TAWAS CITY WINS 2 GAMES IN DOUBLEHEADER

Two Interesting Games Played Here Last Sunday

With their double win over Pinconning, last Sunday, Tawas City jumped into a tie for second place with Gladwin, each team winning four and losing two. Tawas took the first game by the score of 5 to 1 with Franks on the mound for the Locals and Merda for Pinny. McCoy opposed Genow in the second game with Tawas City coming out on top 7 to 4.

Sunday's twin bill had a very poor turnout, and the fans are missing some very fine ball games by not being on hand. Lets all come out a week from Sunday (July 19) and help Tawas climb into first place, when they will play a double header with Rhodes.

FIRST GAME

Behind the three hit pitching of Elmer Franks, Tawas City defeated Pinconning 5 to 1. Elmer whipped the third strike past twelve Pinconning lads and walked one, while Merda struck out four Tawas City boys and walked one. Besides pitching a fine game, Franks slammed out two hits, one a double, and drove in one run and scored one himself.

Tawas broke the ice in the second inning, scoring their first run when Gackstetter tripled, Franks singled, driving in Gackstetter. Pinconning tied the score in the third when Merda reached first when Peterson booted the ball. Kasboroski struck out. Bush walked; both runners advanced on a passed ball. Merda scored from third on Lambert's fly to right. Franks struck out Berthume to end the inning. Tawas added two more in the fifth when Fahselt singled; Wickert was safe at first on a fielders choice, Fahselt being forced at second. Peterson took first when he was hit by the pitcher; Katterman walked. With the sacks occupied, Thornton singled, driving in Wickert and Peterson. Katterman was out at third attempting to go from first to third on the play, ending the inning.

Tawas added another in the seventh when Frank's doubled and Fahselt singled scoring Franks. Wickert singled, Peterson was out pitcher to first. Rapp then drove a line drive to short stop, who doubled Wickert off second to end the inning.

The final run was scored in the eighth. Thornton grounded out short to first, Rollin reached first on an error, Gackstetter walked, Prescott singled, scoring Rollin. Franks flied out to third and Fahselt ended the inning by forcing Prescott at second.

SECOND GAME

The second game began as a pitchers duel with McCoy on the mound for the locals and Genow for the visitors (Turn to No. 1 Back Page)

Zion Lutheran Church To Dedicate Flags

With six members of Zion congregation in the military forces, a service flag with a star for each soldier has been hung in the entrance of the church. Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Wegner, who have two sons in the service, presented the church with a honor roll to go with the service flag. Now on the honor roll are: Elmer Bischoff, Erwin Shover, Erwin Wegner, Carl Libka, Ernest Wegner and Gilbert Moeller.

Bay City Police Trim Tawas City July 4th

The Bay City Police behind the six hit pitching of Jezak, had little trouble in subduing Tawas City 9-2.

In his first appearance on the mound for the locals, Dick Prescott allowed eleven hits against the semi-pro Bay City team. In the first three innings he was rather shaky allowing eight hits and six runs. But he then settled down and held the visitors scoreless until the eighth when the police pushed two more across the plate.

Batting star for the visitors with a pair of triples. Bradshaw, Jezak and Atwood got two singles each. Thornton led the locals with two singles.

Bay City 0 3 3 0 0 0 0 2 1-9

Iosco Has Fine Record In Salvage Campaign

"The Iosco County Salvage Committee commends the various groups who have taken part in our salvage for their splendid work," said Russell A. Rollin, county chairman. "We went over the top with a total figure of 125,000 pounds of rubber, 75 tons of paper and more than 300 tons of scrap metal collected and turned into the proper channels.

"The Federal government is again asking us to make every effort to salvage materials which will be useful in our war effort," states Mr. Rollin. "An advertising campaign to further the work will soon start in your local newspaper. We helped to make the paper mills 'holler quit'—let's make the steel mills do likewise by another great effort in gathering every available pound of scrap in the county. Watch your paper for further announcements.

"The paper campaign was carried on principally through established organizations such as schools, Boy and Girl Scouts and similar groups. The success of the drive was due to the efforts of our youngsters in collecting the scrap paper.

"The metal scrap was picked up by dealers who had been given a list of farms having iron and steel scrap. This list of farms was compiled by a committee working under the County War Board.

"The rubber drive was very successful because of the splendid cooperation of the oil companies and the unflagging efforts of local distributors and service station operators.

"Other salvage drives are planned, but the salvage program is a continuous program and we urge every citizen to get behind it in our community."

Dobin's Come Back

Horse speeders and runaway horses held the limelight as menaces to life and limb a few years ago. But that ended with the automobile age.

Old Dobbin tried to stage a comeback Wednesday when Ernest Scholtz, of the Meadow road, drove out from the Gingerich Feed Store onto Lake street.

The horse took the bit between his teeth and galloped through the traffic up the street toward Halletown to the discomfiture of the modern minded motorists in his way.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Egypt Defenders Turn on Axis Armies In Struggle for Middle East Control; Nazi Spy Ring Smashed in Canal Zone; Allies' Wheat Pool Aids Famine Areas

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

EGYPT: Defenders Hit Hard

Even as parliament by a 475 to 25 majority voted its confidence in Prime Minister Winston Churchill after a prolonged debate over the Libyan defeat, reports from Egypt revealed that British imperials, heavily reinforced from the Middle East, had struck fiercely at the flank and rear of Marshal Rommel's Axis army to counter its assault on the main British positions.

At the same time it was disclosed that United States army air force and Royal air force planes had unleashed a terrific air offensive throughout the eastern Mediterranean area. In one assault on Marshal Rommel's supply port of Bengasi, hundreds of bombers rained destruction down on ammunition dumps and equipment concentrations.

Reinforcements of both men and material had strengthened the British Egyptian position in the battles on which rested the fate of Allied power in the Mediterranean and Middle East. Crucial battle area was the 40-mile wide strip of desert lying between the impassable Quaternary salt marshes and the Mediterranean shore.

Few observers had doubted that Prime Minister Churchill's position would be sustained. Facing his critics in the most critical period since the fall of France, Churchill had admitted that Marshal Rommel's victorious drive from Libya into Egypt had placed Britain in "mortal peril."

Meanwhile on the Russian front, the Nazis had opened a new drive north of Kharkov, while hand to hand fighting in the ruins of Sevastopol, Russia's last stronghold in the Crimea, had highlighted what the Reds termed "an extremely grave situation."

SHIPBUILDING:

Yanks Break Records

Hope that American shipyards would soon equal and then exceed the total sunk by Axis submarines was seen in a report issued by Vice Chairman Howard L. Vickery of the maritime commission which disclosed that 66 vessels totaling 731,900 tons deadweight had been delivered in June and that production was speeding ahead toward a level of 900,000 deadweight tons a month.

Admiral Vickery reported that 288 ships of approximately 2,544,000 deadweight tons had been delivered by American shipyards in the first six months of 1942.

SECRET SPENDING:

F. D. R. Accounts

How President Roosevelt spent $239,500,000 in secret emergency funds since the war crisis became acute in June, 1940, was revealed in an accounting which the Chief Executive presented to congress.

Eighty-seven per cent of the total was allocated to the army, the navy, maritime commission and Federal Loan agency, the President said.

Large sums were spent to suppress subversive radio activities in connection with the German submarine campaign.

Important among expenditures was $52,000,000 for secret naval bases in the Western hemisphere, $12,000,000 for purchase of Australian wool for uniforms $8,000,000 for development of air, rail and highway transportation in Latin America and $36,500,000 for construction of merchant ships.

NEW NAVAL BASE:

Mystery Explained

Why hundreds of American workers embarked for Northern Ireland last summer to toil on a mysterious construction project long before the United States entry into the world war, was explained when the navy department announced formal completion of a giant operating base at Londonderry, guarding the western approaches of Britain. Capt. William J. Larson, was placed in command of the strategic new post.

NAZI SPIES: Rival Fiction

In a series of dramatic moves matching the thrills of a mystery best-seller, the United States Caribbean defense command arrested 20 alleged Axis agents and broke up what was believed to be a Nazi spy ring refueling submarines and supplying them with vital information on United States shipping.

Nineteen of the enemy agents were rounded up in a trap in Belize, British Honduras. The twentieth—a trusted employee of a labor recruiting office for the Panama canal—had been seized a few days earlier in the Canal Zone. The army disclosed that the leader of the ring was George Gough, a British citizen who was a shipping executive in Belize.

Details of the seizure of the spies were disclosed by Lieut. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, chief of the Caribbean defense command.

WHEAT POOL:

To Balk Famine

With famine stalking many nations and wheat surpluses taxing the storage capacities of others, an agreement of historic importance to the future of the world's bread supply became effective when five nations signed a pact creating a vast international wheat pool.

Signers of the agreement were the United States, Great Britain, Canada, Australia and Argentina. The agreement, initiated at a Washington meeting last April, created a wheat pool of not less than 100,000,000 bushels for the relief of famine in war-stricken areas. It forecast international action toward control of prices, production and export of bread grains after the war.

The United States is to provide 50,000,000 bushels of wheat or flour to the relief pool and Canada and the United Kingdom 25,000,000. These nations, with Argentina would furnish additional supplies as needed on a basis to be worked out by their respective governments.

Agriculture department officials pointed out that benefits to American wheat farmers would be of a long-term rather than immediate nature. The agreement will have no effect on the 1943 farm program calling for a planted area of not more than 55,000,000 acres of wheat and assuring farmers of parity returns.

PRICE CEILINGS:

First Hole

First hole in the universal price ceiling instituted by the OPA was made when Price Administrator Leon Henderson announced that he was "compelled to take measures that will raise retail prices of the 1942 pack of canned and dried fruits by as much as 15 per cent and possibly more."

Henderson indicated that congress was to blame for this, because of special price concessions it granted to farm products and its failure to vote government subsidies to maintain price ceilings.

Throwing down the battle gage to congress, the fiery price official issued a statement in which he said that the $75,000,000 appropriation contemplated for the OPA in a bill passed by the house, or any amount below the $161,000,000 he originally requested, would cripple his agency and mean "in short that price, rent and rationing controls are all placed in jeopardy."

Mr. Henderson termed the canned fruit price situation "inflationary" and said it constituted "a serious threat in the battle being fought to maintain stability in the cost of living."

"This is not a satisfactory solution," his statement continued: "It is inflationary. It translates into retail price increases a burden that the government might properly assume as a charge connected with the war. This burden will fall heaviest on large families, especially in the low income groups who can least afford the added expense."

Rubber Hunter

His eyes as alert for rubber as a hawk's are for chickens, Petroleum Co-ordinator Harold Ickes was happy when he spied this 75-pound rubber mat inside the door of the White House. He told his chauffeur to take it to the nearest gas station to contribute to the rubber drive. When asked for a comment, a White House spokesman declared, "There's no complaint."

COMMANDOS:

Strike at Japs

Serving notice on Tokyo that the Australians, the Yanks and the Dutch were ready for hit-and-run thrusts preparatory to the general land offensive which Gen. Douglas MacArthur has promised eventually, Allied Commandos swept down on the big Japanese base at Salamaua, New Guinea.

Using the elements of surprise and terror which have made Commando raids on Europe so spectacular, the United Nations' raiders slashed through the defense screen and carried away prisoners, booty and information about the layout of one of the most important Nipponese bases in the Southwest Pacific.

Salamaua, on the Huon gulf, lies 170 miles north across New Guinea from Port Moresby, last Allied outpost north of Australia. It was captured by the Japs early in March and ever since the enemy has been attempting to use it as a base for widening their occupation of New Guinea. It has served as one of the principal air bases for attacks against Port Moresby.

SCRAP:

U. S. Wants More

A "new and greatly intensified" program that will reach into every American home and industrial plant and increase the flow of vital scrap materials to the nation's war plants was announced by War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson and Lessing J. Rosenwald, chief of the bureau of industrial conservation of WPB.

The new program has a threefold objective:

- 1—To collect metals, and rubber and other waste materials which will flow through regular channels of trade.
- 2—To gather up waste kitchen fats, such as bacon drippings from households via meat dealers.
- 3—To collect tin cans in specified areas.

"The immensity of our task," said Mr. Nelson, "makes it absolutely necessary to step up the tempo of our national salvage program."

REPATRIATION:

Nazis Break Pact

Termination of the exchange agreement by which more than 1,400 American nationals were brought home from Axis territory in Europe resulted when Germany withdrew the safe conduct granted the Swedish liner Drottningholm which had docked at New York with 800 repatriated Americans and alien refugees.

The agreement for exchange of nationals held by the respective belligerent governments had provided for continued voyages of the Drottningholm under safe conduct until all Americans held in Europe and Germans held here were repatriated.

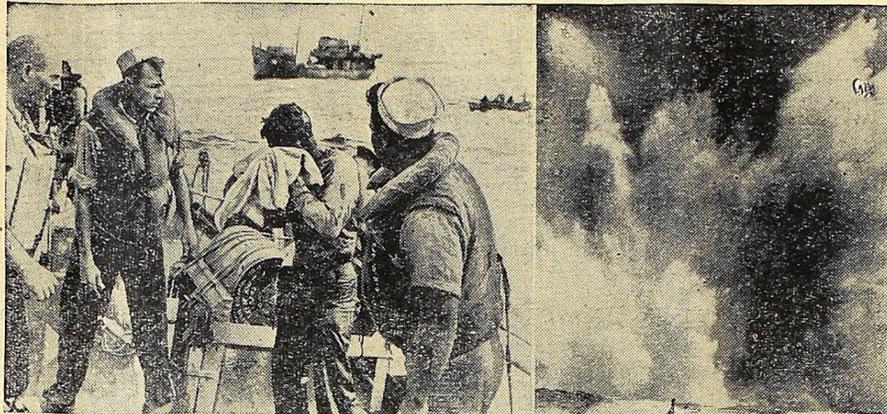

No reason was assigned for Germany's withdrawal of the safe conduct, but it was understood the Nazis cancelled the agreement to emphasize its "paper blockade" of America.

Suspicion that the Axis powers might be attempting to get saboteurs or spies into this country in the guise of friendly aliens, caused the government to institute the most rigid scrutiny of passenger credentials ever conducted in any eastern harbor.

MISCELLANY:

MINNEAPOLIS: The American worker's pay check is now 34 per cent above 1939 levels while his living expenses are up only 13 per cent—net gain of 21 per cent, it was revealed in a family income study by Northwestern National Life Insurance company. Figured in terms of the family pocketbook, a typical wage earner's family has $50 a month more now than in 1939.

As Collier Sinks in Battle of Atlantic

A naval convoy, escorting U. S. merchant ships on the Atlantic coast, lost one collier to a mine planted by enemy subs, because there was no wake. In picture at left a survivor dries his face after being nearly blinded and choked by the oily waters. However, in war no chances are taken, and depth charges were loosed with the result shown in picture at the right, just in case a sub was lurking around.

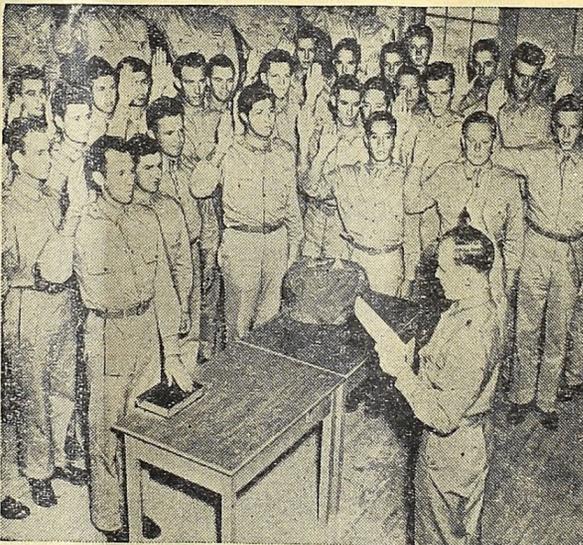

New Methods to Speed Up Ship Production

You have seen pictures of big ships, powerful planes and giant guns for Uncle Sam's armed forces. But here is an item that seldom gets into the news, but is just as vital as any other sinew of war. It is the cowl ventilator, without which Liberty ships that carry war materials to the battlefronts could not put to sea. A Los Angeles firm, engaged in this work, turns out thousands of cowl funnels. Galvanizing the cowl is one of the most vital parts in the process. Photo (left) shows a huge cowl being given a "bath" in a vat of molten metal. Center: Wrinkles in the ventilator are ironed out by a small hammer. Right: A workman welding the seams of a huge funnel.

Swear to Protect Bombsight

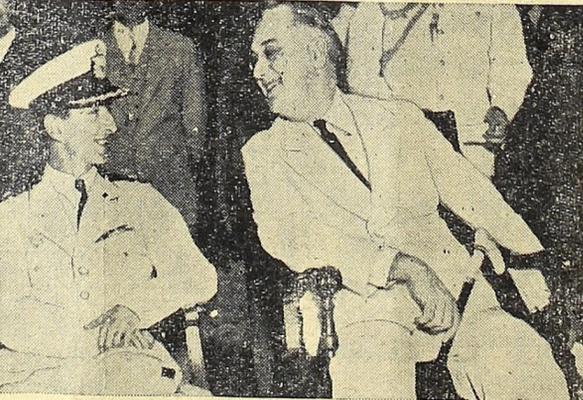

Fledgling bombardiers, about to get their first glimpse of the super-secret U. S. bombsight, repeat after Lieut. Col. Richard Smith, director of training at the Midland Army Flying school, Texas, the solemn words of the bombardier oath pledging to protect the sight. On the table is a hooded bombsight to be exposed only after administration of the oath.

'Won't Take It'

Dan Gifford, ten, who wrote to Gen. Douglas MacArthur to convince a pal that Pearl Harbor was not in Jap hands, is a happy lad these days after hearing from MacArthur. "They didn't take it," MacArthur advised his youthful inquirer, "and don't be afraid, Danny, they won't take it." Danny is shown (left) shaking hands with his now convinced playmate, Jackie Fahy.

Youthful Monarch Meets President

King Peter of Yugoslavia is shown chatting with President Roosevelt in the White House grounds. The 19-year-old monarch had spent two days incognito in Virginia. He arrived at the White House under careful guard, and was escorted to the White House by Secretary Cordell Hull.

With a perfect score of 175 x 175, H. Luther Brown (above) of San Antonio, Texas, won the individual all-bore championship at the 14th annual Great Eastern skeet championship held at the Remington Gun club, Lordship, Conn.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
Consolidated Features—WNU Features.

NEW YORK.—Elmer Davis once paid $50,000 to see a ball game. It is a story which the new director of the Office of War Information probably won't give out. He is an extremely modest man, it might seem like bragging.

We had the story from the former editor of a national magazine of large circulation. In the reminiscent mood of the editor, the tale unfolded as follows:

"With a moving picture firm, we offered a prize of $50,000 for the best serial, the winning story later to be screened. We put up half the prize money and the picture company the other half. We whooped it up into a big national excitement, and entries came in from every corner of the country. There was something over 90,000 of them in all.

"The winner seemed to be the entry of a widely known New York novelist and magazine feature writer, but there was another serial that crowded it closely and finally, in a hair-line decision, the judges picked the former. We had informed the novelist of her victory, when one of the judges recalled that she had published a magazine story several years before with a plot somewhat like her contest entry. We looked it up. The similarity was slight, but we decided it would bar the new offering. We telephoned the woman writer that we were reconsidering our decision.

"That left the field open to the runner-up, a piece submitted by one Elmer Davis, a former ace reporter who had left the city room and set up as a free lance writer of fiction and articles. We were eager to carry the good news to Mr. Davis. Everybody who knew him said he was a mighty nice chap and rated good news if anybody did it.

"At Mr. Davis' little writing office, we were told that Mr. Davis had gone to the ball game. We left word for him to come to our office.

"Back in our editorial rooms, there was a big stir among the judges. Miss Blank, the other finisher, had telephoned that she could remove from her script any remote similarity. She, too, was a writer of the highest integrity, and we finally agreed that she get the prize.

"Next morning, Mr. Davis came in. I told him what had happened. You knew he was jolted, but you had to look closely to catch the flick of disappointment in his placid Hoosier eyes. Then he said: 'That was a pretty expensive ball game, wasn't it?'

"He went back to his office and started kicking out serials like an Indiana hired man in harvest time. I bought them. He came through."

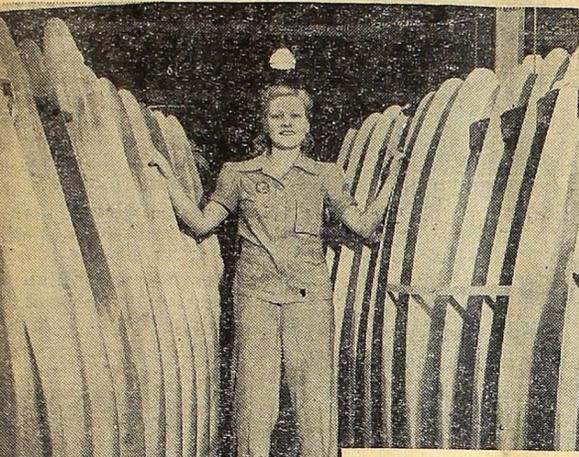

YOUNG Lieut. Delos C. Emmons, trying to transfer from infantry to aviation, was rejected three times because he couldn't hear a watch tick. Then he found an examiner who said, "You could not hear a watch tick in an airplane, anyway. Forget it." He became just about the most valuable man that the air service ever came near losing and the Battle of Midway Island might not have gone so well for us had the examiner insisted rules be observed. Colonel Emmons holds the temporary rank of lieutenant general, as commander of the Hawaiian department, and now President Roosevelt breaks all precedent by recommending that he be jumped from colonel to major general.

At 53, he will be the army's youngest major general. He has done as much knock-about flying as any army man in the air, and is air-conditioned not only in hazardous flying exploits but in strategy and techniques, having taught flying at Harvard university in 1920 and 1921.

About a year ago he secretly landed 21 of the biggest Flying Fortresses in Hawaii. He had previous experience in the Islands, having been with the Eighteenth wing command in Hawaii in 1934; in 1936 he took command of March Field, Calif.

BRITAIN'S old school tie gets half a column on the cables, in spite of airplane and battleship competition. They plan to scrap it, says Richard Austen Butler, president of the board of education, as a symbol of class education. Out of Cambridge, Mr. Butler rapidly advanced in the inter-war years as a member of parliament, undersecretary for foreign affairs. He was born in India in 1902. At Cambridge he took honors in the classics and has swung many an impressive Latin quotation into British public life.

Beauty on Production Line Helps 'Keep 'Em Flying'

Women are playing a vital role in the war effort, principally in the great aircraft factories. Some of these attractive women might easily be carving out a career for themselves in the movies, but they are content to star on the production line.

The pretty worker at the Curtiss-Wright propeller plant shown above stands at the apex of a V formed by two lines of propellers.

These girls wear various types of protective headgear while they produce the tools to whittle down the Axis. The girl at the right provides the touch of the eternal feminine with a flower in her hair. (Photos approved by war department.)

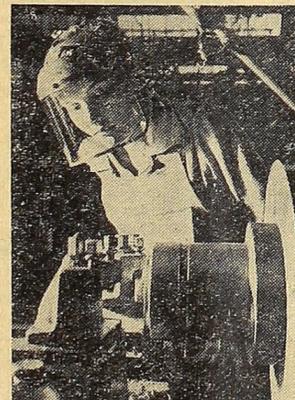

Marge has her luncheon on the job in the big aircraft plant, where she is one of hundreds of women who are keeping 'em flying.

An office worker before the war, this girl now works a milling machine on a bronze nut line in the Curtiss-Wright propeller plant.

And here is an ex-laundry girl doing an important bit to help wash up the Axis. She is proud to be helping Uncle Sam.

This plastic-masked worker now operates a lathe on a nut-line as expertly as any male machinist. She was once a stenographer.

Civilian Front Prepared for War Economy

Americans to Face Changes Necessary For Final Victory

By CLIFF LANGE
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Uncle Sam says, "There are going to be some changes made!"

Those changes, on a nationwide scale, are going to affect 132 million Americans. They will reach into every home in the United States and influence the lives and habits of all.

According to the Office for Emergency Management's division of civilian supply, the next few months will see the effects of war economy in the fields of clothing, transportation, housing and food. Some of the slow, but soon to accelerate, changes are already noticeable.

For many months specialists in the Division of Civilian Supply, working in conjunction with other federal departments, have been gauging and charting the needs of this nation's civilian population. Once these needs have been plotted, they will then be fitted in with the nation's war economy.

Civilians Must Sacrifice, Too.

In other words, it all means this: If it is found necessary to use certain food products for armed forces, or certain pieces of equipment for defense plants, or certain material for defense plant workers, then the ordinary civilians of this nation are going to do without to fill that need.

Lack of cargo space for imports also means that many former products purchased abroad for home consumption are not going to be available for Americans.

Officials in Washington commented on the fact that there have been many rumors about rationing of clothing.

Joseph L. Weiner, deputy director of the division of Civilian supply, had this to say about it: "It appears now that the rationing of clothing can be avoided this year."

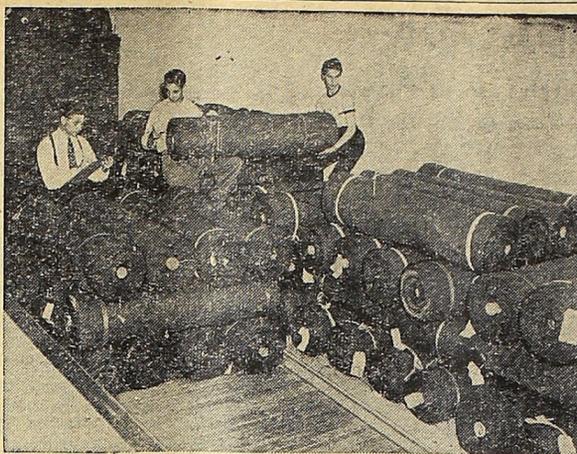

That doesn't mean though there will be no changes made. Beside the present style modifications (cuffless trousers, for instance) other garments will not be as "glamorous" as they have been. Frills on clothing are out.

The American people are going to dress for war, even though they are on the home front fighting.

The military demand for wool is going to bring about additional minor style changes. To conserve on wool, cloth manufacturers are going to have to blend their allotted supply of that material with other materials. Americans are going to wear more cotton.

Another problem in the clothing field that is pending is leather. As federal rationing officials put it concerning any possible leather shortage, "There is nothing in the leather picture to get excited about now." But the problem is still there. There are still plenty of shoes in the stores for civilians, but the demands of the armed forces for shoes increase very rapidly.

All in all, Americans working hard on the home front needn't think that they won't be warmly and adequately clothed this coming winter. They will be even though there isn't going to be the former "dressiness" on their attire.

This picture indicates one of the reasons why the American people are going to have less wool in their clothing. Above you see great bolts of woolen cloth being checked before being made into uniforms for Uncle Sam's fighting men.

Transportation difficulties, too, are going to bring about decided changes in the American way of living during the war.

Everyone knows there is a shortage of gasoline. But they should also know there is a growing shortage of fuel oil.

This means a change in the usual "visiting" habits of not only Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jones, but of Little Johnny, Sister Helen, Grandma and Grandpa, and the rest of the family and their relatives.

More Staying at Home.

For instance: With a shortage of gasoline, in fact, a rationing of that fuel, there is going to be more of the "stay at home" attitude. Sister Helen's fellow isn't going to be able to take her out riding. Little Johnny isn't going to be allowed to have the car to drive to the next town to bowl or go sightseeing.

Mom and Pop aren't going to get in the car and drive 40 or 50 miles to the next town to purchase supplies, or go to a show, or visit friends. They are going to do all their purchasing at home, go to shows in their home-town, and visit their friends in town more often than before.

Grandma and Grandpa are going to have to forego their usual Sunday ride or customary visit to old friends over in another section of the county.

All in all, the American family is going to be thrown back on their own more than ever.

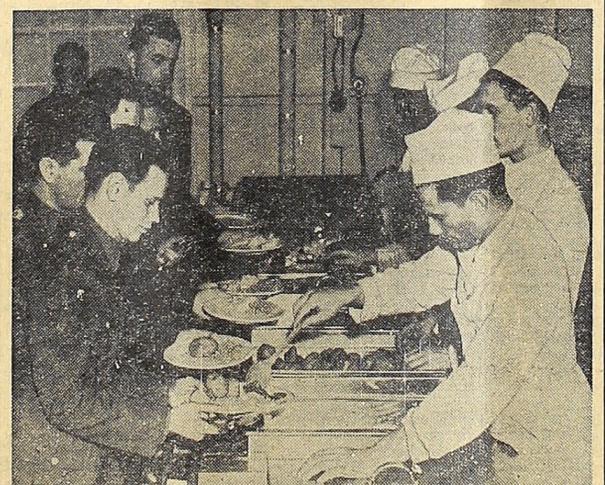

It won't take long, though, before they fully realize that the idea of "stay at home" is as enjoyable and beneficial as the "buy at home" plan.

Main Street 'Dim Out.'

It is highly probable, that when more and more electric power is needed, the lights on Main streets—thousands of Main streets throughout the United States—will be dimmed. Many towns will be having "dimouts" instead of the blackouts which cities and towns along the East and West coast are experiencing.

You might think that your tomorrows promise to be dull, what with rationing of many articles, unavailability of others, staying at home, and curtailed railroad and bus travel. You might think so for a short time. But then, when you fully realize what you can do, and what you are doing for the coming victory, it won't be thought of as drab and dull.

You will realize it is in freedom's

Fighting men must eat—eat plenty of good, nourishing food. These new army recruits are getting their first view of what food they'll get while working for world-wide freedom. If civilian America finds that certain of their favorite food isn't to be had, it is being dished out instead, such as here, to American and United Front Allied troops throughout the world. This is an official U. S. army signal corps photo.

'Wardrobe Stretchers' For Fashion-Conscious Women Can Be Had

Look in the accessory department of the store for the little extras called "wardrobe stretchers," is the word which Miss Barbara Borhek, instructor in home economics, University of Illinois college of agriculture, has for fashion-conscious women.

"The new WPB ruling L85 has made it impossible to buy such things as extra little jackets with a dress or little colorful aprons attached to a dress.

"So for a while at least, it will become more and more the fashion to offer these additions at the accessory counter."

This will be the place, she said, to keep one's eyes open for such tricks as patchwork ruffling for the bottom of a gay skirt, a gingham belt with huge pockets attached and a matching color, a separate wool sleeve yoke for winter color to transform an old dress or a printed tie-on peplum.

name that you are doing without many formerly ordinary things of everyday living. You will become conscious of the fact that you aren't standing in breadlines for food, or listening to round after round of propaganda radio programs, or staying indoors after the curfew sounds. Those things are true in a Hitler-dominated nation.

A change in the housing habits of the American people will be noticeable only in those areas where critical victory projects are under way.

Unlike enforced labor in dictator-dominated Europe, American workers are moving voluntarily to those cities where projects are being worked day and night, employing thousands upon thousands of people. Consequently, many towns have

The 'Army' of Cooks

America's women have been drafted, too.

Administrator of the Office of Defense, Health and Welfare Services, Paul V. McNutt, and staff, are calling upon the women of America to see to it that the workers and children of this nation get the most wholesome food, prepared appetizingly.

Now watch the Nation's Army of Cooks lead their army to vitality, health, and happiness.

Here are some of their army rules of cooking warfare:

Well balanced meals.

Tasty meals.

Meals with plenty of energy-giving foodstuffs.

Plenty of food without wasting it.

Economical and thoughtful substitution for those foodstuffs not obtainable.

found a continually growing housing shortage.

Even trailer-camp towns, laid out on the edge of the towns themselves, are being filled to capacity. Rather than resort to the plan enforced in England, where compulsory billeting of war workers has been resorted to, U. S. officials are appealing to those who own homes in industrial zones to let out their spare rooms to workers. Many former "private" homes are now being rented to "outsiders."

Then, too, most war workers—many of whom have left their wives and children at home—are not in a position to buy a home, either because their incomes are not sufficient, or because they may have to be moved at any time.

As a result federal officials are discouraging privately financed home construction and are seeking priority assistance on those projects that will be made available for rental to workers.

Forego Home Building.

Many prospective home owners will have to forego building their own homes this year, or buying one already constructed. Uncle Sam wants his defense area workers housed properly so that they can continue producing the necessary arms and armament.

More noticeable than in the above mentioned instances are the changes in the eating habits of America's consumers.

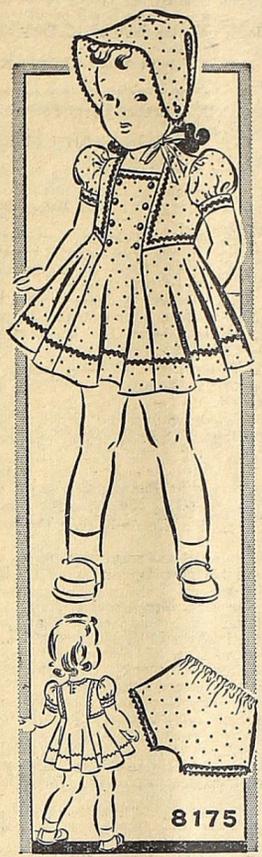

More rationing in various foodstuffs other than sugar seem highly probable. Increased rationing doesn't mean, however, that this country will lack a sufficient supply of staples, or that the American diet will lack its necessary and vital elements.

The eating habits of the nation will have to change. Look for many of our imported foodstuffs to become more and more scarce, and probably rationed. Many of the food staples produced or grown within the country will become scarce too. Much of the food is going to the U. S. armed forces here in the United States, and wherever they might be stationed in the world.

All in all, Americans today are experiencing in part what their British Allies have experienced for some time. Today the American people are getting their first experience lessons of what is in store for them as the nation moves forward.

That they can take it, there is no doubt. That they can readjust their lives to the conditions of the day is also practically a certainty. That they can carry on as well as—or maybe better than—industry is to be proven. It is going to be interesting to watch America change the world by changing its habits.

Abnormal Tire Wear

If tires show abnormal wear the trouble may be caused by under-inflation or misaligned wheels, according to the California State Automobile association. Another cause of uneven tire wear is unbalanced wheels. At high speed a wheel only slightly out of balance develops a powerful centrifugal force. This force jerks the wheel up and down as it rotates. In addition to abnormal up and down motion there also may be side motion as the heavy spot moves fore and aft. Unbalanced wheels frequently cause shimmy, abnormal wear in steering mechanism, as well as cupped spots in the tire tread.

War Damage Insurance

May be you don't know it, but immediately after the assault on Pearl Harbor Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones announced that War Damage, that is, damage caused by enemy action, or resistance to enemy action, would be paid for by our government.

This was a Temporary Measure and Terminated June 30.

Beginning July 1 you will be required to pay the cost of repairing damage to your own property, caused by war action, just as you are now required to pay for repairing the damage caused by an ordinary force or other destructive force. But you can now insure against such damage in much the same manner you insure against fire, and for a surprisingly moderate premium. This war damage insurance has been worked out by the leading fire insurance companies in cooperation with the War Damage Corporation.

It may be applied to dwellings, household goods, personal effects, factories, stores, stocks of merchandise, farm properties, apartments, automobiles, in fact, to just about anything. Such policies will protect you for the duration of the war upon payment of moderate premiums, between $1.00 and $3.00 per $1,000 per year for most classes of property.

The agents listed below have volunteered their services in effecting the distribution of this war damage insurance on a cost of service, non-profit basis, in order to contribute to the war effort and avoid the expense of a new governmental agency.

Prompt cooperation will protect your property

Double Seater
A double seater makes anyone think of a runabout or a gent who has spent his life eating not wisely but too well. Instead, it's a particular kind of a job at a sewing machine, just as a trolley operator doesn't mean a street car motor-man but a lad who does the finishing and icing in a bakery.
Vitamin A
Vitamin A is a very stable vitamin and there is little danger of destroying it during cooking. Even canning and freezing do not have much effect on it. However, many plants lose vitamin A if held too long before cooking.

True Optimist

An optimist is one who believes in optimism as a practical, workable, philosophy of life. Believing in the goodness of God and the ultimate victory of right over wrong, a real optimist is one who continues to fight the good fight against all difficulties, giving his best, and expressing in a life of action those fundamental ideals of faith, courage, love, and service, which make for happiness, goodwill and enduring success.—Warren Y. Find the Scrap to Eliminate the Jap

Sittin' down in Jed's General Store the other day, it was kinda impressed on me that the weaker a fellow's argument is, the stronger the words he uses!
Well, when I get to talkin' about KELLOGG'S PEP and vitamins I don't need any high-powered words. You see, to feel really good you got to eat right, which includes gettin' all your vitamins. And while PEP hasn't got 'em all, this swell-tastin' cereal is extra-long in the two that are oftenest extra-short in ordinary meals—B and D. Try PEP, won't you?

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

● In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked, for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.
● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most prices being in the world; the feeling of being adequately prepared.
● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

GHOST PLANE

By ARTHUR STRINGER

W.N.U. SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: Because he and his partner, Cruger, need the money to keep Norland Airways in business, Alan Slade has agreed to fly a supposed scientist named Frayne to the Anawotto country in search of the breeding ground of the trumpeter swan. Slade's suspicions about Frayne are aroused when he watches the swan-hunter and his partner, Karnell, put their supplies on the plane. They appear to be carrying prospectors' equipment. While in town on an errand Alan goes with Lynn Morlock, daughter of the local doctor, to give first aid treatment to a flyer hurt in a fight. The flyer is Slim Tumstead, who has already lost his license for drinking and who, to Slade's displeasure, appears to know all about Frayne's expedition and about the Lockheed Cruger bought with the money Frayne paid them. During that night the Lockheed is stolen by a masked man who heads north in the plane. Slade, en route to the Anawotto with Frayne and Karnell, runs out of gas and is forced to land near the camp of his prospector friends, Zeke and Minty, whose one interest is gold. Frayne shows no interest in either gold or the black egg-shaped object Minty has just told him is pitchblende.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER VII

"It was for this, I take it, that you came into such empty country," Frayne quietly suggested.
Minty laughed.
"Not on your life, stranger. It's only the good old yellow metal'll ever git me and Zeke steamed up to the boillin' point."

"Of course," said the other. He inspected his nails and snapped shut his knife blade. "But there is more of what you call pitchblende in this territory?"
"Oodles of it," chimed in the quavery-voiced Zeke. "The dang stuff bothers us in our strippin'."
"From what you say," observed Frayne, "I assume it to be some sort of mineral. But I remain unenlightened as to either its use or its value."

Minty, however, was not to be sidetracked.
"If you'd been around Great Bear for a spell," that old sourdough was saying as he reached for the egg of pitchblende, "you'd sure have seen 'em scramblin' for this stuff like a she-bear scramblin' for a honey tree. Goin' down through five hundred feet o' rock for it! And then totin' it three thousand miles to that Port Hope plant where it takes sixty tons o' chemicals to git one gram o' what they want out of it!"

The ornithologist's reaction to that statement seemed perfunctory. He merely shifted back a little from the heat of the stove.

"For this, stranger," pursued the indignant Zeke, "is what they git radium from. And radium's worth just thirty-five thousand smackers a gram."

"But such things, my friends, stand remote from the field of my immediate interest," maintained the quiet-voiced ornithologist.

"Same here," concurred Minty, "seein' it takes million-dollar machin'ry to squeeze a pinprick o' color out of a trainload of ore. And the surface pitchblende in this district, that assay-office sharp reported, ain't as rich in radium as the deep-lyin' Great Bear stuff. What this seems t' have, accordin' to assay, is an overdose o' helium."

"I know what helium is, of course," Frayne admitted with an accruing note of irritation. "But I am not interested in such things."

Slade felt the need of putting in an oar.
"You get more than helium, Minty," he announced, "and more than radium. You get uranium. And, in pitchblende like that, uranium is just about a million times more abundant than radium."

"And what good's uranium?" demanded Minty.
"It's the key," said Slade, "that's going to unlock the new Age of Power."

Frayne's gaze wandered about the cabin.
"You are no longer young," he observed. "Life owes you a little comfort."

"We'll git it, later on," conceded Minty. "And when me and this leather-gulleted old skillet pal o' mine strike Outside you'll sure see us hittin' the high spots."

"That is a possibility which might be easily achieved," observed their quiet-voiced visitor.

"I don't git you, stranger," said Zeke.

"Supposing," pursued Frayne, "somebody should buy you out, pay you well for what claim you have here and take over this camp you have spent so much time and labor in making comfortable?"

Slade smiled a little at the manner in which the newcomer once more seemed intent on buying up a right-of-way. But the pilot sat silent, conscious of the covert glance that passed between the two old sourdoughs.

"Who'd be doin' that?" demanded Minty.

Frayne's abstracted smile seemed fortified with some unparaded power.

"I might," he said after a moment of silence.

Slade was not surprised by the prompt hardening of the two weathered old faces. He knew, even before it came, what the answer would be.

"We're sot here," said Zeke, "and we're a-goin' to stick it out to the end."

She lingered on the rock point and looked up at the aerial migration.

Slade got up from his chair and crossed to the door.

"I'll have a look at my ship," he explained, "before we turn in for the night. And if you two old bushwhackers will rustle us an early breakfast we'll push off at sunup."

But Slade, as he made his way down to the lake front, was troubled by some small voice of uncertainty that refused to articulate itself.

Then his thoughts went to other things. For on the shore point beside the moored plane he saw the huge figure of Karnell, with the hooded pigeon cage beside him.

"Feeding them, I suppose?" Slade questioned as he bent lower.

At the same time that he saw the cage was empty he heard the guttural voice beside him.

"They got away," mumbled Karnell. "They slipped off, before I could stop them."

Slade studied him for a moment. "That's just too bad," he observed. And in spite of the quick and hostile glance of the other man he was able to laugh a little.

Yet that sense of being emmeshed in movements that were unpredictable returned to him the next morning when, a brief half-hour after his take-off, his passenger barked out an unexpected command to land.

With one hand Frayne held his binoculars poised; with the other he pointed to a lake that lay off to the left, framed in its encircling sprawl of spruce ridges.

"That," he announced, "is where we shall land."

"Why there?" asked Slade.
"I think," said the ornithologist, "I spotted a trumpeter swan."

Slade's one-sided smile seemed an announcement of his doubts as to the truth of that claim. But he remembered Cruger's warning about pilots not being supposed to wonder.

"Okay," said Slade as he turned into the wind and dropped lower. "But you're still a long jump from the Anawotto."

He could hear the mumble of foreign voices as his ship lost headway and drifted slowly in to the shoreline.

He saw the massive-shouldered Karnell wade ashore with an ax in his hand. Two minutes later he could hear the forest stillness ring with the familiar music of an ax blade against tough northern spruce trunks. The sullen giant seemed to know just what was expected of him. In less than half an hour he had his spruce boles trimmed and lashed together in a neatly made landing platform. His movements, Slade observed, were made with the automatic precision one might expect from a military engineer.

Slade sat on a sun-bleached rock and lit a cigarette. He sat there with an achieved air of remoteness, watching the swan-hunter as he made ready to land his equipment. Then the bush pilot's casual gaze wandered out to the empty ridges that ended in an equally empty skyline.

"A nice place to summer," he observed.

Frayne turned and faced him. And when Slade caught the unexpected flash of fire that came from behind the bifocal glasses he realized how some ghostly armistice between him and his passenger had ended. He didn't like the man, and he never would.

"When you are interested in more than engines," that passenger was proclaiming, "you will perhaps learn that uncomfortable localities quite often have undisclosed advantages."

Slade didn't quite know what that proclamation meant. But his smile was condoning as he tossed his cigarette end into the lake and rose to his feet.

"I guess you're right, Doctor," he said with a casualness that carried a note of insolence. "And here's where I pass out of the picture. But before I leave you to your swans' eggs I'd like to tip you off to just one thing. My interest sometimes extends beyond engines."

And this time, apparently, it was the man of science leaning out from the cabin hatch who didn't quite know what the speaker meant.

Lynn could feel spring in the air. Against a softening sky she could see eiders and snow geese, in vees, heading for their breeding tarns between the slowly greening muskges. Every swale and slough was noisy with mating whistlers and waveys and loons. But that clamorous love-making failed to lighten her heart. Even the sight of her father, mooring his plane between two saddlebacks in Iviuk Inlet, failed to take the cloud from her brooding hazel eyes.

"What's on your mind?" questioned the Flying Padre as he joined her on the rock point.

"I'm worried about Alan," she admitted. "We haven't had word about him getting out of that Anawotto country."

The Padre laughed.
"That cloud-wrangler can take care of himself," he proclaimed with slightly forced blitheness. "I've been shooting out messages from Fort Norman to the Pelly, telling him what supplies to fly in as soon as he's free."

"Then why doesn't he come?" "He's got his work to do, the same as the rest of us," was the Padre's reply to that. "And here's where we get busy. I've got to change the dressing on Ukeresak's leg wound and pull a couple of teeth for his glamour girl of the igloos."

Lynn watched her father as he strode up to their rough-boarded surgery.

But instead of following him she lingered on the rock point and looked up at the aerial migration above her.

Those relentless wings made her think of the equally relentless advance of the white man, the steady and stubborn northward trek of pioneers in their search for earth's bright-colored metals. It was affecting more than the wild life of the country. It seemed to disrupt both the modes and the mores of the natives, breaking up their tribal traditions and leaving them more and more dependent on the palefaces who took their hunting grounds away from them. Both the Eskimo and the Indian, her work along those scattered littoral villages had taught her, were a perishing people.

Yet she liked these people. They so stubbornly claimed their human right to survive; they stood so valorous in their fight against hunger and cold. They were, she felt, the most courageous people she had ever known. They demanded so little of life that a plug of trade tobacco could make them happy for a week, a mouth-organ could turn a funeral into a fiesta, a bright-colored handkerchief could bring raptness to a sloe-eyed face under its well-oiled locks.

Lynn recalled the expression of the girl Kogaluk, after bringing her aged father, whose hunting days had been ended by blindness, to the Flying Padre. Old Umanak had undoubtedly lost his vision. But a quick examination by the man of medicine had shown that the blindness was due to cataracts which an operation might remove. The Eskimo girl still had faith in the father whom she had to lead about by the hand, like a child.

"Him good hunter," she had said in her hesitating pidgin-English. "Him always good hunter until two winters ago."

"What would you say," questioned Dr. Morlock, "if I flew him out to Fort Smith and brought him back as good a hunter as ever?"

"I say you work good magic," said the daughter of the wilderness. But difficulties had interposed. Umanak had no wish to enter the devil-bird of the white doctor and be flown away from his people. Rather than be taken away from the friendly fish smell and the husky howls of his home he would prefer remaining with darkened eyes.

"I could patch the old boy up here," the Padre had explained, "if we only had the equipment."

"Then why not get it?" "How?"

"Perhaps Alan could fly in with it," Lynn had suggested, coloring a little before her father's smile of comprehension.

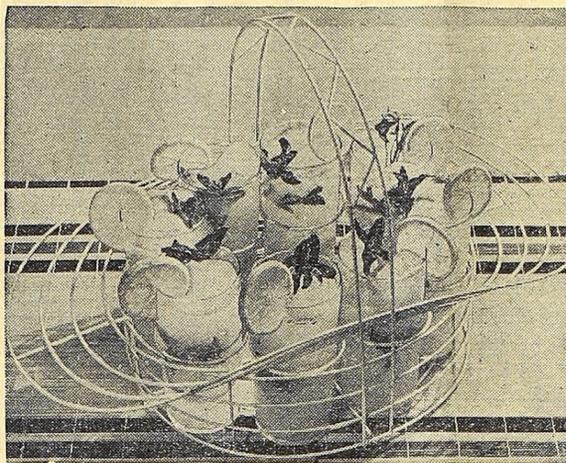

"So it's Alan you want?" "I want to see Umanak cured," she had contended. "And I'd stay on, of course, to look after him."

"Then we'll take a chance," the Flying Padre had agreed.

Cool, Ice-Tinkling Drinks Ward Off Summer Fatigue

(See Recipes Below.)

Sugar-Saving Drinks

When the thermometer's perched on the highest rung of the temperature ladder, do you feel your spirits sagging, your energy running low? Yes, the warm weather begins to take its toll just about the time you feel you need push and drive most. But, make a comeback, quickly and easily with a healthful, fruit-juicy drink served in a tall, colorful frosty glass.

An attractively served drink will perk up your spirits more quickly than you can say "Jack Spratt!" Plan to freeze some of those fragrant mint leaves and those few odd berries left over from the shortcake, with water in the ice cube trays for they make a pretty drink. Or, if you like colored ice cubes that prevent your summer beverage from taking on a watery taste, freeze fruit juices diluted with water into ice cubes. You'll like this.

There's a lot more to be said for cool drinks other than their general nice appearance. Besides providing your system with the vitamin C, in excellent quantity, and A and B in good quantity, the citrus fruits, oranges and lemons, act as alkalisers for the system. This acts as insurance against fatigue, which is a big thing in warmer weather.

Milk and ice cream are perfect ingredients with fruit juices for cooling drinks. Not only do they contain most of the requisites for a well-balanced diet, but they are easy to take and lend themselves in pleasant combination with other foods.

Your biggest problem with summer drinks will come in trying to save sugar. But don't let this stump you, for you can use fruit juices that have natural sugars, honey as a sweetener, and milk and ice cream, which need very little or no other sweetening at all.

Try fruit powders, too, using 1 level tablespoon of the fruit powder with 3 teaspoons of honey to 1 glass of water or milk. Fill the glass with shimmering ice chips and you have an excellent thirst quencher in a wink.

Fruit juices used with ice cream and honey are kind to the sugar ration:

Orange Cooler.
(Makes 1½ quarts)
2 cups orange juice
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ cup maraschino cherry juice
1 cup ginger ale
2 tablespoons honey

Lynn Says:
The Score Card: Definite news has reached me on the spice situation, so now you homemakers can see exactly what is available in this line.

There's enough to go around freely of: cayenne, red pepper, mustard, chili powder, dill seeds, oregano, paprika, curry, cake spice, mixed pickling spice, celery seed, onion and garlic salt and powder, bay leaves, marjoram, cardamon, anise and black pepper.

Careful use is indicated for these spices: cinnamon, mace, allspice, white pepper, cloves, nutmeg and ginger.

Canning rubbers, lids, jars, etc. are available in sufficient quantity for this season's produce. An extra ration of sugar for canners will be allowed, amounting to five pounds per person for the year.

There's a possibility that coffee, tea, and cocoa may come in for rationing. Homemakers are also advised to save and conserve all fats, grease and oil. If you cannot use the fat at home, keep it well preserved in a cool place to prevent its becoming rancid, then bring to your butcher.

You will be driving around less these summer evenings for your breath of fresh air, but you will probably spend more time on your back porch, having the neighbors drop in and serving them simple drinks and a few sugar-saving cookies for the in-between-meal snack. You'll enjoy both of these recipes:

- *Honey Chocolate Nut Cookies.
- ½ cup butter
- 2 squares unsweetened chocolate
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- ½ cup honey
- ½ cup sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¾ cup sifted flour
- ½ cup chopped nuts

Melt butter and chocolate over hot water and stir until blended. Combine eggs, sugar, honey and salt in bowl. Add flour which has been sifted once before measuring. Mix thoroughly, add chocolate mixture and beat until smooth. Add nuts. Drop from spoonfuls on greased baking sheet, and bake in a slow (300-degree) oven 15 minutes. Remove from sheet immediately. The cookies taste better when mellowed, so pack in a tight container between layers of waxed paper.

- *Chocolate Crunch.
- ½ pound semi-sweet or sweet milk chocolate
- 1 cup oven-popped rice cereal

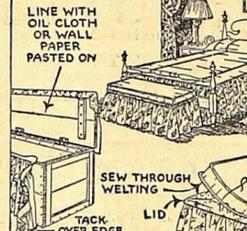

Melt chocolate over hot water. Add cereal and stir until blended. Pack into a pan lined with waxed paper. Allow to set until chocolate hardens, then cut into squares.

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

A SMARTLY founced blanket chest with contrasting cushion is a useful addition to any bedroom. It serves as a convenient seat; and extra covers are right at hand on chilly nights. A pair of these, covered to match spreads, would go well with twin beds.

Plan the size of your chest to fill your needs and space. It may be made of one-inch pine and should be about 15 inches high without the cushion. Make the founce with double fullness—that is, twice as long as the space it is to fill after it is gathered. The cushion may be filled with cotton padding, feathers or down.

NOTE: Book No. 8 of the series of booklets offered with these articles gives directions for flowered blanket protectors and a bedside bag for books and magazines. Also many other things to make for almost nothing from odds and ends to be found in almost every home. To get a copy of Book No. 8 send your order to:

TO YOUR Good Health

CANCER OF THROAT

A surgeon friend of mine showed me a patient, 65 years of age, who had consulted him because of a sore throat and persistent hoarseness. When examined it was found that he had cancer of the throat and, owing to its location, surgery was inadvisable. Accordingly, treatment by radium was given and as I looked into the throat I was amazed at the size of the "hole" left in the throat and the healthy condition of the tissues. The man looked and felt very well. Had this case gone on a while longer it would have been too late for treatment, yet his only complaint was a slight soreness and persistent hoarseness.

It is because cancer of the throat often comes on with slight soreness only and hoarseness that it is overlooked by the patient and sometimes even by the physician. It is for this reason, therefore, that Dr. Chevalier Jackson and Dr. G. E. Pfahler, Philadelphia, keep reminding us that hoarseness that persists for more than two weeks should be investigated.

"Cancer of the larynx is best prevented by avoiding irritation, excessive or faulty use of the voice, inhaling smoke, dust or fumes. From 70 to 80 per cent of such cancers can be cured if caught in the early stage when only a part of a vocal cord is involved. Danger signals are hoarseness or pain in the larynx."

We may be inclined to become discouraged about cancer because of the general statement, "Until the cause of cancer is discovered there is not much that can be done about it." As a matter of fact, much is known about the cause of cancer in that "irritation," not a single irritation but continuous irritation can cause cancer in any "surface" tissue of the body in some individuals.

Remember, then, that "throat cancers are difficult to prevent and recognize. General warning is swelling or soreness around the throat or tonsils that doesn't improve in two weeks."

If, then, you or any member of your family has a sore throat and hoarseness that does not respond to ordinary home treatment you should consult your physician.

New Treatment Of Stomach Ulcer

For many years the treatment of peptic ulcer—ulcer of the stomach and ulcer of the small intestine into which stomach empties—has been small meals taken often and an alkali powder to overcome the excess acid digestive juice in the stomach. This is known as the Sippy treatment.

It will come as a surprise to ulcer patients and to many physicians also to learn that a series of 41 cases has been successfully treated by a different method. Drs. George F. Dick and C. Wesley Eisele, in the Journal of the American Medical Association, state that the treating of stomach and duodenal ulcers (peptic ulcer) will progress satisfactorily without the attempted neutralization of acidity with alkalis.

"Under hourly treatment with milk and cream without the use of alkalis, the speed of healing of peptic ulcers compares favorably with that under other methods of treatment. Such treatment brought about (1) the prompt disappearance of symptoms and the complete comfort of the patient, (2) the disappearance of blood from the stool when blood was present, and (3) the disappearance of the cavity of the ulcer as shown by X-rays."

These physicians state that while the present treatment of overcoming the excess acid stomach juice by the use of alkalis has been accepted as the "best" treatment nevertheless the fact that different alkalis are being used from time to time for peptic ulcer treatment shows that alkali treatment is not altogether satisfactory.

"In their series of 41 cases, seven were suffering from stomach ulcer and 34 from duodenal or intestinal ulcer. X-ray studies were used to show the progress of the treatment. Seventy per cent of the 'cavities' of duodenal ulcers disappeared within 75 days. Complete relief of symptoms occurred in nearly all cases before the cavity was completely healed. In 31 cases all symptoms were controlled within one week." The treatment—milk and cream every hour without use of alkalis.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—Are there any Sulfa drugs that are helpful in tuberculosis treatment?
A.—The Sulfa drugs are most helpful in acute or early conditions. Their use in chronic conditions is not very successful as yet.
Q.—How can nervous spasms of the intestines be treated?
A.—Nervous spasm in intestine is due to nervousness or emotional disturbances. Trying to keep calm in spirit and avoiding rough foods will give relief.

itors. Neither team scored until the fourth when Tawas broke the ice and took a one-run lead. Rollin reached first on an error by the pitcher, Gackstetter sacrificed him to second, went to third on a passed ball; Prescott walked; Tawas then used the old squeeze play, with Rapp sacrificing Rollin in with a bunt. Wickert ended the inning by grounding out short to first. Tawas added three runs in the fifth when McCoy fled to left field, Peterson singled, stole second and third, Fahselt walked, Thornton squeezed in Peterson for Tawas's second run and was safe at first when a play was made at the plate for Peterson. Rollin reached first on an error by the pitcher; Gackstetter fled to right with Fahselt scoring after the catch. Prescott hit a grounder to short who booted it with Thornton scoring and Prescott reaching first safely. Prescott then stole second. Rapp walked, Wickert struck out to end the inning.

Pinconning tied up the ball game in the fifth when Miller singled, Kabowski singled, Gnew reached first on a fielder's choice, with Miller being forced at third. Bush singled scoring Karbowski, McCoy dropped Lambert's slow roller, with Gnew scoring. McCoy struck out Berthume. Hoyle singled scoring Bush and Lambert. Wolen fled to Prescott to end the inning. Tawas broke the tie in the eighth when Rapp reached first on an error by the pitcher, stole second. Wickert singled, with Rapp advancing to third, Wickert stole second. McCoy singled scoring Rapp and Wilkert. Peterson was out sacrificing McCoy to second. Fahselt and Thornton then grounded out short to first. In the ninth after two were out, Prescott reached first on an error, stole second and scored on Rapp's single. Rapp stole second and third, but was left stranded when Wickert grounded out second to first.

Though Pinny garnered more hits than Tawas City, McCoy kept the hits well scattered and little damage was done. He struck out ten men and walked nary a man. Genow, for Pinny struck out six and walked five.

Three members of the Tawas team were injured, playing in the double reader Sunday. They were Gackstetter, Katterman and Rapp. Lets all hope they will be back with us soon.

Sunday, July 12, Tawas City will play Gladwin at Gladwin. One of Tawas's two defeats was suffered at their hands. The following Sunday another double header will be played at the local athletic field with Rhodes furnishing the opposition.

Do You Know?

by Dorothy Scott
Canning season is upon us, and with an increased emphasis on food production this year, it follows that we shall need to increase our food preservation efforts.

Among the reasons for preserving as much as possible of our own food supply this year are these: a possible scarcity of fresh fruits and vegetables in stores because of limited transportation facilities. ample provision for ourselves means we can leave the commercial supply for the needs of the armed forces; plenty of variety and quantity helps us live up to the "yardstick of good nutrition."

Eating the right food yields a higher standard of health for the family, which may become increasingly important as more doctors and nurses join our armed forces. Many illnesses and infections may be traced directly to faulty food habits or lack of sufficient essential foods, which causes our resistance to be lowered.

Food preservation methods in most common use includes canning and drying, pickling and smoking. Right now we are most interested in canning and drying.

Perhaps thoughtless or careless preparation of equipment for canning causes more food spoilage than do some other factors.

Before beginning your days' canning, check your equipment. There must be no chips or dents in the sealing edges of jars or tops—no loose or cracked porcelains, or loose wire clamps.

Rubber should not crack when pressed on a fold between your fingers. Clean your pressure cooker gauge opening with a toothpick and check the safety valve which should be washed after each using.

Wash jars and tops in hot soapy water, rinse, place in a pan of warm water and bring to a boil. Keep hot until filled. If you are doing open-kettle canning, boil jars and covers 15 minutes to sterilize them.

Allow rubbers and jar caps with sealing composition to stand in water for a few minutes.

Attention to these details before beginning your actual preparation of foods may save the loss of many jars and much discouragement.
