The hoppers usually hatch in pasture fields and fence rows and quickly migrate to farm crops of considerable value. At this time of year many farmers are watching alfalfa fields with the hope of securing a pleasing cash crop from the seed that is now being formed and for this reason should plan to control the pests so that greatest returns may be had this

The bait consists largely of sawdust andmiddlings poisoned with sodium arsenate. This material is spread at the rate of about 20 pounds per acre over the area where hoppers are found to be hatching. An economical measure is to bait these hoppers while they are still in the pasture fields and before they migrate to the more valuable field crops.

Finley's advice is that farmers who observe young loppers should call at his office and make arrangements to secure hopper bait as an insurance against crop losses.

BEAR:

On Defense The Russian Bear, no matter what the communiques might say, was obviously putting up a hard fight before the advancing German mechanized forces, and the British, who had taken the quick defeat of Russia as a foregone conclusion were beginning to cheer. Churchill, who had been through three previous milder stages of hailing Russia as a companion in arms, finally and very bluntly told the house of commons "of course Russia is an ally of Britain."

One of the signs that the Reds' de-fense of their homeland was vigorous and not without military merit came from an official admission on the part of Germany's high command that the Nazi armies had hurled back a considerable counter-

Communique "solvers" naturally saw in this admission proof that the Russian armies were actually fighting, and battling to some purpose in their gradual withdrawal to the Stalin line and perhaps further to the interior. Washington observers cautioned against too much faith in an eventual Russian victory, however, unless the defenders would be able to withdraw their armies with much of their equipment intact, into that hinterland broadly described as "the Urals.

As in the Battle of France, it was conceded that the French would have had a chance of immobilizing | On the Verge the war only if they were willing to give up Paris and other cherished cities, and move backward with the assault, harassing the advancing Nazis and softening their blows, "riding with the punches" as the boxing phrase has it.

This was the technique which enabled to make a four-year-old war of position out of the Japanese blitz seemed to hint that Japan might be of 1937 in China. It was the same technique which observers in this country were recommending for Russia.

There was nothing in dispatches to show that the Reds were not doing just that, save that no city of vital importance like Leningrad, Moscow or Kiev had yet fallen, though Germans claimed they had passed the latter.

It was impossible, in view of conflicting claims, to determine with even probable accuracy and allowing for a wide margin of error to figure the price being paid by either side in the Russo-German war.

If German claims were to be believed, Russia had left only a fragmentary part of her motorized equipment and her air force. If Russia were to be believed Germany was reduced to using "canvas" tanks and mere boys to operate them.

But even the German communiques admitted Russia still had hundreds of tanks in action, and hun-dreds of planes, and the Reds' bombing activities were reported from neutral points to be hitting targets far within Rumania and far within Finland.

The actual facts of the war, however, remained continually clouded in mystery, despite the fact that correspondents finally were admitted to Moscow, which also installed a short-wave radio to give out war news to the United States and other countries.

HOPKINS: To London

Harry Hopkins, President Roosevelt's "trouble shooter" and confidant, was being sent to London

While there was little definite in-formation readily available as to the reason for Hopkins' second trip to England, it was recalled that only the other day in the house of commons there had been some bitter statement over the handling of American plane purchases.

SYRIA:

Now British

The victory of the British and Free French in Syria, being somewhat dwarfed by the news from Russia and the war developments in this country seemed to receive only minor mention in the American press, though the British were getting more solid satisfaction out of it than had appeared on the eve of the armistice.

Some of the terms began to come overseas, and it was significant that they called for the turning over to the British of all arms except those belonging to individuals, including ships and planes.

Churchill summed up the advantages of the Syrian victory briefly as removing to a greater distance the threat to Suez, also the fact that some of the disaster of Crete had been overcome, in that the air base on the island of Cyprus now could be protected. The Germans, heavily engaged with Russia, however, seemed in no hurry to try another air conquest from Crete to Cyprus.

Business as Usual

The Royal Air force, stepping up its bombing scale steadily, reported as one day of "business as usual" the dropping of 1,500 tons of bombs on cities in Germany and occupied countries.

The British were claiming that these attacks were at least as severe as any Britain had had to withstand during the hey-day of the German onslaught from the air and that they would get stronger as time wore on.

One contrast between the Nazis The quitting cabinet is the one blitz of London and other British objectives and the British attack on which put Soviet Russia into the Rome-Berlin axis, and also, strange-Germany and occupied countries ly enough, into a neutrality accord was in the photographic evidence. Whereas the American news-papers had carried literally thousands of photographs of air-raid effects in England, from the digging out of the dead and wounded to the damage that was done to Westminster Abbey and the tower from which Big Ben chimes out the hours.

The reason was that the British took the pictures of their own damage, and the censors permitted them to be sent out. So the United States got a view of what modern war was like.

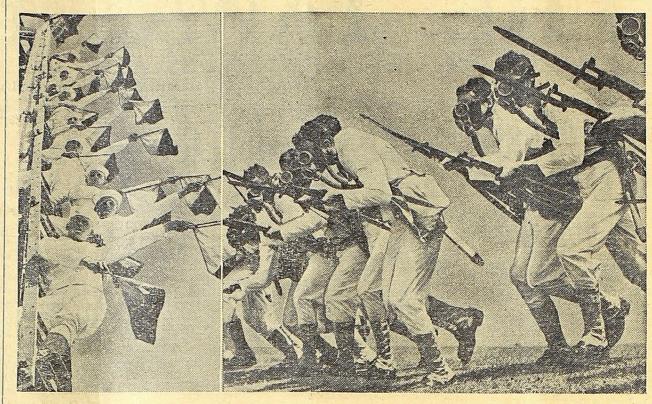

The Germans permitted two or three such pictures to get to this country, but for more than a year nothing of the kind was shown, and as the air attacker can't get low enough to photograph his own damage-it didn't look as though any would get out.

Among the targets were Bremen, Cologne and other big centers of rail and steamship traffic. The German press, in its previous

EW YORK.—Dr. Minnie L. Maffett, who, as president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, is the ica, insists on equal pay for women doing men's jobs, and she also assesses women with heavy responsibility for what lies ahead.

"Women must take leadership in insisting on a new economic world order," says Dr. Maffett.

That might seem like a lot of bother for the women, what with getting the children off to camp and this and that, but Dr. Maffett tells them sternly they must face it, "if we want women to have authority in the world of tomorrow." Her observations were addressed to the biennial meeting of the above federation at Los Angeles.

The silver-haired, blue-eyed, pink-cheeked Dr. Maffett, is, like many contenders for equality and authority for women, emphatically feminine. Premeditated or not, it's a good technique which the early-day suffragists knew and practiced diligently. She lives in Dallas, Texas, where she has long been a distinguished physician and surgeon, a member of the college of medicine of Baylor university, on the staff of the three biggest hospitals in Dallas, and a director of the department of health education of Southern Methodist university.

Descendant of a family which went to Texas in 1834, Dr. Maffett took her academic and medical degrees at the University of Texas. She was elected president of the federation in 1939. She rallies women to intelligent social effort under the slogan "business women in a democracy."

She is a dynamo of energy, flying everywhere-she's an aviation fan-organizing and agitating for women and their work and their readiness for a new economic and cultural showdown after the war. Women certainly do like to get things ship-shape. Perhaps they rate a trial workout, considering the general state of masculine untidiness and confusion now prevailing.

DR. ARTHUR UPHAM POPE, D art connoisseur and leading world authority on Iranian art, heads the "Committee for National

it has discovered and identified Hit-ler's "secret" weapon. As Dr. Pope explains it, the device is the precise scientific mastery of impelling scientific forces by which you can make men think and act as you want them to.

One of the last books of the late Jacques Futrelle, who went down on the Titanic, was "The Thinking Ma-chine." It was about an old professor who discovered what Dr. Pope's committee thinks it has now learned. He finally dominated the world. The theme of the book was that any man who masters certain definite psychological formulas, and employs them diligently, will own and operate mankind.

That is exactly what the Germans have been doing, according to the committee, just now issuing a 155page brochure describing its research and its findings.

The committee, which began work last July, includes many of the leading social scientists and psychologists of the United States. It delivers not only a detailed description of the German psychological masspressure techniques, but it concludes that we have abundant knowledge and skills with which to knowledge and skills with which to meet it. But it will be no hit-or-miss job of agitating. It will be a campaign of psychological warfare as carefully contrived as an air battle.

Mr. Pope, a native of Phoenix,
R. I., was graduated from Brown university. He has long been a disuniversity. He has long been a distinguished figure in the world of both art and philosophy-but always on John Ruskin's terms: "Fine art is that in which the head, the heart and the hand go together."

We saw Dr. Pope occasionally when he was professor of philosophy at the University of California, and again at the Foyot restaurant in Paris in 1923, fired up with Persian art and headed toward Teheran, to sink many years and much brilliant scholarship in that area. After a round-trip to about 3000 B. C., he landed in London in 1930 with the noblest exhibition of Persian art ever assembled.

Last year, with his collection greatly augmented, he staged a memorable exhibition in New York, at the old Union League club.

The other evening as she was exercising Oscar, her big sheep dog, she passed near a subway station about which a crowd had collected. Stretcher bearers brought out a man who had fallen under a train. He was alive-horribly alive. After one involuntary look, she started for the opposite curb. When she reached it, something happened to her knees and blackness swept over her. After light returned she found herself lying on the sidewalk still tightly clutching her dog's leash. About her was the crowd that had been at the subway entrance. And if her dog hadn't kept the doctors and policemen from coming up to her, she would have been in an ambulance with the mutilated man.

At the last meeting of the Section on Nervous and Mental Diswater and add it to the hot tomato eases of the American Medical Association, Doctors William F. Petersen, Chicago, and Hans H. ## Removing Warts walking carefully, perhaps wards or inwards, or a slight limp is noticeable, it is due, in many cases, not to arthritis or to a fallen arch, but to one or more tiny warts buried deep in some callous. It is only when cutting down on the callous that small reddish or brownish black dots may be seen. These dots are really tiny blood vessels.

For the past few years, radium and X-rays has been considered the best method of treatment. However, Drs. J. H. Marks and C. C. Franseen, Boston, in New England Journal of Medicine, state that while this is the best method of removal, there are some cases in which the after effects of this treatment are more or less serious. In a series of 15 cases treated by X-rays, 10 showed a complete cure, one required removal of toe by surgery, one still had a remnant of the wart and three failed to obtain a cure but were later cured by electricity.

Of six patients treated by X-rays after failure by use of radium, only two obtained satisfactory results, one had to have toe removed and three required surgical treatment pans and bake in a quick oven (425 to obtain results.

"If a single radiation treatment fails to cure the method should be discontinued," they report. Electro-dessication, when properly carried out, gives excellent results. The absence of late after effects and the certainty of sure removal of the wart if done under a local anesthetic, easily make up for the slight immediate discomfort. In all cases in which radium has failed, electrodessication has succeeded in removing the wart.'

The lesson, then, is that treatment by use of electricity under a local anesthetic is method of choice when radium and X-rays have failed.

SEE MICHIGAN FIRST!

THERE are many things worth going far to see in this great country of ours. But no Michigan citizen has really "seen America" unless he knows the natural beauty of his own state.

Take your vacation in Michigan this year. Go where your mood and the smooth highway lead you - to sapphire lakes hidden deep in the forest — to wave-swept straits and bays and beaches — to rolling farmland, or the grandeur and solitude of the high dunes.

When you travel in Michigan you will find good roads, comfort, courtesy and hospitality. And day or night you can depend on prompt, efficient telephone service to make your trip even easier and more pleasant. A three-minute call ahead will settle the matter of reservations, save you hurry and worry, let you appreciate the scenery around you; a call home will leave you with an untroubled mind.

This pretty cottage is a Tourist Information Lodge, operated by the Michigan State Highway Department for the convenience of vacationing motorists.

The Lamp in the Valley

Sidney Lander, mining engineer, is engaged to Barbara Trumbull, but apparently has fallen in love with Carol Coburn, Matanuska school teacher. Salaria Bryson, one of her pupils, a big out-door girl, is also in love with him. Carol's father died in Alaska

She said it without enthusiasm. And I, in turn, had my suspicions. She was hungering, not unlike myself, for something beyond the knowledge that comes out of books.

"Love is never wasted," I said, reaching for solid ground in that copybook maxim.

Salaria's glowering eyes studied my face.

"Then why," she demanded, "does a silk-wearin' and washed-out she-cat who ain't got the guts t' stick t' his side tie up a real man like Sid Lander? Why should she harpoon him for life and then back-trail t' the States and reckon he's safe among us walrus-eaters?"

I gravely considered that double-barreled question.

"I suppose it's because he's a man of honor," I finally affirmed. Salaria crossed to the door and looked out at the towering peaks of the Talkeetnas. "Honor wouldn't cut much ice," she said over her shoulder, "if I was the blubber-eater he was pickin' out. If he wanted a woman around his wickyup as much as he wants this cock-eyed colony on the map," she abandonedly proclaimed, "he'd damned soon see my shoepacks under his bunk rail!"

I kept telling myself, after that talk with Salaria, that there was something dignifying in the job of teaching, in molding the minds of the young, in bringing light into the dark places of the world. I was the lamp in the valley.

But the lamp, plainly, stood in need of some new oil. And full as my days were, I'd a feeling that something important in life was forever slipping around the corner before I could quite catch up with it. Yet all I could do, I argued with myself, was to tighten my belt and carry on. I'd no intention of turning into a grumbler. These two hundred families, I maintained, would eventually do for Alaska what the covered wagoners did for the Coast States, seventy long years ago. Or even what the Pilgrim Fathers did for New England.

Yet construction lagged because wrong material had been sent in and the workers wouldn't work. Some of the misfits and troublemakers had already been sent back to the States, to spread the news of the colony's collapse. Some of the others imposed on the Commissary and wolfed more than their share of the supplies. Some growled in secret and some drew up a daily round-robin of complaints. Others went to Wasilla and got drunk. And the less illiterate of the women-folk deplored the rawness of the country that had betrayed them

In a city of tents, where privacy was unknown, I saw things and heard things that at first touched me with horror: love-making with all the candor of the kennel, familyfights echoing through thin walls of canvas, the moans of child-birth mixed with the strains of a mouthorgan, a loose woman with a canine cluster of idlers about her, wash-tubs, mothers in sunny corners combing lice from their children's hair, girls jeered at as they slipped into an unscreened outhouse, stained sheets and flimsy underwear flapping on clotheslines, farm-stock surrendering to the biologic urge under one's very nose, profanity and praying side by side, grossness and greediness, empty cans and offal, crying babies and thrumming ban-

It was all honest and open enough. It was too open, from Betsy Sebeck unbuttoning her waist and giving her big breast to a crying baby with a dozen males watching the operation, to the bed-pots which, in a land without plumbing, had to be emptied in the light of day. But that reversion to the primitive. I told Katie, produced both a bluntness of address and a coarseness of fiber. And women, I contended, felt it

Katie didn't agree with me. She said modern woman had got a damned sight too refined for this world, that it did her good to get out on the frontier where life could fling her back to first principles.

"We're here," said Katie, "for just one end: to work and repro-

"That," I retorted, "leaves us no better than animals.'

-"Well, that's what we are," Katie affirmed, "only the fripperies make us forget it." "But surely civilization's brought us something worth keeping," I suggested. Katie laughed.

"We're not as civilized as you imagine," she said as she buttoned her mannish-looking leather coat. "You'll find that out when your baby's pulling at your breast.'

A touch of unrest, I noticed, extended even to my pupils. They could boast of a big yellow motor bus to carry them to the school door every morning. But only a sprinkling of them came. Compared with the children of the old-timers, the stolid little Scandinavians and Finns and native Alaskans who were inTHE STORY SO FAR comers were both harder to manage and more exacting in their demands. They arrived well fed and well clothed, their lunch-boxes stuffed with Commissary food. They were eyed with envy by the native-born children, who probably saw an orange only at Christmas. But these wards of Uncle Sam came carrying two or three oranges, day by day. Sometimes they had grapefruit and chocolate bars and store cake. Since the supply proved unlimited, they liked to have a pitched battle with those comestibles.

After a final overreckless barrage of oranges I had to make it a rule that no Project child was to bring more than one orange into the classroom. It gave me an unpleasant feeling just under the fifth rib to see poor little Olie Eckstrom rum-maging through that waste, for a half-eaten orange or two, to carry home to his sister Frieda, who couldn't come to school until her mother was able to get to Anchorage to buy her a pair of shoes. began to realize that you can hurt people by too much help.

I was singing as I went to the road with my water pail one morning. And as I turned I came face to face with Eric the Red. 'Why avoid me, Moon of my De he said with his habitual and hateful mockery. "Why shouldn't I?" I asked. I mpelled myself For along the road I could see the approaching figure of Olie Eckstrom, swinging his tin milk pail as he whistled to the tree tops. There was something maddening about the cool assurance of Eric-son's smile. "Why should you, sweet lady when it's written in the stars we're to come together?" His laugh was stripped men bathing openly in both brief and unpleasant. "I'm still awaiting that happy hour. And when it arrives I don't intend to be the forgotten man."

I made no response to that. Instead, I turned and called to Olie, who quickened his pace as he caught sight of me. My little Swedish friend was no Goliath, but even his diminutive figure meant an acceptable ally along that lonely road.

Ericson, watching that figure in bibbed overalls, essayed an ironic gesture of farewell and moved on down the road.

"'E ban a bad man," Olie announced with quiet conviction.

"Why do you say that?" I asked. Olie's answer, when he gave his reasons, was in English both broken and bewildering. But in the end it rather took my breath away. For from the slow-tongued Swede boy I gathered that he had been in the habit of collecting building blocks for his sister Frieda, small board ends that could be picked up between the lumber piles along the siding track. The workmen there were apt to treat him roughly and drive him away with a cuff and a kick. So it was natural, the night before, that he should promptly hide away when he heard voices. But he was able to gather the gist of the talk among those transient sore heads. And their plan, apparently, was to stage a demonstration in front of the Commissary (where a curb had been put on the open-handed distribution of Federal supplies) and while the officials were busy with that riot Ericson and his followers were to start a fire, a purely accidental fire, in the great piles of timber and equipment that lined the

Instead of venturing any comment on the situation he asked me if John Trumbull had been in touch with me during the last few days. When ured to hardship, the A R C new- I informed him to the contrary he led me over to his truck, saying he'd be glad to drop me at my school door.

"But you can't tell how this will turn out," I argued, "and if it's going to be dangerous I want to be around.

"That's just when I don't want you around," he said. "You've had trouble enough in this valley." "But it may mean danger for you," I persisted. Our glances locked, for a moment, and I could see a warmer light well up in his eyes. His brief laugh was both cool and self-confident.

But when we stopped at Palmer and he had a quiet look over the towering supply piles along the siding there his face took on a new seriousness. For hidden under a layer of empty hemp bales, between two piles of pine flooring, he found a five-gallon can of gasoline. The contents of this can he quietly emptied into his truck tank. Then, after a moment's thought, he filled the can with water. Making sure his movements were unobserved, he restored the cap to the can and restored the can to its hiding place under the hemp bales. My pupils didn't get the attention they should have that day. There was many a flicker, before the afternoon wore away, in the lamp of

I was still in my classroom, after the big yellow bus had carried away the last of the children, when Sock-Eye appeared in the doorway.

"I ain't much of a hand at g'ography," he said as his bearlike eyes blinked up at my wall map, "but blinked up at my wall map, "but I've got me a homemade chart here I'm needin' a mess o' help on."

He produced a soiled and rumpled sheet of paper diversified with many pencil-markings and placed it on the desk top in front of me.

"What's this?" I asked, trying in vain to read some meaning into the roughly penciled lines.

roughly penciled lines.
"That," said Sock-Eye, "is a map
o' Klondike Coburn's claim on the Chakitana as I kin best work it out. That's the mine, remember, that ought t' be yourn."

'John Trumbull says it shouldn't,"

I reminded him. "And Sid Lander says it does," retorted Sock-Eye. "But I ain't goin' into that now, girlie. What I want t' check up on is where them location stakes o' your old pappy ought to stand." His stubby finger pointed to a marking on the map. 'Here's the Chakitana, and it ought be about here the Big Squaw comes in. But I can't figger out which side o' that crick the Trumbull outfit is anchored to." "I'm afraid I can't help you much." I said. "You see, Sock-Eye, I've never been there."

"Then why ain't you there now?" demanded the old fire-eater.

'Because I'm needed here in the valley," I answered. "And Sidney Lander's supposed to be looking aft er my claim."

"Yes," snapped Sock-Eye, "fussin' round with these pie-eatin' pikers and waitin' for a bunch of law sharks t' put in the final word. But court rulin's don't git you nowhere, back on the cricks.

I sat looking at Sock-Eye until he shifted a little uneasily under my gaze. I was thinking, as I studied his seamed old face, that he was so misplaced in time that he was pathetic. He impressed me, for all his bristlings of belligerency, as childishly helpless before the newer forces crowding in on his trail. He made me think of a cumbersomely armored turtle, overconfident of his safety as he ambles along a motor highway between the flashing wheels of change that could so easily crush

'What's right or wrong," I finally observed, "isn't decided by gunpowder.'

Sock-Eye's laugh was brief and raucous.

'More'n once, girlie, I've seen it blow a short cut t' the seat o' justice," he said as he patted the worn leather of his gun holster. "And this valley wouldn't be where she is if she could rouse up a leatherslapper or two t' straighten her out." The desolate old figure took a bite of plug tobacco, chewed vigorously, and spat into the stove front. "Filled with a mess o' women and gas cars

Sock-Eye looked at me with the kingly scorn of the unmated male. "Because I never got me a woman?" he demanded.

"If you want to put it that way," I acceded. Still again Sock-Eye spat adroitly into the stove front. "I ain't had trade nor truck with 'em for forty odd years," he averred. "And I guess I'll git along without 'em to the last roundup. No. ma'am, I ain't succumbed t' the plumb loco idee a shack ain't a home unless there's a female fussin'

NEW TESTAMENT LETTERS LESSON TEXT—Galatians 1:11, 12; 1 Thessalonians 2:13; II Timothy 3:14-17; II Peter 3:14-16; Jude 3.

THE HOLY SPIRIT INSPIRES

GOLDEN TEXT-All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for in-struction in righteousness.—II Timothy 3:16.

Letters are usually interesting, frequently very important, and always revealing as to the character and interests of the writer. That is generally true of ordinary daily mail, but how very true it is of the letters of Scripture, the epistles of Peter, Paul, Jude, and John. For in them 'holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost" (II Pet. 1:21).

I. The Gospel (Gal. 1:11, 12; I Thess. 2:13).

The good news (for that is the meaning of "gospel") of salvation by grace through faith in Jesus Christ as Saviour has from the very hagining of its proclamation became beginning of its proclamation been subject to attack. Men are not con-tent to receive God's way of salvation, but want to add something to it, adjust its requirements to meet new situations, to tinker and twist. 1. A Divine Revelation (Gal. 1:

11, 12). Paul was not presenting something which he or some other man had "worked up," but a message that he had "prayed down." Paul was only delivering that which he had received from God (see I Cor. 15:1-4). He was careful that it should not be confused with or by the teachings of men, so he "con-

Gal. 1:15, 16). We too are privileged to proclaim a divine revelation which has come to us in the inspired Word of God. How delightfully sweet and tremendously powerful is the message which we may thus bring forth. It has no human frailty and weakness, no human error, and no misleading no human error, and no misleading philosophies. It does not need to be revised every year or two. It is God's eternal message of redemp-

A Message of Salvation (1 Thess. 2:13).

It works in those who believe. Yes, it does-blessed be the name of God! God's Book says so, and the experience of hundreds of thousands of men and women over a period of almost 2,000 years agrees.

Note, however, that to work, the message must not only be "received," but also "accepted" as the Word of God. The message of the Bible may be received as a matter of fact, but for salvation it must be accepted and believed as a matter of faith.

II. The Bible (II Tim. 3:14-17; II

Pet. 3:14-16). Near the end of a life given in utter sacrifice to God's cause, Paul is ready to be used of the Holy Spirit to speak concerning the written Word.

1. It Is God-Inspired (II Tim. 3:

14-17). Be sure to read this passage in the Authorized Version. The Revised has taken liberties with this verse which the finest scholarship does not countenance. It properly reads, "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine (teaching), for reproof, for correction, for instruction," etc. Other books may claim some kind or measure of human inspirationthis Book is inspired of God. If there were space, proof of the truth of that statement could easily be given. It is available for all who want to believe it.

2. It Is Not to Be Wrested (II Pet. 3:14-16).

If permitted to do so, God's Word will bring peace of heart, make a man spotless and blameless (v. 14). But its salvation (v. 15) is not for those who ignorantly, or because of their ignorance, or because they are not steadfast in their lives, wrest its truth. Let us receive the Word with gladness, not twist it or distort its meaning to our own destruction.

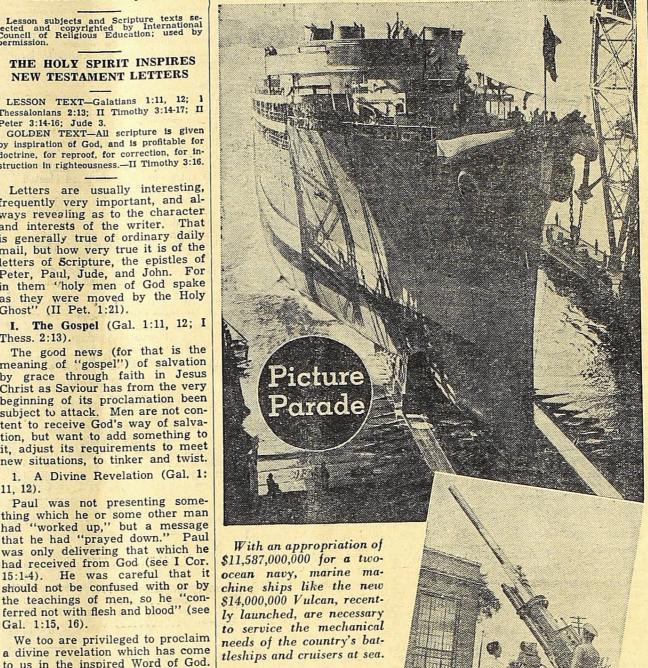

III. The Faith (Jude 3). 1. It Was "Delivered Once for

It is a final revelation from God. There is no other gospel, and there never will be another. What assurance that gives us both in believing it and proclaiming it! But the world hates this gospel, and attacks on it are to be expected. Therefore

2. It Is to Be Earnestly Contended For.

No matter how peaceable we may be, how loving and tenderhearted, if and when attack is made upon the Lordship of Christ, when men make light of sin, and so seem to minimize the vital importance of holiness of life-then, however unpleasant contention and controversy may be to us, it is time we cast our self-regard aside and contend earnestly for the faith once for all delivered to the saints." (J D. Jones)

Engaged in the most gigantic armament program in world history, the U.S. expects to spend approximately $28,480,000,000 on ships, tanks, planes, munitions, training camps and other defense needs during the next two years. of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of distriness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new Irlends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!
