LABOR FRONT: Lewis Denounced

Accusing his former close friend and associate John L. Lewis, head of the mine workers of being "Hell bent on creating national confusion and national disunity," Phillip Murray, CIO president, sponsored a resolution declaring that Lewis is "attempting to sabotage the defense program and spread the spirit of defeatism.'

Murray charged that Lewis proposed to him that they go before the CIO convention, in Detroit last fall and fight President Roosevelt's foreign policies. He said he rejected the proposal as "treasonable." The CIO blast followed by only a few hours a pledge from Mr. Lewis of his full support of the war effort and flat rejection of criticism that his policies are inimical to victory.

As air raid after air raid by the RAF wrought destruction in the heart of German war producing areas, the pattern of this newest offensive became increasingly clear; smash the industrial plants that produce materials for Hitler's armies; dislocate the railways that carry these products to his forces in Russia; shake the Nazi civilian morale.

How well these objectives were succeeding was indicated by British communiques. A damaging raid on Cologne was followed by two crip-pling blows at Essen in the Ruhr valley, concentration point for half of Germany's heavy war industries. Bremen, the Reich's second largest port, was next on the schedule. In the first Essen raid, 1,036 British planes converged over the Krupp munitions works, showering down

3,000 tons of explosives and incendiaries. The second installment, in the nature of a mop-up was de-signed to slow down Nazi repair efforts.

While German propaganda continued to minimize the extent of the raids, the outlook was undeniably gloomy.

But the Reich itself was not the only target of the British planes. In one 12-hour daylight period, the RAF hurled more than 1,000 planes in relays over northern France, fanning the flames of revolt among coming through soon, built quickly and stoutly of plywood, capable of long flights with a heavy load, and with production costs so low in manpower and materials that quantity production will be swift and easy. It wouldn't take many of them to do the work of a fair-sized ship, said my friend, taking into account their greater speed. He is lit up with the idea that here is the answer to the submarine problem, and he says it is, right now, a lot more than a blueprint.

Rack in March, 1932, Walter H. Beech resigned as vice president of the Curtiss-Wright corporation, to design and build commercial planes. He has had some tough going, but his decade of chance-taking in the commercial free-for-all, has blossomed into a whale of a plant at Wichita, Kan., making wooden planes, trainer planes to be sure, but right in line with coming air argosies of plywood and pre-fabricated mahogany. The side of a plane is slammed together and attached to the fuselage in only a few minutes. The plant business, in dollar accounting, has risen 4,000 per cent in the last 18 months. All fears of a financial forced landing are past.

Mr. Beech has never hesitated to take a sharp turn off the main road. He resigned from the army air corps, in 1921, eager to try out some new ideas, and organized the Swallow Aeroplane company. Then came his Travel Air Manufacturing company, building the famous "Mystery S" in which Capt. Frank Hawks outflew the crack army ships. His Beech Aircraft corporation turned out the plane which won the Mac-fadden Trophy race from St. Louis to Miami last January. He is always experimenting, with the sky as his laboratory.

President Roosevelt asked for and obtained a declaration of war by congress on the three Nazi-stooge governments of Bulgaria, Hungary and Rumania.

On the home front this newest war move meant a general round-up of enemy aliens of these nations and a freezing of their funds. On the European front it was calculated to produce a two-fold effect. It would underline closer American collaboration with Russia which long has desired such an action and contribute hearteningly to the Soviet's morale. It would serve notice on Hitler's three Balkan allies that they could not escape the consequences of their association with him. Few, however, expected America's war effort against the three new enemies to go beyond speeding up shipments of essential materials to Russia.

WAR WEAPONS: Army Has Plenty

Expanding power of Uncle Sam's army was disclosed in a report of Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, who revealed that the army has all the weapons it can send abroad under present shipping conditions and enough to arm every soldier in the United States. Mr. Patterson said the army today requires twice as many light arms per 1,000 men as it did before the extensive use of parachute troops.

SALVAGE PROGRAM: Patch and Pray

Greater civilian co-operation with the salvage program to speed up the flow of scrap metals and rubber loomed as William L. Batt, chairman of the requirement committee of the War Production board, warned that industry must get ready to "patch and pray." Mr. Batt disclosed that many essential war materials are now short and declared that "our civilian economy is fast going on a minimum subsistence standard."

WAR BONDS: More Sales Needed

"Do I really need what I am going to buy? Can't I do without it? Won't it wait until after the war?" Americans were urged by Secretary of the Treasury Henry L. Morgenthau to ask themselves these questions before making any purchases. The point of the secretary's plea was that the buying of war bonds transcends any other purchase. "Any man or woman who chooses this time to go on a buying spree is committing an act of sabotage against our war effort," Mr. Morgenthau said in a nationwide radio address.

Unnecessary spending, he added, drains money from the defense program, creates greater price pressure and encourages inflation. More and more purchases of war bonds, he said, are the antidote.

NAVY BILL: Billions for Ships

Two facts of prime significance to the future conduct of the war stood out in the provisions included in the new $10,452,000,000 naval expansion program over which congress deliberated as a means of giving the United States the largest navy in the world. These facts were: 1. The emphasis on the construction of aircraft carriers; and 2. The absence of battleships from the proposed naval building program.

The program clearly emphasized the United Nations high command's belief that aircraft and fast, lighter ships equipped to fight submarines will be a determining factor in winning the war.

The naval building program, introduced by Chairman Carl Vinson of the house naval committee, would provide $8,300,000,000 for more than 500 new fighting ships over and above the current two-ocean navy plan. It would include many aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers and convoy escort ships specially equipped to fight submarines. Representative Vinson reported that 100 new warships will join the fleet during the remaining seven months of this year. He predicted that the two-ocean navy program would be completed in 24 months.

REINHARD HEYDRICH "Butcher of Moravia."

Reprisal measures which followed the wounding of Reinhard ("The Hangman") Heydrich in Prague, by a Czech patriot, increased in swiftness and severity when the news of the death of this sadistic executioner became public. The shooting of hundreds of Czechs suspected by the Nazis of complicity in the plot to rid the world of Heydrich was reported.

Ironically enough, the "butcher of Moravia" died in much the same manner as hundreds of unfortunate nostages he had ordered shot in France, Holland, Belgium, Norway, Poland and other countries during his hated career.

Hard-bitten Heydrich earned the soubriquet of "Der Henker" or hangman of the Nazi regime by reason of his ruthless application of repressive measures-usually the firing squad or the gallows-against those who dared challenge Hitler's rule.

The successful attack on this Nazi leader emphasized again the smoldering spirit of unrest in Germanoccupied countries-a spirit ready to flame high when Reich reverses make possible organized uprisings.

Lady Nicotine: Weekly dance contests are held at the American Theater Wing's Stage Door canteen with theater tickets as prizes. The other evening, Radie Harris, in charge of the entertainment com-mittee, decided there should be a variation. So she arranged for the presentation of some quite elegant lighters. It turned out that the winners represented three branches of the service, a soldier, a sailor and a marine. The enthusiasm with which the prizes were received by the fortunate trio convinced Miss Harris that she had made a wise choice. Later, however, she learned that one of the prize winners, a young sailor from Brooklyn, did not smoke. Nevertheless, believing that he simply had to make use of his fancy new lighter, he obtained a cigar from a friend, lit up with enthusiasm, took several puffs-and went out like a light.

Training: At the Stage Door can-teen, the stars who dance with the boys in brown and blue are con-vinced that lads from the Middle West are the real wits. The latest story is one that Ireene Wicker, notice lady of the air ways tells petite lady of the air waves, tells. Introduced to a former member of her juvenile radio audience, she asked the husky, apple - cheeked youth what kind of service he was preparing himself for.

"Well, I ain't made up my mind yet," he drawled, "but I got a hunch it'll be desert warfare."

"Why?" asked the surprised Miss Wicker.

"Maybe it's because I'm in such good practice for it," replied the young soldier. "You see, for five years, I ate that dry cereal you used to advertise." . . .

First, they had a school canning day when anyone who had extra fruit and vegetables could bring it to be canned for the school. They arranged to get surplus commodities from the department of agriculture and a WPA cook. They succeeded in getting a nicely equipped school lunch building by using the material from two abandoned district schools and getting NYA boys to build it. Then bicycles, too, became unavailable. So the horse seemed the only recourse. One wealthy owner of a big show place solved the problem ious to continue their cow-testing rather neatly. On a recent weekend inspection of her property, she went to a local dealer and bought the very best tricycle he had in stock.

More Worries: Newport is more or less worried about another matter-whether the United States navy will take over the resort and what part blackouts will play in the summer social affairs. Owners of shore resorts in the vicinity of New York are even more worried about wartime restrictions. It has been alleged that some of the sinkings of American tankers and freighters have been due to the fact that the ships were silhouetted against the lights of beach resorts. New York city has already blacked out lights along some of the parkways and arranged others so that there will be no seaward reflection, and more will be done along that line. In fact, Coney Island, instead of being its usual summer blaze of light, will probably look completely black from the ocean.

New York hotel owners—or at least some of them—are looking for an increase this fall in the number of non-transient guests. They figure that suburbanites, unable to use their cars and facing a furnace oil shortage, will simplify existence by closing their homes and moving into town for the winter. Garden Total Doubled.

South Dakota's garden goals called for just twice as many gardens as had ever been grown there before. When all of the gardens are counted, it looks as if the goal will have been reached with 57,500 victory gardens to supply health-giving vegetables for South Dakota's farm families.

In times of war it is even more essential that the health and safety of children be insured, and this is woman's job. The great increase in hot school lunches and in clinics for school children and preschool children is an indication of a checking-up on this sector of the home front. When the women of Mountain View community, Va., began to check up, they found that some chil-

Casualty-1,000 miles from the enemy

LMOST as fatal as a bullet or a shell is the 1 breakdown in the spirit of a sailor or a soldier.

Our men have the finest spirit in the world. But it must be maintained in the American way.

They must not be made to feel that they are mere automatons, fighting machines, as the armed forces of the dictators have been made to feel.

Life in our navy and army is hard. Discipline is tough. It must be. But there also must be moments when the sailor or soldier is treated as Mr. Somebody-or-other.

That's where the USO comes in. For the USO is the banding together of six great agencies to serve one great purpose-to see that our boys in the camps and naval stations have a place to go, to turn to, a "home away from home."

The duties of the USO have more than doubled during the year. Its field of operations has enlarged to include almost the entire face of the globe.

To carry on its all-important work, it needs funds. It needs your contribution. No matter how small you make that contribution, it needs it. Now.

You are beset by requests for help on all sides. By all means, try to meet those requests. But among them, don't neglect the USO.

NOTICE TO Water Consumers

The Water Board wishes to inform their customers that the ordinance regulating the use of outside taps is still in effect. The ordinance forbids the use of outside taps during a fire and the use on lawns or gardens is restricted to the hours of 6 to 9 p.m. The reason for the ordinance is to keep the consumption of water within the capacity of the small well and supply the softest water available. If it becomes necessary to use the large well the water will be twice as hard which requires more soap when used for washing.

At the next regular [meeting of the Water Board, which will be June 22, the rates for the coming year will be set.

• This is a war of resources. And the housewife who saves tin and paper, uses up leftovers and remodels old clothes is helping make America's resources go as far as possible. So is her husband when he gets extra shaves out of a razor blade, saves old nails and hardware, and walks to work.

Like other folks, Michigan Bell employees are pulling together to win the war. By getting along with what they have they are helping conserve vital war materials. The girls in our offices keep extra vigilant watch over all supplies and equipment, to make them last.

Telephone men are finding new ways to keep old equipment in service. They take extra care of the tools with which they work. They are careful with cars and tires. And they even pick up small scraps of wire after a job is finished not because it's economical in money, but because the material itself is the thing that's important now.

THE STORY SO FAR: To save Nor-THE STORY SO FAR: To save Non-land Airways from bankruptcy, Cruger has agreed to have his partner, Alan Slade, fly a so-called scientist named Frayne to the Anawotto in search of the breeding ground of the trumpeter swan. Slade's application for overseas service with the army air corps has been rejected, but he is less disappointed when he learns that the company can stay in business, thanks to their client, who has paid enough to enable Cruger to buy a new plane, a Lockheed. And he is pleased when Cruger tells him that Lynn Morlock, daughter of the "flying Padre" is not going abroad with her Red Cross unit. Slade meets Lynn in town and goes with her to help a man who has been wounded in a fight. The wounded man turns out to be Slim Tumstead, a flyer who has lost his license for drinking and who is little better than an outlaw.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER III

Slade pressed closer as the yellow-faced man, wiping his hands on his apron, hurried out.

The pock-marked man righted the table and chairs as Lynn busied herself loading a hypodermic. "How is he?" asked Slade.

"He's all right," was the cool-not-ed response. "But there's a three-inch skull cut we'll have to close up. How did you get it?"

Slim's lips twitched. But he remained silent.

"How about a drink first?" he suggested, as Lynn turned back to him.

"You've had enough already," she said, quietly impersonal.

"Who gave you that jab?" per-sisted Slade. The look of the room clearly proclaimed that the fight had been a regal one.

Slim still declined to speak. It was the pock-marked man in the doorway who broke the silence. "He got it from Wolf Winston," croaked the indignant landlord. "And it's another free-for-all chalked up against this place o' mine."

"Quiet, please," was Lynn's coolnoted admonition.

Wolf Winston, Slade remembered, was a whisky-runner who'd repeatedly proved his adroitness at evading the outstretched arm of the law. He also recalled that Slim, once the crack flyer for Colonial, had been twice grounded for drinking on duty. Still later he had been linked up with Edmonton Scotty's activities as a high-grader. And there'd been a rumor or two that of late he'd been running contraband liquor in from the coast ports.

Slade felt sorry for Tumstead, just as he would feel sorry for any man of promise who threw away his chances. Among flyers, he knew, there was a free-masonry that made you forget a confrere's passing faults. But for a year now Slim had seemed stubbornly headed for trouble.

"This is going to hurt a little," Lynn was saying as she sterilized demanded. a bullet-probe, "but we've got to make sure there's no glass in that at the ceiling.

But Tumstead, for some reason, left that sentence unfinished. He shrugged and glanced at Slade. Then "could ever turn me into a chairhis half-mocking gaze went back to warmer.' Lynn.

"Let's go," Lynn said with her first sign of impatience.

Tumstead, stretched out fulllength on his couch, looked after them as they moved toward the door.

SUNDAY: THE RISEN CHRIST AND HIS DISCIPLES

LESSON TEXT-Luke 24:33-48. GOLDEN TEXT-Ye are witnesses of these things .- Luke 24:48.

The glory and gladness of the resurrection morning drove back the darkness of the tomb and replaced the disciples' sadness with holy gladness. God's message to His people is one of assurance and hope. The night may be dark, but the dawn will surely come. Two of Jesus' disciples had been walking sadly along the road to Emmaus when suddenly a stranger was with them, telling them what the Scriptures taught about the Christ-His sufferings and His glory. Their hearts burned strangely within them (Luke 24:32), but they did not recognize Him until He broke the bread of their evening meal-and then He was gone.

But now they had a joyous message which sent them hurrying back to Jerusalem to the eleven who had gathered behind locked doors to discuss the reports which had also come to them of His resurrection. And suddenly-

I. "Jesus Himself Stood in the Midst" (vv. 33-43).

What a blessed and conclusive confirmation of their report. He, their beloved Lord and Master, stood there before them, alive and speaking His tender message of "Peace."

The disciples, however, were bewildered and slow to believe. Observe how kind and patient He was with these frightened and unbelieving men. And note what a splendid testimony it is to the truth of the resurrection that they who rebellious lips. Wedding Reception

Wedding Receptions

After the "I do's" have been said, and you have remembered to wear something borrowed, something blue, and something new, besides throwing your bouquet to some lucky bridesmaid, you are ready for the reception.

The reception is among the more elaborate forms of entertaining, but because of our use your linens or damask on the wedding table. Flowers may be white calla lilies in crystal or silver centerpiece, or other delicate pastel flowers used with plenty of white to carry out the theme. Have your candles, white, too, as the occasion is somewhat formal.

At most weddings the trend is to have other refreshments besides the traditional white cake cut by the bride and the necessary assistance by the groom! If you are baking the cake at home-and it will be good if you do-plan to have a small pastry tube for the frills and decorations with celluloid or paper figures of the groom and bride as a decoration.

Chicken, because of its bland flavor and general adaptability, is the answer to your refreshment problem. Chicken in a molded egg ring makes the table a picture, and your guests can easily serve themselves: *Chicken in Molded Egg Ring. (Serves 8) cut before we close it up." "A drink would help a little," Slim once more suggested.

"You can have a cigarette," she conceded, "when I put the stitches in."

Slade produced the cigarette and held out his lighter.

Slim looked up at him with an eye that was still indifferently derisive.

"So the big boys took it away from you," he observed. "Took what away?" asked Slade, resenting the note of mockery. "That little tin-horn outfit of yours. I hear you're folding up.'

"Not on your life," countered Slade. "We've got a new ship and we're going stronger than ever." The indifferency went out of Tumstead's eye.

"So you've got a new ship. That's certainly worth remembering."

"Why?" challenged Slade. Tumstead shrugged.

"Oh, I kind of thought the big fight had brought a famine in ships over here. Does that mean you're going to keep on flying the ice routes?"

"I am," proclaimed Slade.

"You'll change your tune," Slim said, "when you get the same dirty deal I got from Colonial."

Slade backed away a little. He had the natural pride of the flyer in flying. And the thought that one of the best in the service could swing so far off-center gave him a sinking feeling.

"I thought it was the other way round," he observed.

Slim's eye-flash of hostility did not escape the younger pilot.

"Oh, I go my own way," the man on the couch announced with a laugh that was not without bitterness. But a note of desolation in the voice brought a surge of pity through Slade.

It was Lynn who spoke next. "You ought to have a week of rest," she observed as she encircled her patient's head with a white gauze bandage that gave him the air of wearing a crown, slightly tilted.

"Rest?" echoed Tumstead. His laugh was thin yet scornful. "I can't afford to rest, lady. I've got things to do."

Lynn glanced about at the bloodstained furniture.

"You've lost a good deal of blood, remember. And you'll need a new dressing in a day or two. What flying and settle down."

"Not a thing, son, not a thing," he answered with a listless sort of indifference. His movement as he turned to the wall was plainly one of dismissal. Slade felt happier when he found tested the girl. himself in the open sunlight, the balsam-scented open sunlight of spring, with Lynn walking along at his side. She was close beside him, yet he nursed an impression of her remoteness. And that impression took on an edging of pain as some inner voice told him she was the one thing in all the wide world he wanted. "So you're not going overseas?"

he ventured as he noticed how the sunlight gave glints of gold to her mahogany-brown hair.

"No, I'm going to meet Father at St. Gabriel's," she answered casually, having discerned a light in his eyes which she found a little disturbing.

She was, he knew, evading the real issue.

"And after that?" he prompted. "I'm flying north with Father in the morning," she announced. She found the courage, as she said it, to meet his gaze. "What made you change your mind?" asked Slade, puzzled by her loyalty to a life that was giving her so little of what other women clamored for.

"Father isn't young any more. He can't keep on forever. I was hoping he'd give up a sort of work that's too hard for him."

"And too hard for you," proclaimed Slade. He was remembering, at the moment, how she and the Flying Padre had been grounded by a blizzard, the winter before, and had kept life in their bodies by dining on their own mukluks of untanned sealskin, well boiled. That, Slade told himself, was no life for a girl. She was of too fine a fiber for such frontier roughness. It impressed him as too much like trying to grow a flower in a stamping mill. "Did your father ask you to stay on?" Slade questioned.

"He'd never do that," was her prompt reply. "He's too big and fine to let his own interests come first.

"Of course," said Slade, wondering if there was a hidden reproof in that reply.

"But I was hoping," Lynn continued, "that Father would give up right," Slade protested. "But something happened last month," the girl was saying, "when we were flying in to Coronation. It was good weather and everything was going nicely, with Father at the controls. Then I saw that something was wrong. I had to jump in all of a sudden, didn't know where for a moment or two. He said, later, it was like a switch turned off and then turned on again. But things like that mustn't happen to a flyer.' Slade shrugged and smiled, mercifully intent on easing the concern out of her eyes.

Slade forced a laugh. "He's clipped many a cloud since then. And he'll keep going until they ground him for old age. The clouded hazel eyes searched his face.

"But can't you see, Alan, what I'm fighting for? Can't you understand how we all want security? How, when we love someone, we have to think of his future?" Slade looked down into the hazel eyes. Their loveliness sent a wave of recklessness through him. "It's your future I'd rather think of," he asserted.

But the girl with the clouded eyes didn't seem to hear him. "I'm all Father has now."

Lynn Says:

Here's help to solve your gift problems for the bride: Linen minimums include the following: 8 sheets, 6 pillowcases, 2 pairs blankets, 2 wool coverlets, 2 bathmats, 8 bath towels, 8 face cloths and 12 linen hand towels.

For the dining room, the bride will need 2 dinner sets with 6 to 8 napkins, 3 breakfast or luncheon sets, 6 to 8 extra dinner napkins, 12 tea napkins, and 2 hot plate mats.

If possible, the bride should have a set of 6 in each of the following pieces of china. If she expects to set up housekeeping on a larger scale, this list may be expanded to 8 or 12 pieces. China set includes: salad plates, soup plates, cups and saucers, dinner plates, sauce dishes, bread-and-butter plates. For serving dishes the following are "musts": 1 large platter (for meat and vegetables), 1 covered dish, 2 open vegetable dishes, tea and coffee pots, and sugar and creamers.

1¼ cups egg whites, unbeaten 1/2 teaspoon vanilla 1/4 teaspoon almond extract

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually. Cream to-beating well after each addition. Add flavoring and beat vigorously. Turn into a 10-inch tube pan which has been greased and lined on the bottom, sides and around the tube with heavy, waxed paper. Bake in a slow (275-degree) oven 1 hour: then increase the heat slightly to 300 degrees, and bake 50 minutes longer, or until done. Insert favors, if desired, wrapping each in waxed paper, and pressing into small slits in the cake. Spread ornamental butter frosting smoothly on top and sides of cake. Decorate with simple borders and rosettes of the frosting, and trim with silver dragees. Serve on silver tray or platter with delicate sprays of fern, cosmos, or bridal wreath. Place special bridal favors on top of cake; or, tie small wedding bells or other favors to white ribbons and intertwine through Sprays.

Ornamental Butter Frosting. 4 tablespoons butter 5 cups sifted confectioners sugar 2 egg whites, unbeaten 2 tablespoons cream (about) 1½ teaspoons vanilla

1/4 teaspoon salt Cream butter; add part of sugar gradually, beating well after each addition. Add remaining sugar alternately with egg whites, then with cream, until of right consistency to spread. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla and salt. Spread cake. Make rosettes and borders with frosting forced through the pastry tube. Makes enough frosting to cover the above cake and to use for decorating.

THE TAWAS HERALD

BAD BREATH

A few years ago I followed a controversy as to whether bad breath was due to food particles left between the teeth or to some disturb-and intestines. It is admitted that bad breath can be caused by mouth and nose conditions such as infected teeth and tonsils, and by the dry form of catarrh. But what causes bad breath when mouth, nose and throat are free of infection?

Dr. Barton

Drs. Burrill B Crohn and Rudolph Drosd, New York, in the Journal of the American Medical Association, state that heretofore patients with bad breath have consulted nose and throat specialists and dentists who searched for decaying teeth, infected gums, and infections of throat and sinus. The teeth, the gums, the tonsils and sinuses are the cause at times only and cases due to nose and throat conditions are becoming less in number due to better knowledge of the importance of a healthy mouth, throat and nose. Experiments were made as to the best method or methods to prevent the odor of garlic on the breath. These research workers found that it was not the mouth nor the stomach that was responsible for the odor of garlic on the breath but the intestines, particularly the small intestine into which the partially di-gested food is poured from stomach.

Why is the small intestine re-sponsible for bad odors on the breath, because oil of peppermint and oil of wintergreen were also used in the tests and these two oils acted exactly the same as garlic?

These research workers state that halitosis is due to the fact that fat foods eaten are not handled properly or are not handled completely by the liver and it is these incompletely digested fat foods, lying in the small intestine, that cause the odor. They point out that patients with peptic ulcer taking much milk daily often have a bad breath. "If these patients are given a diet of cereal, eggs and lean meat, the odor disappears.'

Keeping liver more active by bending exercises would squeeze out more bile. More bile would help digest fats in small intestine.

Giving Patients Right Impressions

One of the mistakes made by physicians until recently was that after examining the patient and finding no cause for his symptoms, they said, "There is nothing physically the matter.'

The very fact that the word "physically" is used is likely to make the patient feel that his physican's opinion is that he (the patient) just imagines he has these symptoms.

As a matter of fact the physician knows that the symptoms are present but, as they are not due to any organic cause, there is nothing for the patient to worry about. In a letter to the editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Andrew Hart Jr., Charlottesville, Va., states: "Most physicians have little difficulty in recognizing anxiety states and the fears of patients that they have heart, blood vessel, liver, kidney or other disease. But even when by thorough examination these 'neuroses,' as they are called, are established, some physicians still allow patients to leave their office without explaining why the symptoms are present, although not due to organic disease. Nervous disorders are always accompanied by disturbances of the various organs and processes of the body." We all know how the heart beats rapidly, the blood pressure rises, the stomach, intestines and bladder are upset under fear or anxiety. At first these disturbances interfere only with the action of processes and organs, but they may persist and cause changes in the structure or tissues; that is, organic disease. This was pointed out some years ago by Prof. W. B. Cannon.

In addressing his fellow physicians, Dr. Hart says: "It takes time to listen to their many complaints, patience to brook their 'resistance,' and a very definite plan to combat or fight their aggressiveness and lead them away from an emotional to a rational and realistic outlook on life." He points out that if the doctor is too busy to undertake treatment he should tell patients where advice may be had.

Because we do not want to ask everyone to travel further than necservice will be here seven long weeks and it scon will be time for us to leave. There have been rumors that we will be through in another week person invited by each of these people; also, the home economics group nutrition chairman, and 4-H canning club. leaders. Following the community meetings there will be a neighborhood meeting conducted by the two persons who attend the community

Since there are no war club leaders in the towns, we are inviting any or-ganized group that wishes to participate to select two persons to come to the meeting held in town, and they may then conduct a similar one within their organization. So that these folks may be notified when and where the meeting is to be, they should call Mr. Finley's office and give us their names and addresses within the next few days.

The food preservation work will be given by Dorothy Scott, home excalf at the 1941 International Live- tension agent, and Emma Holmes, home management supervisor.

When we came home last night it started raining and I can truthfully for the improvement of pastures. say I have never seen such a rain in all my life. I thought surely the tent rcof would cave in the rain was beating down so. It rained that way most of the night, stopped for a few hours this morning and now it's really com-ing down again. We haven't had a rain in a couple of weeks so I imagine that accounts for the fact. My copy of the Herald arrived the first part of the week and inasmuch as I read practically everything in it, I noticed that you had a little article in that issue concerning me. I wish I could claim the promotion to "sargeant" but as my warrant reads otherwise, I will correct the error. It's a Technician 5th grade rating so will have to be addressed as corporal instead of the former term of "sar-geant." I hope to be able to make that grade some time in the future but will have to wait a while for it. I see the clock has ticked away the time to the point where it nears noon so will close by again expressing my thanks for the Herald. Sincerely yours, Leonard.
