Christmas Seal Money Still Fighting

The Christmas Seal you bought ten months ago is still fighting tuberculosis in Iosco county. Here is the latest report: Two suspect cases of tuberculosis in Iosco county were discovered by a recent x-ray survey made by Michigan Tuberculosis Association in cooperation with Dr. Sue Thompson, drector of Health District No. 2.

Among the 13 persons x-rayed for the first time, five showed primary infection. A person with "primary infection" has caught the germs from some one who has active tubercul-osis. The cells in his body have sealed these enemy germs off, so that he cannot give the disease to anyone else. By observing general health rules he may never break down with tuberculosis himself.

Iosco county still has a serious tu-berculosis problem, the Michigan Tu-berculosis Association points out, reminding us that in the past five years 14 of our residents have been killed by the White Plague. Every five hours some one dies in Michigan of tuberculosis. To save these lives is the purpose of the x-ray clnics which

RED AID:

GAMBLE:

On Eastern Front

Hitler's dramatic announcement that "events of enormous importance" would take place on the eastern front was followed closely by what many observers and analysts of military tactics called the greatest gamble in the history of warlare.

Then from the Nazi high command came the word that in their opinion the last effective Russian forces on the central front had been smashed and "last army groups are being wiped out."

An initial campaign which had been planned for a month or less to yield Leningrad, Kiev and Moscow had been going on for more than 17 weeks, and the yield had been Kiev.

Though knocking on the doors of Leningrad, entry had been denied, and there were many reports that this new plan of Hitler's to storm Moscow from a beginning distance of between 150 and 200 miles would call for the abandonment, for the present, of attempts to take the northern metropolis.

The observers, at the same time that they questioned the good sense of the all-out campaign for Moscow, admitted that if Hitler was to throw all his available forces into a blitz on the central front, Timoshenko's men would have to fall back, but whether Hitler could count on driving all the Russians out of western Russia before winter they believed to be dubious in the extreme.

There was a general feeling in Moscow that the attack was spurred on by desperation, that Hitler was feeling the effects of the unrest back of the eastern front, and believed he would have to have a big Russian victory before winter so that his front-line forces could be relieved to clean up the mess in occupied Europe, steadily becoming worse as winter approached.

As usual whenever a German drive was announced there were those who believed it might be a cloak for something else.

Some suggested that the first spearhead to be driven forward, north of the Sea of Azov, might be a cloak for a water-borne attack on the Caucasus oil fields.

If this were true, however, the Reds on the fighting lines were badly fooled, for they reported a general central German attack of greater ferocity than any so far experienced.

TWO BITES:

Or Just One? Just as many papers were ask-ing editorially why it was that congress was following the plan of what former newspaper woman, has been named "Woman's Editor" of the navy department. It will be her duty to direct a publicity campaign that will tell wives, mothers and sweethearts of the navy, just what their men are doing to spend their time.

HUMAN: Interest Tale

There was probably no human interest story in the news which had the depth of poignancy of the abortive exchange of German and British prisoners of war-seriously wounded men, women and children. both combatants and non-com batants Two hopeful ships laden with an unmentioned number of German nationals had lain at Newhaven, ready to set sail for a port still to be selected where these ships would pick up such British citizens as Germany would release

But the ships did not sail, and imagination painted the anxiety and heartbreak aboard those vessels, emotions undoubtedly shared by an equal or greater number across the channel.

There were rumors that the Nazis were demanding the inclusion of Hess. This was promptly denied by England, who said that his name was not even mentioned.

Suddenly it was evident that the whole plan had broken down. Germany, Britain said, had broken faith -Germany was holding out for a swap of even numbers, whereas the covenant had stated, the British asserted that the exchange would be without reference to rank or numbers

Some day a historically minded writer will pen the story of those days spent by seriously wounded British and German prisoners while two nations quarreled over their fate-whether to die on foreign soil, or to be sent back to their loved ones to close their eyes in peace.

Devising ways and means to meet it on many fronts, military and political, our government belatedly political, our government belatedly discovers Dr. Calvin Bryce Hoover, dean of Duke university, who was away out in front in studying dictatorships, trying to understand them and find out what to do about them. Dr. Hoover is an important mem-ber of Col. William J. ("Wild Bill") Donovan's new diplomatic brain trust, which recruits men of specialized knowledge who have disclosed a timely awareness of the more or less declared war against civilization. Colonel Donovan's title of coordinator of information does not reveal the exciting character of his bureau which is in reality a somewhat mysterious ideological and political Scotland Yard, studying the origins and techniques of Nazi power. evolving plans to meet it in its under-surface penetration everywhere in the world, recruiting against the dictators some of the same psychological forces which they employed.

So far as the public record shows, Dr. Hoover scored a clean beat on our lavishly staffed state department in trying to understand dictatorships and to make an accurate appraisal of their intentions and possible outreach. It was in 1931 that he wrote "The Economic Life of Soviet Russia"; in 1933, "Germany Enters the Third Reich"; and in 1937, "Dictators and Democracies." Through the pre-war years of planetary complacency, he was writing, in his books and articles, an out-line of Adolf Hitler as "genius and fanatic."

These studies were not phillipics against Naziism. Tkey were searchng and studious inquiries into the origins and inducements of dictatorships. They now provide invaluable analyses of the Nazi cultural, economic, military formula for world conquest.

Dr. Hoover, born in Berwick, Ill., in 1897, was conditioned to patient, methodical work by working on farms and railroads in his youth. He attended Monmouth college and received his Ph.D. degree at Wisconsin university in 1525. When he was an undergraduate at the former school, he joined the National Guard and served two years in France in the World war, taking part in two battles. He joined the Duke university faculty in 1925, becoming a full professor of economics in 1930.

Myron C. Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal envoy to the Vatican, is pictured entering the White House upon his return from Rome. Before leaving the Vatican, Taylor is said to have had a lengthy interview with the pope and it was reported that this was the subject of his discussion with the President.

Sen. Tom Connally (left) and Rep. Charles Eaton of New Jersey are shown before entering the White House as members of a bipartisan delegation from Capitol Hill summoned to discuss with the President his plans for congressional changes in the nation's neutrality law. Both men are members of the foreign relations committee in their respective branches of congress.

they called A-B-C legislation or the program of voting for or against Bill A, when everybody concerned knew that Bill B and Bill C, two other steps, were in the offing, the White House brought them a new sample to chew over.

This was the question of the alteration of the neutrality act.

The press was informed that the first congressional-White House conference on the bill was whether it would be advisable to take two bites out of the cherry or only one.

Would it, they discussed, be advisable to settle the question of arming merchantmen and extending the right to American merchant ships to go to British ports separately, or both at once.

Were the question decided in the first method, congressmen asked to vote on Question A, whether merchantmen should be armed, would know full well that this question would be indissolubly linked with Question B, of whether they should allow merchant ships to sail into British ports-but this question would not be before them.

This had been regarded as indicative of the tenor of house thought on the subject of helping the Reds in their defense of their homeland, an attitude that had been echoed in the American Federation of Labor convention.

This group, while assailing Communism as such, completely endorsed the sending of ald to Russia in increasing quantities.

The house action came when, in discussion of a bill which would in-crease the RFC lending power to a billion and a half, Representative Smith of Ohio said he understood Russia wasn't going to get any of it but he wanted to make doubly sure, so offered a prohibitive amendment.

Germany, under the agreement started at once to ship war materi-al to Turkey, and the total deal was said to involve $75,000,000, not so big in a world which as one comedian said, was "playing bingo with billions."

Germany was shipping Turkey motor vehicles without tires, but not airplanes which Turkey wanted. Prior to this agreement Britain and the United States have been getting 100 per cent of Turkish ex-ports of chrome. However, the stubborn resistance the Turks put up against signing this agreement, and the dating of the first shipments in 1943 showed Britain that it wasn't any friendly agreement.

It was recalled that Russia and Germany, now locked in deadly combat with each other, had an agreement which looked far more friendly on the surface than the Turkish-German pact.

Europe Looks To Ú. S. Farms For Food in '42

To Ask Increased Production Of Most Farm Products Over 1941 Record.

By L. G. ELLIOTT President, LaSalle Extension University

NEW YORK CITY .- "Arsenal for the Democracies" is the role which is being enacted by the United States in the present world conflict. The far-flung industrial activity which has resulted has made itself felt in every section of the country and in every type of enterprise. So far, the effect felt by the farmers has been principally the indirect result of increased purchaing power created by the up-swing in industrial production.

Prospects for the immediate future, however, are that the Ameri-can farmer will be called upon to can farmer will be called upon to contribute just as directly as do the munition makers today. According to the department of agriculture esti-mates, 10,000,000 persons abroad will be dependent upon exports from the United States for their sustenance. In 1942, farmers will be asked to increase production in certain crops even beyond that of 1941, one of the most productive years in history.

With the exception of certain crops such as cotton, wheat and tobacco, which will continue to be curtailed because of large surpluses and loss of some important foreign markets, most major crops will be needed in larger quantities. The leaders will be livestock, dairy products, eggs and vegetables—the very products which have been adding most to the increased farm income of 1941. With the gains experienced during the first six months of this year and the estimated $1,000,000,000 increase in farm income estimated for the last six months, the total farm income for 1941 will exceed $10,500,000,000 compared with only slightly more than $9,000,000,000 for 1940.

It is expected that present price levels will at least be maintained if not increased to some degree. Even based on today's prices, the in-creased production schedule will boost the farm income in 1942 to a higher figure than any year since 1920. Dairy farmers have been averaging 20 per cent more income this year than a year ago and the goal for 1942 in this branch of agriculture is a still further 8 per cent increase. The schedule for 1942 hog production is for better than 11 per cent increase over 1941, or 80,000,000 head as compared with the 71,000,-000 pigs slaughtered this year. Seventeen per cent more cattle are now on feed in preparation for the new increased markets.

It is not expected that the new demands for farm products will result in the dislocations which are bothering some lines of manufacturing and some communities where manufacturers have had to curtail operations because of their inability to secure certain raw materials. The industrial picture as a whole is de-cidedly favorable. The national trend is still upward and payrolls as well as production are steadily rising. Many industries such as steel and machinery are not only operating at close to present capacity, but are constantly adding new plants. The effect of industrial prosperity is felt directly in the cities and the resultant better markets still further increase the demand for manufactured items as well as farm products. At the present time, approximately 20 per cent of the income received by all persons emanates from defense spending. This now aggregates more than $1,000,000,000 monthly and the next few months will see this increased to a still higher figure.

The above picture shows a group from the first American civilian technical corps as they arrived "somewhere in England," recently, for noncombatant duties in the British armed forces. They are all trained automobile and radio technicians, and seem happy, despite the rain which falls frequently in the British Isles.

What the Quartermaster corps does for more than a million and a half soldiers John Q. Citizen must do for himself. His design for living is only multiplied by the army but somewhere in the multiplication the army tacked on the term logis-

Citizen begins to un-derstand logistics when he compares it to the possession and operation of his motor car; tenting and furnishing of his home; supplying his family with clothing, groceries, meats, vegetables and other necesaddition to being the train dispatch-er. He is the garbage collector and sities of life, even down to the ice box in summer and filling the coal bin for the winter.

Not many citizens who maintain and own their own automobiles could orient their daily lives in these times to a new design for living which did not include control of their motor cars. The housewife, to whom the Quartermaster corps often has been compared, recognizes the ne-cessity of having the automobile ready for instant use when it comes time to meet the 5:15 bringing hubby home from the office. Romans 8:14.

Nothing could be more practical or blessed for and in the life and service of the believer than an understanding of the person and work of the Holy Spirit; yet it is a subject concerning which most Christians are woefully ignorant. Before taking up the work of the Spirit as it appears in our lesson, we should understand that the Holy Spirit is a person, not an influence which may exert itself upon a service, or a power which a man may For Food, Shelter and Transportation obtain and use. He-the Spirit-is one of the Trinity, with the attributes of a person, doing the work of a person and always referred to as a person in Scripture. (When "it" is used of the Holy Spirit in the A.V. it will be found to be cor-rected to "him" in the R.V.)

What then does this divine person do? The work of creation was His as one of the Godhead. He regenerates, He teaches, He comforts, He leads, He calls and qualifies Christian workers, He is the divine author of the Bible. These and many other things He does, this One who indwells the believer as the ever-present Guide and Counselor. The Christian is

'It is tragic," Dr. Lewis said, "that these gifted children are so mistreated in the schools. Our educational system neglects the most promising students. Only one boy in five and two girls in five of the outstanding group were characterized by their teachers as being precocious or mentally quick. Two of them were even called dull or mentally sluggish. These children, who classmates, are not even recognized by their teachers as bright, because the educational system keeps them down to the level of the average.'

The economic status of the children's homes, Dr. Lewis reported, varies from poverty to affluence, and the social status is equally divergent.

To make the necessary ad-"These exceptionally intelligent justments as easy as possible, all children," he said, "can be expected items of machinery to be used at in any type of home. It is in the realm of the spiritual, however, that we find ourselves peculiarly infirm (v. 26), and this shows itself especially in prayer-'we know not how to pray as we ought." Then the Spirit in the Christian makes intercession. How blessed! "The practical meaning of these profound words seems to be that the divine Spirit, by His immediate influence in the saint's soul, which becomes as it were the organ of his own address to the Father, secures the rightness of the essence of the saint's prayer. To our understandings such intercessions with groanings which cannot be uttered, take the form of desires of ours, inspired and secured by Him. In any special case of prayer, the saint may or may not use words; but anywise the root-desires that underlie the prayer, being the Holy Spirit's promptings, are unutterable to the full. In the heart the Father sees below the surface of our ignorance the sacred longings which are the expression of the Spirit's influence'

Being born again of the Spirit, living daily by the Spirit, it is right rate one in a thousand among their that (as v. 25 puts it) "if we live by the Spirit, let us also walk by the Spirit." The works of the flesh, horrible in their wickedness and lust, are listed in the verses preceding (vv. 19-21), and then by striking contrast we have the fruit of the Spirit in the life of the Christian. Note the distinction: Work is something we produce; fruit is something that grows.

Walking in the Spirit the Chris-tian finds in his life the inward graces of love, joy, and peace. These then express themselves outcers, doctors, ministers, mercantile wardly in longsuffering, kindness, men, government employees, farm- goodness, faithfulness, meekness, ers, barbers, truck drivers, mill and self-control. The first was: - in their materials these cars must not trespass on the current needs of national defense.

The second was: - in their quality and performance they must not be an "ersatz" product.

If you think this leaves only a cramped and stifling byway for engineering to advance in, remember that difficulties are sometimes the spur that real ability needs.

Our new cars, it seems to us, superbly prove this. But we neither expect nor ask you to take our word for it.

The real way to know what they are, and how marvelously

they perform, is to breeze them down a country road or tool them through clotted traffic.

The sure way to gauge their mettle and their inmost goodness is to plump them squarely into the stiffest task your imagination can supply.

So come try the gorgeous new cars that we not only say pace the pack for 1942 but are bold enough to believe set an all-time high in all-round automotive excellence.

They will make you glad - nay, proud - all over again that you're living in America - and now!

"BETTER BUY BUICK"

WM. LOOK, East Tawas

The depression has hit the Maguire family though Mike Maguire, happy-golucky editor and mayor of Covington, is serene. His daughter Kathleen is irritated, however, over several things Mrs. Newsum would like her son, Jaird, to marry Connie Mays, the banker's

CHAPTER IX

Alec Maguire needed another drink. He needed it badly. Liquor gave him a quick pick-up. But unfortunately liquor had a mean trick of dying on him too soon. And the letdown was terrific.

"Isn't the music gorgeous?" burbled Myra.

Alec regarded her sourly. He didn't want to, but quite suddenly he saw every line about her loose rouged mouth. Her hair was metallically yellow, but next to the roots it was drab. Her under chin sagged unless she held it well up. But tomorrow would be another day, reflected Alec bitterly. With absolutely nothing to do. While his nerves crawled with boredom. At least Myra provided action.

She had to be doing something every minute. That was why she liked her playmates young. Maturer men occasionally had jobs to go to. Myra herself had no serious occupation except her own amusement. And she was perfectly willing to pay the piper for the privilege of calling the tune.

"I've got to have another shot before I do a rhumba," muttered Alec when the music ended.

He left Myra to rejoin their party as best she could and made his way a little blindly toward the exit. Marigold Gardens had no license to sell intoxicating beverages. So everybody brought his own. It was quite like good old before-repeal days. Myra always parked a quart or two with her car. She thought Alec might have asked her to go along if he wanted a snort. He was a queer youngster. Brilliant but moody, and his temper was as erratic as a trick cigarette lighter. Myra had never quite figured him out. Perhaps that was why he intrigued her.

Alec had not asked Myra to share her own liquor because he wanted to be rid of her. He had to do something which he dreaded. Myra would think it was a scream if she knew. She would tell the world so. Alec's face looked a little haunted. It was a ridiculous jam for him to have got into. It was all Myra's fault anyway. If she hadn't dared him and if he hadn't been three sheets in the wind, it could never have happened. He might be pretty thoroughly no good, but he wasn't at heart that rotten. At least he hoped not.

"Hell!" muttered Alec Maguire to himself and jerked open the door of the telephone booth.

He continued to frown at the blank wall before him as he dialed a number. Kathleen cleared her throat. At least she and Alec always fought fair. He whirled, recognized her, smothered an oath and hung up the receiver before his connection could daughter, though he is engaged to Shirley, Kathleen's sister. Tom, Kathleen's brother, is hard hit by the slump in real estate, and his wife, Mary Etta, secretary, talks of Reno. A younger brother, Alec, unable to get a job, is taking up with a flashy blonde, much

"Lou Knight!" gasped Kathleen. Alec nodded. "I ought to be horsewhipped," he confessed miserably. 'Myra and the gang bet me that she would turn me down like nobody's business.'

"And did she?" Alec hung his head. "No." "Oh, Alec! And now you're phoning her again. For what?"

"To tell her I'm sorry but I can't take her to the airdrome after allbecause I've broken my neck or something. Gee, Kathleen, I'd never hear the last of it if I stepped out with that little suggin.

"Sure she's a suggin," cried Kath-leen passionately. "Her dad's been the town sot for years and she used to play hooky from school because she hadn't decent shoes to wear. And they live up over a beer flat down by the railroad shops and she's never had anything but cuffs and abuse. And she's thin and homely and all eyes and scared to death of people like any other animal that's been mistreated. But she's also proud as the devil and sensitive and pitiful. And she's probably been thrilled to death for hours because you asked her out. But what's that to you? You're going to call her up and break her heart and make mincemeat of her pride." "Good Lord, you don't think I ought to go! What would Laura say older than he. Ritchie Graham, a stranger, helps Kathleen fix a flat and kisses her. He, too, is a newspaper man -and without a job. So she goes to a dance with Gene Mays though she does not like him. Kathleen thinks she dislikes Ritchie.

Near the railroad shops there was a business street of sorts. It consisted mainly of cheap eating places, squalid second-hand furniture stores. pawnshops, small grimy groceries and beer joints. Upstairs were flats. Dingy dilapidated places with shaky floors and flimsy walls and no modern conveniences. Fire traps Mike was always calling them and attempting to arouse an inert public to demand their destruction. Mike's son, tramping up the steep rickety staircase which mounted from outside, cursed under his breath. How had he ever landed himself in such a mess? Even drunk he should have had more sense, to say nothing of decency

Covington was small enough for everybody to know practically everyone else by sight-and gossip. Alec had vaguely known old Pete Knight's little girl all her life al-though he didn't remember ever having spoken to her before today. They had gone to the same public school because until recently the town had only the one. But they had never been in the same class or even in the same room. Alec thought Lou was about seventeen, three years younger than himself.

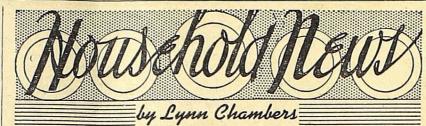

good stock, or so it was generally believed. At least when he first blew into town some fourteen years before, he gave evidence of having been at one time a gentleman. Even yet traces of a former gentility showed through his maudlin speech. But somewhere the man had lost hold of himself. Mike had a theory that Pete Knight had taken a knockout blow in some fairer existence which left him punch-drunk, so that he couldn't pick himself up again. But if so, he never referred to it.

Pete Knight was Covington's bad example. He came originally from

And he resented any attempt at prying into his past—if he had one. Certainly he had no present or fu-ture. He must have been about thirty when he dropped off a freight train in Covington and he had been steadily drinking himself to death ever since. Several months after his arrival Lou appeared. She was barely toddling. A queer forlorn lit-tle tyke even then, who had made the trip in the care of successive railroad conductors.

He worked, when he wasn't on a spree, at anything he could find to do from washing dishes in a greasy spoon restaurant to hauling garbage for the city. But most of his earnings went for whiskey with which further to befuddle his already foggy brain. And for several years moral wreck. But when he was in

COOKIE SURPRISES

All crisp, crunchy, and some slightly nutty, all of today's recipes are so fashioned as to send you on a real cookie-baking spree. Fill that lovely cookie jar of yours until the sides are fairly bulging with goodies so you can have cookies a-plenty to put in the children's lunch boxes, to serve as afternoon snacks, and as a pickup for mealtime.

If you're doing some baking for a bazaar, there's nothing quite like plates of yummy cookies to put over the sales. Remember, you can sell a lot more, if you give out some samples. These can be set on plates with white paper doilies, for sampling, and those to be sold put in boxes already fixed. Cookies can be sold by the dozen if they're fancy and somewhat elaborate, by the pound if they're small drop cookies or squares.

Here's an interesting variation of the filled cookie, both dainty and delectable.

Corn Flake Filled Cookies. (Makes 36 medium-sized cookies) 1 cup shortening

1 cup brown sugar 3½ cups flour 2 teaspoons baking powder 1/4 teaspoon salt 1/2 cup water

1/2 teaspoon vanilla 2 cups cornflakes

Blend shortening and sugar thoroughly. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together and add alternately with water and flavoring to first mixture. Stir in coarsely rolled corn flakes. Chill. Roll dough to 1/8 inch thickness. Cut with cookie cutter. Spread one round with filling, put on he had been a physical as well as a a second round and press edges together with a fork. Bake on a

Rather Far-Fetched Was This Relationship

"You say, madam," said the barrister to the woman in the witness box, "that the defendant is a sort of relation of yours. Will you explain what you mean by thatjust how you are related to the defendant?"

"Well, it's like this. His first wife's cousin and my second hus-band's first wife's aunt married brothers named Jones, and they were own cousins to my mother's own aunt. Then, again, his grandfather's on my mother's side, were second cousins, and his step-mother married my husband's stepfather, and his brother Joe and my husband's brother, Henry, married twin sisters. I've always looked on him as a sort of cousin."

If you have a relative or friend in the service and have any doubts about what to send him as gifts, your problems are over. The serv-ice men have solved it for you by naming tobacco as their first choice in gifts. Actual sales rec-ords show the favorite cigarette with men in the Army Nave Ma with men in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard is Camel. Prince Albert is the popu-lar smoking tobacco. With these preferences in mind, local tobacco dealers feature Camels by the carton and Prince Albert in the pound tin as ideal gifts to the men in the service from the folks back home.

went so white she was frightened. "All right," he said in a thickened voice, "you win. I'm putrid. I'm not fit to open my trap no matter what you do. I admit it. And that's that. Now will you beat it? I've got to telephone and I didn't invite an audience."

Kathleen's lips quivered. "I didn't mean it, Alec. But, gee, Buddy, it breaks my heart when you're like this.'

Alec looked away. His handsome boyish face was haggard, his black eyes a little desperate. "I'm not drunk now if that's what you mean,' he said gruffly.

"I know. But-don't go back in there, Alec. Cut that bunch and surprise Mother by turning up at a decent hour for once.'

'Yeah, and lie awake till daylight, rolling and tossing because I'm too gosh-awful blue to sleep,' he said bitterly. "What time is it?"

"Nine-fifteen by my watch and chain though I don't guarantee it," said Kathleen with a rueful grin at the wrist watch which she had won with a prize essay on the beauty of being altruistic in a grossly material world.

Alec groaned. "Blow," he said sharply

Kathleen regarded him with nar-rowed eyes. "You may as well tell me what it's all about," she said firmly, "because I'm sticking till you do.'

Alec again colored violently. "You won't like it. But if you must have it, you must. We were all pretty well liquored up this afternoon and Myra wanted to do something different, for a thrill. So she dared me to call up somebody and make a date for tonight.' "Who?"

raised her son to be an idiot, but I believe she'd prefer that to a cad. Alec drew a long breath. "I'll never live it down," he muttered. "But here goes." He dialed his number and this time he waited for his connection.

"This is Alec Maguire," he said doggedly into the receiver. "Will you please send somebody upstairs with a message to Lou Knight? Tell her I've been unavoidably detained and am going to be a little late, but I'll be there.

He turned away from the telephone. "I hope you're satisfied," he growled.

He did not return to the ballroom. Kathleen watched him going sulkily out the entrance, and didn't know whether to laugh or to cry. He was lucky enough to catch a ride with Len Woods and Sylvia Mason who had decided to move on elsewhere. They set him down on Main Street and, still scowling, Alec crossed the railroad tracks and made for that unlovely part of town against which Mike was always crusading in the Clarion's editorial page, where one row of ugly shotgun houses, all precisely alike, butted against another and the streets were unpaved and dusty, the yards small and cluttered and bare. Myra would be furious, Alec knew that. But the stimulation of the alcohol which he had consumed earlier in the night had yielded to black depression, and in his present humor he did not much care what Myra elected to do about his cavalier desertion. Nevertheless he was aware that he would feel differently the next day when the hours stretched interminably before him and he had nothing to do but think. The sort of thoughts that had been driving him crazy since he took his degree at midyear and found himself adrift in a world that yawned when he begged for his chance. Just a chance, that was all he asked. A chance to do things. Big constructive things such as he had dreamed ludicrous figure. The sort small boys loved to follow and torment with rocks or snowballs just to hear him roar like a baited and bewildered trapped bear.

"Come," said a small husky voice when Alec rapped at one of the battered doors which lined the long dingy upstairs corridor.

The girl, standing a little beyond the scarred kitchen table, reminded him uncomfortably of a small hunted animal. The flat had only two rooms and was depressingly scant of furniture. But at least an effort had been made to retrieve the ugliness of dark cracked walls and narrow broken-paned windows. A straggling geranium grew in a tin coffee can and the rusty cook stove had been polished. "Hello," said Lou Knight. She was very thin and her blue eyes were enormous in her smar wan face. She had thick pale brown hair, a shy nervous mouth and little roughened hands that kept twisting ing. at her side. Her glance begged Alec not to laugh. At the room, or at her, or at her sleazy blue silk dress which pulled in places, revealing raw seams, and which bagged in others. But Alec had never felt less like laughing. She was such a pathetic little scrap. So dreadfully shy. So afraid of sneers and blows because life had handed her little else. "Ready?" he demanded awkwardly. She nodded. And he went on, trying desperately to sound natural.

"Sorry I was late. But if we hurry, I think we can just make the last show."

She said nothing. But he saw the cords working in her thin little neck. She was scared to death. Alec's throat hurt at the look in her eyes. She stumbled on the stair from sheer nervousness and he put out his hand to steady her. But she caught her breath sharply and flinched away. Alec flushed. Had she thought he was going to hit her? He hated himself for being so painfully aware of her shabby little slippers which had scuffed, run-down spike heels. He supposed he was a snob, but the hardest thing he had ever done in his life was to walk through the crowd of hangers-on outside the Covington Airdrome and purchase a couple of tickets for himself and Lou Knight. Even after he was safely inside where there were no lights his handsome young face burned. (TO BE CONTINUED) hot (400 degrees) oven 10 minutes. These cookies will flatten slightly.

LYNN SAYS:

An assortment of cookies freshly baked and packed in tins with waxed paper between layers makes a delightful present for youngsters away at school and for friends you seldom see. When your own cookie jar has been filled to bulging, pack a few boxes from what you have and spread cheer to others, too.

Careful packing in tins with waxed paper will keep even small dainty cookies fresh for a long time. Some flavors like chocolate improve after they stand for some time. Chewy, nutty cookies are the more chewy and delicious after several days. Spicy cookies become moist and well flavored after standing.

3/4 cup evaporated milk 3 cups flour 2 teaspoons soda 1 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon each, ginger, cinnamon Cream sugar and shortening, add egg and molasses. Beat well, add milk and blend well. Mix dry ingredients and add to batter. Last add soda, dissolved in 2 tablespoons warm water. Drop by spoonfuls on greased baking sheet. Bake 15 minutes in a hot (375 degrees) oven. Brownies.

- (Makes 2 dozen) 1/3 cup butter or shortening 1 cup sugar 2 eggs, well beaten 2 squares unsweetened chocolate. melted 3/4 cup flour 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts 1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat eggs and sugar together. Add to this melted butter and chocolate and blend. Add flour, baking powder, nuts, and beat well. Pour into a greased pan and bake 30 minutes in a 350-degree oven. Cool and cut in squares.

For a delicious variation of the brownie recipe, you'll like the addition of 3/4 cup of bran cereal in place of the chopped nutmeats. They'll give you a slightly different flavored cookie, but guaranteed to please you, just as well.

*Meat-Macaroni Casserole.

1 package macaroni 1/3 cup salad oil 1 pound hamburger 1 dry onion, minced 1 green pepper, minced 1 clove garlic, if desired 1 can tomato soup 2 cups peas 2 cups corn Salt and pepper Cook the macaroni in plenty of boiling salted water and when tender, put in a sieve and rinse with cold water. Meanwhile fry the hamburger in the heated oil, stirring it occasionally to separate it. Skim out the meat and in the same fat cook onion, pepper and garlic till tender, but not browned. Garlic may be omitted entirely, and it is usually removed after the onion and pepper are cooked. Combine all ingredients and simmer 20 to 30 minutes to heat thoroughly and blend flavors, then serve. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

HONORABLE MENTION Citizenship

The following boys and girls have received the highest honor that can be given by their teachers, an "A' in citizenship. While good ctizenship has always been desirable, today the very life of our democracy may depend upon the sense of responsibility is one of the factors considered in this grade. Does this boy or girl know and work for the good of his fellow students, the school, and the community at all times? To do this he must consistantly manifest imagination, unselfishness, and leaderhip. An "A" in citizenship can not be won through passive, good behavior, but only through actively contributing to the welfare of the many. East teacher having a student in class or assembly gives this student a mark in citizenship. Therefore a student may have as high as five or six marks. These marks are averaged and this average mark gives the student his final grade in citizenship. 285, S. Humphrey 271. High average H. Kussro, Sr., 182, B. McPherson 176. We are happy to have boys and girls who deserve this honor.
