TOGO TO TOJO: Fourth Portfolio

When Japanese Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo resigned his position for "personal reasons," the Japanese cabinet virtually eliminated the one strong man regarded as being opposed to hostilities against Russia. Togo negotiated the Moscow-Tokyo neutrality pact.

Togo's post was taken over by Gen. Eiki Tojo, who now holds four portfolios in the cabinet-premier, war minister, minister of home affairs and foreign minister. The "strong man" of Japan, Tojo was a staunch advocate of the Axis pact and of Japan's "new order" in the Orient. His present four posts concentrate in one man almost absolute powers over his people.

Anticipating close scrutiny by official Russian sources, Tojo declared that his assumption of the foreign ministry "will not result in any way in an alteration of Japan's foreign policy." However, Togo's resignation, plus Tojo's decision to take over the foreign portfolio, was widely interpreted as presaging a sneak attack on Russia. Information reaching Chunking said that 100,000 Japanese troops-totaling five divisions-had been sent north from the Chinese theater of war.

Supporting this theory, Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, United States commander in chief in India, China and Burma, announced that there is a "good chance" the Japs would barley, 417,000,000 bushels; rice, 74,000,000

WHERE'S OUR NAVY?: Secretary Knox Reports In his first press conference in almost five months Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox came up with some information on activities in the U. S. navy.

He pointed out that all officers over 57 years of age were being subjected to a rigid physical examination as part of the navy's effort to weed out all officers except those in perfect condition. While he doesn't believe the submarine menace off the Atlantic coast to be solved he did say that he believed the decline in sinkings could partly be credited to the fact 'we've made it tough for them." U-boats, he said, have shifted their activity to other sectors. Other naval developments of interest revealed at the conference were (1) the ship-building program is ahead of schedule in all categories; (2) naval air officers will be promoted faster than others to "completely answer" criticism that the air arm of the navy has not been getting a good break in important high command decisions; (3) the attack on the Solomons was the "largest amphibious operation we ever undertook" and was successful in obtaining all immediate objectives; (4) in the Aleutian islands, the record "speaks for itself."

FUEL OIL:

To Be Rationed

Fears of midwest petroleum distributors were realized when Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production board, confirmed reports that fuel oil will be rationed and that rationing may be imposed upon some midwestern states as well as the East.

Rationing would be extended to the Midwest in order to make additional railroad tank cars available to supply the eastern market.

At his press conference President Roosevelt mentioned 25 per cent as the likely amount of curtailment in some areas. Those areas were not specified.

Initial reports indicated that a basic ration would permit heating to an average temperature of approximately 68 degrees, with additional rations to be issued on the basis of need. Full details of the plan will be ironed out by WPB officials.

navy have been this way and that about the helicopter, but there is no doubt that it is now a war weapon. Its uses are a military secret, but ts value in spotting submarines and in reconnaissance are obvious. It can take off from any ship deck and it can hover in the air like a humming bird while a mechanic swings down under and changes a wheel.

Igor Sikorsky is a shy, gentle man who dreams great dreams. His book, "The Story of the Winged S," begins with the story of a dream. At the age of 24 he was the father of Russian aviation and he was launching cardboard dinosaurs into the air before the Wright brothers flew at Kitty Hawk. He built the first great air clippers and the czar's first huge bombers were of his design. With the revolution on, he found it difficult to keep his mind on his dreams and went to Paris to lecture before YMCA audiences on a variety of subjects.

Rachmaninoff, the pianist, wanted nim to keep on dreaming, and, with other musicians, gathered $100,000 to this end. In the U.S. A., he built the huge S-35. It was to take Rene Fonck to France, but it crashed on the runway and burned two men to death. Mr. Sikorsky kept on designing and building, a pioneer of multi-engined planes, in his 36-acre air plant in Connecticut.

His dreams are paced to music, Chopin frequently, as music is somehow innate in his genius and inseparable from his aeronautical flights into the future—which he says belongs to the air. Eight hundred classical records are a part of his worka-day equipment. On his tidy little home farm, he raises cucumbers and drives his own tractor. He loves cucumbers, perhaps on account of their nice design. He is plump, bald and hesitant, with a Charlie Chaplin mustache. His father was pro-fessor of psychology at the Uni-versity of Kiev.

The navy wasn't talkative about it, but there is sufficient wide open news of this jungle jallopy to justify the con-clusion that it is the most novel and exciting new fighting tool this war has yet produced and sure to score heavily in landing operations to come—and it appears that they are coming fast.

The marines call it their "invasion taxi," and its inventor, Donald Roebling, grandson of the builder of the Brooklyn bridge, calls it the "alligator." It goes about twice as fast on land as on water. Twenty-five feet long and about as wide as a box car, it can be lowered over the side of a transport or warship, take the water like a duck and, hitting the shore, keep right on mushing along

It can carry a big load of leathernecks, a military freight car, or plenty of fighting gear. The caterpillar treads have wide, diagonally placed cleats which serve as fins or paddles in the water, and nobody has to tuck them in or reset them when it reaches land.

It is armed and armored, of course not heavily, but capable of resisting fairly brisk fire. On February 17 of this year, the marines ordered 200 of them at a cost of $3,200,000. They have been in forced-draft production in a big Detroit auto factory.

Down in Florida, it was just a "swamp buggy" at first, or a "mer-cy tank," developed by Donald Roebling after the hurricane of 1933, to rescue storm victims marooned in the Everglades.

It took him seven years to bring it through and a war to make him change the name from "mercy tank" to "alligator." He apparently inherited the inventive and constructive genius of his grandfather, the late Washington A. Roebling, who not only built the Brooklyn bridge, but spanned Niegers garge in 1959.

but spanned Niagara gorge in 1850. Young Roebling has been known as a sportsman, much at sea on his yacht Iorano, on which he led a Smithsonian exploration of the Caribbean sea and the Gulf of Mexico in 1937. His absorbing life interests are science and invention.

JOSEPH SOLD INTO SLAVERY

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 37:22-36.
GOLDEN TEXT—Love envieth not.—I Corinthians 13:4, R.V.

Does it pay to trust God? Is He really concerned about the affairs of men? Does He know the trials and the heartaches of His children?

These are the crying questions of today, and they find their answer in God's dealings with men of the past. The story of Joseph has many interesting and instructive phases, but perhaps the most important just now is the truth of our lesson, "The

We first find Joseph as he learns Parents should also learn here the dangers of favoritism among chil-

II. Deceit Attempts to Conceal

One of the tragic things about sin is that a wicked act does not stand alone but leads into another sin to cover the first. In the case of Joseph's brethren, their sin against him was covered by deceit. They

500,000 High School Youths Will Receive Pre-Flight Training

Nation to Get Jump Over Axis by Readying Students For Future Aviation Career

It's an ironical twist of fate that the most far-reaching change in our modern educational system was set in motion by a war.

As September rolls around, public, private and parochial high schools throughout the nation will have radically altered their curricula to include instruction in pre-flight training under the auspices of the Air Training Corps of America, working in conjunction with the Civil Aeronautics administration and the U. S. office of education.

Educators themselves readily admit that the war, with the attention it has focused on aviation, must be credited in large measure for the speed and efficiency with which ATCA's program has been launched, although the program's peacetime objectives are considered equally important.

Studying With New Interest.

Regardless of cause, this September some 500,000 boys who voluntarily are enrolling in ATCA units will be studying algebra, geometry, physics, and other subjects with a new interest. They'll be enthusiastic about subjects they once considered "dry" because these studies will be taught in terms of avia-

During five, or more, hours each week, ATCA members will study subjects in pre-flight training such as air navigation, communications, aerodynamics, meteorology, safety, and the structure and design of en-

And if there are those who doubt the enthusiasm with which boys are taking these courses, they need only visit one of the schools where the ATCA courses already have been introduced. There these youngsters can be seen tackling the fundamental problems of aviation with an eagerness that is surprising.

They build their own model planes to scale, following specifications provided by the army and navy. These planes perform a useful function in the classes on spotting, where ATCA members learn how to distinguish one type from another at a casual glance and from any angle.

New Style School Arguments.

The visitor will see these boys arguing over a problem in plane design—discussing where stress and strain will affect the craft—as though the chart on the wall were a real bomber and they were going to take off in it themselves.

In classes on communications the pupils will be taking down the dots and dashes of the Morse code with the same zeal they might put into remembering the signals for an offtackle play on the football field.

In classes on engine structure, in physics, in algebra, in whatever these future fliers now are studying in their pre-flight courses, the same

TRYING HARD

On the drill field, where members of ATCA units learn marching formations and take callisthenics to build them up physically, these lads show the same earnest attitude. They're trying hard every minute, so that sometime they can earn the right to fly a plane for the army or navy, or become professional fliers in civilian life.

degree of youthful eagerness is apparent everywhere.

This attribute of the Air Training courses in secondary schools, as much as the fact that the new studies have called for a complete overhauling of the curricula, is the reason that educators are quick to acknowledge that the system of teaching is going through the most radical change it ever has seen.

And They Like It!

They find it adding to their own enthusiasm to be met with such a ready response on the part of their When "x plus y" can be something to do with a pursuit plane and "a times b" has something to pupil find exciting.

ATCA members present a dashing appearance in their uniforms especially designed for the corps. Jackets, shirts and trousers of the uniform are all in a matching tone of gray-blue. Ties are navy blue and buttons on the jacket are silvertoned. The caps have a piping of bright red and the same color appears again in the single stripe on each sleeve cuff. The red and white ATCA insignia is attached to the upper left sleeve.

Considering the spirit it has injected into the system of teaching, courses are finding a ready welcome in the schools.

As for the army and navymentals of aviation.

Objectives of ATCA have been endorsed by Robert A. Lovett, assistant secretary of war for air, and by Robert Hinckley, assistant secretary Citizens Pilot training program.

are some of the outstanding men and women in the country, including Bernard Baruch, James A. Farley, Alfred E. Smith, Jeremiah T. Mahoney, chairman of the Pan-American games committee; C. R. Smith, ex president of American airlines; Robert Hinckley, assistant secretary of commerce, and Mrs. Colin Kelly, widow of the American air hero.

That's the story of ATCA.

It's one of those things created during war which is not necessarily a part of war. It will, educators feel confident, live long after the war is over, and the ways of peace returned again, because it is inextricably tied up with aviation-and aviation itself has many long and vigorous years stretching ahead of America invented the airplaneyet the greatest single threat to our security today is the plane itself.

Having created the means by which man could fly, America failed miserably to recognize the significance of its own invention. It remained for other nations to grasp the airplane's enormous possibilities -to visualize it as a gigantic instrument of peace and war.

It remained for other nations to sense the possibilities of trainingnot just a small segment-but all its youth, to be air-minded and air-

Wings for America at Peace. No informed person will deny that the end of this war will mark the true beginning of the Aviation age. There will be new markets to be won, new lands to be developed. And in this post-war race for trade, aviation will play a major role. In America and throughout the world, the highways of commerce will be in the air. In transportation, in a thousand as yet undreamed-of facets of our daily life, men trained in aviation will be the leaders of tomorrow. And the nation which molds these leaders will be itself a leader. In training its youth for aviation, America is assuring its sons a rich | all-important-in preparing airmen | of pre-flight training.

Wings for America at War. Every decent American hopes that boys now in high school will never have to go to war.

But every thinking American realizes that they may have to fight before this war is won. And make no mistake about it, this war will be won by trained, professional airmen over that "last battlefield," wherever it may be. These airmen, grim though the idea is, must be young. For the air warfare of today, with its 40,000-foot altitudes and 400 m.p.h. speeds, demands youthtrained youth. No one else has a fighting chance.

This is the lesson brought us from England, a lesson dearly learned by the heroic RAF in the Battle of Britain. England itself has already profited from this lesson, and has set up its own Air Training corps under the air ministry. So far, England's Air Training corps has graduated 75,000 boys into the Royal Air

Not all of these boys, of course, become pilots. One of the important benefits of this training is the fact that it "screens" the boys into the particular job in air or ground crew for which they are best qualified.

Furthermore, it gives them the essential psychological conditioning that their own job, whatever it may be, is allimportant.

Naturally, an important part of the program is a carefully worked out course of training to promote physical fitness, to make the youth of America strong, hardened and ready for the tasks that lie ahead.

NEW EFFECTIVE HAY FEVER RELIEF

Hay fever, which annually causes more sneezes, more in-flamed noses and more red, streaming eyes than any other scourge, may have its final big fling this September, all because a Pennsylvania electrical engineer was served a dish of corn meal Joseph was his father's favorite and was shown that favoritism in mush which was entirely too salty.

The engineer, sneezing, and with all other hay fever manimany ways, but it was perhaps most colors. This was a luxurious long festations, stopped at a hotel where he was served a dish of mush which he considered sendrobe with sleeves, indicating that he was a gentleman and not to do orfinally he ate it, however; the hay fever attack lessened, ultimately ceased. time in years in the "hay fever season." His analytical mind quickly grasped the possibility that the saline substance in his food was responsible for his relief.

About this time, Dr. E. E. Selleck, a graduate of Columbia University, met the engineer, made notes, and when he returned to his home, began experiments. Today Dr. Selleck declares he has found a certain means of relief for hay fever and is supported in his contention by other medical experts, and a nationally known chemical manufacturing concern, the Hollings-Smith Company, at Orangeburg, New York, has tak-en over making the remedy, which is called Nakamo Bell.

Describing the experiments, Dr. Selleck said, "After I was sure I had found a means of quickly relieving hay fever through the chloride group, I tested it in the most practical way I knew. I held a three day clinic, to which many hay fever sufferers responded, from ages ranging from 10 to 60 years. Each person was given two tablets with a little water. Some relief came to all within ten minutes. Reports on these cases during the ensuing weeks showed practically a complete cessation of symptoms."

TANKS-for not telephoning

It may take the same amount of Long Distance equipment to make a personal call as it does to rush through an order for tank parts. That's why every telephone call you do not make is a contribution to the war effort.

In normal times, we'd get busy and Build sufficient additional equipment to keep step with needs. But right now that is not possible. Telephone materials are more urgently needed for tanks, bombers and machines of war.

Here are three simple ways you can help make the most of available equipment and keep vital messages moving:

1. Make only the most essential Long Distance calls.

- 2. Keep ALL your conversations as brief as you can. 3. When possible, give the number of the distant
- telephone you are calling.

Remember the war every time you pick up the telephone. Keep your calls as short as possible. Don't ask Information for numbers listed in the directory. You can help save wires for war!

PRIMARIES SEPTEMBER 15

THE STORY SO FAR: To help save Norland Airways Alan Slade agrees to fly a supposed scientist named Frayne and his assistant, Karnell, to the Ana-wotto river in search of the trumpeter swan. With the proceeds Slade's part-ner, Cruger, buys a new Lockheed, which is stolen. When Slade returns from the Anawotto he starts out to find the plane, aided by an eskimo named Umanak and by his old prospector friends, Zeke and Minty. Slade goes to Frayne's camp, where he learns that the missing plane is being used by Frayne to take something out of the country. Slim Tum-stead, a no-good flyer who has lost his license, is Frayne's pilot. When Slade attempts to investigate the plane's cargo he is knocked unconscious by Karnell. He is "rescued" by Tumstead, only to be abandoned by him on a deserted is-land. Zeke and Minty find Slade's plane and stay to guard it. Slade escapes to the mainland. Umanak is found, exhausted, by Dr. Morlock and his daughter, Lynn, and he tells them he has found the missing plane. He has also brought a sample of the plane's cargo, which turns out to be pitchblende, source of a new kind of power. They decide to take Umanak home and then look for Slade.

CHAPTER XVI

Now continue with the story.

But taking Umanak home had its difficulties.
"No like devil-bird," was his stubborn protest. But the Flying Padre was insistent. And Lynn, after much talk and argument, finally persuaded the old Innuit to climb into the cabin. There he crouched down in a corner, with his hands covering his face. He moaned aloud as the plane took off. He continued to sweat and shiver on the trip back to Iviuk Inlet. And once there, disdaining Lynn's help, he disembarked with unexpected celerity, to be surrounded by an admiring group of natives whose exclamations of envy did much to restore the old man's shattered morale.

But Lynn's father was no longer interested in Umanak.

"Our next job," he said, "is to get in touch with Corporal McGarry at Great Bear. This begins to look like a case where the territorial authorities ought to get busy." Lynn showed no active interest in that suggestion. "Our first job," she maintained, "is to find Alan."

Some unlooked-for timbre of determination in her voice brought the Flying Padre's glance about to her face.

"But I feel we ought to swing over to Echo Harbor first. Umanak's an Eskimo, and you can, of course, discount his story a little. But if he's found what he says there it ought to be confirmed."

"That can wait," said Lynn. Lynn studied the country over which the faded blue wings of the Flying Padre's plane drifted like a shadow. It was country that was new to her, yet in its general aspects it was oddly familiar.

She sighed as the Flying Padre banked and turned and settled down on a blue-watered lake where the wild fowl scuttled away at their approach. She remained silent as the "Not on your life," was the huskipontoons moved slowly in toward a pebbled shore fringed by a scattering of driftwood.

"That's all for today," said the man at the controls. He sat for a moment in silence. His face looked tired and dispirited. But when he glanced at Lynn's equally dispirited face he roused himself.

"This is exactly what we're looking for," he said with a forced smile. "Firewood waiting for us and a clean shoreline without mos-

'But we haven't found Alan," said the still motionless girl.

"We'll find him," was the other's quietly assured response to that. After getting out his mooring line he rummaged through his cabin equipment for a jointed rod which he kept there. He ignored Lynn's clouded eyes as she sat watching him make ready his rod and tackle. "There's fish in these waters," he announced. "And if you'll get things ready we'll have a beauty or two for supper."

"But we haven't found Alan," she repeated to herself as she mechanically set about her work.

The question of Alan's whereabouts was still in her mind as they took off, the next morning, and headed deeper into the land of stunted spruce boles and empty ridges. A sense of timelessness crept through her as they flew on. Then she saw how the plane was veering eastward and her father was leaning forward to study the course of a river that wound sullenly in and out between the shadowy hills.

"That must be the Anawotto," he called out. She took her turn at studying the terrain over which they were droning. The Anawotto, to her, locked malignant, like a snake. She found so little that was consoling in its aspects that she was glad when they temporarily swerved away from its ever-changing course and headed for a district of bolder riages interspersed with lakes that lay like pools of silver in the morning sun. Some of them were small and some of them were large. But the heavier tree-growth along their shores told her they had left the Land of Little Sticks behind them. Some of them, she also saw, were studded with conical small islands. One larger lake held the ghost of an islet in its very center, like a tiny pupil at the center of a wider iris of azure.

"It's you who mustn't take chances," she reminded him.

as they bore down on it. It lost its vagueness, as they drew nearer, and took on a new irregularity of outline. Then she saw it was not a dot of land. It was a gray-winged plane floating there in its bath of

She could feel her heart come up in her throat.

"The ghost plane," she cried aloud.

But the Flying Padre, apparently, had also sighted the gray wings against the blue of unruffled northern water. He turned and circled the lake, dropping lower as he looked.

"It's Alan's plane," he shouted as his pontoons took the water. "That's the Snow-Ball Baby."

Lynn could feel her heart pound as they drifted nearer. But no sign of life came from the plane so lazily dragging at its mooring line.

"That's queer," he observed. "I'll edge closer and climb aboard." But an abrupt interruption came to that movement.

A rifle barked from the lake bank and a bullet went whining over his head. As he looked up, arrested, a second detonation echoed out over the lake water and a second bullet whined perilously close to his ear. Then a voice, husky but authoritative, called across the water.

"Keep off that plane," it com-manded, "or I'll drop you where you stand."

The Flying Padre's eye, searching the shore, made out an unkempt and ragged old figure with a leveled rifle. On a rock point behind him, a moment later, he detected a second bewhiskered old figure, also with a leveled rifle.

"Keep down," was the Padre's warning cry to the girl in the cabin. "These fools are firing at us." Then he turned to the threatening figures ly shouted response. "You back away from that plane and taxi in here or we'll blow you out o' the

The indignant man of medicine considered that threat. But it failed to stir him into action. "Where's Alan Slade?" he demanded. "What's that to you?" was the shouted response.

"We're friends," called back the Padre, "who want to find him." He could see the rifle-barrels, at that, waver and lower.

"Then you'd best swing in here and prove it," was the call came back to him.

"It's all right," Lynn was saying from the cabin hatch. "They must be Alan's old miners from the Kasa-

She dropped into the pilot's seat and started the motor, her still indignant father balanced on one of the floats as she veered about and taxied in to the shore line. There, as he waded ashore, the old man with the rifle regarded him with a skeptical eye.

"Now, who're you?" was that old man's prompt challenge. "That's not important," nounced the Flying Padre. "I'd rather know who you are." "We're a couple o' peace-lovin' lone-panners who've been prospectin' back on the Kasakana. I answer to the name o' Zeke Pratt. And this is my bunkie, Minty Buck-"Then you know Alan Slade," cried Lynn.

"Sure, we know Alan," conceded the embattled Zeke. "And that boy's a bit of all right. But what's worryin' us is why he ain't back here with his plane. She's been sittin' there empty, day after day, and I don't like the looks o' things.' "That's why we're guardin' her," concurred Minty. "From whom?" questioned the

"From them damned swan-hunters who're up to some devilment round here we can't figger out .. They've got a landin' dock and a plane o' their own hidden under a pile o' brush over the hills there. And when we tried to sleuth 'em out they started slingin' lead like a bunch of Sioux

The Flying Padre's face remained thoughtful a moment. "Could you take me to the camp Lynn's eyes were on that island of these people with the plane?" s they bore down on it. It lost its "Sure," said Zeke, "if you're ready to dodge bullets on the way.' "And you have no idea why those people are in this territory?" pursued the Padre.

"From the way they've been strippin' and dikin' and pittin' along the ridges I figgered out they was after gold. But they ain't workin' in the right rock for color."

"Supposing," said the Padre, 'they were after pitchblende?" That failed to impress the two old lone-fire prospectors. "There's pitchblende in this neck o' the woods all right," conceded Zeke, "but what in heck would they be doin' with it out here?" The Flying Padre had his own ideas about that. A plane ferrying a ton a trip could carry a ponderable amount of uraninite from that uninhabited interior to tidewater.

"But what good would that do Germany," asked Lynn, "or any other country on the other side of the world?"

From an unmolested port like Echo Harbor, the Padre pointed out, a disguised Japanese whaler or even a furtive Russian freighter could pick up the cargo and quietly carry it on to Yokohama or to Vladivostok, where it could be transshipped and hurried on to the reducing plants north of the Rhine.

"This thing goes a trifle wider than you think," proclaimed the Padre as his gaze went from the two empty-eyed old sourdoughs to the disappointingly unresponsive face of his daughter.

"But this isn't helping us to find Alan," she objected.

The Padre studied the deepened hollow in her cheek and the sharpened line of the valorously poised

"I know it," he agreed, "but one And I'm wondering which approach in a moderate (350-degree) oven unill bring the best results.'

"If you take the one we took," interposed Minty, "you'll git results all right. You'll git 'em in the shape o' four-ounce slugs o' lead." "Then we'll look 'em over from the air first," said the Flying Padre. He turned to the two ragged figures beside him. "Have you old-timers ever flown?" "Sure," was the prompt response.

But again Lynn interrupted.

"That's what we should both be doing," she insisted. "While you take Alan's ship I could take ours and be looking for him." "Where will you look?" asked her father. "I can't be sure yet," was her none too satisfactory answer. "But he wouldn't be away from his ship without some good reason." She stared out over the lonely spruce ridges. "And he'd come back to it if he could. That means he's somewhere out there waiting for us." The Padre stood silent a moment. She had, as a rule, been singularly dependable. And the best antidote for anxiety, he had learned, was activity.

"All right," he acceded, "you can't stand around idle at a time like this, any more than I could. But keep some system in your scouting." He smiled at her prompt nod of understanding. "And no overnight stuff, remember."
"Not if I can help it."

"You've got to help it," said Lynn's father. "We can't afford a second searching party in these wilds. Mark this as your base and keep a close check on your course. And if the weather gets bad, head back here. One of these men will be keeping a signal-fire going. But the important thing, remember, is to spot your landmarks and know your lakes.'

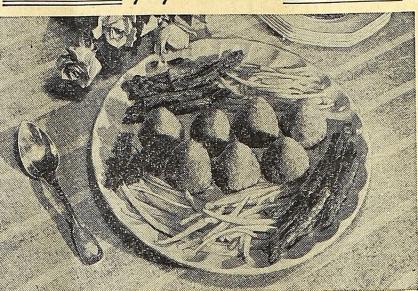

He found something reassuring in the girl's quiet smile. "It's you who mustn't take chances," she reminded him. For just a moment the firm young jaw quivered with some darker emotion. "You're all I'll have left, if anything's happened to Alan.'

The Flying Padre forced a laugh "I'm still betting on that bush hawk," he stoutly maintained. "He comes out of too hard a school not to know how to take care of himself. And today, remember, is the tomorrow we worried about yester-

Budget Stretchers

What can I serve as a main course that won't take too many dishes? What can I give my large family that isn't too expensive? These are the two queries often asked by my readers. The answer to both questions is simple-a casserole. Easy to make, easy to serve, economical too, casseroles solve the main dish problem almost perfectly.

Almost? Yes, I say almost advisedly, because if the family ever becomes aware of your ulterior motives in serving casseroles, their interest in them becomes less, less and finally non-existent.

Make your casserole so delectable and so distinctive in flavor and no one will ever realize that it's packed with economy and you have a onedish meal that's perfection plus.

Never overwork the casserole by trying to use up all the leftovers lining refrigerator and pantry shelves. Never swamp the flavors of the food so you strike a false note and confuse the sense of taste. Use good food and season with discrimination. Your result will be a real success.

Here are some new ideas I've compiled for you. Most of them of the food you have used often enough so they're old favorites, but in new dress! You'll like:

*Rice and Chicken Casserole.

(Serves 6 to 8) 2 cups rice 2 cups milk

11/2 tablespoons butter 2 eggs 21/2 cups diced, cooked chicken

Boil rice in salted water until tender. Stir in butter, milk and eggs. Put a layer of this into a casserole, seems to weave in with the other. then chicken, more rice, etc. Bake

Every now and then you've heard me talk about food affinities. Here's another I'd like to add to the list: Lamb and Lima Bean Pie.

(Serves 6) 2 pounds lamb neck, shanks or shoulder 1 pound dry lima beans Salt, pepper

Celery salt Soak lima beans overnight. Drain and place in a heavy kettle. Have lamb cut in 2-inch pieces. Add to beans, season and cover with water. Transfer to casserole and top with pimiento biscuit rings and bake in a moderately hot oven 20 to 25 minutes.

To make pimiento biscuit rings: add 1/3 cup coarsely chopped pimiento to baking powder biscuit recipe. You'll get your carbohydrates, proteins along with vitamins and minerals in this economical, hungersatisfying dish good for family dinner or informal buffet entertaining:

American Goulash. (Serves 6) ½-pound package macaroni 11/2 pounds hamburger 1 large onion, chopped 1 tablespoon fat

Lynn Says:

Store Food Wisely: There are no "Finders Keepers" but you may be the "Loser Weeper" you do not store those vegetables properly.

Scientific experiments show that lettuce may lose 40 per cent of its vitamin C if kept at room temperature. Refrigerator recommended!

Spinach, left standing on pan-try shelf, will be drained of its vitamin C by about one-third. Canned string beans lose about one-third of their vitamin C if they stand in a bowl at room temperature for six hours. Short cooking time is recommended, too. Cabbage, for instance, loses 69 per cent of the elusive vitamin C and 72 per cent of its calcium and 50 per cent of its other minerals when these valuable nutrients go up in steam.

Constipation! Why Not Getand Keep "Regular"?

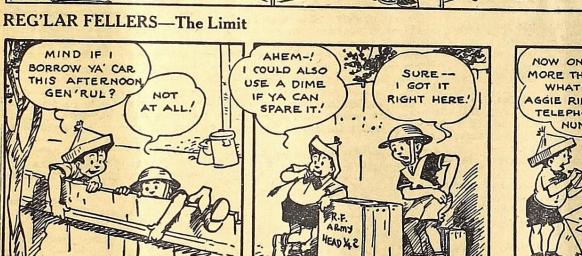

One of the commonest causes of constipation is simply this: Modern diets, superrefined, too often give us too little "bulk food." In such cases, dosing with cothorties and cause division in the contract of cathartics and purges gives only temporary relief — the trouble comes back again and again. The way to more lasting relief is to get at the underlying cause and correct it.

You can do this by eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN daily.
This delicious, toasty cereal supplies the needed "bulk." It acts pleasantly; works principally on the contents of the colon, help-ing you to have easy and normal alimination. In many cases, eating ALL-BRAN regularly and drinking plenty of water brings lasting freedom from constipation. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Miss Chirley Predicts a problem in curving not only the soy bean crop but also the navy beans. He suggests that no farmer should attempt to field thresh but rather should concentrate his effort in stacking the beans in the field.

The field stack should be made around a steel fence post or stake about 6 feet high. A pad of straw or alfalfa chaff, six inches deep should be placed around the stake and the beans piled carefully on top of this, taking care that the stack is not more than 4 to 4½ feet in diameter.

Soy beans do not shatter seriously so in some instances may be left in

MORE corn for Victory -More corn for Peace - More corn to feed the World - that's the job of the American Farmer today and in the years to come. And there's a man in your neighborhood whose job is to help you do your job better, easier and more economically. That man is your local DeKalb dealer. His specialized knowledge of corn and his practical knowledge of your local growing conditions enable him to help you select the best varieties for your farm — to tell you of the latest DeKalb hybrids and to help you increase your yield on less ground.

Make it a point to get acquainted with your DeKalb dealer. He's a real farmer just like yourself, and your problems are his problems. See your DeKalb dealer. DEKALB AGRICULTURAL ASSOCIATION, DeKalb, Ill.
