World War II Enters Into New Phase As Roosevelt-Churchill Conferences Indicate Continued Soviet Resistance; Unrest Report in Occupied Nations

(EDITOR'S NOTE-When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

WORLD WAR II:

New Angle

The many-faceted chances of war, which had seen Hitler reaching another peak of successes, suddenly seemed to veer more to the British-American side following the dramatic conclusion of the Roosevelt-Churchill talks at sea.

Not only did the eight-point pact between the two executives strike with a powerful sound across the front pages of the globe, but the promise of aid to Russia was reportedly based on the assurance felt by Britain and the United States that the Soviet troops would be able to hold the Germans at bay through out the winter.

Indeed, Mr. Roosevelt on his return to this country, made such a positive statement, declaring that "consumers' goods," such as foodstuffs, would be made available for Russia during the rest of the summer; that it was assumed the Russian winter would bring at least a partial halt to hostilities, and that more substantial aid could be made ready by Britain and the United States for the opening of the spring campaign.

All in all, there was a quiet confidence as to the outcome of the war, and its continuance through a considerable period of time, that was in sharp contrast to the feelings of menace and of instability that had been marking the news at the outset of the President's dramatic "vacation trip" on the Potomac.

Beside this sort of feeling through-out Britain and the United States and were somewhat discounted and particularly since the President | therefore. said he did not believe this country Quisling government was tottering. was "any nearer in the war" than it was before the conference, the These sources were Swedish newsrumbling criticism of congressmen and the byplay of press criticism over mere matters of pictures and the identity of reporters at the scene seemed "small potatoes."

Because Churchill presumably was being well informed by the British military mission in Moscow as to the real carrying on of the war in the East, and if the President was so broadly confident of the continuance of the Soviet defense, it was reasoned that he must have good authority.

PRESS:

Its Reaction

The press reaction to the Roosevelt-Churchill conference and the eight-point statement was far from unanimously favorable. The criticisms, however, ranged all the way from an echoing of the Berlin reaction that it was a "poor plagiarism on Wilson's 14 points,' down to a milder reproach that Roosevelt should have risked his life on the battlefield of the Atlantic.

In the main, however, the leading independent papers of the country agree with the philosophy and the idealism of the statement, though almost all of them agreed that it was a carefully timed and dramatically staged "counter peace offensive" against that expected to be launched by Hitler now that his campaign against Russia was about one-third accomplished.

There were many smaller sidelines of criticism, however. Some papers had headlines about "oneway censorship," apparently believing that certain British newspapers and press associations had been permitted to be represented.

Most of this died a quick death when it appeared that the London papers were much upset by the fact that the American press, not represented by photographers, got the pictures first.

Newsreel men expressed annoyance when these pictures showed a movie man in action, and the following day, when they saw the movie reels, they primly announced that they were a rotten job, the work of a "rank amateur" apparently—"Off center out of focus and U. S. officials involved, but that the under speed"-and that 1,800 out of private citizens and missionaries, 2.000 feet had to be thrown away. | would have to remain in Japan.

Courage Plus

When she was graduated from Mississippi Southern college this month, Miss Winnifred Moore (above), native of New Orleans, again proved the mastery of courage over handicap. Born blind, she has specialized in music and reads music in Braille with her toes while using her hands on the piano keys. Her constant companion is her dog Rex, shown here with her.

In Battle

During the first few daylight bombings of Germany and occupied territory by the huge American flying fortresses, the stories were that the big planes flew so high and so silently that the Germans were not aware of their presence until the bombs began to fall, and that by that time the Nazi fighters could not get within reach of them.

to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year. lt is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy It. It gives us the most priceless feeling In the world; the feeling of being adequately prepared. When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confldence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets-shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

By L. L. STEVENSON

Again it is one of those days when my thoughts flit here and there about New York and even beyond New York. For instance, Edgemere, L. I., the sea-"dat ol' debbil sea" as Eugene O'Neill called it in "Anna Christie"-and the vigil of Edward Stevens Sr. The sea took the life of his 11-year-old son, Edward Jr. The body of the drowned boy was not recovered at once and the search was given up as hopeless. The father, however, did not abandon hope. It was his firm conviction that the sea would give up its dead. Morning after morning in the gray dawn, he patrolled the beach where his little boy had lost his life. Six mornings passed and still the waves carried in only bits of flotsam and jetsam. At half past five the seventh morning, Edward Stevens Sr. again was on the beach. And there was something being carried shoreward-the body of his son in a shroud of white foam.

Broadway next. For 10 years, there was a big drug store at Fortyfifth street. Pharmaceutical supplies, along with tooth brushes and bathing suits, alarm clocks and cut rate books were sold and soda water dispensed. Food was served of course. In addition, in the course of time, the store became the clearing house for aspiring and unemployed people of the stage, mostly youngsters. Talent scouts and casting agents visited the place and on occasions, contracts were signed there and thus youthful Thespians changed right on the spot from consumers of toast and coffee, because they had money for nothing else, to the sirloin steak class. Recently the company's 10-year lease expired and the store closed. And so vanished another landmark.

Down to the Bowery. The Bowery in summer is not nearly as populous as it is in winter. Many who call the Bowery home are now roaming the country. Some are in the wheatfields traveling north as the grain yellows. Others are in construction camps near and far. 1/2 pour the railroad no matter where the 2 eggs railroad may be. Many are out 34 cup cold water with carnivals since numerous 1 cup milk "carny" folk live on the Bowery in 1 cup cornfl the off season. The gypsies of course took to the open road along with the coming of the tulips. But despite the absence of so many Boweryites, the street continues to be one of New York's main tourist attractions. Seemingly the evil that was done on the Bowery in the past is still a lure to the curious.

Now uptown. A little more than a ton Heights house where rents are modest. Frightened, unable to speak the language, poorly dressed and seemingly practically penniless, the husband and wife were so pathetic that kindly neighbors would have assisted them financially. All offers were politely but firmly refused, however. The man soon obtained a job in a tailor shop. Nights he and his wife attended school. Within a short time they were as well dressed as their neighbors and it wasn't long before they were able to hold conversations in English. The other evening they gave a party for their neighbors at a nearby restaurant. There the announcement was made that the money they had brought with them from the Old world, they had bought the house in which they lived. There was also an announcement that rents would not be raised.

Back to midtown. In a crowded elevator in the RCA building, a nice looking boy was telling a nice looking girl that he could get an audition for her. The girl suggested that he introduce her to Bess Johnson, star of the show bearing her

"Bess Johnson?" repeated the boy. "Sure, I know her well."

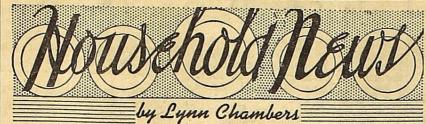

As he spoke, he looked directly into the eyes of a smiling young woman but no sign of recognition appeared on his face. She was Bess Johnson herself on her way to a rehearsal.

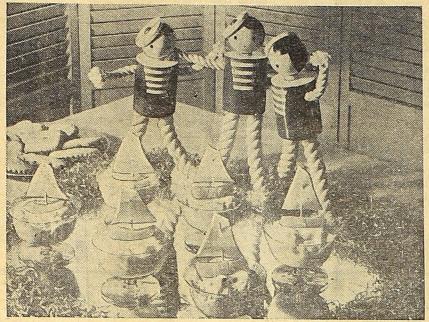

Now for something short and snappy. Oh yes, a friend's dog. He told me he would have to get rid of the pet because of his five-year-old daughter. He wasn't afraid of the dog biting the child but the child was always biting the dog and he didn't think that was sanitary.

a few minutes to cook, you know. Your salad is simple and is tossed in a few seconds. Dessert, too, you can make the day before and just wait until you see what a lovely sur-prise it is, too. Cool and delicious, the orange freeze is tops.

A change in the meat course is the order of the day. A touch of fruit borrowed from a favorite cake and three of your favorite kinds of meat go to make up this:

*Apricot Upside-Down Meat Loaf. (Serves 8 to 10)

1 pound smoked ham (ground twice) ½ pound beef (ground) 1/2 pound fresh pork (ground)

1 cup cornflakes (crushed)

1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce 1/8 teaspoon pepper

1/2 teaspoon dry mustard 1 tablespoon onion (very finely minced)

4 tablespoons butter 4 tablespoons brown sugar

18 dried apricot halves (cooked)

Contaminated Water May Be Polio Cause

England city found that the bathing beaches, under certain conditions of wind and tide, were affected by sewage pollution. In the Journal of Experimental Medicine he states that during the epidemic of infantile paralysis in the summer of 1935 this city had the largest number of cases of any city or town. Other places where the number of cases was above the average were in communities bordering on water used for bathing and affected by sewage pollution. He case: pollution. He says:

"During epidemics, and probably at other times, the virus from persons suffering from the disease or persons who carry this virus (though not suffering with the disease) is underlying with the disease. ease) is undoubtedly present in the sewage of an affected community." Infection by way of the nerves of the nose (nerves of smell) is possible and it appears probable that this is a common way of contracting the disease. "Given a sufficient amount of the virus in sewage-polluted wa- snug waistline which flattens the ters it is conceivable that infection can be caused by some of this water getting into the nose of the bather.'

There is much to learn about the cause of infantile paralysis, how it enters the body and the best method wasn't Asking for Trouble of treatment, but it does seem that it occurs in summer, and most cases were found where sewage-polluted waters in which children and adults bathed during an epidemic, that this may be a big factor in spreading infantile paralysis.

This does not mean that children should not bathe in lakes, rivers or streams, but that they should avoid waters where there is danger of sewage pollution.

Sidney Lander, Alaska mining engineer, is engaged to Barbara Trumbull, whose father is contesting the mining claim of Carol Coburn, teacher at Matanuska. Lander breaks with Trumbull. Salaria Bryson also loves Lander. She disappears.

CHAPTER XXIII

When I wakened, the next morning, I was puzzled by the scent of balsam close about me. I was equally puzzled by the scolding of two Canada jays that hopped about a dwindled campfire beside which stood a skillet and a coffeepot. Then I looked at the shoulder pack leaning companionably against the balsam bed on which I lay, and then out at the panorama of the snowclad mountain peaks that sparkled in the morning sunlight.

It wasn't until I studied and recognized the second blanket that covered me against the morning chill that I was able to orient myself. And then I remembered. That tarpaulined lean-to belonged to Sock-Eye. And that second blanket belonged to Sidney Lander. And that stream which raced down between the gravel bars and silt beds of the valley bottom was Big Squaw Creek. It was running strong, at the height of the summer thaw, and as it tum-bled over bar and boulder I could hear the noise of its hurrying in the clear mountain air.

Then a second sound intruded on the morning quietness. It was a faint and far-off drone that grew stronger as it rose and fell with the vagaries of the breeze. It became a throb of power, a purposeful and electrifying throb that promptly took me out from beneath my blankets. It took me scurrying down to the open cliff edge that overlooked the Big Squaw where the racing waters tore at the base of a cut bank. There, between the towering peaks, I could see the small and toylike plane that grew bigger as it came nearer, sometimes dark and sometimes bright in the crystalline sunlight through which it arrowed.

I shouted and waved, as it throbbed overhead, for I knew it was Slim Downey and his ship.

The solitude, of a sudden, seemed less oppressive. I no longer worried as to the whereabouts of my two camp mates. For there above me, defying time and space, was an engined shuttle that could weave mountains and rivers together and carry us out of the wilderness.

But the plane went on, without sign or signal. And, for a moment, my heart sank. Then I gave a little cry of relief. For I saw how the tilted wings were dropping lower, banking and heading back into the breeze over the irregular silver expanse of Cranberry Lake.

And even before its pontoons heeled down on that surface of ruffled silver I remembered that Slim could come to a landing only on watana claim and the Big Squaw.

My first impulse, at that happy discovery, was to find Sidney and shout the good news to him. He and Sock-Eye, I assumed, were somewhere down along the claim limits, probably checking up on measurements and monuments. So I moved out to the cliff edge, scanning the valley for some sign of life.

I even gave a gulp of gratitude at the thought that noonday would see us joining Slim and his waiting plane and night would see us whisked back to a world of men and women and orderly life.

My searching gaze coasted the valley bottom, and then the opposing hill slopes, and then the nearer broken ground through which the Big Squaw twined. But I saw noth-

I saw nothing until some obscure sixth sense prompted me to turn and study the rock ridge along which I had edged my way out to the cliff front. Slowly over the dark curve of that ridge I saw a hand appear, and groping fingers feel for a hold there. Then another hand showed itself, followed by a body that quietly wormed its way up over the ridge crown.

I thought, at first, it was Sock-Eye. But in that, I soon knew, I was mistaken. For there was something so malignant and reptilelike in that crawling advance I felt it must be the movement of an enemy, even before I caught sight of the short-barreled rifle trailing beside the flattened body.

At my instinctive cry of alarm that flattened figure abruptly lost its stealthiness. It dropped over the ridge wall, caught up the rifle and stood foursquare in front of me, with a low laugh of derision.

I knew then it was Ericson. And my blood chilled as I fell back step by step as he advanced. He laughed again when he saw me come to the cliff edge, where I could go no far-

He looked gaunt and harried and a little mad. But what troubled me most was a snakelike air of fortitude about him, the careless persistent knowledge of some venomous power in reserve. "You can't get all the breaks, bright eyes," he said as he confronted me with his crooked smile. And the mockery in it, the familiar old tone of flippancy, still had the power of sending a wave of nausea through my body. "What are you going to do?" I

"I'm going to get what's coming to me,' he proclaimed, after a quick but pointed survey of the valley below us. "And you're it."

"I've done nothing to you," I cried, trying to keep my hands from shaking. "Oh, yes, you have," was his hate-embittered answer. "And more than

His movement was quietly delib erate as he pumped his rifle. "You're not going to kill me?" I

"That'd be too easy," he announced. "But it's wise, my dear, to be ready for the unexpected. Come here.

"But this isn't human," I cried. 'It can't do you any good. It can't get you anywhere.'

He cut those cries of protest short. "Come here," he commanded, with a new and deadlier sort of in-

I knew what was coming; and I cried out, without willing that cry, as my body forlornly stiffened to receive its shock.

But through that call of helplessness came a sharper sound, a sharp bark that produced an incredibly abrupt change in the poised figure confronting me. I saw the rifle fall, I saw Ericson throw up his hands and suddenly twist about in a ludicrously frantic half-circle.

His hands were still above his head as his legs crumpled under him. And for one uncertain second he balanced on the cliff edge, like a tightrope-walker fighting for equilibrium on some fragile footway. Then I saw the collapsed body tumble over the cliff edge. It went sprawling and rolling along the steep cut bank until it struck the waters of the Big Squaw, where the current caught it up and churned and tossed it, with now an arm showing and now a leg, ter. JOHN URGES CHRISTIAN LOVE

LESSON TEXT—I John 3:13-18; 4:7-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let us not love in word, neither in tongue; but in deed and in truth.—
I John 3:18.

Love is a word so abused in modern speech that one almost hesitates to use it, and yet it stands for the very finest in all human relationships, and presents to us the very essence of the nature of God. We do well to redefine the meaning of love in our Sunday school classes this next Sunday. Love is not that sentimental, "wishy-washy" feeling which prompts the writing of emotional ballads, which are (like the supposed love of which they speak) "here today and gone tomorrow. Nor is it that lustful thing which now parades itself shamelessly as love, when it is nothing but animal passion. Nor is it that weak thing which totalitarian dictators make it out to be when they declare that to attain, a people must hate, not love.

"Love is a desire for and delight in the welfare of another." reaches out to all mankind, coming from God and being manifested in the gift of His Son as our Saviour. It is stronger than any earthly bonds. It is able to bear unbelievable burdens; yes, because He loved us Christ bore the sins of the whole world on Calvary. It expresses itself in courtesy, in high standards of life, and in sacrifice. Love is, as Henry Drummond put it, "the greatest thing in the world." Read I Corinthians 13 for Paul's exalted description of love.

Our lesson reveals two important facts about love-

I. Love Is an Evidence of Regeneration (I John 3:13-18).

There are two groups of people the saved and the unsaved. The unsaved in Scripture are designated as "the world," meaning, not the physical world, but the world of unregenerate men who are against our God and His Christ. The saved are those who have come to God in Christ, who love Him and are in the center of His love. That love is, according to John, an evidence that we know God. There is an interesting contrast here.

The World Hates and Kills (vv

Today the wicked heart of man he maintained. "And since you two apart from Christ is revealed in dunderheads've finally made sure the tragic events which have embroiled the whole world in conflict

The point is that we as Christians should not be surprised if that kind of a world hates us. In fact, we should be troubled if it does not hate us, for if our Christianity means anything, it must be utterly a world driven by hatred and the lust for blood.

2. The Christian Loves and Gives (vv. 14, 16-18).

The mark of a Christian is love for God and love for the brethren. That love demonstrates its genuineness by giving freely to meet the need of a brother, just as God freely gave His Son for our redemption. (cf. James 2:14-17).

The background of such an attitude is a proper understanding of our relationship to God, and an appreciation of His nature

II. The Very Nature of God Is Love (I John 4:7-21). God not only loves, but He is love.

1. God Is Love (vv. 7, 8). "Love is the very essence of His moral nature. He is the source of all love" (R. A. Torrey). Only the one who knows God as love knows

Him at all. There is much thoughtless and meaningless talk about the love of God, as though it meant that He is careless about enforcing His divine law, that somehow He will overlook and excuse careless and wicked living. The fact is that the love of God has no real meaning unless it is understood in the light of the cross, for 2. God's Love Is Manifested in Christ (vv. 9-16).

He was sent as the giver of eternal life, the propitiation for our sins, our Saviour, and thus as the highest and deepest expression of God's love. Faith in Christ (v. 15) puts the believer in the very center of the love of God. Precious hiding place!

3. Love Casts Out Fear (vv. 17-

Fellowship is impossible in an atmosphere of fear, but love rules fear out. In Christ we realize that God first loved us, and then our hearts go out to Him in a warmth of devotion which brings us so close to Him that all fear is gone. The result of such fellowship with God follows, for 4. He Who Loves God Loves His Brother (vv. 20, 21)

If a man loves God, he will obey Him, and His command, which to the Christian is, "Love your brother." That is "the first and great commandment" (Matt. 22:36-40; Deut. 6:5; Luke 10:25-28). There is no use in our talking about loving God if we have no love for the brethren, for in doing so we make God testify against us that we are liars Grand Coulee World's Number One Dam

Do Not Go WITH ADVERTISING

Advertising and high prices do not go together at all. They are extremely incompatible to each other. It is only the product which is unadvertised, which has no established market, that costs more than you can afford to pay.

Whenever you go into a store and buy an item of advertised merchandise, it doesn't make any difference what, you are getting more for your money-more in quality and service—than you would get if you spent the same amount for something which was not advertised.
