N EW YORK.-Maj. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the army air corps who has just arrived in England to serve as an official observer

Arnold, Pupil of of the war, is about the Wrights, Pioneer only officer In Army Aviation remaining in active service who learned to fly under the per sonal supervision of Wilbur and Orville Wright at their school in Dayton, Ohio. Just two years previously the war department had accepted delivery of its first batch of airplanes and so his experience as a flier pretty nearly spans the complete period of army aviation.

Anyone who can recall the status of flying in 1911 will ap-preciate "Hap" Arnold's exploits in his first year of training as a young lieutenant, assigned to flight duty from the infantry, with a record of 140 flights, 29 hours in the air. In his second year of training he achieved honor as the first winner of the Mackay trophy awarded for ex-cellence as a military pilot. In a day so blustery and cold as to keep all but 2 of 12 entrants out of the race he completed a 40mile flight, originating at College Park, Md., at an average speed of 52 miles an hour.

Twenty-two years later he again won the trophy as leader of a flight of 10 twin-engined bombers from Washington, D. C., to Alaska and return. As early as 1911 he prac-ticed at aerial bombardment and war department records credit him with being the pioneer in the successful use of the radio for military purposes in an airplane.

Quite at variance with the out-ward semblance of this slightly built, silver-haired soldier with his diffident smile, is his forthright utterances and writings concerning the with his government to Crete, anairplane as a war machine.

"The only way to prevent air invasion is to attack the invader with superior numbers and knock him out of the air." He has been preaching this for years, his concern having ever been for the constant procurement of thousands of new, improved combat craft, training of thousands of new pilots, enlistment of tens of thousands of ground crew men, swelling of aircraft plants and acquisition of vital raw material for future aircraft production.

GREECE: Nazi Power

The Germans, it was apparent, were able to do in about three or four weeks what Italy had been unable to do in any length of timebeat the embattled Greeks.

The battle of Jugoslavia, which lasted nine days, being over, the Italians contented themselves with pursuing the Greek army of Epirus, only a shell, it is true, of the forces the Greeks had there originally, and which had to withdraw because of the onslaught of the Panzer divisions in the eastern part of the coun-

When this army surrendered, it was certain that the end of Greek resistance was in sight. King George II, announcing that he had not been informed of the impending surrender of the western army, fled nouncing he would continue to direct the offense from there. But it was apparent that the Greek campaign must be aban-doned, and the British must face another Dunquerque or lose their entire manpower on the mainland. The debarkation from Piraeus promised to be even a more difficult task than the flight from France, as German claims of sinking 59,000 tons of transports in one day showed.

Just as the British lost all their artillery and mobile units and the rest of their supplies in the retreat from the low countries, so it also appeared the vastly smaller army Still an active pilot, mounting ad- in Greece would, nevertheless, suf-

TAXES: Defense Finance

A "practically unanimous vote" of the house committee considering President Roosevelt's $3,500,000,000 tax plan to finance a portion of the national defense cost, seemed to grease the ways for the launching of a bill.

But almost immediately there were some signs that opposition would rise against the bill when, as and if it was brought out.

One of the basic ideas in the tax layout is a plan to levy higher surtaxes on everyone who now pays income tax. Another was to invade the lower brackets and make those pay taxes who are not now doing so.

For instance, it was pointed out in opposition quarters, the new proposed surtax schedule would make a childless couple now earning $2,500 net earned income, a couple now paying $11 income tax, hike their tax to $72. All income taxes now include the tax on a tax, or the 10 per cent income tax supertax for defense purposes.

Despite the appearance of opposition, the President told a press conference he thought the nation well able to absorb a $3,500,000,000 hike in taxes. He said it would mean that people would have to buy a little less, and pay a little bit more for the sake of the defense coast defense guns out of business. and future of the nation.

AFRICA: Blitz Stopped?

There were some dispatches from northern Africa that tended to show that the British had brought the Nazi-Fascist blitz to a standstill after losing practically all the terri-tory gained against Mussolini's men earlier.

Particularly noteworthy was the bombardment of Tripoli by the fleet, an attack at the source of the invading army's supplies. Britain proudly hailed this attack, reported the port was in flames, and practi-cally forced to close.

Whether landing parties would be sent ashore, and the British attempt an invasion at the rear of the German-Italian northern African army was not immediately clear, or whether it was that the British, having found where the opposing forces had landed, were seeking to close the port.

However, it was an offensive note where all had been defense for a long time.

Also, the British garrison at To bruk was holding out in a long siege, and on top of this defensive note came word that the British had started a new attack on Bardia, some 75 miles to the west of To-bruk, which looked like the beginning of a move to attempt to raise the siege.

The attack, or rather raid, on Bardia, was carried out by a landing party from the fleet, and the party got back to the ships "almost intact" after doing considerable damage, blowing up a bridge, destroying a munitions dump and putting four This going ashore and "spiking

the guns" was an old tactic of war that now seems out of date, and it Most of the early opposition was refreshing to read about and

Spirit of Good-Will a d d e d strength to the gesture which Senhora Peixoto employed in breaking the bottle containing champagne over the bow of the new Moore-McCormack passenger liner, Rio de Janeiro, as it slid down the ways in the shipyard at Chester, Pa., the other day. So acting, she represented her husband, Commander Ernani Do Amaral Peixoto, governor of the state of Rio de Janeiro-for which the vessel was named-as well as her father, Getulio Vargas, president of Brazil.

A petite, vivid woman, who has made a delightful impression upon those concerned in making the current visit of the distinguished Brazilian pair an important hands - across - the sphere event, the senhora holds a degree in law, the result of study at the University of Brazil, a profession, however, in which she has never practiced. Marrying soon after graduation she eventually became secretary to her father, a position she now holds. Her hosts in New York have found her a fluent speaker of English.

This acquirement has made her of value to her husband as an interpreter when our idiom and more involved diction carry him beyond his depth. No one, it seems, has yet found her at a loss on economic, social, or political questions-in fine she is a brilliantly accomplished woman. Practical, too. When it became clear that certain handwork arts in Europe no longer would be available to American buyers she founded the Fundacao Anchieta in Rio de Janeiro which gives free training in fine needlework to Braziljan women.

Military observers believed, when totaled up, the British disaster in Greece would amount to more from the standpoint of casualties than did don that "lines were holding firm" and that "new defensive positions were being consolidated"-reports circulated even at the moment when the king and government of Greece were in flight, and thousands of Greek soldiers were laying down their arms.

That this was a censorship "smoke screen" to attempt to cover a trial at withdrawal similar to the Dunquerque pattern seemed fairly obvious to most observers. Central battle in the final debacle occurred at historic Thermopylae Pass, where in ancient times the Greeks had successfully withstood precarious threats to her independence. In fact, most military observers had always maintained that in order to conquer Greece Thermopylae Pass must first be threaded

However, in ancient times, the pass was narrow indeed-now it was wider, the attackers had fast mobile units to pour into the fray, and the Greek and British rear guard, said the Germans, were totally unable to withstand the advance. The cloud of censorship hid the facts about the British withdrawal. whether it would be entirely tried through Piraeus, or whether the British forces would retreat through Athens to the Peloponnesus, and attempt to fight or debark there.

But certain it was that Greece was doomed, after three to four weeks of furious warfare, warfare in which the Germans suffered their heaviest losses of the war.

Economic Result

Whether it was "whistling going through a churchyard," or a well-considered opinion, "informed experts" at Washington seemed to feel that the Nazi conquest of Greece might be more economically costly than worthwhile.

They said the latest German triumph, on the contrary, might prove costly to the Nazis, for the devastation and physical upset of the population in the Balkans might seriously curtail the flow of supplies Germany had been receiving.

Also it was announced from Lon-

Also the surtax would hit heavily insurance companies and banks who are heavy holders of government bonds. At top and at bottom seemed the chief opposition to the tax.

For instance, a single person with an income of $1,000 (net earned) would pay $29 tax under the pro-posed schedule instead of $4 as at present. A married couple with two children with an earned net income of $3,500 who would now be paying $15 income tax, would find their levy boosted to $100. Under the plan, the 4 per cent tax would be retained, and the surtaxes would start with $2,000, (11 per cent) which would be a total of 15 per cent. To this would be added the defense supertax, or 10 per cent of the total tax, added to the bill.

The effective rate, therefore, on the bottom bracket, would be 16.5 per cent.

The treasury estimated that these changes, if put into effect, would raise a billion dollars a year, or a little less. The estate tax exemption, under another plan, would be reduced from $40,000 to $25,000, and rates in the lower and middle brackets would be raised. This, the treasury experts said, would yield about a third of a billion. As a sample of this tax, if one inherited $20,000, over and above the exemption limit of $25,000, one would pay $1,800 to the treasury instead of $600 as at present. If a person inherited $125,000, or $100,000 more than the proposed exemption, the tax would be hiked from the present $9,600 to $21,000.

STRIKES:

And Prices There was little doubt that prices, Leon Henderson or no Leon Henderson, were taking a generally upward trend, and that the strike situation, while somewhat improved, was not yet what it should be. President Roosevelt's personal appeal to the southern coal operators to renegotiate with the northern operators and workers brought fruit, but whether this would end the strike speedily was dubious.

given an assistant, with the title of deputy commander, Lieut. Gen. Blamey of Australia, who has been in command of the Australian forces. Now, whether this meant that Wavell was about to be removed, or that a bigger situation was to develop in Africa remained to be seen, but it was an interesting announcement, at all events, and meant that something was-going on within the organization of an army that had just fled as fast as it had advanced. The true story of the northern African campaign still was untold and that was increasingly evident.

JAPAN: Bitter Days

> The Japanese, still meeting harsh resistance to their armed effort against the Chinese, and attempt ing to meet the demands of their new Axis partners that they do something as a military or naval power in the Orient, are meeting bitter days, according to analytical comment.

Instead of being able, through propaganda, to infiltrate with Nipponese influence into the Dutch East Indies, that territory is reported to becoming more hostile than ever to the "new order."

The Dutch, said writers in that territory, have been watching the effect of Japanese influence in China, Korea and in Indo-China, and they were said to have lost any interest they might have had in the probabilities of their fate if they should fall into Japanese hands.

Japan still was attempting to reach an economic accord, for instance, with Batavia, in Java, but the Batavians twice have called the whole conference off, only to reopen it later.

The Dutch are said to be angered by the Japanese practice of sending large missions to accomplish a simple task, and the local government feels that these emissaries are actually acting as military spies. This also is true of "tourists" from Japan, who had been filtering into the Dutch East Indies in large num ber to nervousness, or at least nervousness is the underlying cause, the condition in some cases has been greatly aggravated by coarse foods being eaten in large quantities in an endeavor to cure constipation. Some cases are kept in almost continuous spasm because, in addition to coarse foods, harsh purgatives are used. In acute cases of spastic bowel or colitis, nothing but milk or other liquids are used for a few days. In the usual or chronic case diet consists of cream, soft-boiled eggs, strained cereals, cottage cheese, butter, custards, plain cookies, ful when bowel is overactive with spasms.

For Poison Ivv

A S THE poison ivy season ap-

the symptoms of poison ivy are much like those of hives and food poisoning, it is natural that research workers and drug manufacturers should be experimenting with a serum to prevent attacks of poison ivy just as with hay fever, eczema and other allergic conditions.

The result has been various methods of using the vaccine or serum idea. This is, that a tiny amount of an offending food or other substance put under the skin or taken by mouth will cause the body to manufacture protective substances to overcome large amounts of the offending substances should they be eaten, or the body come in contact with them. While this idea or principle works out well in hay fever, asthma, eczema, stomach and intestinal upsets, it has not worked out so well in prevention of poison ivy.

Chewing the young leaves, taking "tincture" of poison ivy by mouth or by injection are methods used.

Dr. Leon Goldman, Cincinnati, in Journal of Medicine, states that the difficulty is due to being unable to measure the dose given that will prevent the attacks and yet not give the patient too severe a reaction. Research workers report most undesirable effects when leaves have been chewed, such as severe swelling of the tongue and lining of the mouth, which causes the patient to feel that he will choke to death. Even when the serum manufactured from poison ivy has been injected, there has been great skin irritation at and around the point where the serum was injected.

The lesson from the above is that, while injections for poison ivy appear to be effective in many cases, the proper doses in individual cases is at present hard to determine.

QUESTION BOX

Q .- What causes chapped lips? What causes dark circles under the eyes?

A .- Chapped lips and dark circles under eyes may be due to lack of vitamins and minerals in the food or to a run-down condition. See your physician and get blood checked for iron and calcium.

Q .- Please advise the main symp toms of cirrhosis of the liver.

A .- Indigestion is main symptom of cirrhosis of the liver. Keeping bowels active is important.

Eye-of-Round Roast.

How to Buy: The lean of beef should be well-marbled with fat, firm, smooth, glossy: soon after the meat is cut, the surface should turn bright red. The outer fat should be fairly thick, firm, flaky, creamwhite. In lower grades fat is soft-er, yellower. Though price per pound will perhaps exceed that of rib roast, it is all solid meat-no bones, no fat, no waste of any kind.

LYNN SAYS:

Spread apple or crabapple jelly over the top of roasting ham, veal or pork for the last 30 minutes. The jelly gives an appetizing flavor and a glossy brown top. Crumbled bacon adds a wonderful new flavor to cooked green beans, yellow or white squash, browned navy beans or spinach. Add the bacon in the last 5 minutes.

(Serves 6) 1 flank steak (about 1½ to 2 lbs.) 4 cups dry bread 1/2 cup milk 1/2 cup boiling water 1/4 cup butter 1/2 cup finely chopped onion 1/4 cup finely chopped parsley

11/2 teaspoons salt Pepper

Have your butcher score the steak and cut a pocket in it. Break the pieces. Mix milk and boiling water. Pour over bread and let soak until soft. Melt the butter, add onion and cook without brown-utes. Add to bread-milk mixture the parsley, beaten egg, salt and pepper. Press this stuffing into the pocket of the steak. Bake in a shallow pan, uncovered, in a moderate oven (350 degrees) two hours. Slice it generously and gainish with sprigs of crisp parsley. There's plenty of good, substan-

III. By Fellowship That Brought Blessing (vv. 14-17),

When the church at Jerusalem heard what had happened in Samaria, they were overjoyed, and sent two of their leaders, Peter and John, to encourage and counsel with the new converts.

Such fellowship always brings blessing, and in this case it was unbread into small usual blessing; namely, the gift of the Holy Spirit. On this occasion God thus gave these new Samaritan believers the blessing and power of the Holy Spirit in such a way as to bind them in fellowship to the church in Jerusalem. Jew and Gentile believers in Christ thus were joined in one communion of love and faith. ing, about 5 min-IV. By Broadened Vision That Brought Action (v. 25) Peter and John had completed their work in Samaria and were on their way home to Jerusalem, but what they had seen had given them a new vision. They acted on that vision, and as they passed through the villages of Samaria they "preached the gospel" with joyful hearts. What an interest and stir they must have created!

It is one thing to see an opportunity and a need; it is quite another to do something about it. For that, one needs determination of purpose. As Lloyd George put it, "You cannot fight a winning battle with a retreating mind." These apostles were reaching out for God, and under His leadership and blessing, into the villages of Samaria.

The Christian church needs more real consecrated action; that is, in the name of Christ and for His glory. The business man who conducts his secular affairs with enthusiasm and dispatch, often forgets all that in his church duties. He advertises and seeks new markets for his goods, but is not interested in the outreach of the church. He can get excited about the Rotary Club or the Lions or what not, but never develops the slightest enthusiasm about the Lord's work. It goes without saying that such a 'picture'' is all out of focus. Let's make it right. Vision? Yes, by all means. But also action for God.

voice at my side. "Telling me my father had been found dead on the open trail," I answered, doing my best to be casu-al about it. "He'd been found there, frozen to death, between his Chaki-tana claim and Trail-End Camp. His grub bag was empty. Two of his dogs had died and the others must have left him in the night. I can't help thinking of that lonely grave between the hills when you talk about the uselessness of the sourdough."

"I'm sorry," said my companion, with a quick note of contrition. He stood beside me, for a full minute of silence. "Where was your fa-ther's claim on the Chakitana?"

"That's what I've got to find out," I told him. "But it seems to be somewhere along the Three-Finger Range between the Cranberry and Blackwater Pass. Father, you see, was just an old-fashioned sourdough. He was always brooding about some final strike that was going to make him a millionaire. And he always felt there was a fortune in that mine of his, once it was opened up. It was his secret. And he hugged it tight, even from me."

"But the important point is, did he establish his claim?'

"I'm afraid not," I had to admit. "That's one of the things I've got to find out."

He leaned closer, as though trying to decipher my face in the starlight. I found myself moving away a little. Lonely ladies, after midnight on starlit nights at sea, needed the feel of something solid under their feet.

"It was kind of you," I said as I drew my polo coat closer about me, "to help me as you did." But he disregarded that valedictory note. "I don't even know your name," he reminded me.

Names, on a night like that, didn't seem to mean much. We were up between the stars, I wanted to tell him, where time and titles didn't count. my face. "You go on to Seward, of course?"

"Who are you?" I found myself asking, foolishly glad because of his nearness.

He didn't answer me at once. And in that moment of silence I summoned up courage to reach for the forgotten flashlight. Then I pressed the button and framed his stooping head in a sudden shaft of light.

I gulped as the light fell on his face. That face was strong and bronzed and touched with a quiet did her best to keep the native girls in the school from talking with the old women of the outside settlement. For these verminous old squaws had a lot of tribal superstitions they tried to pass on to the youngsters. According to Miss O'Connell, they made a practice of not letting their firstborn children live, especially the Copper River Indians who believed that if their first little papoose lasted only until he was eight or nine months old his father went straight to the Happy Hunting Grounds. Katie O'Connell, in fact, was on the warpath because of an Indian couple who sneaked over into the Matanuska Valley with their sevenmonths-old baby, ostensibly on a hunting trip. But if they came back without that papoose, our grim-eyed nurse proclaimed, she was going to have them locked up for life.

Miss Teetzel took the savor out of my mission. She also quietly contrived to make me as uncomfortable as possible. She seemed to feel that the scrub brush was a major factor in pedagogics. But Sidney Lander was right. I hadn't much to work on at Toklutna. The little slant-eyed Eskimos, I found, were both brighter and merrier-minded than the Siwash children. They all seemed fond of music, though, especially the march music Katie and I pounded out on

Mechanized Fishing

The fishing industry, oldest of American industries, and one of the largest, has finally accepted a place in the machine column. Where snowy-sailed schooners put out from New England fishing ports almost since the coming of the Pilgrims, trim Diesel-engined trawlers now go forth. Operating from Massachusetts ports is the Forty Fathom Fleet. Come aboard one of the trawlers and let's go to the fishing grounds.

Here is a big trawl-a net shaped like a big bag. As much as 5,000 pounds of fish can be hauled in at one lick in this bag.

Miss Teetzel, I soon discovered, audacity that went well with his big frame. But I had seen it before, in an altogether different setting. For this was the mackintoshed man who had stood in the rain with a blonde and blue-eyed girl in his arms before the Yukon pulled out from the Seattle wharf. He had been so absorbed in that last clasp that he almost missed getting aboard.

The memory of that scene promptly chilled and steadied me. An ice wall as wide as the Columbia Glacier seemed to drift in between us.

"I don't suppose it makes much difference," he said out of that silence, "but my name is Lander, Sidney Lander." "No, it doesn't make much difference," I heard myself saying in an oddly thinned voice.

"Why?" he demanded, conscious of that remoter note. "We'll probably never see each other again," I said with a limping enough effort at indifference.

"But I think we will," he corrected with unexpected solemnity. My hand, resting on the rail, could feel his bigger hand close over it.

"Hasn't Eric the Red done enough of that?" I asked in an adequately frosted voice.

The man who called himself Sidney Lander promptly lifted his hand away.

"But I still want to know your name," he quietly reminded me. "I think you owe me that much."

I laughed and stood silent a moment.

"My name's Carol Coburn," finally admitted, "free, white, and twenty-one, and heading back to the icebound hills of her birth."

"Coburn?" he repeated. And his voice impressed me as almost a startled one.

"Carol Koyukuk Coburn," I announced, "with the Koyukuk usually suppressed." "What was your father's name?" he asked.

"His real name," I said, "was Kenneth Coburn. But back on the creeks he was known as Klondike Coburn.

That brought silence between us again. And when the man beside me spoke, it was in an oddly altered voice

But his eyes, as he looked down at me, did things to my heart action. For my woman's instinct told me that something was stirring deep in that bear cave of silence. seemed afraid to put into words. All the way to Resurrection Bay, in fact, I felt oddly alone in the world. It seemed less and less like going home.

Yet I knew, once we reached Seward, that I was back on the frontier.

But when I found myself face to face with that solemn big schoolhouse surrounded by a straggle of cabins that made it look like a mother hen surrounded by her chicks, no sense of high adventure reposed in my arrival.

It was Miss Teetzel who spoiled everything. For Miss Teetzel, the school head, proved to be a somewhat dehydrated spinster with an eye like a bald-headed eagle's and a jaw like a lemon squeezer. I could see her disapproving glance go over my person, from my gray tweed cap with its rather cocky Tyrolean feather to my frivolous suede pumps. I plainly didn't fit in with her idea of what a teacher should be. I didn't much mind being consigned to the smallest and meanest room in the big old building. But I couldn't overlook the spirit of hostility with which I was ushered into my far-north mission. For that spirit expressed itself, once I'd unpacked, in the first task with which Miss Teetzel confronted me. It was to take charge of the washing from the children's ward. And it was rather a septic mess to get clean, even with the power machine which Miss O'Connell showed me how to operate. But I knew the lemonsqueezer lady was playing an operatic air or two on the keyboard of my endurance. So I put on my rubber gloves, and shut my teeth, and went through with my job. It wasn't until my third day at Toklutna that I had a chance to humanize the cell-like baldness of my room

Miss O'Connell helped me do the decorating. And this same Katie O'Connell proved herself the one girl the old school organ. So the two of us concluded that a little dancing might brighten up the emptiness of their evenings. We tried putting them through an old-fashioned square dance or two. And just when the fun was at its highest Miss Teetzel appeared and looked me over with that sardonic eye of hers. "I'm afraid," she observed, "that you're a trifle too modern for us." I had to swallow it, of course. But after that we were restricted to group-singing and saluting the flag and a handful of dolorous old hymns which my Siwash charges translated into a pagan chant of woe.

As I quartered back across the schoolyard, after stopping a fight between two of my little redskin warriors (based on a can of tinned cow stolen from the kitchen), I bumped into Doctor Ruddock, who looked us over once a week. He stopped, with his black bag in his hand, and rather solemnly looked me over.

"You're not very happy here,' he said. "How'd you like a whack at a school over at Wasilla?" My first impulse was to tell him that I didn't believe in running away from things. But I said, instead, that I was waiting for rather an important report from the Record Office at Juneau. He glanced at the shabby old bar racks that overshadowed us.

"Well, if they crowd you too hard here, let me know. I can pull a string or two, when you're ready And that Matanuska Valley, if I don't miss my guess, is going to be very much on the map.'

The memory of that message didn't stay with me as long as it might have. For on my way to my room Katie O'Connell handed me a letter from Sidney Lander. It had come out from Chakitana by airplane and had been mailed at Fairbanks. The writer of that letter said that I had been very much in his thoughts. But the comforting little glow a message like that could bring just under one's floating ribs was cut short by the further message that the sooner I could marshal all data and documents in connection with my father's Chakitana claim the more definite it would make Lander's course of action in the immediate future. "The Trumbull outfit and I are parting compa ny," it concluded.

CLASSIFIED

By L. L. STEVENSON

Emergency: A tenant and the superintendent of a small East Side apartment house were witnesses in a recent law suit which aroused so much bitterness among the litigants that threats were freely made. Late the other afternoon, the super, on coming up from the furnace, found his wife had receipted for a box, wrapped in plain, stout paper, and addressed to his fellow witness. The more he looked at that box the more menacing it seemed. Finally, thinking he heard ticking, he dumped it into a pail of water. As he was reaching for the phone to call the bomb squad, it rang. And on the wire was the tenant who wanted to know if his dress shoes, which he had sent out to be fixed, had been returned, the matter being important as he wanted to wear them at a formal dinner that night. The shoes were fished out so fast only the wrapper was soaked-and the super made a deft replacement job of that. . . .

Midtown Midnight: A burly young man begging for a dime so that he might sleep in bed instead of "carry the banner" . . . Theater marquees, brilliant only a few minutes earlier, now dark . . . A cease-less throng meandering along Broadway and with units sifting silently into side streets . . . The Para-mount clock with both hands vertical . . A crowd of young people clotted in front of the Astor arguing over where to go for the rest of the evening . . . The scent of perfume . . Two and the flash of jewels . pretty girls smiling at two soldiers who give one look and sheepishly sidle into a bar . . . Crowds watching free advertising shows produced electrically.

Prosperity: When Rose Franken first conceived the character "Claudia," she did not know that she was starting an industry. But "Claudia" grew into a series of 30 short stories for which Miss Franken received $2,500 each. Then came two "Claudia" books that earned big royalties. Next, the cur-rent Broadway hit, the play "Claudia," which is earning more than $1,000 a week for Miss Franken with a Chicago computer contactor with a Chicago company soon to appear. Later, with more heavy payments to the author, "Claudia" is to be serialized on the radio. Also, with more royalties, the scripts of the play "Claudia" are to appear in book form. Just to top things off David O. Selznick has paid $187,000 for the movie rights with further compensation to Miss Franken and her novelist husband, William Brown Meloney, for writing the screen play. And so far, the fortu-nate Miss Franken has garnered more than a half million do llars t say nothing of the profits of publishers, producers and others. * * * Error: Speaking of the theater, the favorite approach to an actress wanted for a benefit, as everyone knows, is flattery. The other evening a grand dame came up to Helen Craig, star of "Johnny Belinda" at Ballet Russe to induce her to appear at a society party. "You know, Miss Craig, I think you do the best acting job in town at the moment," she began. "When I saw your play, I couldn't take my eyes off you for a moment. The way you walked, talked and moved your hands, it was marvelous. And the way you raise and lower your voice to fit the action!" Miss Craig stopped her right there. In "Johnny Belinda'' she portrays a deaf mute. * * *

Another: Victor Mature of the movies, was invited to a dinner the other evening and when he arrived, his hostess gushed, "You know everybody at the table, don't you, Mr. Mature? Oh, you simply must meet Gertrude Lawrence, star of 'Lady in the Dark' because she's simply marvelous." Mature didn't know exactly what to say about that. He is merely one of Miss Lawrence's leading men in the musical hit.

End Piece: Maybe it was spring that caused Joe Reichman, band leader, to recall the two weather prophets who found themselves in disfavor in the small farming community in which they lived.

"I think we'd better pray for a little rain," suggested one.

"I think," returned the other, "we'd better wait until there are a few more clouds." (Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)
