Registration of Dealers Will be Held April 28-29

In an interview with Russell A. Rollin, county school commissioner, and R. H. McKenzie, rationing administrator, it was stated that the registration of retailers and wholesalers, institutions and industrial oranizations for the purpose of obtain ing Sugar Purchase Certificates will be conducted in all Public High schools in Iosco county on April 28 and 29.

Boards will be in session between the hours of 9:00 a. m and 4:00 p. m. for the purpose of conducting this registration. All wholesalers, retailers, institutions and industrial organizations other than individual consumers should register on either of these dates.

Individual consumers should regiser on either the 4, 5, 6 and 7 of May at the elementary school in their own district. Your local district teacher is supplying your children with information regarding the necessary steps for registration. Anyone who for any cason does not receive the necessary information should contact the teachr in their local district before the above dates.

Sugar for canning purposes will be allotted at a later date. According to a recent communiction from Federal authorities each sugar ration book holder will be permitted to receive a special allotment of not more than five pounds of sugar a year for home canning or preserving of fresh fruits and vegetables.

If you've been wondering what the sugar rationing is really going to be, read the special illustrated story in this week's issue of The Herald.

Sugar rationing isn't going to be as complicated as many people be-lieved, and the story tells you exactly why. Explanation of the raioning card and book, who may apply, beet sugar, cane sugar, Cuban sugar, and other points that will interest readers, are fully covered in a clear and concise manner. Clip the story and file it for future reference.

It's a dream come true for Harry I. Caesar, the dog-fancying banker who for many years has been the four-square friend has been the four-square friend of the four-footers and who is now president of Dogs for Defense, Inc. More than 150 dog-conscious delegates from many states attended the organization meeting in New York recently, with Mr. Caesar presiding, and laid out plans for the elite guard of dogdom, with the kennel clubs and the American Theatre wing co-operating. Col. Clifford Smith of the quartermaster corps told of the quartermaster corps told the meeting that "One well-trained dog is the equivalent of six guards." The dogs also will serve in their traditional role as the lonely soldier's pal.

Mr. Caesar stems from a long line of Indian-fighting colonial ancestors, going back to around 1650 and dogs have always figured ro-mantically in his family antecedents. His financial operations head up in New York, and he is a public-spirited citizen of Rumson, N. J., former councilman of that town and active in welfare and philanthropic enterprise.

From Brooklyn he went to Hill school, Princeton and Wall Street, landing in the latter narrow thoroughfare in 1913 and soon thereafter becoming a director of the banking house of H. I. Caesar & Co. In World War I, he served as a captain in France, prospered in business in the post-war years, and had plenty of time for dogs, friends, clubs, golf, tennis and amateur war money with the least work. Naturally, I became a lawyer.' J. H. Kindelberger, president of North American Aviation, Inc., reacted similarly, and successfully, from digging ditches. He heads one of the biggest aviation plants in the world and is now uniquely in the news as he hands back to the government $14,000,000 rather than take it as a profit. He says increased efficiency has cut plane costs 331/3 per cent, and the government, considering its present urgent needs, ought to get a cut in this technological

He quit the army engineering corps and qualified for special engineering studies at the Carnegie Institute of Technology, in 1916 and 1917. Then he got a job as an apprentice engineer with the National Tube company at Wheeling. He became a draftsman and inspector, with, however, plenty of hard work, and that, of course, disposes of any cynical implications in his and Mr. Darrow's success story.

At 30, he was a draftsman with the Glenn L. Martin Airplane company, when Donald Douglas withdrew from that firm and founded his own company. Mr. Kindelberger went along as chief engineer of the Douglas Aircraft company-on his way up. He engineered some highly effective new planes and caught on in administration and finance, as well as in technical operations. He has been president of North American since 1934, with his home and business office at Los Angeles.

Born in Wheeling, W. Va., in 1895, he was a second lieutenant in the aviation corps in World War I. In 1919, he married Miss Thelma Knarr, at Wheeling. They have two children. He backslides a bit, digging in his flower garden. The government is no doubt happy to know that he quit ditch-digging. He has been frank about his run-out on ditch-digging, but his career shows that he doesn't mind work. And sharing the profits with the government is a sharp standout against the capitalization writeups of boom WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Laval Given French Police Powers As Germany Fears Invasion Threat; U. S. Bombers, Subs Smash at Japs; Increased Undersea Program Likely

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.) (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Pressure from Berlin

Regardless of underlying causes, or of how much justification there might have been, the overturn of government in Vichy which had brought Laval back to power as "civil supervisor" had been definitely accepted by Britain and the United States as a decision to "go with the Axis."

It had come at a moment when there were some indications that Vichy was wavering in its collaboration with Germany, and that Petain and his associates were looking with longing and friendly eyes toward the United States as a possible source of food supplies.

Some favorable steps had been made in this direction, then, all of sudden, Laval seized the police power; and before the world knew it, Laval was back in the cabinet and many believed it marked the end of the Petain regime.

London was very positive about the whole thing, saying frankly that the re-entry of Laval into the government, the man who looks, acts and talks like Hitler, "reduces France to the level of a nickel Balkan state." The spokesman contin-"It clearly indicates the complete subservience of the Vichy policy to Berlin.'

Two vital reasons were seen for the Laval development and both of them were envisioned as Germany "cracking down" on the Petain regime. The first was the German fear that an American-British invasion of the continent through France is immi-

The second was that Germany feared the growing friendliness of Vichy and Washington through the

MERCY SHIP:

For Bataan

The first revelation of identity of the men lost in the battle of Bataan (the Jap claim had been 6,700 Americans of 40,000 total prisoners) came when 600 relatives of 1,400 New Mexico soldiers pleaded for a "mercy ship" to be sent to Bataan with food and clothing.

They comprised fathers, mothers, sisters and brothers of the men of the 200th coast artillery corps (antiaircraft), all from the state of New Mexico.

It was stated in their petition that they believed their unit to have had more men in it than that from any other single state.

While some of the relatives did not sign, and hope was expressed that perhaps much of the corps had escaped from Bataan to Corregidor, there was enough evidence that the regiment had been trapped to induce Senator Chavez to go to work at Washington in their behalf. The first thing that had been done, however, was for the senator to ask the President for definite word as to the fate of New Mexico's 200th.

U. S. BOMBERS:

Sensational reports from General MacArthur's headquarters had provided the information that American planes had made a devastating attack on Japanese bases in the Philippines.

Maps showed, however, that un-less the planes had been carrier based or at some point not heretofore revealed as in American hands, the shortest roundtrip flight from Australian territory would have been 2,800 miles to the southern tip els, and also, presumably, setting of Mindanao, or about 4.000 miles. their hours of work.

U. S. SUBS: Wolfpack Tactics

The success of American submarines in the present Pacific war with credit for a substantial percentage of the amount of Japanese warships sent to the bottom, had caused Chairman Vinson of the house naval affairs committee to present a program calling for $800,000,000 more in undersea craft.

A program adopted in 1940 called for 65 such ships. This would call for 100 more, or more than double the amount previously authorized. The navy, last October, had 186 submarines in service, of which only a few were of the 1,500-ton "cruiser type," which are now under con-struction and planned by the Vinson program.

The naval plan would be for the United States to adopt the same

Though it was pointed out that we are building ships faster than they are being sunk, Vinson felt that an increased sub program would kick the Japs out of the war faster, as their shipbuilding facilities were limited.

MacARTHUR: In Command

Although it had seemed clear enough through dispatches from Australia that the return of Mac-Arthur from the Philippines had been to place him in command of all armies of the United Nations in the Far East, some doubt had fol-lowed this in the eyes of the public largely because of stories about General Blamey, and the small amount of material coming direct from Mac-

Finally the direct question was put to the American generalissimo, and his headquarters gave credence to the rumors when it frankly said it didn't know-that the general's status was not clear.

This called for a statement by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Curtin, the former stating that it was his understanding that Mac-Arthur was in supreme command.

The following day this had been concurred in fully by Prime Minister Curtin, who went into enough detail so that little doubt could remain as to MacArthur's command pow-

The only point remaining not clear was whether MacArthur's powers extended to New Zealand. A Netherlands spokesman had confirmed his command over such Dutch forces as had escaped from the East Indies, and the fact that General Stillwell was in command of Chinese in Burma seemed sufficient confirmation from that quarter.

PRICES:

And Labor

The chances were that President Roosevelt might "beat to the punch" congressional efforts to legislate on the labor situation by pegging all prices, including rents and wages and interest on capital, thus following the Canadian and Australian sytems already in effect.

Australia, guarding against the "black market" troubles England had had, because of a dire shortage of commodities, took the same step Canada had, and brought all prices and services under control of the government.

The price commissioner was given authority to peg all prices and services at levels he might select.

The announcement already had gone out from Washington that such a move was "under consideration by the government," and most observers felt that under precedent as well as law, the Executive Branch had the wartime power to do this.

Technically, this, if carried out by the President, would tend to spike the guns of congressmen proposing laws setting the work week and the return to capital on war contracts, because it would affect all workers, pegging their wages at certain lev-

JAP INTERNEES: Paid Too Much?

SENATOR GILLETTE Offers a four-point program.

Latest "scandal" to land on the front pages had been a report, given to the public by Senator Gillette of Iowa, that Japanese internees some of them were being paid $50 a month by the government as against $21 for selectees.

The senator said he was impressed by the sources of his information, and that he might ask for the congress to investigate.

The senator added that in any case, he was offering a four-point program, as follows:

1. Put all Japs, native and aliens, under United Nations authority and remove them from the Pacific coast. 2. Rescind all their civil rights for the duration.

3. Draft all the males between 20 and 44 for farm work under army control and for basic army pay.

4. Support this entire program with funds obtained from frozen Japanese money now in this country.

The senator said that he had information there was the sum of $130,000,000 now available, and that several hundred millions more could be liquidated by selling frozen Japanese assets in this country.

RUSSIANS:

Place names coming out in Russian dispatches spoke volumes, more than any claims of killed or wounded, because they definitely had showed that the German "spring offensive," although well under way with hundreds of thousands of men, was getting nowhere.

For instance, the Reds had claimed to have pierced German lines in the vicinity of Bryansk; constant references were made to actions north and south of Lake Ilmen; Kalinin was a common name in the dispatches and the reports from towns like Mariupol in the south, and Vitebsk of Nazi atrocities could only have been obtained as the result of Russian advances.

There were German admissions showing Russian advances, a breakthrough admitted near Lake Ilmen, and Berlin broadcasts had said that the Reds were pounding the central front with an army of 90,000, including hundreds of tanks.

COUGHLIN:

Social Justice, the weekly newspaper which was founded at Royal Oak, Mich., by the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest, had been barred from the mails.

Father Coughlin issued a statement denying present ownership of the paper, or any connection with its editorial content since last fall.

Washington advices, however, had indicated that the principal ownership rested with the "radio priest's" father and mother.

The accusation against the publication had been two things-that it was conducted along the line of the Axis propaganda war against this country, and, second that it had been 'making a substantial contribution to a systematic and unscrupulous attack" upon the nation's war ef-

AIR EPIC:

A heroic epic of the air was the story of the rescue at sea of 17 survivors of a torpedoed vessel, including one woman, by a navy patrol plane piloted by Ensign Francis E. Pinter of Bethlehem, Pa.

Pinter's plane, a twin-motored bomber flying from San Juan to Guantanamo on submarine patrol got a radio message to investigate a raft at a certain point, and to report chances of effecting a rescue. He had taken off with 500 gallons of gas and had burned 300 gallons, or lightened his ship by 1,800 pounds. and though the sea was rough he decided to chance it "as rescue seemed necessary at once.'

Down he came, got the people into his plane, all of them so exhausted that they needed help for the transfer. One was tied to the deck, the woman got a bunk, the rest sat or lay where they could, three of them in the bomb compartment.

Question: Lombardy poplars in my back yard were cut down last spring, but shoots are now springing up all over. We pull them up each day, but others come up overnight. I fear that the roots will damage the house foundations and get into the sewer. What can we do?

Answer: Roots cannot live without growth above the ground. Pulling up the shoots will eventually have a killing effect. To speed things up, bore holes downward into the stumps, as many and as large as possible, and keep them filled with crude saltpetre, which is inexpensive. The chemical will be liquefied and will have a killing effect on being absorbed. It will cause quick

Wallboard Cracks

Question: Our brick house is-60 years old and was never plastered. A number of years ago the walls and ceilings were covered with plasterboard, the joints having cloth pasted over them. The joints show, and some break open. How can we do them over so this will not hapmake permanent fillings, for the joints are likely to open as the plasterboard is affected by changes in weather. You can do a fairly good job with patching plaster, to be had at a hardware store, covered with strips of open-mesh fabric intended for that purpose. These, of course, will be concealed by the decorations. Loose Tiles

Answer: If your tiles are of the usual kind, scrape the old cement off the backs and soak the tiles in water for a few hours. Stick them back with a stiff mixture of 1 part portland cement and three parts clean building sand, spreading this evenly over the backs. Do not fill the joints between the tiles. This is done after the tiles are firmly in position, with a mixture of plaster of paris in water. Wipe it on and clean the faces of the tiles before

Hot Water Heat

Question: In installing a hot water heating system, we are planning to use a 2-inch pipe for the main feed line, and a 11/2-inch pipe for the return. We are told that the return should be the same size as the feed. Is this true?

Answer: Yes; it is. There will be the same volume of water in both of them, and to have the return smaller than the main would have a throttling effect.

Cracked Plaster

Question: Plaster in our 40-yearold house is badly cracked. Can the cracks be filled so smoothly that they will not show through paint?

Answer: If the plaster is still tight on the lath, the cracks can be filled with patching plaster, to be had at a hardware store. Instructions for use are on the label. It should be possible to fill the cracks so smoothly that they will not show.

Sugar can't swim! Whether you take one lump or two, this is the primary reason why War Ration Book No. 1, to be issued by the Office of Price Administration, will cover sugar.

Sugar beet is cultivated in no less than 19 American states from Ohio to the Pacific coast. Cane sugar is produced in Florida and Louisiana. Yet, less than 29% of our sugar requirements were raised within the bounds of this country. More than 71% came to the United States from off-shore area.

In 1941, some 5,641,000 tons of sugar used in this country came from off-shore areas. This year, possibly a maximum of 3,315,000 tons will show up from such points.

One must picture this sugar problem in terms of shipping and the competitive need for space on the boats for other materials, in either the raw or finished form.

When War Broke Out.

When the war broke out in September, 1939, there were 69,440,000 gross tons of world merchant ship-sives and for other war require-

Best posted sugar trade and Washington quarters recently added up the "tote" for the 1942 sugar barrel. The result was an estimate of some 5.515,000 short tons available from all points or roughly one-third less than the amount used last year.

In 1941 our mainland sugar producers (beet and cane combined) managed to account for 2,348,000 short tons. We can count on only 2,200,000 short tons from them this year. It certainly is not that producers here lack price incentivesince the OPA ceiling level for raw sugar-3.74 cents per pound New York, cost and freight duty paidis the most attractive that has prevailed since 1929.

Beet Sugar Shortage.

However, distribution of beet sugar from domestic areas will fall short of the 1941 figure as there are smaller inventories to draw on than existed a year ago. Sugar beet processing starts in the fall. While farmers will co-operate to the utmost with the U.S. department of agriculture "all-out" supply program, there are definite limitations on the quantity of new crop sugar that can be delivered to users before year-end.

Admittedly, our domestic sugar supply arm may be improved materially in 1943. As on offset, however, the calculations have taken into account such non-recurring supply items as frozen stocks, as well as 500,000 tons estimated to come through from Hawaii. Effects of the war on shipping, labor and harvesting will make their imprint. Ordinarily, Hawaiian sugar is ground ping (vessels of 100 tons and over) At the end of 1939, vessels of 2,000 tons and over (representing most of the sea-going bottoms) totaled 51, 988,000 gross tons.

The United States total was 7,880, 000 tons. However, only 2,094,000 tons of the American merchant marine were used for foreign commerce, the remainder working in coastal and intercoastal shipping and on the Great Lakes. Some of these ships doubtless have been pressed into service on longer hauls, where possible. Furthermore, new merchant marine construction is perking up and, according to best estimates available, by the end of 1942 construction of new shipping is expected to proceed at the annual rate of nearly 2,500,000 gross tons.

Translated into terms of sugar, shipping is a most important factor. The general freighter working the Cuban run averages some 4,000 tons and can carry about 4,000 tons of sugar as its cargo. It can make about nine trips per year. In other words, each average freighter can account for roughly 36,000 tons of sugar-providing it carries nothing else in its homeward bound cargo.

To carry the 1,285,000 tons indicated for Cuban shipments to the United States in raw sugar form, therefore, would require the services of 36 ships, of 144,000 tons total. Add about 120,000 tons in shipping tonnage needed to bring in the Puerto Rican crop and-without any other off-shore points-we would tie up more than 10 per cent of our entire ocean - hauling merchant marine (based on 1939 tonnage estimate) for sugar needs alone.

This estimate is predicated on the theory that shipping losses thus far largely have offset the amount of new ships already launched for ocean-going hauls. Naturally,—as now seems likely—should the rate of shipbuilding increase faster than war tonnage losses, and if more vessels are taken from intercoastal and Great Lakes run onto longer hauls, then the shipping situation may very well show improvement. Actually, it probably has done so already to some extent.

SUDDEN emergencies must be expected in wartime. The important thing is to be ready -to know what to do.

One of the first rules to fix in your mind is: Leave telephone lines as free as possible to speed the work of rescue and defense.

In black-outs - during air-raid alarms and other local emergencies - you add to public danger if you use your telephone needlessly. You may clog the lines and hinder the efforts of the fire-fighters, police and rescue squads.

In any time of public emergency, use your telephone only for vital messages.

WHILE AMERICA IS AT WAR

Help vital messages go through without delay by:

- · Keeping telephone conversations short.
- · Avoiding the busy hours 10 A. M. to noon, 2 to 4 P. M.
- Answering your telephone promptly.

· Giving the number when placing Long Distance calls.

INSTALLMENT FIFTEEN
THE STORY SO FAR: Karen Waterson, who has come to Honolulu to press her claims to the island estate of Alakoa, learns that she is not an heiress at all, as her grandfather, Garrett Waterson, is still alive and on his way to the filand. She and Tonga Dick or Richard Wayne, a member of the Wayne family which has been in control of the property since her grandfather's disappearance, find they are in love but they quarrel over Karen's claim to the island. Karen and her lawyer, John Colt, who is also in love with her, decide to leave Alakoa. But when their ship's captain, Ramey, asks for a man to pilot them through the dangerous reefs in Alakoa's harbor, Dick refuses him.

Now continue with the story.

"By Gar, then," Ramey jabbered, "I'll pilot her out myself! I'll run your damn channel! I'll run your damn shoals! There's no coral in the Pacific that can stop me.
"You won't pilot this," Dick told him. "The tide has changed on you, Ramey; you'll never find the way without someone to tell you where you are. Go ahead and pile up your boat; when you've piled her up I'll take your people off. But the Seal will never get out of this bay tonight."

"I'll get a Kanaka pilot off the beach! "You've already tried that-or you wouldn't be coming to me." A storm of blasphemous vituperation from Ramey's boat assured Dick that what he had guessed was true; Ramey had already failed to find a pilot ashore. Weary of argument, weary of Ramey, very much tired out with everything that was going on around him, Dick left the rail and went to the other side of his ship. For a little while the shouted imprecations of the Seal's skipper still disrupted the night. But, since he answered no more, even these clink and thug of oarlocks as the Seal's boat went home. Dick grinned sardonically at the anchor lights of the Seal; but it was not the boat he was thinking about. "At least," he said aloud, "I know exactly where she is; and where she will stay, this one night more."

at last died away; and the bay of Alakoa was silent except for the

CHAPTER XIII

Presently Dr. Shimazu came on deck and talked to Dick Wayne.
"I think she's all right now," he "You go look for yourself."

"The knife wound-?" Dick asked. "The wound isn't going to amount to anything, I hope. But you come with me and look, so I can go home." Dick went below with Dr. Shimazu, and hesitantly made his way into the little stateroom in the stern where he usually slept. Hokano was stretched out face down upon the bunk beside Lilua, his face upon his arms; and Lilua had turned a little so that she could hide her face in Hokano's shoulder. When Dick had stood there for a moment, Lilua lifted her head, and | tive movement, as if he wished to looked at Dick without expression. stop an effort which obviously was

She was simply looking at him with complete impersonality, like a cat; or perhaps simply like a girl looking at someone who doesn't mean anything | ever stop Garrett Waterson from any to her any more. Soon Lilua lowered her head again, returning her face to Hokano's shoulder; and it was perfectly evident that Dick was instantly gone from her mind.

"I guess you were right," Dr. Shi-mazu said. "It takes a Kanaka to you," he added. fix a Kanaka-providing they don't kill each other first."

"Of course I was right," Dick said. "Can she be moved ashore now?"

"I think so; yes."

"Inyashi! See that the girl is moved ashore—carefully—and taken home."

"Yes, Tonga."

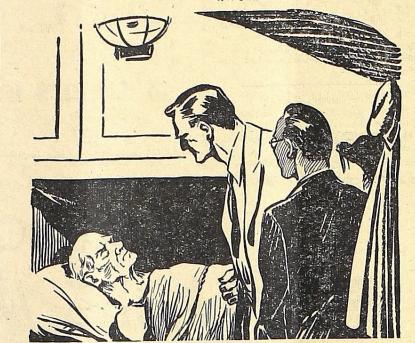

"Maybe," Dr. Shimazu suggested, "I can go home now?" "Your night is only starting,"

Dick answered; "I've got other work for you now.'

Dick called away the shoreboat again, and, with Shimazu, went aboard the Sarah.

Garrett Waterson's cabin, as they entered it now, was a strange mess. It differed from all other cabins in that it was full of more charts than most people have ever seen. There were charts all over the wall, overlapping each other in reefs and pads -and a great number of these had been drafted by Dick Wayne. There was even a chart nailed to the bottom of the deck above Garrett Waterson's bunk, where he could read it as he lay in bed. Hardly anyone ever got into this room; certainly, since Garrett Waterson had first taken possession, no one had ever cleaned it up. Old shoes, and sea boots, and miscellaneous clothing were piled about, or hung upon nails. But all this litter could mean nothing in this room - the charts were everything here. Everything, that is, except the man. The ancient figure in the bunk had been a man of huge frame, once. Fever had carved his face very close to the bone, taking away much of his substance. Yet neither old age nor wasting fever could ever make this man appear ascetic-he simply never had been made on ascetic lines. Everything about him had been built in the beginning to

And there was no doubt about the fuel being gone. A faint surprise showed in the eyes of Dr. Shimazu as he perceived that Garrett Waterson was still definitely alive. Little but the body structure of the frame itself now remained to show what Garrett Waterson had been. First inspection found no sign of life in the face, or in the big skeletonized form under the blankets.

After a minute, though, they saw the gleam of the living eyes. In Garrett Waterson's eyes still lived the embattled flame which had driven this man always to wild, extravagant, and uncompromising things. Garrett Waterson spoke huskily to

"Sorry, sir."

"Damn your sorriness," Garrett Waterson said in a diminished voice. He eased himself back until he lay as lifeless as before. "And damn

"Okay," Dick said. "Damn me. What then?" "Where is this girl?" Waterson demanded. "Well," Dick began, "the fact

"What's she like?" Garrett hurried him. "Well," Dick began again, "she weighs about one hundred and twenty pounds, with kind of blue eyes,

"Blonde and sallow," Garrett Waterson said bitterly. "By God, I knew it! Self-righteous, holier-thanthou. Preaching half the time. Wears starchy clothes. Oh, I knew it!"

The outburst winded the old man, and the silence that followed gave Dick time to consider. He supposed that Garrett Waterson was assigning to Karen the attributes he had chosen to recognize in the family into which his son had married. Or, perhaps, the old man's resentment had been inspired by something even more unhappy than that. "No," Dick said. "She isn't like that. There isn't anything like that about her at all."

Garrett Waterson rolled questioning eyes upon Dick and waited.
"She has blue eyes, like I said, but she has black hair; and she's the color of a gardenia, and she doesn't ever tan at all. There's no preaching about her-for all I know there isn't even any morality. And she's more alive than anything you ever set eyes on yet."

There was a silence again. "So that's the way the wind sets," Gar-rett Waterson said at last. "Well, I guess that's the worst of all." "Doesn't anything ever please you?" "From what you say," Garrett Waterson said, "the girl takes after What worse luck could you me. have than that, I'd like to know?" There was something ridiculous in be big and vital. There was some- the suggestion that Karen Waterson

"took after" this gnarled and huge old man; yet Dick could see that in both there was a certain essential spirit that was the same.

The old man seemed to rest for a moment, and Dr. Shimazu took the opportunity to attempt a counting of Waterson's pulse. Waterson made an irascible resistance. "Get this Jap's hands off of me! Who do you think-"

"You'll either let him examine you," Dick said, "or I'll walk out on you altogether, and you'll probably never so much as set eyes on this girl!"

There was anger in old Waterson's eyes, but he must have known his disadvantage. He attempted to ignore the situation by pretending not to notice Shimazu as the Japanese put a stethoscope to work.

"No wonder," Garrett Waterson said to Dick, "that she goes rattling all over the Pacific, trying to grab stuff that doesn't belong to her. If you take my advice you'll stay away from this girl! She isn't going to come to any good end. And neither will you, if you fool around with the likes of her!"

"That's a hell of a fine way," Dick said, "to talk about your own granddaughter."

"Don't you think," Garrett Water-son said savagely, "I know my own breed? She's no good, you mark my word! Or else what's she doing here, at this late date, trying to dig up old trouble?"

Old Waterson closed his eyes, exhausted again.

Shimazu looked at Dick queerly as he rolled up the tubes of his stethoscope; he came to the door and consulted with Dick in whispers.

"I'll take his temperature as soon as we're sure he's asleep," Shimazu said. "But even without that, I can tell you, this is a very weak man. He should have been in a hospital long ago-certainly he should never have tried to come here now. We're going to find out there's more than one kind of fever in this case. Blackwater certainly; and maybe something worse.'

"Do you think he's in danger this time?"

Shimazu permitted himself a queer waxy smile. "At his age, and with so much wrong with him, there's no reason why he should be alive at all. His heart is very irregular, weak, and slow. My advice is if you want anything from this man, get it soon. For all I can guarantee, he may never talk lucidly again."

"It's as bad as that, is it?" Shimazu shrugged. "This is a worn out machine. Yes," he added, returning to the understatement that he favored, "this man is sick."

They stood silent for the space of more than a minute, looking at the a mouse, flew blunderingly across the cabin, and hit the bulkhead with a metallic clatter; it recovered itself immediately, and ran behind a large chart of Rotoava Anchorage.

"I've got to get up," Garrett Waterson mumbled. "I've got to see James Wayne."

They ignored this, and the mumbling ceased. There were a few moments of complete silence.

Suddenly the still figure spoke in a surprisingly strong voice, a voice that seemed wrung from it by an unexplainable emotion. "I would have given my whole life-my whole life, and a lease on my soul in hell, just to see her-just to look at her one time!"

For some unknown reason Shimazu looked appalled.
"By God," Dick said, "then you shall!" He turned to the ladder. "It's no good," Shimazu said. "By the time you get her here, he'll never know her. Tomorrow maybe, if he is still alive-" "Then she'll be here tomorrow, too," Dick promised. He went up the ladder like the jump of a marlin. Then, as he came out of the companionway, he was instantly checked. Now that he was on the open deck he could hear, across the quiet waters of the bay, the clatter of the Seal's loose-jointed Diesel, and he could see the Seal's lights moving away from her anchorage. Captain Ramey had weighed his anchor, and was putting to sea. (TO BE CONTINUED)

WAYSIDE CONVERSATIONS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 13:22-35.
GOLDEN TEXT—And whosever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple.—Luke 14:27.

Learning by talking with Christ as they walked from place to place -such was the training for service which the disciples received. That was the greatest school this world has ever known, for while it had no great buildings, no beautiful campus, no learned faculty, it had the Son of God Himself as preceptor and teacher. With all due regard for our fine colleges and seminaries, we say this is still the outstanding need of Christian workers-to walk and talk with Christ.

On the day of which our lesson speaks the subject considered was how to be saved, and who should be saved. Several trends of thought emerged, but all pointed in the one direction of a diligent following of God's plan. In order to be saved, we learn, a man must

I. Make an Earnest Effort (vv. 22-24).

The question regarding how many were saved received no direct answer for our Lord wished to direct attention to the far more important question-Are you saved? Get that settled and the other matter will care for itself.

Here some who assume that it is an easy thing to be saved will receive a surprise, for our Lord says (v. 24) that it is something one must agonize" over, for so may the word "strive" be translated. The door into eternal life is so narrow that no man can pass through it with his sins-they must be taken away. Seeking is not enough (v. 24), one must "strive" to enter in.

II. Enter While the Door is Open (vv. 25-30).

The door stands open for all who will, to come in. (What a friendly thing is an open door!) But men idly ignore it, or definitely reject its opportunity. Or they seek it, but do not strive to enter in, and all at once it is closed. Then in a frenzy they seek to enter, but it is too late. What an appalling thing-to be eternally too late!

Note their claims of acquaintance with the Lord (v. 26). One is reminded of those who think they are Christians because father or mother belonged to the church, or because they attend an occasional church supper or listen to a sermon by radio. Unless we know Him personally as our Saviour, He will have to say to us, Depart from me, ye workers of iniquity" (v. 27). Let us make that matter very clear to those to whom we minister, lest they be eternally lost.

III. Follow the Fearless Christ (vv. 31-33).

To know the high and unwavering character of one's leader is to go forward with real confidence. What about the Captain of our salvation? Here we find Him facing the indirect threat of a powerful and wicked earthly ruler, in perfect calmness, with the very poise of eternity upon Him.

Christ, conscious of His divine mission and with determination to do the Father's will (Heb. 10:7), knew no fear of man. As we are in His holy will as Christian men and women, we too may boldly say, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me" (Heb. 13:6).

Consider the rebuke to Herod (v. 32). There is probably no place in Scripture where our Lord spoke with such stinging contempt of any man. figure in the bunk. A huge flying occkroach, with a body bigger than cloud of eternal judgment already cloud of eternal judgment already had settled around the head of this man who was so sly and crafty that the tenderhearted Jesus called him a "fox." One wonders of how many He would have to say the same in this our day of supreme and malicious wickedness. We find one more vitally important thought here. Our Lord offers Himself. He calls sinners to repentance, but they must

IV. Respond to His Invitation (vv. 34, 35).

To fail to accept His proffered love is to be left desolate. To reject Him as Saviour (either by neglect or by definite act) is inevitably to bring judgment. To the Jews this meant loss of their national home-their leading city, but to us it means the loss of our eternal souls.

"There is terrible suggestiveness in the two statements in verse 34, 'I would,' 'Ye would not.' The whole secret of Jerusalem's desolation and destruction is found in the words, 'Ye would not.' The whole secret of the loss of the individual soul is found in the words, 'Ye will not' (John 5:40)" (John W. Bradbury). This lesson presses home to the individual reader the question, Are you saved? What is your answer? It also affords the Sunday school teacher an excellent opportunity to seek to lead the members of the class to a definite decision for Christ. The Sunday school is a good place to give an invitation

Pattern No. 1546-B is a design that inspires even the sewing amateur to get out scissors and cloth and begin. The jumper is so very simple to make and the bolero offers little or no problem. The matching bonnet can be made on a very simplified plan!

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1546-B is designed for sizes 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years. Size 3 requires 2 yards of 35 or 39-inch material for ensemble. Bonnet lining 1/2 yard. Dress and bolero trimming 23/4 yards ric-rac, bonnet 3/4 yard.

WOMEN who are looking for an extra-practical style to make as a serviceable cotton work dress will approve highly of Pattern No. 1554-B. This straight button-front shirtwaist model with a set-in belt will look trim and smart in denim, cotton gabardine or seersucker.

Tailored details which are effective in giving this dress an efficient and pleasant appearance are the yoke shoulders, simple notched collar, cuffs on the sleeves and a set of ample-sized patch pockets. Trim lines throughout slim the figure and heighten the appeal of this cheerful model. Gen-

Disappearing Island

Falcon island in the South Pacific is unique in that it has vanished and reappeared three times since its discovery in 1865, says Collier's. Being built up by the ashes of volcanic eruption and then destroyed by wind, rain and ocean current so many times, Falcon is such a geographical curiosity that it has been visited by scientists from all over the world, most of whom preferred to examine it, because of poisonous gas from the deck of their ship.

PLEASE RETURN HANGERS

For years dry cleaners all over the country gave out wire hangers when garments were returned to customers. Steel was plentiful and hangers were low in price. Today, it's different. The steel that used to go into hangers must now be manufactured. Therefore, it becomes necessary for us to ask the return of as many hangers as possible.

Most homes have a number of extra hangers clutter ing up closets and in some instances they even get to be a nuisance. So help conserve our country's steel supply by making possible the re-use of these hangers. Gather them up and give us a ring. We'll be glad to come and get
