for this important practice.

IN ADVANCED STAGE NOW

County Agent W. L. Finley Gives Some Timely Suggestions

The advanced stage which Iosco county farm work has now reached, probably marks a new all-time record for this part of Michigan, however, County Agent W. L. Finley suggests several things which should be checked upon as quickly as possible if this already established handicap is to be maintained throughout the Lunch Room Here e summer season.

Higher prices for alfalfa seed this spring should not discourage Iosco county formers from seeding their full acreage. Neither is it necessary that seed costs per acre be greater than customary.

The money necessary to buy ten pounds of alfalfa seed in the past will buy seven or eight pounds this year. An even distribution of this smaller amount of seed will provide all of the alfalfa plants that can grow upon each square foot of ground.

Other things which will make this expensive seed go farther include a well prepared seed bed, however, Tawas Church May 19-21

Rev. and Mrs. E. T. Quanabush.

Well prepared seed bed, however, most of these are already completed but there are still things that are important. Roll or cultipack the field more firmly than ever before. Be sure to use local grown seed. You may still apply commercial fertilizer, even alfalfa and a like quantity of brome grass an improved hay or pasture field may be planned upon for the next three or four years. Remember, it is important to plant shallow.

Corn—there is still plenty of time poses is to determine how many people are already participating in the program and the extent to which they intend to pursue the regular purchase plan.

Corn—there is still plenty of time but be sure not to wait. Plant a few kernels in a little dish and place it near the kitchen stove then you may know whether or not it will grow.
The seed may be placed between two small pieces of cotton and kept moist and within a few, days you will know. Be sure not to guess about germin-ation, in two weeks it will be too late and a failure is expensive. We need all the food we can grow! Severe freezing kills the seed corn germ, so be sure not to guess about the corn

Rationing Regulations

It was announced yesterday by Russel H. McKenzie, Iosco county rationp. m. Let's be curious and come out and sneak a preview of these two teams in action.

He has a copyright on "The Star Spangled Banner," taken out and duly recorded in 1929. This was his stepped-down version of the National Anthem. The copyright is a bit of a joke which, says Mr. O'Hara, will enable him to bequeath a singable National Anthem to his country in his will.

He scouted some interesting historical background in his professional Study of "The Star Spangled Banner" and how we got it. In England and Wales, in the late Eighteenth century, it was sung by tavern roisterers as "Anacreon in Heaven." They could reach the high notes easily. The explanation, Mr. O'Hara's researches disclosed, was that in a cold, foggy climate the larnyx grows smaller, in order to keep out the weather. Therefore there are more tenor voices.

Mr. O'Hara probed still further and found that California had more basses and baritones than colder states. So he reset the anthem to four years as a clerk in the Canadian Bank of Commerce. All that time he was writing songs, surprised and happy when Caruso suddenly featured his "Your Eyes Have Told Me," and Al Jolson did the same for his "Tennessee."

We have an idea that if Al Schacht were shrewdly used he might be worth a brace of battleships to this country. As we see it many of the invocations of democracy which come from the Washington founts of erudition do not quite get the public ear; that they need a bit of "corn," in the Broadway lingo, or at any rate a widened public appeal and a dash of humor. Cover Nation

The setting of price ceilings on practically every conceivable commodity in the country had been expected by the business world, hence it was received with little shock.

The impact on the public had been terrific, however, and it is certain that business men were surprised at the drastic rules to be adopted by Leon Henderson to put 'teeth'' into the price control plan.

Henderson had made it "life or death" for business by a very simple procedure. He proposed licensing all retailers and wholesalers, and if found violating a single one of the price ceilings, they would face an instant loss of their license to do business.

This was a form of control which was not familiar to anyone living a steam-heated singing range.

He came to the United States in 1904, at the age of 22 and worked ness ear with a sickening thud, and the merchant could now say "I know what it is to be at war."

German and Italian commentators picked this up gleefully, and called it a terrific blow "to the American way of life" as indeed it was, and the President promptly and frankly

But in general the spirit was excellent, and while there was some talk of a growing "black market" in tires, and the nation was going to have to cope with that sort of thing, Henderson's penalties were expected to be sufficient to meet the need, and the future was being faced with a good heart by the rank and file of the country, whether consumer or producer, whether buyer or seller.

WAGES:

Hold Still

With the President giving the green light to the program to set ceilings on prices and incomes, setting $25,000 a year net as the latter, the question of ceilings on wages came in for much comment but no action.

The President had taken a strong public stand for the 40-hour week continuance, revealed that labor in war industry was constantly working at least 48 hours, and pointing out that as price ceilings were not retroactive, but were fixed at March's highest levels, he did not favor a program which would reduce the weekly paycheck.

While there had been much talk about the work-week, and some proposed legislation, nobody had so far had the temerity to come forward with a program to cut everybody's wages in war industry.

Labor itself had voluntarily foregone the double time for Sundays and holidays, while holding out for the time and a half for the sixth day of work, and the same for a seventh if necessary.

It was the attitude of the White House that with rents held to a ceiling, and with the cost of living stabilized through commodity price ceilings, there could be no excuse

American youngsters when visited by Santa Claus next Christmas time will find that the war has had a decided effect on their playthings. This was demonstrated at the 40th annual toy fair held under the auspices of the Toy Manufacturers of the United States. As a result of the co-operation of the manufacturers with the country's defense efforts, the exhibits demonstrated a sweeping simplification of lines with a reduction of individual items averaging 50 per cent. Non-critical war materials have been substituted wherever possible and to bring about additional conservation of materials, lighter weight construction and simplified packaging have been developed in all toy lines. Also orders are being accepted on a "when and if' basis.

A woman visitor in one of the city's oldest, swankiest and most conservative clubs, the other afternoon made a discovery which puzzled her no end. On one of the marble wash basins, she found a child's size washboard and brush which apparently were kept there permanently. Knowing that none of the club members was at an age where dolls had any appeal, she couldn't figure out the presence of toys in such surroundings. Finally, she made inquiries and after awhile, obtained the information she sought. It seems that the washboard and brush are the property of a very wealthy but somewhat eccentric member of the club who keeps them in the washroom so that they will be handy whenever she desires to scrub her money.

Coming down Broadway in a taxi at theater time the other evening. there was some congestion near 54th street. When we at last resumed our journey, our driver swung well out in the middle of the street to avoid a taxi which was double parked. There was a driver, but he was slumped down in the seat and snoring peacefully. Our driver informed us that that often happened; the wheel that often, when they make a living, spend such long hours at the wheel that often, when they make a stop, they drop off to sleep. As we proceeded on our way, we saw a cop leave his post and go back, evidently to awaken the sleeper.

Then came a wire with the information that the reservations could not be held. Reason: "The government is taking over the hotel as an adjunct to the airfield and wants immediate possession." So the holi-day-takers had to look up another hotel. And that might be a tip to those contemplating trips-first find a place the government doesn't

Out-of-towners who go to nightclubs while in New York, may be interested in the fact that part of the check presented to them by the ever-expectant waiter at the end of the evening, goes to pay for food and liquor never ordered or consumed. Even the most verdant visitor of course knows that New York has "clip joints" where the size of the check depends largely on the degree of sobriety of the customer or whether he looks like a "fall guy." But it is not generally known outside of the city-Broadway of course is quite well aware of it-that in perfectly respectable places, especially the swank spots, patrons pay for what they do not get. The reason is the "cuffo" list. That is, those who are entertained by the management at no cost to themselves, except possibly tips.

Chinese Train Here to Crack Japs

Chinese air students are now given the same flight training that is given to American aviation cadets, at Phoenix, Ariz. The only phase of training which differs from the 35-week American course is the instruction in military drill. Upon completion of their course, the fliers will be commissioned as lieutenants in the Chinese air forces and assigned to service in the Far East. Special Chinese officers have been assigned to accompany the students.

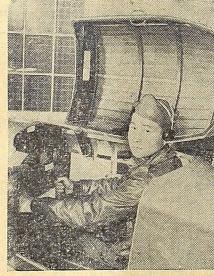

In photo at top a group of Chinese cadets are singing the Chinese national anthem which is being recorded so it may be played in China. In the center of the group is Major C. J. Kanaga, U. S. A., and Capt. Tseng Ching Lan. In the bottom picture the Chinese cadets are flying

BEING FIT FOR AIR FORCE An insurance agent of my acquaintance uses a novel method in soliciting insurance. He points out that his company (it could apply, of course, to all companies) is very strict about the physical examination. In order not to have an applicant apply for insurance and be rejected, he has the applicant first have his own or other than the insurance physician examine him to find out if he will be accepted. Each insurance company notifies the other companies of all rejections and the reason or reasons insurance agent pays the physician. The reaction to this is that the candidate for insurance becomes more interested in his physical condition and if there is some defect he will be accepted for insurance, he tries to correct this defect.

Military physicians examining for the air force are pointing out that it would be of great help to them if the recruit would first undergo a physicial examination by his family physician who knows his physical and, what is equally important, his mental and emotional makeup. Knowing the military requirements as to eyesight, hearing, chest development, height and weight, the family physician knows also as to any recent or past ailment and what that ailment may have done to the recruit from the mental and emotional standpoint.

Some months ago Flight Surgeon M. Martyn Kafka, Scott Field, Ill., in asking the co-operation of family physicians stated that what might be considered minor or unimportant defects in civilian life might be serious defects in an air pilot who has to fly at high altitudes and changing temperatures. By telling a candidate for the air force that he is fit to pass despite some minor ailment such as a cold, underweight, overweight, missing teeth, the candidate may lose much time and money by being rejected when he is examined at the air field. Some minor condition can become a serious condition under the stress of

What to Do to Stop Bleeding

If during a boxing bout a boxer gets cut, the referee can decide whether it is severe enough to stop the bout. Fortunately, most experienced referees are humane and will stop the bout rather than have the boxer's career cut short by further injury or infection.

MONDAY: THE DAY OF AUTHORITY

LESSON TEXT—Matthew £1:12:22.
GOLDEN TEXT—My house shall be called house of prayer for all peoples.—Isaiah

Modern presentations of Christ in picture and sermon often give the impression that He was an effeminate man who went about doing gentle little deeds of kindness. One almost feels that He spoke in a half whisper and that He fearfully avoided the difficulties and dangers of life. therefor. For this examination the

Such a picture of Christ, whether in words or on canvas, was never obtained from the Bible. Yes, He was gentle and kind; He did go about doing good; He was altogether humble-but why give the false which needs to be corrected before impression that gentleness means weakness, kindness means a sentimental softness, etc. These are the virtues of a strong man and such was our Christ. He was a manly man who so excited the admiration of the boys in the temple that they shouted a holy "Hurrah" (Hosanna -in Hebrew).

On Monday as our Lord came into the city He saw and dealt with the fruitless fig tree and later in the day He cleansed the temple. This seems to be the order of the events (see Mark 11) and we will so consider

I. Jesus Stimulates Faith by an Act of Judgment (vv. 18-22).

In the morning as Jesus returned to Jerusalem, He was hungry. He had probably spent the night in prayer after His time of fellowship with the disciples (Mark 11:11). It was early spring, and normally not the time for figs to be ready to eat, but He saw a tree which already had foliage on it. Since the leaves form after the fruit, He properly looked for figs-green, perhaps, but even so useable for food-and there were

In a swift miracle of judgment, He condemned the tree, which soon withered. Some have assumed that He acted in anger, but that is evidently not so. His act was a sign to Israel and to us. The fig tree was a figure of Israel (see Hosea 9:10, Joel 1:7, Luke 13:6-9). They as a nation had the outward signs of fruit, that is, the "leaves" of temple worship, teaching of the law, etc., but there was no fruit of repentance and faith, of real love for God (see Rom. 2:17-23). Judgment was certain, and our Lord cursed a useless, fruitless tree to try to awaken the people to their need.

So our Lord comes to us-to look below the foliage of Christian profession, of our charities and benevolences, of our correct doctrinal views-to see if there is any fruit of real Christian living. How often He must turn away in sadness because

This miracle was not only a sign of judgment; it was used by our Lord to stimulate the disciples' faith. What they had seen was only an indication of what faith (and note it was their faith) could do. The promise of God to those who, abiding in Christ and with His Word abiding in their heart, ask according to His der or liquid that the second or will, in faith nothing doubting, is without limit.

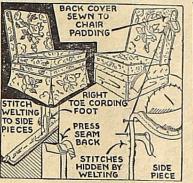

II. Jesus Stimulates Praise by an Act of Authority (vv. 12-17).

For a second time He drove out from His Father's house those who had made it a place of merchandise, of commercialized thievery. it a substance — thrombin — that This is a majestic picture. The Son of God and Son of Man steps into self lacks enough of this substance, langer) drives it out. The people who had suffered long because of (probably as a "gift" even as such things are managed in our day),

> The boys who were in the temple (for such is doubtless the meaning of "children" in v. 15) were so deas we have suggested, were really a under the cloak of religion. He is against sin and corruption. Possibly the church would reach a good many more men and boys in our day if it would step out in faith to fight the wrong and support the right. Then maybe the young men would shout, "Hurrah for the church," instead of some of the things they are saying.

The chief priests and scribes were "sore displeased" (v. 15) both by the acts of Jesus and the praise of the boys. They would be! And they A.-Angina pectoris is a group of have a host of descendants who hold places of authority today—yes, even in the church—who would be much displeased if such things were to happen now. But why fear them? Is it not high time that the people of God honored their Lord both by faith and good works, regardless of what men may say? Ought we not to please God rather than men (see Acts 5:29 and Ps. 56:4)?

It's a patriotic duty to help keep tele- and do not hold the line merely to talk phone lines clear so that important war messages will not be delayed. Even though your line may not be needed for war calls, a "traffic jam" of calls might tie up a central office, stopping emergency messages from getting through. And scarcity of war material makes it impossible for us to add to central office capacity as fully as we should like to do.

Keeping telephone conversations short will help. We suggest that you know beforehand what you want to say; speak distinctly so you won't have to repeat, of trivial things.

In so far as material shortages permit, we shall continue to provide the best service possible, and we look forward to the day when we can meet all requests as in the past. But now, and for the duration, war needs come first.

INSTALLMENT SEVENTEEN
THE STORY SO FAR: Karen Waterson, believing herself to be the heir to Alakoa, the island estate of her grand-father, finds herself no heiress at all, when the old gentleman, Garrett Waterwhen the old gentleman, Garrett Waterson, turns up after a long disappearance.
Meantime she and her lawyer have been engaged in a dispute over the rights to the property with the Wayne family, who have been in possession since the old man left, many years before. Richard (Tonga Dick) Wayne has fallen in love with Karen, as has also the lawyer, John Colt. After a quarrel with Dick, Karen decides to leave Alakoa with Colt. Old Garrett Waterson has arrived at Alakoa and is very ill with fever but expresses a wish to see Karen. Dick gathers a crew, overtakes Karen and Colt and argues with their ship's pilot, Ramey, to turn back. Ramey refuses, saying he can bring piracy charges against Dick. Now continue with the story.

"Such as will get you laughed out of the Islands. It's too bad, but those will have to wait. Turn your boat, Ramey."

'Hold your course as you go,' Colt ordered.

'Are you going to turn, or not?" "And what if I don't?" Ramey jit-

"The Holokai has orders to come alongside, lash fast, and board, in just about another two minutes. You can turn your boat, or my crew will turn your boat, I don't care a damn which."

"He's bluffing," Colt said. "Hold your course, and I promise—"

"No, he isn't," Ramey whim-The little one-eyed skipper looked as if he were going to break down and cry. "I wouldn't put it past him to do it, by God! And if those crazy-headed Kanakas of his start running wild-

"You won't like that, will you? Well-here they come!"

The Holokai was swinging nearer now; by her deck lights they could see Dick's Kanakas, eager at the

"Oh, dear God in heaven!" Ramey blubbered. The Seal turned back.

CHAPTER XV

Whatever else Dick Wayne accomplished or failed to accomplish by bringing the unhappy Seal back to Alakoa, that extravagant gesture undoubtedly saved the life of old Garrett Waterson.

The Seal's anchor was no more than down when Dick took Karen aboard the Sarah. Dick and Karen still had nothing to say to each other; so that Dick had no way of knowing what was going on in her mind. It seemed to him that she was timid, but also a little eager; and, in the face of his supposition that she had left Alakoa in preference to facing her grandfather, he found this surprising.

At first it seemed that they were too late. Garrett Waterson was mumbling weakly from the depths of a fever haze; he recognized no one, and could not be made to understand that the person Dick had brought him was the granddaughter whom he had never seen. When finally he was persuaded to fix his eyes upon her in what appeared a moment of clarity, the effect was worse than as if he had not seen her

"I won't talk to you," he said, his words suddenly strong and distinct. "I'm positively not interested in any further marine insurance. I've told you before, I do not wish to discuss insurance in any way.'

Tears came into Karen's eyes as she turned to Shimazu. "You're the doctor? Do you think he's going to

"What I cannot understand," said Shimazu, "is why he is still alive Karen's eyes darted about the smothering confusion of the little cabin. "We'll have to move him out of here to some place where he can be taken care of. This place isn't even clean.'

"You can't move him," Stahlquist said from the door; "he would

"It would be dangerous," Shimazu agreed. "I would be afraid to move him now."

"Then we'll have to do the best we can here," Karen said. She took off her hat and tossed it aside. "Will somebody have my things sent over from the Seal?"

"What are you going to do?"
"I'm going to find some way to get some air in here. And then I'm going to clear up this litter. There aren't even any sheets on that bed. The doctor will have to tell me what else a nurse is supposed to do."

1 "You can't change anything in here," Stahlquist said pessimistically. "He'll fight like hell. This is a terrible old man; pretty near everybody's afraid of him, but me."

"I'm not afraid of him," Karen said. "I'm going to take care of

That was the beginning of a week that seemed a long time for them all. In the face of a good deal of discouragement Karen persisted in doing just what she had said she would. She moved onto the Sarah and stayed there, and somehow she persuaded Garrett Waterson to submit to the care which no one had ever been able to force on him be-

Colt fumed and paced upon the Seal; Ernest and Willard 'Wayne were in Honolulu; and Dick Wayne sulked aboard the Holokai, hardly leaving it at all.

"I'll go to Nuku Hiva." "Have to go "All right, all right," Dick said. myself," Waterson insisted.

factors of the John Colt-Dick Wayne-Karen Waterson triangle-each of them established in lonely and foolish grandeur on his own boat-were suspended in a deadlock which only could be broken, apparently, by either Garrett Waterson's recovery or his demise.

Dick saw to it that the Sarah was provided with everything that Karen or Dr. Shimazu wanted, but he hardly ever went aboard her himself. When he did go aboard, Karen Waterson avoided him; and when this was not possible she still managed to disregard him so completely that he was left with a curious feeling of not being in existence any more. Reports on Garrett Waterson's condition were encouraging, but Dick found that they did not interest him much. Dick Wayne was rapidly drifting into a state of mind where nothing interested him at all. Honolulu was pestering him to come there for the reading of James Wayne's will, and there was nothing to prevent his going; but he stayed where he was, for no more reason than that it seemed too much trouble to go anywhere else. Ernest Wayne tried to talk to him from Honolulu on the wireless phone, but Dick did not go ashore to take the call. He let his days drag out in a morose inactivity, chiefly filled in with innumerable games of solitaire in the cabin.

Yet at night he was unable to sleep. For a day or two he drank heavily, in the hopes that it would make him sleepy, but it did not; and when the Holokai's liquor ran out he did not bother to have it replenished. He stayed away from Karen Waterson, trying to accustom himself to the idea of a world in which, for him, she did not exist; for he knew what was the matter with him well

Ramey came to see him in the middle of the week, driven by a need of supplies. Now that it was apparent that the return of the Seal to Alakoa had resulted in a lengthening of John Colt's charter, the Seal's one-eyed skipper seemed to hold no grudge.

"I'll send you your engine oil," Dick said, "if you'll tell me one thing.

"Like what?" Ramey asked dubiously.

"I'd kind of like to know," Dick said, "where Colt and Miss Waterson were going, and what for, the night I had to come out and fetch you back."

"Oh, is that all?" Ramey grunted. "Why, they was going to Hono-lulu to get married." "So that was it." He managed a faint, sardonic grin. "She certainly had a busy evening." "Huh?"

"Let it go." Dick went back to his solitaire

When the week had stretched on into ten days it was known that Garrett Waterson, definitely, was going to live. The tremendous vitality of the old man had asserted itself once more. When this was conclusively evident, even to the unbelieving Shimazu, Dick knew that Karen would not be at Alakoa much longer. He knew that he ought to try to interest himself in something-anything, to overcome the lethargy upon which he was stranded; but it took the departure of John Colt to get him into half-hearted action.

The Seal moved out of the bay of Alakoa unostentatiously one morning at daybreak. She blundered her way through the shoals by means of the curious luck which seemed to follow Ramey no matter what folly he committed, and eased off around the east point of the island roughly in the direction of Honolulu. Nobody on the Holokai knew the meaning of this at first. It was hours before they knew definitely that Colt | I believe she'll be following Colt to had gone back to Honolulu on the Honolulu directly. Seal-but that Karen Waterson was still aboard the Sarah. Dick's curiosity was sufficiently aroused by this to cause him to row all the way over to the Sarah-a distance of some two hundred yardsfor a visit with the convalescent old man. He tried to conceal from himself his reason for wishing to talk to Waterson, but he could not. He was

On the bay of Alakoa the three | aware of a weak but persistent hope that something had happened to cause John Colt and Karen Waterson to break up; and he wanted to find out from Garrett Waterson if this might be the case.

Karen Waterson was taking an hour ashore, so that her grandfather was alone. He was propped up on clean pillows, smoking a cigar which he had probably taken this opportunity to steal; and though he looked feeble, and somehow chastened, he was surprisingly himself.

"Where the hell have you been?" he demanded gustily, in what was evidently meant to be a roar. "You've got to get me out of this!"

That Garrett Waterson was notably tamed in spirit needed no more proof than his concession that he needed any help from anybody; but other evidence was not lacking. Such a change had taken place in Garrett Waterson's quarters as Dick would not have believed. All the great litter of charts and miscellaneous duffle had disappeared; even the bulkheads, which had been a scaling and ancient green, had been scraped and painted white.

"We've got to go to Nuku Hiva," Garrett Waterson announced, "and we've got to go now. This fool Jap doctor and this girl of mine don't understand."

The old man, it now appeared, had worked himself into a state of mind. Dick knew enough about Garrett Waterson's scattered and loose-knit affairs to know why he thought he had to go to Nuku Hiva. Once the old man had purchased an option on a site for a wharf, or something of the sort. Then he had forgotten about it, only to remember it suddenly and inauspiciously just as the option was about to run out. Dick did not believe that either Waterson or Nuku Hiva needed a wharf, but it was no use arguing, he supposed.

don't take that by the first of the month," Waterson declared, "that English outfit will get in there, and the opportunity of a lifetime will go up in smoke--just like that!" He blew a a blast of smoke at Dick to illustrate what was going to happen to the opportunity of a lifetime, and it made him cough, so that he spilled cigar ashes on the highly scrubbed deck.

"All right, all right," Dick said.

"I'll go to Nuku Hiva." "Have to go myself," Waterson

"You'll stay here," Dick said, 'or I'll have nothing to do with the business at all. Then where will you be?" The old man finally had to be satisfied with that. Not until the long digression about lifetime opportunities in Nuku Hiva was settled, was Dick able to raise the question which had really brought him here.

He put out a tentative feeler. "I see John Colt has gone back." "So I hear."

"It's none of my business," Dick said, "but I'd kind of like to know why he should be rushing back to Honolulu while Karen is still here. "I sent him back," Garrett Waterson said complacently.

"You sent him back?"

"He was over here with some scoundrelly proposition, whereby I was supposed to throw in with him, and we were supposed to get the island of Alakoa away from the Waynes. He made me kind of mad. Seemed that all I had to do was offer proof that I'm out of my mind -that gets us the islands back. I told him to get to hell out. I told him if he wasn't out of the bay in twelve hours I was going to have my crew grab him and keel-haul him. I guess he must have taken me literal."

"But Karen is going to stay with "I'd like her to; but she says not.

"Following Colt?" "She's kind of a little poker face," Garrett Waterson complained. "It's past me to make out what she's going to do. But if you want my private personal opinion, I think she's going to marry the guy.' Dick managed to say, "How ar you going to like that?"

Perfect Close for a Meal—Apricot Jelly Roll (See Recipes Below)

Mother-Daughter Luncheon

Once a year it is becoming for Daughter to don the cook's cap and uniform and come out with a whole meal cooked to please Mother. And the day Mother appreciates it most is on her day of the year-Mother's day! So, today, I've planned a menu which even the youngest cooks can make into a glorified meal to which they can invite their mothers.

Now, young cooks, on your toes if you would gather laurels at Mother's day luncheon time! Bring out the measuring cups and ingredients, first. Then read the recipes over several times and visualize each step before you start. Ready? Good. Your first course-served in small glass cups with a sprig of mint, if you can get it-will stimulate the appetites and brighten the table:

> *Fruit Cup. (Serves 8) 3 oranges, peeled 1 grapefruit, peeled

1 pint strawberries, hulled

2 bananas Section the oranges and grapefruit. Peel the bananas and dice. Mix with fruit sections. Sprinkle lemon juice over the fruit, sweeten to taste. Let stand and chill. When ready to serve, place in fruit cups. Eggs are plentiful now because the government asked farmers to have their hens work overtime to increase egg production that they might be sent abroad and have enough for home use. So, bring out the eggs and their surplus of nutrition to menus by choosing one of these two recipes for your main luncheon dish. Eggs are noted for the facility with which they can be cooked. and there is but one major rule to follow in cooking them: use as little heat as possible to get a tender product. *Eggs a la King.

(Serves 6-8) 4 tablespoons butter 4 tablespoons of flour

2 cups hot milk 1 teaspoon salt Pepper ½ tablespoon chopped onion

1 tablespoon chopped green pepper

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: The nation's sugar bowl is due to be somewhat smaller than last year's because we will have to get along with a third less sugar than we had before. This means we will be using several substitutes.

You smart homemakers will learn how to use maple sugar, where you like maple flavoring. One and one-third cups of maple sugar may be substituted for one cup of granulated sugar.

Honey, oldest sweetening, has versatile uses. Use it on your breakfast fruits, cereals, sauce for ice cream, in cakes, quickbreads, cookies, even in sugars, jams and jellies. Since honey has a distinctive flavor, use half honey and half sugar in recipes or the consistency and color of the product you make may be changed considerably.

Corn syrup may be substituted cup for cup for granulated sugar, but when using it, cut the liquid in the recipe down by one-third. Molasses makes your gingerbreads, baked beans, brown bread, cakes and even cookies.

Besides these substitutes you'll have dried fruits which are high in sugar content. When stewing fruits, add sugar toward the end of the cooking period: it will take less to sweeten the fruit.

Make desserts with fruit juices, both canned and fresh, and you will find it bridges the sugar ration well. Above all, do not waste sugar. You can probably get along with less in the morning coffee and tea. Try it.

This Week's Menu

Mother-Daughter Banquet *Fruit Cup *Eggs a La King Asparagus
*Orange Frosted Berry Salad Biscuits and Honey
*Jelly Roll Tea or Coffee *Recipe Given

tablespoon chopped pimiento hard cooked eggs

1/2 cup sliced, cooked mushrooms Melt the butter, add the flour and stir until smooth. Combine with hot milk. Let cook eight minutes over hot water (in a double boiler). Stir with egg beater. Add onion, green pepper, pimiento, sliced eggs and mushrooms. Let cook five minutes. Serve hot on buttered toast.

Eggs a la Rockefeller. (Makes 1 serving) 1 slice bread 1 thick slice tomato 1 soft cooked egg 2 tablespoons cheese sauce Parsley

Toast the bread slightly and spread thinly with butter. Place the slice of tomato on the bread then on the tomato, put the soft boiled egg. Over this pour the cheese sauce and garnish with pars-

Cheese sauce: Add 1/2 cup finely grated or finely cut cheese to 1 cup hot white sauce, and stir until cheese is dissolved. *Orange Frosted Berry Salad. (Serves 6)

1 tablespoon gelatin 2 tablespoons cold water ½ cup orange juice, heated 34 cup orange juice, unheated 1/4 cup sugar

1 tablespoon lemon juice 1 cup orange pieces 1/4 cup berries or seedless grapes ½ cup sliced peaches Orange sections

Frosted Derries Soften the gelatin in the water 5 minutes. Dissolve in the heated orange juice. Cool and add the unheated orange juice. When slightly thickened add the orange pieces, grapes, and sliced peaches. Pour into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold and garnish with orange sections and clusters of frosted berries. (To frost berries, dip in slightly beaten egg white and roll in granulated sugar. Spread on paper to dry.) Serve salad with lemon flavored mayonnaise. As you go into your sugar-rationing period, are you keeping your eyes peeled for recipes that take it easy on the sugar without sacrificing any of their appetite appeal? For that very reason you'll like this one of jelly roll because it uses naturally sweetened apricots for the filling and eliminates the powdered sugar sprinkled over the top.

*Jelly Roll. (Makes 10-12 slices) 3 eggs

1/4 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon vanilla extract 1 cup sugar

1 cup sifted cake flour 1 teaspoon baking powder 5 tablespoons flour 2 tablespoons butter Add salt and vanilla to eggs, beat until light and fluffy. Add sugar in 2-tablespoon portions, beating after each addition. Add sifted flour and baking powder. Fold in carefully and quickly. Stir in water and butter, heated together until butter is melted. Pour into a jelly roll pan, about 16 by 11 by 1 inch that has been greased and lined with paper, then greased again. Bake in a moderately hot (375-degree) oven about 18 minutes or until nicely risen and delicately brown over the surface. Loosen edges and turn onto a piece of waxed paper or a towel sprinkled with powdered sugar. Remove pan and peel off waxed paper. Spread with dried fruit-cook your favorite dried fruit (apricot, prunes or peaches are good) in a minimum of water, then put through a sieve, cool and spread. Roll lengthwise, cool on a cake rack.

Spreading News in Tibet

In Tibet news is read aloud by the priests to the populace. There are two reasons for this: Few Tibetans can read, and only 50 copies of their one newspaper are printed.

Walter Asboe, a European, does the job on a hand press. Then he sends the 50 papers to the lamas or priests, who summon the people of the neighboring villages to listen to the news.

The papers are then forwarded to another group of lamas. By the time they have traveled to the far frontiers of Tibet, the news may be from six months to two
