This ability to speak in foreign languages not previously learned was merely a temporary endowment granted for a special purpose. It was one of those miraculous spiritual gifts which marked the age of the apostles. In modern times the claim to possess this power has never been established on credible evidence, nor is the dominance of the Spirit in the life of a believer to be tested by the presence of any special gift" (Charles R. #### City of Caverns

London, in these times, would be fortunate if the city were constructed as Paris is, for the French capital is built largely of stone brought from under the very ground on which it stands. Because of this, there is a readymade underground city about onetenth the size of Paris. One section of this cave city contains the Catacombs, where rest the bones of some six million. Another zone consists of vast layers of gypsum. The Quarry service has cut into this section tunnels which follow accurately the courses of the avenues above. Ordnance maps of this system show springs, galleries, rooms, arches, and reinforcements. Had the government of France decided to defend the city, the people could have occupied this underground fortress and

Today we know that the soup of organs such as the pancreas, liver and stomach, extracted by refined scientific methods, saves the lives of hundreds of thousands yearly by preventing death in diabetes and pernicious anaemia.

Some months ago I recorded the experience of several physicians who had found insulin of great help in building up underweight children. Just how the insulin increased weight was still unknown, but that it increased the appetite was one noticeable result. An editorial in the Journal of the American Medical association suggests that the insulin stimulates the nerve which causes the stomach walls to contract and so set up hunger pains, and increase the amount of stomach and other digestive juices, so that more of the food that is eaten would be absorbed into the blood, thus giving more strength and increasing the weight. The fact also that insulin reduces the amount of sugar in the blood by enabling the body to use more sugar (instead of letting it be thrown out in the urine) also increases the hunger pains in the stomach.

One of the methods of stimulating appetite, particularly in nervous or mental cases, is the use of histamine. That insulin is more effective in these cases is recorded by Dr. P. Horstmann, Finland, who tested out both histamine and insulin in six such cases, one of which had the normal quantity and quality of stomach digestive juice and five did not. In all cases insulin was more effective than histamine.

fore us the recurring day-by-day miracle of the regeneration of in-dividuals (2:47). This was, and is, accomplished through the teaching of the Word (2:42).

III. True Witness Presented (4: 8-12).

The rulers and leaders (especially the skeptical aristocrats of that day -the Sadducees) were angered by the proclamation of the resurrection of the One they had crucified. They also feared that their rich revenues from the temple might be cut off if the people were to follow Christ (4:4), so they took the disciples into custody and brought them before the Sanhedrin.

Humanly speaking, one might have expected these men to stand in fear and awe before that august body, and either become dumb with terror or brazenly defiant. But such is not the operation of the Holy Spirit in a man. They spoke tactfully, but boldly, of the death and resurrection of the only One in whom there is any salvation.

IV. Faithful Though Persecuted (4:13-20).

Not being able to make any real charge against the disciples, the rulers let them go, but only after threatening them and forbidding them to speak any more of Christ. They, like so many religious leaders of today, were quite willing that the disciples should preach, if they would only leave out the name of Christ.

Note the answer in verse 19. There is only one message (v. 12). "' 'Neither is there any other name under heaven, that is given among men, wherein we must be saved'; thus Peter asserts not only that the miracle has been wrought in the name of Jesus Christ, but that he and his judges can have eternal salvation in no other name. His words are at once a rebuke, a challenge, and an invitation. They need to be reviewed and weighed today by certain benevolent but superficial talkers who are asserting that Christianity is only one among many religions, and that it is only necessary for one to be sincere in his own belief. Such teachers must reconcile their statements with those of Peter and John, who were 'filled with the Holy Spirit' when they declared that there is but one name wherein we must be saved."

Under the order, the Company will make refunds or credits of the difference between the intrastate and interstate rates paid by its long distance customers since August 1, 1938, effective date of the order. #### CHAPTER XIX-Continued.

-21-Silently Hoyt looked at me with a smirk of terror. Intent on the up-roar in the foyer, shocked by the disembodied voice we both had heard, he had let the elevator down, without checking it, on the cross-beams that guarded the shaft pit. "What was it?" he babbled. "Ja' hear that?" Then I saw that the car rested unevenly on the beams- as though something were pinned beneath one side and I knew what that last, abruptly stilled outcry had meant.

"He had done trapeze work," I told Miss Agatha. "When the elevator was at the floor above him, it was easy for him to open the shaft door below it and leap to the traveling cables. They're the power cables that are attached to the bottom of the car.'

The old lady sat in her living room, cigarette in hand, highball beside her. She was personification of the quiet that spread after tempest. The useless ambulance that had tarried before the Morello had gone away. Shannon had left, with Cochrane. Allegra had vanished. I hoped that I, too, might depart before her return. Meanwhile, I gulped my drink and supplied, at Miss Aga-tha's insistence, those fragments of the tragedy that were not already hers.

"Apparently, then, with a thrust of his foot he shut the open door and went down unseen to the basement beneath the car, dropping into the elevator pit when the elevator halted at the foyer. Tonight, you see, it didn't stop. He jumped too late, or else he lost count of the floors and was pinned between the pit crossbeams and the car floor."

I drained my glass.

Miss Agatha said:

"So that is why his hands were grimed the night after the murder and why he wore no overcoat?"

"Right," I answered. "The cables are greased, and dirty. Perhaps he threw his overcoat into the furnace. At any rate he wiped off the knife and hid it in the basement, for fear someone would stop him when he went out into the street.

"Pride killed him," the old lady told me. "Let that be a warning to you, David. He had killed in self-defense. A lawyer no better than Tertius Groesbeck could have saved him. Lyon Ferriter had too much sense of drama."

"He'd been on the stage," I pointed out. "That's why he spoke so well, until he got excited, and then lapsed into his native tongue. It was just a veneer he had acquired." "Odd, isn't it," Miss Agatha asked, "what you find when you pry off veneer-odd and terrible, David? I'll do no more prying. The Paget book will never be written. People that throw stones should live in intact glass houses."

She peered at me and my face seemed to disappoint her.

probably call it snobbery." I grinned and rose, explaining that I was to meet Cochrane at the Press office at seven. I fumbled badly over my farewell, for I owed much to the woman who listened to my flounderings and offered me no aid. "And tell," I stumbled, "your niece good-by for me, too."

Her sharp gray eyes dug into me. "I wonder," asked Miss Agatha, "if you think I'm the utter fool that I know you are, David Mallory. You talk as if we power wore to rest talk as if we never were to meet again."

"That," I answered, "is exactly what I do mean." I had faced it for the last half-hour. Quarrels and rasped feelings seemed in the aftermath of tragedy trivial things, but my purpose ran deeper than that. By every measurement one might employ, Allegra was out of my reach and the best tribute I could pay her was to leave her so.

The old lady had leaned forward in her effort to beat down my eyes. "David," she said, "life doesn't begin at fourteen and stay there. What happened to the last person who went in pride out of this apartment should make you think a little. I'm fond of you, which is more than I admit to most people. Don't be a posturing idiot.' "Miss Agatha," I said and it was hard to speak clearly, after the odd tenderness I had heard in her voice, 'I love your niece. That sounds oldfashioned."

"All the important things in the world are old-fashioned," she told me. "And that's why you want to make things as distressing as possible for everyone concerned? Because you love Allegra?"

What I knew was truth seemed trite when spoken under her steady regard. I went on:

"I've got a job. At abrut fifty a week. I can't offer that to a girl who has everything."

"My dear boy," said Mlss Agatha and jerked her head, "matchmaking isn't among my sins. And besides I've never fixed Allegra's worth in dollars. Have you?"

"That's why," I went on fast because my throat was tightening, "I'm saying good-by. Probably this also sounds idiotic to you, but I love her too dearly to ask her to marry me."

"Rhetoric, rhetoric," said Miss Agatha and laid her hands on her chair's wheels. "I hope newspaper work sweats some of it out of you, David. Will you wait a minute?"

She propelled herself through that door which opened into her bedroom. I picked up my hat and coat and turned toward the hall, half minded to go.

Allegra stood there. I thought that, till now, I had not known how fair she was. She was a cool wind blowing through my mind, routing the rubbish of old wretchedness.

Increased Food Demands Face Nation As Lease-Lend Bill Spurs Consumption

By RAYMOND MITCHELL (Released by Western Newspaper Union.

CHICAGO. - What will the Lease-Lend bill and Uncle Sam's own fast moving defense program mean to American agriculture?

With $7,000,000,000 for all-out aid to Britain now added to the pyramiding total of $33,000,-000,000 in congressional appropriations for defense and rearmament, this question is assuming growing importance.

Every farm family in America has a stake in the situation. Food is as much a weapon as planes, tanks and ships. The extent to which it is used is a matter of close concern to everyone on or near a farm.

Three fairly definite answers have already emerged. These are, how-ever, dependent on a big "If"--If Britain is able to stand the battering of all-out Nazi air raids, if she can stave off invasion and survive the deadly attacks on her shipping life-line until American aid can become really effective:

1. America's farm export market-lost since Scandinavia, the Low-Countries and France fell-may be partially restored through the "Feed Britain" provisions of the Lease-Lend bill.

2. The demand for farm products at home will be considerably increased.

3. Price levels will move upward. Food Increasingly Important.

Let's look abroad, first. Under the terms of the Lease-Lend bill, Britain does not need to consider either price or ability to pay in mak-ing food purchases here. Up to now her expenditures have been for munitions only. Food has been imported from the Dominions. The job of feeding Britain is in the hands of the Surplus Marketing administration of the U.S. department of agriculture—the same agency that superintends distribution of food for emergency relief here at home. To provide supplies ordered by Britain it merely has to increase the food orders being constantly issued for #### Overexpansion Dangerous.

How long the defense program's stimulus to industry and agriculture will endure is problematical. This hinges to a good extent on how long the European war continues. But in months to come American farmers will have an opportunity to strengthen their position and fortify themselves for the future. To do this some straight thinking will be required. Of essential importance is that farmers avoid overexpansion and the pitfall of easy profits that may later turn into losses. The first World war taught us some bitter lessons about that. Surpluses that have burdened agriculture ever since can be traced to World war days.

What can farmers do to make agriculture one of the most effective weapons in Democracy's arsenal?

For one thing, they can develop ways and means of making their production more efficient. An important step in this direction is to take stock of their soil fertility. For the country-wide co-operation with the AAA program, fewer acres are being tilled. This means that farmers should employ soil management methods that will produce higher yields from fewer acres. Such a procedure will reduce production costs and improve the quality of the an chief of police in the U.S.A. But Chief Porter disclaims any credit for her unique role.

"I heard you," she told me. "I've been standing here for five minutes.

Miss Agatha did not come back

"I was appointed town marshal after the death of my father, John W. Porter, who was serving his sec-ond term in that office," she explains.

> It all sounds simple, but what Miss Porter fails to say is that all through his administration she was her father's "right hand man," keeping his books and even helping him on the street when the town was crowded with visitors.

When Mr. Porter could no longer carry on his duties, his daughter pinned the badge of authority on her coat lapel, strapped his six-shooter around her waist, and proceeded to do everything from making arrests to handling the $10,000a-year tax collections that "go with" the chief-of-police duties in Parma.

And after his death, the city council of this community of 1,200 persons voted to make her successor to Mr. Porter, and she'll hold the job at least until the next election. Chief Porter, who works with W. B. Morgan, business-man mayor of Parma, and four male council members, is the town's only daytime police officer. She has a night marshal and often appoints a deputy to work with him. And on Saturday nights, she remains on duty until nearly midnight, ready to direct the work of law enforcing. Trouble? "Occasionally," Chief Porter says, "when some outsider comes to town, gets drunk and starts showing off." Asked what her most exciting duty had been, Chief Porter said, with-out much hesitation, "Tracking down the criminal who shot my night marshal, W. T. Wormack, on December 22, 1940." She hopes the time never comes when she has to use her gun, but admits that if that time comes, she'll be ready. It's not at all unusual, say local citizens, to see her "collar" some law violator and march him off to the town's jail. Chief Porter lives with her widowed mother. She was born in Missouri, but attended business college in Michigan. Her straight, raven-black hair, cut man's style and combed in a pom-padour, is Miss Porter's outstanding physical characteristic.

that payrolls represent from 45 to 70 crop. Such a program means ex-per cent of defense expenditures, the ercising far-seeing care in concernfuture level of industrial activity may be gauged.

Thus the consumer buying power generated by the defense program is likely to be felt in the form of a bigger cash income on most American farms this year.

It is natural that the increased demand for food and raw materials should be reflected in a rising trend in wholesale prices. A recent bureau of labor statistical report shows that wholesale commodity prices are swinging upward and are ing the fertility of the soil by practices which not only prevent waste of fertility, but actually help restore it.

Soil Fertility Declines.

America has used up the original fertility of its soil much more rapidly than it has replaced it. Constant croppings, generation after generation, have removed vast quantities of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. We have lagged far behind Europe in soil conservation.

Nations abroad use from 21/2 to 20 times as much commercial plant food per acre as does the United States for fertilizing crop land and plowable pasture.

Based on the average rate of depletion, American farms will lose 29,000,000 tons of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash in 1941 due to the removal of plant foods by growing crops, through livestock grazing and by leaching, according to an esti-mate of the Middlewest Soil Improvement committee.

In the effort to defend and build up the productivity of their soil, farmers of the United States have one advantage they didn't possess 25 years ago during the first World war. Then we faced a fertilizer shortage because we were almost entirely dependent on Germany for potash and on Chile for natural nitrates. Today, thanks to the teamwork of science and American industry, we are producing our own plant foods and we can maintain our independence in this respect for an indefinite period.

If national emergencies grow more acute and American farmers hear the "Be prepared" signal to Chief of Police Maggie Porter, who not get their land ready for any eventuonly handles a policeman's "run of the mill" jobs with ease and effectiveness, but ality, they will know it can be done if they have enlisted under the banwho manages a boys' baseball team and ner of soil improvement.

THE PUBLIC nature of advertising bene-fits everyone it touches. It benefits the public by describing exactly the products that are offered. It benefits employees, because the advertiser must be more fair and just than the employer who has no obligation to the public. These benefits of advertising are quite apart from the obvious benefits which advertising confers-the lower prices, the higher quality, the better service that go with advertised goods and firms.
