FORMER TAWAS CITY MAN ELECTED M. E. A. HEAD

Clean-Up Day April 23

Superintendent Stephen S. Nisbet of the local public school was elected president of the Michigan Education Association at the annual meeting of the organization held in Lansing the latter part of last week. He defeated Thomas Babcock of Mt. Clemens by a vote of 110 to 70. Mr. Nisbet's election was not unexpected among school men as he has been a leader in the MEA for several years and for the past four years has been especially active in the group's legislative program.

Perhaps the most effective work the new president has done in the state organization was his activity in behalf of the smaller schools as opposed to those of the metropolitan areas. For several years the formula by which the state school moneys were distributed to the school districts. Mr. Nisbet, with a group of superintendents of schools similar to the local school, organized the non-metropolitan district school men and the matter was fought out before the legislature. The bill that was passed at the last legislative session and which is now in effect is largely the work of Mr. Nisbet and his associates and by its formula the state school aid moneys are more equitably distributed.

In the election last week Mr. Nisbet was supported by the representatives of the out-state school teachers and his opponent was the candidate of those from the larger districts. The popularity of the new president doubtless also contributed to his election.

Mr. Nisbet's elevation to the MEA presidency is the climax of a number of years of activity in the work of the state organization. For two years he served as president of the Newaygo-Lake district of the MEA after its organization; about five years ago, also served as chairman of the district's legislative committee. He was chairman of the 4th Region of (Turn to No. 1 Back Page)

63 PEOPLE ATTEND C.O.F.C. LUNCHEON

Aldrich Gives Address on Our Forest Fire Problems

The Hotel Barnes was the scene of a fine luncheon Wednesday noon. Sixty-three citizens were in attendance. They included members of the Chambers of Commerce of Tawas City and East Tawas, members of the Board of Supervisors, County Road Commission, County Welfare Department, Conservation Officers and others.

H. N. Butler acted as toastmaster and introduced the various groups represented and visiting guests. Mike Nunn then introduced Harry L. Aldrich, regional supervisor, Department of Conservation, who gave the principal address. His talk was on fire prevention in our forest lands. He emphasized the necessity of co-operation on the part of the citizens and invited them to volunteer for service as fire fighters. Anyone wishing to volunteer, may apply to Conservation Officer Arthur Leitz or any place selling hunting and fishing licenses, he said. Key men will be selected at strategic points so that they can get their crews to the fires in the least possible time.

There are 74 fire towers in the area he said. Fifty-six are equipped with radio communication. These, coupled with the towers in National Forest, give an excellent system of fire prevention.

The address was timely because the fire hazards in our woodlands are increasing rapidly with the approaching summer. Every citizen present realized how grave the problem appears. Aldrich was accompanied here by John Winton, district conservation supervisor.

Long Expected Defeat on Bataan Cited as Heaviest Single Reverse; Labor Leaders Present Solid Front To Keep Production at High Peak

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Chiefs of the A.F.L. and C.I.O., appearing together on a public platform for the first time since the split in labor's ranks in 1936. William Green, left, president of the A.F.L., and Philip Murray, president of the C.I.O., are shown shaking hands, symbolizing the national labor unity which they hope to create. Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, looks on.

BATAAN:

The Curtain Falls

When the gallant stand of American and Filipino forces came to an end on Bataan, the nation recorded the heaviest reversal ever suffered by an American force in a single engagement with a foreign foe.

News of the fall of Bataan made blacker still when Secretary of War Stimson disclosed that 36,583 valiant defenders, exhausted by short rations, disease and lack of relief, were overwhelmed by a numerically superior enemy. The closing chapter of the Bataan battle found the defenders lacking in air power, and completely battered by ever-increasing waves of fresh, well-equipped enemy troops and planes. Stimson declined to estimate the number of Jap troops employed in the final drive against Lieut. Gen. Wainwright's men. It had been estimated that approximately 220,000 Japs were used in the Philippine campaign.

The story of the last-ditch stand on Luzon island is one of the most heroic in history.

On December 7, Jap bombers first struck at Luzon. Air assaults were followed in the first few weeks by Jap troop landings at five locations in the Islands. Pushing on Manila from north and south, they drove the greatly outnumbered defenders back, bombing Manila after it had been declared an open city. The Japs entered Cavite naval base and Manila on January 2. American and Filipino troops withdrew toward Bataan, beginning their history-making stand. Ten days later the Japanese launched a heavy frontal attack on the Bataan defenders, but were repulsed. For weeks the battle surged back and forth.

Early in March Lieut. Gen. Masaharu Homma, the Japanese commander, committed suicide as a result of his failure to crush MacArthur. He was succeeded by Lieut. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita. A few days later MacArthur was ordered to Australia and was replaced by Wainwright.

March was comparatively quiet, and attacks on March 28 and April 2 were repulsed. On April 4 the Japs began the all-out drive.

Although it was a stunning defeat, one military correspondent declared that the defense of Bataan has meant "prodigious butchery in Japanese lives," severe air and naval losses to the Japs. It also retarded the advance to Australia until that commonwealth was able to better equip itself for war.

BURMA:

No Side-Issue

More and more observers were inclined to believe the Burmese campaign of the Japanese to be a major one, and not just a side-issue with Australia the main target.

Whether it was resistance of American airmen and navy men, or whether it was the heavy rainfall, things had been much quieter off Australia, while picking up speed in the more western Pacific areas.

The British had been forced to back-pedal again in Burma, drawing ever closer to their Chinese allies under American General Stilwell in the north. That they were leaving important territory was revealed by the prospect that they had destroyed oil and cement properties before withdrawing.

The British troops were described as being outnumbered 3 to 1 on the ground and 10 to 1 in the air.

The evacuation of Rangoon, followed by the British withdrawal up the Irrawaddy river were believed to have cleared the way for a drive by the Japs toward Akyab and Calcutta, along the eastern shore of the Bay of Bengal.

Few believed the Japanese had the manpower to attempt a real invasion of India, but certain it was that they were heading that way more powerfully than they were moving into Australia.

LABOR:

United Front

The A.F.L. and C.I.O. leaders, for the first time since 1936, had gotten together on the same platform at Pittsburgh, had pledged themselves to an unselfish and complete war effort, and to produce all the things America needed for victory.

This united front was presented at the time when labor was on the spot because of the effort in the congress to force the administration to abandon the 40 hour week.

President Roosevelt had considerably clarified the issue when he came out with a new plan, which let the hat sit on its proper spot. To prevent the proposed 48 hour week from being used as a wage-cutting plan, he asked labor to consider a freezing of wages at present levels on the basis of a 48 hour week (which would give workers their overtime for the duration) but to withdraw their demands for double time for Sundays and holidays.

One of the C.I.O. groups, the United Automobile Workers, at the same moment had foregone the extra pay except when these days constitute a sixth or seventh working day, which was a partial meeting of the President's idea.

The congress, it was thought, might be willing to go along with this plan, and certainly labor would have no objection, particularly if it carried what Mr. Roosevelt hinted it would, a formal recognition of the 40-hour principal.

The President's plan was to have labor recognize the need of 48 hours of work, to have all workers carry on for 40 hours at regular pay, permit labor to work one more day at time and a half, but not to permit the seventh day under any circumstances.

William Green, labor leader of the A.F.L., said labor was in accord with this plan.

RUSSIANS:

Air Victories

Claiming more than 400 German planes shot down on the east front in the period of a little more than a week, the Russians had given figures indicating that the Nazi spring drive in the air was well under way, but that the British and American planes, added to the Russians' own, were taking a terrific toll.

The British R.A.F. had been co-operating on the other side of the front by bombing German supply industries, and at the same time had estimated that their bombing attacks, carried out by from 300 to 400 big planes at a time, had destroyed the supplies for five divisions.

The Russians, despite the setting in of the spring thaw, which had immobilized both sides to a greater or less degree, were still on the offensive, with Berlin admitting now and then that the Russians had broken through at several points.

The Red air force's biggest bag of planes had run to more than 100 on a single day—in fact on two days they had claimed 221.

Some of the heaviest aerial activity had been over the port of Murmansk, on one day 200 planes of the Russians and the Germans having engaged in dogfights over the harbor, while below them American and British supplies were being unloaded.

NEW DEAL:

The New Deal, despite some opposition here and there, notably in the fields of taxation, profits and labor, was winning victories.

Particularly sweet to the White House was the result of the fight over a senate effort to set a schedule for profits on war contracts.

Many holders of contracts were returning some excess profits, and arrangements had been made to tax them out of most of such money, whether paid to employees as bonuses or not.

INDIA: Indecision Precedes Action

Continuing a "maybe we'll do it and maybe we won't" attitude, India had kept Sir Stafford Cripps and his associates in Churchill's mission on the anxious seat before they finally evinced a willingness to accept the projected plan for national government for India.

At the same time the powerful Pandit Nehru, past president of the All-India congress, had temporized once more with the announcement that India would resist invasion by the Japanese, "or by any other invader."

The chronology of the whole affair showed its heavy and bitter complexity. Britain, prior to the war, had offered India dominion status, then had renewed this offer during the early days of warfare, and when Sir Stafford Cripps was sent there the offer had remained the same.

The finally presented plan called for Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell to be supreme commander for conduct of the war under an Indian war cabinet, whose defense minister would be an Indian. Nehru had been scheduled to take the defense portfolio.

The sole point which had kept negotiations alive had been the Indians' admission that with the enemy at their gates, it was a bad time to be quarreling with Mother England, a potentially powerful partner in the defense of India.

Mohammed Sli Jinnah, leader of 70,000,000 Moslems, complicated the issue by contending that his people were ready to fight if Britain would give them a separate freedom.

That tangled the whole issue, for Nehru, when Britain said the post-war freedom would be coupled with a provision for certain autonomous states, hotly and angrily declared:

"India has been united in slavery, and we'll be united in freedom."

OIL:

By Inland Route

It had seemed that perhaps the famous yachts' paradise, the inland waterway from Philadelphia to Florida, might become one of the main eastern arteries of trade.

Cartoonists showed small boats sailing up and down inside a strip of protective land while the U-boat skippers gnashed their teeth outside, unable to get at them.

Joseph Eastman, head of the defense transportation, said he had under consideration a plan to hurl a fleet of dredges into that part of the waterway between Jacksonville and southern points, to increase its depth from 6 to 11 feet.

The 11-foot depth exists all the way from Jacksonville north. President Roosevelt said there are plenty of small shipyards which could build wooden barges at a fast rate to provide more bottoms for the sugar, gasoline and oil trade up and down the eastern coast.

They have under consideration just such a plan, he said.

SALES TAX:

Now Opposed

President Roosevelt had revealed that even though the treasury wants to raise seven and a half billions by various income and excise levies, he, personally, is opposed to the sales tax.

In this stand he had been joined by union labor throughout the country, the workers believing the sales tax unfair, as it would fall most heavily on the very poor, and in a lesser degree in proportion to income on upward along the scale of living ladder.

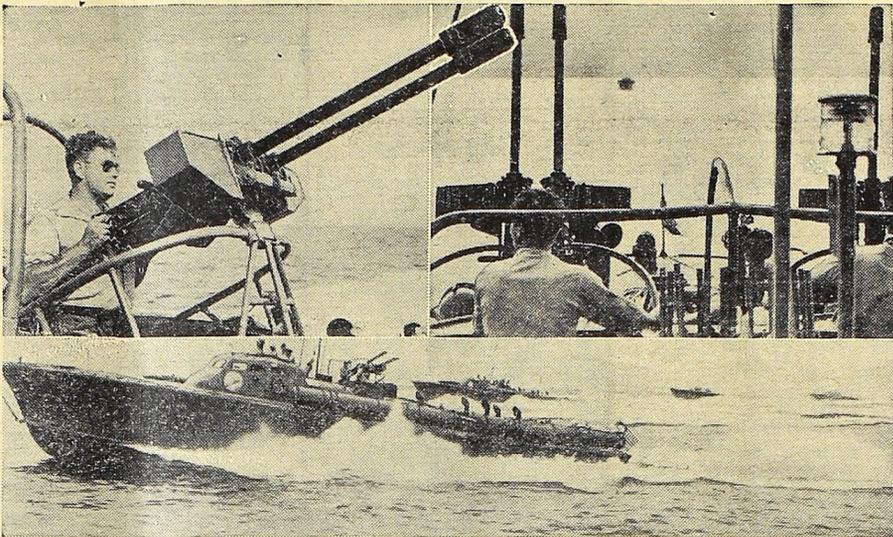

Many congressmen, however, were reporting that mail from their constituents showed a growing favorable reaction to the general sales tax on account of its huge potential yield, and its more or less "painless" character, in that it would be paid by the people a few cents here and a few dollars there—without the annual shattering blow of an income levy.

MISCELLANY:

Washington: The War Production board has cut gasoline deliveries to filling stations in the East and West coast curtailment areas from 80 per cent to 66 per cent of the amounts received previously.

New York: President Roosevelt's navy lieutenant son, Franklin Junior, had been down with a severe case of bronchitis at a naval hospital.

These are the first pictures to show the maneuvers of the patrol-torpedo (PT) fleet that is guarding the Panama canal with the co-operation of the army and air forces. In picture at left Charles Kiefer keeps a tight rein on a .50 caliber anti-aircraft gun aboard the command boat of the mosquito fleet. Upper right: A gunner vigilantly scans sea and sky for the approach of enemy forces. Below: The fast traveling 77-footers of the navy skim through the sea looking for trouble.

Horse Finds Place in U. S. War Effort

The horse is not yet "through," as far as war is concerned, his value having been demonstrated this winter on the Russian front. These pictures show two phases of cavalry action in a day's training of the cavalry soldiers stationed at Fort Bliss, Texas. Above, the horse artillery is awaiting the command to move forward to their gun positions. Below, men are demonstrating the speed at which they ride their horses.

All Ready to Dynamite Bridge and Japs

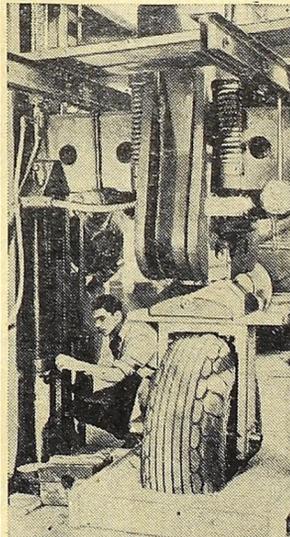

This photograph was taken somewhere in the embattled Philippine Islands. It shows Filipino soldiers who are determined to see that the bridge is completely destroyed, if necessary. The soldier in the foreground is distributing sticks of dynamite to be placed all over the bridge to play havoc with Jap troops, if and when they come.

Danny's Great-Great-Grandparents

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features—WNU Service.)

NEW YORK.—For about five years, young John Earl Baker had probably the most unexciting job in the world. He was a clerk for the Interstate Commerce Commission, to-taled up statistics for the census bureau and was statistician for the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers.

Back From Burma Road, Authority Is Hopeful of China

Then he got a sudden case of hot-foot. He quit herding figures and was off to China as adviser to the ministry of communications. For 30 years, he has been battling plague, famine, pestilence, social disorder and the feudal hang-over of past centuries, as China threw off the Manchus and moved into the modern world. Directly or indirectly, he probably has saved as many human lives as any other man living.

The modern world seems to be mainly an extension of the troubles Dr. Baker has seen. Arriving in New York on a ship from the Pacific war zone, he is calmly hopeful about China, as always, and says that although the rail end of the Burma road is closed, the road is still open, and the Chinese have enough goods stored up to keep traffic moving for two years.

He knows a lot about this. It was just a year ago that he was made director general of the Burma Road Construction company—a drab name for one of the most stirring exploits in history. Dr. Baker cherishes the Order of the Bountiful Harvest and the Order of the Beautiful Jade, conferred upon him by the grateful Chinese. He is off to his home in Mill Valley, Calif.

From his home in Eagle, Wis., Dr. Baker went to the University of Wisconsin, taught country school for several years and, during his years in government service qualified as a specialist on fiduciary problems of railway management. In China, he found not only a tangle of unrelated railroads, showed in by various quarreling exploiters, but a morass of human misery which enlisted him for three decades in his fight against starvation, in which railroad organization was only a detail. As director of the American Red Cross famine relief in 1920, he got in training for his Burma road job by building 850 miles of railroad to get wheat to famine victims.

With his Chinese decorations, Dr. Baker takes back with him to Mill Valley an honorary degree from his alma mater. He is 61 years old, big, vigorous and handsome.

ARMY research engineers usually aren't around when the band begins to play and they don't often get medals and headlines, although they are right in the thick of the toughest fighting of a machine-age war. Their sharp pencils, spearing a new formula, may damage the enemy more than any 16-inch gun.

Strikes at Enemy With Bar of Non-Melting Chocolate

Here's one of them, studiously inconspicuous in a Washington cubbyhole for many years, one Lieut. Col. Paul T. Logan, casually in the news in a little item from Harrisburg, Pa., announcing that some big factories were taking up large-scale manufacture of his new non-melting chocolate bar, for the army. That might sound like boondoggling, but, back-trailing the colonel two or three years, you find that the chocolate bar is the army's proven solution for getting top mileage and staying power for jungle fighting in tropical countries.

The colonel quietly turned in his chocolate bar in October, 1939, after several years of research and experiment. It is made of raw oat flour, bitter chocolate, cacao fat, sugar and skimmed milk, with a small dash of vanilla. It doesn't sound like food for heroes, but army records show that just a few bars of it will run a soldier until he has to get his shoes half-soled. Also, soldiers like it.

People who have been to Iowa, or who have read Phil Stong's books, know that that's where real connoisseurs of bulk food come from—as did Colonel Logan. After entering the army from civilian life, he was graduated in the infantry school of officers' course in 1926, from the Q.M.C. subsistence school in 1932, and in 1939 from the Army Industrial college. The non-melting chocolate bar idea is one of Colonel Logan's many adventures in forethought when jungle fighting seemed quite remote.

Cool and Decorative—Salad-Muffin Luncheon
(See Recipes Below)

Spring Luncheons

As spring spreads its fragrance and gayety once more across the days, do your moods turn to thoughts of exquisite, gracious luncheons? Yes, to be sure, they do. You get lovely visions of picture-plate luncheons, crispy green salads, tiny, moist sandwiches, the tinkle of china on cool, crisply laundered cloths, centerpieces of delicate flowers.

But this year's luncheons are different from last year's. The plates are pictures to behold, true, but the menus are kind to purse strings and food shortages.

A bowl of colorful greens, curly endive, crisp lettuce, tossed together with grapefruit and orange sections with red slivers of strawberries are perfect with these muffins and all you would want for luncheon:

- *Molasses Nut Muffins. (Makes 24 small or 18 large)
- 3 tablespoons butter
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1½ cups flour
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon ginger
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 cup chopped Brazil nuts
- ½ cup milk
- ½ cup pure, dark molasses

Cream butter, stir in sugar gradually and cream together. Stir in well-beaten egg and blend. Mix and sift flour with spices, salt, soda and baking powder, then mix in Brazil nuts. Add alternately with milk and molasses to the first mixture. Bake in well-greased muffin pans in moderate (350-degree) oven 25 minutes.

You can have a veritable smorgasbord on your main luncheon plate if you carry out the general idea by serving several different kinds of salads in frilly lettuce cups. Pick out some combinations you like best from these ideas here:

- *Chicken Salad. (Serves 8)
- 2 cups diced, cooked chicken
- 1 cup finely chopped celery
- 1 cup halved, seeded grapes
- ½ cup toasted pecans
- ½ cup mayonnaise

Combine all ingredients lightly. Chill, add mayonnaise and toss lightly together.

- *Fruit Salad. (Serves 8)
 - 4 thick slices grapefruit
 - 4 thick slices oranges
 - 4 slices pineapple
 - 8 whole apricots
 - 1 small package cream cheese
- Pare oranges and grapefruit. Cut into slices. Cut pineapple, oranges and grapefruit slices into halves. Arrange in a fan shape on curly endive or lettuce. Stuff apricots with cream cheese and place at lower edge of the fan.

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: Latest reports reaching me assure us that: we have enough black pepper and most spices for at least two years. Coffee and cocoa supplies are adequate from South America, and tea stocks are still good.

Domestic fats and oils will have to replace imported palm and coconut oils used for frying fats, soaps and oleomargarines, and homemakers must conserve all soaps and frying fats carefully.

Tin will be available for canning foods that cannot be preserved in other ways, but you will be wise homemakers if you learn to use dried fruits properly, and can from your own defense gardens this summer. Be kind to your kitchen equipment and gadgets made out of tin, for there will be no more after that is used.

Pineapple is still being planted and shipped to the mainland, and no serious shortage is yet noticeable.

This Week's Menu

- Guest Luncheon
- Assorted Salad Plate:
- *Chicken Salad
- *Fruit Salad
- *Egg Salad in Tomato Cups
- *Molasses-Nut Muffins or
- *Cheese Rings
- Coffee or Tea
- *Recipes Given.

*Egg Salad in Tomato Cups. (Serves 4)

- 4 medium sized tomatoes
- 1 package cream cheese
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped green onion
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
- ½ medium sized cucumber, chopped
- 3 hard cooked eggs, chopped
- ¼ cup mayonnaise

Wash tomatoes, peel. Slice off top, and scoop out the center. Toss the other ingredients lightly together and fill the tomato cups. Chill well and serve on lettuce.

All three of the salads given can be served on one individual platter. Arrange them attractively, a scoop of the chicken salad, a fan of fruit salad, and then the tomato cups. Your platter is complete for a luncheon and a very pretty sight to behold! A hot muffin to accompany and a fragrant cup of tea or coffee completes the luncheon.

On the other hand, if you prefer salad bowls which the guests will serve themselves, here are ideas:

Greens: chunks of lettuce, watercress, slivered green onions, radishes.

Oranges: Use sections on a bed of curly endive or curly garden lettuce, with raspberries or strawberries for color.

Vegetables: Cooked green beans in lengthwise slices, carrots, raw or cooked, in slivers, cooked limas, chopped ham.

Fruits: Beds of lettuce, lengthwise slices of bananas, berries in season, cheese balls dipped in chopped nuts.

Dressing makes an important addition to salad, and many times this is left to your own preference. or, if you like, have the choice of two permitted for your guests. Save sugar in the little ways, is our motto, so here is one way to do it. This dressing uses molasses for sweetness.

- Piquant French Dressing.
- ½ cup salad
- ¼ cup vinegar
- ¼ cup chili sauce
- ¼ cup pure, dark molasses
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 tablespoon onion, grated

Mix all ingredients together and beat thoroughly.

When you invite your friends over for salad and rolls for these luncheons, this may seem like so little, but it's guaranteed to make a hit if you do the little details up right. Have the salads crisp and cool and well blended. If having rolls, these should be piping hot for contrast. If you don't feel inspired to make rolls, then do other things like getting ready-made rolls and pretty them up.

Toasted Long Rolls: Split, butter and sprinkle with grated cheese. Pop into the oven until cheese melts. Serve hot.

Cheese Rings: Use day-old bread and cut rings with a doughnut cutter. Brush with butter or salad oil, dip in cheese, and bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven until golden brown.

Orange Biscuits: Add grated rind of orange to a baking powder biscuit recipe. Roll and cut. Dip a cube of sugar in orange juice and press into top of each biscuit. Bake in a hot oven 12 to 15 minutes.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

GROWING TENSION WITH FALSE LEADERS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 11:37-48, 52-54.
GOLDEN TEXT—He that is not with me is against me, and he that gathereth not with me scattereth.—Luke 11:23.

Opposition to Christ and to Christian teaching has come down through the centuries practically unchanged. Hence, we find in Christ's dealings with the enemies of His day helpful indication of what may be done in our time.

It is sad to note that the chief opposition came from those who professed to be religious leaders. It is expected that the world, the flesh, and the devil should fight God's truth, but one might expect better of those who profess His name. The difficulty is that there is only profession, with no real life.

I. Hypocrisy Unmasked (vv. 37-44).
The Pharisees professed great interest in the observance of religious laws, but their concern was for the outward appearance, while God judges the heart. First we note a false profession of cleanliness. Christ came to the Pharisees' table with clean hands, but He had not observed all their ceremonial washings. When rebuked He struck home with terrific force at the heart of the whole matter (v. 39); namely, that inward filthiness of heart which often makes folk meticulous about outward cleansing. This leads to a substitution of technical observance of the letter of the law that ignores love and judgment (v. 42), which are so precious to God. There can be a dead, dry, and technical orthodoxy which entirely misses the point.

But worst of all is the covering up of spiritual death (v. 44). Sometimes we speak of those who are "dead and don't know it," and that may actually be true spiritually. There may be death within and yet a brave and sometimes self-deluding outward show of life.

II. Theological Deadness Condemned (vv. 45-52).
The lawyers of that day were those learned in the Mosaic law, hence were really the teachers of theology and ethics. They came under the rebuke of Christ as He pronounced three "woes" upon them. First, they were guilty of heaping upon others burdensome requirements which they did not themselves keep, and which they did not help the people to keep. There are such teachers today who set up standards they do not themselves observe, a sort of signpost pointing the right way, while they are not themselves going that way. Then there are those who present high ethical standards without the spiritual dynamic needed to live up to them. To tell a man to be good without telling him of the Saviour who can make him good is mockery.

Then, those of Christ's day were condemned for hating God's witnesses. They were willing to build sepulchers for the dead prophets (killed by their fathers), but were not willing to hear the living prophets. How true to life that is! The very ones who hate and hinder those who are preaching God's Word, speak and sing smoothly of the faith of our fathers, and claim as their own the witnesses of a past day.

Christ also pointed out that while professing to interpret the law they obscured its meaning. They threw away the key to knowledge so that neither they nor their people could learn—and yet they continued to teach. Have not the false teachers of our day done likewise? They deny the integrity and authority of the only infallible Word—the Bible; they reject the deity of our Saviour, Christ, and yet they talk about being Christians and preachers of the truth. Woe be unto them in the day of God's judgment and wrath!

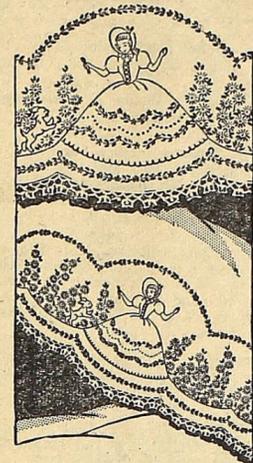

What happens when such men are condemned or unmasked? We find—

III. Enmity Intensified (vv. 53, 54).
The scribes and Pharisees had two approaches: they sought vehemently to provoke Him to overspeak, and they craftily laid in wait for Him. The writer of these notes has seen both methods at work in our day. Liberals, or modernists as they are called, profess for the most part to a suave courtesy which makes them speak smoothly and gently about the conservative and orthodox believer or teacher; but if one only has eyes to see, there is often the strong and cruel hand of iron hidden under the velvet glove.

Whatever may be the approach, be assured of this—every effort to reveal false teaching in its true light, or to deal with hypocrisy in spiritual things will bring intensified opposition. Christ took it—we too can take it in His name and for His sake.

Praise the Lord
I will greatly praise the Lord with my mouth; yea, I will praise him among the multitude. For he shall stand at the right hand of the poor, to save him from those who condemn his soul.—Psalm 109:30-31.

Importance of Steel

Steel's effect upon life today is so important that we could give up most other metals—including gold—with less disturbance to civilization. Today's steels are the strongest, toughest, hardest, yet most ductile, elastic and obedient of all metals used by mankind.

What is a Mammal

One of the commonest popular errors of zoology is the notion that the whale is some sort of fish. It is not; it is a mammal which went to sea. The whale is warm-blooded, has a well-developed brain, and in all other respects shows a far higher organization than any of the fishes. Its young are born alive, and are suckled and cared for by the mother as with land mammals.

DEEP WATER ISLAND

by ALAN LEMAY

W.N.U.-RELEASE

INSTALLMENT FOURTEEN
THE STORY SO FAR: Karen Water-son, who has come to Honolulu to press her claims to the island estate of Alakoa, fears that she is not an heiress at all, as her grandfather, Garrett Waterson, is still alive and on his way to the island. She and Tonga Dick or Richard Wayne, a member of the Wayne family which has been in control of the property since her grandfather's disappearance, find they are in love and decide to leave the island of Alakoa together. Out at sea they quarrel and are angry. Dick orders a return to Alakoa. Meantime a native house-girl who has stowed away aboard ship is seriously wounded by her native lover, who suspects her of being unfaithful. Karen accuses Dick of having made love to this girl, Lilia. Dick and Karen continue their quarrel and Dick tells her he has protected her in a serious situation.

Now continue with the story.

"You see," Inyashi said, uneasy under Dick's stare, "if we send no pilot, Mr. Colt and Miss Waterson will have to stay here."

"Protected? What situations?"
 "What would have happened to your claim on Alakoa if you had been held on suspicion of murder?"
 Karen's astonished eyes jerked to his face. "Murder?" she gasped. "What on earth are you talking about?"

"What do you think my brothers would have done if they had found out that you were with James Wayne when he died?"
 "But—but—"

"Oh, I know you didn't mean to harm him. Even without the—call it excitement—of seeing you, I dare say he wouldn't have lasted another twenty-four hours. But you know how Willard and Ernest would have seized upon the fact that you were with him—and sought to conceal it. The investigation would have been an ugly and uncomfortable thing."

"I with him?" Karen repeated incredulously. "Why, Dick—"
 "You see," Dick said, "you're not honest with me even yet. Who did you think picked up the broken lei? Tsura? Dear God! I'll never smell ginger flowers again without remembering—"

"Lei? What lei?"
 "The lei I gave you, that I brought to your room, the night my uncle died. The lei that you wore when you went to see him. The lei that broke, and still lay scattered all over the floor when I found him sitting there, dead."

"You mean—you mean—you've thought all this time—"
 "I picked up the lei; I opened the windows, and let the wind sweep away the smell of ginger flowers, and said nothing. I even respected your own silence, and said nothing to you."

"I think," Karen said, "I could have forgiven anything in the world but that. This is too much, Dick."
 "You see," Dick said, "I believed in you—I believed in you as I haven't believed in anything since I can remember. God help me, I believe in you yet! But I can't any longer believe that you are for me."

"No," Karen said, her voice strange and shaky, "not for you. Never for you again."
 "Again? You never were!"
 "When you came for me, and I ran away with you, from the Seal, I belonged to you as much as I'll ever belong to anybody. More, perhaps. Even when you—when Lilia turned up in your cabin, in that savage, half-naked rig, I was disgusted and hurt, but I would have got over it, I think. Only—I didn't know you then."

"You think you know me now?"
 "As well as I ever care to, Dick."

When the Holokai was anchored again in Alakoa's little bay, Dick Wayne had Karen rowed back to the Seal, from which he had taken her such a little while before. They had been gone less than two hours, yet the circumstances under which he had brought her to the Holokai from the Seal seemed so far away that they might have existed in another world.

As she left the Holokai he offered her a steady hand, to help her into the small boat, but she stepped down lightly without his help, hardly glancing at him. They had nothing to say to each other as she left.

The Holokai's boat had hardly left her side when Alakoa's shore launch put out from the dock, bringing the doctor for whom Dick had radioed. The same Japanese physician who had attended James Wayne came aboard the Holokai briskly, looking as gravely worried as his round moon of a face would permit. Dick took him below at once.

Lilia was resting more quietly, now, under the detachedly watchful eyes of the Chinese mess boy and the Filipino cook.

"This girl has been stabbed," Dick told Dr. Shimazu shortly. "Very little has been done. Don't leave her until she can properly be moved."

The Japanese, evidently interested by the notion that Dick might have stabbed the girl himself, gave Dick Wayne a shrewd and curious look, but without learning anything; and Dick went on deck.

Garrett Waterson's vessel was standing in by now. Already the mournful blasts of her whistle were calling for a pilot. Dick Wayne dropped overside into the launch, drove it out of the bay in a short-cut through the boil of the breakers, and went aboard the Sarah. A stocky Norwegian with a curly brown beard—his name was Stahl-quist—met him at the rail, and paced beside Dick as he went to the wheel.

 "Might as well kick her on in," Stahlquist said gloomily. "The Old Man's in another fever siege; wouldn't know you probably, even if you could get him awake."
 "How long's he sick?"
 "It comes off and on. You know how he is. He'll be all right when he wakes up. Probably be four or five hours; then he'll be himself for a while, and raising hell. I don't know what we're coming to."

Dick took the wheel, signaled his engines, and snaked the Sarah in through the coral. He anchored her between the Holokai and the Seal.
 "You're in for it," Stahlquist encouraged him. "All the way up, the Old Man's been raving and cussing at you for putting out with the Holokai without no orders."
 "When he wakes up," Dick said, "tell him to keep his shirt on. There isn't anything here to get in a hurry about; not now."

Dick Wayne went back to the Holokai. On her deck he stood for a few moments, looking across at the Seal, and fumbling in his pockets for his pipe, which had become mislaid. He was still standing there when Inyashi came trotting to him.
 "How's the Hawaiian girl who was hurt?" Dick asked at once.
 "I think she is still—all right."
 "Is she quiet now?"
 "Most of the time. When she is not quiet, she is calling for this Hokano. The doctor gave her a shot of something, I think."

"Have somebody cut Hokano's wrists and ankles loose and bring him to me."
 "Captain, that is dangerous. That man will try to kill you, I think."
 "Do as I say, anyway."
 "Yes, sir." Then, as Inyashi started away, he faltered and turned back. "Captain Dick, while you were gone, the Seal sent to ask for a pilot three times. They want to go out now, they think."

"They want to go out? Why, then, John Colt must have gone aboard."
 "Oh, yes, sir, half an hour ago. I thought you knew that."
 "Well—did you give them somebody?"
 "No, Tonga."
 "No?"
 "You see," Inyashi said, uneasy under Dick's stare, "if we send no pilot, Mr. Colt and Miss Waterson will have to stay here."

A whole lifetime spent in the Islands had never fully accustomed Dick to the manner in which everyone managed to know everyone else's business. Just now it unexpectedly appeared that Inyashi not only knew all the ramifications of Dick's affairs, but had his own conception of what was good for Dick.
 "What Mr. Colt and Miss Waterson do is their own business," Dick said unappreciatively.
 "There's still time to send them a pilot, Captain Dick. Either Menehune or Kamaku could pilot those shoals in their sleep. We can send them a man, if we want."

"Yes," Dick said, so uncertainly that it was Inyashi's turn to stare, "we can—if we want."
 "If Ramey goes alone he will pile up his boat."
 "Pile her up," Dick repeated dimly. "Yes, that is exactly what he will do. Well, maybe that would be the best thing for us all. There wouldn't be any danger to anybody, I wouldn't think."
 "No danger," Inyashi agreed eagerly. "No danger at all. But I think Ramey will not try."
 "It's Colt who is deciding what to do. And maybe what Colt does is being decided by—somebody else."

"Sometimes," Inyashi said cautiously, "what people do in a hurry, when they are mad, is a big mistake."
 "Inyashi, are you arguing with me?"
 "Yes, sir."
 "Well, get out of here, and do as you are told. Wait! Send a man ashore. Tell him to pass the word on the beach that I'll knock the head off the man who pilots the Seal at any price. Ramey will get no pilot from the Holokai—and, by God, we'll see that he gets none from Alakoa!"

"Captain, I have done that."
 "You've already passed the word on the beach?"
 "Yes, Tonga; I thought I better take a chance."
 "Good," Dick said. "Good enough! Now, go cut Hokano loose."
 Dick went below, still listlessly hunting for his pipe. He was feeling empty and sunk. He poured himself half a tumbler of Scotch, drank it off, and deciding this had been a good idea, poured himself another. Dr. Shimazu came into the main cabin from the little stateroom in the stern.
 "This girl is lucky," he said. "The knife seems to have turned and saved the lung. If it had not turned she would have been killed; as it is, she is not."

"Where's the luck in that?" Dick asked sourly. "Can't you even wish a poor Hawaiian girl well?"
 "The girl is principally suffering from shock," Dr. Shimazu explained. "These Polynesians have a special temperament of their own; sometimes they are nervously excitable."
 He stopped, and stared blankly at the companionway. Two rugged-looking Kanaka seamen had appeared, each of them holding onto a wrist of the huge Hokano. As soon as they had cleared the ladder, one of them twisted Hokano's arm up behind him in an effective hammerlock; and thus they stood waiting. Hokano's face was expressionless, and his eyes dead.

Dick Wayne's voice was harsh and level. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself," he said. "Don't you know how to teach that woman of yours a lesson without half killing her? You get on in there to her, and see if you can get her quiet."
 Hokano flung Dick Wayne one wild, uninterpretable glance, then, moving unsteadily, he walked back to Dick's stateroom and disappeared.
 Dick drank his whiskey and went on deck. What he wanted was to be quiet, and alone in the dark, like any animal which has been hurt and yet doesn't dare let its wounds be seen. But it seemed that in this night there was no quiet to be had. Dick Wayne had no more than walked to the rail of the Holokai when the Seal's boat was alongside, and there was a great clamoring for Captain Wayne—this time from Ramey himself.

"Well—what the hell is it now?"
 "Look, Tonga, the one-eyed Ramey whimpered, "how about giving a guy a lift here, in a bad fix? How am I supposed to get out of this hole? How am I supposed to know where the channel is, in a black night like this? What's the matter with giving a guy a hand?"
 "Just what is it you want, Ramey?" Dick asked, knowing well enough.
 "Half the boys you've got aboard your tub are Alakoa Kanakas. What's the matter with lending me one to steer me out of here, before these people practically scalp me, by God? These people want to get going. I tell you, these people are raising hell because I don't jerk my anchor up. What the devil do you expect me to do, if you haven't the common decency to lend a man a—?"
 "Colt burning you up?"
 "Well, what if he is? Can you blame him if he wants to get his sweetie out of this lousy sink? All I'm asking is—"
 "Tell you what you do," Dick said. "You tell Colt to take a flying jump into the bay. After he's jumped in the bay, tell him to dry himself thoroughly with a rough towel, and put on dry clothes. Explain to him that it's very foolish to stand around all wet."
 "Damn it, can't you even lend a man—?"
 "I'm not lending you anything. You're going to keep the Seal exactly where she is until it's light enough for you to sound your way out. Even then you may pile her up—and you know it! It suits me to have you and your customers stay exactly where you are."
 "I tell you, Tonga, these people—"
 "Steal a bottle of whiskey and go hide on shore. I'll give you no pilot tonight!"

"You see," Inyashi said, uneasy under Dick's stare, "if we send no pilot, Mr. Colt and Miss Waterson will have to stay here."

"You see," Dick said, "you're not honest with me even yet. Who did you think picked up the broken lei? Tsura? Dear God! I'll never smell ginger flowers again without remembering—"

"Lei? What lei?"
 "The lei I gave you, that I brought to your room, the night my uncle died. The lei that you wore when you went to see him. The lei that broke, and still lay scattered all over the floor when I found him sitting there, dead."

"You mean—you mean—you've thought all this time—"
 "I picked up the lei; I opened the windows, and let the wind sweep away the smell of ginger flowers, and said nothing. I even respected your own silence, and said nothing to you."

"I think," Karen said, "I could have forgiven anything in the world but that. This is too much, Dick."
 "You see," Dick said, "I believed in you—I believed in you as I haven't believed in anything since I can remember. God help me, I believe in you yet! But I can't any longer believe that you are for me."

"No," Karen said, her voice strange and shaky, "not for you. Never for you again."
 "Again? You never were!"
 "When you came for me, and I ran away with you, from the Seal, I belonged to you as much as I'll ever belong to anybody. More, perhaps. Even when you—when Lilia turned up in your cabin, in that savage, half-naked rig, I was disgusted and hurt, but I would have got over it, I think. Only—I didn't know you then."

"You think you know me now?"
 "As well as I ever care to, Dick."

When the Holokai was anchored again in Alakoa's little bay, Dick Wayne had Karen rowed back to the Seal, from which he had taken her such a little while before. They had been gone less than two hours, yet the circumstances under which he had brought her to the Holokai from the Seal seemed so far away that they might have existed in another world.

As she left the Holokai he offered her a steady hand, to help her into the small boat, but she stepped down lightly without his help, hardly glancing at him. They had nothing to say to each other as she left.

The Holokai's boat had hardly left her side when Alakoa's shore launch put out from the dock, bringing the doctor for whom Dick had radioed. The same Japanese physician who had attended James Wayne came aboard the Holokai briskly, looking as gravely worried as his round moon of a face would permit. Dick took him below at once.

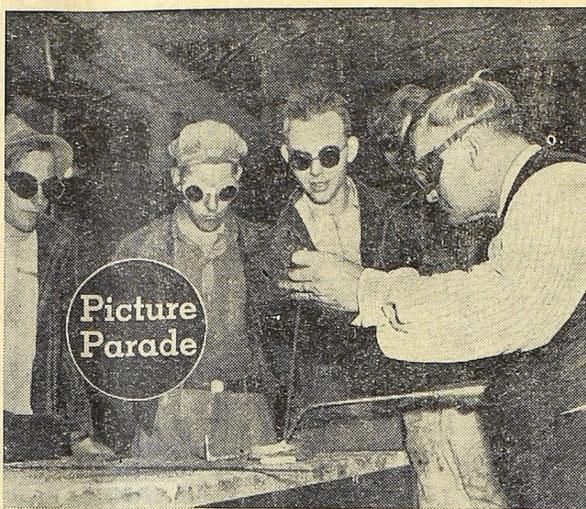

Lilia was resting more quietly, now, under the detachedly watchful eyes of the Chinese mess boy and the Filipino cook.

"This girl has been stabbed," Dick told Dr. Shimazu shortly. "Very little has been done. Don't leave her until she can properly be moved."

The Japanese, evidently interested by the notion that Dick might have stabbed the girl himself, gave Dick Wayne a shrewd and curious look, but without learning anything; and Dick went on deck.

Garrett Waterson's vessel was standing in by now. Already the mournful blasts of her whistle were calling for a pilot. Dick Wayne dropped overside into the launch, drove it out of the bay in a short-cut through the boil of the breakers, and went aboard the Sarah. Farm Youths Guard 'Home Front'

Picture Parade

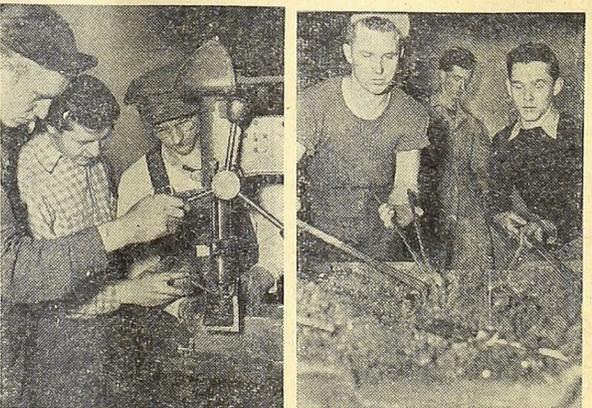

Above photo shows one way thousands of rural youths from coast to coast are learning new trades this year under a $15,000,000 "out-of-school" training program being supervised by the U. S. office of education. One purpose of the project is to train young men who can take the place in civilian jobs of skilled workmen being called for service in America's fast-expanding war industry program. Secondary aims are to prepare farm and small town youths to work in agriculture as it becomes increasingly more mechanized, and to fit them for mechanical work in the army should they be called for service. Almost every state in the Union is now offering instruction under direction of a state vocational office.

Metalworking, forging, woodworking, operation and repair of motors are among the courses being offered. Above, students learn how to cut metal at the Schenley company's machine shop at Frankfort, Ky., where these pictures were taken. Plant technicians donate their services as instructors.

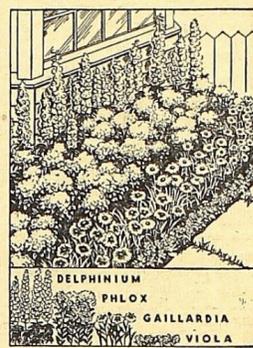

At left, youths learn how to use a power drill, while student at right is getting his first lesson in forging. Officials estimate that 75 per cent of the courses are being given in rural areas, because big city youths can usually secure similar training at regular trade schools.

Youth is being trained today for a mechanized tomorrow.

Political Tolerance

Let us restore to social intercourse that harmony and affection without which liberty and even life itself are but dreary things. And let us reflect that, having banished from our land that religious intolerance under which mankind has so long bled and suffered, we have yet gained little if we countenance a political intolerance as despotic, as wicked, and capable of as bitter and bloody persecutions.—Thomas Jefferson.

ARE YOUR Bowels Stubborn?

Then try kindness! First of all you can't expect them to act unless you give them a chance. Most people make sure to get 3 meals a day. But they never think of giving their bowels a regular time (daily) for evacuation.

If you've neglected YOUR bowels until they finally became stubborn and unwilling to act, ask your druggist for ADLERIK. It is an effective blend of 6 carminatives and 3 laxatives giving DOUBLE action. Gas is expelled and bowel action follows surprisingly fast. After that, make up your mind to give your bowels 5 or 10 minutes' time at regular hour, daily. Your druggist has ADLERIK.

Sentinels of Health
Don't Neglect Them!
Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out. Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Tawas City School Notes

KINDERGARTEN—FIRST GRADE
The first grade has read another book, the "Everyday Life Primer."
We have two new dolls. We brought pennies to school to pay for them.
We have a new clean-up set, a broom, dust-pan, mop and carpet sweeper, for the doll house.
Miss Brose brought us some dishes for the dolls.
Joan brought some great big pussy willows.
We made pictures of pussy willows.
We drew pictures of children in the wind and children in the rain.
We are getting ready for our spring program.
We are making a garden to use in our play.

SECOND GRADE
Many of us were absent last week because of measles or other illnesses.
We are learning the Schottische and the Grand Right and Left for the May Pole dance we are to do in the elementary departments' spring program. We like to do them, especially when we can practice out doors.
We can add and subtract numbers in the hundreds now. We like to do that kind of problem.
Shirley Allen, Margaret Mark, Wayne Nelson, Joan Rogers and Nancy Rollin had 100's in spelling on Friday.
Mr. Metcalf brought us some nice large pussy-willows. We drew a picture of them, adding a bluebird, perched on one branch.
THIRD and FOURTH GRADES
Mr. Carlson gave us a new ball and bat last week. We thank him very much for them. We are using them every day.
Pupils in the third grade who received an A on the Friday spelling test last week were: Carolyn Galliker, Janet Ogden, Dorothy Freel, Marvin Gingrich, Harry Toms, Wanda Fowler, Bruce Leslie and Delano Myles. In the fourth grade: Alice Johnson, Stanley Brown, Shirley Boomer, Orville McDonald and Frank Toms.

Measles and flu must be nearly over. We have only one pupil absent now. This week Mr. Polycutt is here after a week's absence. We are glad he is well again.
We are all looking forward to Wednesday this week as Mr. Carlson says we are to have our pictures taken then.

SPORTS
The baseball squad has been working out on the diamond these nice spring days. They are looking forward to the opening game with Harrisville next Friday, April 24. Some of the boys broke away from their radics last Tuesday after school and got a nice workout chasing Frank Mark's long drives to the fence.
The girls are planning their treat for the boys' basketball team as soon as the Junior play is over. It seems the boys shaded the girls during the basketball season, but should get an assist on the Alabaster game.

Tawas City High School recently received a wall plaque which was presented by the University of Michigan and the Detroit Free Press for excellence in debating. All schools in the state who won three out of four of their preliminary debates were eligible for this honor. This is the first plaque of this type to be awarded to this school. The debaters who brought this honor to the school are Ruth Herriman, Helen Krumm and Philip Ross.

P-T. A. MEETING
Last Thursday evening the school held open house. A hot lunch was served at six-thirty. After that a short assembly was called in the high school. Mr. Carlson announced the afternoon program and the parents and guests moved from room to room to see their children at work.
Miss Arnold spoke about the necessity of having all small children immunized since many children might be evacuated into this area. She also announced a home nursing course and one in nutrition that will be given at a later date.

DEFENSE STAMPS
Mr. Carlson gave a short talk before the assembly last Thursday morning and asked that we try to increase our sales of defense stamps in the classes. A goal of $120 was set for the six upper grades. While the goal was not quite reached, $109.35 was taken in.

The class of '45 led with $24.85, '43 was second with $16.80, '47 held third place with $13.65, fourth place was given to '44 with $11.50, '46 got fifth with $10.85, and sixth went to '42 with $10.00. Miss Myles' room turned in $2.45, while Miss Worden's room sold $5.95. The faculty was in a separate class with $13.30.
