STERNBERG ASSISTANT PROSECUTOR

Illness of Prosecuting Attorney Stewart Cause

At the January session of the Iosco County Board of Supervisors held here this week, an assistant prosecuting attorney was authorized on account of the illness of Prosecuting Attorney John Stewart. A salary of $100.00 per month was allowed for three months. On Thursday Judge Herman Dehnke appointed T. George Sternberg to fill the office.

At the meeting it was decided that Defense Bonds should be purchased with all money in the sinking fund. Ten thousand dollars worth of these bonds had previously been purchased. The board authorized that $12,500.00 more bonds be purchased.

The Roads and Bridges committee, after an investigation, gave a report on the labor difficulty between the Road Commission and county road employees. The matter was referred to the special commission appointed last September. Representatives of the workers and the commission arrived at a satisfactory agreement before the committee. The disturbing elements in the controversy appeared to be classification of labor and seniority.

The board turned $250.00 over to the Civilian Defense Committee for expenses. Dr. E. W. McKelvey, of Oscoda, chairman of the committee, appeared before the board and gave a detailed report on the work accomplished by the Civilian Defense Committee since it has been organized.

Barnes Hotel Gives Red Cross Benefit Luncheon

The Hotel Barnes was the scene of a bridge luncheon Thursday noon, with the proceeds donated to the local Red Cross chapter. Ken Barnes, manager of the Hotel Barnes, donated the luncheon and use of the hotel for the party. The bridge prizes were won by Mrs. Frank Lansky and Miss Margaret Fitzhugh, of Tawas City, and Mrs. Jas. LaBerge, of East Tawas.

Mrs. Ira Horton acted as hostess assisted by Mrs. R. W. Tuttle. There were 53 ladies present and the proceeds amounted to $27.75. The prizes were donated by Mrs. Horton, Mrs. Tuttle and Mrs. H. J. Keiser.

Offers Facilities to Defense Committee

At a meeting of the Iosco County Road Commission held Tuesday the following resolution was adopted:

Whereas, this nation is now at war with the Axis Powers and, whereas, our first duty is to our country and, whereas, the occasion may arise that our local civilian defense may urgently need such help in men and equipment as we are able to furnish.

Therefore, be it hereby resolved that the Iosco County Road Commission offers its services and facilities whenever needed for use in the work of the Iosco County Defense Committee.

Iosco County Road Commission, Ernest Crego, Elmer Britt, John Mielock.

Child Health Notes

Clinics for school, pre-school children and infants from nine months of age will be held in East Tawas, St. Joseph and Tawas City school next week. These clinics are held by the Health Department and consist of physical examinations, including immunizations against small pox and diphtheria. Parents are urged to attend in order that they may receive (Turn to No. 1 Back Page)

P. T. A. Notes

The Parent-Teachers association held their monthly meeting at the auditorium last evening with a splendid attendance. The movie, "Mr. Supervisor Become convinced," showing the various activities of the Health Department in this district was shown by Frank J. Mayer, sanitarian, and Miss Dorothea Arnold, county nurse. Lunch was served.

Card Of Thanks

We wish to express our appreciation to all our friends for their many acts of kindness during the long illness and at the death of husband and father, John Gillespie. We also want to thank those who sent flowers and Rev. Colby for his comforting words. Mrs. John Gillespie and family.

John Gillespie

John Gillespie, of Whittemore, age 81 years, passed away early Tuesday, December 30, at the University Hospital, Ann Arbor.

Mr. Gillespie was born at Shelburn, Ontario, and came to Michigan when a young man, buying a farm in Reno township where he became a prosperous farmer. Mr. Gillespie was a pioneer of Iosco county and had lived in this community for over 52 years.

He has been a patient sufferer for several years from injuries received when a young man. About three weeks ago he was taken to Ann Arbor where everything that medical aid could do, was done. He underwent a serious operation when they amputated his leg, thinking it might prolong his life, but his advanced years and weakened condition could not stand the shock, and death relieved him of his suffering and pain.

Those left to mourn are his wife, Marie, four daughters, Mrs. James Leslie and Mrs. Marvin Mallon, of Tawas City; Mrs. Keith Freel, of Detroit; and Marcella, of California, and one son, Ferris, of Detroit. One son, Russell, who was sheriff of Ogemaw county, preceded him in death several years ago. He is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Jack Johnson, of Flint, and Mrs. Elizabeth Crew, of Manitoba, besides a host of other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held from the Whittemore Methodist church Friday afternoon, Rev. James Colby of Christ Church Episcopal of East Tawas officiating. Interment was in the Tawas City cemetery.

Tawas City Boy Scouts Collect 3 Tons of Paper

About three tons of paper, divided about equally between newspapers and magazines, were collected by the Boy Scouts on their pickup of December 29 and 30. It had been intended that but one day be used in this work, but it was found that almost two days were needed. Twelve Scouts, with their Scoutmaster, collected and bundled the paper and piled it in piles for delivery. The waste paper that was gathered is being baled this week. A great deal of the success of the pickup can be attributed to the use of the city truck with Driver Fred Wright in charge.

The newspapers are already back in industry and arrangements are being made to get the magazines and waste paper back to work. It has been learned that the scouts missed a few places in the pickup. It is hoped that those whose paper was missed will phone 181 so that they will not be missed on the second pickup. That will be Saturday, January 17. It would help very much if the paper is tied in a flat bundle at the homes. The scouts will classify and rebundle the papers in their rooms at the Masonic temple.

As a further service, the scouts have arranged with Jas. H. Leslie to have a chute for those who want to take their paper themselves. It will be in Mr. Leslie's building on the old D. & M. Tawas City depot site opposite the Barkman Mercantile Co. A sign will locate the chute and you are invited to put your old papers in there if you care to. DO NOT BURN PAPER, SAVE IT.

Scout troops all over the United States have been doing a big job in picking up paper and the members of Troop No. 73 want to do their part. Your Country Needs Your Help. Buy Defense Bonds and Stamps.

"SILVER VALLEY" OPENS TOMORROW

City Skating Rink In Fine Condition

The Tawas City Skating rink is in fine condition according to Charles Brown, director of recreation. Hundreds of boys and girls are enjoying this fine sport every afternoon and evening. Lights and warming shelter are provided. Everyone is invited to enjoy our fine facilities for skating.

Long Robinson

Miss Grace Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Long, and Elwin Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Robinson, of Reno, were quietly married at the Baptist parsonage in Tawas City last Saturday evening at 7:30. Rev. Frank Metcalf officiating.

The bride wore a street length aqua alpaca rayon dress with a shoulder bouquet of yellow and pink roses. She was attended by her niece, Miss Betty Rapp, who wore a rose crepe dress with a corsage of pink roses. Lyle Long, brother of the bride, was best man.

The young couple have a host of relatives and friends who wish them a long and happy wedded life.

Webb-Streeter

Miss Margaret Webb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George G. Webb, of Long Lake, and Wiley (Bud) Streeter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Streeter, also of Long Lake, were married Wednesday, December 21, at the Methodist parsonage in Whittemore with Rev. Robert McCleary officiating.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Helen Reimer, the groom by his brother, Morris.

The wedding supper was served by Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Streeter to the immediate families. A household shower was held in their honor on Friday, January 2, at the home of the bride's parents, sponsored by the Young People's class of Hale Methodist Sunday school of which they were members. They received many useful and beautiful gifts.

Red Cross Meets Tonight

The annual meeting of the Iosco County Red Cross chapter will be held at the court house in Tawas City on Friday, January 9, at 8:00 p. m. This is the annual business meeting and election of officers.

There will be much expected of our chapter during the year 1942. Many plans will have to be made and it is hoped that all of the county members will attend and help prepare the year's work.

Sheldon-Dimmick

St. Joseph's church was the scene of a pretty wedding last Saturday morning when Miss Elouise Martha Sheldon, daughter of Mrs. James H. Sheldon, became the bride of Theodore N. Dimmick, Rev. Robert Neumann officiated assisted by Harlow Sheldon, of Chicago, brother of the bride, as an altar boy.

For the ceremony read before an altar banked with poinsettias and evergreens, the bride, escorted by her brother, Clayton, wore a gown of white satin brocade designed with a long train, fitted bodice and long sleeves. Her veil fell from a Dutch cap of Chantilly lace and she carried a prayer book marked by a tiny rosary and enameled with gardenias and white roses. Mrs. E. J. Shanahan, of Lansing, sister of the bride, wore a white silk jersey gown with a shirred bodice and she carried American beauty roses. With it she wore silver leaves in her hair. Joseph M. Dimmick, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Mrs. Carlton Merschel played the wedding march, and Wilfred Sheldon sang. Thomas Sheldon and Edmond Shanahan were ushers.

For the ceremony the bride's mother wore a military blue gown with a matching hat, and Mrs. Dimmick wore black. Both had corsages of gardenias.

Breakfast was served, following the ceremony, to 20 guests, at the Johnson lodge at a table decorated with white chrysanthemums and snapdragons and lighted by candles in crystal holders. A reception was held later in the afternoon at the home of the bride's mother. Lunch was served from a long table covered with an eggshell satin cloth and centered with white roses and snapdragons and lighted by ivory tapers. A large wedding cake was topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Don Leitch, of Alpena, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Sheldon and son, Francis Klingler, Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Sheldon and son, Mrs. William Wiedenhoff, and Clayton Sheldon, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Shanahan, Miss Fidelis Bergeron and Miss Ann Hughes, of Lansing; and Mr. and Mrs. Forest Butler, of Bay City.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Dimmick will make their home in East Tawas. For traveling Mrs. Dimmick wore a lilac colored suit with purple and grey accessories, and grey Persian lamb coat, with a corsage of pink-roses and violets.

Purchase Calves Here For Calf Club Work

B. E. Henry, of Marshall, Michigan, has purchased 22 choice Hereford steer calves from Charles T. Prescott. The calves will be used in calf club work in Calhoun county and the sale indicates that this section of Michigan is becoming recognized as a producer of high grade calves for the feeder market. The calves weighed from 300 to 450 pounds.

INSTALLMENT NINETEEN—The Story So Far

Laura Maguire is wife to Mike, happy-go-lucky editor and mayor of Covington, whom banker Mays tries to ruin and offers a $10,000 bribe to stop exposure of a bad banking deal. She is mother to four children, ill treated by the depression.

Kathleen, society editor for her father, who criticizes his quixotic slapping of Mays at the expense of the family purse. She is in love with Ritchie.

"Love!" Laura laughed—a queer, strained sound. "What do you know of love? Wait till you've lived with a man a quarter of a century. And borne him his children. Walked through the shadow of death at his side and drunk of his strength. Grown older clinging to him, finding comfort and peace against his heart. Always first with him as he is with you. Wait till you've grown so deeply into your mate he's part of you. Till it almost frightens you when you think how much he means to you. Then you will know about love. Love like mine and Mike's."

Kathleen stared at Laura. As if she were a stranger. Someone she had never seen before. Laura's face went very white.

"And now you think he's killed himself. To leave me his insurance."

"He took his revolver with him when he left the office," said Ritchie huskily.

Laura's slender shoulders were rigid. Mike would never kill himself to leave me money. He knows that to me he is all the riches of the Indies, and without him I'm a broken vase."

Kathleen was weeping. Bitter, agonized tears. Laura made a tremendous effort and went over to her. "It's going to be all right, darling."

"Kathleen took her mother's hand and laid it against her cheek. "I didn't understand," she sobbed.

"I know," said Laura. "Youth doesn't. It has so dreadfully much to learn. But you must not suffer like this. Mike could not break your heart or mine. It isn't him."

The telephone rang sharply. When Laura came slowly back to the living room, her eyes had a queer startled expression.

"Mike has been down at the bank for hours. Locked up with the directors and the state bank examiner," she said, and then went on as if she were a little awed. "Donahue Investment Brokers did not open for business this morning. They've failed to the tune of twenty million dollars."

"Donahue!" ejaculated Ritchie. "The concern in which Eugene Mays was involved?"

"Eugene Mays is dead," said Laura. "He blew his brains out ten minutes ago when they told him that his bank doors had to close."

"Mays' personal fortune is completely gone. The crazy flog gambled the last dime he had on earth trying to recoup his losses."

The Maguires were at dinner. All of them. Shirley and Laird had hired someone to look after their place for the evening. Tom and Mary Etta had driven over after Alec and Lou. Mike had brought Ritchie home from the office with him. It was Mike who was somberly reviewing the extent of the disaster.

"Apparently Mays has been on the verge of ruin for months. That's why he snatched at such a desperate chance as the Donahue scheme. And it ripped him open."

"And wrecked the town with him," added Tom bitterly.

"Not quite," explained Mike. He grinned. "A great many people seem to have read the Clarion. Even if our revenues did drop fifty per cent after I attacked Mays. Depositors have been drawing their money out of his institution like fury for the past six weeks. The bank examiner told me he had never seen anything like it."

CHAPTER XXX

Laura smiled at her husband. "Why don't you break down and confess that Covington has one peach of a Lord Mayor, and knows it?"

Kathleen saw the look that passed between them. And her eyes misted with tears. How could she have been so blind to the beautiful thing that existed between her father and her mother? Love so perfect it needed no words or gestures. Understanding so deep it was as natural as the air they breathed.

"Thank goodness," said Alec fervently, "Mr. Swearingen took your articles to heart, Dad. Or rather Lou did," he found her small hand and pressed it. "She never gave either of us a minute's peace till he got our little wad out of Mays' bank."

Mike smiled at his newest daughter-in-law and Lou smiled back at him, a shy nervous little smile, but very sweet.

Laura, looking down the long crowded table at Lou's small blissful face, thought that God works in a mysterious way His wonders to perform. Such a fragile little anchor! Yet she held Alec as nothing else could. Because she believed in him and needed him.

Mike regarded his older son somewhat anxiously. "I hope Colonel Shoup didn't act

Graham, newspaper aid of her father, but won't admit it. Instead she engaged herself to Mays' son, but breaks the engagement in a few days.

Tom, who had separated from his wife when he had to move from the bigger city to get a job. Mary Etta held on to her secretary job and started to divorce. But Laura brought the two together.

Alec, who secretly married the town

the goat and stick to Mays to the bitter end. Or did he? He's never liked me a lot. Says I go off half-cocked as often as not."

Tom grinned. "The Colonel may be stubborn but he's not a donkey. He fumed around a lot when you began to spout about the bank. And he cut out advertising with you. For spite or something. But when you opened up on the Donahue deal, the Colonel weakened. And he kept on weakening until last week he transferred all the money he had in the world to a safety deposit vault. And it's there still. Thanks to you. Incidentally I've orders to resume our old business relations with the Clarion. We'll want our regular daily ads with the full Sunday spreads."

Mike sniggered. "S funny how the folks have suddenly decided practically in one afternoon that they can't do without me or the Clarion. They've been shooting advertising contracts and renewals at us so fast and furiously since noon darned if the staff isn't about to have the jitters."

Kathleen drew a long breath. "I guess after all," she said in an uneven voice, "a reputation for unimpeachable integrity is more precious than dividends. Banks may break and investment brokers go floozy, but a good name goes on and on."

Mike's boyish face looked suddenly very gay and young. "Does that mean you've got over your peeve at your blundering old Daddy, Kitten?" he asked.

He laughed, but his eyes were not laughing. Kathleen leaned over until her shoulder brushed his.

"I always adored you," she whispered. "Only I—lost my way—I'm back on the tracks for good this time. And I—I love you."

Mike squeezed her hand. Kathleen with a shiver glanced down the table at her mother. Laura was wearing the ecru organdy. Her face was a little thinner. It had been a trying summer. But her clear brown eyes were strangely beautiful. Serene, unclouded, lighted by a deep and abiding happiness. She and Mike had built their house on the eternal verities. And although the tempest had whistled above them, the house had stood.

"Great Scott, in all the shooting I forgot about Ritchie!" exclaimed Mike. "He's taken an awful jolt. By Jove, I don't know how he's ever going to hold up his head again."

"What's happened to Ritchie?" demanded Kathleen in a fierce little voice. She glared at her father, "And I don't think it's funny of you to laugh if it's as bad as you say."

"Help! Help!" Mike flung up his hands and gave Ritchie a mock pleading glance. "Call off the kiten before she claws me to pieces over a younger handsomer man."

Kathleen blushed furiously and Ritchie laughed. He fussed at his necktie.

"It isn't really bad," he said, but he looked as if he wished he could crawl into a hole. "It's about those articles I sent the agent in New York. He—er—I guess maybe the big publishers aren't as yellow as I thought. Anyway he's sold the whole series," he concluded miserably, drunk's daughter, Lou Knight, after he had taken her to his mother's home when her father died rescuing a crippled boy in a fire.

Shirley, married at last to Laird Newsum, who also was out of work, but the couple pawn their things, buy a hamburger stand.

Mays kills himself and the bank closes when his crookedness comes to light. Laura and Kathleen discuss love.

"for more money than I expected to see in five years."

"That's just it," cried Mike, laughing till the tears ran down his cheeks. "Ritchie was all set to starve in an attic for truth's sweet sake. And now darned if he isn't on his way to becoming a bloated plutocrat."

Ritchie's mouth twisted. "Fate's like that," he said. "It overwhelms you with the success you don't want and slaps you down when it comes to the things you do."

Ritchie's glance met Kathleen's. Her gray eyes were hard and inscrutable. She looked away with a sharp ache stabbing at her heart. "Maybe Ritchie has got over wanting me," she thought, her eyes stinging.

"I want to talk to you, Kathleen," said Ritchie after dinner in a harsh peremptory voice.

"Yes, Ritchie."

Meekly Kathleen followed him down the path which led around the house to the grape arbor at the back. The July night was breathlessly still. So still Kathleen thought Ritchie must hear the painful throb of her pulses.

"I broke my engagement to Gene Mays this morning," she said at last in a small tremulous voice.

"I know," drawled Ritchie without looking at her. "When I got back to the office, he'd been calling for you every five minutes. He seemed to think he could force you to marry him or the like of that. But I disabused him of the idea."

His underjaw made a hard line. "He won't bother you again."

"It was never really an engagement," she whispered. "He didn't even kiss me. Not once. I couldn't let him."

She heard Ritchie catch his breath sharply but he said nothing.

"I never grew up until today," she told him, her voice breaking on a sob. "Not until I realized what I might have done to Mike. I've been so blind, Ritchie. All confused and mixed up. I don't deserve that you should bother with me. Ever. But I—I—"

He turned swiftly. His arms caught her up. Crushed her to him. He had always been her private lightning. He always would be. His kisses taught her passion and ecstasy. An almost intolerable ecstasy. Cheat her? Love! Kathleen knew if she lived forever she could not be grateful enough for the aching rapture of Ritchie's arms, his kisses. This moment was worth anything it cost. Ever.

"Sweetheart!" whispered Ritchie. "I love you!" cried Kathleen.

On the veranda Laura leaned back against Mike's arm. She was thinking, as mothers do, of her brood. They had been menaced. Each of them, even her mate. But they were safe this night, her children and her lover. They had come out on the other side of the storm clouds. There were rainbows in the skies.

"Life is pretty grand after all," said Laura out of her deep content. Michael Maguire chuckled at his arm tightened about her.

"It is," he said, "because you've always played it that way."

DEEP WATER ISLAND

By Alan LeMay

In the vast expanse of the South Pacific Karen Waterson felt as out of place as snow on a straw hat. But John Colt, her lawyer, had convinced her she was heirless to the island of Alakoa, and he was determined to get it for her. Incidentally, John was in love with Karen.

The struggle to wrest the fertile little isle from Richard Wayne and his half brothers makes interesting reading, especially so after Wayne falls in love with the young lady. If you like mystery with your romance this is the story for you.

LYNN SAYS:

Can you name the one food that does most for your body's health, most cheaply? Milk, of course! Why? Because milk does all of the following:

- Promotes growth and maintains the body's resistance to infection through vitamin A.
- Stimulates appetites and keeps the nerves in top-notch condition through vitamin B1; promotes growth and keeps the skin healthy through vitamin B2(G).
- Helps calcium and vitamin C to develop teeth and bones properly if fortified with vitamin D.
- As an excellent source of phosphorus, it also works to keep the teeth and bones in class A.
- Milk's proteins come to the fore in repairing worn-down tissues and muscles and boosting growth.

Hopes for Man

We wish man to be better than he is. We wish him to have more love, more feeling for the beautiful, the great, and the true; that the ideal which he pursues shall be purer, more divine; that he shall feel his own dignity, shall have more respect for his immortal soul. We wish him to have in a faith freely adopted, a Pharos to guide him, and we would have his acts correspond to that faith.

- Sweet Potato Crust.
This crust is the distinctive part of the chicken pie and a wonderful way to use up those few potatoes that are left over from the holiday dinner along with the chicken. It's a crust de luxe, a crisp, golden brown topping well worthy of chicken pie:
- 1 cup sifted flour
 - 1 teaspoon baking powder
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1 cup cold mashed sweet potato
 - 1/2 cup fat, melted
 - 1 beaten egg
- Sift dry ingredients. Work in mashed potato, milk and egg. Roll 1/4 inch thick, cover pie and flute edges.

THE TRUTH SIMPLY TOLD

Today's popularity of Doan's Pills, after many years of world-wide use, surely must be accepted as evidence of satisfactory use. And favorable public opinion supports that of the able physicians who test the value of Doan's under exacting laboratory conditions. These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidney, liver, and diuretic medication would be more often employed. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

- In bringing you buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.
- It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.
- When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. This advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

Urge to Kick Cop
The Very Rev. Edmund J. Reilly of a Brooklyn church found a note on the collection plate signed "Patrick Gunn," inviting the good man to step outside after mass for a fist fight. In Minneapolis a pretty woman walked up to a policeman and without ado kicked him smartly on the shin. He said "ouch," and she let him have another. Her explanation for such quaint conduct was simple. "All my life," she told the judge, "I've wanted to kick a cop."

TIME WAITS FOR NO MAN

"The farmers of America have a tremendous task before them—if our country is to become the breadbasket of the democracies," said County Agricultural Agent Wilton Finley yesterday. "To accomplish this herculean job our farmers must be prepared—their plans must be made—their machinery must be ready." The farm equipment manufacturers, whose dealers are represented on this page, must be able to anticipate the demand for repairs. This means that our farmers must order their repairs NOW to insure delivery before the spring rush begins. Meetings are being held in Iosco county, with local defense boards, county agent and farmer, all stressing the urgent need for making repairs now so that vital farm machinery will be ready.

Let us be sure that Iosco county farmers will be ready. Let us bend every effort to BEING PREPARED when America's greatest agricultural emergency reaches the field next spring. Every dealer listed on this page pledges his wholehearted co-operation in furnishing you the repairs needed to produce abundant supplies of life giving food, which Secretary Wichard says will "win the war and write the peace."

Included among the implement and farm machinery dealers in the county selling repair parts, are: Eugene Bing, Rempert's Garage, Bublitz Bros., L. H. Braddock Supply Co., Tawas City; Hale Elevator, Kocher Store, Pearsall & Co., Hale; Joe Danin, Jos. O. Collins, Whittemore.

"NOW is the time to repair our tools and implements needed so urgently to carry out Uncle Sam's Food-For-Defense program. The distant goal ahead is a better-fed, happier world. No one has so great an opportunity of helping America reach that goal as has the farm family—farm families like those living in this community. We can meet the challenge IF WE DON'T DELAY," said Mr. Finley.

Never let it be said Iosco county farmers forgot the time-proven truth, "Time waits for no man."

Manila Falls to Japanese Invaders Following Strong Last Ditch Defense By Greatly Outnumbered U. S. Troops; U. S. Bans Sale of New Cars, Trucks

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

MANILA: Falls

Since the first detachments of Japanese troops had landed on the island of Luzon in the Philippines and had begun their push toward Manila, Americans had been hoping that the outnumbered forces of Gen. Douglas MacArthur would be able to hold out in their defenses outside the capital city.

But despite a strong last ditch stand Manila finally fell to the invaders. Dive bombers and tanks had smashed the American lines. Greatly outnumbered, the Americans had fallen back as the Japs succeeded in gaining control of the air.

In its communique telling of the city's fall, the war department said that all U. S. and Philippine troops had been withdrawn from the city several days before and all defense installations removed or destroyed. "The loss of Manila, while serious, has not lessened the resistance to the Japanese attacks," the communique said.

As it appeared that the Japanese pressure on the Philippines was driving our Filipino-American defending forces steadily backward, despite the arrival of a certain force of American planes as reinforcements, the war of nerves was giving Tokyo the "jitters."

Although there were no direct dispatches from the Jap capital, in the Tokyo broadcasts there was considerable evidence of confusion, of an anxiety to learn what the Allied grand strategy was to be.

President Roosevelt, in his press conferences, was mentioning reinforcements, plans that had been made in collaboration with all the Allies.

He talked of Kamchatka, a peninsula which reaches down to within easy plane reach of Japan itself. The Tokyo radio was warning Japs to be ready for air attacks during the New Year period, was talking of an American effort to get planes to Siberia via the Aleutian islands. The news from Manila and the Philippines generally was creating great anxiety in this country, which wanted to see the islands successfully defended and to remain in close touch with Hawaii and the American mainland.

'Resistance . . . not lessened.'

But though the war news generally was favorable, including both that from Russia and North Africa, the dispatches from the Far East told of increasing Jap pressure all along the line, and of a general repeated success for the invader's arms, though bitterly contested on all parts of the 5,000-mile front.

General MacArthur, showing the effect of lack of air supremacy, had grimly acknowledged that Japanese dive bombers had gained control of all roads from both fronts, making the defenders' task still more difficult.

BAN:

On Autos

Earlier than anticipated came the order from the government banning the sale of autos and trucks in the United States.

The prohibition on these sales will remain in effect pending development of a rationing plan which will place an estimated 450,000 vehicles now in dealers stocks where they will do the most good.

Rationing will be directed by the Office of Price Administration, headed by Leon Henderson. This office also administers the tire rationing formula which has established quotas for every county in the country.

SINGAPORE:

Must Not Fall

London, saying that "Singapore must not fall," had called on the American navy to aid them in holding out at this base, deemed most vital for the forthcoming allied drive against the Japs in the South Pacific.

One British spokesman had said: "Until our forces there can be built up, we shall have to rely to a great extent on the American navy to regain control of the Pacific."

RUSSIANS:

Back in Crimea

The southern Russian front, which had been subjected to extra German pressure while the Nazis were on the retreat in the central and northern sectors, suddenly turned the tide with the recapture of Kerch and Feodosya.

The first-named port was opposite the rich Caucasus oil region, separated from it only by two miles of water. These two miles the Germans had not been able to cross because of Black sea fleet activity. Feodosya is about 100 miles further west, and landings were made simultaneously at both points, the Germans driven back, and an uncounted number of Nazis trapped between.

The German high command acknowledged the Russian landings "in force" and said that counter measures were being taken. Stalin complimented his general on the south, and then urged that the advantage be grasped and pursued.

JOSEF STALIN
'Free Crimea next.'

"Free Crimea next" he urged his troops. The Russians still were holding on at Sevastopol, and Moscow hoped that the successes farther east would release pressure at Sevastopol and permit the garrison there, aided by sea-borne reinforcements, to take the offensive.

The Crimea was held by a combination of German-Italian-Rumanian troops, admittedly not the hardest to beat if the Russians are able to get a high-pressure drive going.

COMMANDO:

A Hero's Tale

A story of black-clad, burnt-cork-faced Commandos on the North Africa front was the most thrilling story of the war thus far.

It told of the attack on General Rommel's headquarters by a small band of British "suiciders," and of the killing of the Commando's own commander, Colonel Keyes, son of the man who originated the idea.

The British Commando group hid in an arroyo during the night before the zero hour, within running distance of Rommel's headquarters.

At the time when the whole imperial offensive was to flare up along the line, they dashed forward, roused a sentry who opened a door, shot him dead and entered the building.

As Keyes, leading his men, threw open the main door behind which were Rommel's aides, he was shot dead, but a sergeant leaped over his body, hurled two hand grenades and then slammed the door shut, letting the bombs wipe out those within.

By this time the shooting and shouting had roused the whole garrison, who did not know what to make of it all. In the resulting confusion most of the Commandos escaped, but only after fighting a two-hour pitched battle.

Rommel, unfortunately for them, was away at a birthday party, and was not killed. The whole of his staff who remained at headquarters, was wiped out, however.

DRAFT:

A Prelude

Seen as a prelude to the new conscription, which was to produce a trained army of 3,000,000-plus men was the army order recalling into service troops over 28 years of age.

First of these orders to be revealed was that of the Third Corps area, which ordered all such men to be back at their posts January 31.

SUGAR:

A government step to prevent skyrocketing of sugar prices and a reasonable supply of this commodity for 1942 in the United States was taken when the government arranged to buy the bulk of the next year's Cuban cane crop.

The transaction was to be handled by the government-owned Defense Supplies corporation and was taken when it became apparent that we would not get our usual supply of sugar from the Philippines.

DUTCH: Steal Show

Dutch sea and air arms under the command of Vice Admiral E. E. L. Helfrich, above, have inflicted severe losses upon Japan's invading forces. He is chief of the Netherlands navy and air force in the Indies. Lieut. Gen. Hein Ter Poorten is commander in chief of the armed forces.

See below DUTCH: Steal Show

The Dutch airmen and submarine crews continued to "steal the show" in the Pacific war, the fighting fliers ranging far out over the Pacific, largely in American-made planes, seeking Jap tankers reportedly loaded with oil stolen from north Borneo.

The N.E.I. commander in chief, Lieut. Gen. Hein Ter Poorten, pledged America that the Dutch alone could turn the tide against the Japs in the south Pacific if only they could get more planes and more anti-aircraft guns with which to fight off the Japanese warplanes.

Apparently there was no lack of Dutch bombers, nor of skilled pilots to man them, the shortage lying chiefly in fighter planes.

The submarines, keeping intact their promise of more than one ship a day, had sunk four more.

That they were faring far afield and not just protecting home shores was seen in the announcement that these latest sinkings had been far from Batavia, way up at the east coast of Thailand. The vessels sent to the bottom were troop transports, landing Jap soldiers for the fight against Singapore.

In the meantime, the Dutch had sent a successful naval raiding party against the Japs near the central provinces of their own islands. The Batavia radio said several launches were destroyed, others were seized and that the Japanese living on the island were taken prisoners and interned.

When the British got out of north Borneo, they were said to have destroyed all the oil wells, or damaged them so that they could not be used. The Dutch revealed, however, that several Japanese tankers had been seen leaving there loaded.

The air force had been sent in pursuit, the Dutch pledging themselves to sink the tankers or not return.

HAWAII:

'Ready'

Victims of the Japanese "sneak attack" which decimated their strength in a few hours, Hawaiians had rejoiced finally that reinforcements to the plane and ship garrison now had the islands ready to meet all comers.

Although the exact nature of the reinforcements was kept a secret it was revealed that the army on the islands had enough planes to give any invaders a "lively reception."

Hero of the December 7 attack, Lieut. George S. Welch, 23, of Wilmington, Del., who shot down four Jap planes though he had to drive 10 miles to get to his plane, said he was "itching for another fight." He said:

"All of us would like to see them come back."

LIBYA:

British Get Tanks

The British were polishing off General Rommel's remaining forces in North Africa at a fast rate, aided by a "rash sally" made by a force of nearly 100 tanks.

The British met this assault with such a withering fire from its mobile artillery and its American tanks that 22 of the enemy tanks were destroyed and 20 others put out of action with damage.

It was a demonstration that Rommel's retreat had been cut off, and that the sortie by the German tanks from the spot where Rommel's men were surrounded was a desperate adventure.

The locus of the attack was given as Agedabia, a point about 100 miles south of Bengasi, the Axis' former stronghold, now in British hands.

MISCELLANY:

Detroit: A Syracuse university professor attributed Churchill's gift of oratory to the fact that as a boy he had not learned Latin and Greek.

St. Pierre: The head of the Catholic church on the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon had filed a formal objection to the occupation of the Free French, despite the 98 to 2 per cent vote in favor of it by the populace.

Mentioned in Presidential Hint

Russ fishermen at work in the icy waters near Kamchatka, U.S.S.R., the peninsula jutting out from the Siberian mainland to the north of Japan. At a press conference, President Roosevelt hinted that lease-lend aid might even go to Kamchatka. Bright boys looked it up in the atlas, did some figuring, and came forth with the not-too-far-fetched idea that U. S. bombers based on Kamchatka could give the land of the rising sun quite a message.

After British Raid on Nazi Base

This radiophoto shows members of the British Commando force that raided the German base at Vaagsoe, Norway, helping their wounded comrades into one of their invasion barges as they retired from the Norse isle after dynamiting German plants, warehouses, etc., and spiking coastal guns. They practically annihilated the German garrison.

Bad News—For Axis

American Troops in Alaska

This soundphoto, which was taken somewhere in the bleak wilds of Alaska, shows United States troops landing at an Alaskan post to man our most northern frontier. These troops have received special training for duty in this bleak outpost, and can be expected to give a good account of themselves against all comers.

On Guard in Hawaii

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—In his new novel, "Storm," nominated by some reviewers for the Pulitzer prize, George Stewart notes that man is an air animal and not a land animal, as we commonly supposed. We live at the bottom of an ocean of air but that doesn't make us a land animal, any more than a crab is a land animal because it lives at the bottom of a body of water.

Dramatizing a storm which gathered up north of Japan, and clocking it down this way, and recording the resulting inter-play of human nature and meteorology, Mr. Stewart's book is an incidental, perhaps not intended, reminder that the politicians have been far behind the meteorologists in grasping the full implications of man adding wings to his breathing apparatus.

Francis W. Reichelderfer, the lean, baldish, chief of the U. S. weather bureau, seems to have had something like that in mind for many years, and that's all to the good just now, as our fighters, on, under and above the sea have the best weather service in the world. It was in the aerological service of the navy that Commander Reichelderfer carried through his "air mass" analysis which revolutionized weather forecasting. Bringing meteorology into focus with modern communications, aviation and revised military science was a little heeded but supremely important assignment, and Commander Reichelderfer made good.

He isn't dealing bulletins the way he used to. The most authentic weather news now is low-down, deep from Sibyl's Cave of the Winds, slipped out quietly to the armed forces and a touchy job it is, with the seven seas to cover. The commander is putting on forced draught the full 24 hours in the old red brick weather building in Washington.

In 1918, the youth from Harlan, Ind., two years out of Northwestern university, newly commissioned ensign in the navy, was sent to Lisbon to dig weather reports for the wobbly crow-hop of the NC-4 across the ocean. Thereafter, joining the aerological service, he was the weather consultant of polar fliers, gave Lindbergh the gun for his historic flight to Paris, cleared or held Dr. Ecker's blimps, served from 1922 to 1928 as head of the aerological service, and became head of the weather bureau on January 16, 1939.

IN ANOTHER, and possibly more enjoyable, century, Cadet Charles M. Wesson, known as "The Bull," was a famous line-bucker at West Point. For 34 years in the ordnance department of the army, he has been bucking congress, trying to break through the line for an appropriation touchdown, and almost always thrown for a loss. But now, as Major General Wesson, chief of ordnance since 1938, he finds his appropriation upped about 1,600 per cent to around $5,000,000,000.

General Wesson, bulky, muscular and appropriately beetle-browed at 63, has been a glutton for punishment, trying to get goods and gear for the armed forces. But he stands up well under it, with no come-back other than an occasional wry wise-crack. Away back in 1920, he made an earnest plea for anti-aircraft guns, insisting that the bombing effectiveness of planes was increasing rapidly and we would be in a bad way if we didn't keep ahead of it. The general might just as well have asked for caviar and champagne for the daily army ration. It was pretty much that way for the next 20 years. And now, all at once the man who blew in Brewster's Millions is a skin-flint, compared to the general.

He was born in St. Louis, Mo., and was graduated from West Point in 1900.

In 1907, he joined the ordnance department, made good on his job as a hard-working and competent technician and passed quite a few miracles in keeping the U. S. arsenal at Watertown, Mass., kicking out fighting equipment during the World war, with or without congressional appropriations. As commandant of the Aberdeen proving grounds in Maryland, he spent much time explaining to congress why the army found it difficult to patch up old Springfield rifles, or get its shoes half-soled. In some manner or other he gets along with congress.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Assistance: When a young woman went into one of those little shops on the upper East Side and asked the price of a gay handkerchief she saw in the window, the proprietor, an old man with flowing white hair, excitedly ordered her out. Puzzled she started to leave, but turned back ready for an argument. The old man's belligerence vanished and he was very apologetic. He needed money desperately. But people merely came in, asked "How much?" and walked away without buying. The need for money? In Czechoslovakia were two orphaned grandchildren he wanted to bring to this country. The young woman bought not one but a dozen handkerchiefs at 50 cents each. She also sends friends who make purchases. Occasionally she returns—she and the old man have become fast friends—to buy and to check up. And she reports that indications are that the grandfather soon will have money enough to bring two children to America.

City Life: One of the strangest folk customs of New Yorkers is their secrecy concerning their destinations in elevators. Though not a New Yorker, I've become a victim of it myself so I know how it works. You try to withhold the information until the last possible moment and if some other passenger calls out your floor for you, it's a minor triumph to be celebrated with a secretive smile. The only explanation I can advance for this peculiar trait is that it imparts an element of mystery and intrigue to the extremely prosaic business of rising from street level to an upper story of an office building. It is like the captain of a ship sailing under sealed orders. Or possibly it's a carry-over from some medieval superstition.

Error: Speaking of elevators, the other luncheon time, Ira Wolfert, drama critic of the North American Newspaper Alliance, was descending with a number of fellow workers in the New York Times annex. As usual, Wolfert was puffing on a pipe of considerable caliber and even more strength. One of the members of the group, who had unwillingly inhaled some fumes, asked him why he didn't take up cigars or cigarettes. The Wolfert reply was, "All women admire men who smoke pipes." With that, a dignified, somewhat elderly woman, who had been acting a bit uneasily, gave him a glare that convinced beholders that a drama critic had advanced an opinion not entirely founded on fact.

Occupation Echo: A group of men, each wearing Free French buttons, sat at a table at the St. Regis' La Maisonette during one of Eve Ortega's recent supper hour song sessions. They applauded politely all Miss Ortega's numbers, but when she concluded singing a French song called "Ne Viens Trop Tard." ("Do Not Come Too Late"), they arose and cheered. Miss Ortega sang the tune well, but the enthusiasm seemed excessive until she gave the explanation. "It is an old Parisian love song," said the singer. "But when they sing it in the cafes of Paris today, it has a political meaning. 'Don't come too late, England and America,' is the message. And that is why those men cheered."

Pastime: At the Two Hundred and Forty-first street subway station, Ed Hart reports, the guard that had charge of the chain which holds back too eager passengers, spotted an attractive young woman carrying a hand bag which bore the initial "C." The guard, in an endeavor to learn her identity, began to recite feminine names beginning with "C"—Cora, Clara, Carrie, Corinne, etc. By the time a train pulled into the station, he had called off a long list, but the girl hadn't given the slightest sign of recognition. "On this job," the guard explained a little sheepishly as he removed the chain and passengers plowed past, "You have to do something to kill time."

Remarks: Frank Fay asserts that combining business with pleasure is all very well, but a much harder thing to do is to combine business with profit. Billy Mills says that the "b" in debt is silent, but presumably was put there to supply the sting. . . . Bob Hawk holds that Eve was the end of Adam's perfect day.

End Piece: As I was drinking a cup of coffee in a nearby restaurant, a truck driver took the next stool. Big, powerful, his face black though he had shaved only a short time before, he looked the part of a real man except for one discrepancy—he was smoking a cigarette in a fragile and dainty holder. (Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

Refugees Earn Living in France

Work Groups Organized at Camps Where They Are Accommodated.

MANZAT, PUY DE DOME, FRANCE.—Of the more than 100,000 Spanish refugees who are still being harbored in France, nearly 40,000 have enlisted in the foreign working formations which in all the departments of the unoccupied zone are helping on the farms and in the mines and industries, which are all short of labor on account of the numbers of Frenchmen still in prison camps.

The Spaniards compose the great majority of the foreigners enlisted in these work formations. And their courage and cheerfulness in adversity as well as the proof they have shown of the desire to become independent as laborers has won them the respect of the French who have employed them, according to all reports to the group of foreign workers which has its center here.

Manzat is the center of the 662nd group of foreign laborers serving in the department of the Puy de Dome.

Initiative Quickly Shown. The number of foreigners at the disposal of this center at present is 470. They are nearly all Spaniards or Belgians. Received at Manzat six months ago with scarcely any preparation, the workers, using whatever materials and means they could improvise, set about making themselves comfortable. An old ruined abbey and rooms in several different adjoining buildings in which to establish offices were turned over to them. The officers in charge, mostly former French army men, demobilized and working as civilian officials, directed the community organization.

The Manzat center now operates its own farm, which it has rented and renovated, some three kilometers from town. When a foreign worker is sent to Manzat he is examined for health and capacities. Any Spanish refugee either in shelter camps or living independently may volunteer for service in the work formations. The only prohibitions are against those who have criminal records or are physically unfit.

Pay for Employment. The center keeps the men in camp for a time to determine their capacities, and in the case of farmers offers them some training on the center's farm. It then sends them out on contract to work on individual farms. The French farmers pay the regular rate for French labor to the camp administration. The Spanish workman at first receives only his former military pay, but when he has been adapted to his trade he gets the full pay, equal to that of a French workman, except that the center deducts a percentage to cover his social insurance.

Families of the workers are housed with families in Manzat while the bread winner is at the center. In most cases when he is on assignment they accompany him to the farm. The contracts are of various durations, ranging from 15 days to six months and a year. The men go out singly or in groups, and when they finish the job return to Manzat for a new assignment.

Privates at Paine Field Wrote Song for Camp

EVERETT, WASH.—They're singing a new, homemade song at nearby Paine Field these days. It's called "Flying Soldiers," and indicates, among other things, that considerable musical talent exists at the field, one of the newest army bases.

Pvt. Jack Latimer, 23, thought up the music. A selectee, he holds a Master of Arts degree in music from the University of Iowa and plans to become a music teacher when his army service ends.

He liked the music, and persuaded Pvt. Sidney Danoff of New York to write the lyrics. The result has become the field's official song.

Overcoats Can Be Lost In Still Another Way

PHILADELPHIA.—James P. McLaughlin has just cause to lament "Anything can happen to me." Some overcoats are stolen in restaurants and others are devoured by moths.

But McLaughlin merely stepped off a curbstone with his coat over his arm and a moment later saw it flying down the street on the door handle of an automobile. A three-mile chase in another motorist's machine proved futile, as the streamlined snatcher became lost in traffic.

Sexton and Undertaker Share in Texan's Will

AUSTIN, TEXAS.—An east Texas farmer's will, leaving his only property—5½ acres of land—to the village sexton and the undertaker was discovered in the files of the state comptroller's inheritance tax division.

The date of the East Texan's death was not revealed, but he asked that his body be buried without ceremony and the grave marked "A Man No One Knew."

FBI Offers Opportunities

With the volume of work constantly increasing as a result of the war, the Federal Bureau of Investigation is seeking qualified personnel for many different types of positions, from clerks to G-men. Young men who are high school graduates may qualify as clerks at $1,440 per year even without typing or stenographic ability. For full details write either to E. P. Foxworth, assistant director, FBI, 607 U. S. Court House, New York City, or J. Edgar Hoover, director, FBI, Washington, D. C.

Ballistics examination with comparison microscope. This expert will testify in a murder case. A photographic chart needed by an FBI fingerprint expert for testimony in court is being prepared.

Picture Parade

Special agents of the FBI (G-men) must qualify in the use of various types of firearms, and must also know their mechanics. G-men start at $3,200 per year.

On mimeograph and multilith machines operated by FBI clerks instructions for the FBI field force are printed.

Here is the FBI baseball team. FBI teams are tough competitors in every sport and win many championships in government leagues.

Clerks with typing ability may be assigned to teletype operation.

THE INFANCY AND BOYHOOD OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 2:25-35, 39, 40. GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man.—Luke 2:52.

"Nobody knows what a boy is worth, And the world must wait to see; For every man in an honored place Is a boy that used to be."

Jesus was "only a boy" as He grew through infancy and childhood, but in that baby and that boy rested all the hopes of mankind. While He was not just like any other boy, yet His growth and development were normal, and we may learn much that will enable us to help the boy in our home, in our block, or in our church.

The mother of Jesus, in fulfillment of the law of her people, on the eighth day identified Him with the nation (Luke 2:21), and then at the end of 40 days brought Him, with her humble sacrifice, to present Him to the Lord. There a beautiful and prophetic scene took place as the Holy Spirit revealed to godly old Simeon His

I. Complete Salvation—in a Baby (vv. 25-35).

The Holy Spirit (not yet come as the indwelling presence in believers' hearts) had come upon Simeon, a man right with God and with a deep longing in his heart for the coming of the Messiah—"the consolation of Israel." He was assured of living until that day, and now as he waited in the temple the babe who fulfilled that promise was laid in his arms.

He blessed God as he broke forth in praise and prophetic utterance. Note the full conception of the work of the Redeemer—deliverance from bondage and fear of death, light to the Gentiles and glory to Israel, a stone of stumbling but also of rising again. A revealer of the hearts of men—yes, and One whose sacrificial death would pierce the heart of His mother.

One is glad that Simeon and Anna (v. 36) and "them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem" saw in Mary's infant son the Son of God incarnate, for round about was unveiled (John 1:11), hatred (Matt. 2:16), and indifference (Matt. 2:4, 5).

Is it not so today? Christmas has just been celebrated. How many saw the babe in the manger as Jesus the Saviour?

The scene changes—the little family is back in Nazareth in the humble home—and there we see

II. Perfect Development in a Boy (vv. 39, 40).

The period from infancy to accountability (12 years) is summed up in the full-orbed growth of the boy Jesus described in verse 40. The one business of every child from birth to 12, or somewhere around there, until the period of adolescence, is to grow without any sense of responsibility except obedience to authority; and obedience in the case of a child is always in order to give the child perfect freedom from everything else, without any sense of responsibility. That is the story of Jesus: "He grew!" (G. Campbell Morgan).

Growth is, first of all, physical. Jesus stands by the side of every boy and girl as the body grows from babyhood to maturity, for He too knew that experience. We may talk to Him as an understanding friend about the physical needs and problems of our children. Let us remember that here, as elsewhere in Scripture, the physical body is recognized as important.

Mentally, He experienced growth. The strange, apocryphal tales about the child Jesus, representing Him as a man of mature wisdom in a child's body, do not compare even remotely with the beautiful naturalness of a keen-minded boy asking questions, observing, always learning. Boys and girls, you may talk with confidence to Him about your lessons, your growing interest in this exciting world of ours, of your need for guidance in learning. Be sure that He will understand.

The crowning touch upon the growing personality of the child is the spiritual. We read of Jesus that "the grace of God was upon him." "Grace," says Dr. Morgan, "is first, that which delights and charms. Grace, secondly, is desire to impart to others the things that make them happy. Grace, finally, is the activity that does this at all costs." A gracious child is an altogether delightful being; and when that graciousness is the result of the "grace of God" upon him, it is surpassingly lovely, for it makes him Christlike, even in the days of childhood.

Great and grave has been the neglect of the spiritual life of children for whom much has been done physically and mentally. Christian parents must not make that mistake—and they need not, for the Lord Jesus here too stands ready to counsel, guide, encourage, and strengthen them in every good purpose and deed.

Household Hints

A little honey in fruit cake helps to keep the cake moist.

Save your scraps of soap, melt them together and use for washing clothes.

Toast water is simple to make and appeals to those, especially invalids, who like toast. Toast stale bread and cut into squares. Powder into crumbs and add a pinch of salt and a cup of boiling water. Let it stand an hour. Rub through a sieve and serve hot or cold with a little cream and powdered sugar.

Don't sprinkle mustard loosely into water when preparing a foot bath for a patient. It will not dissolve quickly and may adhere to the skin and blister it. First mix mustard to a paste. One tablespoon of mustard to a gallon of water is the proportion used.

To clean a washable window shade, spread it on a table or the floor and rub it gently with a soft sponge frequently dipped in lukewarm, mild soap suds. Clean off the suds with a damp cloth, then wipe the shade dry with a soft, clean cloth. See that shade is perfectly dry before hanging it again.
