Park Benefit Parties Planned for Winter

Plans for a series of parties to be held this winter for benefit of the Tawas City Park are well underway. The Park Drive committee met Wednesday evening with Mrs. G. A. Prescott, chairman, other members are: Mrs. J. S. Stepanski, Mrs. Ernest Mueller and Mrs. A. W. Colby. Groups of eight will be formed with sponsors selected by the committee. Each group will decide their type of entertainment or games. A simple lunch will be served and no prizes. Anyone wishing to play, get in touch with the committee.

The dedication ceremonies for Plainfield township's new hall held last Friday evening drew a large number of people from all sections of the county. G. Donald Kennedy, state highway commissioner, was the principal speaker.

At 6:30 a delicious banquet was served in the spacious dining room in the basement of the new building. Places were set for 161 people and everyone enjoyed the fine things prepared by the ladies of Hale and surrounding community.

Following the dinner everyone inspected the building which would be a credit to any community and then Duell Pearsall, president of the Chamber of Commerce, called the meeting to order and a fine program of music by the Oscoda High School band, singing, cornet solos, guitar solos, dancing, and addresses by state speakers.

Among the speakers, in addition to Commissioner Kennedy, were State Senator Ben Carpenter, State Representative "Sandy" MacKay, Judge Herman Dehnke and Lawrence Tedrick, of Lansing, assistant superintendent of public instruction. WPA officials present were Earl J. McBratney, of Flint, district director for Eastern Michigan; E. F. Patterson, of Flint, director of operations, and Fredric Schouman, of Lansing, WPA information officer, who represented Abner E. Larned, state WPA administrator. Mr. Larned had been unable to be present.

To provide for a needed community center with space for township offices in the village of Hale, the Plainfield Township Board requested WPA to construct a township hall in the village. Work started October 27, 1938, with the Plainfield township board as sponsors, and an average of twenty workers were employed until July 8, 1939, when the project was closed down temporarily because of lack of funds. The project was resumed again on September 23, 1940, and completed June 20.

The building is a one-story frame structure, 70 feet by 124 feet, with a basement of 40 feet by 74 feet. The total cost of the building was $30,161.00 of which WPA contributed $17,150.00 mostly in labor and the township board, $13,011.00.

In addition to the building itself, WPA workmen built a 24 foot wide gravel road, 740 feet long leading into the hall and landscaped one and one-half acres of ground. "The new structure has already filled a great need in the community life, and is a type of building both serviceable and ornamental, which WPA likes to construct," states Mr. Larned.

Food Stamp Plan Adopted by County

Retail food merchants of the county will meet next Tuesday evening at the Tawas City high school auditorium to hear an explanation and discussion of the new Food Stamp Plan. The plan has been adopted by food merchants and the board of supervisors.

Albert H. Buch, chairman of the Isoco county food industry committee, states "Every retail food merchant who desires to take part in this method of distributing surplus commodities must attend this meeting in order to properly register and be eligible to redeem stamps and secure payment for them.

"May I urge all of you to attend this meeting, and request that all of your employers, such as clerks, cashiers, meat cutters, etc., who will be handling the food stamps, be present."

Persons who are receiving public assistance or are employed on WPA, as eligible by the local welfare office, may participate in the new Stamp Plan.

The plan is entirely voluntary and no one is compelled to take part. Eligibles receiving public assistance who choose to take advantage of the benefits of the Plan, however, will obtain $1.50 worth of food for each dollar they spend. For each will ORANGE stamps they buy they will be given one Blue stamp free. The ORANGE stamps will be good for any food sold in a retail food store. The BLUE stamps will be good for any food listed by the Secretary of Agriculture as a blue stamp commodity.

TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB SPEAKER

MRS. JOHN SICKLES

The Twentieth Century club observed Guest Day on Wednesday with members from the women's clubs of Whittemore, East Tawas and The Rural Study club as guests. The meeting was held at the Tawas City auditorium with 75 women present.

Mrs. W. A. Davison, president, welcomed the guests and announced the program. A piano solo, "At Morn," by Beverly Bigelow, and four vocal selections by Mrs. Nyda Leslie, accompanied by Mrs. Giddings, preceded the main address given by Mrs. John Sickles, director of Michigan State Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Sickles brought to the club women the program on National Defense from the General Federation Headquarters from Washington, D. C., as outlined by the National President Mrs. John L. Whitehurst. Halloween decorations were used on the tea table, with Mrs. G. A. Prescott, Sr., and Mrs. James Nesbit pouring.

New Federal Building Dedicated Tomorrow

Dedication ceremonies for the new Federal Building at East Tawas will be held at three o'clock Saturday afternoon. Postmaster Charles A. Bigelow invites everyone to attend the ceremonies and inspect the beautiful new building.

Among those who will speak will be R. B. Hinds, of Petoskey, postal inspector; E. J. Stevens, chief clerk of the railway mail service; R. J. Garvin, of Cleveland, superintendent of mail; and J. H. Price, of Milwaukee, regional forester.

A banquet will be held at six-thirty o'clock Saturday evening at the Hotel Holland.

Garden Club Notes

The Twin Cities Garden club officers met at the home of the President Mrs. John Henry Monday afternoon, October 27. A program for the club-year was discussed. At the next meeting to be held Monday afternoon, November 3, at two o'clock sharp, at the county garage, the following program will be presented:

Thanksgiving Table Decoration, by Mrs. H. G. Bullock.
Selling of Christmas Greens.
Should the Club Sponsor Christmas Home Decoration Contest?
Open Discussion on Storing Bulbs.
Bulletin Board on Exchange of Seeds and Bulbs.
All members are urged to attend as this meeting has an important bearing on the success of the club year.

The Twin Cities Garden club will sponsor a civic planting plot in the Tawas with the cooperation of the various organizations in both towns. Tentative plans are to select a site in each town and have the site landscaped by O. Gregg, of Michigan State college, who advises the use of native shrubs and trees.

A letter has been sent to all organizations of both towns. When the plan has been brought to the attention of their club and representatives appointed, please notify the Secretary of the Garden club Mrs. O. Westcott, Tawas City, phone 241, in order that a meeting may be called that will be satisfactory to all representatives.

Health Notes

In order to carry out a more intensive sanitarian program, the Sanitarian for District Health Unit No. 2, Frank J. Mayer, has temporarily moved to East Tawas. For the past two months, Mr. Mayer has been working out of Harrisville and formerly made his headquarters at West Branch.

In view of the fact that there are some special problems needing attention in Isoco county, the sanitarian can provide better service by living nearby. An effort will be made to assist the people in the community to improve such establishments and services as restaurants, milk plants, schools, sewage disposal and water supplies.

The service of the sanitarian are available to the people in the Community in matters which help to improve the sanitary environment and to benefit the public health. For specific requests in matters affecting the public health, information may be obtained by contacting the Health Department office in the courthouse or by calling 46.

COUNTY CLUB WOMEN MET AT WHITTEMORE

Mrs. H. B. Brockenbrough Newly Elected President

County Club Day was observed last week Wednesday at Whittemore. One hundred members of Isoco county's club women were in attendance.

Luncheon was served at the Masonic hall on tables decorated with bowls of autumn flowers in blue and yellow. Favors at each place were seedling pine trees suitable for planting which were furnished through the courtesy of the Huron National Forest.

An address of welcome was given by Mrs. Henry Pake, president of the Whittemore club. Mrs. Palmer Burrows, of East Tawas, county president, responded.

Miss Alberta Fuerst, of Whittemore, played two guitar numbers. Dorothy Hawthorn, of East Tawas, followed with two readings. Mrs. George Leslie, of Tawas City, sang a group of three songs. Two saxophone selections were given by John Reim, of the Whittemore High school. This was followed by an illustrated lecture on Alaska by Rev. Thornton B. Penfield, of Saginaw.

This was followed by a story on Alaska given by Mrs. James Colby.

Mrs. Lloyd J. Wagner, of Mt. Pleasant, president of the Northeast District of Women's clubs, spoke briefly on the part women should play in the defense program.

An election of officers followed with Mrs. H. B. Brockenbrough elected as president. Other officers elected were: Mrs. James Mark, of Tawas City, first vice president; Mrs. H. V. Patterson, of East Tawas, second vice president; Mrs. Arthur Lietz, of Wilber, secretary; Mrs. E. T. Pierson, of East Tawas, treasurer.

The newly elected officers were introduced by the retiring president, Mrs. Burrows, and the meeting was adjourned by Mrs. Brockenbrough. The next meeting place will be chosen later by the new officers.

Mowbray-Goedecke

Harold Goedecke, of Detroit, and Miss Florence Mowbray, only daughter of George Mowbray, of Hale, were united in marriage at the Lutheran parsonage at West Branch Sunday.

The bride wore a dress of soldier blue crepe. She was attended by Miss Leta Clement. Morris Streeter acted as best man.

The young couple leave for their new home in Detroit with the best wishes of their host of friends.

Mr. Goedecke is the son of Mrs. Guy Tift.

MRS. GEORGIA HANSON DIED LAST MONDAY

Had Operated Book Store At East Tawas for 57 Years

Mrs. Georgia Hanson, widow of the late Henry Hanson and pioneer resident of East Tawas, died Friday at the home of her son, H. Eugene Hanson, at Jackson. She deceased was 83 years of age.

Mrs. Hanson was a well known and highly esteemed business woman in the community. Together with her husband, she had operated for 57 years the Hanson Book Store and Bazaar at East Tawas, the only book store between Bay City and Alpena. After Mr. Hanson's death in 1918 she continued the business until she retired about three years ago. Mrs. Hanson was prominent in civic affairs.

Georgia Osborne was born March 4, 1858, at Almira, N. Y. When she was ten years old her parents, Reuben and Ann Osborne, came to Isoco county, settling at Bristol Station. During the early days the Osbornes operated the Strong House at East Tawas. At one time her parents operated a farm on the Meadow road. On October 19, 1876, she was married to Henry Hanson.

She is survived by three sons, Iver C. Hanson, of Los Angeles, California, Claude Hanson, of Albuquerque, New Mexico, and H. Eugene Hanson, of Jackson, a daughter, Mrs. A. E. Lundy, of Detroit; five grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

The deceased was a member of Irene Rebekah Lodge, Ladies Literary club and Christ Church Guild. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon from Christ Church, Episcopal. Rev. James R. Colby officiated. The pall bearers were John Schriber, William Dean, Dr. Charles Klump, George Herman, Sam Siglin, and Andrew Christenson. All places of business at East Tawas were closed during the funeral services.

Will Vote on Potato Program November 4-6

Balloting on the Potato Marketing Program will take place on November 5, at the J. C. Monroe Cream station at Whittemore, and Kocher's store at Hale. Polls will be open from 1:00 p. m. to 5:00 p. m. Also, producers may place their vote at the County Triple-A office at Tawas City on November 4, 5 and 6 from 8:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m.

Any potato grower in Michigan who has been engaged in the production of potatoes for market during the period from January 1, 1940 to July 31, 1941, will be eligible to vote in a referendum to be held next week, November 3 to 8, on a proposed marketing agreement program for potatoes in the states of Michigan, North Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

If adopted by producers and handlers, the program would regulate grades and sizes of potatoes shipped from the four states in interstate commerce and provide for federal or federal-state inspection. Potatoes grading lower than U. S. No. 2, the minimum U. S. grade, and smaller than one and one-half inches in diameter (culls) could not be shipped from these four states under the proposed marketing program. Similar potato programs are now in operation in Idaho, Colorado, and Malheur county, Oregon.

To more fully explain the proposed marketing agreement program the following material has been submitted: A marketing agreement is a voluntary contract between the Secretary of Agriculture and the signatory handlers which will be binding only upon the latter. This marketing agreement becomes effective upon signature of handlers of more than 50 percent of all potatoes shipped from the area, and final ratification by the secretary. A marketing order is issued by the secretary, having the same terms and provisions as the marketing agreement submitted to handlers for signature which will be binding upon all handlers in the area, whether or not they have signed the agreement. These orders are issued upon a two-thirds favorable vote of producers voting in a referendum, and approval of the agreement by handlers of more than 50 percent of the shipments from the area or lacking such handler sign-up, upon a two-thirds favorable vote of producers voting in a referendum and with approval by the president.

An agreement has been proposed because potatoes are a staple crop for which demand is very inelastic, abnormal yields on normal acreage result in price-depressing surpluses about 70 percent of the time, potatoes are perishable and cannot be stored, thus requiring corrective measures during the harvesting and marketing seasons and past experience has shown the industry that grower income can be improved by withholding from markets culls and lower grades and small sizes.

This program benefits the producer through eliminating the price-depressing effect of culls and small sizes (Turn to No. 1, Back Page)

EAST TAWAS

Nearly two hundred relatives and friends attended the wedding of Esther Jean Osgurby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Osgurby, of Vassar and East Tawas, and Steven G. Lakatos, of Detroit, on Saturday, October 25. The ceremony took place at the Vassar Presbyterian church with Rev. Milo Wood officiating. The young couple will make their home in Detroit.

Navy Day was observed at the American Legion Auxiliary meeting last Monday evening with an appropriate program. After the meeting a lunch was served. The tables were decorated with toy boats and the color scheme was red, white and blue. Appropriate songs about the navy were given with the assistance of Mrs. Irene Boice and Mrs. Iva Mallon. Miss Helen Appin gave the history of the United States Navy.

There was a fine attendance at the gay costume party given by Grace Luther League at the Legion hall on Wednesday evening. Games and lunch were suggestive of the Halloween season.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dimmick have returned from their wedding trip to Chicago.

Mrs. Leona Askey and daughter left Thursday evening for Bay City where they expect to make their home.

Mrs. F. E. Kunzie and Miss Leona Hass, WPA librarian of the Isoco county library, attended the Michigan Library association convention at Traverse City last week.

Mrs. L. Jones and daughter, Mrs. Nina May, and son, Donald, spent Saturday at Bay City.

A pot luck dinner at the K. of C. hall will be the feature of the St. Joseph P-T. A. meeting to be held October 31. Mrs. Paul Klenow will be chairman.

James Pelton and Edward Seifert, of Detroit, spent the week end at their parental home.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Swanson, of Norway, Michigan, spent the week end at Tawas Point.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Seifert spent a few days in Lansing this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Iver Hanson, of Los Angeles, California, attended the funeral of the former's mother, Mrs. G. Hanson, on Monday.

Mrs. G. Quackenbush, of Washington, D. C., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Chas. Curry.

Mr. and Mrs. Hosea Bigelow, of Detroit, attended the funeral of their grandmother, Mrs. G. Hanson, on Monday, and also visited a few days with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bigelow.

Maurice Myers, of Tower and Mrs. M. Abrahams of Flushing, N.Y. are visiting their sister, Mrs. Clara Barkman for several days.

Mrs. Sara Bridge and daughter, Everette, of Detroit, spent the week end with her sisters, Mrs. J. McRae and Mrs. Hattie Grant.

Earl Haight and sons, of Detroit, spent the week end at their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Butler, of Bay City, spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Butler.

John Glendon, who has been visiting relatives in the city, returned to his home in Billing, Montana.

Misses Fidelis and Jean Bergeron and Ann Hughes, of Lansing, spent the week end at their homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Barkman spent Thursday at Bay City.

Mr. and Mrs. William Dean will leave Friday (today) for Marlette and Bay Port to visit relatives.

Deer Hunter's Ball

A Deer Hunters Ball will be held Friday, November 14, at the Community building, East Tawas, sponsored by the Silver Valley Winter Sports committee. Music will be by Glaza's WBCB Polish Broadcasting orchestra. This orchestra has been broadcasting for the past five years, but this is its first appearance in the Tawas. Don't miss this entertainment. Dancing starts at 9:30. Admission 50c each. Come as you are.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK. — William Cullen Bryant once engaged in a fist-fight in City Hall park with James Gordon Bennett, as the culmination of a violent political argument. Others of our poets have occasionally mixed in politics, held political jobs or died in battle, but the tradition has held that they are cloistered folk, not to be taken too seriously in matters of any great moment.

Archibald MacLeish, one of the best of contemporary American poets, and librarian of congress, has been asked to accept the administration of the new Washington agency called the Office of Facts and Figures. He and his agency will try to get reason, if not rhyme, into the daily outpouring of un-related and sometimes contradictory statistics of national defense and foreign policies. In Juvenal's line, "That poet seems to be capable of walking a tight rope . . . all with the power of a magician."

There was quite a buzz of opposition throughout the country when Mr. MacLeish was made librarian of congress, three years ago. There was, however, some precedent for poets in government jobs and in politics, as well as on the firing line. There was Eugene Ware, topical versifier, who held down a good job in the pension department, about 30 years ago, and did it well. Then there was shaggy old Walt Whitman, in the same department at a time when the government seemed to need tight-rope walkers and magicians, to say nothing of poets, even more than it does now.

Gen. William Haines Lytle was a poet and politician—the author of "I Am Dying, Egypt, Dying," of school-boy recitation fame. He became a colonel of the Tenth Ohio Volunteers and died leading a charge at Chickamauga. As to poets in general coming to the aid of their country, there may be cited John McRae, who wrote "Flanders Field"; Joyce Kilmer and Rupert Brooke. Each gave his life.

Mr. MacLeish is, like his predecessor, Eugene Ware, somewhat of a topical versifier, but a much better poet. He frankly teams up poetry and propaganda—always for democracy as a faith and not as an institution.

On his graduation from Yale in 1915, he was grooved into a business career by his parents, and was surprisingly good at that too. Disregarding his parents' warnings that there were "no gold mines on Parnassus," he knocked off and made his career as a poet—on up to and beyond his winning of the $1,000 Pulitzer prize for his poem "Conquistador" in 1933. During the current war years, he has driven a sharp lance against our pre-war artificers of literary lace-work and their companionate wanderers in foggy introspection. He was born in Glen-coe, Ill.

THOSE houses built like silos in the back yard of the Museum of Modern Art in New York are the development of a quite similar blend of art and utility devised by their creator, R. Buckminster Fuller, back in 1929.

He first made them to live in, and they were to be standardized, and sell for about $3,000 apiece. His Dymaxion unit of today is not only a domicile, but it is adapted to use for defense housing, air raid shelters or troop barracks, or may be used as a beach or guest house.

Mr. Fuller is acutely aware of social change, which awareness has been one of the main inspirations of his scheming and dreaming about a world in which creativeness will outrun disaster. He pioneered airplanes as symbolic of human liberation and aspiration and took sea-plane vacations, embellishing his adventure narratives with poetic apostrophes of flight.

In 1938, he published a four-dollar book, called "Nine Chains to the Moon." A lot of it was pretty deep. Mr. Fuller explained it at the end in this manner:

"Therefore be it resolved: To resolve every considerable, wish-evoking central concept into a reasonably efficacious resistance, eliminating, inanimate device of time and contiguous service to time-synchronization, that may be factorable from possibility to probability, this intent to streamline man's competitive volition unbeknownst to him into a scientifically designed direction of least resistance, upon the occasion of his each and every dislodgment from habit inertia."

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Shipping Losses and Kearny Incident Have Effect on Neutrality Act Debate; British View Invasion as 'Impossible'; French Assassinate Two Nazi Officers

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

KEARNY:

Starting Things

The fact that the Kearny, U. S. destroyer hit by a Nazi torpedo, had been more than slightly damaged, had suffered the loss of some 11 lives and had several persons badly wounded landed with a jolt in a Washington already jittery in the midst of a debate on the Neutrality act.

The navy refused any information except the broadest facts, pending a fuller report of the commander, and the incident left congress in a welter of excitement.

On top of this had come two further sinkings, those of the Bold Venture, former Danish ship carrying the flag of Panama, and the Lehigh which was flying the Stars and Stripes.

The Lehigh was sunk off the coast of Africa, far from the combat zones. The impact of these three incidents on a congress which was being asked to permit the arming of merchant ships was terrific. Immediately measures were placed before congress ranging all the way from a complete repeal of the Neutrality act to a resolution asking for a declaration of war.

This last was not actually introduced, but certain isolationist senators said that it would be as a counter measure to the "pressure" being exerted from the White House.

Out of it all emerged the second half of the Neutrality act legislation, the measure to send American ships into combat zones, and this had been reported to have received presidential favor as a matter of present business.

Again, as the administration was meeting severe opposition on one of its measures, fate and the news played into its hands.

RUSSIANS:

Tough Battle

Pressure shifted from one direction to another along the Moscow front with the Russians putting up a desperate fight.

There had been a sudden heavily reinforced attack, however, in the southern, or Orel district, and the Nazis had claimed the capture of Stalino, a city of 450,000 people, and described as "a leading armament center of the Donets basin."

Still later the Nazis had announced gains on the Azov front and the defenders believed the Germans were shifting their attack to the south.

There had been reports of Stalin personally in command at the central front, his headquarters in an armored train. But the capital had been moved to a spot 550 miles southeast of Moscow.

Russian sources had declared the picture at Leningrad to be the brightest of that on any part of the long front, with the defenders of Russia's second city inflicting terrific losses on the attackers, and still holding their defense lines.

INVASION:

'Impossibility'

British sources, following a protracted demand on the part of labor and certain sections of the press for an immediate invasion of the continent, officially declared this plan "still an impossibility."

The R.A.F., it was stated, was still smashing the Reich territory on a 24-hour basis, however. London authorities were testy over the hint, however, that Britain was not doing all she could to aid Russia, and it was revealed through high officials that shipments of tanks, airplanes and munitions had been sent, that many already had arrived. Others were en route.

The British declared that fully one-half of the German air force was being compelled to be held in the west because of the daily attacks by bombers, and that the British are doing everything that the Russians themselves have suggested in the way of aid.

50 FOR ONE:

Officers Shot

The killing of Colonel Holtz, the Nazi commander at Nantes, France, by assassination was promptly avenged by General Stuelpnagel, occupation commander, by the killing of 50 French hostages.

The commander said: "Cowardly criminals paid by England and Moscow killed the field commandant at Nantes with shots in the back on the morning of October 20. Until now the assassins have not been arrested."

"In expiation of this crime I have ordered, as preliminary measures, that 50 hostages be shot. Considering the gravity of the crime 50 other hostages will be shot if the assassins are not arrested."

The general offered a reward of 15,000,000 francs for the surrender of the guilty parties.

Four members of the gendarmerie at Nantes had been taken into custody, including the prefect of the district. He and the mayor of Nantes issued an appeal for aid in the arrest of the killers.

On that very day, however, in the neighborhood of Nantes, a freight train was derailed, a section of track having been removed.

For other offenses four Frenchmen had been executed, and the total of hostages executed during October was said to have reached 134.

Next day reports told of the killing of another Nazi officer in France. This time, a major.

G. O. P.:

Willkie Policy

At the height of the neutrality debate more than 100 Republicans took part in an appeal for the repeal of the Neutrality act, in the face of the recollection that this action in the last war was shortly followed by American entrance as a full participant.

These were led by Wendell L. Willkie, who said:

"Millions upon millions of Republicans are resolved that the ugly smudge of isolationism shall be removed from the face of their party."

"At the same time he criticized the administration for the handling of labor relations, saying "the desire of many in the administration to rewrite our social and economic life under cover of the national effort must be ruled out during the emergency."

WICKARD:

On Prices

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, calling the parallel between the present war and the last one too close for comfort, urged on congress the necessity of immediate price fixing to stave off disastrous inflationary tendencies.

He declared himself in complete agreement with the provisions of the pending price-control bill, and said that the planned price-fixing authority might not be necessary.

The nation's agricultural production next year, he predicted, will be the highest in history, and the increase would be mostly in meats, milk and eggs. He recalled that of the 14,000 banks which failed most were country banks, and said he didn't believe the American economy could stand a second siege like that.

SIBERIA:

Or Thailand?

Watchers of the perilous situation in the Orient were still wondering whether Siberia or Thailand would be the first to feel the touch of Japan's expected military effort.

In spite of unconfirmed reports that the United States and Japan had reached some basis of agreement, the tension continued high. Japanese quarters were pressing on the government to do something first about Thailand.

Low-Down-on-Low-Bid

Appearing before the Senate defense investigating committee, Sidney Hillman, OPM associate director general, is pictured as he declared that low bid by a CIO contractor for a Michigan housing project was disregarded because its acceptance might result in strikes and open violence involving the entire construction industry in Detroit. The committee was probing charges that OPM shows favoritism to AFL.

As 'Enemy' Captured Fort Tilden

Fort Tilden, one of the defenses of New York, falls to the "invaders" from Fort Hancock. Men of the 52nd coast artillery (top) charge directly under muzzle of the 16-inch coast defense rifle as they capture the fort. Below: A machine gun crew guarding Marine Parkway bridge on road to Fort Tilden is shown, hands aloft, in token of surrender, when surprised by "enemy raiders" during a realistic test.

In Backwash of War on Eastern Front

Barefooted Soviet peasant women are shown (top) with the few belongings they managed to salvage from their homes when they fled the Nazi war machine. LABOR:

Civil Strife

An internal war within the C.I.O. organization was revealed when a strike at a Detroit steel plant was suddenly halted.

The public was treated to the unusual spectacle of a union leader telling his members to go back to work because the army had been ordered to take over the plant "unless," and being roundly hissed.

There were yells of "bring on the soldiers."

The union leader, John Doherty, said: "The United States army already has received orders to move in. The government has notified our union that this strike will not be tolerated."

The men, who claimed that their own union leaders had "sold them out" in wage negotiations, hissed and catcalled, but they went back to work.

There were hints of sabotage in this strike, and the open charge by Federal Conciliator Dewey that he was looking for a "sinister purpose" in the walkout. Dewey had been in the conference which resulted in this particular steel company signing a contract with the SWOC.

MEXICO:

Releases Aliens

Latin-America and the United States had been puzzled by a report from Mexico stating that close to 600 Nazis and Fascists from the seized Axis ships had been released and returned to their former status of foreigners legally in the country.

American circles could not understand why President Camacho took this action, as it was believed certain to complicate Mexico's espionage problem, already quite complex.

It had been pointed out that, prior to their seizure, these Nazi and Fascist ships had been hotbeds of propaganda, and that one of them, the Orinoco, had maintained a printing plant aboard, and that in addition to flooding the country with material along the Nazi party line, had given many entertainments aboard for Mexicans and had shown many propaganda movies.

BRIGADE:

Of Heroes

The British official reports of the Dunquerque episode were filled with many stories of heroism, but none of them more poignant than the story of the lost brigade of Calais.

This was a group of 3,800 British soldiers who held the French port, vital to the use of Dunquerque as a debarkation point, for all the days while the evacuees were crunched on the beaches, vulnerable to attack, thus permitting their brothers-in-arms to escape.

Of this body, only 47 ever returned to England. The commander was Brigadier C. Nicholson, and after standing heavy bombardment and with the town he was defending in flames, he received this terse command:

"Every hour you continue to exist is of the greatest help to the B.E.F. The government therefore decided that you must continue to fight. We have the greatest possible admiration for your splendid stand."

One spearhead of the German attack was desperately anxious to take Calais and to sweep on to Dunquerque, to fall on the helpless and vulnerable men at that point.

But the riflemen of the Calais brigade held them, despite the bombings by wave after wave of Stukas. Nicholson himself was among the missing. His last radio appeal was:

"Please send us more guns—still holding out."

It was the evening of the fourth day. Calais had held out long enough. Their work was done.

Pilot Crashed, 1939, Never Found

Canadian fliers have found the wreckage of plane of Thomas Smith of Clarksburg, W. Va., who left Portland, Maine, May 28, 1939, and has never been found. Top picture shows trapper's hut near wrecked plane. Bottom: A mound of stones and sticks pointing the N.W. direction Smith had said in his note (in plane) that he would walk.

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger B. Whitman

Starting Up the Heater.
 ANY kind of a heater should be thoroughly cleaned inside before starting it up in the fall. The inside flue passages should be scraped and gone over with a steel brush, of a kind made for the job. The smoke-pipe should be cleaned out, for it is only too likely to catch ashes and soot. All of this work can best be done with a vacuum cleaner, of a kind intended for the purpose; coal dealers can do the job, or can supply the names of concerns specializing in it. The chimney flue should also be cleaned as often as is necessary.

Doors of the heater should fit tightly; if rust has collected on them, this should be scraped off. Doors that are too greatly warped to make a tight fit should be replaced, for leakage of air around them will interfere with the draft. The smokepipe should make a tight fit in its hole in the chimney, which usually calls for a packing with asbestos or other fireproof cement. The same kind of cement can be used to close an open joint between the bottom of the heater and the floor.

If the water gauge of a steam boiler shows that the water is dirty, the boiler should be emptied and refilled to the proper level. If the water is clean, there is no need to replace it. This applies also to boilers of hot water heating systems.

Cold Extension
 Question: A two-story brick extension is exposed and very cold in winter. The upper part is a kitchen. The dish closet is as cold as the refrigerator. We have hot air heat, but heated air does not come into the kitchen until the kitchen air is heated by the stove. What can you advise?

Answer: In the first place, you should have an outlet by which the cold air can escape from the room and get back to the heater. This would set up a circulation that would bring the hot air into the kitchen. For insulation, the kitchen walls can be lined with stiff insulating boards, which are one-half inch thick and would occupy but little space; the boards could be nailed directly to the plaster. Cork-board might also be used.

Construction in Winter
 Question: I am interested in a corner house, one of a row of houses to be built during the winter and completed about May. I am told that houses built in winter are not as strong and do not stand up as well as those built in warm weather. Is this true?

Answer: The durability and quality of construction are entirely dependent on the reliability of the contractor and the care he uses in his building operations during freezing weather. Of course, construction during warm weather eliminates some of the hazards.

Kitchen Table Top
 Question: I wish to finish a new wooden top on a kitchen table in a color, with a serviceable surface. If this cannot be done in color, what other method should I use?
 Answer: A linseed oil treatment will be more satisfactory. Give the table a soaking coat of raw linseed oil. Wipe off the excess oil on the surface after an hour or so. After three applications the table top will be resistant to stains and will not be liable to warp.

Covering Insulation
 Question: I have an unfinished attic which is about four feet high in the middle. There is no flooring in it, but I have four inches of insulation between the beams. Would it be advisable to cover this insulation with some sort of material such as a rigid insulating board, making a floor of same?
 Answer: Insulating board is not hard enough for flooring; use plywood.

Clinkers.
 Question: Is it told that burning garbage in my furnace helps to form clinkers. Is this so?
 Answer: Yes. Burning garbage and other rubbish in the furnace is one of the commonest causes for clinking. Ash from the garbage prevents the even flow of air through all parts of the fire-bed; this concentrates the air in a few parts, which overheats the fuel to the melting point.

Burning Garbage
 Question: Is it wise to burn waste paper and garbage in a furnace during the winter season?
 Answer: No; for it will interfere with an even draft and is one of the common causes for the formation of clinkers.

Water Heating
 Question: Is it possible to heat water in an oil-fired hot air furnace?
 Answer: It is not very satisfactory. Use a separate unit for heating water.

MINERAL AND VITAMIN RICHES FOR HEALTH
 (See Recipes Below)

YOUR DEFENSE: HEALTH

Help yourself to your share of health by giving your meals plenty of health-giving foods and ward off the lack of resistance to disease that comes from not getting enough of properly balanced foods.

Economy and health will be the key words this season and throughout the country you homemakers will have to take your part and build the backbone of the country by feeding your families food that builds strong bodies, steady nerves and high morale.

Fortunately, good, health-building food is not just achieved through more buying power, but through wise buying. You can use canned vegetables or low-priced fresh vegetables, cheaper cuts of meat, milk and canned fruits.

You've been hearing lots about vitamins, so check yourself on them:

Vitamin A is for resistance to infection, for growth and general well-being. You'll need it for your eyes, too, for poor vision and night blindness are common symptoms of the body's lack of this vitamin. You'll find it plenty in milk, butter, vegetables green and yellow, fruits and eggs. It's also the one vitamin which you can store in the body.

Vitamin B1, sometimes called thiamin, is for appetite and good digestion. This vitamin's for good morale. If you're lazy, grouchy or nervous look into the matter. The chances are that you've been neglecting pork, liver, meat, enriched cereals and enriched bread and flour, nuts, and peas.

Vitamin B2 is sometimes called vitamin G also and also goes under the name riboflavin. If your nails have been brittle and grow slowly and break off easily or your hair and skin are generally in poor condition, add some of these good sources of vitamin B2 to your diet: milk, liver, eggs, cheese, lean meats and leafy vegetables.

Gums bleeding? Teeth decay easily? Perhaps you're missing out on vitamin C, for this is the vitamin that goes right into your system and helps you have good teeth and bones. If your diet contains plenty of citrus fruits (lemons, oranges, grapefruit), tomatoes, fresh fruits and vegetables, you won't have trouble with teeth, bones, or wounds not healing.

Vitamin D boosts vitamin C and calcium into action, makes them utilize the other vitamins and minerals. Vitamin D isn't easy to find in foods, although eggs, salmon, sardines and herring contain some of it. Milk can be fortified with this vitamin and then it is called "irradiated." Most common way of getting the vitamin is either through milk of this type or by taking cod liver oil in winter, sunbaths in the summer, for it is formed in the skin by the ultraviolet rays of the sun. That's the round-up of vitamins. Now, how about minerals?

You've probably heard that you need calcium to build good bones and teeth, but did you know that you need it to help your blood to clot when you have a wound and that you need it also to regulate your muscle contraction? No food keeps people from getting old indefinitely but if you've good calcium deposits, you'll at least postpone old age for awhile. Milk and green vegetables burst with calcium so use them every day. Don't forget the salads: carrots, cabbage, and celery aren't too expensive in winter and they're calcium-rich.

Phosphorus works together with calcium in building bones and nerves. Milk, cereals, meat, cheese, eggs, nuts—all these have a good phosphorus content.

Iron's a marvelous pep-you-upper. Not only does it guard against lagging energy but also digestive disturbances and general irritability. Iron goes to work and makes red, red blood cells that are just about the hardest working cells you'll ever find. The red blood cell shuttles between your lungs and your 7,000-mile-long circulatory system dropping off the oxygen and carrying out the carbon dioxide.

You need lots of iron so don't miss a day on iron foods. That means you'll be eating plenty of liver, molasses, oatmeal, dried apricots, eggs, whole wheat, lean beef, cabbage, oysters and raisins from now on.

Iron by itself is apt to be a bit lazy. It needs copper to make it get to work, so be sure to have prunes often, whole-grain cereals, oatmeal, dried fruits, liver and oysters at some one of your three meals.

Iodine spells power. It is released to your system by the thyroid gland which is near the Adam's apple. Sluggishness, mental and physical, are the result of lack of iodine or thyroid deficiency.

Seafood contains iodine as well as garden vegetables. Salt has been iodized to help out general deficiency, and cranberries if raised in low-lying lands near the sea are a popular source of iodine.

Magnesium balances calcium, and as you're getting your milk you'll be getting magnesium, too. Other sources are green leafy vegetables.

That's the line-up. You'll notice that many foods contain both or several kinds of essential minerals and vitamins. Of course that should make the job you have to do easier.

Liver and Vegetable Pie.
 (Serves 6 to 8)

- ¼ pound salt pork
- 1½ cups cooked pork liver, cut in pieces
- 1½ cups sliced onions
- 1 cup diced carrots
- 2½ cups boiling water
- 1½ teaspoons quick-cooking tapioca
- Black pepper and salt
- ¼ teaspoon celery salt
- ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Fry salt pork, add liver and brown slightly. Cook onions and carrots until tender in boiling salted water. Drain, measure liquid and add water to make 2 cups. Add vegetables and meat to liquid, then remaining ingredients and bring to a brisk boil, stirring constantly. Turn into greased casserole.

Cover casserole with the following: Mix 1 cup sifted flour with 1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder and ¼ teaspoon salt. Cut in 3 tablespoons shortening, add milk (about 6 tablespoons) and mix until soft dough is formed. Pat to ¼-inch thickness, cut several slits on top. Fit over casserole. Bake in a hot (450 degrees) oven, 20 minutes

TO YOUR Good Health

by DR. NATHAN S. DAVIS, III

BE CAREFUL OF TYPHOID MENACE

Typhoid fever has become so rare that an outbreak of four or five cases in a community causes wide publicity and intensive public health department activity. Yet there are many doctors still engaged in the practice of medicine who remember only too well the times when during the late summer and early fall, hospitals were full to overflowing with patients who were incapacitated for from 6 to 12 weeks by this disease.

Dr. Nathan S. Davis III

Typhoid fever presents four stages: a formative stage lasting two to three weeks, an active stage of equal length, a declining stage of a week or 10 days and then a convalescent period of three or four weeks. During the formative period the symptoms are chiefly languor, weariness, indisposition to exertion, sensations of heat and cold, a bad taste in the mouth, dizziness and pain in the head, back and limbs. By the time the second stage is reached the patient is so ill he goes to bed, is dull and drowsy and there is a continuous high temperature which falls gradually during the third stage which the symptoms disappear.

The veterans of the Spanish-American war remember that typhoid fever was almost as epidemic in camps in this country, in Cuba, Puerto Rico and the Philippines as was influenza during the last World war. If the medical profession had not learned that the disease was caused by drinking water or milk that contained the Bacillus Typhosus and that inoculation with the killed organisms produced a temporary immunity, it would have been as prevalent during the last World war as it was in 1898.

As a matter of fact there was a great deal of typhoid in France in 1914 and 1915 even though the protective inoculation had already been developed by a Frenchman.

At the time of the Mexican Border service in 1916, our troops were protection only against typhoid. But a number of cases of a similar though milder disease, paratyphoid fever, that had its source in infected meat, developed. As a result, those participating in the World war in 1917 and 1918 were inoculated against both simultaneously, and there were few cases of either disease.

The improvements in water supply, sewage disposal, and in food sanitation have tremendously lessened the chance of infection with either of these diseases or with cholera and amoebic dysentery which are similarly carried and have also been epidemic in the United States. However, there are a few typhoid carriers even among food handlers and as a result sporadic cases occur.

Sometimes political officials who do not thoroughly appreciate the dangers, because they do not remember the conditions existing prior to 1900, neglect warnings and there is an epidemic such as that at the Manteno State hospital in Illinois in 1939.

Because preventive measures have made these water and food borne infections extremely rare, even the members of the medical profession begin to neglect them. Yet one of the most important benefits that will accrue to all who volunteer or are drafted for military or naval service, is the fact that all will be inoculated against typhoid and paratyphoid fevers. Furthermore, the army and navy medical corps and the U. S. Public Health service are doing all in their power to give the soldiers pure food, milk, and water.

Give me health and a day, and I'll make the pomp of emperors ridiculous.—Emerson.

QUESTION BOX
 Send questions to Dr. Nathan S. Davis III, Winnetka, Ill. (Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

Q.—Many times while lying relaxed in bed just before going to sleep a nerve in some part of my body will contract suddenly causing me to jump involuntarily. Is there something wrong with my nervous system? Do you think I should see a doctor? F. M.

A.—It is a muscle that contracts, not a nerve. It indicates that you are not completely relaxed in a comfortable position.

Hugo Had No Doubt

One evening a number of Victor Hugo devotees, dining at the poet's home, were trying to outdo each other in praising their host's genius. One of them thought the street in which Hugo lived should be named after him. Other streets were being suggested as more appropriate when an enthusiastic fellow declared that no one street was worthy of such distinction. The whole city should be named after the poet! Hugo merely nodded approval and said: "That will come, my friend, that will come!"

LOWER HEMLOCK

The Grange party at Mrs. Lucy Allen's last Friday evening was well attended, about 25 being present. The evening was spent playing bug, Mrs. Ambers winning high score for the women and Chas. Brown for the men. When supper was served two beautiful birthday cakes were brought out, the first intimation Mrs. Curry had that it was also a surprise birthday party for her. She has been a Granger for fifty years, and the Grange presented her with a beautiful basket of giant yellow mums and pink roses. She also received two boxes of candy and other gifts from her friends. Mrs. Curry made a gracious speech of acceptance, and after a delicious pot luck lunch they all departed wishing Mrs. Curry more happy birthdays. This was her 85th anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. James Chambers, of Detroit, spent the week end at his home.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wagner, of Detroit, arrived Saturday. Mr. Wagner returned on Sunday. Mrs. Wagner remained for a few days' visit with her mother, Mrs. Hattie Rapp.

Mr. and Mrs. Alva Wood left Sunday for week's visit at Rogers City and other points in Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Katterman and son, Johnny, and daughter, Mrs. Carl Look, spent Monday in Detroit and Royal Oak.

The Parents-Teachers-Pupils club met at Vine school Friday evening, October 24. A good time was had. The next meeting will be held Friday evening, December 5. An old time dance is being planned, watch for the announcement.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Simons and son, Paul, and Stacy Simons, all of Detroit, were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Simons, Sr., and family.

Clarence Earl motored to Detroit Saturday returning Sunday. Mrs. Earl, who has been visiting relatives there for the past three weeks, returned with him.

Walter Miller is out every day signing up farmers for the Farm Defense Program.

Arthur Lorenz, of Detroit, spent the week end with his mother, Mrs. Ette Lorenz.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Smith, of Flint, visited her sister, Mrs. Raymond Warner, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Chambers left Monday morning for the Soo where they will attend the State Gange convention as delegates from Greenwood Grange.

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Albertson, of East Tawas, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Katterman.

There was a good attendance at church Sunday morning to greet Rev. John Pearson, of Bay City, who was pastor here about forty years ago. He gave a wonderful message and aroused memories of long ago in those present who knew him then. Mrs. Mabel Van Wagner, of Washington, was present and sang a beautiful solo "Life's Sunset days" in honor of Rev. Pearson, as he, like others of those who were present, are in their sunset days.

In the normal human blood stream, red corpuscles die and are replaced at the rate of about 150,000 a second, declares Collier's.

"NAVY INTELLIGENCE"

Is it necessary to be a high school graduate in order to enlist in the Navy?

No. Navy enlistees need not be high school graduates. All applicants will be given an examination containing approximately 100 questions. A grade of 50 per cent or better on this examination is sufficiently high to pass the Navy educational standards. However, a high school education will be valuable to the seaman during his Navy enlistment.

If I enlist in the Navy or Naval Reserve, will I be sent to a Navy Trade School?

All new recruits are sent to one of four Naval Training Stations and after a training period they may take examinations for entrance into Navy Trade Schools. Those recruits who pass their examinations with sufficiently high grades are sent to Navy Trade Schools before assignment to the fleet. While attending these schools, they will receive regular Navy pay and free schooling valued at $1500.

What is the greatest possible pay I can expect to earn during my first term of enlistment? It is possible to earn as much as $126 a month by the end of your first term of enlistment, and remember that your clothing, lodging, medical and dental care are all supplied free.

After I have served my term of enlistment, what benefits do I get for re-enlistment?

Depending on your rate and length of service, you can get a cash bonus up to $300 plus 30 days leave with pay.

What does the term "ash can" mean in the Navy?

An "ash can" is a slang term applied to the depth charge used to combat submarines. The average "ash can" is a container filled with approximately 300 pounds of T.N.T. and can be dropped overboard from a ship and so controlled as to explode at depths ranging from 36 to 300 feet. These are generally carried by the fast ships in the fleet, as a boat dropping a charge regulated to explode at 70 feet depth must move away from the explosion area at a speed of 25 knots or more. These "ash cans" are either rolled off the stern or shot from "y-guns" which hurl one right and one left simultaneously.

"Imagine me, steering a Destroyer!"

"And I've had two pay raises in only eight months! I'll say you can't beat Uncle Sam's Navy!"

YOU couldn't ask for a greater thrill than that which a fellow gets when he comes back home wearing a trim Navy uniform. The folks crowd around. They all want to know where you've been, what you've done. And man, do you have stories to tell!

GREATEST LIFE IN THE WORLD

You're proud. And you should be. For you've been leading the greatest life in the world. And it's a thrill to tell about it, too. A thrill to see the admiration in the eyes of the One and Only Girl as you tell about the first time you steered a Destroyer. Or handled a P.T. Boat at more than 45 miles per hour. Or stepped out in front of your shipmates to receive your first promotion.

And with that promotion came an increase in pay. And there were more to come. Second Class. First Class. And then Chief Petty Officer. Many might even go to Annapolis. Or to Pensacola with the flying cadets!

Exciting? You bet, and fun too. Something doing all the time. Real he-man's stuff. Boxing. Baseball. Football. Swimming. AND MOVIES... previews, too!

LOOK WHAT THE U. S. NAVY AND NAVAL RESERVE OFFER YOU

- FREE TRAINING worth $1500. Nearly 50 trades and vocations to choose from.
- GOOD PAY with regular increases. You may earn up to $126 a month.
- EACH YEAR you are entitled to a generous vacation period, with full pay.
- GOOD FOOD and plenty of it.
- FREE CLOTHING. A complete outfit of clothing when you first enlist. (Over $100 worth.)
- FREE MEDICAL CARE, including regular dental attention.
- FINEST SPORTS and entertainment any man could ask for.
- TRAVEL, ADVENTURE, THRILLS—You can't beat the Navy for them!
- BECOME AN OFFICER. Many can work for an appointment to the Naval Academy or the Annapolis of the Air at Pensacola.
- FUTURE SUCCESS. It's easy for Navy trained men to get good-paying jobs in civil life.
- LIBERAL RETIREMENT-PAY for regular Navy men.

FREE TRAINING WORTH $1500

And all this time you're taking care of your future! The Navy said, "Pick a trade—we can make you an expert." And they gave you nearly 50 skilled trades and vocations to choose from: Radio expert, machinist, welder, aviation mechanic, dental technician, electrician—to mention a few.

Yes, training that would be worth $1500 to you in one year's time. Training that will assure you of a well-paid job in civil life. Yet you get paid while learning—get your keep and a complete outfit of clothing free.

Where else in the world are there such opportunities for thrill, for fun, for a future as in Uncle Sam's Navy?

Handmade Rainbows

By MRS. HARRY PUGH SMITH
© Mc CLURE W.N.U. Service

Laura Maguire, wife of Mike Maguire, happy-go-lucky editor and mayor of the town, is mother to four children: Tom, whose real estate job is profligate during the depression and who is married to Mary Etta, secretary to a big shot; Alec, unable to get a job.

Tom knew she wanted him to pay for his supper by hunting up his host and being very appreciative of the spectacle to which he had been invited solely for his wife's sake. But Tom had had all he could stomach at one sitting. So he stood stiffly by until Mary Etta was free to leave and said nothing complimentary to anybody.

"Did you ever see anything like the way Harvey manages that three ring circus?" murmured Mary Etta on the way to the car.

Tom grunted.

"Sulking again?" she inquired crisply, turning the key in the ignition with a snap.

"If you must know," said Tom, "I'm fed up to the gills with Harvey Leigh and everything about him. Do you realize we have him for breakfast, dinner and a bedtime story?"

"You just can't bear success—in somebody else. Can you?" She glanced at him curiously. "You have even hated me lately, haven't you?"

Tom went white. "Do you realize we've scarcely spoken a civil word to each other in six months?"

"Yes," said Mary Etta in her cool, unemotional way. "I realize all that."

"Where are we drifting, Mary Etta?" asked Tom in a stifled voice. "I wouldn't know."

Her flippancy flecked him on the raw. He stared unseeingly straight before him and thought of their brief tempestuous courtship. They hadn't known each other very well. Tom was barely twenty-one, Mary Etta a few months younger. He hadn't intended to think of marriage for years. But somehow after he met Mary Etta he could think of nothing else.

He had not been sure she liked him at all. Being Mary Etta she had been more antagonistic than encouraging. The day Tom asked her out of a sudden mad impulse to elope with him over the week-end, he had half expected her to bounce an ink bottle off his head. Not until they came out of the County Courthouse, the license firmly clutched in his perspiring hand, had he believed in her surrender.

But then Mary Etta never had exactly surrendered.

On their brief honeymoon before each of them returned to their respective desks, she had never even in his arms quite let herself go. She did love. Or rather she had. He was convinced of that. Or she would never have married him. Mary Etta had played fair. She did not believe in maudlin sentiment. But she asked no more than she was willing to give.

"She proved a curiously exciting wife. Tom admitted that. There had been moments when he could have wrung her neck. Interspersed with the delirium of loving her so wildly it frightened him. But he was never indifferent to her.

"I had another letter from old Colonel Shoup today," he said later while Mary Etta was cold creaming her face.

"He dies hard, doesn't he?" she observed. "I should think he'd tire of wasting postage."

"Listen, Mary Etta," said Tom thickly. "I know you hate small towns. But we can't go on like this. I grant you Colonel Shoup's proposition sounds like piffle on the surface. Fifty dollars a month and commissions, if any. But he's got the best real estate business in Covington. And he's offering to let me buy into a partnership on the installment plan. It's exactly what I've always wanted. And"—his voice quivered—"a couple can live on fifty dollars a month in Covington. I know a four-room house not far from Mother's that can be rented for twenty, and whole families nowadays eat on a dollar a day."

"You mean if the wife does all the cooking and the washing and the ironing," said Mary Etta scornfully. "Are you seriously proposing that I give up my hundred and seventy-five a month and move to a town I hate where I'll have to work like a slave, just so you'll have the pleasure of saying you pay all our expenses?"

"Yes," said Tom, his mouth a hard ugly gash.

"To save your face," went on Mary Etta, "I'm to let go of everything I've won from life and turn into the kind of female drudge my mother was. Bending over a hot cook stove. Squeezing pennies. Saving on haircuts. Wearing house aprons. Cutting up Sunday's roast for Thursday's hash. Boiling cabbage till I want to scream. We couldn't even keep a car."

"No," said Tom, "we couldn't. But we might afford a baby some day."

Mary Etta went very white. "Just because your mother thinks a wife should sacrifice herself to her man and go on and on sacrificing—" "We'll leave my mother out of this."

"It's funny you married me, when she's your ideal."

INSTALLMENT NINE—The Story So Far

who takes up with a flashy divorcee much older than he; Shirley, engaged to Jaidr Newsum, who also is out of a job since his father gave up his manufacturing plant to stop losses, and whose marriage is delayed; Kathleen, whom a stranger, Ritchie Graham, also a newspaper man, is interested in. Ma Newsum wants Jaidr to marry Connie Mays, the banker's daughter. On a bet, Alec takes out Lou Knight, the town drunk's daughter. Tom and Mary Etta had just been guests at a Tavern party of Mary Etta's employer, Harvey Cobb Leigh.

"You laugh that off," snapped Tom. "It doesn't seem funny to me."

He reached up to the shelf over the bed alcove and dragged down a battered suitcase.

"What are you going to do?" demanded Mary Etta.

"What do you think?" he retorted, opening that drawer in the dresser which was dedicated to his use.

Mary Etta stood very still for a minute. "Calling it a day and quits?" she asked at last.

Tom was stuffing shirts into the suitcase. "I'm a failure. As a provider and as a husband. But I'm not going to be kept by a woman, even my wife."

Mary Etta caught her breath. "I warned you when I married you that I'd not let any man swallow my personality."

"I know. And probably you're right. But I happen to have a personality too. As well as a little pride of my own. You might possibly pay my bills and retain some shreds of respect for me. But I couldn't let you and feel like anything except my wife's lap dog. These past six months have proved that, don't you think? Between us we've killed our love. All it needs now is a decent burial. And I fancy hung her white linen hat on its accustomed nail and marched over to the littered table consecrated to her use. The last issue of the Clarion lay there neatly arranged by Tommy for her consideration. Kathleen did not need to turn to the editorial page to know what was afoot. Nevertheless, her brown eyes smoldering, she read every word.

Mike had done it again. The very paper crackled with the remarks he had to make about unscrupulous financiers in general and Banker Eugene Mays of Covington's leading bank in particular. Kathleen had to admit that her father, when he decided to set off fireworks, did a thoroughly good job. No wonder Eugene Mays had paid the Clarion's editor an early morning call. Kathleen shivered a little. The banker was a very imposing figure in local concerns. Naturally he resented having sarcasm of the most virulent nature directed at his policies.

In the private office someone guffawed. It was Mike of course, laughing in his caller's infuriated face. A faint grin traveled over the harassed faces of the group outside. It was so exactly like Mike to treat Mr. Eugene Mays' important anger to a cold douche of derision. But Kathleen did not grin. It might be very audacious and gallant of her father to tweak the lion's tail and then snigger about it. His daughter, however, was thinking of the number of people in Covington who owed Eugene Mays money and who jumped through hoops at his signal.

The door of the inner office came open with a sharp crack, and everybody in the main office became suddenly tremendously occupied with his own tasks. Mr. Mays, however, did not condescend a glance to his audience. He stood on the threshold, facing the other way and brandished a fleshy fist in the general direction of Michael Maguire's gamin-esque grin.

"Keep on printing these infamous attacks on me and my institution, Maguire," he said, "and by God, I'll break you."

Mike grinned.

"I've been broke before, Mays. By better men than you. But I've never yet been scared out of telling the truth if it needed to be told."

Kathleen was aware that Ritchie Graham had come in by the street door and was listening to the encounter with every manifestation of pleasure. Of course it gave him a thrill to see Mike risk financial annihilation for a principle. But Kathleen thought of Laura who was already stretching dollars till they groaned, and Kathleen did not feel thrilled as she would have a year ago at her father's debonair disregard of consequences. She felt a little sick.

"If it's your war you want," said Eugene Mays in a suddenly colder and more ominous voice, "say so. But you had better take into consideration the fact that I have influence in this town. I can cut your advertising accounts to a quarter of what they are. Likewise your circulation. Maybe you don't realize that."

"That's your ultimatum. Now suppose you listen to mine," Mike said with a thrust like the glitter of a rapier. "You have ten thousand depositors in your bank. And a couple of hundred stockholders who leave everything to you. You are the bank. And it's a hell of a responsibility. Because this whole community would be sunk if you got your tail in a crack. Now as bankers go, you're not so rank. But you could be sweeter. That western deal you are dickering with smells to heaven. So do one or two other juicy pies you've tried to stick your finger into recently. The people ought to know that sort of thing is dangerous to their interests. And they're going to know every time you try to pull a fast one. My advice to you, Mays, is to pull in your horns and leave high financing to the rest of the pirates. But if you don't, then you'll have to put up with what-ever I care to say about you and your wildcat business ventures. And believe me, I'll say plenty!"

Unfortunately the peroration of Mike's philippic was somewhat spoiled by the failure of Banker Mays to remain for its grandiloquent conclusion.

Ritchie's gray eyes sparkled in his sunburned face.

"I'm pretty good at the sling shot, if you need any help," he said.

"He doesn't," interrupted Kathleen with tartness. "Mike never missed a bull's-eye in his life if he had something to shoot at that was practically certain to explode and gum up the works."

Mike cocked a quizzical eyebrow at his daughter.

"Yes," she said in a voice sharper than she realized, "if Eugene Mays wants to, he can move us all into the poorhouse. And," she gave her father a hostile glance, "you'd think it was a circus and laugh. But then I've begun to wonder if you'll ever be quite adult. Or maybe I've got growing pains. Anyway the prospect doesn't amuse me."

Kathleen recognized the symptoms even before her sharp ears identified the roar on the other side of the flimsy partition. Grimly she opened the door and looked into the cluttered room which was the Clarion's main office, Kathleen knew there was tension in the air. Roger Whyte's frail hands trembled on his typewriter keys. Tommy South's freckles stood out more prominently on a pale and perspiring countenance. Old Ducky Miller had dropped a tray of type and just stood staring at the jumbled pi. The door to Mike's private office was closed, an unusual occurrence.

"What are you going to do?" demanded Mary Etta.

"I'm gone. Good-by, Mary Etta."

She turned quickly away without speaking. Tom stared at her for a moment. And then very gently he opened and closed the door behind him. It was exactly as if he had slammed the lid of a coffin on a fragment of his heart.

CHAPTER XIII

Kathleen Maguire was late getting down to the office the following morning.

Of course it did not make a lot of difference when Kathleen reached her desk. Officially she was the Clarion's society editor. But she suspected that Mike would not blink an eye if she failed to show up at all. For years he had been everything from janitor to political economist on the paper if the emergency arose. And he was still capable of writing every word in any edition without missing a stride. Nevertheless Kathleen took her job as seriously as he allowed her to.

In many ways the staff, due to Mike's penchant for broken-down humanity, was as decrepit as the purely mechanical end of the business. Mike had an unique manner of selecting employees. He was always hiring some derelict because he was down on his luck. At present there were old Miller, an excellent typesetter when he was sober, Roger Whyte who could write like an angel if he wasn't having nervous shakes, and Tommy South, office boy, an orphan Mike had plucked off by the scruff of his neck out of the Court for Juvenile Delinquents.

The moment she entered the big cluttered room which was the Clarion's main office, Kathleen knew there was tension in the air. Roger Whyte's frail hands trembled on his typewriter keys. Tommy South's freckles stood out more prominently on a pale and perspiring countenance. Old Ducky Miller had dropped a tray of type and just stood staring at the jumbled pi. The door to Mike's private office was closed, an unusual occurrence.

Beloved Singer Pleaded For Mercy, Not Justice

The beloved Madame Schumann-Heink was a woman of rare charm and geniality. She was the first to make fun of her own shortcomings, and was often heard to comment good-humoredly on her decidedly matronly figure.

On one occasion, a fashionable portrait painter asked her to sit for her portrait. The plump opera star hesitated for a long while before making her decision.

"Don't be afraid, Madame," said the artist teasingly. "I'll do you justice."

"Ah," replied the prima donna, "it isn't justice I ask at your hands; it is mercy!"

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

GIRLS BASKETBALL
The girls have been practicing basketball since September 10, however, last week, the coach, Miss Sutton, stated that anyone having more than one unexcused absence would not be allowed to play when they met Alabaster on November 28 for the first scheduled game. They have practice games before this game with Oscoda. KINDERGARTEN—FIRST GRADE
We have a new teacher.
Miss Brosi is our new teacher. She brought us some pictures. Some of them are Halloween pictures. We have a new plant.
We have a new picture.
Mrs. Carlson sent them.
We have a new flag.
We have bittersweet.
It is in a redwood vase.
Marlo brought the bittersweet.
Miss Braddock brought the vase.
A blind man tuned our piano.
Mr. Lemke is making us a new cabinet.
Kermit, Geneva and Roland have come back to school.
They had mumps.

upon the more marketable portion of the crop; better demand for the higher quality and honestly classified pack, consumer dependence upon uniformly high-quality potatoes sold under brands; wider distribution made possible by the improved demand and by a better relationship between freight rates and the value of shipments; fewer rejections, discounts, and allowances on deliveries; and improved credit standing; and the benefits derived from carefully planned marketing operations, and a better understanding of the mutual problems of producers, handlers and consumers. It will also benefit the consumer through a steady liberal volume of honestly classified potatoes at reasonable prices for the grade suiting his income; reduction of waste and dissatisfaction; and stability of purchasing power gained by uniformity of quality supplied and prices.

KEYNOTES RED CROSS APPEAL

JOIN AMERICAN RED CROSS

Frances Fedden, attractive Bronxville, N. Y., artist's model, is the 1941 Red Cross poster girl. Thousands of posters like the one pictured above have been distributed throughout the country calling attention to this year's Roll Call membership appeal. Painted by Bradshaw Crandell, prominent New York illustrator, the poster carries a national defense theme, portraying the active part being taken by the Red Cross in serving the armed forces.

Washington, D. C.—Behind the front lines of U. S. defenses more than 1,200,000 Red Cross volunteers are on the job—making surgical dressings, knitting sweaters and giving comfort articles, learning the rudiments of emergency mass feeding and scores of other duties in an all-out effort for national defense.
The largest defense task now being undertaken by Red Cross volunteers is the production of 40,000,000 surgical dressings for the Army and Navy, according to Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, national director of Volunteer Special Services.
Home Service volunteers and Gray Ladies, whose duties are directly concerned with the man in uniform also are expanding their programs, Mrs. Davis said.
As a preparedness measure, thousands of women throughout the country are learning mass feeding and nutrition as members of the Red Cross Canteen Corps. Added thousands are being trained in the Motor Corps to serve as emergency drivers.

How Tastes Change
In periods of reduced business activity motor car buyers seem to prefer dark colors, and swing to lighter hues with the return of good times, according to field surveys conducted periodically by the styling section of a leading automobile company.
