Now 2nd Lieutenant BAPTISTS WILL Miss Elizabeth Metcalf

The staff at Victory Memorial played the game "famous names" at lunch one day this week.

Instead of ending up in the usual brain-fog, it effected a revelation. Elizbeth Metcalf, operating room supervisor, is the great great granddaughter, on the paternal, side, of the great grandmother of David Lloyd George, former prime ministen to England.

This comes out after her two year residence in Waukegan, while she is now in the throes of packing to go to the theatre of war. Tomorrow she will leave for a brief officers training at Camp Custer. Then as second lieutenant she will entrain with the West Suburban hospital unit of Oak Park.

She's sure that the government hasn't been informed of her kinship, and that it has nothing to do with her commission as second lieutenant.

The effectiveness of the entire offensive was indicated by a communique from General MacArthur's headquarters in Australia which reported that the marines had captured a Japanese airfield on Guadacanal island.

Intent on India and massing strength along the Siberian frontier, the Japanese command did not like the idea of an American offensive in the Solomons. An offensive it was, however, with the intent of regaining lost territory, cutting a wedge into Japanese supply lines and carrying the fight to the enemy.

The marines were only a part of the attacking task force under command of Vice Admiral Robert L. Ghormley. They performed the necessary landing and cross-country fighting operations. But back of them was stout naval power and strong air forces which gave the Yankees a superiority the Japs had

In the initial operations, United States fighter squadrons flying in conjunction with Royal Air Force units made three flights over the French coast. Twenty other aerial missions were over the sea and eight were interception sorties off the coast of England, according to a communique of the United States European headquarters.

Meanwhile the RAF's assaults on German industrial centers continued with another blistering attack on Mainz in which high explosives and incendiaries were again rained down. The effectiveness of the British air blitz was attested by Dr. Joseph Goebbels, German minister of propaganda, who admitted that Germany is suffering "painful wounds" from the RAF's summer offensive, in an article for "Das Reich."

NAVY:

The board's functions are to advise the secretary on matters of policy. The navy said the board's duties and responsibilities had greatly increased since America's entry into the war and that the reorganization brought to the board officers well qualified to deal with vital problems arising out of the

FARM INCOME:

Increases in farm income have thus far been able to outrun rises in the cost of living, it was disclosed in a department of agriculture survey which showed that while net income of farm families averaged 46 per cent higher in 1941 and in the first three months of 1942 than in the comparable period in 1935-36, living costs had increased approximately one-third. DOCTORS:

Getting Scarcer

Mounting needs for doctors in the armed services will make necessary a speeding up of medical training and an expansion of their practice by physicians remaining in civilian

This was made evident when statistics released in Washington showed that the country has 60,000 doctors, whereas needs for military and civilian functions will require 140,000 physicians. As a result of this situation, selective service headquarters said local boards had already begun to reclassify physicians who can be spared from civilian service.

For every 1,000,000 men in the army, approximately 6,000 doctors are required. The navy's needs are 6,500 physicians to every 1,000,000 men. President Roosevelt's recent statement that 4,000,000 men are already under arms indicates that 24,000 doctors are ticketed for military service. The army recently declared it will need 20,000 more by the end of the year.

EW YORK.—Harold McCracken, explorer for the American Museum of Natural History, says Japanese in the Aleutians are just like Japs in Aleutians Florida, and Must Be Bayoneted he says fur-Out, Not Bombed thermore that we can't bomb them out. They can hole up like gophers in the native huts, and in Mr. McCracken's view must be "chased with bayonets into the Bering sea," if we are to dislodge them at all.

This should qualify as expert testimony. Mr. McCracken knows the Aleutians. In July, 1928, heading the Stoll-McCracken expedition, he unearthed a sarcophagus, on top of an almost inaccessible Aleutian rock islet, containing the mummies of three adults and a child. This culminated his 11-year search for stone age remains along the Aleutian land-bridge.

As an archeologist and explorer, the author of a number of books. he has studiously pieced out the historic jig-saw puzzle of his various findings and taken due account of their bearing on war and peace and the present and future of mankind. In 1934, he elaborated a plan for an 'international grand jury" to end war which, in some aspects, was the first of several suggestions for fusing individual interests, across national boundaries, rather than grouping sovereign nations. More pertinent to his current observation s his previous conclusion that the Japanese invasion of the Aleutians was long planned and carefully prepared.

Mr. McCracken, a lean, gentle man with horn-rimmed spectacles, doesn't look like a man who has killed about 20 Kodiak grizzly bears, but he has, and such encounters are a minor detail of his desperate adventures in shipwrecks, blizzards and lonely treks in the frozen wilder-

It was in 1915 that he first went o Alaska, heading an expedition for Ohio State university, his alma mater. In 1919 and 1920, he placered pay dirt on the Alaska peninsula, and into 1922-23 headed up a moving picture expedition, again for Ohio State university, to film big game. This led him into the production of travel and documentary films.

They were more versatile than the opposition, better in knee and elbow work, and could land a chunk of slag or a slug of pig-iron on an exposed skull with skill and authority. Their own skulls seemed strangely resistant to such missiles.

As to the fight, they seemed to enjoy it, and when it was over set up a patriotic song which ranged far over the slag heaps and far into the night.

It is reported that 3,000 Italians have been captured or killed in the last two weeks and that the general's forces have now wrested 11,000 square miles from the Axis. They didn't try to make their second front a jug-handled deal.

The rocky-faced General Mikhailovitch, a colonel of artillery several years before the war, came out of the First World war with a strong distaste for the German military

When the blitzkrieg hit, he was invited to join officials and army leaders in a plane flight to Cairo. Second Front Draws Near

By Quentin Reynolds

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

Here in London it is evident that the RAF is slapping Germany silly. They are doing it with quick daring thrusts in which airmen and commandos work in co-operation with the navv.

And today 80 per cent of the people here on Churchill's island, and a great part of Russia and America, are screaming to Britain: "Stop boxing the enemy! Go in and slug him!"

In other words, Britain is being urged on all sides to establish a second front, regardless of the German strength in France and other occupied countries.

Superiority of Armanent.

The thousands who are mounting soap boxes and platforms in Britain, the hundreds who pen cutting editorials asking why the government does not start an immediate second front, the impatient Russians here in London and in Moscow, quite understandably crying for ven-geance against those who have killed some two million of their countrymen, the British civilian start-second-front-at-any-price brigade-forget that though the walls of Jericho crumbled at the blast of a trumpet, there is no reason to believe that the defensive walls of German Europe will fall at the blast of anything except superior guns, airplanes and tanks.

Loud insistence upon the immediate opening of a second front has seemed to imply that Prime Minister Churchill and his government were not over-anxious to join with their Russian allies in an all-out effort on the Continent.

Churchill Never Lukewarm.

Nothing could be further from the truth, of course, and the Molotoff agreements made in Washington have formally spiked that idea. Churchill talks privately as he does publicly, and no one who has heard his vituperative private comment in regard to the Germans, no one who admiration for the way the Russians have fought, would for a moment seriousness of the war. consider that Churchill is lukewarm on the subject of a second front.

No one in Britain more earnestly desires to establish and maintain a bridgehead on the continent than does Mr. Churchill.

Nor would Churchill's worst enemies ever ccuse him of cowardice or lack of decision when it comes to offensive action.

He has shown himself willing to gamble on any occasion when there was a chance of winning the gamble. It is no secret that when Wavell attacked the Italians in the desert back in December, 1940, he bit off a little more than he could chew. He asked Churchill for more tanks. At that time there was a serious threat of invasion in Britain, yet Churchill without hesitating sent Wavell the one armored division that Britain had, and with it the general smashed the Italian army thoroughly. This was typical of the chances which Churchill is willing to

Not so long ago, he actually took weapons from the hands of British soldiers and sent them to Russia. These were not surplus weapons, they were the only weapons the men had. Admittedly, Britain's army was weakened, but Churchill had shown more than once that he is committed wholly to the policy of putting weapons in the hands of those who are killing Germans.

Today's Big Problem.

Why, then, has not this bold leader ordered that a second front be opened? The answer is very simple. Such an undertaking is still a gamble. It may continue to be a gamble for at least another six months.

Any attempt to invade the continent now might easily result in another and more costly Dunkirk. If those who have been leading the clamor for a second front knew what resources the Germans have in France, Norway and other possible invasion points, if they knew the vast amount of so-called specialassault equipment required, they would realize that their agitation is very, very premature.

Maginot Guns Waiting.

There was once a little toy called the Maginot line. It stretched 700 miles and it bristled with guns. Very few of these guns were ever shot except in practice. The Germans captured all those guns. Today they are on guard against a British invasion. The whole coastal area is manned by these excellent guns.

There is the problem, then-300,000 men, well equipped, well entrenched, and with a rather large body of water protecting them. It done a job well. is a military problem which has never been solved.

Rationing Chief Lauds Public for Cooperation

Most 'Kicks' Come From Pressure Groups, OPA Administrator Points Out.

By Leon Henderson Administrator of the OPA

(Because the present rationing program is of paramount interest to every person, this paper presents an exclusive article written for members of the Western Newspaper Union syndicate by Leon Henderson, price control administrator. The views expressed are those of Mr. Henderson.)

There are still a lot of rough spots in rationing, but we know we're on the right track because most of the kicks we're getting are coming from the pressure groups, and comparatively few from the public.

And as more and more rationing becomes necessary, we're going to make more mistakes. But we're going to find them out, and cure them one at a time because that's the way progress is made.

While rationing on the modern scale is unprecedented, rationing itself, is nothing new to Americans. As a matter of fact, it's older than our government itself because the Pilgrims used it at Plymouth Rock to weather the hardships of days of scarcity. Washington, of course, was the nation's first rationing administrator. Indomitable courage, and rationing, brought his men through Valley Forge. Rationing played a great part in the settling of the West because many of those hardy pioneers would never have made it across the desert if they hadn't pooled all their supplies and shared alike.

Fight for Life Itself.

Now that our nation faces a fight for life itself, we're using this valuable tool to insure the necessities of life to every American so that we can all pitch in on the one big job of winning the war. That's what rationing really amounts to. The public, I believe, is realizing that rationing is a protective measure for the individual and the country instead of an unnecessary restrictive device, and they are supporting it, by and large, as they are supporting our other necessary war measures. Most of the criticisms that come to us from the public are from people who really don't understand the purposes of rationing programs and why they are necessary, or those who have been misled by selfish interests seeking to destroy rationing, into the belief that it is not neceshas ever heard him express his sary, or that it is being done simply to make our people aware of the Six Commodities Rationed.

In the first eight months of war for our country, we have had to ration six commodities: sugar, tires, autos, typewriters, bicycles, and in

Very briefly, here are the reasons: We can't ship enough sugar into the United States to give everyone all he wants of it; therefore, we ration sugar so everyone can have a fair share.

Our principal source of rubber is cut off; we can't make enough tires for everyone; therefore, we ration tires to serve our country's most vital needs.

We need our auto factories for war production. No more autos. So we ration what autos we have on hand to serve the country's greatest needs.

We need all the typewriter factories for manufacture of shells, gun parts and other war supplies. Typewriter production stops, so we ration the typewriters we have on hand to meet our most essential needs.

We need the metals and rubber that go into bicycles, for war production. No more bicycles. So we ration the bicycles we have left to those who really need them.

In the East, we can't get enough gasoline because we haven't enough tankers or other facilities to transport all it takes to run all cars as usual without hampering our war effort. So we ration gasoline to give every essential user enough for his actual needs.

Each Problem a New One. While the underlying purposes of these rationing programs can be stated that simply, the working out of the machinery to make them effective and fair to our 130 million people is quite another matter. Even if we had the benefit of long experience in such work, the launching of a new rationing program would still be a man-sized job. But to work out rationing systems for

Constructive Criticism Invited

The public has been wonderfully patient because most people know how difficult such a job must be. The constructive criticism of the large numbers of persons who have written to us, and of the loyal newspapers of the country have been a great aid in helping us plan soundly. We eagerly invite such constructive criticism .- Henderson.

130 million people is something new under the sun. Never before in history has it been done. Every problem that arises is a new problem. We can't call in the experts, because there are no experts. have to work it out on what seems to be the soundest possible basis, and when we find we're wrong, and our plans don't work, we have to go back and change them. We're learning as we go.

But we have been beset on the other hand by another kind of criticism that has not been helpful. Our rationing programs have been subjected to criticisms and attacks from enemy and selfish interests whose sole purpose was to destroy public confidence in rationing; to wreck the system.

These enemy attacks were designed to hamper our war effort by spreading confusion and dissatisfaction on the home front as one phase of the Axis propaganda activities in the United States. This of course former Bund members and other | resins. enemy agents and is dealt with whenever the FBI breaks up the work of spies and saboteurs.

Downright Selfishness. But the other is the result of downright selfishness as opposed to the higher interests of our war effort. There have been some-and fortunately the number is small considering the size of our country-who

Like millions of other housewives throughout the U. S., Mrs. Leon Henderson, wife of the Office of Price Administration's head, went through the routine of registering for her sugar rationing book. Dr. Elmer S. Newton, superintendent of Western high school, Washington, D. C., is filling out the application blank for Mrs. Henderson. The other lady on the left is Mrs. Henry Wallace, wife of the vice OPA Administrator have sought to wreck our rationing programs because their own personal profits from the sale of the rationed commodities were reduced. They have sought to do this by citing misleading figures in attempts to prove that shortages do not exist in the rationed commodity in which they hold an interest, and that rationing therefore should be discard-

These people, whether they realize it or not, are committing an unpatriotic act. They are putting their dollar profits ahead of their country's interests, and are trying to bargain their hopes for future freedom for the quick financial gain that would come from frantic hoarding by a panic-stricken people.

It is not sufficient for good Americans simply to ignore the attacks made by these selfish interests. We should all be vocal in our denunciation of such propaganda and demand that every person making such unwarranted statements designed to wreck our rationing programs, back those statements with facts to prove them.

End False Rumor. This does not mean that American citizens should be denied the right to express their opinions on rationing, or any other subject. I am simply asking that Americans who know the importance of assuring fair, orderly distribution of commodities that become scarce during our war effort, place every selfish critic of rationing in the position of having to prove everything he says. We can thus bring to an end much of the false rumor and insidious propaganda that has beset our efforts to do a necessary job.

Paint Scarcity Looms, Home Economist Gives Hints on Its Best Use

College Station, Texas.-Before long, paints of many types are going to become scarce.

Mrs. Bernice Claytor, specialist in home improvement for the A. and M. college extension service, says shortages will be felt especially in paints, varnishs, and enamels for interiors. The reason is, emanated from the offices of the these require natural or synthetic

For some time synthetic resins have been ear-marked for exclusive war use, and lately the War Production board has ordered a 50 per cent cut in the amount of natural resins manufactured for civilian purposes. Here are some of the specialist's suggestions for choosing and using interior paints to the best advantage. Semi-gloss paint, which washes well and is not too harsh in appearance, is suitable for kitchens

Flat paint gives a "soft" appearance and is best for large areas such as walls and ceilings. It soils less quickly than gloss paint, but it will not stand up as well under washing. Calcimine is the cheapest wall

paint available. Though it cannot be cleaned, it can be washed off entirely and a new coat applied. The specialist cautions:

"Don't use calcimine on smooth woodwork or on walls which have been covered with oil paint." The coating eventually will chip off and make later re-painting far harder.

Enamel should be used only on very smooth surfaces, for it makes holes, chips, and scars more noticeable.

Homemakers who want to avoid the trouble of sandpapering and planing uneven surfaces, should use a gloss or semi-gloss paint instead

With other scarcities looming, homemakers have been requested by many universities' extension specialists and government officials to file clippings which describe how such material can be efficiently used.

And they're all set to begin again

There's no tired, dragged-out feeling, no languid appetite, headache, nervousness, irritability, constipation and other annoying ailment which can be traced back to the fact that they are not getting the right food in the right amounts.

Many ailments are so common and generally accepted by everybody that it never occurs to some folks that they can help themselves to health by eating more of the vital "protective" foods, rich in vitamins, minerals and proteins, the nutritionist suggested. These liabili-ties usually do not receive the attention of the doctor, but quietly undermine health and stamina.

Health of the teeth, sharpness of eyesight, mental alertness, bone formation and maintenance, as well as digestive disorders, are influenced by what people choose to eat-or rather not to eat.

JACOB'S VISION OF GOD

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 28:10-22.
GOLDEN TEXT—I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whithersoever thou goest.—Genesis 28:15.

Deception, trickery, falsehood, jealousy were all present in the family of Isaac at the time of our lesson. A hopeless situation, one would say; and so it was, apart from one thing—the grace of God. We speak thing—the grace of God. We speak that phrase so easily, but in reality it has an infinite depth of meaning.

Jacob shared the deception planned by his mother, and thereby he received the blessing of Esau. Not willing to wait God's time for the carrying out of His purpose, they sinned to gaim an advantage. Then to escape the wrath of Esau, he had to flee. The journey was ostensibly to find a wife, but in fact a flight from an enraged brother. Could such a journey bring a man to a place of blessing? It did, as there was-

I. A Revelation of God's Grace (vv. 10-15).

The fugitive was overtaken by darkness on the second night of his journey, and made his bed in the open. Then came the magnificent vision of the ladder of heaven.

Heaven and earth are not separated. There is a way to reach the throne of God, and there is a way for God to reach and bless His people. The vision of the ladder thus reassured Jacob. We need only remember the God-Man Christ Jesus, who came from glory and has returned there to now appear as our Advocate, to be assured of this fact. God renewed to Jacob the covenant with Abraham and with Isaac. He does not forget. Men make treaties only to break them. God says, "I will not leave thee, until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of" (v. 15).

In His matchless grace God relieved Jacob's fear by assuring him of His protection; his loneliness by His divine presence; and his uncertainty regarding the future by the promise of blessing. The response of Jacob was-

II. A Realization of God's Greatness (vv. 16-19).

Full of holy fear and of awe, Jacob realized the presence of the infinite God. It is a proper and a wholesome reaction when a man, realizing himself to be in God's presence, is overcome by the awe-inspiring experience.

Possibly the reason for our lack of reverence for holy things, for the Lord's day—yes, for God Himself, is because He has become a little God, weak and uninspiring in our thinking. Theologians, preachers, and teachers have dared to speak swelling words of disrespect concerning His miraculous power, have was stricken blind, legend says, denied the deity of His Son, have questioned the authority of His Word. Having sown the wind of unbelief, they have reaped from the people the whirlwind of irreverence, a belittling of God, and a rejection of His authority (Hos. 8:7).

Jacob was reminded of God's immediate presence-"the Lord is in this place." The place of his vision of heavenly things had special meaning to Jacob.

But the underlying truth is that God is everywhere. He is not only in the church, or in the place of vision or of soul-struggle; He is also in the place of trial, of suffering, of sorrow, of loneliness-yes, even of sin. The thing that Jacob "found out that night was not that God visits man, but that God is with man wherever he is. We expect to meet Him in the sanctuary; but He is near us in the market place . . Not alone in the sanctuary, but where the multitude gather in defiance of His law, He is there" (G.

Campbell Morgan). This rich experience led Jacob to-III. A Recognition of God's Goodness (vv. 20-22).

The God who would supply his every need, who would watch over him and keep him, was recognized by Jacob as being worthy of his devotion, and he made a vow that He should be his God (v. 21).

The grace and goodness of God are intended to bring men to faith in Him and devotion to His service. Yet men can go on year after year, the beneficiaries of all His bounty, and never so much as say "Thank you," let alone recognize Him as Lord.

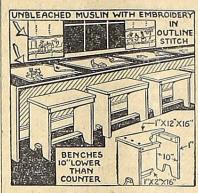

Jacob made a very practical and workable decision to demonstrate the reality of his vow. He promised that one tenth of all God gave him should be given back for a sacred

We agree with Dr. W. H. Griffith Thomas that "if only some of those who are inclined to criticize Jacob would do what he promised and give a tenth of their income to God, a different state of affairs would obtain in connection with God's work at home and abroad."

Trickery and deception were changed to truthfulness and devotion when Jacob met God face to face. The same blessed transformation awaits those who meet our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ in faith. Have you met Him?

EVERYONE knows that quick meals in the kitchen save time, but it was both time and space that had to be saved in this kitch that had to be saved in this kitchen where breakfasts were eaten on the run and the children had but a few minutes for lunch. The problem was solved by building a 16-inch-wide counter under a window and then making simple stools to be slipped under it when construction of the stools are shown here. A saw, a screw driver and a wood chisel are the only tools that were used.

The stools were painted cream color to match the woodwork and the counter was covered with blue linoleum like the floor covering. Cream colored place mats, napkins and window curtains embroidered in colorful Mexican figures were then added to give a smart note of gaiety.

NOTE: These curtains, mats and napkins were made of flour bags and the gay figures tell a story of life down Mexico way. A flower seller; a peon on his burro; a caballero with his guitar; a man lead-

THE STORY SO FAR: Because he and his partner, Cruger, need the money to keep Norland Airways in business Alan Slade agrees to fly a "scientist" named Frayne and his partner, Karnell to the Anawotto river in search of the trumpeter swan. With the proceeds Cruger buys a plane, a Lockheed, which is stolen. When he returns from the Anawotto Slade starts out to look for the plane. He has three clues, one of which appears to have lead up a blind alley. Slade thought the missing plane had some connection with Frayne, but when he returned to where he left the swan-hunter there was no trace of the plane, and Frayne appeared to be hunting swans. The second clue is the story of Umanak, the eskimo, about a "ghost" plane that is supposed to come from Echo Harbor. The third clue is Slade's hunch that if he finds a flyer named Slim Tumstead he will find the plane. Tumstead, who knows about the Lockheed and about Frayne, has disappeared. Now Slade, Umanak, and Slade's old prospector friends, Zeke and Minty, are all out looking for the plane. Slade has just learned that his hunch was sound. Tumstead is with Frayne, and they have a plane somewhere.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER XIII

"On the contrary," retorted the older man, "you will sail away quite comfortably on the Kovalevka when she takes out her cargo. You will be carried safe and sound to Vladivostok, with money enough, remember, to give you three years of travel in Europe and all the vodka your heart may desire."

Tumstead seemed to be consider-

"But why doesn't your Kovalevka show up?" he questioned. "She will come," was the precise-noted answer, "when we are ready for her. Ice conditions have not been of the best. And we, too, have been a little slow in getting our shipment in shape.'

"So damned slow," Tumstead retorted, "your stuff won't be any use to you. While you're combing the icicles out of your hair the war'll be over.'

"Silence," commanded the steelier voice. "The men of my race are taught to do what they are commanded to do."

"And some of it," retorted the other, "I'd call uncommonly dirty work."

"It is not for you to question the nature of my work."

Tumstead's laugh was harsh. 'No, I'm merely a flyer," he acceded. "But I'm not the kind who can keep a ship going without gas." It was the older man's turn to stand thoughtful. "That is a problem," he finally said, "which we must in some way solve.'

Tumstead's repeated laugh was edged with bitterness.

'I've gathered in everything that's lying round loose between here and the Pole," he protested. "And the next pinch may put us all in the dog-house.

'I think not," said the other. "And we have a problem more immi-

"What problem?"

As Frayne disappeared within the tent Tumstead groped about for his fallen cup and reached once more for the coffeepot. Slade, watching him, backed quietly away through the underbrush. But his retreat was a brief one. He worked his way down the hollow between the hills and slowly ascended the opposing slope. Then, seeking what cover he could find, he circled back toward the lake front. He stopped, from time to time, to listen and look. But nothing, as he went, came between him and the object of his

That objective was the shadowy tangle of spruce trees at the water's edge. He noticed, as he drew nearer, how a rough ramp of spruce logs had been built out from the hillside. It was so plainly a landing stage, to make easier the passing of heavy freight into a plane cabin, that no shock of surprise touched Slade when he peered under the matted treetops. For, standing there in the shadows, he saw the stolen Lockheed.

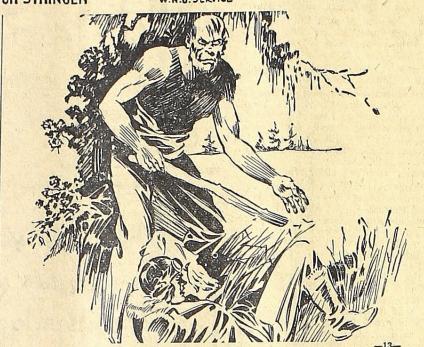

He climbed to the rough-timbered ramp and advanced to where two filled ore bags stood together at its outer edge. He stooped over one of the bags, intent on determining its contents.

He failed to see the bare-shouldered and burly figure that emerged from the tree shadows behind him and quietly reached for a spruce bole as long as the long bare arm that wielded it.

He failed to hear any movement as the newcomer crept forward, as silent as a shadow, and brought the spruce bole down on the stooping flyer's head

Slade went down like a clouted

Slade, as consciousness slowly returned to him, found it no easy matter to orient himself. His head throbbed and his body seemed cramped into quivering helplessness. Then the singing in his ears and the quivering of his frame merged into the throb and drone of a motor.

He failed to see the bare-shouldered and burly figure that emerged from the tree shadows.

He thought, at first, that his bodily helplessness was due to being so tightly wedged in between soiled ore bags and the pilot's seat. But it was due, he found after an effort or two to move, to the fact that both his hands and feet were tied. Memory came back to him as he lay back trying to figure out the reason for all this. The final mists eddied away as he looked up and saw that the man at the controls was Tumstead. Slade made no effort to speak. Instead, he quietly tugged and twisted, in the hope of freeing himself. But his struggles were without result.

The plane's pilot, however, must have become conscious of them, for his smile was sardonic as he glanced back over a shrugging shoulder.

"Coming round?" he nonchalantly called out.

"What does this mean?" demanded Slade. Tumstead flew on for a moment or two of silence. "It means you're lucky to be alive," he finally announced. "That bullhead who knocked you out went back for his Luger. He was all set to give you the works." Slade seemed to be giving thought to that statement.

"What are you going to do with me?" he asked. "That," retorted Tumstead, "is what I'm trying to figure out. The easiest way, of course, would be to drop you overboard. And that's where you'd go, all right, if we both weren't flyers.'

"Then as one flyer to another," Slade asked, "why did you steal this plane?"

Tumstead's reply to that was a snort of laughter. "That's my own affair," he said. "And you should have known better than nose in on it."

"You're flying for Frayne," said nis prisoner.

"Can you suggest anything bet-Slade considered that question.

"Yes," he answered, "I know this Lockheed, while there's still a chance of saving your scalp." Tumstead's laugh was hard and "Not on your life," he proclaimed. 'It's your scalp you need to worry And it's going to be some time before you get back to Water-

"Why do you say that?" Tumstead's glance went over the terrain beneath his floats.

"Because, a little farther on, I'm going to drop you where you'll stay anchored for a considerable stretch of time," he said.

Slade's response to that was to struggle against the cords constricting his wrists and ankles. But those struggles, he still found, were use-

"Are we over the Anawotto?" questioned Slade, embittered by the thought of his helplessness.

"We are," answered Tumstead. 'And it's sure empty country."

Slade's trained ear told him, a minute later, that they were dropping lower. But from where he lay he could see nothing of the outside world. He concluded, from the length of time that Tumstead taxied along the surface, that the waterway on which they had landed was by no means a small one. He could hear the grating of the pontoons on a gravel bar.

"All out," cried Tumstead. He half-swung and half-tossed his prisoner ashore, where with a still deeper sense of helplessness Slade tumbled full length along the pebbled slope. There, after taking a shuddering breath or two, he writhed and twisted about until he was able to fight his way back to a sitting posture.

"So you're going to leave me here?" he said.

"I am," said Tumstead. "And I can't waste time on talk." "But why are you doing this?"

persisted Slade. "Because you got too ambitious." Slade watched the plane being warped around in the shallows. A He awakened to the fact that he surge of desolation swept over him was in a plane, and that plane was | as he glanced about at the ice-scored and barren-ridged island surrounded by its lonely reaches of open water. That island, he saw, had little to offer him. Any scrub timber that grew between its ridges, he realized, would be too small for the making of a raft. And even with a raft to deliver him from that watery prison, he further realized as he stared about at the distant bluehazed horizon, he would face a wilderness quite empty of life.

> "I won't get away," he said, "and you know it."

> Tumstead's laugh was defensively gruff.

"Let's hope for the best," he said as he turned back to his cabin. He emerged, a moment later, with a sheath-knife in an old and battered holster. But as the other man unsheathed the knife Slade saw that the blade was keen-edged and long. His eye remained on Tumstead as he stepped closer, the knife in his hand. The quick look of apprehension that came from his captive caused Tumstead's dark face to crease with a smile.

"I'm not that yellow," the latter announced as he stooped and cut the cords that bound Slade's wrists together. He was about to do the same with the cords that bound the ankles. But on second thought he drew back and replaced the knife in its sheath. This, after a moment's hesitation, he tossed a few paces farther up the shore slope, discreetly out of reach. Then as Slade sat trying to work life back into his benumbed hands the older man coolly explored the other's pockets. From them he extracted a lighter and a package of cigarettes.

A cynic smile played about his lips as he touched the little flame to a cigarette end and tossed the lighter back to its owner.

"You may need that," he observed. "But seeing I've been out of fags for over a week I'll keep the smokes. "So that's all the chance you give me," said Slade, watching him as he luxuriously inhaled.

"It's about all I can afford," Tumstead said as he swung about and glanced down at his fellow-flyer. No look of commiseration softened the older man's face. But for a moment a frown of meditation wrinkled his forehead, a frown followed by a small shoulder movement of dis-

"Happy landing," was his curtly ironic exclamation as he turned away and climbed aboard his ship. The man on the beach waited for the roar of the motor. But that familiar crescendo of sound failed to greet him. What he heard, instead, was Tumstead's cynically indifferent voice calling down to him. At the same time a package was tossed ashore.

"That's a pound of German army that will send the family cheering chocolate," Tumstead announced as off to work—blueberry muffins, pehe tossed still another object toward can rolls, muffins, and flapjacks! the motionless figure on the shore "And here's a can of bully-

He shrugged when no word of gratitude came from that still motionless figure.

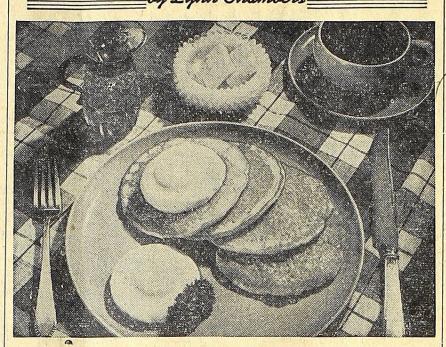

"And here's something for your cigarettes," was Tumstead's last curt call as he threw overboard an empty tobacco-tin which struck Slade on the shoulder and came to a rest between his throbbing knees.

Slade sat watching the plane as it taxied across the gray-blue water and rose in the air. He continued to watch as it headed northward over the blue-misted ridges and faded away along the empty skyline.

He sat without moving until the ache in his tightly bound ankles reminded him of other things. Then he looked about for the sheath-knife. He gave a gulp of gratitude when he saw it lying there, within ten paces of him. It took him some time to worm his way to the knife. But a little of the listlessness went out of his face as his fingers closed about the heavy haft.

He lost no time in sawing through the cords and freeing his feet. When he attempted to stand up, however, he discovered that his benumbed legs were unable to support him. He had to sit there, for several minutes, waiting for feeling to come back to them.

At least one serving of cereals is the nutrition requirement for the day. This is most easily served at breakfast, with cream and sugar and perhaps a few slices of fresh fruit or berries. Ready-prepared cereals are delightful, especially in the warmer weather - they're crisp, light, and nutritious. Recently some of the prepared cereals have been scientifically restored so they have all the whole-grain richness and nutritive value in them.

Cut Your Fuel Wood During Slack Periods

Release Transportation, Improve Forests That Way

By J. E. DAVIS

(Extension Forester, University of Illinois College of Agriculture.) Woodland owners can release transportation for war purposes by burning their own wood and supply-

Fuel-wood cutting according to a definite plan to correct poor forest conditions resulting from mistakes

ing wood for similar use in towns of the past is suggested. Fuel wood can be obtained from misshapen trees, dead and insect-ridden trees, other cull trees, from tops of trees cut for saw logs and from suppressed or unthrifty trees cut in thinning or woodland improvement operations.

Trees suitable for lumber, veneer logs, box bolts or other special products should not be taken for fuel. Large quantities of oak are needed for ships, hickory and ash for handles and lumber and pulpwood for other war industries.

These products can be obtained only from well-formed trees, and cutting them for fuel is a waste of valuable resources.

During Slack Periods.

Fuel wood can be harvested during slack periods on the farm, but some time must be allowed for seasoning. Cutting should also be planned to promote a better stand of thrifty growing timber by removing "wolf" and "weed" trees.

For seasoning, the wood should be stacked, not heaped, on bed pieces over dry ground, and preferably in an open yard to get greatest air circulation. Fuel wood burns more efficiently and yields much more heat when it has dried at least six months.

Labor-Saving Device

Farmers will have to work more hours to reach their 1942 production goals unless they adopt electricity as a labor-saving device, just as tractors are being used to speed up field work.

It has already been demonstrated that much labor can be saved at a little expense in the use of electricity for lights, for putting water under pressure, for processing and handling feeds, for electric fencing and for operating milking machines and brooding pigs and chicks. Electricity will play an imporant part in making ment of rural industries possible. On farms where secondary agricultural production is not practiced, the extra time resulting from the present system of mechanized farming may be used to advantage in the shop operating a wood lathe or other woodworking equipment, or on an electric welder making some part or a complete item of commercial

Agricultural Notes

Adequate curing of the hay crop reduces the danger of a barn fire.

Government purchases now take four-tenths of all pork and seventenths of all lard produced in federally inspected packing plants.

Last year's shoe production figures smashed all past records, and came within 7,000,000 pairs of the 500,000,000-mark, with an even greater output scheduled for 1942.

Dearest Family, OW-My feet are killing me. I was hard on the feet but evidently I'm wrong-and the standing still is standing still half an hour and marching a couple of them, my feet feel like I've been playing about 15 sets of tennis. My gosh, the clothes we each have, $90 worth of clothes in one of our "mattress covers," which we use as a bag to carry them when we move around. We have just moved to the barracks we are to use throughout the 1st training period, and while the officer is down stairs getting another group placed before he shows us how to put up our hammocks, I am grabbing the chance to scribble to you. The chance is now ending.

Next day (Fri.) 6 o'clock.

Feet still in the same condition and then some. I had to quit last night to get instructions for hammocks, seabags, ditty bags etc. Last night was a picnic. Did you ever try to ing them out and then, when it came the fiscal year of 1942-43. time to mean business and really try to sleep in them, you should have heard the racket, Under silence orders, too. Laughter all over, with an occasional thump in between when a fellow was fortunate enough to land on his feet, but the fellow next to me wasn't so lucky. In the middle of the night we heard an awful crash and started to look around for baskets to pick up the 12 baskets full of fragments, but when his cussing subsided he burst out laughing and set the rest and I had to practically hang by my knees to pick it up. Our hammocks are four feet from the floor—and me without a parachute. Today we spent in being issued more material, cleaning up, marching, etc.—we start at 5:30 (reville) and so to had so t

Boy, do we have to be neat! Lucky I'm naturally neat, hey Ma? You they rated both eyes 20-20, dog-gone could eat off the floor at anytime, and it.)

times the amount marketed during sociation is expanding into a profitas $5.00 to $6.00 per day, whereas they were formerly able to make only working under contractors.

Gorden Fox, Assistant Forest Supervisor of the Huron National Forest, was present at the meeting and gave a few remarks regarding the woodpulp situation for next year. He stated that there would probably be less demand for wood-pulp and excelsior wood next year, but that he expected a much larger demand from sources needing crating and boxing material to be used in the war effort. He also sighted an increased demand in building repair material and cedar fence posts to replace material which are now needed for war production, and sleep in a swinging bath towel—we did last night. We had more fun trying them out and then when it come

The outdoor uniform is of navy blue wool, and with it I'll wear a light blue skirt, black oxfords, and over-seas cap of navy blue, with a narrow band of red. The tie will be blue. Hosiery, any color. Bars on shoulders of jacket. No extra skirt." She has been asked to take, besides this, one dress for formal wear, for events scheduled in this country. She doesn't expect her life to be very socials after that.

"Flancy lingerie." She laughed. "Mines going to be tailored—and rayon mostly. Irons will be scarce. Cosmetics too, I guess. We'rs asked to take enough make-up to hold a year." She considers the lipstick the most important part of that equip-ment. "With a dab of color on the lips, a woman usually feels groomed."
