IOSCO COUNTY FARMERS BUY 6 CARS OF CORN

Would Increase County's Meat and Dairy Production

The grain production of Iosco county is somewhat inadequate as far as supplying the requirements of our livestock is concerned if peak production is to be expected.

With an attractive increase in prices of farm products and a national request for increased production of dairy products, poultry products and meat animals Iosco county farmers have grouped together in a cooperative way to meet this challenge and have purchased shelled corn from the government, that the production of livestock might be increased.

During the past few years of peak grain production and depressed farm prices the government made loans to farmers upon their corn crop, and placed the grain in sealed storage. By so doing the ever normal granary began to function. Farm prices were increased and supplies were stored for a future date when greater needed.

To date four carloads of this corn have been purchased and two more cars are now in transit and should arrive in Iosco county today or tomorrow according to officials of the County USDA War Board.

The six cars have brought a total of 210 tons of U. S. No. 1 corn to the farms of Iosco county or 420,000 pounds.

According to the 1935 U. S. census Iosco county grows less than 4,000 acres of corn each year and the average yield is about 25 1/2 bushels per acre. Upon this basis it would require some 300 acres of good farm land to produce this amount of feed. If local farmers were to feed all of the corn to swine it would produce about 100,000 pounds of pork or would grow 500 pigs from birth to 200 pounds in weight.

If this 210 tons of corn was to be fed to cattle for beef it would be necessary to add perhaps an equal quantity of alfalfa hay and an equal quantity of silage. By adding this roughage to the corn some 100,000 pounds of beef would be produced and is today worth approximately $10,000.00. The corn, so far purchased, has cost Iosco county farmers about 1.6 cents per pound or a total of $6,700.00.

The feed corn has a like value in the production of milk from a dairy herd or in the production of lamb for lamb feeding.

Those interested in corn for feeding are encouraged to contact County War Board Chairman H. A. Goodale or County Agricultural Agent W. L. Finley.

Do You Know?

As a part of a plan to give the folks in our county more information about the role of the right food in the health of our families, the county home agent Dorothy Scott will present a series of articles entitled "Do you know?"

We want these columns to be as helpful as possible to everyone, and would like to have you readers participate. To do this, won't you send Miss Scott any questions you may have, and recipes which your family especially likes. These recipes should be healthful ones—using such of the "protective foods" as milk, eggs, cheese, fruits, vegetables, whole grain cereals, and meat or meat substitutes. If you will send in your questions and recipes we can have a part of the column for answers and exchanges of ideas.

It may be that you will want to refer at a future time to one of the articles, for information or a recipe, so why not clip out the columns and make a scrapbook for your winter hobby.

HEREFORD GROWERS MET YESTERDAY

Discuss 1942 Marketing Problems and Care of Livestock

A group of 25 directors and members of the Northeastern Michigan Hereford Calf association met in the conference room at the Federal building at East Tawas yesterday (Thursday) afternoon. They discussed the "Market Outlook for 1942," "The Government Price Ceiling on Beef Products," "Bangs Disease Control" and "Marketing Fedded Calves."

The meeting followed a Hereford Calf Swiss Steak luncheon at the Hotel Holland.

C. T. Prescott, Sr., of Tawas City, president of the association, gave a very complete and interesting discussion on "The Part The Northeastern Michigan Hereford Calf Association Should Have in the Defense Program." In brief, Mr. Prescott said "We have all the material resources at our command for extra beef production. The money is available to enlarge our operations. We live in the greatest grazing section of Michigan. Duty calls us. Let us as a group take an active part in the promotion, development and production of one of the greatest enterprises of all time—more and better beef from the Herefords of Northeastern Michigan. By so doing, we may know that we have done our duty and have had an active part in helping to win the war."

G. A. Branan, assistant professor of animal husbandry from Michigan State College, attended the meeting and led the interesting discussion on "The Cattle Outlook for 1942" and "The Government Price Ceiling." Mr. Branan said, "Grow those Hereford calves of yours better than you ever did before. If you are only feeding them through the winter, feed a little protein supplement, perhaps one-half to one pound per head each day, plus one pound of grain for each 100 pounds of live weight, and all the good quality alfalfa hay they will consume." "If you will do this," he said, "you will be helping the cause, and your cattle will be ready to go to that good Northern Michigan grass next May in tip top shape for tip top summer's growth and gain."

He also suggested marketing the low-producing and undesirable kinds of cattle now while prices are good. The meeting was closed by a report from the organization's secretary, James P. Mielock of Alabaster.

Pieces left from layettes and dresses are being made into quilts and shelter robes for children. Several of the unit have 40 hours of work to their credit. Cecil Cox and Mrs. J. A. Bigelow have donated the use of their sewing machines this week for the work.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, the anthropologist, once had a plan to measure the skulls of all congressmen, in his studies of head-size and contour in their relation to intelligence. The congressman didn't like the idea and nothing came of it.

Studying skills, rather than skulls, Dr. Leonard Carmichael, president of Tufts college, gets better co-operation. In August, 1940, the government put him at the head of a committee of savants to work up a national brain index. They have compiled an index of several hundred thousand good brains.

This committee was known as the National Roster of Scientific and Specialized Personnel, and now there has been added to it a special committee on wartime requirements for specialized personnel, with Dr. Carmichael as chairman. The obvious function of the committee is to find good brains and recruit them.

Since the first World War, the classical Binet-Simon intelligence quotient has gained by sundry repairs and betterments. The inquiry now covers not only the question of whether we know much of anything but whether we have any sense.

In 1920, we saw an experiment in a progressive school in San Francisco which now seems pertinent to what Dr. Carmichael and his committee are trying to do. They picked a group of high I.Q. boys, of superior heredity and cultural background, and then they picked some less favored lads, of low I.Q. from the North Beach foreign section. They gave each child a certain amount of money, told him to buy some thing, start trading and report gains or losses in two months. When the bell rang, most of the silk-stocking lads had lost their shirts and the North Beach mob had fanned its holdings up to sizeable juvenile fortunes.

From this, the pedagogs figured something like survival intelligence as distinguished from merely super-imposed and possibly non-convertible cultural intelligence. It is unquestionably survival intelligence that Dr. Carmichael and his brain-indexers are looking for, as their study has to do with particularized, specialized, useful, workable skills.

Dr. Carmichael, one of the most distinguished of modern psychologists, was born in Philadelphia in 1898, and was educated at Tufts and Harvard, and taught at Princeton and Brown before becoming president of Tufts in 1938.

DOWN near Windy Gap, on the edge of Death Valley, we knew a big, dead-puncher who doubled in dancing and fighting, and President Quezon who could dance down or smack down anybody in those parts. Elsewhere, we have found this unique blend of talents only in Manuel Quezon, recently inducted into his second term as president of the Philippines.

Sr. Quezon negotiated for Philippine independence in the New York studio of Arthur Murray, the dancing master. Dancing is his art, his recreation and his driving passion. Four hours a day went to dancing when he was cutting the islands adrift—with second thoughts later. The first dancing shift was from 10 o'clock until noon. The hours from one to three went to Philippine independence, and then the dancing picked up from three to five.

The bright-eyed, coffee-colored little man with the dazzling smile so captivated Woodrow Wilson that the President put a declaration for Philippine independence slap-bang into the Democratic platform. But in the Hawes-Cutting bill, enacted in 1933, Senator Quezon found a one-way tariff squeeze, unsatisfactory guarantees as to the attitude of Pacific powers, and other defects, and started dancing and negotiating his way around these obstacles.

He is said to be just about the smartest politician in the business. He is university trained. His father was a Filipino and his mother half Spanish. He smokes cigarettes in an endless chain, dancing or sitting still, gesticulates fluently and turns the sharp spotlight of a keen, agile, realistic mind on matter in hand. He was wounded in the Philippine war for independence and for years strung with the jungle diaphanous, somewhat embarrassed in his later career by the rampant and bellicose Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo. President Quezon is 59.

President Names Production Czar And Reorganizes Defense Set-Ups To Speed Up All-Out War Effort; Report Submarines Off East Coast

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Leon Henderson, director, Division of Civilian Supply of the Office of Production Management, tries out one of the "Victory model" bicycles produced by manufacturers at request of OPM. This lightweight model is constructed of less costly material, and shorn of all gadgets. The new bikes will be built for both men and women. Photo shows Henderson pedaling, and Miss Betty Barrett of York, Neb., in the luggage basket. A sure way for the boss to get his secretary to the office on time.

NELSON:

Production Czar

As the United States moved forward into all-out war production, Donald M. Nelson had been named production czar, placed in sole command over OPM, SPAB and all other vital production organizations.

His position was compared to that of Bernard M. Baruch in 1917. Mr. Nelson had been, before his promotion to sole command, the head of SPAB, the priorities control board, and thus had been sitting with his hands on the needle valve which kept materials flowing smoothly to defense plants.

His post also was compared to that of Lord Beaverbrook in England.

He was given command by executive order, and though the order did not immediately make legally clear how far his power went, there was enough in President Roosevelt's statement to show that it would go far enough to put Nelson into sole command.

A board, including Messrs. Knudsen, Hillman and other chiefs of various vital groups, was to work under Nelson.

The President said, in part:

"Mr. Nelson will no longer serve as director of the priorities division. He will devote his entire time to directing the production program. His decisions as to procurement and production will be final."

Thus Mr. Nelson has authority over not only the industrialists and labor leaders who were in Washington to harness American production to a program for victory, but also over the army and navy themselves, in a way, because his decisions as to what they might have in the way of arms and munitions would be final.

They would still have legal contracting authority, but Mr. Nelson would have to pass upon these contracts before they could go into effect, and could, in effect, make them larger or smaller, quicker or slower.

LUZON:

Defense

When the history of World War II is written it will have become evident that the defense of Luzon by the American-Filipino forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur should be placed alongside of other famous "last stands."

Conceded only the slimmest possible hope of hanging on until help might arrive, the MacArthur forces, entrenched in the Mariveles mountains back of Manila bay, had reported not only stemming an "all-out" Japanese drive, but that they had driven the attackers back.

They had forced the Japs to remove their big guns far to the rear, out of range of the American batteries, had silenced 11 Japanese batteries, and had raised havoc with charging detachments of tanks and infantry.

Not in any way claiming that the Japanese advance had been permanently checked, General MacArthur reported to Washington that the 24-hour battle had shown definitely that the American guns and gunnery were superior to those of the enemy.

The Japs claimed that they had taken Olongapo, naval base on a bay to the north of Manila bay, and this had been confirmed by Washington.

There was more than a suspicion that the Japs were content to let the present armed forces now in the Philippines do the "mopping up" against the MacArthur army, and had turned their attention rather to increasing the tempo of the all-important Malay offensive, and the general offensive against the Dutch East Indies, using Mindanao as a base.

'War Orphan No. 1'

"I am war orphan No. 1," said Mrs. Helen Nelson, wife of Donald M. Nelson, Chicago, Ill., whom President Roosevelt appointed chief of war production just recently.

AIR:

Supremacy Sought

There was every indication that the battle for air supremacy in the Far Eastern theater of war was definitely being battled for.

The news dispatches had contained increasing reports of air battles on all fronts, and though there was still no indication that General MacArthur had any sort of an air arm, both the British and Dutch defenses were being bolstered by American, Chinese and Australian planes.

The Dutch early had said that if the Allies would give them enough planes, they could defeat Japanese efforts to capture important strongholds in their islands.

The Japs, on the other hand, were continuing to capture some, including the island of Tarakan, a small islet defended by about as many men as had stood before the Japs at Wake island.

The Dutch defenders finally had to surrender, though more than half of the garrison got away and lived to fight another day. Before leaving and before the remainder were forced by the odds to lay down their arms, they reported having mined and blown up all the oil wells on the island, an important small producer of petroleum.

It still was not definite where the high command had set up headquarters, save that it was somewhere on the island of Java, but whether at Batavia, from which most of the dispatches were coming, or at Surabaya, could not be learned.

An idea of what the capture of Tarakan meant, by the way, was the Dutch figure on its oil output, 80,000 tons monthly of the finest grade of petroleum. The Dutch, in describing the destruction of the wells, said, simply:

"The Japanese have found that we were not bluffing when we announced that no oil installations would be permitted to fall into their hands."

PAN-AMERICA:

Opens Conference

Of vital importance had been considered the Pan-American conference of nations, which had opened its sessions at Rio, with Sumner Welles in charge of affairs for the American state department.

There were really only two doubtfuls on the list, but they were important, and covered the southern half of the continent—Argentina and Chile.

Yet, as the conference met, with the announced purpose of further fulfilling the general blockade against the Axis by a continental breaking of relations with all Axis nations, it was felt quite hopeful that Argentina and Chile would come in and enter the joint action wholeheartedly.

OUSTER:

Against Dye Men

Five of the principal operating executives of the General Aniline and Film corporation were summarily ousted from their position by order of the treasury department, which had been trying for several months to establish that the company actually was owned by the Nazi firm of I. G. Farbenindustrie.

The men suspended, all naturalized citizens of German birth, were Dr. Rudolph Hutz, a director; Hans Aickelen and William Vom Rath, both former directors who resigned within the past month; F. W. Von Meister, general manager of the Oxalid division, and Leopole Eckler, acting general manager of the Agfa-Ansco division.

They have been refused the right, among other things, to enter the premises of the company. December 17 the treasury department placed 12 of its operatives in the main offices of the company.

MISCELLANY:

London: Germans were resuming constant raids, though on a small scale, of British towns. Most of them were on the northeast coast and in East Anglica.

Rio de Janeiro: Uruguay became the second of the Latin-American republics to sign a lease-lend pact with the United States, entitling it to receive substantial shipments of arms and munitions.

TO YOUR Good Health

by DR. NATHAN S. DAVIS, III

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE HIGHER IN THE WINTER

Did you know that blood pressure, especially high blood pressure, is apt to be higher in cold weather? Dipping one hand or foot in ice water and keeping it there for a few minutes will also cause the blood pressure to rise. Mental and physical exertion, nervousness and excitement have this effect. All doctors know that the blood pressure reading obtained when a patient is first examined is often materially above that individual's average or normal blood pressure. Many have had difficulty in getting life insurance because nervousness at the time of the examination caused their blood pressure to rise above normal.

Did you know that high blood pressure in itself causes almost no symptoms? People who have it may have shortness of breath on slight exertion and tire easily but this is due to the associated scarring and weakening of the heart muscle. Kidneys may become weakened and may cause constant headaches due to hardening of the arteries in the brain or to the decreased function of the kidney. Dizziness is due to hardening of the arteries to the internal ear or to the nerves supplying it. Most of the symptoms are due to hardening of the arteries which is not the cause of the high blood pressure even though it is more marked in those who have it.

Condition Often Found.

High blood pressures are almost invariably found in the course of routine physical examinations for insurance, or for periodic health audits, or when the patient has consulted the doctor because he has a cold, indigestion or some other complaint that is not due to high blood pressure.

Not infrequently during the winter months a patient who knows that he has a high blood pressure will consult his physician saying that he is not feeling at all well and is sure his pressure must be way up. This usually happens after a sudden and rather extreme change in weather; when after a severe cold snap with high barometric readings, there follows an unusually warm spell with low barometric pressures. The patient's blood pressure is probably much lower than it usually is. If he had come in when he was feeling good during the sunny cold snap, it might have been higher. Such rapid changes in weather may cause serious falls in pressure for at such times clots may form in the hardened arteries of the brain or heart and cause "strokes" or "coronary occlusions." Under such circumstances clots may also form in the arteries to the intestines or lower extremities.

Until more is known of the causes of high blood pressure and of methods of eliminating them, treatment will not be satisfactory. Treatment directed only at lowering the blood pressure may often do more harm than good. The blood pressure is high to give a normal circulation in the presence of a disease that causes a narrowing of the smaller arteries due to spasm or thickening of their linings. An individual who has a high blood pressure must learn to live with it and to avoid anything that causes it to rise or fall from its usual level.

From the medical viewpoint, all men, women and children are like the contrary women of whom the comedian sang: "You never see two alike at any one time and never see one alike twice."

Brown Boys in Blue

The navy department has established naval reserve officers training corps at various colleges throughout the nation. Typical of these is the unit at Brown university, Providence, R. I., where the navy has a key base at nearby Newport. These photos take you to Brown, and show you how the Brown boys in blue are learning the arts of the seagoing warrior to man the fortresses of floating steel that are our first line of defense.

Like the generations of Brown sons who have fought in every one of America's wars since the Revolution, these young men are determined to share in America's victory effort.

Loading and firing of naval guns is practiced in this loading machine. Dummy shells are used. This is a job where teamwork counts.

Naval instructors who teach the Brown boys their gunnery simulate conditions at sea by means of a device that makes the target heavy and toss.

THE TEMPTATION OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 4:1-11. GOLDEN TEXT—For we have an high priest . . . (who) was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin.—Hebrews 4:15.

"We have not a high priest that cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but one that hath been in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin" (Heb. 4:15, R.V.). We recognize that Jesus was tempted as the Messiah (see Matt. 4:3, 6) and as One who had no sin, and yet He was tempted in all points as we are; and we may learn from His temptation how to meet temptation and be victorious over it.

I. Temptation.

It is the common lot of all mankind to be tempted (I Cor. 10:13). The strongest and most noble of men are subject to it; angels were tempted—yes, even Jesus was tempted. We need to know about temptation, so we note

1. What It Is (v. 1). Temptation is of the devil. It is, as Principal Fairbairn expressed it, "seduction to evil, solicitation to wrong. It stands distinguished from trial thus: trial tests, seeks to discover the man's moral qualities or character; but temptation persuades to evil, deludes that it may ruin. God tries. Satan tempts."

Note that temptation is not sin, but yielding to the temptation is sin. We are told by James (Jas. 1:13-15) that man is tempted by his own lusts. He also tells us that God may permit temptations or trials to test our faith (Jas. 1:2, 3), but His purpose is only to prove us able to stand. God does not suffer us to be tempted beyond endurance, but provides a way of escape (I Cor. 10:13).

2. How It Works (vv. 2, 3, 5, 6, 8, 9). Satan has only three temptations, although he is a master at giving them different appearances. The temptation of Jesus followed the same threefold line as that of Adam and Eve (Gen. 3:6), which is described in I John 2:16 as the general temptation of all men, namely, "the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life." Observe how Satan worked on Jesus: (a) By appealing to the flesh (vv. 2, 3). Jesus had fasted 40 days, and Satan took advantage of that fast to suggest that He use His divine power of creation to satisfy His hunger. To do so would have been to deny His very mission on earth.

Satan observes in man the normal appetites of his body, excites them to a high degree, and then tempts him to satisfy them in an improper way. (b) By appealing to pride (vv. 5, 6). God had promised to keep Jesus "in all his ways" (Ps. 91:11), but casting Himself from the temple was not one of God's "ways" for Him.

The devil wants us to be presumptuous and call it faith, and this is his pitfall for one who really wants to believe—cause him to become a fanatic and substitute foolish presumption for faith. (c) By appealing to the eyes (vv. 8, 9). By showing Christ the kingdoms of the earth in some kind of striking panorama, or moving picture, he offered a short cut to their rule by a brief act of worship of him, rather than by way of the cross. The devil showed his real purpose here. He wants worship—he wants us to bow to him instead of to God.

II. Our Lord Was Victorious Over Satan.

We, too, can triumph in His blessed name. To do so we need to study the way of victory.

1. How to Gain It (vv. 4, 7, 10). Three steps appear: (a) By the right use of Scripture. If our Lord needed and used that weapon, how can we possibly do without it? How can we use it if we do not study it, and hide it in our hearts (Ps. 119:11)? (b) By complete dependence upon God. Every Scripture used by Jesus against Satan honored God the Father. We cannot fight Satan in our own strength. Luther was right—"Did we in our own strength confide, Our striving would be losing."

The real victory for the Christian is to bring Satan to the foot of the cross. Christ defeated him completely there, and we may plead that victory. (c) By denouncing Satan. Jesus sent him on his way. We may do the same, in Jesus' name. It is always a serious error to argue with Satan, or even to discuss matters with him. He is not divine, but he is a supernatural being with knowledge and cunning which are too much for us. Meet him with Scripture, honor God by your faith in Christ, then "resist the devil, and he will flee from you" (Jas. 4:7).

2. What It Brings (v. 11). When the defeated devil left Christ, angels came and ministered to Him. The overcoming of temptation brings victory, peace, and blessed rest. This is ever true in the life of the believer. Temptations victoriously met make one stronger in meeting the next temptation. There is always a next one, for we read (Luke 4:13) that the devil left Christ only "for a season."

Most Mammals Color-Blind

It is not true, says Author Roy Chapman Andrews, that bulls get mad when they see red—all mammals except monkeys and men are color-blind. Many animals can be taught to detect slight differences of shade, but when variously colored lights emitting the same intensity of light are presented, the animals are baffled. Thus a dog sees the world, including his master, in various shades of gray, as in a photograph. But birds, fish and insects can distinguish colors.

S.P.C.C. Organized

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children was organized in New York in December, 1874, by Henry Bergh, organizer of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Bergh's attention was called to the plight of mistreated children by Mrs. Etta Angell Wheeler, a social worker. Elbridge T. Gerry, attorney for the S.P.C.A., was active in the organization of the children's society and later became its president.

BASKET BALL NEWS

The two way tie between St. Michael's and AuGres was broken last Friday night when the underdog Alabaster quintet defeated AuGres 22 to 19. The "Jinx" that Alabaster holds over AuGres is very strong as Alabaster has never been defeated by the AuGres aggregation.

Tawas City rose steadily in the league race with their twin defeat over Whittemore and Prescott, boosting their percentage to .600, 3 wins and 2 losses.

Tawas City Cagers gained another victory last Friday night when they defeated Whittemore 23 to 11.

Three men, Bublitz, Prescott and Brown accounted for 22 of Tawas City's 23 points. Bublitz sank three field goals, Prescott shot four field goals, and Brown sank three field goals and two foul shots. Their other point was scored by Landon who dropped a free throw through the cors. High point man for Whittemore was Norton with two led goals and two free throws to his credit.

Twenty-one fouls were committed, nine by Whittemore and twelve by Tawas City. Bellville and Landon went out of the game with four each.

The Whittemore Reserves easily downed Tawas City the score being 14 to 7. Tawas City's "Mighty Mites" just couldn't out-jump Whittemore's "Huskies" and so went down to defeat.

Barr of Whittemore took high scoring honors with three field goals and a foul shot for seven points. All of Tawas City's points were scored on free throws with Willard Musolf scoring five in six tries. Their other two points were scored by Blust and Rollin. Twenty-one fouls were also called in this game, 11 against Whittemore and 10 against Tawas City.

Whittemore zipped through a ragged Tawas City defense to chalk up an easy 13 to 6 victory.

Whittemore's high point man was Gay with six points. Ogden led the Tawas City team with four points.

Whittemore

In the interest of National Defense the Whittemore Women's club will sponsor two days of finger-printing by the State Police. They will come to this city for that purpose on Monday and Tuesday, January 26 and 27.

The first day they will be at the school to finger-print school children, but others, including pre-school children are welcome to come that day if they desire. On the second day they will be at the city hall, beginning at nine o'clock each morning.

Since finger-printing will afford a means of protection to citizens in peace time as well as war time, all men, women and children are urged to be printed. It will be necessary for children to bring written permission from one of their parents. Forms for this purpose will be sent out from the school with the children.

As residents of this city have been very faithful in doing their share toward National Defense, the committee in charge expects full cooperation in this project.

Word from Kenneth Schuster, who has been stationed at Norfolk, Virginia, stated he was being transferred to California and he left for there Tuesday.

Navy Has Foot Trouble
Even the navy has its foot trouble. The United States Naval Reserve corps has decided that among the specialists eligible for appointment are chiropodists, or podiatrists. Action of the navy in appointing chiropodists follows the report of the Council of the American Medical Association that "chiropody is a department of the healing service and it has its basis in scientific and demonstrated knowledge and satisfies a gap that general medicine has failed to fill."

Dunking Old Idea
Dunking in your "bunchum" is a custom as ancient as Arabia. It was there where the world's first cup of coffee was made from some strange, bright red berries the Arabians called "bunn." The beverage became "bunchum" and was thick enough to scoop out of the bowl with bits of food. Result: Introduction of dunking to the world!

DEEP WATER ISLAND

by ALAN LEMAY

W.N.U. RELEASE

He laid a hand on the back of the chair where John Colt had sat. "May I?" "Perhaps, if you wish."

INSTALLMENT TWO
THE STORY SO FAR: Karen Water- son, San Francisco girl, convinced by her lawyer, John Colt, that she has a claim to the island estate of her grand- father, Garrett Waterston, arrives in Hon- olulu to attempt to gain control of the property. One evening while she and Colt are dining and discussing plans for pressing her claims, Richard Wayne, or Tonga Dick, as he is known, enters their dining place. He is a member of the Wayne family that has been in control of her grandfather's island, Alakoa, since the old man's disappearance. Inasmuch as Karen believes that Tonga Dick does not know her identity she suggests to Colt that she talk to him and learn what she can. Colt at first opposes the idea but begins to change his mind.
Now continue with the story.

"I suppose there isn't any really practical objection," he said; "but isn't this notion just slightly on the silly side? You can hardly expect—" He started to say something more, but let it pass; then bowed with exasperating courtesy, and walked away.

When he was gone she sat quietly a little while, trying to relax. Presently she turned her chair a little so that she could look into the shadows where Tonga Dick sat, three tables away, alone in the obscurity of palm shadows. She still could not clearly see his face, but she focussed upon the coal of his cigarette, and waited. She let her eyes rest there almost to the limit of endurance; then smiled faintly, and returned her attention to the dance floor.

Tonga Dick stood up, wound his way to her table. He laid a hand on the back of the chair where John Colt had sat.

"May I?" "Perhaps, if you wish." Richard Wayne sat down, crossed his knees comfortably, and took his time about lighting a cigarette. Karen waited, determined to make him lead the way; but she watched him curiously, with a sharp interest that was partly caused by his name alone. In the world she knew, you could no more be called Tonga Dick, in seriousness, than you could be called Red-Handed Harry, or Terrible Pete. Had she had no other relationship to this man than that of a casual tourist, she still would have stared, just because of the name he was called.

Tonga Dick surveyed her slowly, with grave eyes. "You wanted to see me?"

Richard Wayne watched with admiration the perfect serenity of Karen's poise as she turned a little, and coolly met his eye.

She was much more interesting to look at from across a table, he decided, than from across a number of them. Yet he had noticed her in the first moment in which he had stepped upon the lanai. That, of course, was the reason he knew who she was. He had landed but a few hours before, and had no more than shaken hands with his brothers; there were no means by which he could have identified Karen Waterston, if he had not noticed her and been interested of his own accord.

From the shadows of his obscure table at the edge of the lanai he had watched her for some time for no other reason than that it gave him pleasure to look at her.

After a little while he had signaled a table captain and asked who the girl was—and had obtained a correct answer.

Knowing who she was, it was odd to be sitting at the same table with her now. This was the girl who had come here from the mainland to lay claim to the island of Alakoa, the little stronghold in the sea which no one but a Wayne had held for more than two decades.

It seemed to him that Karen Waterston did not look the part. He couldn't understand how anyone with a face like that, and eyes like that, could get herself hooked up with a shenanigan that differed from a common swindle only in the boldness of its scope.

"If I hadn't wanted you here," she said, "you'd hardly be here, would you?"

"And so?" "So nothing. I wanted you to come and sit here because I think you look romantic. And I think you might introduce yourself, now."

"My name is Richard Wayne," he said. "I belong here in the Islands. More specifically, I am connected with a small privately owned island called Alakoa."

He watched for her reaction, and was fooled again; for no reaction came.

"That certainly is very interesting," Karen Waterston said. "I wish I were an Islander."

"Perhaps," he suggested, "you would like to tell me who you are."

"My name," Karen improvised, "is Katie Higgins—something—a white girl from about four miles south of Dubuque. I teach school some place, and I think I would like to get in the movies."

"I should have said," Dick commented, "that you were from San Francisco." She glanced at him sharply, but he added, "Hawaii is a kind of a crossroads; people from every part of the world come through here, sooner or later, so that if you live in the Islands you get to recognize inflections of speech."

"Oh." "They raise very good looking girls in San Francisco," Dick said. "It must be a wonderful thing to own your own island," Karen said.

"Are many islands privately owned?"

"Only a few, in this part of the Pacific. Niihau is privately owned, and so is Lanai, which is the sixth largest in the group; and the Waynes have had Alakoa for about twenty years."

"How many Waynes are there?" "Richard Wayne said to himself, "You know cockeyed well, young lady, how many Waynes there are." But aloud he said, "Four. My uncle, who is really the owner, my two brothers, and myself."

"It's like owning a little empire of your own, isn't it? I can't think of anything nicer than that."

"A good many people seem to feel that way," Dick said. "That's what makes an island so hard to hold on to." "You have trouble holding onto it?" "Oh, yes, indeed. Just now, for example, there is an insufferable little snip of a girl trying to get her claws into Alakoa by due legal process."

"Interesting," Karen encouraged him. "And just how does she expect to do that?"

"The Waynes bought Alakoa from her grandfather. Now the girl wishes to prove that the sale was illegal, because, she says, her grandfather was a congenital idiot. She says it runs in the family, and she can prove it."

Karen studied him for a moment with veiled suspicion, but Tonga Dick's face was innocent. "What a remarkable person," Karen said. "What's she like?"

"Well—as I told you, I have had no chance to get acquainted with her."

"Maybe you'll have a chance later."

"I'd rather like to, you know," Dick admitted. "I'd like to find out what makes her tick. But I would hardly know how to go about it."

"Just a simple Island boy," Karen smiled.

"Well, the circumstances are a little awkward. I can't just go up to her and say, 'I understand you are the little twerp who is trying to get my island away from me, and what are you doing this evening after the store closes?' Or can I?"

"Well, invite her for a sail on your boat. Show her selected views of the coast line. Show her this island she's after—what did you say the name of it was? Alakoa? Probably she hasn't even seen it. I'll bet she'd be interested."

"And just what," said Dick, "would be my idea?"

"Get to know her. You said you wanted to find out what the little fright was like. Maybe you'd like her."

"And then what?" "And then what?" Karen repeated. "Say, wait a minute. Do I have to map out your entire life?"

They grinned at each other, and either one of them would have given a good deal to know what the other was thinking then.

"It's a rotten plan," Dick criticized.

"Now you've hurt my feelings," Karen said. "Here I practically work up a headache planning a beautiful day for you, and what credit do I get? You tell me it's rotten. All that effort wasted!"

Richard Wayne appeared to brighten. "No, it isn't. It gives me a much better idea. What's the use of wasting the whole program on a chiseling little tramp? No! I'll take you sailing, instead."

"Me? Oh, I'm afraid I couldn't—" "Tomorrow morning," Richard Wayne prompted her, "at something like nine?"

"Something more like ten," she answered.

CHAPTER II

It was nearly midnight when Richard Wayne called upon his brothers. They had been expecting him earlier in the evening, and only an objectionable message he had sent them by phone had kept them waiting for him at an hour strictly outside of their habits.

Richard's two brothers, Ernest Wayne and Willard Wayne, sat in a large room which, in spite of its prim order, showed the wear of the humid years. The whole thing managed a transplanted New England look; obviously nothing had been changed here for a long time.

The two brothers who here awaited Richard Wayne seemed to have been bred and raised by the New England furniture. Both were older than Richard, and when he looked at them he was sometimes happy to remember that they were only his half-brothers, after all.

"It does seem to me, Dick," Ernest Wayne said fretfully, "that you would show a little interest in what is happening here." Ernest, tall and thin, did not look entirely well; he wore gold-rimmed glasses, which did not seem to be strong enough for his purpose, and when kept up late he developed a peaked look.

Dick sighed and sat down. "If I weren't interested I wouldn't be in Honolulu at all," he said. "Now, please try not to get all excited, will you?"

"You don't realize the seriousness of the situation, Dick," Willard said heavily, without heat. "This thing is critical in the extreme—perhaps even desperate. Uncle Jim can't seem to understand that he is not invulnerable. He has delayed, and delayed—"

"As I understand it from your letters," he said now, "the complaint is that when our mutual father bought the island of Alakoa from Garrett Waterston he practically cheated the old boy out of his eye teeth—is that the story?"

"Father was an industrious and intelligent man," Ernest Wayne said with annoyance.

"Do you know anything much about the original swindle?" "I object to your tone," Willard Wayne said; and Dick was astonished by the vigor of his brother's resentment. "Garrett Waterston was a disreputable old pirate. He was a waster and a speculator of the worst sort—absolutely typical of a certain kind of riffraff which troubled the Islands in the early days. If father saw values in Alakoa that Waterston did not, that certainly was Waterston's look-out. But now comes this girl, this grasping, piratical little adventuress, intent on seizing not only the whole of Alakoa, but all the development which has cost Uncle Jim the best years of his life, and—"

"Have you checked the identity of this girl?" Dick interrupted.

"She's Garrett Waterston's granddaughter, all right," Willard said. "Well brought up?"

"The family has no distinction whatever. The girl has been working as a stenographer. Her relationship to the island of Alakoa probably would never have occurred to her as offering any possibilities, if it had not been for this John Colt."

"And who is this John Colt?" "John Colt is thirty-six years old and was born in New York. He is one of the predatory speculators who came to light in the boom days of the late twenties. He acquired a considerable fortune through water developments in California. In 1923 his stock-juggling activities were investigated, but without success."

"You seem to have snootled around to very good effect," Tonga Dick complimented them.

"And now," Willard concluded. "Karen Waterston, through her attorneys, and undoubtedly acting on the advice and direction of John Colt is bringing suit, on the complaint that her grandfather's sale of Alakoa was illegal—that Garrett Waterston, at the time of the sale, was mentally incompetent. That shows you the girl's unscrupulous type—she is willing to discredit her own grandfather—prove him to have been virtually insane—to gain advantage for herself."

"Same old story," Tonga Dick murmured. "But not so easy, in the case of Garrett Waterston, I should think."

Willard Wayne exploded. "I tell you it is easy! Unless we find a way out, it is most certainly going to be done! This is what comes of dealing with irresponsibles of Garrett Waterston's type. Evidence can be brought in to show that Garrett Waterston was not only totally irresponsible, but eccentric in the extreme. I myself am convinced he was more or less deranged. Let me remind you that we've had hundreds of such cases in the Islands—mostly successful!"

Snack on a Frosty Night—Broiled Wienies (See Recipes Below)

Wintry Snacks

The cold, frosty evenings with their full program of basketball games, sleigh ride parties, skating and other winter-time amusements call for piping hot, hearty snacks to take care of brisk appetites. While in warmer weather, the family could raid the ice box, now the problem is slightly different, as hot food, satisfying but still simple, is in demand.

Here's a dish that just seems to fit the bill: the broiled wienies and hot potato salad pictured above. Of course, hot potato salad with wienies is an old favorite but there's a touch of something new in the wienies broiled with cheese and the green beans around the potato salad to add a touch of color.

"Broiled Wienies." Select two to three skinless frankfurters for each person to be served, two will do nicely for the girls and women but better count three for the men and boys. Split the frankfurter and insert a strip of American cheese. When almost ready to serve, pop into the broiler and cook until cheese melts and browns.

Hot Potato Salad. (Serves 6) 6 potatoes, boiled with skins on ¼ cup finely chopped onion 2 hard-cooked eggs, diced Salt and pepper 6 slices bacon, broiled until crisp, crumbled

Peel potatoes and cube. Add remaining ingredients. Just before ready to serve, mix with this hot dressing:

Cooked Salad Dressing. 3 tablespoons sugar 1 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon yellow mustard 1½ tablespoons flour 1 egg yolk ¾ cup water 2 tablespoons vinegar 1 tablespoon butter

Blend dry ingredients, then add egg yolk and blend until smooth. Add water, then vinegar, stirring constantly. Cook over boiling water, stirring all the while, until thick. Remove from fire, add butter and serve hot, mixed with potato salad.

Spaghetti is and has been for some time now one of the reigning favorites among hot dishes to serve in the evening. Here's one dish you'll like because it's both tart and satisfying, with plenty of cheese and sauce baked right into the long strips of spaghetti:

Baked Spaghetti. (Serves 8) 1 pound package of spaghetti 3 small onions, chopped fine 2 tablespoons oil 1 pound ground beef ½ pound sausage (in the bulk) ½ pound mushrooms ½ teaspoon pickling spice 1 teaspoon salt 4 small cans tomato sauce ¾ pound grated American cheese

Cook spaghetti in boiling salted water 12 to 15 minutes. Drain and run cold water through it. Saute onion, ground meat and sausage in oil until brown. Add mushrooms, spice, salt and tomato sauce. Simmer slowly for 40 minutes. Put thin layer of spaghetti on bottom of buttered casserole. Then add a layer of sauce, then cheese, another layer

Lynn Says: Here are a few quick snack ideas you'll like to paste in your notebook: Baked beans garnished with brown bread, cream cheese sandwiches, placed around the bean pot. You might try the canned baked beans with sliced ham, too. It's quick, easy and delicious. Toasted buns with hamburgers, cheeseburgers, or ham and cheese slices go over nicely, too. Toasted English muffins with an egg fried or poached with ham are high in favor.

This Week's Menu

Fig, Apricot, and Date Salad

*Peach Crisp Pudding

*Recipe Given.

Tamale Pie. (Serves 8) 1 medium-sized onion, chopped 3 tablespoons oil 1½ pounds beef, cut in cubes 1 teaspoon salt 1 tablespoon chili powder 1 large can tomatoes (2½ cups) 1 cup yellow bantam corn 1½ cups corn meal 5 cups boiling water 1 teaspoon salt ¼ cup grated cheese

Brown onion in oil, then add beef and cook until brown. Add salt, chili powder, tomatoes and corn and cook slowly 1 hour. Add corn meal to salted water and cook 15 minutes, stirring frequently. Cool mush, then line buttered casserole dish with a 1-inch layer of the mush. Pour in meat-vegetable mixture, then top with remaining mush. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 1½ hours. During last quarter hour, sprinkle top with cheese. Serve with a sauce made by heating one can of tomato soup to which has been added 1 can of ripe, pitted olives.

Are you one of those homemakers who is always looking for one dish that can be modified and yet seem to be different every time it's served. I think baked beans is one of those dishes, and because of its hearty appeal you can serve it often.

Bean and Sausage Bake. (Serves 4) 1 small onion, sliced ½ pound link sausage 1 can baked beans 1 tablespoon pickle relish 1 tablespoon chili sauce

Place onion on bottom of casserole and lay sausage on top of onion. Bake in a moderate oven 15 minutes, then drain off excess fat. Combine beans with onion, sausage, pickle relish and chili sauce. Return to oven for 20 minutes to re-heat.

If you have only eggs, don't ever despair for they have excellent possibilities as snacks. Try scrambled eggs with cheese, bacon fried crisp and brown and crumbled, or broiled sausages. Omelets made with a slice of American cheese before they're folded are menu tempters, as are omelets made with a tomato sauce folded over them before serving.

Peach Crisp Pudding. 2 cups diced, dried peaches 2 cups water ½ cup sugar ¼ cup honey ½ cup butter ½ cup sugar 2 eggs ½ teaspoon each, cloves, nutmeg 1 teaspoon vanilla 1½ cups ¼-inch toasted bread cubes 2 cups corn flakes

Soak peaches in boiling water 10 minutes. Drain, add water and sugar; cook covered for 30 minutes. Remove from heat, add honey and stir until well mixed. Cream butter and sugar thoroughly, add eggs and beat well. Stir in spices, flavoring, bread cubes and corn flakes. Place one-half of mixture in buttered baking pan. Spread peaches evenly over top and cover with remaining mixture. Bake in a moderate (375-degree) oven about 25 minutes.

Household Hints

If you like the flavor of cloves, try adding a few whole ones to the fat in which doughnuts are fried.

If potatoes are placed on the broiler rack instead of the floor of the oven they will bake quicker.

If shredded coconut becomes dry it can be softened by steaming in a clean cloth over boiling water.

Paintbrushes, when not in use, should be soaked in turpentine and washed in warm soapsuds before they are stored away.

Income Tax Information

This is the third of a series of nine articles on Income Tax Information. The Revenue Act of 1941 provides a simplified method of computing income tax in the case of individuals whose gross income is derived wholly from salary, wages or other compensation for personal services, dividends, interest, rent, annuities, or royalties, and does not exceed $3,000. A new Form 1040A has been provided for taxpayers who are entitled to and elect to use such method. A table on the reverse side of this Form shows the amount of tax on increasing amounts of gross income after the proper allowance of $400 for each dependent, if any.

The tax under the simplified method is the same for each $25.00 block of gross income and the taxpayer need only ascertain in which block his income (less allowance for dependents) falls to determine his tax. A flat reduction of 10 per cent has been made in arriving at the amount of tax shown in the table for deductions such as charitable contributions and taxes paid, so that the taxpayer who uses this method does not list these but gets an automatic deduction of 10 per cent.

Under the simplified method the status of a person on the last day of the taxable year is the governing factor in determining the exemption level ($750 for single persons and married persons not living with husband or wife, and $1,500 for married persons living together) as well as the credit for dependents.

A husband and wife living together on the last day of the taxable year may file separate returns on Form 1040A if the gross income of each is from the prescribed sources and does not exceed $3,000.

The use of the simplified method is optional with the taxpayer but once an election has been made for any year, it is irrevocable for that year. If a taxpayer files a return under the simplified method for the taxable year he may not thereafter file a return under the general provisions of the law for that year. Conversely, if he files a return under the general provisions for any taxable year, he may not thereafter file a return under the simplified method for that year. However, a new election is allowed for each succeeding taxable year.

Tawas City School Notes

KINDERGARTEN—FIRST GRADE

Miss Brosi brought us a polar bear after Christmas. She brought two little trees to use with our log cabin. Junior sent the trees. Junior is Miss Brosi's brother's little boy.
Alberta brought a puzzle. Kermit and Wayne brought three picture books.

Patsy Montgomery took all the dolls' clothes home and washed them. We are learning Mother Goose songs. We drew pictures of Humpty Dumpty on the wall.
We are writing words about winter.

SECOND GRADE

We are studying about Eskimos. We all drew pictures of igloos, icebergs, seals and the Aurora Borealis. Some of us are modeling polar bears and seals from clay.

We are saving paper to help the soldiers. We are going to buy as many defense stamps as we can.

THIRD and FOURTH GRADES

At our regular club meeting Friday afternoon we changed the name of our club from "The Secret Club" to "The Victory Club." We like the new name better than the first one. Ardith McMullen thought of it.

We are glad to have Carolyn Gallicker back again after a vacation in Detroit.

Mr. Pollycutt is giving us a review in music. He is going to give us a test soon.

We have had our reviews and tests in spelling and will finish them in our other subjects this week.

We were in the news-reel picture which was taken at school last week. You will see us if you attend the show at the theatre Wednesday or Thursday.

SPORTS

The Mueller Cement Block team won the first half of the bowling season. The High School team finished third. Tawas High started out the second half in fine style winning three out of four from the Forest Service but slowed down this week losing three to Gabler's Lunch.

The Tawas City High School basketball team defeated the Whittemore team 23 to 11 at Whittemore last Friday evening. Hugh Prescott and Charles Brown were high point men with eight points each. Tawas City now has a .600 percentage in the league and an excellent chance of winning the championship.

HOME ECONOMICS

The home economics class has been studying the "Ideal Kitchen"—attractive color schemes, convenient cupboard arrangement, and all essential articles of a kitchen. The four types have been studied, the L shaped, U shaped, Corridor type and Pullman type.

The class also planned a dinner for the men's club organization of teacher's in Isosco county. These plans busied the class for several days and the reports of the dinner were highly complimentary.

WASTE PAPER

Beginning Monday each child is going to try and bring a newspaper to school. If you have a paper that no child now collects, will you please let us know and we will be glad to pick it up.

DEFENSE STAMPS

The students are responding nicely to the sale of defense stamps. Each Friday morning the classes meet for a short time and sell stamps. Last Friday morning $103.80 worth of stamps were sold in the school. The Sophomores are leading. They sold $30.80 worth to the members in their class. They voted to take enough from their treasury to buy a bond.

HOT LUNCHES

The rural schools, under the direction of Miss Dorothy Scott, home extension agent, are having the first of a series of meetings in the home economics room. Miss Benedict and Miss Scott will aid in setting up the NYA hot lunch programs for the various schools. The teachers are taking cooking lessons in order to learn how to best utilize the surplus commodities.

TAWAS GETS THE TOURNAMENT

A letter has been received from the Michigan High School Athletic Association saying that our school has been selected by the committee on Tournament Locations as the center for a district basketball tournament to be held on the week end of March 5, 6 and 7. This tournament will be only for class D schools. We hope to know just which schools will participate within the next few days.

MEN TEACHERS' CLUB

Twenty-one teachers attended the banquet of the Huron Shore Men Teachers' Club held at the High school on Saturday evening.
Casper Bloomer, Alcona county agricultural agent, showed scenic views of northern Michigan. They were very interesting.

The teachers held a defense discussion, discussing problems dealing with the public school. One interesting question was: whether a boy would be more valuable to his country by leaving school and taking an active part in either the active defense or defense industries or remaining in school. The general opinion was that the country would be benefited more by the boy remaining in school.

DEBATING

The Tawas City High School Debating team has concluded its preliminary series of debates and will now take part in the elimination series which will begin with the District tournament.

In the first four debates the team, composed of Helen Krumm, Philip Ross and Ruth Herriman, won over East Tawas, Harrisville and Chesaning, but were defeated in their first debate by Pinconning.

The following letter was received from the state manager:
University of Michigan
January 16, 1942

Miss Mabel E. Sutton, Debate Coach, Tawas City High School, Tawas City, Michigan
Dear Miss Sutton:

Congratulations to you and your debaters are certainly in order. Our records show that your high school has won its way into the elimination debate series of the Michigan High School Forensic Association by winning three out of four preliminary debates.

This automatically wins for your school a Detroit Free Press debate wall plaque trophy. You now have two courses open. If it is your wish that your high school terminate debating at this time and participate in no further contests, you will receive the wall plaque trophy.

If it is the wish to continue in the elimination series of debates, you will next take part in a district elimination tournament. Since these tournaments must be set up immediately, I have already assigned your school to the tournament which will be under the chairmanship of Mr. William E. Buys, Midland High School.

You will be notified concerning the final plans for the district tournament. A trophy is to be awarded the winner of each of these tournaments, which will remain in the permanent possession of the winning school.

Cordially, Arthur Secord, Manager Michigan High School Forensic Association.

Cables for America's Battle

- ★ IN THE past year, while the nation was preparing for the present struggle, Michigan Bell spent $28,000,000 largely to meet the need for increased telephone service.
- ★ Part of that total went into new buildings, additions and new central office equipment. But a large and important share was buried in the ground—in the form of telephone cable. 448,000 miles of new telephone wire were used in the cables placed by Michigan Bell
- ★ in 1941—enough wire to go more than 18 times around the earth!
- ★ Hundreds of miles of new cable bring telephone service to military bases and munitions plants. Other hundreds supply the swiftly growing districts of defense workers' homes. As long as the necessary materials can be obtained, your Telephone Company will do its level best to provide good telephone service for all who need it.
