Sinking of 'Robin Moor' by Submarine Is Investigated by State Department; Byrnes, Jackson Named to High Court As Stone Is Appointed Chief Justice

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

U. S. citizens are getting a first-hand look at the famous Nazi fighting plane, the Messerschmitt, now on display in a New York theater. Proceeds from the showing of this plane will go to buy "bundles for Britain." This is the first time that one of these aerial fighters has been shown in the United States.

COURT:

Line-Up Changed

President Roosevelt's appointment of Harlan Fiske Stone to replace Charles Evans Hughes as chief justice of Supreme court was announced at the same time as he sent to the senate the names of two new associate justices he had picked, Sen. James Byrnes of South Carolina and Attorney General Robert H. Jackson of New York.

A Republican, Justice Stone is 63 years old and was appointed to the Supreme court by President Coolidge in 1925. His appointment as chief justice came as somewhat of a surprise for many sources in Washington believed that Attorney General Jackson would get the nomination.

Senator Byrnes, who has been a strong administration supporter in the senate since the early days of the New Deal, will succeed Justice McReynolds who retired some time ago. Jackson will take the place left vacant by Justice Stone's elevation to chief justice.

Ship Worry

The Robin Moor, sunk in the South Atlantic well within the United States' neutrality zone, was declared by its few survivors to have been sunk by a German U-boat, the first in what most observers expected would be a series of international incidents, similar to that of the Lusitania in the last war.

The Robin Moor went to the bottom, bearing seven passengers including a little child, and the first lifeboat, the only one immediately found, contained only 11 survivors. The other two boats, according to the evidence of Brazilian ship people who went in search, showed on the surface of the sea some evidence that they had been lost.

The first notice of the loss was given as "the result of a storm at sea," but the survivors told their rescuer that they had been torpedoed.

Following these reports by survivors, authoritative sources in Washington indicated that work on a formal note of protest to Germany was under way by the state department.

It was pointed out that in such a note restitution for loss of American life and property was only what the Nazis could expect.

While at first the White House had announced that "judgment should be withheld" on the incident, later word came that there seemed to be "no longer any reason" for that.

The state department's report was first made public by Sumner Welles at his press conference. He based his findings on the account of the sinking as it came from Walter J. Linthicum, U. S. consul at Pernambuco, Brazil. Linthicum spent nearly five hours getting the stories of the rescued persons.

DUCE:

Calls Names

Celebrating the year that Italy has been in the war, Mussolini made a speech to his puppet legislators in which he defied the United States to become more active in the war, after saying that this country is "really in the war already."

He also likened President Roosevelt to Sulla, one of the bloodiest and most tyrannical of all the Roman dictators.

The Axis would certainly win, Mussolini told his people, and the sole effect this country's attitude would have would be to lengthen the struggle.

He made no references to Italy's losses of two-thirds of her empire, of the 200,000 prisoners taken in North Africa, nor of the losses Italy had suffered to her fleet.

Mussolini simply placed England on notice that she was doomed, that all her positions in the war had been taken, and that if America wanted to send aid she would find no place to send it.

STRIKES: A Formula

Ever since President Roosevelt's fireside chat the nation had been waiting for a strike-prevention formula, realizing that in the presidential speech there had been a definite pledge to halt defense work stoppages in labor disputes.

It remained for the strike at North American Aviation's plant at Inglewood, Calif., where 12,000 men engaged in building $196,000,000 in warplanes, to provide the answer, and the United States to wonder what kind of an answer it was.

Swiftly, methodically, the troops moved in and took over the plant, began weeding out the union's labor leaders, inspected even the contents of lunch boxes of returning workers, and put the plant back into production within two days that were reported to be "approaching normal."

Within 24 hours planes were rolling off assembly lines into test flights, and on the surface all was apparently well.

But observers began asking themselves questions during the next few days when trouble of various types began to appear, not at North American Aviation, but at other plants.

Several things bothered people who were wondering whether the use of soldiers to take over plants would be a workable system of strike-ending.

Some wondered if perhaps the strikers at Inglewood weren't a bit too willing to have the plant taken over. Others wondered if, perhaps, the strikers' demand of the government that the pay be raised to 87½ cents an hour, or 12½ cents an hour more than they were asking of private industry, and the same wage that the government, they claimed, was now paying workers of similar skill in similar jobs.

The union leaders were equipping men with signs reading "hold out and remember the army can't make planes"—but their pleas fell for the most part on deaf ears, and the second day of the army occupation they voted to go back in a body.

But the army wouldn't take some of them back, ordered others reclassified and shoved in the army at $21 a month instead of $20 or better a week.

C.I.O.:

Red or Pink

One of the by-products of the Inglewood strike and its result was that the Dies committee findings came to the fore and began to render some sort of answer to the popular controversy of the past two years, whether the C.I.O. is red, white or just pink.

Rival unions used to call the C.I.O. red—the C.I.O. maintained it was pure white, and the Dies committee just hinted around that it might be somewhat pink—that there were Communists in the C.I.O., but that it was not proven that it was Communist-controlled or not.

Then came a wide, serious series of defense or partial defense labor troubles, most of them involving one branch or another of the C.I.O.

Alabama's Representative Starnes, active head of the Dies body, promptly made public that each of the striking unions had a Communist or an ex-Communist as its active leader.

In the aircraft industry, Chairman Frankenstein of the aircraft division, who had called the Inglewood strike "outlaw," "wildcat" and "unauthorized," found himself placarded in two ways—as a jackass and as a traitor to the cause by the very union over which he had jurisdiction just as soon as he admitted that the junior local union chiefs were, indeed, Communists.

He ordered them suspended from their jobs, then went to the Inglewood scene of action and made a plea to the men to go back to work. His plea was unsuccessful.

A 'Hold-Out'

Days and weeks passed since the Nazi drive toward Egypt through Libya began and although Axis forces took many points beyond Tobruk they were not able to capture the besieged city itself. Here is British anti-aircraft position inside the Tobruk perimeter. Protected by Italian ammunition boxes filled with stones, they provide ample protection from the splinters of bombs dropped by Nazi fliers.

SYRIA:

Gets in War

Names of the world's oldest towns, including such as Damascus, believed the oldest, and Tyre, considered its closest rival, got into the front page headlines as the British expected of everyone.

Vichy dispatches told of resistance, but except in certain spots the resistance was of the "token" variety—a few shots fired and then the French troops laying down their arms, later to join with the British passively, if not actively.

The invading armies were made up of British and Free French under DeGaulle, and seemed to be moving more or less unchecked into the chief and most important parts of Syrian territory.

Chief work of defense was being done by Nazi warplanes, said to be based on northern Syrian airbases like Aleppo, principal air center of the country.

Britain was not referring in her dispatches to the Syrian advance as a victory, but was rather regarding it as simply a tactically important move to circumvent an expected German move, or at least to meet it on a battleground far removed from Palestine and Iraq oil fields.

It was obvious that the big Syrian airfields were the prime objective, and that if Britain could get hold of them and defend them with resident assistance, a good battle might be put up on Syrian soil, and protect the "backdoor" entrance to Suez and Alexandria.

But the serious resistance near the coastline, and in southwestern Syria made it look as though Britain's success in this objective would not be won without a good deal of fighting.

In general, however, the first advances were meeting with a good deal of resident approval, and with some defections of French colonials to the DeGaulle standard.

CHURCHILL: On Spot

Most seriously since the time he took over leadership of the war effort of Britain, Churchill found himself "on the spot" because of the Crete mishap—and words flew bitterly around commons and on the editorial pages of British newspapers as Churchill defended his program.

The British leader was holding firm—refusing cabinet modification or any step that would even look like an admission that the Churchill government was a flop at handling the war.

Criticism of Churchill was far less bitter than that which was directed at Chamberlain, but it was still far stronger than anything which had previously been leveled at him.

Much of it came from Leslie Hore-Belisha, deposed minister of war. And Churchill turned on this former cabinet member and practically told him to hold his tongue and to recall that the war ministry was in a "lamentable condition" when he laid it down.

Summing up the Crete disaster, he laid it to inadequate control of the air, said the battle was "worth having fought," that it cost the Germans a major effort, and resulted in the loss of 17,000 men and 180 planes, not to mention many surface ships.

Answering the "why" of not enough planes, he said "they were not to be had" unless Britain had been willing to denude the island itself, and that he did not believe it a good policy to try to be safe everywhere at the cost of being strong nowhere.

IRISH: Anomaly

The Irish Free State, having denied President Roosevelt's request that it furnish this country with landing spots for ships bearing aid to Britain, also air and sea bases generally, found itself more and more in an anomalous position—at a stone's throw from Britain at war, and yet neither an aide of Britain or Germany.

Irish cities were being bombed by Germany.

Here's the source of $64,000,000 a year in farm income. That's the value of all Michigan's dairy products, including butter, cheese, evaporated milk and ice cream.

MICHIGAN'S RIVER OF MILK

DAIRY products form the largest single item in Michigan's farm income. In this state—8th in the nation for dairy production—more than half a billion gallons of milk are marketed yearly.

This is a wholesome condition for the state, not only because it benefits Michigan farmers but because milk is Nature's most nearly perfect food.

To maintain the swift, unvarying flow of this river of milk from farm to table, dependable telephone service is all-important. By telephone, the dairy farmer can talk to the milk-receiving station, buy feed and equipment, or discuss creamery prices, all in a few minutes. By telephone, the city milk distributor controls the movements of transport trucks and route men. And by telephone, the housewife orders her pound of butter, quart of milk, or brick of ice cream.

Children need a quart of whole milk a day—adults at least a pint. Modern dairy methods rush pasteurized milk, pure and fresh, to homes all over Michigan.

WHILE PLAYING CATCH WITH EDDIE SELTZER, UNCORKS A PRODIGIOUS WILD THROW

WITH HORROR SEES IT SAIL TEN FEET OVER EDDIE'S HEAD STRAIGHT FOR NEIGHBOR'S GLASSED-IN SUN PORCH

STANDS, ROOTED, WATCHING WHILE HIS STOMACH SEEMS TO DO FUNNY THINGS INSIDE HIM

INSTINCT OF SELF-PRESERVATION IMPELS HIM TO RUN, BUT HE SEEMS POWERLESS TO MOVE

AT LAST SECOND TURNS HIS BACK AND BRACES HIMSELF FOR SOUND OF SHATTERING GLASS

BALL MISSES SUN PORCH BY INCHES AND LANDS IN SHRUBBERY, AT ONCE BURSTS INTO LOUD CRY THAT HE WASN'T EITHER SCARED, AND WHY DIDN'T EDDIE CATCH IT, ANYWAY

HIGH PRICES
Do Not Go WITH ADVERTISING

Advertising and high prices do not go together at all. They are extremely incompatible to each other. It is only the product which is unadvertised, which has no established market, that costs more than you can afford to pay

Whenever you go into a store and buy an item of advertised merchandise, it doesn't make any difference what you are getting more for your money—more in quality and service—than you would get if you spent the same amount for something which was not advertised.
