Bulletin

Paul R. Ricketts, secretary of the State Mediation Board, came here from Lansing yesterday (Thursday) seeking a meeting to conciliate the differences between the Isosco County Road Commission and the laid-off road workers. He conferred late in the afternoon with Prosecuting Attorney John A. Stewart, members of the road commission and spokesmen for the men and a meeting may be held here today.

This week the commission has been operating the county trucks and graders to a limited extent with newly hired men. The laid-off crews are continuing to picket the county garage. Time not devoted to carrying banners is spent enjoyably in batting up flies with a soft-ball.

Katterman-Albertson

At two o'clock Sunday afternoon Zion Lutheran church was the scene of the wedding of Ruth Katterman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Katterman, of Tawas City, and Delbert Albertson, son of Webster Albertson, of Whittemore. The church was decorated with autumn flowers for the ceremony in which Rev. Ernest Ross officiated.

The wedding party entered the church to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin played by Miss Norma Burtzloff.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown of white mousseline-de-sole, was made with a lace yoke, short sleeves, fitted waistline and very full skirt. She wore a fingertip tulle veil and carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Arthur Wendt, her sister, was matron-of-honor, wearing a white taffeta dress with an overskirt of marquisette. Her shoulder length veil was secured by white flowers and she carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses.

The bridesmaids were Betty McArdle and Nelda Mueller, wearing identical gowns of pink moire taffeta with double nets skirts, and Mrs. Fred Howe, of Bay City, who wore blue taffeta and net. Their shoulder length veils matched their dresses and their colonial bouquets roses of a deeper shade than the matron of honor's.

Arthur Wendt was best man and the ushers were John Katterman, Jr., Ralph Curry and Howard Kohn.

Autumn flowers decorated the Katterman home for the reception which was held following the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Albertson left later on a motor trip for which the bride chose a printed sheer dress with a rose colored hat and matching corsage and white accessories. On their return they will make their home in East Tawas.

G. A. Prescott Named On Isosco Draft Board

G. A. Prescott, of Tawas City, has been appointed to succeed Judge H. Read Smith as member of the Isosco County Selective Service Board. Judge Smith, who had served on the board as chairman for about one year, has resigned. He stated that the large amount of work connected with the office had interfered with his duties as probate judge.

Robert Noble

Robert Noble, aged Whitney township farmer, passed away early last Friday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John A. Brugger, at Tawas City, after a long illness. Death came from the infirmities of age.

Robert Noble was born September 9, 1852, in Lenawee county. He married Lucinda E. Allard, of Bay City in 1886, and in 1897 they moved to Whitney township, Arenac county. Mrs. Noble passed away in 1923 and since that time he made his home with his daughters, Mrs. G. W. Brown, of Alabaster, and Mrs. John A. Brugger, of Tawas City. The two daughters and eleven grandchildren survive him. He was a pioneer farmer of Whitney township and was held in high esteem by his neighbors and many friends.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon from the Jacques Funeral home, with Rev. Frank Metcalf officiating. The remains were laid to rest in the Noble family lot in the Tawas City cemetery.

Out of town relatives who attended the funeral were, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Noble of Hillsdale, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Noble and Leslie Noble, of Bay City.

CHAIRMAN H. F. BLACK ACCEPTS "IOSCO FLAG"

Beautiful Gift Received in Tuesday Morning Ceremony

Last Monday morning Miss Dorothy Garland, a representative of the J. L. Hudson Company, of Detroit, presented the "Iosco Flag" to Harold F. Black, chairman of the board of supervisors and representing Isosco county, at a ceremony held on the court house grounds. About 100 citizens, including officials and people from various sections of the county were in attendance.

The brief ceremony Tuesday morning was one of the 83 similar ceremonies throughout the state marking the culmination of a project inaugurated by the J. L. Hudson Company in which a flag was designed and prepared for each one of Michigan's 83 counties. The design on Isosco county's flag is particularly appropriate, a representation of the Lumbermen's monument applied on a field of white with a red border. The flag is made of silk and has a mahogany case. It made a handsome gift to the county.

In accepting the gift, on behalf of the county, Mr. Black said, "It is indeed a pleasure to have the honor of representing the Isosco County Board of Supervisors in accepting the custodianship of this beautiful flag bearing a representation of the Lumbermen's Monument, which is one of the many beautiful sights in our glorious county."

"May this flag bring our county good luck and may it also be a means of promoting good fellowship among all the people within our border. In these times of unrest among the inhabitants of every land, the spirit of good fellowship is needed more than any other virtue given to mankind."

"In behalf of my fellow members of the Isosco County Board of Supervisors, I wish to extend our sincere thanks for this very appropriate and beautiful gift. We sincerely hope that the J. L. Hudson Company may enjoy the best of fellowship within its organization, and may it continue to prosper in the future as it has during the past 60 years as a reward for the spirit in which this flag was given."

Miss Garland and Mr. Black were introduced to the assembly by County School Commissioner Russell Rollin.

Roadmen Make Another Statement

The Road Commission asks, "who is to run the Road Commission?" The employees would like to know, "who asks this question?" They went in a body simply to ask for a ten-cent per hour raise. The commission then sent a "go-between" around to each individual to see if a five-cent raise would be acceptable. The majority agreed but no one received even a one-cent raise. Some of the employees signed up with the S. C. M. W. A. and every man from the general foreman to the night watchman was fired without notice. This is a direct violation of the National and State Labor Act to protect workers.

Since when have four men been granted the power to dictate to what society, lodge, church or organization men may belong? These are the tactics used in the hand of Hitler. When the men went before the Commission they felt they were only exercising their rights to bargain and believed that they could talk to men who recognized that right. They soon discovered they were mistaken.

The Commission made the statement that their budget of $44,000 was overtaxed. What has happened now? Who swelled the budget? They are now hiring strike-breakers and inexperienced operators at 45c an hour to take the place of experienced truck-drivers. They are also sending two men on a truck to drag roads where before one man did this work. This may be their new method of economy.

The Commission also issued a statement that Lawrence Lake earned $1228.01 in 1940. They neglected to state that in that year Mr. Lake was working at 40c an hour, and that this wage represents 3070 hours of work, and average of 10 hours a day 307 days in the year. Don't you think he earned his money? Regardless of conditions these men worked at all hours without complaint in trucks without heaters in bitter cold, and yet the Commission considered a five-cent raise too high.

Citizens, who do you think is running the Commission?

Signed, Isosco County Road Employees.

'Communist Plot' Is Charged by Vichy Following Shooting Attack on Laval; British-Russian Forces Occupy Iran; Senate Launches Gas Shortage Probe

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Some of the 11,000 workers in the Kearny, N. J., shipyards are pictured as they went back to work after the U. S. navy had taken over supervision of the plant. Producing defense shipping, the yards had been closed for 18 days because of a C.I.O. strike.

LAVAL:

And a Purge

In Paris three men were guillotined as the first action in a purge of anti-Vichy elements, following the shooting of Pierre Laval and Marcel Deat, French leaders advocating closer collaboration with Germany. Special courts convicted the assailants and it was declared that the attack on Laval was but part of a vast "Communist conspiracy."

IRAN:

An Occupation

That the Russo-British action against Iran would be virtually an occupation rather than a full-fledged invasion was seen almost immediately after the troop movement started.

Two things were early indications of this fact, first the sending by British transport planes of small detachments of troops far into the interior to protect British industrial outposts; second, the fact that points like Bandar-Shahpur, which could have been bitterly defended, fell at once to the invaders.

In fact, it was apparent that while the Iran government might have been under the Nazi thumb because of the presence in the country of hordes of fifth columnists, it was not a heavily implanted thumb, and within the government itself was apparently enough friendly strength to create an early offer of peace.

That Russia and Britain would regard this peace offer as acceptable only if they were given control of key points, was obvious. The refusal of the Iranians to expel the Germans, as demanded by Britain and Russia, was Nazi-inspired, it is true, but the decision to offer to expel them after the invasion was under way, and the Nazi bluff had been called, was entirely too pat to suit the invaders.

A glance at the map was sufficient to show the tactical importance of Iran in any defense of India and the Middle East, and collaboration with Russia from the great centers of British supply would demand some point of land contact.

Also the oil establishments on both sides of the Caspian sea demanded protection, and the position of Iran demanded control of that area in order to accomplish this.

The Berlin reaction to the Iranian adventure of the Soviet and Britain was not expressed until the campaign was nearly over, and then it was called "a classical case of brutal attack on a neutral state which had done everything to prevent war and respect the interests of third parties..."

GAS:

Senate Probe

It was forecast that Leon Henderson, price administrator, was contemplating setting a ceiling price on gasoline in the East, as reports of profiteering by individual filling stations poured in as the shortage, real or imaginary, began to be felt.

The senate undertook an investigation to answer these questions: 1. Is the shortage real or imaginary? 2. Is there an organized effort to confuse the public? 3. Was the country justified in transferring 50 tankers from the gulf-eastern trade to Britain? 4. Are the tank cars being used to their fullest ability to overcome the shortage?

At the same time the President had signed an order giving the right of eminent domain to a company which was to build by December a 1,200 mile pipeline from the central southern oil fields to the southeastern refineries.

The mayor of Atlanta, Ga., showed how much confusion there was by informing the oil administration that the oil companies told him there was plenty of fuel oil and plenty of gasoline and plenty of transportation for Atlanta's needs. He asked: "Why, therefore, should Atlanta be made the victim of propaganda?"

RUSSIA:

Still Fighting

Despite the loss of Dniepropetrovsk, with or without the huge power dam, and in spite of repeated German communiques which announced the continued successes of the Nazi arms at the north and south, there was every evidence that the Soviet was continuing to fight, and to battle with an organized army of sorts.

It was one thing for the German-Finnish army to report itself 35 miles from Leningrad and another thing to explain the lack of announcements of airplane damage to the city of any extent.

The Germans also reported advances south of the city, yet these were averaging eight to nine miles a day, as against the 30 or 40 miles daily gained in the battles of France and Poland.

The Russians reported a fierce battle for the mastery of the skies over Leningrad with the issue in doubt. The city, they said, was still unhit. Moscow also elicited the breathless praise of the British mission for its defense against German air raiders. "There was every indication that the Russian strength and ability had been underestimated both by Hitler and the rest of the world."

It was true that the third month of the war found the whole left bank of the Dnieper in German hands, but there was evidence that the Germans had planned to conquer what they sought of Russia in one month, and then to offer peace to Britain.

The peace offer was still in the offing—so was the German drive on Russia, as far as the objectives were concerned. Any serious capitulation on the part of the Soviet seemed as far distant as ever.

The Russians had reported a daring adventure on the central front, the sending of a well-equipped army in a southerly direction, to attempt to cut the German lines at Gomel, and to trap the entire advance force.

No definite report was forthcoming as to the outcome of this effort, but British hints sent out over the wire, after bright hopes had been entertained for nine days, during which some 20 villages were retaken, finally seemed to show a growing belief that the effort had failed.

JAPAN:

Again Storm Center

The official Japanese pronouncement that it would consider the shipping of oil to Vladivostok by Britain, the United States or the Dutch East Indies an unfriendly act again placed Nippon in the center of a storm, especially as this was considered Japan's official answer to the warnings of Churchill.

Russia's answer to Japan was that she would consider it distinctly an unfriendly act if Japan interfered in any way with Russia's commerce through her principal Siberian port.

The Russians called to the attention of Japan that the material thus received was not in any way to be used as a reservoir for any attack on the Japanese, but solely to defend herself against the invasion of Germany.

Any child could see the truth of this statement, but the more that Russia was on the defensive in the west, the bolder Japan was bound to be.

Japan, however much she might be worried by possible British-American-Dutch military and naval action against her, could not be expected to lose much sleep over Russia, which she had whipped in 1904, and which now was embroiled in a war to the death with the Nazis.

But if Russia's attitude was to be actively backed up by Britain was another picture, and if the United States was to become active in a British-Japanese war, then the picture was still different again.

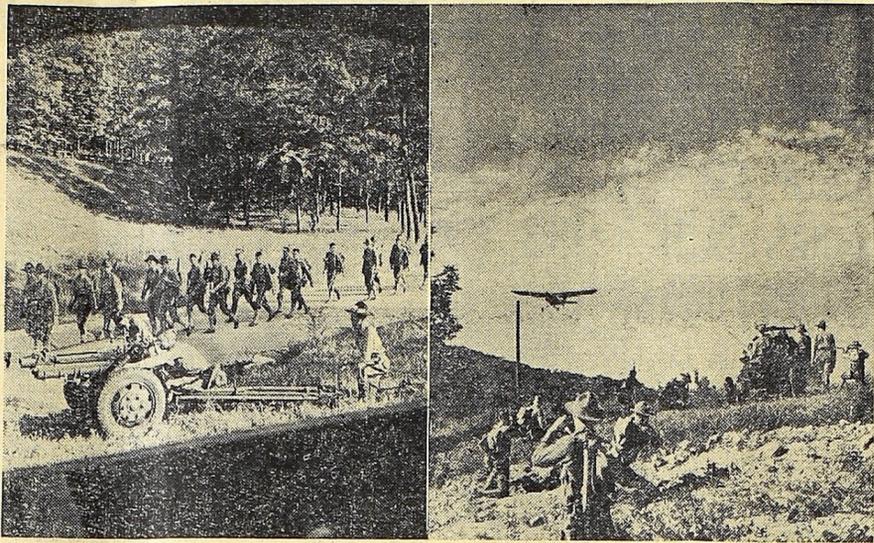

To most observers, Japan seemed to be feeling her way.

'Return Ticket'

Here are at least three refugees that were lucky enough to have a "return ticket" to England. After a stay of a year in the United States, these three British children (left to right) Keith Padin, Valerie Collins and Colin Radin, are shown as they appeared in the Pan-American Clipper plane in which they were flying back to England.

Land and Air Maneuvers at West Point

'Love Your Enemies' on Eastern Front

ARMY:

Praise From Stimson

Secretary Stimson gave the army a pat on the back when he said those troops maneuvering in the Pacific zone, which he inspected, were far, far ahead in their training of any of the divisions sent to France in the first World war.

Stimson and General Marshall looked them over, and expressed pleasure at the job being done with the West coast troops. The general said: "The army has shown tremendous improvement since the maneuvers in April. The object is to permit soldiers to make all the mistakes when they are not too costly and can be corrected."

He indicated that the army will not be caught napping when the time comes to expand its numbers again. He said:

"Camp sites are being selected and preliminary surveys made for 20 cantonments. If the need arises we shall be in a position to start building immediately. If it doesn't, we can file the plans away."

ICELAND:

News at Last

The ban of the government on news from Iceland was lifted, and returning correspondents began picturing to Americans what life is like on the newest frontier to the east.

One of them described the country as "a fishy smell surrounded by piles of cinders," and quoted the first soldiers he talked to as saying "it ain't much compared to the U.S.A."

The town of Reykjavik, they reported, has two movies, but both have their ticket windows closed at 3 p. m.—sold out. However, the Americans had seen all the pictures before, so they didn't mind—much.

The only refreshing beverage was beer—1 per cent. The stores open at 10 a. m. and close at 6 p. m. and at noon Saturdays. The girls, the American soldiers reported, were like the climate—cold!

Yet the economic conditions, the wealth of the people, and the character of the buildings were uniformly reported to be good. Most of the houses and buildings in Reykjavik were said to be of sturdy reinforced concrete and would have done credit to any modern American city.

TAXES:

Still in Making

It was evident that the huge tax bill, which many thought was "all set for passage" after the house got through with it, paring the expected $3,350,000,000 down to $3,206,000,000, was still in the making.

For the senate, more co-operative with Capitol Hill, was quick to recommend a widening of the income tax base, bringing about 7,000,000 more taxpayers into the fold, and later engaged itself with a move to raise corporate taxes as well.

The income tax recommendations alone, if carried out and put through the house in conference later, would increase the total amount to be raised to $3,500,000,000, and many expected still more to be tacked on.

What would be the reception of these ideas in the more recalcitrant house was difficult to foresee, but that there would be bound to be some increase over the amount set down by the lower chamber seemed fairly obvious.

The main thing was that the tax bill, generally believed to be ready for passage, still faced rehashing before a final vote.

FAST HOP:

Atlantic, 7 1/2 Hours

A new achievement for the high-powered, four-motored Liberator bombers made by Consolidated for the British was reported when the company announced that one had flown the Atlantic, 2,350 miles from Newfoundland to Ireland, in 7 1/2 hours.

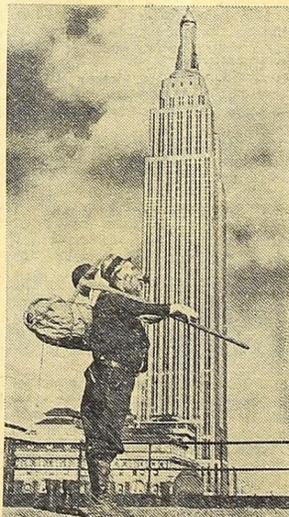

The details of the flight were sent to the company by the British ministry for aircraft production, and were obtained from the navigator.

Mystery Blaze Sweeps Brooklyn Waterfront

Darting as close to the flames as it dared go, a cameraman on a special plane made this unusual photo of the conflagration that swept pier 27 in Brooklyn in one of the worst fires in recent years. In the center, between both piers can be seen the Cuban liner, Panauca, ablaze. Scores of firemen were severely injured and some military supplies were damaged.

'Gold in Them Peaks'

Goldminer Frank Gimlett, in from Colorado, gets his first glimpse at New York's architectural peaks. Equipped with pick, shovel and gold pan, he stands atop the Pennsylvania hotel with the Empire State building in the background. He is 76 years old.

Home from 'The Wars'

The U. S. S. Wakefield, formerly the S. S. Manhattan, is shown arriving in New York harbor with the force of soldiers who recently went south to co-operate with the U. S. marines in mimic war. Landing exercise and beach head tactics on the coast of North Carolina were high spots of the "war."

'Ears Pinned Back?'

This German plane looks like it had its "ears pinned back." Not so, however. It was a fine, almost undamaged specimen of the latest German fighting plane.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Had a few free hours and rather than hang around the apartment, May and I boarded an Eighty-sixth street crosstown bus and went adventuring. In the course of time we ended up in Carl Schurz park which we had never before visited. As a matter of fact, many a native-born New Yorker has never seen Carl Schurz park and many a visitor has been right in its immediate vicinity without being aware of its presence. Visitors usually miss it because the new East River drive, so popular with motorists, instead of passing through the park, runs under it. It is not of great interest to New Yorkers, unless they live in the neighborhood because it has no zoo or Coney Island features. Then too, it is one of the smallest parks in the city, its total area being but 13 acres. It is six blocks long extending from Eighty-fourth to Ninetieth street and one block wide extending from East End avenue to the East river.

Despite its small size, we found Carl Schurz park interesting for two reasons, the view, and the Gracie mansion. The park is high above the East river. So before the eyes, a marine parade with small boats, steamers and even big ships passing up and down, since the East river is the highway, or rather high-stream, for water traffic using Long Island sound. Hell Gate is the portal between the sound and the river. Not far from the park is Little Hell Gate, spanned by the new Triborough bridge and the broken water with its crazy eddies and swirls, caused by a combination of tide and current, indicated plainly why the old mariners chose the name Hell Gate. But as we sat on the benches, we noted many little pleasure boats, including some with white sails.

Having walked about the park with its flower beds, old trees and pits where children may safely play in the sand, we went into the Gracie mansion. The house dates back to the early 1800s with the windows looking out over the river. The huge rooms, each with its fireplace, are furnished in the mode of the last century so May was always exclaiming over the chairs and tables on the first floor and the old beds, with their cards and canopies, on the second floor. But the mantelpieces were what really enraptured her. Each one different and each one in excellent taste. What was uppermost in my mind was the enormous amount of fuel it must have taken to have kept the place warm when there were wintry breezes instead of summer sun. But a family with wealth enough to live in a home of that size didn't have to worry about any fuel bills.

The Gracie mansion is now a part of the Museum of the City of New York and open to the public. That means of course that many instead of the few can enjoy the house and its grounds. But as we walked through it, I imagined I could see ladies and gentlemen of another period turning up their noses at such intruders as us and as we stood in the door of a small room, with a little bed and a little desk and chair, I thought I heard the laughter of a child. After all, there had been a time when the old house had been a home and as such, sacred to the memory.

Outside, we again sat on a bench. Welfare island, with its various buildings, seemed within a stone's throw. In the old days, Welfare island was known as Blackwell's island and many were the tales about the prison there. Within recent years, the penitentiary has been moved to Riker's island, once a dump. But on Welfare island is still a workhouse, where minor offenders do their time. There also are the City Home for the Aged and Infirm and the City hospital. There have been plans within the late years to move the institutions and turn the island into a park. But if that were done, it probably would not be so pleasant for the aged and the destitute sick.

Somewhere I read that the north end of Carl Schurz park in the old days was known as Horn's Hook and played an important part in the Revolutionary war and the War of 1812.

When Gertrude Berg sends out invitations for a party at her home, she lists on the back of each the names of all the other guests who have been asked to attend. . . . This diplomatic precaution prevents embarrassment for those who are not on speaking terms. . . . also for the hostess. It is a very convenient arrangement for all.

Office Puts Premium Upon Slender Girls

DES MOINES, IOWA.—Small and slender girls are at a premium in the Iowa social-welfare board. Chairman King R. # Prostigmin For Cure of Bad Breath

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

IN LOOKING for the cause of bad breath, physicians and dentists look first to some condition in the mouth—decayed teeth, spongy gums, infected tonsils, dry catarrh—or to some condition of the stomach and intestines. While teeth, tonsils, gums and stomach and intestinal conditions can generally be corrected, the most distressing type due to dry catarrh—seemed to be incurable.

TODAY'S HEALTH COLUMN

Some satisfactory results were obtained by the use of a little rubber bag filled with water pushed up the nose and where possible into the sinuses and the water kept hot by means of electricity. This softened the crusts and when crusts were removed, the odor disappeared.

Dr. John Rommell and T. C. Davis, Philadelphia, have had good results by the use of prostigmin in clearing up chronic catarrhal and sinus conditions. Prostigmin is in general use for toning up the muscles of the intestine.

Two Chicago physicians, Drs. L. B. Bernheimer and Samuel Soskin, in Archives of Otolaryngology report their experience with prostigmin which acts as does ovary extract estrone in heating up and causing an increased supply of blood to the lining of the nose. The patients sprayed the lining of the nose four times a day with a weak solution of prostigmin.

Results in Twenty Cases.
Twenty patients were treated for periods varying from one month to one year. All other forms of treatment were stopped except washing out the nose once or twice daily so that the prostigmin would be sprayed directly on lining of nose instead of on any mucus that had accumulated. Ozena—the bad odor—was controlled in all the cases, usually at the end of second week. Crust formation was definitely decreased and in some cases disappeared entirely.

Three of the patients stopped treatment for four weeks. In all three cases the crusting, the bad odor and the bad throat returned, showing that treatment must be kept up if the patient is to be kept free of symptoms.

Preventing Spread Of Common Colds

IT IS gratifying to see the interest in backward children now taken by school officials and teachers. Anything that can help the backward pupil—eye tests, ear tests, gland—and other physical tests are made and treatment given to enable the boy or girl to become a useful citizen. Everybody recognizes the value of this work to the health and happiness of these children.

It is, however, difficult to get school boards to make provisions for physical examinations by school physicians and nurses, yet this inspection and health service would not only prevent much absence from school but might save many lives, as epidemics of influenza and colds could be prevented.

The common cold is the most common ailment among children and adults. One case can cause an epidemic that will spread throughout the schoolroom and the whole school, just as it goes through families, factories, and stores. If then this one cause is discovered early and kept apart from others, there will be no spreading of the disease.

In some schools pupils are given a short examination—heart, temperature, and throat—before they return to school after the summer, Christmas and Easter holidays. This has prevented epidemics of colds, mumps, measles and other diseases of childhood from spreading throughout the school.

How can colds be prevented in children and adults? The same rule applies to both children and adults. Don't eat too much and don't allow yourself to get chilled. Overeating means too much acid wastes in the blood and tissues. If the body is chilled at this time, a cold is likely to start in certain individuals.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—Is it possible to increase the stature after one reaches the age of 21?

A.—At the age of 21, injections of pituitary or other gland extract is not likely to increase your height. However, stretching apparatus used by orthopedic physicians to straighten spinal curvature might gain an inch. Also I read recently of devices sold to wear in the shoes that increase height.

ADD ZEST TO MEALS WITH JELLIES AND RELISHES
(See Recipes Below)

LINE YOUR PANTRY SHELF!

As full of tang and zest as autumn are these recipes tailored to fit your canning cupboard. Crisp relishes, sparkling jellies, bright tomato catsup, and pickles of cucumber and peach—what a selection you'll have for making your meals a festive board!

Your pantry shelf lined with these sweet, spicy fruits and vegetables will be your line of defense, too, not only for meal planning but in working out a nutrition and food defense program. Generous supplies of fruits and vegetables now will assure you of plenty in fall and winter if you put them up.

Be sure to use a good quality cider vinegar to prevent pickles from becoming soft, tough, or shriveled. Good, full-bodied spices are also vital to successful canning.

*Bread and Butter Pickles.
(Makes 10 pints)
25 medium sized cucumbers
10 onions (medium-white)
½ cup salt
1 pint vinegar
2 cups sugar
2 tablespoons mustard seed
2 tablespoons ginger
2 tablespoons turmeric

Let unpeeled cucumbers stand in water overnight. Then slice cucumbers and onions and place in pan with salt (no water). Let stand 1 hour, then rinse off salt, add vinegar, mustard seed, ginger and turmeric. Boil all ingredients until peel turns yellow (about 40 minutes). Pack pickles in sterilized jars. Seal and allow to stand 10 days before using.

Remember those amber-colored watermelon pickles mother used to put out? I'm sure you do, so here's the recipe which rates high:

*Watermelon Pickles.
Thinly cut the green rind from watermelon, removing soft part of pink meat. Cut in pieces and cover with salt water made from 1 cup salt to 4 cups water. Soak 12 hours, drain and cook in boiling water until half tender, about 10 minutes. For every pound of rind, allow a sauce made from:

1 3-inch stick of cinnamon
8 cloves without heads
2 cups sugar
1 cup water
1 cup vinegar

Tie spices in a cloth bag. Cook all ingredients 10 minutes. Add rind and slowly bring to a boil. Remove spices. Place rind in sterilized jars, cover with hot syrup and seal.

Spice the fruits from your orchard or carefully chosen material from the market and you will always have something of a surprise to add to mealtime. Served as a meat accompaniment, garnish or a relish whole, luscious fruit decorated demurely with Cookbooks that will make a difference in your life and also a difference in your meals are worth looking into. Fall's a good time to look when you think of the many holidays in the months ahead and the entertaining you're going to do and the new ideas you'll need.

"June Platt's Party Cookbook," published by Houghton Mifflin, is a classic in that the recipes are given in a conversational sort of way as though your very best friend and best cook were giving you some of her favorite recipes. Here you'll find such treasures as corned beef and cabbage, veal kidneys in mustard, hot buttered scones, and strawberry and almond soufflé.

Dishes you've never thought of and touches that add real distinction to everyday food are given in "Mrs. Lang's Complete Menu Book," also published by Houghton Mifflin. Menus for every kind of occasion are given and recipes, too, for every one of them.

cloves, ripened and mellowed in heavy syrup, fills menu demands beautifully.

*Pickled Fruit.
(Makes 5 to 6 pints)
2 cups vinegar
5 cups brown sugar
or
2½ cups each, brown and white sugar
2 tablespoons whole cloves
2 sticks cinnamon
4 quarts peaches, pears, or crab-apples

Cook sugar, vinegar, spices 20 minutes. Select firm fruit, remove the thin skins from pears and peaches, if using them, but do not pare crabapples, rather leave them with skins on. Drop in fruits, few at a time, and cook until tender. Pack in hot sterilized jars, adding syrup within a half inch of the top. Seal and store in a cool, dry place.

Concord grapes, deep purple, velvety, and plump with juice are one of autumn's favorite fruits. They lend themselves nicely to jelly, either by themselves or in combination with other fruits. As conserves, too, they will help you make menu magic.

*Concord Grape Jelly.
(Makes 11 medium glasses)
3 pounds ripe Concord grapes
½ cup water
7½ cups sugar
½ bottle fruit pectin

Stem the grapes and crush them thoroughly. Add the water, bring to a boil, cover, simmer 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly bag and squeeze out juice (about 4 cups). Place sugar and fruit juice in large saucepan, mix, and bring to a boil over a very hot fire. Add pectin, stirring constantly, bring to a full rolling boil. Boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly into glasses. Paraffin at once.

*Grape Conserve.
(Makes 10 12-ounce glasses)
7 pounds Concord grapes
Sugar
2 pounds seedless white grapes
4 oranges, sliced thin
1 pound broken walnut meats
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Stem the grapes; wash and mash slightly. Cook slowly until juice is free, about 15 minutes. Force through a sieve to remove seeds. Measure pulp. To every 4 cups pulp, add 3 cups sugar. Add white grapes, orange slices, cinnamon and nutmeg. Cook to the jelly stage. Remove from heat; add nuts. Seal in hot, sterilized glasses.

Putting up a batch of tomato catsup offers pleasure in more ways than one. You enjoy the lusty, spicy odor of the cooking, and the fragrance seems to permeate the house for days. You'll enjoy seeing the jars of rich red fruit on the shelves, and then again you'll like tartness of the relish as part of your meals.

*Tomato Catsup.
(Makes 5 to 6 pints)
4 quarts of tomatoes, quartered
2 large onions, chopped
2 cups granulated sugar
2 cups vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons whole allspice
½ tablespoon whole cinnamon
2 tablespoons whole cloves
1 teaspoon whole black pepper
2 tablespoons paprika
½ teaspoon dry mustard
Simmer tomatoes, onions, sugar, and vinegar 2 hours. Tie the allspice, pepper, cinnamon and cloves in a bag and add with the remaining ingredients, and continue cooking for another hour. Remove the bag of spices and force the vegetables through a sieve. Reheat to bubbling hot and pack in hot, sterile jars.

REVELATION: A MESSAGE TO PERSECUTED CHURCHES

LESSON TEXT—Revelation 1:3.
GOLDEN TEXT—Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.—Revelation 2:10.

The Revelation is so little known that we need part of our first lesson for an introduction to the book. The fact that this is a "revelation" which God gave to Jesus Christ, "to show unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass" (1:1), should make us all eager to study it. But it is significant that there is a promise of special blessing to those who do read (1:3), and a solemn warning against tampering with the book (22:18, 19). Quite evidently God places great importance on the reading and study of this book. Can we do less?

The book is not easy to interpret, and men have differed greatly as to its meaning. There are four general schools of interpretation: (1) The preterist, which puts it all in the past. Since many of its predictions have not yet taken place, this view seems untenable. (2) The idealist, which regards the book as being entirely symbolical of spiritual principles. There is truth to this view, but it does not cover the historical events mentioned in the Revelation which are yet to take place in the world. (3) The historicist, which regards the book as mainly an outline of church history. This too fails to account for prophecies yet unfulfilled. (4) The futurist (which seems to be the best view); namely, that chapters two and three, while relating to actual churches then in existence, also outline the entire history of the church, and that the remainder of the book relates to future events. This is the interpretation which is largely held by conservative Bible teachers.

A brief outline of the Revelation is found (1:19) in the book itself:

1. "The things which thou hast seen" (John's vision)—chapter 1.
2. "The things which are" (the seven churches)—chapters 2 and 3.
3. "The things which shall be" (the six sevens; namely, seals, trumpets, personages, vials, dooms, and new things)—chapters 4 to 22.

Our lesson portion brings before us two of the seven churches of Asia—Ephesus and Smyrna—with their lessons for our day.

I. The Ephesus Church—Active but Cold, and Facing Judgment (2:1-7).

Following the salutation and the glorious vision of the Son of man (do not fail to read it, Rev. 1:9-13), John the apostle, who was the one to whom the vision came, is directed to write to the church at Ephesus, addressing it through "the angel" of the church. We do not know who he was, but since the word means "messenger," it may refer to a leading officer or elder.

The picture of the church at Ephesus was a very beautiful one. It was an active church, not afraid to work, patient under trial, commendably impatient with sin and worldliness. It was not afraid to exercise discipline, to discredit false apostles, and to stand against the evil works of the worldly-minded. There would seem that there could be nothing more said for a church, but there was a vital note lacking. In activity they were perfect, but they had departed from their first love.

What is meant by leaving their first love? "First love is the abandonment of all for a love that has abandoned all . . . The church at Ephesus was still a remarkable church, but it lacked the element of that enthusiasm, which in the eyes of the calculating worldling, is imprudent. There are some people who imagine that this lack of enthusiasm is an advantage. May God have mercy on such. I pray the day may never come when the heroisms and enthusiasms of first love shall cease" (G. Campbell Morgan).

II. The Smyrna Church—Poor but Faithful, and Facing Persecution (2:8-11).

This is one of the two churches of the seven for which there is no word of rebuke, Philadelphia being the other. It was a poverty-stricken church humanly speaking, but rich in the sight of God. Such a church may be more useful to God and more precious to Him than a large church which is cold and indifferent.

What does He have to promise this church? Persecution. We who follow Him upon whom men spat, who was so buffeted and despised, yet, even crucified—shall we be surprised if a hostile world persecutes us?

Note that the Lord knew all about their sufferings, both present and future. He was with them and would continue to be with them, so they had no occasion to fear. Then at the end of their suffering there would be the crown of life.

Rainbows" she tells of a newspaper editor's family during the depression. Other books by the same author: "Jewels For His Crown," "So Many Worlds," "Hearts Walking," "Beau," "Peter Pan's Daughter."

never made more than just a living. Recently he and it have been one jump ahead of the bloodhounds. You know there's been a depression. Or do you? Probably you think that's funny too. Dad does. Is he downhearted because collections have dropped fifty per cent? Is he? I ask you.

The young man who was manipulating the jack lever grinned. "He's probably having the time of his life trying to pull through by an eyelash."

"He is. He's turned down dozens of brilliant offers in the past fifteen years. Offers that stood for big pay and a name for himself."

"Maybe neither of those things means a lot to him."

"They don't. But—" she broke off abruptly. "He's aces really. He has everything. Only—" she looked away, then back at him defiantly. "He could have gone to the top if he had tried."

"What of it?" His lips curled. "I suspect you'd rather be your own typesetter on your own news sheet than draw ten thousand a year and take orders?"

"Absolutely."

"I dare say if the biggest store in town underpaid its employees, you'd insist on writing it up no matter what it cost in advertising?"

"Sure."

"You'd love to print the truth about a dirty political deal although it offended subscribers right and left and cut your circulation in half?"

"Positively."

Kathleen nodded. "Yes, you and Mike are two of a kind. Have you finished?"

"Yes." He stood up, brushed his dusty hands on his soiled trousers and grinned at her. "If you'll stand out of the way I'll release the brake and see if I can hoist her back to the road."

The old sedan rocked gently down into the ditch and then under its own momentum and some muscular persuasion from the young man at the rear climbed sedately back onto the highway. Gravelly he deposited the irises on the front seat.

"Don't get your values mixed," he said, and his voice was a little gruff as if he was a trifle embarrassed. "I'm not so hot when it comes to moralizing. But a fat salary check doesn't compensate for everything. Not by a hell of a lot. Believe it or not, there is such a thing as selling your soul for thirty pieces of silver. Or thirty thousand. And living to hate them and yourself."

He gazed at her silently. And abruptly his gray eyes were lazy and mocking again. "Your perspective is distorted and I can't say much for your childish tantrums," he remarked with his old exasperating grin. "But you're a cute youngster. And I guess you owe me this."

He stooped suddenly. She could never get accustomed to the swiftness of his apparently languid movements. He cupped her round, dimpled chin in his hand, and kissed her.

CHAPTER II

Laura Maguire carefully set the flaky timbales which she had just taken from the oven on the window ledge to cool. The kitchen was hot and it showed signs of a strenuous engagement. But everything was done except, of course, those things which had to be left to the last minute. Laura fervently hoped that Hulda would not put too much flour in the cream sauce for the asparagus.

Hulda did her best. As well as anyone could who came into someone else's kitchen at six to serve a four-course dinner at seven. Everybody in Covington who could not afford a daily maid had Hulda for special occasions.

Laura, who had urgent reasons to want this particular dinner party to go off beautifully, had been up since six. There had been literally a hundred things to do. She had gone to market herself to select the chicken and the strawberries. The house had been cleaned from front to back, silver polished, the best china and glass washed, the lace and linen tablecloth and napkins dug out and pressed.

The aspic salad had to be made early to leave time for cooling. And Laura had set it in small individual molds which she decorated with tiny rings of red and green peppers. It had been tedious work although she admitted the results were gratifying when she peeped into the big old ice box on the back porch. The Maguires had no electric refrigerator. They hadn't a lot of things which Laura's women friends had.

She was thinking of that as she carefully arranged olives in a slender hand-painted dish so as to conceal the crack in the bottom which she had mended with sealing wax. A party was trouble if one had trained servants and plenty of everything to do with. But it assumed the proportions of a major operation in a house which had to be ransacked to find ten crystal goblets to match, to say nothing of salad plates and forks.

"I was warned about small town Dixie flirts."

drawn up under a tree some distance away. "I thought at first you must be a hitch-hiker."

"I'm touring. And thank the Lord, I've got wrenches and things in my old tin can."

He left her in search of these, but returned at once with a case of instruments. Whistling under his breath, he set about the delicate task of jacking up the sedan's rear wheel without precipitating it again into the ditch. Kathleen found a small spring of water down the road and refilled the bucket. There were loads of gorgeous purple blooms still intact. She produced her compact and endeavored to repair a little of the damage. But the powder was wet through.

"And I was trying to save a three-dollar florist's bill," she cried, throwing the vanity case as far as she could reach while she morosely surveyed a rent in one of her two best pairs of hose.

He grinned at her over his shoulder. "Don't mind me," he said. "Go on and cry if you feel like it. Only I can't lend you a shoulder to weep on. I'm sort of hard-boiled that way."

"From New York, aren't you?" she hazarded after a silence which did not disturb him in the least.

She had identified the license plate on the roadster.

"By way of more recent stops at Cleveland and St. Louis," he vouchsafed.

"You don't take life very seriously, do you?"

He eyed her with sardonic gray eyes. "I've been fired off three newspapers in the past six months for thinking a lot of things are jokes, myself included."

"Newspapers!" Kathleen laughed, a short mirthless sound. "I might have known that you're a tramp newspaper man."

"You don't sound as if you thought much of me and my kind."

She shrugged her shoulders. "I can tell you why you were fired. You couldn't be bothered to do dull stories that pleased the editor or wouldn't offend the big advertising accounts. You preferred to walk out if things got too tame. Or if the fish were biting. Or if the city desk cut down your pet yarn and made you pad one about some pill of a leading citizen who was a pal of the owner."

For the first time she had his acute attention.

"So you know something about newspaper men," he observed.

"My father's one," she flung at him with bitterness. "He owns the Covington Clarion. A daily in a town of eighteen thousand people. He's owned it fifteen years. And he's

"I was warned about small town Dixie flirts."

Slap, bang, bumpty-bump! Kathleen Maguire smothered an eloquent "Damn." A rear tire had gone flat and was smacking the pavement with loose rubber. It was no more than she expected. The family sedan was on its last legs. Nothing could do it any good except to jack it up and run a new one under it.

"And a fat chance there is of that," muttered Kathleen, attempting to steady her wobbling vehicle. But she had been hitting a smart pace and the pike was badly worn, as full of holes as the sedan's dilapidated roof. With a little wheeze and a groan the car slid off into the ditch to the right and coasted gently half up the other bank where it hung, precariously poised on two wheels, in the thick tangled undergrowth of blackberry vines and dog fennel.

She had been to the country for flowers. Because they were cheaper than hothouse products. On the front seat, carefully balanced beside her to keep from damaging their tender tips, was a bucket full of purple irises. She had thought it a brilliant idea at the time. Now the bucket proceeded to upset.

"It would," she muttered with a vindictive thought for the perversity of things in general.

Everything lately had come unraveled at the least excuse. Due to the sedan's perilous slant, she was wadded down in the farthest corner under the steering wheel and drenched with the contents of the bucket. There were purple irises in her hair and a spray of fern in her mouth. Even her white sports shoes squished unpleasantly when she tried to wriggle out from under the deluge.

It was no time for the young man lying supine in the meadow beyond the ditch, to snigger. Kathleen glared at him, her red-brown eyes alight with furious sparks. She had never seen him before. She was sure he had no business to be where he was. Nevertheless he had the most maddening air of seeming perfectly at home. A limp leather volume lay near his hand. But she thought he had been asleep. His lazy gray eyes were both drowsy and quizzical in his sunburned face. And Kathleen had never seen a grin which she considered more exasperating.

"I suppose you think it's funny," she said.

He laughed, and sat up. He had startlingly broad shoulders.

"You must admit it is rather extraordinary to have a maiden in distress barge in on a feller's dreams, literally cockeyed with water lilies, or whatever those things are you're wearing for a necklace," he drawled.

Kathleen colored and made a rapid effort to retrieve a clump of water-soaked foliage that was bent on sliding down the neck of her red and white sports dress.

"They're irises, and they're cold and wet. And if you believe in being useful as well as ornamental," she said with a curl of her red lips, "you might lend me a hand."

She saw with triumph that he did not like being twitted with the fact he was decidedly decorative. He was in fact provokingly indolent about coming to her rescue. But although he did not seem to exert himself unduly, he proved a surprisingly efficient person in the pinch. Kathleen gathered the impression that he did well anything he cared to do. Certainly with a minimum of effort on his part he extricated her from the undignified position of being jammed under her own steering wheel, by the simple expedient of opening the door and lifting her out bodily.

"All I asked was a hand," spluttered Kathleen.

"Don't worry," he said grimly and set her down on her feet in the shortest practicable space of time. "I've no urge to clasp you to my manly bosom. If you must know, you feel like a cross between a damp garter-snake and a very clammy frog."

The Depression completely upset the Maguire family. But, then, there was mother. She pitted herself against all odds—and won!

"Poor folks have poor ways," Laura grinned to herself, quoting old Aunt Julia, the black mammy who had presided in the big kitchen on Laura's father's plantation.

Like all Negroes, Aunt Julia had loathed "poor white trash." Laura thought probably the old colored woman turned over in her grave every time "Miss Lolly" patched a three-year-old dress or dyed a season-before-last slip to wear with a $7.95 model from Blumer's basement.

Laura had been a beauty as a girl. She was still at forty-three almost as pretty as either of her daughters. Although she would have strenuously denied the fact. There were a few silver threads in the smooth black hair above her temples, and laughing wrinkles under her clear topaz eyes. Nevertheless she had on several occasions been mistaken for her older son's sister.

"But not today," she thought with a glance into the wavy mirror above the sink which she was trying to clear of an accumulation of soiled cooking vessels. "Do I look like a hag, or don't I?"

"You don't! You couldn't!"

Laura dropped a stew pan. She hadn't heard Kathleen come in. "Darling, you startled me."

Kathleen eyed her mother somberly. Laura did look tired.

"Sorry. I didn't mean to scare you. I came in the back way to leave the irises on the porch. They spilled and are sort of messy, I'm afraid."

Laura surveyed her daughter and giggled. "You haven't been wrestling with them or anything?"

Kathleen grinned ruefully. "The old bucket up and socked me in the eye. Am I a holy sight?"

"You do look a little bedraggled. Better run right up and change."

"Nothing doing. I'm helping you. I should have been here an hour ago. Only I wasn't," Kathleen finished lamely.

She had no intention of confessing to the mishap which had delayed her. In the first place Laura would worry. It really wasn't safe to risk the old sedan far from town in the state of its tires. And there simply wasn't money for new ones. Furthermore, her rescue by the young man in slacks had left Kathleen's pride considerably impaired. She had no desire to expose the painful details. But it hadn't seemed a laughing matter to Kathleen. It still didn't. She tackled the overflow of dirty dishes with a vehemence that made her mother glance at her.

"Don't bother with those things, darling. Let them alone. I'll be all washed up in a jiffy."

Kathleen doggedly wiped a sauce pan. "You don't like kitchen police a bit better than I do," she said in a fierce voice. "You just do it and don't gripe because you're the grandest sport on earth."

Laura's firm, rather wide mouth curved upward. "Thanks for the flattery, darling."

"It isn't flattery. It's the frightful truth. Only you oughtn't to have to drudge like a slave. It isn't fair. Where's Shirley?"

"Upstairs pressing my dress. And melting into her shoes, I daresay," Laura's amber eyes suddenly looked jaded. "Do try to get her to lie down for an hour when you go up, Kathleen. She really mustn't look as if she'd done the family wash when her future in-laws arrive."

Kathleen sniffed. "You know very well that Jaid's mother will find something to be catty about no matter how Shirley looks. Honestly, that woman's poison ivy to me. How did as nice a boy as Jaid ever draw such a wash-out for a mother?"

"I expect," said Laura with a grin, "if he had had his rathers, he would have chosen differently. But unfortunately, mothers are sort of forced on you, aren't they? And there's not a lot you can do about it."

"None of us ever want to do anything about you."

Laura laughed. "Are you sure you wouldn't prefer a sweet, demure, silver-haired old lady with all the traditional virtues? Isn't it a little trying to have a slightly giddy mother who can beat you swimming?"

"You can't."

"I did Saturday."

"You won't tomorrow."

"We'll see."

Kathleen realized suddenly that she didn't feel depressed or apprehensive any more. And the world, her world, was no longer on edge. She glanced at Laura with narrowed eyes. Had her mother suspected that Kathleen needed to be kidded out of the blues? One could never tell about Laura. She didn't miss anything, though she seldom referred to matters she was not supposed to see. But Kathleen had watched her mother laugh Mike out of the doldrums without his ever dreaming she knew he had them.

"Do come and look at the table," said Laura when they had the kitchen shipshape. "Really it looks very hi-de-ho, if I do say so as shouldn't."

Kathleen agreed but without a great deal of enthusiasm. Privately she thought Jaid Newsum's mother wasn't worth all the nerve strain it entailed to give a dinner party in her honor. Even if Shirley was engaged to Jaid, and mad about him.

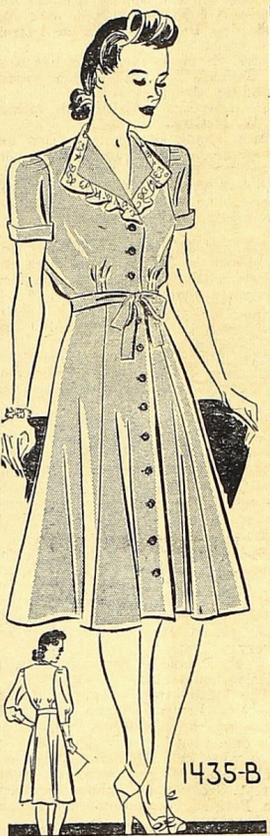

"It looks K. O. to me," she said. "And then some. Only that old snob will find something to patronize. See if she doesn't."

Laura laughed. "I only hope no one decides to move the centerpiece. It's right over the darned place in the cloth."

SEWING CIRCLE

THIS is a dress you'll love for summer wear, because it buttons all the way down the front and may be put on and taken off like a coat. None of this tugging on over the head which you know is a bother on a very hot day. You can make it in fine silk crepes and it will be one of the smartest and most impressive frocks in your entire wardrobe. For this style is dignified by a very pretty collar arrangement—a ruffled edge collar to be worn under the

Household Hints

To remove mildew from a leather bag, rub with petroleum ointment and allow it to remain on bag until mildew comes off easily.

Tomato bisque will not curdle if one-half teaspoon baking powder is added to tomatoes before adding milk.

Parsley can be dried in a very slow oven, cooled, crumbled with the fingers, and stored in a covered jar for future use.

If the cement floor of your cellar has a rough finish, paint with a special paint used for this purpose and sold by paint dealers.

Line your clothes basket with oilcloth cut to fit basket. Fine fabrics will not then catch on loose pieces of cane.

By using a clean sheet of plain wrapping paper to roll pies and pastry on, a lot of cleaning up can be avoided.

Before using new tinware, rub with lard or frying fat, and heat thoroughly in the oven. This prevents rust.

Another's Pattern

One of the most unfortunate phases of specialization in modern industry is the one of the initiative faculty. There are millions of people in this country who never really think, never act on their own responsibility. They do not have to. They are simply cogs in vast machines. They follow the pattern marked out for them. They never try to make one.

FAMOUS ALL-BRAN MUFFINS. EASY TO MAKE. DELICIOUS!

They really are the most delicious muffins that ever melted a pat of butter! Made with crisp, toasted shreds of KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, they have a texture and flavor that have made them famous all over America.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN MUFFINS
2 tablespoons 1/4 cup milk
1/2 cup sugar 1 cup flour
1 egg 1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup All-Bran 2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
Cream shortening and sugar; add egg and beat well. Stir in All-Bran and milk; let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder; add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400°F.) about 30 minutes. Yield: 6 large muffins, 3 inches in diameter, or 12 small muffins, 2 1/4 inches in diameter.

Try these delicious muffins for dinner tonight or for tomorrow morning's breakfast. They're not only good to eat; they're mighty good for you as well. For several of these muffins will add materially to your daily supply of what physicians call "bulk" in the diet, and thus help combat the common kind of constipation that is due to lack of this dietary essential. Eat ALL-BRAN every day (either as a cereal or in muffins), drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation due to lack of "bulk." ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

"Yes, it's his job. He is a blacksmith."

One Too Many
Young Alec was watching a house painter at work. Presently he asked:
"How many coats of paint do you give a door?"
"Two, my boy," was the reply. "Then if you give it three coats," said the lad brightly, "it would be an over-coat?"
"No, my lad," retorted the painter grimly, "it would be a waste coat."

New Land Areas
The 1940 census has issued completely revised statistics on the land areas of all states, the first remeasurement of its kind since 1880, reports Collier's. The five largest additions are 1,246 square miles to Texas, 1,151 to California, 1,145 to Maine, 1,058 to Mississippi and 743 to Oregon; while the five largest deductions are 992 square miles from New Mexico, 849 from Minnesota, 599 from Florida, 546 from Idaho and 541 from Wisconsin.

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—the risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

The V-shaped section of Detroit bounded by Eight-Mile Road on the north and The Grand Trunk rail- road on east and west, will be served by Michi- gan Bell's new Twinbrook Central Office.

"Letting out the seams" for a growing Detroit

WITH defense plants springing up, more people at work and business booming, Detroit rapidly is outgrow- ing its telephone facilities in certain central offices.

The number of telephones served by five central offices in north De- troit, for example, is increasing three times as fast as the average of recent years.

To relieve that pressure, Michigan Bell is rushing completion of a new central office building—Twinbrook — and installation of equipment at a cost of more than $1,450,000.

Western Electric's huge manufac- turing and installation facilities make possible the swift expansion of telephone service in Michigan, and help us speed the $11,000,000 program required to meet telephone demands of camps and defense projects alone. To meet all the increased telephone needs throughout the state, we are spending more than $26,000,000 this year!

The telephone has a little part in almost every National Defense effort. And a little part in every effort adds up to pretty big figures.
