NEW YORK.—United States army men feared, when Maj. Gen. Allen W. Gullion was passed by in favor of Lieut. Col. Lewis B. Hersey Gen. Gullion Stays as administrator of the In Army; Fellow selective Soldiers Are Glad service act, that President Roosevelt in all likelihood had him in mind for some important civilian duty.

Not that such a compliment would not have been appreciat-ed by General Gullion's fellow soldiers. It was merely that his legal services as judge advo-cate-general, to which office he was appointed in 1937, were so valuable as to cause wonder as to just what officer could in precise degree fill the place of a man who, in addition to the Distinguished Service medal—for administrative brilliancy as chief of the mobilization division in the provost marshal's office in the first World war-holds a bachelor of law degree as a graduate of the University of Kentucky law school.

But the army keeps him, after all by virtue of his appointment as head of the re-created office of provost marshal-general with duties including the training and command of military police, supervision of internment camps for aliens and related activities. It will perhaps be recalled that this office was held in 1917-18 by Maj. Gen. Enoch Crow-

General Gullion, now 61 years old, having been born in Carrolton, Ky., in 1880, was graduated from Centre college in 1901 and from West Point in 1905. While on duty as professor of military science and tactics at the University of Kentucky in 1914 he took the law course, being grad-uated with an LL.B.

During 1929 he was the war department representative at an international conference of 47 nations at Geneva to formulate a code for the handling of prisoners of war and to revise the Geneva convention of 1906. A graduate of the school of command and general staff at Fort Leavenworth, his experience as a student of arms was broadened by a course of study at the naval war college, Newport, R. I., from which he was graduated in 1932, having the previous year completed his courses in the army war college.

Roosevelt-Churchill Meeting at Sea Brings Joint Declaration of War Aims Seeking 'A Better Future' for World; Vichy-Nazi Collaboration Strengthened

(EDITOR'S NOTE-When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT From their historic meeting at sea came an eight-point joint declaration of general war aims and a plan for "a better future for the world."
(See below: HISTORIC MEETING—A Declaration.)

HISTORIC MEETING: A Declaration

After a secret meeting at sea, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain, issued and signed a joint declara-tion of general war aims.

This declaration in its introduc-tion explained that two men, "being met together, deem it right to make known certain common principles in the national policies of their re-spective countries on which they base their hopes for a better future for the world.

The declaration then went on to outline the sort of world that would be sought following the end of the war. In its eight point text, the message expressed in a general way the foreign policy of the present U.S. administration and from the British point of view it was most concrete statement of war aims yet disclosed by that government.

In the opening point of the dec-laration it was declared that neither the U. S. nor Britain sought "aggrandizement, territorial, or other." In the next and following points the ideals expressed included: the right of all peoples to choose their own form of government; a system of world trade working to the benefit of all nations; a desire for "fullest collaboration between all nations in the economic field"; "after the final destruction of Nazi tyranny" hope was expressed for a peace in which all nations could exist in safety and 'traverse the high seas . . . without hindrance"; and finally, a plea for the abandonment of the use of force between nations of the world.

This historic document and meeting, when they were announced ended two weeks of rumors about possibility of the men meeting. No sooner had the President left Washington on what was announced to be a short vacation cruise before the speculation and guessing began to sweep through this country and England. Churchill was said to be absent from London on pertinent 'war matters.'

For five days no direct word as to the President's whereabouts was available to the U.S. public. Then came word that an announcement was to be made.

It was reported that at the meetings (there were several conferences) high ranking army and naval officials of both countries were present. From the White House came a statement that they had examined "the whole problem of the supply of munitions of war."

DRAMA:

In Washington

It was high drama, that passage of the bill which makes the service of selectees, guardsmen and regulars 18 months more than they signed up for.

The closeness of the vote, 203 to 202, was part of it, but the suddenness with which it came, the bitterness of the press and forensic fight on the measure, gave the battle its punch and severity.

The climax came when the calm voice of Speaker Sam Rayburn announced the totals, a victory for the administration by one vote. This was met by a tumult in galleries and on floor of almost indescribable excitement.

It had been one of those things that no one could have predicted, and in which both sides felt sure of victory until the totals had been announced

As the count grew late, low and apprehensive whistles were heard from the members of congress as the vote balanced and then unbalanced each other.

The vote found the widest split of delegations in many a year. There were 182 Democrats for the measure and 21 Republicans; 65 Democrats and 133 Republicans against, 14 paired and 14 not voting.

This vote did something that legislation seldom does, in giving each representative a keen realization of the value of his single vote.

COLLABORATION: Vichy-Nazi Pact

Coming at a moment when the Russo-German war was in its most critical stage, and at a time when the Japanese situation was at a sort of peak crisis, the Vichy-Nazi rapprochement, ending in an upset of the government's policy of limited collaboration, and putting the highly anti-British Darlan practically at the helm of French affairs was a sensation indeed.

It was one of those sensations of the type that "we knew all along was going to happen, but it was still a major shock when it hap-

One was forced to look at the mat-ter both from the British-American viewpoint, however, and from the viewpoint, largely a matter of one's imagination, of Marshal Petain

Preparatory articles had been written by escaped Frenchmen quoting the record of Petain's career to show that he had been both obstructionist and defeatist in the last war, and not at all the hero that early histories had painted.

His collapse, therefore, was not unexpected in wiser quarters, and yet a double analysis of his reasons was possible, one perhaps more charitable to the old man himself, the other perhaps a more realistic summation of the whole affair.

Petain, one might say, viewing the impossible situation of France, was making a complete surrender to SLASH: Germany's demands, hoping for and betting on an eventual German victory, and at the same time expecting that when the debacle and crumbs from the conqueror's table.

History Will Tell

That was the realistic view of the situation, and the one most generally accepted in Britain. More charitable was the thought that Petain, working for France in a country already vanquished, and with Laval and Darlan, both friendly to the Nazis, at his side, had no other course than to surrender and those so viewing his act expressed the hope that Petain was secretly wishing for a complete resistance to German occupation of French colonies and bases by the Weygand

Whichever might turn out to be the factual reason, the eventuality was the same, for few doubted but that the French fleet, barring British preventive measures, perhaps aided by the United States, would be placed at Hitler's disposal for some move in the western Mediterranean. Perhaps, it was said, full collaboration was a prerequisite to an allout invasion attempt on the part of Germany, and, if successful, a complete German victory.

That, in sum, was Petain's dream, say the British, when he addressed his people over the radio and said: "Frenchmen, I have grave things to tell you!'

Second Phase

The Nazis' big second push on the eastern front was producing results in territory gained, but it still was debatable as to whether Russian resistance was being shattered, or whether the pattern of Chinese resistance to Japan was being repeated in another sector of the

Russia admitted gains of considerable importance on the northern and southern fronts, with Germany making the border claims, one asserting that a territory of approximately 35,000 square miles had been nipped off in the Black sea region.

They asserted their panzer divisions had driven down to the Black sea coast past Odessa, trapping within this territory some large numbers of Russian armed forces, which, they asserted would be annihilated in due course of time. Russian fliers still continued to

ORIENT:

Japan Committed

The report that the Japanese had landed 180,000 men in Indo-China and that most of these would be concentrated on the Thai frontier, was taken in British circles to mean that the Japs were committed to invasion, and that when it started, Britain would find herself fighting on a new front.

What sounded very much like an ultimatum to Nippon was described in dispatches from Melbourne, which stated with positiveness that Britain and the United States had informed the Japanese that they must inform the two countries "whether she agrees to forego her policy of ex-pansion southward," and that a reply was insisted upon within a stipulated time.

Russia's answer to Japanese objections to the use of the Siberian port of Vladivostok for lend-lease ships from America was that Russia intends to convoy such shipments with naval vessels, producing an other eastern danger point.

The Russians also demanded that Japan sign a non-aggression pact without reservations.

The report of Japanese occupa-tion with 180,000 troops came from Manila, a source which also stated that the British are forming in considerable force along the Malayan and Burmah borders of Thailand, ready to move in if they feel Japanese invasion is a certainty.

Of considerable significance in the Washington scene was the fact that reorganization of Europe might the senate appropriations commit-France would get some tee made emergency history by slashing more than a billion and a quarter dollars from the army appropriation bill, the first defense appropriation amount that has not passed with a "rubber stamp" reg-

The committee, headed by Sena-tor Glass of Virginia, made the cut by unanimous vote. The cut amounted to 17.3 per cent of the amount asked, a substantial slice indeed.

The house already had passed the bill on July 28, and had sent it to the senate with the inclusion of an item of $1,347,000,000 for tanks, and for anti-tank and anti-aircraft guns.

Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson had personally urged the inclusion of this item. It was, he said, "essential to the army if the United States was to move into armed conflict."

The senate committee, having slashed $1,347,000,000 by disapproving this item, then turned around and added $112,000,000 to the bill, thus making the net cut $1,235,000,-

The main facts about the requested appropriation were kept from the public as military secrets, but it was known that the amount asked was for equipment for "over and above" an army of 3,000,000 men. In other words, this number of men could be equipped with tanks, anti-tank and anti-aircraft guns through appropriations already O.K.'d, but the committee turned thumbs down on the additional equipment to go beyond the 3,000,000man figure.

The figures called for 4,600 medium tanks; 1,500 light tanks, and that the "biggest item" was for anti-aircraft guns, and that 1,000 of these were to have been of 4.7 inch caliber.

Plane Attacks

Once more the English channel was the central scene of air warfare with the British attacking German points in ever-increasing regularity and ferocity, while the Nazis, stung into action by the long series of raids on Berlin, came back across the channel with a renewal of severe air attacks.

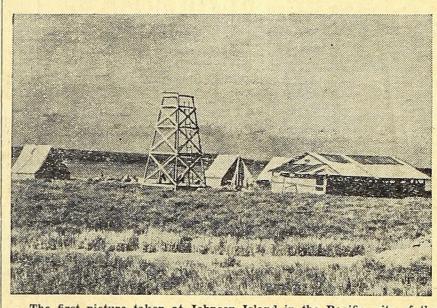

Previously, for many days even before the start of the Russo-German war, the Nazi attacks had been by single planes or small groups.

Statue of Liberty Becomes Mecca For Freedom-Loving U.S. Citizens

Conceived more than 65 years ago by Auguste Bartholdi, a French sculptor, and victim of German oppression then, the Statue of Liberty, above, was a gift of the French nation to this country. In a world threatened with the loss of the very ideals the famous figure stands for, the people are making Bedloe's island, more and more their national shrine, as they visit there by the tens of thousands.

By DON G. SANDRA. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

NEW YORK. - Visitors to the Statue of Liberty, declared a recent news item, are running about 60 per cent ahead of last year, and all indications point to a record attendance of more than a half a million for 1941.

Inquiry among gentlemen who analyze statistics showed that the colossus of Bedloe's island currently lures more people than such sights like Radio City, the Brooklyn bridge, or the Hall of Fame. In this 165th year of United States independence, the monument to Liberty probably ranks as the world's foremost tourist attraction.

All the day the tide of pilgrims flows back and forth across the mile and a half stretch of New York bay that separates Bedloe's island from the body of Manhattan. Children and teachers, mothers and infants, honeymooners, vacationists and sightseers - all ages, colors, nationalities, religions. Everybody curious to see and touch this malachite green copper-coated Goddess, the embodiment of a human longing handed down from ancient times.

Why are they bent on visiting the shrine of Liberty? Many reasons reduce to this: In 1941 the liberties of every American-man, woman, and child-are at stake. The pilgrims see this hollow figure of copper as a dynamic symbol of 1941's sanguinary struggle to preserve the freedoms born of the French Revolution, the American Revolution, and the numerous New world revolts against oppression by foreign re-

The Goddess of Liberty also personifies a new meaning; it was thrust upon her by President Roosevelt when he envisioned a world granting all men the Four Freedoms: freedom from want, freedom of religion, freedom from fear, and freedom from hunger.

Interest in the pilgrims increased as I mingled among them on the steamer Ossining, which plies be-tween Battery park and Bedloe's is-

All eyes fix on the Goddess, whose dimensions expand as the Ossining draws near. And from the children arises a murmur of "Ahs" upon discovering how huge the Goddess really is. The torch outstretched stabs a cloud; the folds of her garment show up as weather-beaten waves.

Erected in 1885.

Elderly folk who, perhaps, had witnessed the erection of Liberty, in 1885, recall for the benefit of those who care to listen such dimensions as, height above sea level, 300 feet; the length of Liberty's arm, 40 feet; the length of her index finger, 8 feet, the length of her nose, 41/2 feet, the width of her eye, 21/2 feet, the thickness of her waist, 35 feet, etc.

On close inspection you can see the riveted joints of wrinkled copper sheets which form the outer skin. The interior steel structure braces the Goddess against wind pressure

tor shaft and several corkscrew staircases

Pilgrims enter the foundation through an opening in the thick blocks of granite, and for a few cents they travel by elevator to the top of the stone pedestal. To ascend beyond that point they climb 161 steps up the narrow staircase which lands them inside the skull of Liberty. Above her brow, Liberty's diadem consists of windows through which one can see the map of New York harbor.

In the foreground is Governor's island, covered with army barracks and supply depots. Away to the left, lies the Battery, with dozens of skyscrapers crowded together. Directly ahead lies Brooklyn, most populous borough in the city of New York; and off to the right are the Narrows, the bottleneck for all large vessels entering or leaving New European Refugees.

From the Narrows, the visitor arriving by boat gets his first full glimpse of Liberty. Here tens of thousands of immigrants and refugees driven from lands of oppression first set their eyes on that serene, majestic face at the gateway of the New world civilization.

Here is where the sculptor Auguste Bartholdi, driven from his Alsatian home by the Germans, conceived an epic tribute to liberty; and he saw on Bedloe's island the logical site for a colossal allegorical statue, a Goddess of Liberty, released from imprisoning chains and holding aloft her torch of enlightenment at the gateway to a free civilization. It is said that Bartholdi modeled Liberty after his own mother

For millions who sailed past the Narrows, the Goddess spelled a new dawn, especially on remembering that the monument is a gift from the people of France to the people of the United States and commemorates the alliance of the two nations in achieving the independence of the United States of America.

Survey Suggests Study to Balance American's Diet

MINNEAPOLIS .- "Family health defense" classes should be set up immediately in public and vocational schools, to teach the American wife and mother how to keep the family healthfully fed in spite of rising food prices and possible scarcities, warns a current study of the food price situation.

"Bottled" vitamins are not a substitute for a balanced diet of healthful foods, in spite of their specific values, and there is a real hazard to public health if the layman gets exaggerated ideas of what they will accomplish, the study states. Injecting these products into common staples such as white flour can correct certain important deficiencies, but such measures can do only one part of the job.

With food prices on the rise, and a growing need to share our food supplies with other nations, moderate and low-income families are liable to be badly pinched on their food budgets before the emergency is over, the study warns. The usual mistake made in such circumstances is to substitute with too large a proportion of starchy foods, which are cheaper and give a feeling of fullness. This error can have widespread ill effects on health, as the British have already learned.

Simple, non-technical instruction in common food values is needed, so the American housewife can learn quickly how to substitute without cheating her family of food elements absolutely necessary to maintain health. This, the study says, means instruction that does not bewilder her with complicated tables of calories, "international units," alphabetical lists of vitamins, and milligrams of minerals-but instead deals in pounds and cupfuls and teaspoonfuls-in terms and ingredients with which she is accustomed to Meats, eggs and dairy products, known as the animal protein group, and the fresh fruit and vegetable group are the sections of the menu which suffer most when the food budget is pinched. Though starchy foods are relatively cheap, and have a large and necessary place in the diet, they cannot take the place of the other essential groups too, however much they are fortified with added vitamins and minerals. The whole alphabet of vitamins, the study cautions, cannot offset a lack of proteins-the stuff from which the body is rebuilt. And proteins are getting more expensive.

Therefore the American housewife needs immediate training, this study by the Northwestern National Life Insurance company continues, in wise choice of those cheaper foods which are often fully equal to more expensive articles in actual food value. Also she needs training in the tasty preparation of those cheaper foods so the family will accept Cheaper cuts of meat, and some of the animal organs-hearts, livers, kidneys, etc.—furnish just as much protein, and oftentimes more of the valuable fats, while the hearts, livers, etc., also furnish extra vitamins and minerals not found so richly in many expensive cuts of meat. Powdered milk and evaporated milk are relatively low cost sources of animal protein for bodybuilding.

Whole wheat flour, and potatoes with the skins on are examples of inexpensive foods that are rich in

THE WRITER OF HEBREWS EX-PLAINS THE NEW COVENANT

LESSON TEXT—Hebrews 9:11-22.
GOLDEN TEXT—Being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him.—Hebrews 5:9.

The infinite superiority of the Lord Jesus Christ, in both person and work, is a theme which the writer of Hebrews presented to encourage Hebrew Christians who were suffering much for their faith (Heb. 10:32) and were being tempted to turn back to Judaism (Heb. 2:1; 3:12). His purpose was not only to stem the tide of unbelief and discouragement, but to urge them to go on to better things (6:1-3) because of the better covenant under which they had come as believers in Christ.

The portion of the chapter before us deals with the heart of the matter in presenting the sacrifice of Christ as being superior to all the sacrifices of the Old Testament. The verses are somewhat difficult to outline, but the following, adapted in a measure from Dr. W. H. Griffith Thomas, will be helpful.

I. The Ministry of Christ-a Better Ministry (vv. 11-14). Every act of worship calls for a sanctuary and a worshiper. Under the old covenant the Jews were familiar with the tabernacle into which their priests went daily; and the holy of holies into which the high priest went once a year with the blood of goats and bulls; but now under the new covenant they

1. A Better Priest and Sanctuary

No longer do we need the mediating priesthood of a fellow man set apart for that office, for Christ Himself has become a High Priest and is the "one mediator between God and men" (I Tim. 2:5), yet He is not one "who cannot be touched with the feelings of our infirmities; but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin" (Heb. 4:15). 2. A Better Sacrifice and Blessing

(v 12). The blood of Christ, the perfect and final sacrifice for sin, resulted in a once-for-all solution of the sin problem and provided the blessing of eternal redemption.

3. A Better Result (vv. 13, 14). The sacrifices of the Mosaic ritual had an outward result. They "removed ceremonial disabilities, they restored the unclean to fellowship, they kept the chosen people in covenant relation with God." They "did sanctify and cleanse the flesh; how much more the blood of Christ' (Moorehead). His sacrifice gave spiritual cleansing, the cleansing of the "conscience from dead works to serve the living God" (v. 14).

II. The Ministry of Christ-an Efacacious Ministry (vv. 15-22).

This ministry of our High Priest, Christ, is well characterized by the word "efficacious," which means "having the effective energy to produce an effect." He came into the world "to save sinners" (I Tim. 1:15), and He did it. We note

1. The Power of the New Ministry (v. 15).

The surrender of Christ even unto death gives validity and efficacy to the new covenant. "All the trans-gressions of the old covenant had been treasured up; the death of Christ gave satisfaction to all that that covenant could claim, and brought release. So the Mediator of the new covenant begins an entirely new economy, with sin put away by the sacrifice of Himself, and an open path to the beginning of a new life in the favor and power of God' (Andrew Murray).

2. The Guarantee of the New Minlstry (vv. 16, 17).

Speaking of our redemption as an eternal inheritance (v. 15) naturally leads to the thought that a testament or will does not become effective until the death of the testator. God has "blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ: according as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world" (Eph. 1:3, 4). He has bequeathed all that to us, and the bequest is made certain by His death. That means that not only our salvation, but "everything we have had, even our temporal mercies, are a part of those purchased and bequeathed blessings; everything is sanctified by the precious death of our Lord Jesus Christ.

3. The Confirmation of the New Ministry (vv. 18-22). The shedding of blood on Calvary's tree for the remission of sin was not a new or strange thing The proof for that is given by referring to all of the old covenant procedure for the cleansing of the sinner. How was it brought about? Through blood. In that Old Testament covenant it was the blood of goats and bulls, not sufficient to perfectly cleanse the spirit of man nor give him once-for-all remission, but nonetheless a type of the better sacrifice of the Lamb of God. Then "let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering (for he is faithful that promised.)"

NEW EFFECTIVE HAY FEVER RELIEF

Hay fever, which annually causes more sneezes, more inflamed noses and more red, streaming eyes than any other scourge, may have its final big fling this September, all because a Pennsylvania electrical engineer was served a dish of corn meal mush which was entirely too salty.

The engineer, sneezing, and with all other hay fever manifestations, stopped at a hotel where he was supper at a noter where he was served a dish of mush which he considered sending back as it was much too salty. Finally he ate it, however; the hay fever attack lessened, ultimately ceased. Next day he had three meals, all overgeted and every experienced his most salted, and experienced his most comfortable time in years in the "hay fever season."

His analytical mind quickly grasped the possibility that the saline substance in his food was responsible for his relief.

About this time, Dr. E. E. Selleck, a graduate of Columbia University, met the engineer made versity, met the engineer, made notes, and when he returned to his home, began experiments. Today Dr. Selleck declares he has found a certain means of relief for hay fever and is supported in his con-tention by other medical experts, and a nationally known chemical manufacturing concern, the Hol-lings-Smith Company, at Orange-burg, New York, has taken over making the remedy, which is called Nakamo Bell

Describing the experiments, Dr. Selleck said, "After I was sure I had found a means of quickly relieving hay fever through the chloride group, I tested it in the "The man who's trying to murder us," was Lander's curt reply. That backtrailing, however, turned into a quartering and cautious advance, once we had climbed to highmost practical way I knew. I held a three day clinic, to which many years. Each person was given two tablets with a little water. Some relief came to all within ten minutes. Reports on these cases during the ensuing weeks showed practically a complete cessation of symptoms."—Adv.

le Lamp in the Valley THE STORY SO FAR

Three women love Sidney Lander, Alaska mining engineer. He is engaged to Barbara Trumbull, whose rich father is contesting the mining claim of Carol Coburn, teacher at Matanuska. Lander breaks with Trumbull. Salaria Bryson, a big out-door girl, with an unmistakable note of triumph in his voice.

Yet all I could see, in the distance. was a meandering ribbon of water, an uncertain thread of water muddy with glacial silt as it twisted between broken rock and gravel beds fringed with dwarfed birch trees and in the blue-shadowed distance lost itself in what must have been a

"There's no plane at Cranberry Lake," I heard him say. "And the Trumbull mine's shut down. Everything's empty there."

He stooped and handed me the glasses, pointing into the valley. I finally made out the mine buildings, deserted and idle. And in all the broken terrain beyond them I could detect no sign of life.

"I don't understand this," Lander said as he reached for the glasses again. And even as he spoke a sound that was neither a whine nor a whistle smote on my ears. A moment later the sound was repeated, followed by the splash of a bullet against the rock on which Lander was standing.

"Get back," he called out to me. "Keep low."

His own drop from the rock top was so abrupt that the binoculars fell at my feet. He motioned me down as another bullet whined over-

"So that's how they welcome us!" he said as his eyes narrowed and yet remained alight with a grim sort of humor.

Still another bullet cut across the top of the rock behind which we crouched. "They're getting their range," my trail mate sardonically observed.

"But who is it?" I gasped. "That's what I've got to find out," said Lander as he reached for his own rifle. But instead of bringing it into use he crowned the barrel end with his hat and slowly lifted it above the top of our sheltering rock.

There was a far-off report, and I saw the hat that had been on the barrel and whicked to feet on the barrel end whisked ten feet away. Lander, when he guardedly recovered it, found a bullet hole through one side of the felt brim. He looked at it ruminatively. Then he put the hat back on his head. He sat in the rock shadow, studying the wide amphitheater of runneled and canyoned mountain slope that surrounded us.

"We'll crawl back," he quietly announced, "and come on him from another quarter."

"On whom?" I queried, trying in vain to match quietness with quietness.

ty mine buildings. I was glad to sit and rest while Lander crawled cautiously forward and, through that tangle of willow, carefully studied the alley beneath him. He studied it for a long time. Then he crept back to my side, his somber eyes quite without any look of satisfaction. "Let's eat," he said as he reached for his discarded shoulder pack. Instinctively I looked about for fuel; but he stopped me with a ges-

Later we squatted Indianlike on the rocky floor of a sheltering bowl and ate as the shadows shifted and a wood-warbler twittered and hopped between the clump-willows.

"You'll have to stay here," Lander said, "I've got a little scouting to do. If anything should happen, give me a couple of signal shots from that six-gun of yours."

"But I can go where you go," I maintained. Lander studied my face. Then he smiled a little. "I don't want you in this," he said with a quiet but steely firmness. "But if it's dangerous for you l want to be in it," I persisted.

"I know what I'm doing," he said. "And you've still got to believe in me." He didn't even say good-by. He merely slipped over the edge of the rock and lost himself in the fireweed and balsam fringing the stream that went singing down into the lower valley. I crouched behind my clump-willow, watching for some sign of him. I saw him at last, flattened Indian fashion in a narrow crevasse as he inched his way down into that hollow of uncertainty. He went very Then my heart leaped into my mouth. A rifle shot echoed through the valley, tearing a hole in the silence. And before its echoes died away it was followed by another shot, and still another. I saw Lander drop beside a boulder; and I thought, for one frantic moment, that he had gone down with a bullet through his body. But I could see him edge up over the crown of that boulder, with his rifle extended, pointing across a rock·also loves Lander. She disappears. Lander finds Salaria. Barbara misinterprets the

"That's the Big Squaw," he said | stippled stadium to where a small whiff of smoke was drifting off between a sprinkling of hardheads. I could see him suddenly bend low and run toward the shelter of a larger boulder, where he again guardedly trained his rifle and fired at some undecipherable target.

I forgot my trail mate's warning and went scrambling over the shelf edge, groping for my six-gun as I went.

I knew it was dangerous, but I didn't much care. All I remembered was that I was Alaska born and my blood was up. I couldn't see a man killed for a cause that was essentially mine. To stand aside, at such a time, was more than cowardly.

I disregarded Lander's shout of warning and ran on, scarcely thinkng of cover. Then an odd thing happened.

Instead of the bark of a rifle I heard the bark of a voice, half in protest and half in anger. "Sock-Eye," was the shout that fell on my ears. It came from the tall figure which was no longer

To stand aside, at such a time, was more than cowardly.

And that, I knew, was Lander, a startled and indignant Lander who wasn't even trying to wave me back.
"Sock-Eye, you old fool, stop it," was the repeated shout that echoed across the valley. And it was answered, a moment later, by a call of a timber wolf and the ki-yi of a happy cowboy.

I could see the shaggy old figure that emerged from its hiding place and stood in startled wonder, staring at his equally startled enemy. "I'll be hornswiggled if it ain't Sid Lander," cried the embattled old-timer as he lowered his firearm. "And me a-tryin' t' blow him out o' the valley!"

"What do you mean by it?" demanded Lander, striding toward Sock-Eye stood scratching his head, a picture of bewilderment touched with contrition. His wandering gaze fell on me and he emitted a second triumphant ki-vi.

Then Sock-Eye turned back to the taller figure confronting him, the squint of incredulity going out of his bearlike eyes as he studied the newcomer. Then he spat and leaned on his rifle.

"I thought you was that yellowbellied coyote Trumbull planted in these parts t' do his dirty work for him.

"What coyote?" questioned Lan-

"That fire-eatin' Ericson," Sock-Eye answered. "He's still snakin' round this valley tryin' to ease the hate out o' his system by puttin' lead in folks."

der's face. "Then it was Ericson fired on the plane two days ago?"

This fact brought a frown to Lan-

I could see a look of guile creep over the seamed old face. Then a smile widened the brown-stained and slowly relenting old mouth.

"I reckon them pot shots came from me all right," he slowly acknowledged. "I was under the deloosion it was Trumbull comin' back t' trump my ace when I had him already licked."

"You might have killed somebody," cried Lander. The bearlike old eyes lost the last of their benevolence. "There's jus' one snake, I'm aimin' for t' git," Sock-Eye slowly affirmed "And right now he's hidin' and huggin' a rifle somewheres between here and Cranberry Lake. And if you don't git him he'll sure git you."

Lander's narrowed eye studied the valley bottom. "Why is he here?" I asked, chilled by the thought of unseen menace all about us. "B'cause he's fuller o' venom than a cage o' copperheads," was Sock-Eye's deliberated reply. "He's so again. plumb sour with hate he can't see property. It was like leavin' a trap set with pizen bait behind him." "What did you mean by saying you had Trumbull licked?" Lander demanded.

Still again I saw the look of guile on Sock-Eye's crafty old face. His eyes, when he spoke, were not on Lander, but on me.

"I ain't got nothin' aginst collegedood engineerin'," he said. "Leasta-ways, when a high-collar plootocrat tries t' change the face o' nature, there's always two can play at the same game."

"What do you mean by that?" Lander questioned.

"I mean, mister," was Sock-Eye's quiet-toned answer, "that I happened t' mush in here afore Trumbull and his survey officials dropped into this valley. They was bankin' on the Big Squaw t' show 'em ol' Klondike Coburn's claim couldn't lie along the crick bank where his patent sure said she ought t' lie."

I waited for Sock-Eye to go on. But as he stood silent for a moment or two, with a somber light in his crafty old eyes, he seemed to be turning a succulent thought over in his mind, very much as a squirrel turns a nut over in its paws.

"I reckon a earthquake must've run recent through these regions,' he blandly suggested. "For there was the ol' Big Squaw, right back in the bed where she belonged. And when them engineerin' sharps got through with their maps and sightin' tools they sure had t' tell Boss Trumbull the mine was located proper and the claim stood as recorded. And the ol' skunk was so sprayed with his own scent that

"Wait a minute," interrupted Lander, fixing the other with a steady eye. "How much dynamite did you pack into this valley?"

Sock-Eye scratched his head and spat. Then his leathery old throat shook with a chuckle.

"I reckon, tenderfoot," he observed, "I savvied how t' handle blastin' powder afore you was born.' "Then it was you changed the course of the Big Squaw?"

"I put 'er back where she belonged," Sock-Eye stubbornly maintained, "where she was on the original survey."

"But that doesn't mean the issue's settled," contended my champion. "Sure she's settled," Sock-Eye proclaimed. "Them gover'ment sharps flew out three days ago, headin' for Juneau t' register their findin' and confirm the claim. I'll that was halfway between the howl lead you over t' the Big Squaw and show you where your location posts is all set reg'lar and your limits defined. "Why do you say when the coast is clear?" Lander exacted.

"B'cause there's a hate-soured son o' misery skulkin' around behind them rocks," he announced, "and he ain't consoomed with love for any one of us. Fact is, folks, we've got t' git under cover."

He turned and pointed toward a rock ledge that wavered along the water-torn mountain slope. "I've got me a nifty little hide-out up that hillside there. She's tarp-roofed and bedded down with balsam and plumb out o' sight from pryin' eyes down here."

I knew a sudden sense of weariness touched with homelessness as I waited for Lander to retrieve our overlooked shoulder packs.

"You've had hard goin,' girlie," Sock-Eye observed after a glance into my face. "But you've got your mine.' "It doesn't seem so important," I said out of my backwash of weari-

Sock-Eye wagged a shaggy head. "I guess you're right, girlie. It ain't the gold that stacks so high in this game. It's the doggoned joy o' diggin' it out. And I may as well tell you, straight out, she ain't no El Dorado. There's a showin' of color all right. But accordin' t' the test pits I put down she's going to run thinner than your ol' pappy counted on."

Lander plainly resented that de-

"You can't appraise a mine by a scratch or two on the surface," he said as we made our way up the broken mountain slope, slowly step by step.

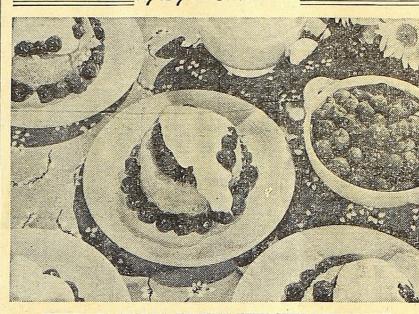

Sock-Eye's gaze, as he stopped and blinked at the taller man, was one of asperity.

"I ain't no college dood," he affirmed. "But I panned these cricks afore you was a pulin' infant. And I reckon I kin still sniff out a payin' pocket when she's under my nose." It seemed very futile and foolish. And I had trouble in finding my foot ing along the fan-shaped gravel bed that lay in our path. I even staggered a little. "This girl needs rest and sleep," Lander said as he shifted his rifle and reached out an arm to hold me I could feel that arm tighten about

SUMMERY DESSERTS

Bring the tartness and sweetness of fruit into play with fresh, crumbly cake, top with a dash of whipped cream and you have summer's answer to a delectable dessert.

Garden-fresh berries peeking out from under their green foliage or fruit hanging heavy and ripe on richly laden branches deserve your best attention for they'll do mighty nice things by your meals. Since most of the fruits need no cooking you are doubly sure of getting the full quota of minerals and vitamins which they have to give.

Cherries bright and red make a tart and colorful dessert which you'll enjoy serving. If using the fresh ones pit and sugar them before us-

When I asked my mother how she made her extra delicious shortcakes, she replied, "There's nothing to it, my dear; just biscuit dough-but make the dough short and the fruit sweet!" This tip is a good one. I hope you'll follow it when trying:

Old-Fashioned Shortcake.

2 cups flour 3 teaspoons baking powder ½ teaspoon salt

1/2 cup shortening (8 tablespoons) 3 cup milk

Sift flour, measure, add baking powder and salt, sift again. Work in shortening until mass resembles coarse meal. (If you want to, add a tablespoon of sugar and an egg and count the egg as part of your liquid.) Now, add enough milk to make a soft dough, one which you can barely handle. Turn onto lightly floured board, knead a few seconds, divide in half. Pat one half about one-fourth inch thick into deep buttered 9-inch cake pan. Butter top and pat second portion of dough in ayer over first. Brush on softened butter and bake about 20 minutes in hot oven (450 degrees F.) When baked, pull layers apart, spread sugared fruit on bottom layer, stack second one, crust-side down, on this, cover with more fruit, then with whipped cream and a garnish of fruit! Variations from the original type of shortcake which we all know so well are much in order. Some people prefer a sponge cake base rather than a biscuit dough and for a real individual treatment of type, you this might like to try one with a custard filling for cool deliciousness. Since it is a trifle more elaborate than shortcake, this Cherry Sponge Custard Shortcake is ideal as a dessert for company. You'll need this sponge cake as a base:

Hot Water Sponge Cake.

4 egg yolks 1½ cups sugar ½ cup boiling water 1½ cups cake flour

1/4 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon baking powder 1 teaspoon lemon or vanilla extract

4 stiffly beaten egg whites Beat egg yolks until very thick; gradually add sugar and continue beating. Add water, mix well, add flour sifted with baking powder. Mix until smooth, add flavoring. Fold in egg whites. Bake in ungreased pan,

LYNN SAYS:

Though dessert problems are easily solved by berries, be sure that they get the greatest care before reaching the table. Berries should appear clean and fresh, be full and plump and have a bright solid color. When they are over-ripe they look dull and often stain the container. Don't wash berries until ready to use them since damp berries mold very quickly. The best method for washing is doing a few at a time in a bowl, lifting them out into another bowl while the hands are used as a sieve. When the berries are clean let them drain in a strainer or col-either Mary Ann or cup cake tins in slow oven 45 minutes. Cool before filling. Cream Custard Filling.

3/4 cup sugar 1/3 cup flour

1/4 teaspoon salt 2 eggs 2 cups milk, scalded

1 teaspoon vanilla Combine dry ingredients with slightly beaten egg yolks; stir in enough hot milk to make a thin paste. Then add paste to remaining milk and cook over boiling water 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Cook 10 minutes longer. Cool and add vanilla.

If you top with fresh cherries be sure they're sweet enough. Then garnish with whipped cream. Frozen berries need only be thawed and more sugar added if required.

If you want to make a sponge cake base and use just berries, then plan a lovely surprise so no one will even suspect they're getting a berry dessert. Make a sponge cake using a regular 9 or 10 inch cake pan. When the cake is still warm cut a round circle in the middle of the cake about an inch from the edge. Lift this out carefully keeping it whole. Into the hollow put in sugared berries or peaches or bananas mixed with sweetened whipped cream. Replace the cake top, wrap carefully in a slightly damp towel and chill for 3 to 4 hours. Garnish before serving with whipped cream or sprinkle with powdered sugar.

They'll come back often for this one. For luscious, shortcake puddings, there's nothing like a juicy cobbler. Here's a recipe made for large quantity, excellent if you're planning a church supper:

Cobbler. (Cherry, Blueberry or Peach) quarts fruit quarts juice

Biscuit dough

5 cups sugar with cherries or berries 2½ cups sugar with peaches Pour fruit and juice into square cake pans. Add sugar and mix lightly. Cover with biscuit dough (approximately 1/4-inch thick) made in proportions of 11/2 quarts flour, 21/4 cups milk, 1 tablespoon salt, 4 tablespoons baking powder and 1/2 cup shortening. Bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees F., from 30 to 40 minutes. Serve hot with cream. A light, easy-to-make dessert is the best one with which to bring a hearty supper to a close. With raspberries at their brightest and juiciest, this combination with a graham cracker crust and frothy meringue will really be hard to resist.

Red Raspberry Fluffs. (Serves 6-8) Mix and press in a square pan 1½ cups rolled graham crackers, ¼ cup melted butter, 2 tablespoons fully. Bake this in a slow (300 degrees) oven for 20 minutes. Cool. Spread with 2 cups of sweetened red raspberries and whipped cream.

*Asparagus With Browned Butter and Crumb Sauce.

Asparagus, tender and green, should be cooked gently so as not to lose its color. It cooks quicker when stalks are tied in bunches. Stand them up in boiling water in a deep narrow pan. The steam will cook the tips while the water bubbles around the stalks.

Instead of serving plain butter, try browning it for a change, seasoning it and then adding a teaspoonful of fine bread crumbs. Have this piping hot and pour it over the asparagus just before serving. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

FLINT—Fastest growing Telephone City of its size in America

Among the industrial centers working night and day in the national emergency, none is busier than Flint.

A year ago there were 31,500 telephones in Flint. Now there are 38,500 - an increase of over 22 per cent. And telephone growth is still climbing faster than in any other American city of comparable size.

As a part of the soundly financed Bell System, the Michigan Bell is enabled to obtain capital funds with which to meet that growth. The Company will spend more than $1,000,000 in Flint this year for new equipment, cable lines, and an addition to the Central Office building.

But Flint is only one of many places in Michigan where such situations must be met. $11,000,000 is programmed to serve camps, arsenals, factories, and others engaged directly in defense work. And the Company's total 1941 plant construction program exceeds $26,000,000.

The telephone has a little part in almost every National Defense effort. And a little part in every effort adds up to pretty big figures.
