TAWAS CITY

EMERGENCY DEFENSE UNIT ORGANIZED

Citizens of City Train for Various Phases of Defense Work

That Tawas City has forged ahead of many of her larger Michigan sister cities in Civilian Defense work was divulged Monday night at a meeting of the local defense council when the various committees in charge of organization reported. In the plan, as set up, every citizen will have his part in the organization.

Mayor Ernest Burtzloff, chairman of the Defense Council, said "We may not anticipate an air raid or trouble in this section of Michigan, but in this war many unanticipated things have happened, and we must be prepared for the unexpected with a smooth running organization in which every man, woman and child in the city shall know his or her duties and be prepared to do their part in the protection of life and property."

The organization has been divided into four sections with the city defense council at its head. Each division will be filled with volunteer workers, trained in their duties. The divisions are as follows:

- (1)—Fire department division.
- (2)—Police and wardens division.
- (3)—Emergency medical and first aid.
- (4)—Emergency public work and utility service.

The personnel of each division has a skeleton framework set-up, but this must be filled with volunteers. Every citizen in the city is urged to register at the superintendent of public works' office in the city hall for this service.

Seventy-five citizens are now taking first-aid instruction. The first class completed the basic 20-hour course Wednesday evening. This will be followed, beginning Wednesday evening, with a ten-hour advanced course. As soon as there are enough applicants, new classes will form in first-aid. Following the full 30-hour course instructions will be given in protection against explosives, incendiary bombs and war gases. Instructors for these classes will be local men trained at the FBI school at Bay City in March.

The Tawas City Defense Council consists of the members of the water board, superintendent of public works, chief of fire department and city attorney. By this arrangement, men who have the proper elected authority over our public works and law enforcement are on the defense council. This conforms to the plan made by the Federal government. The members of the local defense council are: Mayor Ernest Burtzloff, Robert Murray, Fred Boudler, John Brugger, John Lansky, George Myles and H. Read Smith.

AAA Notes

Thus far in the war we have needed no food administrator as we did in the last World War, and we hope there will be no need of one. It is entirely up to agriculture whether or not we will have one, we must produce in every way possible all we can to be sure of our own needs first, then the needs of our friends and neighbors can be met without causing scarcity or unduly high prices.

Mrs. Lake, our AAA Fieldwoman, says, "We do not need to worry over producing more than is needed, by conserving our land through AAA practices and making it do all we can, we will not ruin our land but it will pay us large dividends by giving us more produce." The Department of Agriculture will support prices for all farm commodities until December 31, 1942, at not less than 85% of parity.

When our mower, binder or drill become worn out and we think "Why can't I get a new one" just say "here my new one will make a few guns or tanks to fight our enemies." It may take a little time but if we try hard enough we can find some way of repairing the old one or perhaps borrow our neighbor's machine, while we are there we may find out our neighbor is badly in need of some tool we have so we may do a good turn both ways.

We must sacrifice a great deal, for if Democracy wins, which it must, the conditions in this nation will be just what we make it by our efforts now. Let's not make the same mistakes we did during the last war. Let's pay off our debts, save our money, and invest it in defense bonds and stamps.

When the efforts of labor are inverted from the wartime emergency production of planes, tanks and guns, let's have the buying power to put the efforts of labor and the facilities of increased industrial plants and factories to peacetime use.

After this war is over, we want all of our people to enjoy the decent standard of living, the American birthright, which in the past too few of our people enjoyed, by seeing our dollars encouraging the production of refrigerators, tractors, automobiles, radios, stoves and all those things that will raise the standard of living that will raise the standard of living.

Pollard Named National Gypsum Safety Director

Merrill Pollard, of East Tawas, leaves tomorrow (Saturday) for Buffalo, N. Y., where he will assume his duties as safety director for the National Gypsum company. He will be in charge of safety work in all of the company's plants throughout the United States. Pollard's many friends here are pleased with the recognition of his ability in this field of endeavor.

In 1938, along with his other duties as an employee of the company, Pollard was made safety director of the plant at National City. This plant has established a fine safety record, and during 1941 won the bronze award in the inter-plant safety contest participated in by the seventeen plants of the National Gypsum company.

In addition to his duties at the National City plant Pollard has been first aid director of the Iosco Chapter of the American Red Cross. Since the declaration of war he has devoted several evenings a week instructing classes in first aid at Whittemore, East Tawas and Tawas City. The members of these classes are a portion of the group of men and women in the county who will be trained in first aid for civilian defense work.

TAWAS CITY WINS FROM PINCONNING

Exciting 28 to 26 Contest Played by Locals and St. Michaels

In an exciting over-time contest Monday evening the Tawas City High School basketball team defeated the league leading Pinconning St. Michaels team by the score of 28 to 26.

The Tawas City boys started out meaning business by grabbing an early lead. At the end of the first quarter they were out in front 9 to 4. St. Michaels wouldn't stay down and came back to lead at half-time 13 to 11. At the end of the third quarter they still managed to hold a two point margin with the score Pinconning 18, Tawas City 16. In the final quarter the boys had the excited fans sitting on the edge of their seats as both teams put on a scoring drive. Bisel sank two field goals and Crower one for Pinconning and Tawas City evened up the score at 24 when Prescott sank two field goals and Brown and Landon one each.

In the three minute overtime period Coach Chubb's boys took the lead when Landon shot a field goal and a moment later the crowd went wild when Crower tossed one through the hoop to again tie the score. In the closing moments of the game, Capt. Roy Landon, Tawas City's sharpshooter sank another field goal to again put his team in the lead which Pinconning was unable to overcome and at the final whistle the score stood 28 to 26.

Roy Landon was the leading scorer for Tawas City with five field goals and a foul shot for eleven points. Crower with four field goals and three foul shots lead the Pinconning team.

The second game with East Tawas furnishing the opposition, was won by Standish 40 to 26. Standish played the same line-up with Martin taking scoring honors by ringing up six field goals and five foul shots for 17 points. Raynak was again runner-up with eight. Haight led the East Tawas boys with 11.

In a game played at the local High School gym Tuesday evening, the East Tawas Independents defeated the Tawas City Independents 35 to 23.

THREE KILLED IN HEAD-ON AUTO CRASH

Dr. Miller of Harrisville is Traffic Accident Victim

In a head-on collision last Sunday morning near Au Gres, three people were killed and four people were seriously injured. The dead are Dr. Arnold P. Miller, of Harrisville, Howard Anderson and Donald Anderson, of Millington. The four seriously injured are Mrs. Arnold Miller, wife of Dr. Miller; Mrs. Rena, Gilpin, of Harrisville; Clifford Anderson and Ronald B. Whipple, of Millington. The three Andersons were brothers.

The accident occurred about two miles east of Au Gres. Clifford Anderson, his two brothers and Whipple were on their way to Silver Valley for the day. Dr. and Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Gilpin were driving toward Bay City. One of the cars involved attempted to pass a third car, and it is thought the glaring sunlight through the windshield blinded the driver in the Anderson car. Trooper Carl Thunberg of the local state police post and Sheriff John Johannes, of Arenac county, investigated the accident.

Dr. Miller is well known throughout this section of Michigan. He was mayor of Harrisville and a civic leader in his county. He was guest of honor of a recent celebration attended by many of the more than 1500 children that he had delivered in his many years of practice as physician in his community.

STERNBERG APPOINTED PROSECUTOR

Judge Dehnke Names East Tawas Attorney to Fill Vacancy

Circuit Judge Herman Dehnke announced Wednesday that he had appointed T. George Sternberg as prosecuting attorney to fill the vacancy caused by the death of John A. Stewart. In announcing the appointment Judge Dehnke said:

"When the vacancy occurred, it soon developed that there were three schools of thought as to what should be done about filling it. One group felt that Mr. Sternberg who had been serving as Assisting Prosecuting Attorney, should finish out the term. Another, that in as much as Mr. Stewart had been elected on the Republican ticket, the appointment should go to Mr. Bowman, who in two Republican primaries had obtained a substantial number of votes for the office, and none of the other attorneys in the county caring to be considered for the position. A third group, not being satisfied to have either of those mentioned selected, and contending that it would serve the best interests of the county if another capable attorney could be persuaded to locate within its borders, urged the view that now was the logical time and opportunity to bring this about. Each of these opinions was supported by a substantial number of responsible citizens of integrity, whose judgment could not be summarily dismissed as being inspired by political motives."

"With reference to the third course suggested, viz. tending the appointment to an attorney of recognized standing not now located in the county, I took the position that it would not be good policy to do this unless a substantial proportion—more than a bare majority—both county officers and the members of the Board of Supervisors, should indicate that they favored it. These officers all have occasion to require the prosecuting attorney's counsel in the performance of their official duties, and, in addition, represent as accurate a cross section of the people of the county as a whole as could probably be obtained. Through the helpful co-operation of Sheriff Moran, as distributor and collector of ballots, an advisory secret poll of these officials was taken, which gave them an opportunity to indicate their preference with respect to the three suggestions mentioned."

"The result of the balloting indicated that there was not more than a bare majority which favored the third suggestion. As between the two resident attorneys mentioned, I have come to the conclusion that Mr. Sternberg should be appointed, because he has devoted much of his time and attention during the last two months to becoming familiar with the work of the office and with pending cases, and appointing another would involve considerable duplication of time and effort, which could hardly be justified in view of the fact that the appointment is only for the balance of the current year."

"I was aware, of course, that whatever I might do, the appointment would please one group of citizens, and disappoint two. I trust the latter may be able to derive some consolation from the reflection that their 'inning' is coming this fall."

Do You Know?

(By Dorothy Scott)
What is all the "do do" about "enriched" flours, breads and cereals? A short time ago government officials decided to do something about the alarming amount of highly refined foods being consumed by us Americans. We have become "logged" on a diet of meat, potatoes, bread, pie, cake and coffee. Full? Yes to be sure, for all these foods are rich and satisfying, for in spite of the fact that our hunger has been appeased, and our palate pleasantly entertained with delicious flavors, we are still suffering from a malady known as "hidden hunger" caused by the lack of minerals and vitamins in such a meal. We may not be conscious that this is true, and, indeed, may be well toward the half-way mark in life before these deficiencies catch up with us, but when they do—off to the doctor we go for a patching up job of "pink pills," and medicines, paid for in hard earned cash, all of which might have been avoided by "Eating The Right Food" every day.

To help us get more of these right elements, manufacturers have begun a program for "enriching" foods. By so doing they replace much of the mineral and vitamin content removed by refining processes.

Some flours now contain minerals and vitamins in government specified amounts, and if you will examine the flour sack label before you buy you can tell whether or not these minerals and vitamins are present. This flour tastes just the same as ordinary flour and may be used in just the same way.

Bakers, too, are making "enriched" breads for you. This bread may be made in one of three ways, with enriched flour, with plain white flour and special yeast preparations, or by a combination of these methods.

Refined cereals, such as farina and cream of wheat have been enriched so that they are inexpensive sources of important minerals and vitamins. Some other cereal products have been so prepared that they are also good sources of these elements, but remember that they are the most costly.

Another trick which we can do at home to enrich our own recipes is to incorporate, dry yeast or wheat germ. There is a new bulletin out which explains how this is done and gives recipes especially adapted to the use of dry yeast and wheat germ. It is called Vitamin-Rich Baked Products, CB 178. You can request a copy from our office.

Red Cross Activities

The war production quota of sewing and knitting is practically filled to meet the needs up to June 30, 1942, states John O. Moffatt, therefore our need is to train people in Iosco county for first aid, nutrition, home hygiene and disaster.

Classes in these subjects are being organized throughout the county and will be underway as soon as the necessary text books are obtained. Dr. Mitton will take charge of the first aid work, while R. G. Schreck will be disaster chairman. The Red Cross is directly responsible for the feeding, clothing and housing of victims during a disaster.

The total war fund raised in Iosco county, states Ruby Evans, treasurer, was $1965.70, of which $294.70 was retained for county use. The county quota was $1400.00.

Harry Studer, Red Cross Field Representative of the Mid-Western Branch office at St. Louis, Missouri, spent Monday and Tuesday in the county. He expressed satisfaction in the way work was progressing in Iosco county. He stated that Miss Elizabeth Harrison, who is in charge of re-distribution for this area, had said "The workmanship on articles made by women of Iosco county were superior." This was also borne out by the displays made by the Tawas City Unit and East Tawas Unit in the H. J. Keiser and Evans Furniture Co. store windows over the week end.

Mrs. O. W. Rowley, production chairman, says that 345 garments have been sent out and that at least 300 more are ready for shipment.

Java Calls for Increased Aid From Australia as Japs Intensify Attack; First War Deaths on American Soil Caused by 'Dud' Torpedo at Aruba

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

JAVA: Goal of Japs

The fall of Singapore represented the winning of a major victory for the Japanese, but tactically it was considered the moving of the western end of a Jap pincers movement directed not so much at India as at Java.

For the entire capture of the East Indies, and with it the enormous oil production vitally needed by Japan had, perforce, to be regarded as the major objective, with Java at its center.

This had been proved by the events that had followed the triumphal entry of the Malayan army into Singapore.

Intensified Japanese attacks had started on Bali and islands to the east of Java, as well as stronger movements to increase the Japanese hold on Sumatra, the invaders fanning out from Palembang, Sumatra's largest city.

Java's population of 40,000,000 had been told "the enemy is at our gates," and to prepare its defense "to the last ditch." At the same time Java called for increased aid from Australia, but it was not immediately apparent what Australia could or would do, embattled as it was in a belated effort to straighten out its own defenses.

Some commentators figured the Japanese occupation of Java, and with it control of all the Dutch East Indies as "a matter of days," while others thought it might be a long battle, and that substantial defense of the remainder of the East Indies was quite possible.

However that might be, Allied ranks would give a good deal to know which way the Japanese cat was planning to jump if, as and when the East Indies had fallen to the enemy.

Was it going to be an all-out offensive against India or were the Japs, conscious that an eventually winning Allied naval, air and land attack could be launched against them from Australia, to turn their forces toward Cape York?

Movements of U. S. ships and troops seemed to indicate that this country viewed the latter possibility as a probability, and that as a base for our future operations, Australia and New Zealand seemed to offer the best chance for a supply life-line.

VIERECK: Contemptuous Spy

As the Viereck trial had opened in Washington, the Nazi agent being tried for withholding information of his activities from the state department, he was painted as a "contemptuous spy" by William Power Maloney, prosecutor.

Maloney said Viereck had used the Congressional Record to propagandize the United States "according to orders from his Teutonic overlords" and stated that many long excerpts in the Record from the speeches of the late Senator Lundeen.

Testimony brought out that typical titles of books published by Flanders Hall in New Jersey (financed

SYLVESTER VIERECK
"Ordered by Teutonic Overlords," by Viereck) were "Lord Lothian Against Lord Lothian," "Seven Periods in Irish History" and "It Happened Again," all allegedly German propaganda.

"The 100 Families Who Rule the Empire," sensational book much used in propaganda, was published with funds from Munich, Maloney said the government would prove.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

London: Britain's revised war cabinet, reduced from nine to seven members, is a partial concession to popular demand. Sir Stafford Cripps, former ambassador to Moscow, was given a high place. He is lord privy seal and Churchill's deputy as leader of the house of commons.

Washington: Secretary Ickes said he was going to try a voluntary curtailment of the use of gasoline.

ARUBA: History Made

The first war deaths on American soil occurred at the Dutch island of Aruba shortly after American troops had arrived there to take over its defenses.

Two days after the arrival of these troops had been announced, German submarines attacked the harbor, sank or damaged seven tankers with a loss of 59 seamen, and then shelled the big Standard Oil refinery on shore.

American planes took the air, spotted the subs and reported afterward that they had reason to believe at least one of them was sent to the bottom.

Two days later, after the damage had been checked up and gone over, a dud torpedo, 18 feet long, was found on the harbor sands.

Immediately identified as a German torpedo, four Dutch officers were assigned to the delicate task of taking it apart.

In the midst of their work it exploded, killing them all. They were the first casualties on land in the American hemisphere.

In the meantime the torpedoes in the Atlantic were continuing heavy, including the first sinking of a Brazilian ship in the present war.

This was the liner Buarque, a combination freight and passenger ship, sent to the bottom off the coast of Virginia. The sinking was not immediately announced in Brazil, as it was the annual carnival time, and the government was afraid that serious rioting against Axis nationals might occur. The ship carried 74 in the crew and 11 passengers. Two were lost, 83 saved.

RESULTS: In Marshall Islands

When an assault force of U. S. cruisers, destroyers and aircraft carriers, commanded by Vice Admiral William F. Halsey, attacked

Vice Admiral William F. Halsey, commander of the U. S. naval force that carried out the brilliant raid on Japanese bases, as he looks over the charts on which he plotted the action against the Japs.

Japanese bases in the Gilbert and Marshall islands they caused substantial losses to the enemy: 38 airplanes, one converted aircraft carrier, one light cruiser, one destroyer, two submarines, two naval auxiliaries and three fleet oil tankers. Damaged "and perhaps destroyed" by U. S. attackers were three submarines, four auxiliary vessels and an old cruiser.

OIL: Both Sides Lose

The destruction of oil installations in the East Indies, which had been carried out well by the Dutch as each more or less important spot fell to the Japs, had been terrific at Palembang, where the entire countryside was covered with a pall of smoke when the refineries were blown up and wells blasted.

Yet it was a two-edged sword, the Dutch admitting that in about six months, with good fortune, the Japs could manage to repair much of the damage and begin to resupply themselves with oil.

And in the meantime the oil was lost to the Allied fleets, which had been fueling from the Dutch supplies.

And as oil was the principal vital necessity for which the Japs originally had started the war, and as a supply of it would conceivably permit them to continue fighting indefinitely, or at least until a major defeat by the Allied forces, the extent of the disaster in the Indies might be seen.

Honolulu: The U. S. destroyer Shaw, reported destroyed by the Japs at Pearl Harbor, was sufficiently repaired in two months to make the journey to a West Coast shipyard under her own power, and was being reconitioned there.

Washington: Sale of light airplanes had been restricted by WPB only to the army, navy and a few other specified purchasers.

Resigns From OCD

Mayris Chaney, professional dancer, whose appointment to the physical fitness program of the Office of Civilian Defense provoked congressional wrath, as she dictated her resignation to OCD Director James M. Landis. "Because I wish no further altercation which might cause disunity and delay," she wrote, "I wish to step aside if it is your will."

MAC ARTHUR: Increased Bombardment

Despite a number of strong appeals that General MacArthur be taken out of Luzon for a more important command, Washington had let it be known that no such move was afoot.

While new heroes were being made daily, the Congressional Medal of Honor having been voted to a Filipino mess sergeant, Washington asserted that it was the general's own wish to remain with his faithful troops as long as it was possible to carry on the good fight.

The mess sergeant was Jose Calugas, who received the highest award within the giving power of the government. The citation told how, when an American gun was put out of action, Calugas, not even in that outfit, ran 1,000 yards without orders, entirely beyond his duty, and under heavy enemy fire, to the gun.

Arrived there he called for volunteers, and himself organized a gun crew, put the gun back into action again, and continued at his new post as long as the battle continued.

The fall of Singapore had evidently released many Japanese planes for the battle of Luzon.

Washington, quizzed as to why air reinforcements were not being sent to Bataan, stated that "plenty of bombers" would have been sent "if we had any way of getting them there."

SUGAR: Big Printing Job

The government printing office had been presented its biggest job in history, the making of 700,000,000 sugar rationing cards, which should be in the public's hands on March 7.

Word was that the printing department was "well abreast of the task" and Price Administrator Henderson had been photographed looking over the first sheet actually to come from the presses.

While the GPO (another bit of the Washington alphabet) was in charge of the printing, it was farming out a lot of the presswork.

The job takes into consideration the fact that there are 131,000,000 people in the nation, and a book and application form is being printed for each.

The first big job was to get paper that would not make the job easy for counterfeiters.

It took six paper mills to do this part of the job. Three hundred and fifty printing firms bid on the presswork for the sugar cards. Twenty-three firms were finally selected.

RUMORS: Condemned by FDR

Praising to the skies a front-page cartoon in the Washington Star which excoriated the peddling of rumors which tended toward disunity, President Roosevelt had told his press conference that this was a dastardly practice and one in which the city of Washington itself was the worst offender.

Type of thing he meant, he said, included "wisecracks" like "Britain will fight to the last American" and arm-chair generalship like "We ought to get out of the South Pacific, we can't win there," and "Why help the Russians, they'll turn on us later."

The fall of Singapore and the escape of the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prince Eugen from Brest to Helgoland Bight, two major disasters that had befallen the British, had caused a storm of this.

It had been Churchill, very much on the spot, and facing the most severe press criticism of his career, who had coined the phrase "better a millstone around his neck and that he be cast into the sea" than to create disunity.

BILLIONS:

The biggest appropriation bill in history, 32 billions of dollars for the war, equivalent to all the money the United States put out during the First World War, lumped into a single bill for immediate use in this one, went through congress without a dissenting vote.

It was interesting that the plans of Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, to resign, and the fact that congress was willing to repeal its own pension legislation were sort of "by-products" of the vote.

It's Not Such a Long Way to Tipperary Now

An historical occasion—the vanguard of the great American Expeditionary force promised to Britain by President Roosevelt, lands at a North Ireland port. At left is a general view as first troops land. Right: Men of the first A.E.F. of World War II march through the streets of the unidentified Ulster city at which they landed, after safe voyage across the Atlantic. Inset: The duke of Abercorn, governor of Northern Ireland, raises his hand in salute as A.E.F. soldiers disembark.

It Blows Hot and Cold for Hitler's Hordes

South African troops of the British imperial forces make a close examination (left) of a huge German Mark 4 tank captured on the desert. Of especial interest is the huge short-barreled cannon mounted in the side of the tank. By way of contrast, picture at right gives some idea of the intense cold of the Russian-German battlefield. Red army machine gunners were photographed in the firing line as they slowly pressed the German hordes back.

Scanning Western Sky for Hostile Wings

For the first time since the days of the Civil war, the Pacific coast, the only part of the continental United States so designated, has become a theater of war. Throughout this district the armed forces are on a constant alert. Above photo, showing 155-mm. gun, illustrates the activity.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK—When we got into the First World War, Hank Gowdy, the ball player, walked into a recruiting station and asked "How the hell does a man get into this here war?" They let him in, right on the ground floor, as a private, and that was all there was to it. Eddie Grant of the Giants also walked in, just like that—and got killed at the Argonne. There's a plaque in his honor on the center field fence at the Polo Grounds.

This is beginning to look like a name war, as they might say on Broadway. Without disparagement to the enlisting celebrities of the theater, sports, and politics, one may note that many of them, innocently, no doubt, march to a fanfare of headlines and outbreaks of chevrons and no bands.

This started out to be a piece about an actor of such eminence that we thought word of his enlistment as a private would make a story. When we telephoned him the other morning, he said: "I won't talk and I don't want you to use my name."

That sounded like big news, the same being "anything new, strange or unexpected." We can't use his name, but he was persuaded to talk and here's his story:

"The minute I made a move to enlist, my press agent was on hand to shape up a story. I couldn't get it through his head that that wasn't the big idea. This war is grim, desperate, dirty business and it isn't going to be won by hoofers, box-fighters, actors, swing-band leaders, ball players or tennis players who happen to have top-billing in their particular lines.

"They'll help win it, and more power to them, but when they get their usual professional build-up, everything gets out of plumb. The big mob is going to get the idea that their favorite supermen will fix everything nicely at the end. That's one trouble with this country. We pay the price of admission and let the main cast of characters work out the plot.

"Showmanship is all right in its place, but in this case it distorts the picture, dangerously, I think. Just take a turn around the New York night spots if you want to get what I mean. They way they rate the boys by their rank, and the way the gossip columnists work, you'd think this war was being readied by Flo Ziegfeld.

"I am enlisting as a private and I expect to be overseas in a combat unit. I am dropping my stage name and using my own, so I expect to be something less than anonymous for a long time to come. If anybody fans up a story about me, it will be over my dead body. I'm no hero. I just want to help win this war."

A DISTINGUISHED landscape architect visions the post-war landscape and sees a jungle that will take a lot of landscaping if we hope to live in it. He is Charles W. Eliot, grandson of the famous president of Harvard, director of the National Resources Planning board at Washington.

Mr. Eliot says we are not "going back to normalcy" and that the chaos following the Axis downfall may be "almost indistinguishable from war." He insists, however, that we will keep on "going forward," and that we "propose to plan ahead."

He began the practice of his profession at Boston, after his graduation from Harvard in 1920. From 1924 through 1926, he was city planner for Arlington, Mass. From 1926 to 1930, he was director of planning for Washington, D. C., and its environs, as a member of the National Park and Planning commission. He has been a member of the National Resources board since 1935.

Mr. Eliot has extended his planning to the wider outreach of social and economic design. As an observer at the League of Nations crisis in 1923, he would perhaps now admit he was standing at a false dawn when he insisted the league as putting recalcitrants in place.

The British Tommy in Kipling's poem did a lot of gouching about "trimmin' the colonel's hedges" after a war. We're in for a much tougher job of trimming, thinks Mr. Eliot—if there is to be any tidy and nicely spaced world after this war.

STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

IF SUBMARINES were not actually torpedoing Allied ships just off the Atlantic coast I'd suspect that the newspaper headlines and stories announcing their presence were the work of a very smart press agent for Columbia Pictures. For their new picture, "The Invaders," tells of the attempted invasion of Canada, through the Gulf of St. Lawrence, by the crew of a German sub. Made in England, it stars Raymond Massey, Laurence Olivier and Leslie Howard, before ever a hostile periscope approached our coastline.

When Director Michael Powell was casting "The Invaders" he remembered a child actress, Glynis Johns, whom he'd seen four years ago in an English picture, "South Riding." He told her then that if he ever needed a child actress the job would be hers. He needed a young lady for "The Invaders," remembered that she might be one by now—and 18-year-old Glynis got the role.

Paramount reminds us that it's just about a year since Veronica Lake was introduced to the public; reminds us also that 1941 brought us other promising young actresses, notably Gene Tierney, Alexis Smith,

VERONICA LAKE

Maria Montez, Jane Russell and Kathryn Grayson, but that Veronica practically became a national institution, thanks to the one-eyed hair-do that made her famous.

"Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" put two new words into common usage—"pikilated" and "doodling." Long before that everybody was saying "Sez you," after they'd seen "What Price Glory?" Paramount very much hopes that their wacky domestic comedy, "Mr. and Mrs. Cugat," will do the same for "whiffle," meaning to exaggerate flagrantly; Betty Field does it in the picture.

Pat O'Brien's contract with 20th Century-Fox has been "amicably terminated," and he's going to co-star with George Raft in Universal's "Broadway." He signed with Fox a year ago to make two pictures; the first was abandoned, but he was paid, and he objected to the second one. So Fox let him go to Universal on loan-out, to wind up his contract.

Francia White, soprano star of the telephone hour, would hardly have time to accept an honorary title, she's that busy these days; is on a singing tour of 65 army camps, has 25 concert dates in as many cities—and still does her regular broadcasts.

Tay Garnett, for years one of the best motion picture producers and directors, has entered the radio field; the Tay Garnett Radio Productions give you "Three Sheets to the Wind" Sunday evenings on the NBC-Red network. John Wayne of the movie stars, Helga Moray, English stage and screen actress, plays opposite him. The series deals with romantic adventure against a world cruise background.

Rudy Vallee saw service in the last war as a third class seaman on a destroyer; had to add a couple of years to his real age to get in. Subsequently, after he became famous, the governor of Maine gave him the honorary title of lieutenant commander; recently he was made an honorary flying cadet. But he has the satisfaction of knowing that he got into the navy the first time the hard way.

Fourteen years ago this month the CBS team of "Amos 'n' Andy," then known as "Sam 'n' Henry," made their first personal appearance tour. The following March they adopted their present names and act—and you know what's been happening since then!

Suit Designs Feature Bright Color and Dressmaker Lines

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

BRIGHT colors, daring colors, clear colors will help the American woman express her confidence and courage. No matter how simple a suit may be, it's going to glorify color for all it's worth. The colors for suits are really quite breath-taking. Especially daring are the bright reds, the Kelly greens, light beige and golden yellow. Navy is highlighted with brass buttons, with snowy lingerie touches and with red-and-white accents.

And watch for violet shades! So many will be in evidence you will probably feel as if you are looking through violet colored glasses. There will be violet hats, violet boutonnières, violet gloves, suits of violet gabardine, wool mixtures and spun rayons. Just wait and see!

The use of soft styling, as well as the emphasis on daring use of color, was brought out forcefully at the style preview recently presented to capacity audiences at the Merchandise Mart in Chicago.

Designers have apparently taken great care to stay away from anything "mannish," for women will be more eager than ever, this spring, to look their feminine best. Dressmaker styles feature softly draped lines without sacrificing any of their tailored simplicity.

Shown to the right in the above illustration is a costume suit that is practical, functional and distinctly feminine. This is one of the new tie-belt fashions of the soft dressmaker type for which a decided preference is shown. Made of a stunning plaid, it has large patch pockets for convenience as well as "looks." The back is belted in smart fashion. These lovely plaids come in blue and red, beige and brown, and also in beige, brown and green.

Soldier blue is a far flung color this season. You will see it in hats, gloves, and, of course, in suits. The fitted reefer shown to the left in the above picture is of soldier blue. Smooth shoulders, comfortably cut armholes, loose sleeves and a high notched collar are smart style points. The novelty buttons are made of plastic overlaid with a gold design.

A chic dressmaker suit of all wool in a delectable pastel shade is shown in the center of the group pictured above. This suit has the set-in belt which distinguishes the majority of smart suits this spring. Note the detachable bengaline collar. Youthful collars of this type are predominant in casual neckwear fashions. A suit of this type invites all sorts of pretty accessories. It can be worn all day long, its "dressiness" depending on the accessories you wear. The blouse may be simple and casual, of the costume type, or one of the lingerie types.

Tuxedo Front

Fashion decrees that women must maintain the charm of femininity, whether they wear uniforms, or just plain workaday clothes, or more luxurious "off duty" apparel. Special emphasis is placed on coats to wear over new spring print frocks and the little one-piece classic dresses. The attractive model pictured above has the tuxedo revers destined for spring fashion triumphs. A fleecy, handsome wool in a beige shade known as "King" is used for this coat. Beige is to be a leading color this spring.

Wood and Plastics Make Novel Jewelry

Casual jewelry to wear with daytime clothes is apt to be made of most anything these days.

The most fascinating necklaces, bracelets and lapel ornaments are being made of shells. These are often delicately flower-like and tinted in realistic colors.

Ceramics and plastics are handled with deft workmanship. Medallions of plastic bear clusters of flowers in relief.

Wooden jewelry is shown in profusion, some delicately wrought of wood as thin and pliable as papyrus. Others, especially the long necklace worn with slacks, are created of chunky nuggets of wood painted in blazing colors.

One studio is turning out exquisite pieces made of fish scales, each tiny scale wired (not pasted) to form wee boutonnières.

Favorite of the Young—Bright Printed Jerkins

Two-piece dresses stressing the long-torso line are favorites with the younger set. The jerkin idea is also popular for it is, after all, in the long-torso class. One of the most popular ideas is the pleated skirt of black or navy crepe which is topped with a long-torso blouse made of a bright print. The newest versions have the surplice fastening.

Jersey Dirndl

The teen-age youngsters are enamored of the new full, flounced dirndls that are made of bizarre printed jersey. Suspender bodices are new and popular. The straps are embroidered in gay peasant fashion. You will love the new fichu shawls that are crocheted in lacy, open mesh and self-fringed by hand.

Army Brides

Thousands of weddings now taking place must necessarily be informal owing to the stress of time and circumstance. Suits are already being displayed for the war bride who must do without the traditional wedding.

TO YOUR Good Health

by DR. NATHAN S. DAVIS, III

STATE MEDICINE

During the past few years there has been much talk about "socialized medicine" or state medicine.

Dr. Nathan S. Davis III

It is an issue which every one should be interested in and which all should understand. Its final settlement will determine the quality of medical service that will be available, at any price, when you, your relatives and your friends become seriously ill.

In the United States, we have always had independent medical practice. The individual citizen has had the right to select and employ the services of any licensed practitioner of medicine in whom he has confidence.

Under this system of personal medical practice, miracles have been achieved in the conquering of disease.

In the short period of 150 years, in the United States, the average length of life of man has been nearly doubled.

The life expectancy of the newborn child was 35 years. It is now over 62 years.

During this period, typhoid fever has well nigh disappeared; smallpox has been subdued; diphtheria has almost been eliminated; pernicious anemia, tuberculosis, diabetes, and a score of lesser ailments have been brought under control.

American medicine gave to the United States, in the calendar year of 1940, the most favorable health record of its 150 years' history. It resulted—in 1940—in the highest general level of health and in the lowest death rate ever known for the United States, or for any comparable number of people anywhere in the world. It now appears that the record for 1941 will be even better.

In this country, there are some who seek to establish political control of medicine and of medical practice. It is granted that their motives are entirely honorable and wholly altruistic; that their arguments are plausible and alluring. But the record shows that the accomplishment of this purpose would hamper the medical profession in the performance of its duties and so break down the morale and the effectiveness of the physicians—the men who are responsible for the physical well-being of 130,000,000 men, women and children.

These proposals must be recognized for what they really are. They are moves toward the establishment of political control of medical services and the bureaucratic domination of both the patient and the doctor. They embody the menace of a step-by-step process of destruction of the system that has given this nation the highest level of health ever known; that has given its people the most resourcefulness, the most wealth, and the highest standard of living in the history of the world.

(From the brochure "Priceless Heritage," published by the National Physicians Committee for the Extension of Medical Service, Pittsfield Building, Chicago, Ill. On request a free copy will be mailed to you.)

"For the most part, American doctors are determinedly opposed to this drive for socialized medicine, and I must say that I am with them all the way. State medicine, in my opinion, bears disaster for doctor and patient alike. You can not pipe out medicine to the community as you do with steam heat."

English Physician, Author of "The Citadel."

Once more he was covered with confusion, and once more he stopped, and mopped his face.

Then he gathered his courage in both hands, and with a mighty effort he finished triumphantly: "And for three days and three nights Jonah was in the belly of the whale."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

If the bottom of the scouring powder can is dipped into hot paraffin it will not leave marks on bathroom fixtures.

Put some raisins in cranberry sauce, or jelly that you plan to serve with ham or fowl. Use about a third of a cupful to each two cups of berries. It is a tasty combination.

Don't let leaves and dirt pile up around exposed wood at the foundation level of the house. It encourages rot.

Here is a new way to use mincemeat. Spread a one-inch layer of mincemeat on a sheet of rich biscuit dough. Roll it and quickly fit it into a greased loaf pan. Bake 30 minutes and serve with lemon sauce.

When you fire your furnace, leave a section of glowing coal on top beside the new coal. It will ignite the gases coming off the green coal, make it burn better, and give more heat.

Things To Do In Case Of An Air Raid

Don't get excited! That's the first piece of advice to remember when the air raid sounds. One of the enemy's chief purposes in a raid is to create panic. Getting excited is helping the enemy, keeping cool is defeating it.

Blackout the window or windows in your refuge room with flat black paint or emergency window coverings made of heavy material of the kind usually found around a house. Be sure covering is heavy enough and big enough to cover window with an overlap.

A reserve supply of water is a good idea in case the main is burst and water is needed to fight fire. But don't draw large quantities unless instructed to do so by your Air Raid Warden. It may cause too great a drain on the supply or drop water pressure.

Don't shut off the water pipes leading into your cellar. You may need water for fire-fighting. Turn off the burners in your gas stove but don't tamper with main cutoff and pilot lights on gas appliances. Gas officials will tell you what to do.

Don't tamper with the wires! Don't turn out all the lights in the house at the main switch; there's danger if you are careless. Cover the windows with lightproof material in the room you plan to use.

Don't use the telephone after the alarm sounds. You may be tying up lines that are important for warden's reports, fire calls or other vital matters. It may be dull during an air raid, but if you're the chatty sort, save it.

Don't look out the windows! Johnnie is providing a swell signal for a bomber by peeping. Too, this is a dangerous place for him because of flying glass splinters which might well result from the concussion caused by a bomb falling nearby.

Don't turn in fire alarms during an air raid. Locate your Air Raid Warden and report to him. Remember that the fire department is on the job and doing everything it can to meet the emergency. If you want to help, join the Citizens Defense Corps.

Don't stand outdoors to watch for planes. It's dangerous out there. Get indoors and stay there until the All Clear sounds. If you're not near your own home, go to the nearest house, store or office building and ask them to take you in.

Money, or rather the lack of it, is the most common cause of marital troubles, according to Circuit Judge Paul D. Barnes of Miami, and he should know, for last year he handled 4,000 divorce cases. "Willingness to live within income is the most important thing I can say to young married couples," Judge Barnes said. "The tendency to exceed income seems to be a fashion of the times, but it's probably the most disastrous habit married couples can fall into."

The Very Rev. Edmund J. Reilly of a Brooklyn church found a note on the collection plate signed "Patrick Gunn," inviting the good man to step outside after mass for a fist fight. . . . Her explanation for such quaint conduct was simple. "All my life," she told the judge, "I've wanted to kick a cop."

CLEAR THE LINES FOR WAR CALLS!

Telephone lines are always busiest in mid-morning and mid-afternoon. Those are the "peak" periods for business calls. Right now, with the state and nation on a schedule of all-out production for war, this peak load is far greater than ever before. It takes a lot of telephone calls to make a tank or a bomber, and it's vitally important that such messages should not be delayed.

By doing your telephoning at off-peak hours and keeping your calls as short as possible, you'll improve your own service and give real help to America's effort in the war emergency.

Going into the gloom of dark cinema houses, people are likely to stumble, bump into others. Ushers with flashlights are nuisances; small lamps placed near the aisle floors illuminate only small areas. DEEP WATER ISLAND

by ALAN LEMAY

W.N.U.-RELEASE

INSTALLMENT SEVEN
THE STORY SO FAR: Karen Waterson, convinced by her lawyer, John Colt, that she has a claim to the island estate of her grandfather, Garrett Waterson, has come to Honolulu to attempt getting the property. In an effort to find out something about the Wayne family, now in control of Alakoa, the island, she accepts a date to go sailing with Richard Wayne or Tonga Dick as he is known throughout the South Pacific. Against her wishes he takes her to Alakoa and there they find that James Wayne, Dick's uncle and manager of the property, is very ill. Dick attempts to work out a compromise settlement with Karen but she refuses. The first night of their visit James Wayne is found dead. Next day Karen and Dick start back for Honolulu. On the way Dick attempts to explain to Karen the Waynes' interest in the island.

Now continue with the story.
Karen's next words were faintly contemptuous. "If you think that your brothers are capable of standing against such a man as John Colt—"

He shrugged impatiently. "Karen," he said, "I am the one that you are against now. Don't you know that?"

Karen faltered and her eyes dropped. But she said, "Yes, yes, of course. I suppose it always did have to come to that, in the end, didn't it?"

Suddenly Dick reached across the table and caught both her hands. "I don't want to go to war with you," he said. "I don't think you want to go to war with me. Do you?"

"It doesn't have to be war," Dick said. His voice had neither pride nor distance. "It can be anything you want to make it."

Suddenly he came to his feet, stepped around the little table; and though she sprang up he caught her in his arms. His face pressed hard against her blue jacket, so that she smelled tobacco smoke, and salt spray. He spoke to her almost inaudibly through the sudden tumble of her hair.

"I don't want your island. I don't want anything on the face of the sea, except one thing. You know what that is. I want you."

Her arms went around him then, and she clung to him. "I don't want the island either, Dick . . ."

"If it brought you into the Pacific, I guess Alakoa served its turn."

"You—you'll have to see John Colt," Karen said. "Somehow you have to fix it all with him."

She felt the breath go out of him. "Colt?" he repeated. "In God's name, why Colt?"

"Everything he has left has gone into backing me. He's the only reason I'm here."

His arms loosened, then, so that she swayed away from him; and he held her shoulders between his two hands.

"You feel so definitely tied to John Colt as that?"

"I have to stand by him, now—even now," Karen said. "I couldn't possibly do anything else."

She saw his eyes harden, and disengaged herself from his hands. "You hate John Colt so much?"

"My uncle would never have yielded one inch of Alakoa to John Colt," Tonga Dick said. He spoke slowly, but to Karen it must have seemed that his words carried an implacable finality. "Neither will I; and neither will my—brothers, while I live."

"I'm sorry," Karen said. "You mean?"

"There's nothing more to be said."

"It's war, then?"

"There—there doesn't seem to be any other way."

"Karen—if there's anything I can say—"

She was in possession of herself again. "You might say," Karen told him, "you might say to the Chinese boy that I would like a cup of black coffee."

He turned away from her, shouting to the mess boy in a furious bellows that shook the lamps in their gymbals.

As he did so a great lift of the sea swung a porthole of the Holokai high above the water; and through the thick streaming glass Karen saw distant lights.

Honolulu was rising, coming to them across the black water.

Karen Waterson, deeply fatigued, did not talk to John Colt that night; and the brilliant but peculiarly soft sunlight of the Islands was flooding the lanai of her suite when she next awoke.

Looking at the sunlight on the clean rainbow water, it was hard to remember a lightless and uneasy sea with its long miles whispering under a black rain. Her memory of Tonga Dick Wayne, though, remained distinct, as sharply detailed as if he had been with her in the sunlight. She could almost see him standing there, tall and balanced, his sea cap slapped jauntily any old place on his head—grinning, of course, but with a glint of blue steel in his eyes narrowed against the brightness of the sea.

Later, eating breakfast on her own lanai, she was only half finished when John Colt tapped at the door, and was let in.

Colt paced morosely back and forth along the railing of the lanai while Karen sat down to finish her breakfast. "You look as if the sailing did you good," he complained.

"You've worried me half to death," he told her now. Unim-

"It's war then?"

pressed, Karen buttered a roll; and at this John Colt looked annoyed. "I should think," he said, "that you'd have enough consideration—"

"John," Karen said, "James Wayne is dead."

"Well—I know it. It's in the papers. And this is going to—"

"I," Karen said, "was on Alakoa when he died."

"You must have had a very lovely time."

"Interesting," Karen put in. "Did you talk to James Wayne before he died?"

For a fraction of a moment Karen Waterson hesitated.

"No," she answered. "There was a long silence then, and Karen had a curious sense that time was rushing over them in long swells, as the green seas swept over the coral rocks."

"John," she said, "have you thought of compromise with the Waynes?"

"You talked with them?" he asked. "No one but Tonga Dick. And it's impossible to learn anything from him until he's ready to have you know."

"Then—"

"I'm speaking from impressions—vague impressions," Karen admitted. "I don't pretend to call it intuition—but you can call it what you want to. I think we ought to consider, very carefully, some sort of compromise with the Waynes."

If John Colt had ever feared Tonga Dick, he forgot it now. "Your case is sound and justifiable in every way—Island law being what it is, and the Island precedents what they are. I wouldn't be here now, and you wouldn't be here, if I thought there was any loophole in your case."

"You don't want to think of compromise? Not any compromise at all?"

"The best possible thing for us that the case be tried as it stands. The death of James Wayne, and the probate it implies, is a magnificent break—such a break as we could not have accomplished by our own efforts, nor hoped for. If ever anyone in the world had reason to play the cards as they lie, we have it now."

"I'm not so sure," Karen said. "The whole estate will be tied up," Colt exclaimed. "Any attempt by the Waynes to conceal assets will be blown to hell now! Everything will go into probate, and we'll get the whole works, intact. And with James Wayne dead, those helpless nephews of his will drive their attorneys crazy. What a picture! They'll run in circles like sheep."

"One of them won't," Karen said. "James Wayne was the only hard edge in the lot. He would have fought till he died; but he was the only one."

"There's one other," Karen said. "Who?"

"Tonga Dick."

"That youngster? Rubbish!"

"You're going to find that Tonga Dick Wayne is the hardest one of them all," Karen prophesied; "and perhaps the most resourceful."

Colt shrugged. "You'll find he doesn't count at all."

What Karen said then was totally on impulse. She had not planned to say it, had not meant to say it; but somehow the words were unexpectedly drawn out of her lips by the tension that had come between them.

"John," Karen said, "suppose I married Dick Wayne?"

John Colt did not start, nor turn; he stood still, looking at the sea. But by his very immobility Karen knew that John Colt had met something which dropped him where he stood.

After a moment he swung his wide shoulders toward her. "You mean to say—?" John Colt started to ask "you mean to say—?" His question died away. He swung his shoulders again, and once more stood looking out at the sea.

Colt seemed composed again as he next spoke. "You're in love with this Tonga Dick?"

"I don't know," Karen said. He stood looking at her, his hands deep in his pockets. His unaccustomed irresolution had a curious effect, strangely disturbing, as if it could mean nothing except that the whole basic foundation of the man was unexpectedly cracking up. John

Colt was like a mountain; he was like the sea. Perhaps it was a terrible thing that a slender girl, weighing not more than one hundred and twenty pounds, could break up John Colt.

Suddenly Karen knew the reason. This man had never made love to her, not by a word, not by so much as the pressure of a hand. But now—nothing could have told Karen more definitely than this moment told her that Colt would rather lose Alakoa than lose her. John Colt was in love with her, completely and utterly, without recourse and without doubt.

"What is it," John Colt said, "that this man has?"

Karen couldn't answer him. "Compromise," John Colt said queerly. "How could there be any compromise? If you weren't in the right—if you did not rightfully possess all this island—do you think I would have fooled with you?"

"What do you want me to do?"

"As far as I have anything to do with this," Colt said, "I'll never yield any Wayne one cent."

There was a finality in that; but instinctively Karen knew that it was not a finality that had anything to do with money. What had been a contest for an island had turned into a contest between two men for a girl. Neither one of them would be satisfied now with any settlement that would not be a complete shut-out for the other.

When she had comprehended that, Karen knew that she was in a trap. Perhaps already an unalterable obligation had committed her to something she had not foreseen.

CHAPTER VIII

Until now Karen Waterson had secretly looked forward to the first meeting of Tonga Dick Wayne and John Colt, as an event no sports-lover would wish to miss. Now, however, her mischievous spectator-interest was superseded by new elements. Not Alakoa, but Karen herself, had become the focus of disturbance; making her hope that she would be as far away as possible when the two should collide.

The inevitable meeting took place late that afternoon.

On the surface nothing could have seemed smoother or more casual. There was a tea dansant on the beach terrace of the hotel; Karen and John Colt sat at a table beside the dance floor. Neither of them saw Tonga Dick Wayne come strolling between the tables until he was standing there, beside Karen's chair.

Dick Wayne was wearing whites, which emphasized the depth of his tan; perhaps that was why he managed to look like the only true islander there in all that throng. He grinned down at them amiably from his considerable height.

"Hello, conspirators."

Karen said, "Hello, Dick." John Colt stood up automatically, but said nothing; there was no least change in his expression.

A miniature Filipino boy now came into evidence behind Dick Wayne; he was carrying a chair with which he must have followed Tonga Dick clear across the lanai through the crowd. Karen supposed that she would have to make the best of the thing, such as it was.

"Mr. Wayne, I'm not sure whether you've met Mr. Colt?"

"Not possibly the famous deep sea diver?" Dick asked.

"Much better known," Colt purred "as an inventive pastry cook."

"My mistake," Dick said.

Dick Wayne accepted a drink the Filipino boy handed him, and chuckled as he looked about him. "I see some Honolulu people here," he remarked. "Tomorrow it will be all over town that the Waynes' black sheep is very clubby with the enemy, and has probably sold out."

"Very amusing for you, I have no doubt," said John Colt.

"Yes," said Dick. "You look kind of sweet, Karen."

Colt made a movement in his chair as if he were about to rise.

"Don't go away," Dick said, not bothering to take his eyes from the dance floor. He sipped his drink reflectively, "I have news for you, Colt."

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

THE PARABLES BY THE SEA

LESSON TEXT—Mark 4:26-32; Matthew 13:44-50.
GOLDEN TEXT—Never man spake like this man.—John 7:46.

Parables as a means of conveying truth reached perfection in the hands of the Master Teacher, Jesus. Taking short stories of well-known events or facts from daily life, He presented profound truth in the most simple and attractive form.

Except for the parable of the four kinds of seed which He interpreted (Matt. 13:18-23), He left it to His listeners to make their own application. This has led to some difference of opinion, but in general the parables are received as excellent and helpful portions of God's Word.

In the two passages of Scripture assigned for our lesson, we have five parables, each with a distinctive message, yet together pointing out that there is a time of growth leading to harvest and judgment, and that our gracious God has at great cost provided a way of redemption.

I. Normal Growth Is Blessed (Mark 4:26-29)

God is patient. He awaits the normal, healthy, steady growth of the seed. Man is so impatient he must have forced growth, artificial stimulation, and even artificial ripening of the fruit.

The same attitude enters into his care of his children. They must get ahead in school beyond their years. They must get out and make a living long years before they have learned to make a life. Why not let them mature in the orderly, God-given way?

The same is true in the work of the church. There must be immediate "tangible" results or he will not give his support. Anyone with judgment knows that spiritual life takes time to develop, and that spiritual results cannot be judged by physical or tangible standards.

Seedtime, growing time, normal ripening, then harvest—that is God's order and it is a good one.

II. Abnormal Growth Is Dangerous (Mark 4:30-32)

Normally the mustard tree is a small plant, and when it grew into a great tree something abnormal had taken place. Birds (which always denote something unclean in Scripture) came to lodge in its branches.

Just so, Christianity was never intended to be made up of a nominally Christian world empire in which ungodly men (the dark birds of the evil one, Matt. 13:19) should find comfortable lodgment. Unfortunately, that is just what happened to Christianity in the so-called conquest of the Roman empire at the time of Constantine. The results were disastrous. The same principle is evident today in the control of much of the church by worldly men.

III. Redemption Is Costly (Matt. 13:44-46)

While it is true that our redemption is worth more than anything else in all the world and that the Christian would gladly set aside (or would he?) everything for Christ's sake, yet that does not fulfill the thought of this parable. After all, what has a sinner (whose own righteousness is described in Scripture as "filthy rags") to sell in order to obtain redemption? And is it for sale? (See Eph. 2:8.)

Obviously we here have the Saviour with His all-seeing eye and loving heart noting in fallen humanity the pearl of great price, His own Church. He then gives up all the glory He had with the Father, comes to the earth, and even becomes sin for us that He may bring us to God.

Salvation in Christ is no little thing, not something which was purchased with gold or silver, but with the precious blood of Christ. We ought to value it highly, and because we are bought with a price we ought always to glorify God (1 Cor. 6:20).

IV. Judgment Is Certain (Matt. 13:47-50)

All kinds of fish were in the net, and until the cord was drawn and the net emptied they looked much alike and enjoyed much the same standing as "citizens" of the sea. But when they faced the fisherman there was a quick division, and a final judgment upon the bad ones.

It is true that in God's kingdom (as it is now manifested in "mystery" in the Church) there are many who have come in by false profession, through carelessness of pastors or church officials, etc. They go through the motions, they look and act much like Christians (although even here they create questions in the minds of true followers of Christ). The day is coming, however, when they shall stand in judgment before the Christ whom they profess to love and follow. How terrible shall be their doom!

They need not wait in fear for that day. They may now, today, make right their relationship with God.

CHOLERA REMEDY NOW PERFECTED

Disease Costs Hog Raisers Twenty Millions Annually.

By W. H. BOYNTON
(Professor of Veterinary Science, University of California.)

Hog cholera is admittedly one of the most destructive of all animal diseases. The yearly cost of this disease has been estimated at between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000 in the United States alone. Within the past few years the author has developed at the University of California college of agriculture a new tissue vaccine which is expected to cut this annual cholera "tax" very substantially.

This vaccine is known as BTV and is now available from commercial companies. It has been used on more than 100,000 hogs on the Pacific coast and in the Middle West. BTV is composed of finely ground glandular tissues from hogs infected with cholera. These tissues are taken from the hogs at the height of the disease and then treated with eucalyptol. The result is a vaccine which cannot produce cholera in a hog but does produce an active immunity to the disease.

When BTV is used, vaccinated pigs can mingle with unvaccinated pigs without transmitting cholera to them. Furthermore, pigs harboring latent infections, such as pneumonia or enteritis, at the time of vaccination are not subject to the danger of flare-ups of these infections due to the lowering of body resistance. This danger of lowered resistance followed by death from some secondary infection has been one of the major drawbacks of the serum-virus method of vaccination for cholera.

The vaccine is not intended for pigs that already have cholera. It should be given only to swine that do not have the disease. Since a period of at least three weeks is required to build up a satisfactory immunity in the animals, pigs which have been exposed to cholera or are suspected of having it should be treated first with anti-cholera serum to make sure that the infection is checked. Later they can be given the tissue vaccine.

At present this vaccine is not recommended for garbage-fed pigs, although successful experimental results have been obtained by administering the vaccine before and after weaning.

AGRICULTURE IN INDUSTRY

By Florence C. Weed

(This is one of a series of articles showing how farm products are finding an important market in industry.)

Research on Hemp

As soon as science can produce a hemp plant free from a narcotic drug, this crop will offer a good market for farmers. Unfortunately the plant, in its present form, produces the narcotic, marihuana. The misuse of this drug has caused the passage of the federal marihuana act which forbids the growing of hemp except under federal supervision.

Because of the restrictions, less than 1,000 tons annually are grown in this country although in former years the growing of hemp fiber was a flourishing industry. In 1859, Kentucky alone produced 75,000 tons.

The word "hemp" is sometimes applied to about three different fiber plants including manila hemp and sisal hemp. The common variety grows well in the United States, attaining a height of 3 to 20 feet and sometimes yielding 800 to 1,000 pounds of fiber per acre. The plant is cut by machine and allowed to dew-ret on the ground. Then it is collected in stacks and sold to the hemp mill. The mill dries the stalk and removes the fiber in a "hemp brake."

Cordage, which can be made from hemp fiber, is one of the urgent needs of the defense program. Hemp can also be used in making cigarette paper and this commercial outlet has already been opened. From the seed a useful oil can be extracted and when mixed with other seeds the hemp can be utilized as bird food.

Research is already under way to find a variety of hemp that will contain only a small amount of marihuana. This work appears promising since some plants have been found to produce only small quantities of the resin.

Farm Notes

Crops that require cool and moist conditions in storage are the root crops, carrots, salsify, parsnips, turnips, rutabagas, and winter radishes.

Faced with a declining supply of available workers, farmers have been able to keep their hired men this past fall only by sharply increasing farm wage rates.

SHOP NEWS
The shop boys are going to make 50 model airplanes for the United States Army. The planes will be used in teaching the cadets to recognize the different types of planes. The Army furnishes the plans and each plane must be perfectly proportioned.
The models will be cut from solid planks of white pine. The models are to be solid.

In addition to the planes several boys are making table lamps on the lathe while others are making neck-tie hangers, initials, letter holders and corner statutes.

HOME ECONOMICS
The Home Economics girls are beginning their clothing work. It will include color selections, line, design and actual construction of a garment.
Some of the girls will work with cotton while others will work with rayon and wool. The fabric they select and work upon will depend upon their previous experience. After they finish the garment they will study the care of the garment they have made.

The sewing machine has been refinished and repaired by the shop boys and it works very well.

The ninth graders cleaned the home economics room.

THE GRADES
Three of the third and fourth grade pupils had birthdays last week. They were Donna Bubltz, Bruce Leslie and Francis Yanna. Friday afternoon Francis brought a sucker for each one in the room. We thank him for the treat.

At the regular meeting of their Victory Club last Friday afternoon the members decided to use a pin with the word "Victory" on it as a badge for each member. Donna thought she could get the pins.

Some of the club members read Washington pieces to us and told stories of him at the close of our meeting. We enjoyed them all.

The fifth and sixth grades are selling seals for Starr Commonwealth for boys at Albion, Michigan. The boy and girl selling the most seals will get a prize. Joyce Montgomery leads for the girls and Richard Berube for the boys.

Two boys, Charles Luce and Donald Britting, made a very beautiful poster on the Revolutionary War. It contains a winter scene. Charles cut each garment from separate pieces of colored paper and mounted them upon the small figures.

The students in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades are preparing an operetta under the direction of Mr. Pollycutt.

The seventh graders are going to have a test in history covering the Industrial Revolution. In English they are finding how words work, or parts of speech.

The eighth graders took the lead in the sale of Defense Stamps last week with a total sale of $18.15.

In the ninth grade the English group are concentrating on their declamations and Julius Caesar is just in the background. The biology class is learning how to trace the blood stream to any part or parts of the body. They find it quite difficult. The group in algebra I has been slowly diminishing until there are only 10 left in the group.

The tenth graders are planning a party for March 4. It will be held at Silver Valley.

The eleventh graders are writing orations or memorizing dramatic declamations. They have started practicing their play, "Spooky Tavern."

The seniors are planning a Saint Patrick Tea. On Wednesday they typed for the Red Cross and ran off copies on the ditto machine.

solids, if this is done successfully a big step will certainly have been taken to relieve "hidden hunger" because statistics show that on the average each person eats 116 pounds of sugar every year—that means 3/4 of a cup every day, which is a lot of sugar. It is too much, in fact, because the only food value it contributes is calories at the rate of 612 per 3/4 cup. This means you already have 3/4 of the calories intake needed for the day, and have not yet begun to supply the essentials, such as protein, calcium, iron, and vitamins. If you eat enough more to get these you will have more calories than you need and probably won't like that. A safeguard to follow the little slogan, "Eat the foods you need first, and any sweets you desire afterward."

A survey made in Iosco county recently shows some interesting facts about the use of enriched products.
About 65% of the white bread used is "enriched," while only one loaf of whole-grain is used to each four or five of white bread. Only 30%-40% of the flour used for home baking purposes is "enriched" flour. Actually the price range of "enriched" flours is only slightly higher than plain flour, and when the difference is divided by the number of pounds or cups in the sack, you almost lose sight of it, but the vitamins and minerals are still there to help you be strong and healthy.

Let us be more observing in reading labels, and select that which gives us the greater return in food values for money spent.

Spring Conditioning that's TAILORED TO YOUR CAR!

Come in Now for a FREE Inspection by Authorized Factory-Trained Mechanics that Will Show Exactly what Attention YOUR Car Needs.

WANT LONGER TIRE LIFE? When switching tires, do you remember the spare? If you'll let us switch your tires, working the spare in where it can best be used, each tire out of the five you have will be on the road only four-fifths as much as usual. Net result: Longer life from the same full set.

GOOD BRAKES MEAN SAFETY PLUS. Brakes ought to be kept in proper adjustment for safety reasons alone. Beyond that, brakes that are "out" can also result in unnecessarily increased tire wear. For best results, let Buick men adjust your Buick brakes to Buick factory specifications.

LICK-AND-A-PROMISE spring conditioning won't do this year, mister!

Your whole car lasts longer when it is conditioned as a unit—especially when trained Buick specialists do the job.

You've got something more important to think about than just changing oil and grease—you've got a whole car that will have to see you through the duration, and you can't afford to overlook any part of it.

So we write your spring conditioning ticket to fit your car's needs—not to make up a ready-made "package" according to average requirements.

That's why Buick spring service is tailored to your own particular car.

The cost is no higher than for a comparably good job anywhere else. It's actually lower in the long run, because it pays to have a job done right.

We change oil and grease in the regular way, of course—we check batteries, cooling systems, wheel alignment and other routine matters.

Drop in for a FREE check-up by our authorized factory-trained mechanics and let us detail the service your car should have this spring.
