Perch King Gets Recognition

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Monroe are the proud parents of a nine pound boy born on Easter Sunday. He has been named Donald Dale.

After a lengthy discussion of Perch Festival plans Friday night by the men present at a joint meeting of Tawas City and East Tawas Chambers of Commerce, Mrs. Byron Brooks arose and said "You men make me tired! Queens! Queens! Queens! Do you think a pretty young thing dressed in formals is typical of fishing? As near as she comes to fishing is to watch her mother bent over the hot stove frying a mess of fish.

"Let's have a Perch King! He will be more typical of the sport. Give him a prize for the best looking catch of perch. Or give mother a prize for the best cooked perch."

The members grudgingly conceded that the general committee should adopt the idea, but were immovable about a queen. "We want a queen!" they shouted. "The prettier, the better."

In the Service

Corporal Irvin Burtzloff is stationed at Fort Sheridan, Illinois. In a letter written to his parents March 9 he gives an interesting description of army camp life. Following is a portion of the letter:

Dear Mother and Dad: Sunday night and two full weeks of active service in. We arrived here Wednesday morning after spending a night on the train. Camp facilities were not yet completed and the place was a sea of mud as soon as the sun grew warm. Some of the sewers and water lines were still being put in and piles of loose earth and lumber were everywhere.

Our barracks had no coal and we were not permitted to drink or use the water until it was okayed by the medical department. We had no over-shoes or woolen underwear.

All in all, our first four days were uncomfortable and inconvenient and very busy. We have things pretty well fixed up now, both inside and outside. We have water, heat and winter clothing. Tomorrow we start our regular routine of drill.

About 150 new buildings—barracks, mess halls, storehouses, garages, recreation halls—have been erected at the south end of the post for the use of our regiment and the 103rd Coast Artillery (Anti-aircraft) Separate Battalion from Kentucky. They are (Turn to No. 2 Back Page)

With May 1 the last day for signing up under the 1941 Agricultural Conservation Program, farmers who wish to participate in the triple A program this year should get in touch with either their community committeemen or the county office, at once, Harry A. Goodale, AAA chairman, stated.

Community Triple A committeemen have been making the annual farm plan canvass during the past few weeks in which they call on all farmers in their community to explain the farm plan. This form must be signed by the farmer in order to become eligible for participating in the program. If, by some chance the farmer has been missed in the canvass by their community committeemen, it will be necessary that the committeemen or the county office be contacted immediately.

Based on present figures, the sign-up will exceed that of a year ago, according to Mary M. Malenfant, secretary. The increase in participation is attributed partly to the Conservation (Turn to No. 3 Back Page)

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON (Associated Newspapers—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK. — Quintilian's line, "He abounds in sweet faults," was meant for James F. Dewey. The quite uniformly successful federal labor conciliator, Share a Failing, Promote Harmony, Dewey's Method seems to have learned that people are more apt to be brought together by pooling their little redeeming virtues than by matching vices.

He doesn't mind his calories, or worry about his waistline. He likes to sleep late. He smokes cigars so strong they make an Erie freight engine smell like an atomizer.

He isn't systematic. Taking over as a conciliator, perhaps addressing a big jittery meeting, he excavates various bulging pockets and discovers he has forgotten his credentials. Then he forgets about all that, opens with a wide nonpartisan smile, delivers his speech and makes them like it.

He dislikes exercise, yet he is a rough-and-ready hooper who will dance on the slightest provocation—until his tongue hangs out.

He wears his hair loosely and casually.

All this and more of the same, sets Mr. Dewey sharply apart from the slick and impeccable conformist who is always putting other people in the doghouse and thereby getting nowhere as a conciliator. Sen. James J. ("Puddler Jim") Davis set him up as a mediator, in the department of labor, after he had done some strikingly effective conciliating in Pennsylvania. He was a school teacher, auditor for a coal company and a telegraph operator. At the old home place at Chester, Pa., he spends a lot of time patching things up and making them work. Amateur tinkering always denotes the true pragmatist at work. Maybe that's what all this strike trouble needs.

AMONG those ready to affirm that a prophet is not without honor save in his own country, Leon M. Henderson, director of price stabilization for the National Defense Commission, may not be included.

Once he was a farm boy in Millville, N. J., and his hometown folks have just honored him with a banquet and other proceedings, establishing him as "No. 1 Citizen" of the village in which he was born 46 years ago. Joined with the citizenry were not a few government officials coming from Washington to approve and acclaim the excellence of Millville's choice.

Here is a village Hamden, "innocent of his country's blood," who didn't stay in a village, one who has been in the thick of things, up to his elbow as some one recently said of him, in all sorts of affairs best known by alphabetical designations, as NRA, WPA, TNEC, SEC, NDAC, etc.

One of the strong men in the national defense picture—he is the only New Dealer on the defense commission of seven members and its only economist—they called him the nation's outstanding crystal gazer when he predicted the business boom of 1936 and its drop later, in 1937. Ironically smiling, Henderson has subscribed to the appellation.

His induction into government service came about in rather a curious way. In 1934, as director of the remedial loan division of the Russell Sage foundation, he began sniping at the NRA, and his shots were so accurately aimed as to arouse, not the anger, but the admiration of Gen. Hugh Johnson who grabbed him as consumer advisor. Very soon thereafter he became director of research and planning, and when a Supreme court broadside sank the NRA he was appointed secretary of the senate committee on manufactures.

There he was when the 1936 national presidential campaign arrived. He was withdrawn and made economist for the Democratic national committee. It is said of him that the source of information enabling Jim Farley to predict so shrewdly the outcome of this election was Leon Henderson.

Then Henderson became economic counselor to the WPA and subsequently held various important offices until the creation of the advisory commission to the National Council on Defense. His hobbies—smoking cigars and early rising.

BALKAN: Catastrophe

Before the Nazis' Balkan campaign had been under way two weeks it was apparent that another major catastrophe for Hitler's enemies was in the making, but how extensive or how catastrophic none was prepared to say.

After eleven days of fighting, Berlin reported that Yugoslavia's army of some 1,200,000 men had capitulated and laid down their fighting equipment which had proved relatively ineffective against the highly mechanized Nazi legions.

London announced bad news too with the report that it had been subjected to the worst air blitz "of all time." German sources say this terrific raid came as a reprisal for British raids on "cultural and non-military" objectives in Berlin.

In the very beginning of the Balkan campaign, the Nazi-Italian forces took the offensive in Northern Africa, and the two battles proceeded almost in unison, the British being driven practically out of Libya by the time that the British sources were ready to admit that Yugoslavia had been defeated.

Reaction of the British people was bitter, not that they were unwilling to receive news of a defeat that had been more or less expected, but because the ministry of information and the intelligence department were accused of having fallen down on the job.

This also was the reaction in Washington, where it was freely said by those in the military know that the British permitted Roosevelt to promise aid to Yugoslavia and Greece when it should have been known that aid to the former was to be only a gesture, and that the Serbs and Slovenes could not hope to stand up to the attack more than a week or two.

Washington sources of high military information frankly said that the British intelligence had fallen down, as it had in the Battle of France, and that the best information in our national capital had been to the effect that the infiltration of Nazi mechanized forces into North Africa had been of the smallest.

These sources said they had been told that this shipping of tanks and men to North Africa had had only one purpose—that of putting pressure on the French colonies, and forcing them to stand firm with the Vichy government.

Whether this was deliberate self-delusion, or an attempt to delude the American and British people was not known, but certainly it was bad information, whether deliberate or not.

For in about two weeks the British had lost everything they had gained in Libya, and found themselves seriously on the defensive as far as the vital Mediterranean port of Alexandria and the equally vital Suez canal were concerned.

Highlights

... in the news

BELFAST: Observers were wondering what stand, if any, Eire would take in the face of the first serious bombing of northern Ireland. This city and surrounding towns were hard hit by a blitzkrieg from the air and there were many casualties.

WASHINGTON: Danish Minister Henrik De Kauffman made the Greenland agreement with this government, and then was fired, but he is still recognized by the U. S. The same happened to French Vice Consul Paul Bibily, who, claiming he was the sole "real" representative of France in the U. S., offered this country the use of bases in North Africa.

CHUNGKING: China, despite the recent Japanese-Russian accord, has been advised that Russian aid to China in its fight against Japan will be continued.

GREECE: On Her Heels

The Greek armies, which had checkmated the unaided Italian forces presented against them in the Albanian campaign, found themselves facing a horse of another color when the Nazi hordes moved in from Bulgaria and south from Yugoslavia.

Greek sources in the United States, many of them intensely patriotic and hoping against hope for a Greek victory, had been saying during the Albanian battle that if the Nazis ever got in, Greece could not hope to hold out a month.

How true these predictions were in their essence began to be seen as the Nazi campaign against northern Greece proceeded. Salonika fell, trapping much of the Greek army in Eastern Macedonia and Thrace. Then the Germans broke through into the Struma river valley, through the Monastir gap and made contact with the Italians in northern Albania.

It was not long before the plan of the Graeco-British forces to defend a line running in an inverted V-shape from Adriatic to Aegean seas had to be revised, and the whole hinge of the V, in the Lake Ochrida-Phlorina sector had to be abandoned, and the armies retreat until the line was more nearly straight.

Along this line a frightfully intense battle started, and few were sanguine enough to believe that the line would hold and further retreat and withdrawal not be necessary, particularly as the line, as first drawn, lay over heavy mountain ranges with peaks up to 6,000 feet.

And the Nazis had broken through these, and the fighting in its secondary phase was on terrain more to the liking of the mechanized units.

LABOR: And Defense

The strike situation showed some further amelioration, with the announcement by Bethlehem Steel that about 90,000 of its workers would get a 10-cent-an-hour increase in wages.

This, for the moment, relieved the public of the anxiety lest a strike hit this steel-producer, holder of more defense contracts than any other one concern in the country, and one of the nation's largest builders of merchant ships.

The coal strike, however, continued to cause trouble, with four more killed near Harlan, Ky., at a mine which was continuing to operate despite the general shut down.

Negotiations for the ending of this strike were in their final phase, with every evidence that the agreement would go through and that soft coal strikes would be over for another two years, if not longer.

Those watching the labor situation felt that the soft-coal agreement would pave the way for better general industrial conditions and that promised strike threats against U. S. Steel and General Motors might not materialize.

The settling of the Ford strike was held up as a shining example of handling what looked like a certain impasse.

Yet there were still moves afoot in congress which would not exactly outlaw strikes, but which would provide for a 30-day "cooling off period" before the actual calling of a walkout, and also calling for official recognition of the Dykstra-headed national mediation board.

SHOTS: And Spies

The shooting to death of Editor John F. Arena of an Italian language newspaper in Chicago was tabbed as a Fascist secret police slaying after it was learned that a few hours before he was shot he had furnished information to the Dies committee.

A Chicago newspaper man who had talked with Arena a few hours before he was murdered beside his automobile, quoted the editor as saying that he had received threats against his life.

'Barracutty'

It's fishing time again. And Evelyn Dinsmoor, Long Beach, Calif., winner of many fishing contests is shown above proudly displaying her prize-winning catch of Barracuda. Deep sea anglers report that early runs of fish are better than they have been for years due to warmer air currents.

THE GERMAN: Plan

Long range views of the eventual German plan in the Balkans as given to the house of commons by Churchill, and as figured out by observers in neutral points like Ankara and Berne centered on one general line, with certain individual ramifications.

Once Greece had been defeated, said these sources, and the kingdom subjugated much after the pattern of Norway, France and the Low Countries, then the Nazi forces, flushed with victory, would turn their full attention to the Battle of the Mediterranean.

In this observers saw the North African campaign and the Balkan campaign as a huge pincers movement, aimed at the Suez canal and points between.

The recent overturn in the government of Iraq, frankly said to have been engineered in Berlin, provided a back-log of soil turned back of Turkey and Syria.

The Nazis would then, it was said, turn their attention to Turkey and Syria, aiming at the oil in Iran and Iraq, and the wheat-fields of southern Russia.

These would be mere by-products permitting a fuller supply source for the eventual campaign against Suez. In the meantime it was the plan, these observers said, for the Italo-German drive against Egypt to continue, and to meet the southward-pushing Nazis at that point.

STIMSON: And Knox

The growing seriousness of the crisis as far as the United States was concerned brought grave statements in congressional committees from Secretary of War Stimson and Secretary of the Navy Knox.

Stimson, warning of the gravity of the situation, told congress that men now in uniform would have to be trained not only for service in the United States, but also in all parts of Central and South America, if need be, and "also in other parts of the world."

There were many who believed that the secretary was not talking about the Philippines and Greenland, but was pointing to the eventual likelihood of another A. E. F.

On the same day Knox, addressing another committee, said that the day was past when we could consider ourselves as unmenaced, and declared that "America was being encircled by unfriendly countries."

The American people, meanwhile, had to guess at the amount of lease-lend aid that was actually getting over the ocean. No facts or figures were being given out, and yet on the surface, judging by reports from various ports along the Atlantic seaboard, British-bound merchandise was showing a tendency to pile up, and the action regarding Danish and other seized vessels was still being talked about in Washington.

LOWER: Draft Age?

The selective service act, popularly known as the draft, may be amended by this congress to include lads of 18, and also lower the top limit from 35 to some lesser age.

President Roosevelt told newspaper men that changing age limits was under study now in draft circles in congress, and that the matter may be taken up formally early in June.

Army sources also revealed that the war department has modified its ban against men with criminal records. From now on the induction authorities will consider each of the cases on its merits, and will be permitted to pass for possible military service those whom it considers desirable to train.

Trainees also have been given five more days in which to report for induction after receiving an order to do so, and this 10-day period can be extended to 60 days or more by order of the local board, where a hardship might otherwise result.

After London's Worst Air Blitz

After what is believed to be the worst air raid of the entire war on the capital of the British empire, workers are shown clearing up the debris in London, while the work of digging the dead and wounded out of the ruins was still going on. Material damage was terrific, thousands of high explosive and incendiary bombs having been dropped.

English Lord and Lady Killed

Two of the victims of the great air blitz on London were Lord and Lady Stamp. Both are shown above as they appeared on their last visit to America. Lord Stamp, better known as Sir Josiah Stamp, was Britain's leading economist. Their sons, Trevor and Colin, were married to relatives of Gen. Charles G. Dawes.

Mighty Battlewagon for Uncle Sam

Three of the battleship's nine 16-inch rifles form an impressive backdrop for the ceremonies at Brooklyn, N. Y. The North Carolina is the first of 17 capital ships authorized under the two-ocean navy program.

Capitol Hill Picks a Queen

Found Guilty

J. M. Schenck, (left) board chairman of Twentieth-Century Fox film corporation, leaving the federal court in New York with his lawyer, after being found guilty of income tax evasion. He faces a possible sentence of 10 years in jail and $20,000 fine.

Fears 'He's Next'

G. Pantaleoni, former head of the Italian tourist information office in New York, who says his life has been threatened three times. All the threats, he claims, were made in the same manner as those received by his friend, John F. Arena, anti-Fascist newspaper editor who was slain in Chicago.

Brazilians

Alzyra Peixoto, daughter of the president of Brazil, arriving in Miami with her husband, governor of the state of Rio, in Brazil. They are shown on their way to Chester, Pa., to attend the launching of a ship, "The Rio de Janeiro," for Brazilian maritime forces.

To Leave Italy

Capt. William C. Bentley, assistant military attache for air, of the U. S. embassy in Rome, whom the Italian government requested withdrawn from Italy, "immediately."

Swollen Eyes Occasionally Due to Allergy

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
ONE of my brothers, when quite small, would at times appear at breakfast with his lips swollen, sometimes his eyes and sometimes both lips and eyes. The swelling was thought due to the bite of a spider, but we could never figure out why the spider picked out only the lips and skin around the eyes. Years later I learned that these swellings were not due to spider bites, but to certain foods eaten the night before.

TODAY'S HEALTH COLUMN

Today it is known that while the majority of these cases of swollen eyes and swollen lips are due to foods to which the individual is sensitive, there are other substances that are frequently to blame. Dr. W. L. Crewson, Hamilton, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal, states that the eyes themselves and parts adjoining the eyes may be allergic to various substances just as are the stomach, intestine, nose and throat. These substances, may cause the symptoms by coming in direct contact with the eyes and their surrounding parts as from bed clothing, cosmetics, dust, pollen, fumes or smoke, drugs, insect bites, light, heat, X-ray.

There are cases where the individual is taking injections of drugs, vaccines, pollen, and other substances; as there are no other skin or intestinal symptoms present these injections are not suspected.

Tests Applied.
How can one find out whether the swollen eyes are due to any particular substance?

One method is the patch test, where the suspected substance is applied to the skin and held there for a certain time by means of adhesive tape. Another is the scratch test, where the skin is scratched and the substance applied.

A third method is injecting some of the substance under the skin. Testing for a food suspected of causing the trouble may take considerable time as skin testing for food is only about 50 per cent efficient. In such cases a food diary should be kept and the foods eaten the night before an attack occurs can be left out one by one until the troublesome food is discovered.

Selecting Correct Shoes for Children

THE feet of man were meant not only to support the weight of his body but to act as a sort of spring or cushion to prevent shock to the brain and spinal cord, and to help send him forward with each step.

City children have not the "springy" turf or sandy beach of Indians and must walk on hard sidewalks and pavements which put a strain on the growing foot. Shoes are thus an absolute necessity for city children.

In speaking of the correct shoe for children, Drs. Frank D. Dickson and Rex L. Dively in their book "Functional Diseases of the Foot" state that the shoes worn by the growing child should do three things: First, they should protect the foot against injury from contact with hard unyielding surfaces; second, they should provide support to make up for any insufficiency in the foot caused by the shoe interfering with natural development; third, they should hold the feet in a position of balance so they may be relieved of any stresses that place feet in a wrong position for bearing weight.

Pointers on Good Shoes.
A "correct," not a corrective, shoe is described, some of the points of which are: (a) Inner side of sole should be in a straight line right down to end of big toe with (b) a full round toe to allow proper spread of toes, (c) shoe should be full across the ball as child's foot is short and plump, (d) heel narrow to grasp heel bone and hold it in position, (e) heel should be slightly higher on inner than on outer side, (f) shank should not be broader than width of foot and molded to form a definite arch in the shoe, (g) the inner side of sole should also be slightly higher than outer side, (h) the shank itself should be rigid, not flexible, to hold the correct balance.

A.—X-ray treatment for catarrh and deafness helps some cases. Ask your physician or the superintendent of your nearest hospital to refer you to a specialist on this treatment.
Q.—What causes excessive perspiration in under-arm region?
A.—Excess perspiration in arm pits may be due to nervousness. It is a natural condition in some individuals.

BAKED BEANS—AN AMERICAN TRADITION!
(See Recipe Below)

CHURCH SUPPER THOUGHTS

Cock a weather eye at the next social event on your list. 'Tis a church supper, you say? Mmmmm . . . one of those delightful affairs that simply wouldn't be missed! I know . . . one of my fondest memories is the home town church supper, always famous for its food, especially Parker House rolls and baked beans.

Perhaps you are one who thinks of beans as a plain or ordinary dish and, for that reason, hesitate to serve them at a dress-up affair. If you are, I think I can help you change your mind, for properly prepared baked beans are a delight which deserve a place in the top flight of fine cooking.

If you are rushed for time and can't bake your own beans, there are always the canned varieties at your grocer's. Their meal-in-a-minute possibilities shouldn't be overlooked. And then, too, they're a "feast for the least!"

To be really different, you may want to experiment with seasonings until you develop an individual flavor in the canned product. It's amazing the variety of "taste treats" you can achieve. One of the flavors so many like in canned beans is curry. While the beans are heating slowly, a teaspoon of curry powder is sifted over the top and mixed gently through the beans. When thoroughly heated, a piece of butter is added and when that is absorbed, the beans are ready to serve.

An entirely different flavor is developed by adding a tablespoon of vinegar and several tablespoons of brown sugar to two cups of beans while heating thoroughly. Likewise, the piece of butter is added just before serving.

An adaptation of this latter "taste treat" is featured in this week's church supper menu suggestions. Here it is:
*Deviled Beans in Buttered Noodles.
(See Picture at Top of Column)
2 No. 10 cans beans or 10 No. 2 cans
8 ounces of fat
1 pound chopped onions
2 14-ounce bottles catsup
¾ pound brown sugar
8 ounces horseradish
1 ounce salt
½ teaspoon pepper
Heat the fat. Add onion and cook until slightly browned. Add remaining ingredients and heat thoroughly. Serve in a bed of buttered noodles. Makes 50 servings.

Because cooking in quantities does present problems, it's best to plan a menu of foods that can be easily prepared and served. Guess we all

LYNN SAYS:

When planning meals for large numbers
DO try to determine as nearly as possible the number of people to be served, as it is more economical to have no leftovers . . . this is, of course, if only one meal is to be served.

DO have a well-balanced menu. Too much variety will result in your guests heaping their plates with a conglomeration of food . . . they'll want to taste everything!

DO choose foods that won't spoil if they must stand for 15 minutes or even longer.

DO have committees who are responsible for collecting the linen, china and silverware, setting the table, preparing the different parts of the menu and waiting on the table.

DON'T forget to appoint a clean-up squad.

DON'T attempt to increase an ordinary recipe more than once. Proportions of ingredients change as recipes become large, and it's no simple matter for an amateur to guess at them. Unless you have recipes designed to serve large numbers, it's safer to make quick breads, cakes and cookies, according to standard family size recipes.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

THE EARLY CHURCH MEETING HUMAN NEEDS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 4:32-35; 6:1-7.
GOLDEN TEXT—And the multitude of them that believed were of one heart and of one soul.—Acts 4:32.

Machinery without power is useless—that is why in the lesson of last Sunday the power of the Holy Spirit was recognized as being indispensable in the church. One sometimes wonders whether we do not now have more machinery than power, and thus fail in our high calling.

Power, on the other hand, reaches its greatest usefulness through the organization of well-planned machinery. The church soon found that its activities, simple at the beginning, had become more complex, calling for suitable organization, if it was to best serve the needs of its own people and of those round about it. In so organizing they did not forget this fundamental purpose of the church, nor did they forsake the true source of power.

I. Sharing With the Brethren (4:32-35).

Love for one another prompted the Christian brethren to meet each other's need by sharing, by holding all they owned for the common good. This was not (as some would have us believe) a type of communism. It was purely voluntary (see Acts 5:4), temporary, and local. It was practiced only in Jerusalem and only for a short time. It was an expression of Christian brotherhood and liberality which is worthy of our consideration.

The duty and privilege of sharing material as well as spiritual blessings is a part of Christian fellowship. Those in the church who have should willingly share with those who have not. Some churches have so effectively carried out this plan today that none of their members is on relief. Not every church can do that, but much more could be done if we had the considerate spirit of the early Christian church, which was indeed the spirit of Christ.

II. Caring for the Unfortunate (6:1, 3, 5, 6).

The church had come through its first real persecution (Acts 5:12-42) with real victory and assurance (5:42), only to face an internal difficulty. Wherever the Lord blesses, the enemy comes to destroy. Whenever a door of service opens, there are many adversaries (1 Cor. 16:9).

There were two groups in the church—the Hebrew Christians, and those with a Greek background. Among the poor to whom daily distribution of help must be made were many widows. Suddenly the Grecian group began to note (or think they noted, which was just as disturbing) that their widows were being neglected.

Notice that men of good character and spirituality were chosen to serve, and that all of them bore Greek names. The Greeks, who were doubtless in the minority in the Jerusalem church, had a complaint, so those who were appointed to serve were their own people. We might have been tempted to appoint a committee made up of half from each side (and thus to continue the dissension), but not so here where grace and wisdom from above controlled.

Do not fail to observe that there was here a well-ordered plan to care for the weak and unfortunate. No Christian church should fail in that important ministry.

III. Preaching the Word (vv. 2, 4, 7).

Social service is necessary—the church should make intelligent provision for its poor and its widows—but it makes a fatal mistake when such service becomes more important than the preaching and teaching of God's Word. Let those appointed to that blessed ministry find joy in sanctified social service, but never let it pre-empt the place of evangelism.

Certainly such service must not become the all-absorbing task of the one who has been set by God as the messenger to the church—the spiritual shepherd of the flock. Many a preacher has lost himself in such work, and failed to study and pray so that he might be prepared to preach the Word in power and with conviction. Too many preachers are attempting to shake a sermon out of their coat sleeves on Saturday night (as Joseph Parker put it) only to find that their ministry grows leaner and leaner until, reaching the years when there should be a matured richness and sweetness in their ministry of the Word, they find their message dead, dull and dry.

Such folly ill befits the Christian church of its ministers. Perhaps some minister who reads these lines should change his ways, and perchance many a church officer who reads them should realize that he has been driving his preacher into work which, while important, should be (for him, at least) secondary. First things first, in God's own order—that is the road of power and blessing.

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

PASTE PLAIN FABRIC INSIDE AND FIGURED OUTSIDE WITH STIFF PASTE. RUBBER CEMENT ON BOTH SIDES OF EDGES AND THE BACK OF BIAS TAPE. LET DRY AND THEN PLACE TAPE OVER EDGE AND PRESS WITH A WARM IRON.

FEMININE headgear usually holds its shape best if it rests right side up on a stand that fits inside the crown, but this is not true of a man's hat. Its dashing lines may be preserved by placing it upside down in a holder. The man's hat box, shown here, is covered on the outside with maroon and blue cotton print and lined with blue chambray. The lid and the front of the box are hinged with adhesive tape before the covering is pasted on with stiff paste. The stand is made of cardboard, as shown in the sketch, and is covered to match the box. The maroon bias tape edging of the stand is cemented in place in a way that you may find useful in making many other things. The secret is in spreading the cement evenly on both surfaces, letting it dry, and then vulcanizing the two together with the heat of the pressing iron.

NOTE: Why not put away Winter things all nicely mended? It will be grand to get them out in perfect order next Fall. Mrs. Spears' Book 2 shows you how to do the most professional kinds of mending, as well as every day household mending. There is a simple, quickly made zipper bag for five garments in SEWING Book 6. British Coastline

Together with Scotland, Wales, and North Ireland, England has a varied shoreline of more than 5,000 miles to watch against threatened invasion. Near-by independent Eire, across the Irish channel, with approximately 1,000 of additional miles of coastline, is also a big worry to Britons, although Eire has declared that its defense will be managed without direct British military aid.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Never scrape kitchen utensils with a knife. Use a stiff brush dipped in scouring powder to remove stains and burns.

If short of eggs when making scrambled eggs for the gang, add a tablespoon of fine bread or cracker crumbs for each egg short—up to half eggs and half crumbs.

To prevent metal salt-shaker tops from corroding, cover the inside of the tops with paraffin.

To keep down the cost of operating a mechanical refrigerator it is important to watch the frost on the cooling unit and defrost as often as it is necessary.

For best results in painting a new brick wall, use a paint made with a Portland cement base. It comes in powder form and is mixed with water.

Never wash a tea strainer or a teapot in soapy water. Wash and rinse in clear water always.

When running rods through your curtains put a thimble on the end of the rod. It will run through more easily.

TIPS to Gardeners

TRIM FLOWER GARDEN

THERE is much value in keeping the flower garden trimmed. Wise gardeners pick bouquets of favorite annuals like Marigold, Zinnia, Petunia, Sweet Peas and Snapdragon with systematic regularity, for the picking promotes continued blooming.

Periodic trimming is not best for such small, low-growing edging flowers as Alyssum. A complete cutting, however, will benefit this type of plant. This treatment may be applied to Ageratum, Linaria, Lobelia, and Nemesis as well as Alyssum.

Pinks, Cynoglossum, and Dwarf Bedding Rust Resistant Snapdragon are grown both for cutting and for garden beauty, but they too will profit by a thoroughgoing "haircut" such as that prescribed for the smaller, edging favorites.

It is advisable to pick the flowers of certain popular perennials when they are in their prime, to prevent their running to seed, and to promote the production of a second crop of blossoms in a single season. Delphinium, Sweet William, Coreopsis, Perennial Dianthus, and Pyrethrum should be handled in this manner.

Brevity His Keynote

Storker Storkerson was an explorer's explorer. He never made spectacular headlines, yet his advice was often sought by men going into the Arctic. He never colored a report—in fact, he usually understated. The classic example is his report of leading an exploration party over some very bad territory in October, 1918—October is usually considered the worst possible month for Arctic travel. His report is only 25 words long: "We started from a point a little over two hundred miles from shore on October 9th and reached land November 8th without accident or hardship."

The LAMP IN THE VALLEY

A Novel of Alaska By Arthur Stringer

Carol Coburn, a "bushrat's" daughter, while returning to her native Alaska to teach and establish an unproved claim, is rescued from annoyance by Sidney Lander. Lander is an engineer for the Trumbull Company, which is fighting the Coburn claim. He breaks with Trumbull, but remains engaged to Trumbull's daughter, Barbara.

There is still another woman in the case—and then there's Sockeye Schlupp, the rip-roaring old timer—all woven into this thrilling story of the Federal Colony on the latest American frontier. It's great reading!

1,000,000,000 IS A LOT OF EGGS

Fresh eggs for a million breakfast tables are rushed daily from Michigan hatcheries, by rail, truck, plane, and delivered to grocery stores in every part of the state.

CHICKENS are kept on more than 8 out of every 10 farms in Michigan. Flocks range from a few hens up to many thousands. Producing about a billion eggs a year—20 dozen eggs for each man, woman and child in the state—and supplying broilers, fryers and roasters as well, the poultry industry contributes $26,000,000 yearly to Michigan's farm income.

To the farmer's wife, who very frequently cares for the flock, the telephone is a constant aid. She uses it to buy feed, to get the best prices for her eggs and chickens, or to order baby chicks from the hatchery. But even more important is the service the telephone renders in directing the flow of eggs and poultry from country to city, and helping maintain adequate supplies in every market throughout the state.

The Lamp in the Valley

BY ARTHUR STRINGER

W. N. U. Service

THE STORY AND AUTHOR

Arthur Stringer is one of America's best known authors. His facile pen has engaged itself in depicting many facets of American life. It was altogether in keeping with his zestful search for new material that he should have gone to Alaska to see at first hand the story of America's latest frontier, the new settlement of the Matanuska Valley. Here was an historical migration of families who had to abandon their impoverished farms in the Middle West to come, at the invitation of the government, to Alaska to begin life anew. What Stringer saw he depicted in the following story of love and adventure. "The Lamp in the Valley" is Matanuska's young school teacher, Carol Coburn. As daughter of a sourdough, she links the old Alaska with the new.

INSTALLMENT I

CHAPTER I

I opened the cabin window and felt the night air blow in on my face.

There was no mistaking the smell of that air. It carried with it the scent of wide spruce-lands and the sparkle of highland ice fields and the razor-edged aroma of valleys where the sun falls thin on balsam and alder and buckhorn. It was the breath of Alaska, calling me back to the home of my youth.

That little ship's cabin became suddenly hateful to me. I was tired of the noise and the accordion music of the drunken groups swarming north to their cannerly work. I was tired of tobacco smoke and alcoholic song and crying babies and squawking radios.

So I reached for a wrap and made my way up on deck, where all was quiet and not a ship's lamp showed between the shadowy bow and the equally shadowy bridge.

It was so quiet that I could feel the tremor of the Yukon's screw as she plowed northward through the night. At times it seemed as though we were steaming straight into a mountain side. But the hills, as always, moved apart and let us pass through and as casually came together again in our wake.

And as I sat there, with the night wind fanning my face, I felt that my mission was not a trivial one. I owed something to Alaska. And I had to justify myself through my work there, in what men called the last frontier.

It would be different, of course. That new world would have all the roughness of wilderness life. And, jackaroo that I was, I'd have to begin all over again. I'd be a cheechako once more in the colony of old-timers. But my country was never ashamed of its pioneer women. And there was something moving and mysterious, I felt, in man's eternal quest for new frontiers.

Then the light of mystery faded from the picture. For I woke up to the fact that I was no longer alone on that silent and starlit foredeck.

A man, none too steady on his feet, wavered past me in the darkness.

He laughed as he passed an exploring hand over the softness of my polo coat. Then he sat down on the crate beside me.

I sat silent, without moving, as he turned and tried to throw a bottle overboard.
"Good-by, sweetheart," he said with thick-voiced indifference. He was, I concluded, one of the West Coast wanderers who had been turning the lower decks of the Yukon into a cross between a faro joint and a water-front saloon. But he was sober enough to resent my sustained silence.

"Can't you talk, pretty one?" he asked, with his face insolently close to mine. I wasn't afraid of him. I'd seen camp drunkards enough in my day. So I continued to confront him with the thunders of silence.

He rose unsteadily to his feet and reached into his pocket. From it he took out a flashlight which he even more insolently held up in front of my face.

"Not a bad looker," he had in the grace to acknowledge. But it in no way added to my happiness. "Why in hell are you heading for the land of the sourdoughs?"

That question I also declined to answer. I even moved a little to one side, to avoid the wavering flashlight.

"Put out that light," a deep voice commanded from the darkness of the bridge. It was no easy matter, I remembered, to navigate the waters of the Inland Passage.

My tormentor did as he was told. But he took his time about it.

"We like it dark, don't we?" he said as he reached for my hand. The vigor with which I removed it from his clasp caused him to lose his balance for a moment or two.

"What's taking a peach like you to that tin-can territory?" he finally inquired.

"That," I was foolish enough to answer, "is entirely my own affair."

But it was plain that I puzzled him.

"You're a cheechako," he maudlinly proclaimed. "That fact, my pink and white friend, is written all over you."

It didn't seem worth while telling him I was Alaska born.

"And you're still an unpicked peach," he insolently went on, "for no woman who's married is going to be up here stargazing in the dark. But you don't fit in with our fish-pack females. And you're sure not the dance-hall type. On the other hand, you're sure no panhandle chalk-wrangler." He nodded his head in confirmation of his own alcoholic discernment. "No, sir; you're no camptown schoolteacher." "It so happens," I informed him, "that I'm going to teach in the Indian school at Toklutna."

That seemed to hold him for a moment. But his laugh, this time, was more caustic than ever.

"Then your first lesson to those little frostbitten Siwashas ought to be that a bunch of rubber-stamp bureaucrats can't run a country the size of Alaska. Look what they've done with the power rights. Look at their fool laws about salmon fishing. And look how they've let the big interests come in and choke the life out of the territory. No wonder it turns an honest worker into a Red. They've got an idea they can turn us workers into an army of tongue-tied sheep. They think—"

"They don't seem to have left you tongue-tied," I ventured.

"You bet they haven't," he announced. "And that's why I'm known as Eric the Red. I can talk to 'em one at a time or five hundred strong."

But I'd had enough of his soap-box oratory.

"I wish you'd go away," I told him.

His movement, as he leaned closer over me, was an exasperatingly intimate one.

"On a night like this," he murmured, "with the stars up there singing together over the mountain tops? Not on your life, lady!"

I knew my first tingle of fear as I felt his arm creep like a snake's head about the loose folds of my polo coat. The Yukon, at that moment, seemed a terribly empty ship.

"Not on your life," he said for the second time. And he laughed as I tried to writhe free of his encircling arm.

The sound of that carelessly defiant laugh was still in the air when I saw a shadow detach itself from the shadowy iron bulwark toward the bow of the boat.

It was a man, I realized, who'd been leaning against the rail and watching the starlit water. He moved toward me, in the uncertain light, with rather unhurried steps.

"Is this mucker annoying you?" he asked.

"I wanted to be alone here," I found the courage to protest.

But the man on the crate beside me declined to move. It was the tall and shadowy figure above me that came a step or two closer.

"Did you hear what the lady said?" he prompted. But still my tormentor held his ground.

"Who asked you to barge in on this?" he was reckless enough to challenge.

The tall stranger stood silent a moment, in a sort of patiently impatient tolerance.

"Isn't your name Ericson?" he finally demanded.

"You're tootin' right it is," came the prompt reply.

"Well, Ericson, you're not quite sober," said the other. "You haven't been sober a day since we pulled out of Seattle. And at the present moment you're not wanted here."

"Who says I'm not wanted?"

"I do."

"What's that to me?" said the man at my side.

"It's this," was the unexpectedly prompt reply. And before I knew it I was alone on the crate.

But what startled me, after a quick moment of struggle, was that the young man who answered to the name of Eric the Red had not only been lifted bodily from where he sat, but had been shaken as a rag is shaken by a terrier and had been swung out over the ship's rail. He was held there by the scruff of the neck, writhing and kicking. He began, in fact, to emit muffled little rat squeals as he hung over open space, with nothing but the star-riffled, black water under his heels.

"Don't," I gasped.

"A few gallons of sea water," said the untroubled deep voice beside me, "would wash a little of the fire-works out of his system."

"Please don't," I implored, remembering that a moment's unexpected rending of cloth might send the man tumbling down into the channel.

My rescuer turned to me and apparently tried to study my face in that misty midnight dusksness. Then he swung out his second long arm and lifted the still struggling figure back over the rail.

"Now you get down where you belong," said the tall man as he gave his captive a final shake. "And if you talk to this girl again, Ericson, I'll break every bone in your body."

It took time for Ericson to get his breath back.

"You don't own her," he shrilly announced. "And you don't own me. And if you—"

But the other cut him short.

"Are you going?" he demanded.

Ericson fell back a step or two as the other advanced.

"I'll do more than talk before I'm through with her," he proclaimed. It was a final effort, I felt, to save his face. After a silent moment or two that impressed me as heavy with hate, he retreated into the darkness.

The tall man stooped to pick up the fallen flashlight.

"That's the curse," he said, "of our West Coast. It's too full of bums and bindle stiffs. They never stay long enough in one place to take root. And then these soapbox agitators come along and spout communism at them." He looked away, for a moment, and then turned back to me. "But that fire-eater had no right getting rough with a woman. With a woman like you, I mean."

"Why with a woman like me?" I questioned.

"I spotted you the first day out," he said, "as a girl who rather wanted to be let alone."

"I do," I said. But that, I felt, might frighten him away. And I didn't want him to go away. "I mean I did," I amended.

"You naturally don't belong among those roughnecks."

"I'm afraid I do," I told him.

"I'm north born."

That seemed to surprise him.

"You've been out for quite a time?" he suggested.

"For seven long years," I told him.

"She's a great country," he said out of the silence. And, being north born, I agreed with him. "But it's no place for a woman," he added.

"Why not?" I demanded. He laughed a little at that quick challenge.

"Because women want anchorage. They're not satisfied with wildness and roughness. And there's been a sort of conspiracy to keep Seward's Icebox uncivilized. It's too proud of its shirt-sleeve past. It's too fond of calling itself the last frontier and doing things on the dime-novel basis. It's banked too long on the bush-rat with a skillet and a slab of saw-belly."

"What's wrong with the bush-rat?" I demanded, remembering that I was the daughter of one.

"Nothing," was the deliberated reply, "except that he's outlived his usefulness. That's what's the matter with your country. It's too full of grubstaked sourdoughs who go out on the creeks with a tomrucker and imagine they're mining. They scratch at the rubble and hill-cracks for a month or two, and wash out a poke of dust and stay drunk for two-thirds of the year. They're hobos at heart. They do nothing for the country. They don't even know the meaning of real mine work."

I had seen those lone-fire wanderers in their lonely valley bottoms, hawking float-gold from the sand of icy creeks, lugging timber down snowy slopes for their cribwork, thawing out the frozen silt of their test pits with hot stones and a hand winch, facing hunger and hardship and pushing deeper and deeper into

Battling Babies

To the majority of American children Saturday night means dunking. To the 2,500 boys who belong to Kips Bay Boys' club in New York, Saturday night means battle. The boxer with the highest number of points gets a watch. Age range, 6 to 21.

This series of pictures takes you to the club.

Right: This little fellow is loaded for bear. The gloves they use are well padded, so, except for a bloody nose or two, no damage is possible.

The gladiators are shown here weighing in for the bouts. Weights range from 50 pounds to 135 pounds.

The winner! Referee McCrory holds up the hand of a winner, who leaps into the air to acknowledge the plaudits of his clubmates.

Post-war . . . After a frolic in the club pool, the erstwhile foes meet in the locker rooms and resume relations where they left off.

Proving That Doctors Don't Know Everything

A doctor's telephone rang when he was trying to go to sleep. The caller was in a wild state of alarm. "My wife, doctor!" he shouted. "It's her appendix. You'd better come round quick."
"Keep her quiet in bed," said the doctor, "and I'll come around tomorrow. She hasn't got appendicitis."

The husband became even wilder, however, insisting that the doctor should come at once.

"Look here," said the doctor at last, "you know that I took out her appendix three years ago, and nobody has two appendices."

"Ever heard of anybody having two wives?" asked the husband.

ORCHARDS NEED AMPLE NITROGEN

Vital Element Is Essential For Heavy Growth.

By E. F. SERR

(Extension Horticulturist, University of California)

Springtime is time for fruit growers to think of nitrogen. Fruit trees draw heavily on soil supplies of nitrogen while making heavy spring growth. Deficiencies are likely to develop, especially when most of the nitrogen is tied up in a cover crop. Consequently, early fertilizer applications are often needed to carry the trees through in good condition.

The foliage of trees suffering from lack of nitrogen is pale yellow rather than bright green in color. Usually the individual leaves are also smaller and the tree has a more open appearance, the foliage being relatively sparse in comparison with the dense growth of normal trees. The shadows cast by trees well supplied with nitrogen are noticeably darker than those of trees whose nitrogen supplies are low.

Supplies of available nitrogen in the soil vary greatly throughout the year. They tend to be high in late summer and low in early spring. This brings the low point in supply just when the trees need the largest quantities in order to make spring growth.

A late growing cover crop will increase the natural shortage of nitrogen because it will tie up large quantities used in its growth. This may not become available to the trees for a considerable time after the green manure has been turned under. When the cover crop is allowed to become mature additional nitrogen will be tied up while soil organisms are decomposing the woody material. These organisms actually take up more nitrogen from the soil. This competition for nitrogen from late growing cover crops is especially important in unirrigated orchards where summer rainfall is light or does not occur at all. Nitrogen fertilizers applied early enough so that the nitrates are available in sufficient quantities during the period of rapid spring growth have been found effective and profitable in many areas. Peaches are especially responsive to fluctuations in the nitrogen supply in the soil.

Broody Chickens Waste

Feed, Lower Egg Profits

A nest of broody birds is a sign of poor poultry management, says J. C. Taylor, associate extension poultryman at the New Jersey college of agriculture, Rutgers university. With the prevailing narrow margin of profits in the poultry business, no poultryman can afford to tolerate broodiness in his laying flock, he reminds poultry owners.

"It should be remembered that for every day a broody bird stays on the nest, it takes three days to break up her broodiness," Taylor points out.

"Good management requires the removal of all birds showing any tendency to broodiness to special pens or coops," he says. "All laying pens should be inspected the last thing in the evening for broody birds. They can be readily identified by their presence on the nests. Brood coops in individual pens provide a satisfactory way of confining them, or if the number is large the use of a summer shelter for confining the broody birds is very satisfactory.

"It is not advisable to restrict any of the feed in an effort to break up broodiness. Confining the birds in small coops is all that is necessary. The important point is to remove them from the nests at the first indication of broodiness."

Sudan Safe Pasture If Caution Is Used

To farmers who are wondering whether or not it is safe to pasture cattle on Sudan grass, W. L. Boyd, chief of the veterinary division at University farm, St. Paul, advises that there is little or no danger from prussic acid (cyanide) poisoning as a result of feeding this crop.

Exhaustive tests by members of the veterinary staff have failed to develop a single case of poisoning where Sudan alone was fed to stock. With sorghum or cane, however, the situation is different. Under some conditions sorghum is a very dangerous feed and even if there is only a little of it mixed with the Sudan pasture trouble may result.

Feeding Iodine to Cattle

The most convenient method of feeding iodine to dairy cattle is to combine it with salt at the rate of about one ounce of potassium iodide to 300 pounds of salt. To facilitate mixing this small quantity of iodine, first mix one ounce with eight ounces of slaked lime or cornstarch.

Another method of feeding iodine is to use the iodine tablets that you can secure from the regular veterinary supply houses, dissolving these in water as recommended.

Each battery is supposed to have its own cook but so far, due to lack of mess halls, the messes have been consolidated. We have a good cook and when he is on duty, we get satisfactory meals but some of the others are not so good.

The schedule for tomorrow has been posted on the bulletin board: First call 5:45, mess 6:30, calisthenics 7:30 to 8:00, close order drill 8:00 to 8:30, drill for foot troops 8:30 to 9:30, Capt. Eichinger 9:30 to 10:30, military courtesy 10:30 to 11:30, mess 12, use of weapons 12:45 to 2:45, personal hygiene 2:45 to 4:30, mess 5:00, lights out 10:45.

I want to take a shower and get to bed early tonight. I went down to Chicago last night and stayed with friends who formerly lived in Detroit, Flint and Muskegon and there I saw half a dozen others from Baltimore, Fort Wayne, Flint and Detroit who were either visiting or are now living in Chicago. I had to get back at nine this morning and this afternoon about 30 of us rode in two trucks down through Evanston and the northern suburbs. I am tired because I haven't caught up on my sleep—we got very little before we left Detroit because of drill, guard duty (24 hours), policing, clean-up and other details.

Love, Irvin.

tion Materials program. Last year a total of 696 farmers signed for participation bringing a total of $18,556.62 to be paid into the pockets of the farmers of Iosco county if ACP payments. To date, 710 farmers have signed with about 85% of the entire number of farms of the county accounted for.

Under the conservation materials section of AAA, farmers can get fertilizer and marl without any cash, the cost of the materials being charged against their ACP check next fall. They can get materials in amounts up to 70% of their estimated payment. Fertilizers available are phosphate and potash and must be used on non-depleting crops. This part of the program is proving very popular with farmers of Iosco county. To date orders have been received for 1,724 yards of marl, 59 tons of phosphate and four tons of potash, because they can improve their land without having to pay out cash at a time when other farm expenses are high.

No Clothespin on this Car's Nose!

Buick SPECIAL 6-passenger Sedanet, $1006. White sidewall tires extra.*

WOULDN'T a sprinter or a long-distance runner look silly trying to race with a clothespin firmly clamped on his nose!

Yet, in a sense, something fairly close to that happens in nearly every car that lacks Buick's sensational Compound Carburetion.†

For your engine has to breathe in huge quantities of air to be mixed with gasoline before it is burned in the cylinders. But single-carburetor fuel supply systems can handle only a given volume of air.

To that extent, then, an ordinary engine has a clothespin on its nose—a limitation on air supply for big power operation.

†Optional equipment on the Buick SPECIAL, standard on all other models.

We remove that clothespin very simply—by having two carburetors; one that handles all casual driving smoothly and efficiently, another to jump in with more air and more fuel when you call for extra power by stepping on the gas treadle!

Simple? Very simple indeed.

And simply marvelous in the extra FIREBALL wallop it gives you and in the gas savings you get—as much as 10% to 15% over previous Buicks with the same-size engines.

Maybe you'd better go see your Buick dealer now.
