Curb on U. S. Civilian Meat Consumption Eases Supply Problem for Armed Forces; Hitler's Russian Time-Table Slowed Up; 'Work or Fight' Is Edict of Draft Head

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Two Australian seamen, W. D. McBurnie (left) and F. E. Miller, are brought ashore in a lighter at an Australian seaport after being wounded in action in the Solomon islands. They are survivors of the Australian ship Canberra which was lost in action when American marines and naval units supported by Australian forces made their historic attack on the Japanese-held Solomon islands.

RUSSIA:

'If Winter Comes'

Chill autumnal winds that swept the Russian steppes had reminded the Nazi invaders that Adolf Hitler's timetable of conquest was behind schedule. Every day the Russian lines held was that much time lost for the Germans. Every day they held was that much closer to

Up the Volga river from the Cas-pian sea to beleaguered Stalingrad had come a Soviet naval flotilla. There, southeast of the city proper, the ships poured shellfire on the attacking Germans, answering the thunder of the big guns the Nazis were using to reduce the city. Meanwhile tank battles, air assaults and hand-to-hand encounters had raged in and around the city.

While the heroic Red forces had held their ground and even forced the Germans back in places, the situation remained grave. Defeat on the Volga would mean incalcula-ble injury to the Russian war effort, with vital communications disrupted and the connecting Red armies of South and Central Russia split.

In the Caucasus, the Germans still had goals to reach. Still in the hands of the stout-hearted Red defenders-was the south and eastern half of the peninsula.

DRAFT EDICT: Work or Fight

A "work or fight" edict to end the occupational deferment of men who stay away from their jobs or go on strike in war plants loomed as Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service made public an amendment to selective service regulations which stated:

ALEUTIANS:

'Japs' Wings Clipped'

Heartening news from Alaska was brought to Washington by Congressman Warren G. Magnusen on his return from an official visit to American fighting forces in the north. The navy, said Mr. Magnusen, had definitely turned Japanese occupation of the Aleutian islands to our advantage.

"The situation is good in Alaska," he said. "The joint army and navy command is clearly now offensiveminded. The occupation of the Aleutian islands by Japan has been turned to our advantage by the navy, giving us the opportunity to sink Japanese ships we otherwise would have been unable to get to.

"The navy has clipped Japan's offensive wings if she had any idea of using the Aleutians as a stepping stone for an attack against Alaska." mammoth aircargo plane nucleus of a huge air fleet.

Aids Armed Forces A voluntary meat ration of 21/2 pounds per week for every American was urged by Secretary of Agri-culture Claude R. Wickard when he announced that civilian meat consumption during the last three months of 1942 would be restricted to approximately 79 per cent of the amount delivered by packers for civilian use during the last quarter of

MEAT RATION:

After January 1, it was indicated, rationing coupons will be issued.

In his role of chairman of the War Production board's food requirements committee, Mr. Wickard disclosed that to assure sufficient meat for army, navy and lend-lease needs, deliveries of beef and veal to civilians would be 80 per cent of the amount sold during the last quarter of 1941; lamb and mutton deliveries would be 95 per cent; and pork deliveries 75 per cent.

The proposed 21/2 pound weekly meat allowance, he said, was entirely adequate for good nutrition. Individual households may use any method the family prefers in effecting the rationing, he added. However, if there are invalids, aged persons, young children, or vegetarians in the home, the housewife should reduce her purchases accordingly.

Simultaneously with his announcement of a limitation in the civilian meat supply, Secretary Wickard varned of a food shortage "in the not too distant future" in urging congress to consider labor draft legislation as one means of halting the mass exodus of farm workers to war industries and the armed forces.

10-DAY MIRACLE: Performed by Kaiser

Shipbuilder Henry J. Kaiser had broken many a naval construction record and been justly proud. But proudest of all was he when the 10,500-ton Liberty freighter Joseph N. Teal hit the water in Kaiser's Portland, Ore., shipyard exactly 10 days from the time its keel was laid. This amazing feat clipped 14 days from the previous speed record for shipbuilding.

Addressing shipyard workers, maritime commission representatives and shipyard officials, Kaiser

"Our original contract called for the delivery of ships in about 150 days. Many experts shook their heads and said we could not do it. Yet here beside us is this great craft-only 10 days from keel laying to launching. It is a miracle, no less-a miracle of God and of the genius of free American workmen."

Kaiser saw in the new record a promise of future prosperity for

"If American brains and ingenui-ty do what they should do," he said, "I will have no fear for the future. We will have to rebuild what we have destroyed. Prosperity can go on and on."

Meanwhile Kaiser was recruiting an additional 50,000 workers to assist him in the construction of three mammoth aircargo planes as the

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

MEXICO CITY: Reporting that higher prices for silver bullion in the United States were draining off Mexican silver money, the treasury ministry announced that it had banned the export of silver coins. The ruling would have the effect of making Mexican citizens and tourists leave their change behind when they crossed into the United States, thus conserving the supply.

MARSHFIELD: Old 102, a railroad engine that served throughout the World war on Coos county, Ore., tracks and was well-known in logging circles throughout the Pacific Northwest, has joined the army in northeastern Oregon, it was announced here. The locomotive, now an oil burner, first used coal when it went into operation 30 years ago. It is now hauling supplies.

MADAGASCAR: Safe for Allies

Active Vichy French resistance on the island of Madagascar came to an end when British occupation forces supported by South African armored units and East African troops took over Tananarive, capital of the strategic island. The communique that told of the British capture of Tananarive also disclosed that Antalya, 200 miles from the northern tip of Madagascar on the island's northeast coast was also occupied. Allied control of Madagascar, ly-ing athwart Africa's southeast coast and commanding sea lanes from Capetown to Cairo and to Australia and India meant that a strategic setback had been handed the Axis. It had been known that the Vichy authorities on the island had been friendly to Axis agents and it had even been reported that Japanese submarines had put into out-of-theway harbors on the island for fuel and supplies for their forays against

SCRAP METAL:

Need 17 Million Tons

America had stopped living on its metal "fat" and now must dip back 40 years for steel and iron junk, leading steel producers declared in assaying the nation's critical scrap metal situation.

"Many millions of tons of iron and steel scrap must be collected if the tremendous tonnage of steel needed in the nation's war effort is to be produced," said Eugene R. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation.

At least 17 million tons of scrap would be needed before January 1 when war production was scheduled to reach its peak. Monthly consumption of scrap was running about four million tons, the greatest in history, but still not enough.

"Every farmer and every house-holder has a heavy responsibility for the country's production of guns, tanks, ships and shells," said Ralph H. Watson, vice president of the U. S. Steel corporation. "The recovery of scrap is one of the most important war jobs facing America

VATICAN: Post-War Plans?

No official announcements from the Vatican followed the conferences of Myron C. Taylor with Pope Pius XII. But seasoned diplomatic observers viewed the visit of President Roosevelt's personal representative to Vatican City as a step in paving the way for collaboration in post-war plans. This was given credence in the light of Mr. Taylor's subsequent conferences with the British and French envoys to the Vatican and the representatives of conquered Poland and Jugoslavia.

Immediately in the foreground as reasons for Mr. Taylor's journey to Rome were: the need to discuss American interests in protecting American Catholics in Japanese-occupied territory; relations between the United States and South American countries; and the American government's protest to Vichy against persecution of the Jews, in the hope that the Vatican formally would support the protests.

But over and above these immediate objectives appeared the possibility that the groundwork was being laid for post-war collaboration.

By Gene Casey

WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

Right now we're riding in the nose f an army bomber, listening in on the interphone, with the navigator-bombardier, Lieut. Howard Sessler of Arlington, Mass.

It's the morning of April 18, and we've just taken off from Shangri-La. The weather's clear, visibility unlimited. It's a little windy, though, and the seas, just 50 feet beneath us, are choppy.

There's nothing in sight, and then
Lieut. Donald Smith, the pilot, spots something ahead that looks like a submarine surfacing. He calls into the interphone: "We're entering the danger zone, now. Keep on the alert. Surface vessel on our righthand side.'

Jap Fishermen Wave.

"I see it, sir," comes from Sergt. Edward Saylor in the rear gun tur-

We draw closer and it turns out to be a fishing boat with a square white sail. Then we see a lot of the boats. The Jap fishermen wave up at us with both hands. We can't tell whether they are afraid, or think we're friendly planes.

Lieut. Griff Williams, the co-pilot, sings out: "Oh-oh! There's the

We're flying down along the coast now, towards Nagoya bay, and there looks to be a thousand Jap fishing boats out on the water. Howard Sessler, up in the nose of the ship, finds his trigger finger getting itchy. He pleads with the pilot:

"Here's a good chance to sink some of these ships. Fly over them and I'll give them a few bursts." "Better not." Smitty's voice comes cool and calm over the interphone.

'They may think we're friendly aircraft if we don't fire. This is supposed to be a surprise." Sergeant Saylor coughs. "Guess I'll unbutton my collar," he announced. "Getting a little tight."

Sessler sees the first landmark, the brick lighthouse on the point at Nagoya bay. He calls into the interphone. "There's the lighthouse, Smitty. Here's where we turn in."

We Head for Kobe.

Smitty climbs to 4,000 feet to get over the mountains and heads due west for Kobe. The weather's still clear and it's not bumpy over the mountains.

Then everyone sees Kobe. It looks just like it does on the map. Sessler spots the flames from blast fur-naces. "Those are the steel foundries straight ahead, Smitty," he says. "That's where we start our bombing run from."

Smitty's voice sounds grim over the interphone. "I see it. Give 'em hell!" He dives down to 1,500 feet and levels off. Sessler sings out: 'Bomb bay doors open!"

He lets his first bombs go at the Kiwasaki aircraft factory. They burst and a shower of smaller incendiary bombs rain down. The plane is doing better than 300 miles an hour as the second train of bombs goes straight at a big machine shop.

We can't see much of what's happening below. We drop some more bombs on the dockyards and still more on another aircraft factory on the edge of Kobe bay. Doc White is flat on his stomach, looking out the camera door and taking pictures.

"Bombs away!" Sessler sings out.
"Doors closed." The plane picks up a little speed after the bomb bay doors are shut.

Time to Be Going.

The anti-aircraft opens up. We can see some bursts too close for comfort, and the tracers going by. 'About time to get out of here!" observes Smitty. He dives out over the harbor and we skim along about ten feet above the surface, doing way over 300.

Doc White says, "Boy! I got pictures of everything! Sure hope I get 'em back okay. We're just beginning to breathe a little more easily when Smitty catches sight of two Jap pursuit planes practicing dives at a Jap submarine. He calls out to Saylor, "Two pursuit ships on our left. Don't think they see us. Oh-here they come!' But he eases the throttles forward and in three minutes the planes are out of sight. He eases back on the throttle again, and we're breezing

He'd even offered to squeeze the paste into a paper bag and turn in the tube thus emptied. No dice. He did learn that for the convenience of soldiers and sailors, one druggist keeps empty tubes which he "loans." But that was all. So comes into mind a young man whose ancestors came from Glas-When his tooth paste tube was squeezed as flat as if a steam roller had been run over it, he dropped into a downtown cut rate store and as he had the empty tube with him, obtained a replacement without difficulty. There was a one-cent sale on, however, and for merely a penny more, he could have obtained an additional tube. And not having a spare with him, he was forced to pass up the bargain.

Service: A letter from a Kentucky mother received recently by Major Bowes stated that her two army sons had obtained a furlough at the same time and had paid her a surprise visit. That was fine indeed. But when the young soldiers left for camp, they took with them not only a lot of homemade delicacies but the keys to the family car as well. Furthermore, hardly had they reached camp than they were sent somewhere overseas. It's a long walk to town so the mother's problem was how to get the car started. Since she included in her letter the engine and chassis number, as well as the car model, the major was able to go into action at once. He communicated with the Chrysler corporation; the huge cross file which lists the switch key of every auto that has rolled off the assembly line was consulted and in no time at all, duplicate keys were on their way to the mother of two soldiers.

Novelette: Gene Sheldon is the funny pantomimist in the hit, "Priorities of 1942." His stage partner is lovely Loretta Fischer. Some years back, Loretta and Gene were married and were very happy. But after a few years on the stage, Loretta began to long for a little cottage where she and Gene could settle down to a less hectic routine. Gene decided he could not forsake his career so they were divorced. Loretta went on to Chicago where she met and married a business man who offered her the quiet existence she was seeking. Within three months, she tired of the life and divorced her husband. Time passed and she asked Gene if she could return to the act. He welcomed her back. But here's the twist. Gene is in love again, this time with an attractive chorine, Peggy McCann. Peggy and Loretta are close friends.

Recollection: Chatting with a group of friends, Oscar Hammerstein, librettist and lyricist of such hits as "Show Boat," "New Moon," "Rose Marie," "The Desert Song,"
"Sweet Adeline" and other well-knowns of the show shops, related number of anecdotes of the famous grandfather whose name he bears. One lingers in memory. A newspaper man brought a new singer to the impressario and introduced him thus: "Mr. Hammerstein, you ought to sign up this man. He's going to be a great singer some day." Hammerstein walked away muttering: "I can wait." It might be anti-climactic to state that this singer later reached the heights. His name? Reinald Werrenrath.

Dis-regarding the advice, the young man went on to Hollywood and became one of the most popular singers of songs in America. He's Bing Crosby of course.

End Piece: After the Harry Hopkins-Louise Macy wedding in the White House, one of the larger networks approached Meyer Davis, who played for the wedding and asked him to talk about the high lights for five minutes on a news broadcast. Davis asked Hopkins' permission. The President's adviser replied: "Okay, Meyer, so long as you don't tell the radio audience I dance in icky fashion."

Occupation of Aleutian Islands by Japanese Constitutes Serious Menace to Entire U.S.

Main Jap Stronghold, Unique in Warfare

By CHARLES A. SINGLER

The Aleutian islands, or Catherine Archipelago, are a bowshaped chain of small islands in the North Pacific which point forever towards Japan. This geographical fact took on military significance after the Jap attack on Dutch Harbor last

The Aleutians extend west from Alaska toward Kamchatka peninsula for nearly a thousand miles. There are about 70 islands and 80 inlets, all of which are included in the territory of Alaska. The largest of these islands is Umnak; Unalaska is the port of entry for western Alaska, and the center of the fur trade. Desolate, rocky, and forbidding, the Aleutians apparently are a continuation of the main Alaskan range. This is a land of snow-streaked volcanoes.

The climate resembles that of Iceland; mean temperature, July, 50 degrees; January, 35. Rainfall is heavy, and clouds and fogginess are almost constant. All summer long the fog lies thick over the land. During the winter, gales lash the Practically treeless, the islands are rich in berry-bearing shrubs. The Aleutian natives live in rude huts and spear fish. Indians and Eskimos in the interior live on reindeer, while the Aleuts, for the most part, make their living at fishing. It may be said with a full degree of certainty that this is one place in the world where the fishing is usually very good. There is no need for

Battle of Kiska Unique.

The battle of Kiska was one of the few battles in this greatest of all wars where ships went to bat in the old-fashioned way, relying on the punch of their guns. The navy's drive right up to Kiska's enemy guns was nothing short of brazen and has few, if any, parallels in the history of naval warfare. It was a hit and run attack built on sheer nerve and courage, but it more than accomplished its objective. Pearl Harbor was a stab in the back. The Kiska attack was not an act of national treachery, but a bold frontal assault which should have been expected, but evidently was not. The Japs were as completely surprised as the U. S. forces were at Pearl Harbor.

American submarines, too, have done splendid work in the Aleutian area, having sent many Jap cargo vessels, transports and warships to the bottom.

The Jap invasion of the Aleutian islands is a constant threat to Alas-

U. S. destroyers were in that battle line, too, but they didn't lay down any smoke screen. The Almighty had taken care of that.

The Aleutian islands came into the world spotlight last June when the Japs made their attack on Dutch Harbor from aircraft carriers. This was a hit and run attack, and the carriers disappeared in the mists.

As we now stand, the Japs are occupying Kiska, Attu and Aggatu. Kiska island is some 20 miles long, and is separated from Little Kiska by a narrow strait. Kiska appears to be the main Jap stronghold in this area. When the Japs moved in they renamed this island Narukami.

Narukami-or Kiska, as we prefer to call it-has had considerable attention from the U.S. navy since the Japs took possession under cover of Kiska's fogs. For, on the very same day the battle for the Solomon islands began at the other end of the world, a U. S. navy task force glided through the fog almost up to the very guns of the invaders and hurled

When the occupation of the Aleutians first was made it was assumed that such occupation was merely a face-saving gesture to pacify the Son of Heaven in Tokyo for the bombing of the Japanese capital. But as the invasion persisted and grew in force this idea was abandoned, and the real danger to America in the presence of the Japs in the Aleutians became apparent. 10,000 Japs on Kiska.

FAITH IN CHRIST AS OUR PERSONAL SAVIOUR

LESSON TEXT-Acts 16:13-15; Romans 5: 1-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. Romans 5:1.

Salvation through Christ is the way, and the only way, into the Christian life; therefore, there could be no other subject more suitable than that of our lesson to begin our brief series of "Studies in the Christ Life.'

Our lesson for today tells us first how one comes into a personal savstatement of the result of saving faith in the changed life of the believer.

3. Hope (vv. 2b, 5a). Our faith not only brings present peace, but causes us to see future glory. Such a hope puts us in a right attitude toward God, and the things of life, including tribulations (v. 3), are rightly valued and understood. Even our troubles become evidences of His love in which we may glory.

6. Reconciled (v. 10). The death of Christ, which justified man has accepted by faith, brought reconciliation. Atonement had been made for sin, and the One who died is alive again, a living Saviour.

Some unbeliever who has read these lines thus far must by now be eager to have these things true in his life. Well, why not? "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved" (Acts 16:31). Then read again those majestic and joyful words in Romans 5:1: Therefore being justified by faith, we have"-yes, I have "peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ.'

Illuminated Aisles

Going into the gloom of dark cinema houses, people are likely to stumble, bump into others. Ushers with flashlights are nuisances; small lamps placed near the aisle floors illuminate only small areas. American Cyanamid company announced what it considers a better idea: aisle rugs treated with fluorescent dyes, bathed by invisible ultraviolet radiation from small tubes. Such rugs glow softly all over, interfere with nothing on the screen.

inflation or misaligned wheels, according to the California State Automobile association. Another cause of uneven tire wear is unbalanced wheels. At high speed a wheel only slightly out of balance develops a powerful centrifugal force. This force jerks the wheel up and down as it rotates. In addition to abnormal up and down motion there also may be side motion as the heavy spot moves fore and aft. Unbalanced wheels frequently cause shimmy, abnormal wear in steering mechanism, as well as cupped spots n the tire tread.

THE CORN YOU BUY

With hybrid corn, the important thing is NOT where the seed was grown, but how it performs where you plant it. The best way to compare varieties and decide which ones suit you the best is to see them growing side by side in a soil and climate similar to yours. That's why DeKalb has more than 3300 proving grounds or demonstration fields, scattered throughout the corn-growing areas.

Another reason why you should visit your DeKalb proving ground is to keep acquainted with the newest varieties that DeKalb is continually perfecting.

Be sure to visit the DeKalb proving ground in your neighborhood. Your DeKalb dealer will be glad to show you the varieties that you are interested in and what they will do for you on YOUR FARM.

CHAPTER XIX

Lynn, following after Alan as he strode toward the lake-front, realized that he was already back in his man's world of violence and conflict. That realization grew even sharper when she saw him abruptly stop at the cliff edge and stare across the lake where the evening wild fowl were feeding in the shallows. At the same time that she saw him drop on one knee and take aim with his rifle she caught sight of two figures running down the opposing shore slope to where a plane of faded blue stood moored against a spruce-fringed bank.

Slade shot twice, but with no apparent effect on the running figures. Lynn could see them swarming about the pontoons and throwing off the mooring gear.

"It's Tumstead and Frayne," Slade cried. "They're getting away with your plane. They're doing what

But Lynn's voice rose above the other.

"There's Father," she cried, "running through the trees, down the He knows they've tricked him."

"Come on," he cried, "we must head them off." "How?" she asked, panting after him.

"With my plane," he said over his shoulder. "If they get away now they're gone for good."

She kept up with him as they rounded the lake arm and bore down on the Snow-Ball Baby. "Keep your eye on 'em," Slade called out as he made adjustments to the tail-control over his head. She knew, by the feel of the pulsating structure enclosing her, that he was flying with a full-open throttle. "What do we do," she demanded, "when we get up with them?"

Slade indicated the rifle that had been thrown into the cabin.

She observed, a moment later, that Slade was climbing a little. She wondered as to the meaning of this maneuver. Then her eyes narrowed with a new wonder. For against the opal and gold of the northern sky she saw yet another pair of wings arrowing out of the distance. Her hope, at the moment, was that it might be the official plane from the Mountie headquarters at Coppermine, that it was help coming when help was most needed. But as she stared out through the paling light she saw that it wasn't a plane. It was a trumpeter swan, breasting the evening air lanes.

It was like a light going out when the duller blue wings of the plane in front of the watching girl veered a little and came between her and the arrowing white body.

That moment of obscured vision left her always in doubt as to how it happened. It might have been a split-second error in judgment. It might have been a final spit of venom on Tumstead's part, a final flowering of hate for what he could accept as the sign and symbol of his final defeat. But as the bird swerved, to avoid its bigger rival, plane also swerved. They swerved in the same direction, at the same moment, and came to-

Slade banked sharply and turned,

"They've lost control," he cried. "They're down."

He circled blindly, waiting for the crash. Then he dropped lower, marking the spot where the tangled mass of metal and fabric rested on its bed of broken limestone. Lynn knew, at his quick glance about, that he was looking for open water on which to land. But she remained silent until the ship was set down and they were ashore.

"Is it the end?" she asked.

"That's what we've got to find out," he said.

He mounted the bank and started running through the scrub, without waiting for her. She followed him, as best she could.

She found Slade waiting for her on one of the limestone ridges. He stood there, staring at the flare that lighted up the evening sky just over

"You'd better stay here," he said, his eyes on the glow above the hilltop. He knew well enough what that glow meant.

Lynn watched him as he went over the hill. It seemed a long time before he came back. He flung him- cording to Dr. John R. Mohler, self down beside her and sat there silent and dispirited.

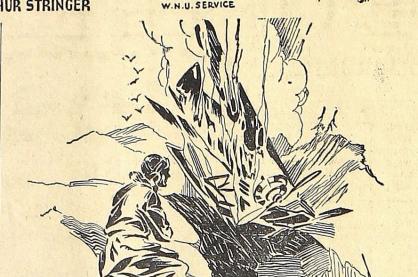

"They didn't get away," he finally observed in a voice devoid of all triumph.

( Lynn, who had taken her turn at glancing about at their world of rock and water and gold-green twilight, turned back to her tired com-

"There's nothing to do," said Slade as he rose to his feet, "except to head back while there's still a lit-tle light left."

Slade, once more hightailing it homeward from Coppermine, glanced down at the mottled country crawling under his floats. He did a little sum on a slide rule, to check his ground speed, looked at his watch, and reached for his earphones. He smiled at the newness of the 'phones and the newness of the compact little radio set. They made the rest of the Snow-Ball Baby look old and battered. But Stan Cruger had insisted on putting them there. He wanted no more weeks of silence from either of his bush planes. And in fifteen minutes, back at Waterways, Stan was to tune in and get his report. Slade, while he waited, worked his dial and heard the silent ether become busy with its multitudinous voices. He caught a whiff of orchestra music from KNX, away off in Los Angeles. He caught a fragmentary message going out from Royal Canadian Signals at Yellowknife, and the air-gossip of pilots to ground-points along the Basin. He picked up snatches of weather reports and flying positions. Slade shut out the ghostly voices and once more consulted his watch. After a glance ahead and a second glance at his instrument panel he turned back to his radio.

"CF-KCB calling Norland Airways at Waterways. Slade calling Stan Cruger at Waterways. CF-KCB calling Norland at Waterways . .

Come in, Stan. What's my signal strength? . . . Yes, I hear you fine. I'm forty-three minutes out of Wolf Lake Post heading southwest by south with a pay load of concentrates that ought to make up for that lost week. Yes, I'm feeling fit. But I want to swing in before nine. I've got to."

Slade's : mile widened as the voice of his partner took the desolation out of the emptiness.

"I'll be here at the port when you shuffle in," that voice was saying, "and I think there's going to be somebody else waiting. But I wanted to tell you the Kovalevka had been libeled and held off Echo Harbor . . . The Kovalevka, that Russian icebreaker . . . And our Lock-heed lands at Yellowknife about five today . . . But wait a minute. Stay in, CF-KCB. Can you hear me, Lindy? There's a lady here waiting to speak to you.'

The seconds seemed long as Slade waited.

"Can you hear me, Alan?" a belllike voice was saying to him. It was only a voice, winging half a thousand miles over a water-spangled wilderness, but it brought a warming glow to his body.

"Yes, darling, I hear you," he answered.

He knew it was Cleaver, working VBK at Coppermine, who at that point cooed across the ether: "And the sugar-lanes will now be open."
"Are you all right?" the bell-like voice asked

He was about to remove his earphones, but a babel of words held his hand arrested.

"So you're going to marry the girl, Lindy!" He interpreted that as from Cap Bickell on the Basin's mail plane heading north to Herschel. "I'm telling the world," Slade found the courage to affirm. There was even a ring of denant pride in his proclamation. "Perhaps more than you imagine, big boy," an unknown and caustic voice observed through the aerial chatter.

Thoughts for fall naturally bring to mind fall's favorite game, football, and foods that go well after the game. It makes no difference whether you have been to one of the big games or whether you are going to feed the hungry crowd of youngsters who come in from playing in the nearest available field, the uppermost thought in your mind is good, hot, appetizing food.

Smart management dictates a delicious hot dish that you whisk out of the oven, a crisp salad for balance and contrast to the meal, and a smooth, light dessert. Your crowd will be thirsty, too, so don't forget coffee for the grown-ups and a hot, chocolaty drink for the children.

Do something special for the table -even a little touching-up will bring the appreciative oh's and ah's from your family and guests. Perhaps there are a few chrysanthemums still in the garden or you might try to get together a few, small novelty footballs to make up into a centerpiece. A cloth in the burnished fall colors or deep brown, bright yellow, or what-have-you will mark you as a hostess whose eye is ever on the calendar and season.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON Consolidated Features .- WNU Release.

NEW YORK .- Heroes are almost necessarily young these days. Hence the more news in the stand of Edouard Herriot and Jules

Jeanneney A Reminder That against 'A France There Petain, Will Always Be' which means ler, and for France. M. Herriot is 70 and M. Jeanneney is 78. There is an old proverb, "A wise old man's word is worth more than a young buzzard's sword."

M. Jeanneney is president of the senate and M. Herriot president of the chamber of deputies, in the overthrown parliament which still lives in the hearts of true Frenchmen. They were big news in 1934 and 1935, when they were not implicated in the fateful Stavisky pawn shop scandal, precursor of the inside job which delivered La Belle France, roped and hog-tied to Hitler.

Stavisky might have been Mark Twain's "Man Who Corrupted Hadleyburg." Smeared were Chautemps, Laval, Flandin, Tardieu, Daladier and pretty nearly every top-hole politician in France, but not these old-timers, who long before had proven both their honesty and loyalty to the republic. "If there were one honest man among you I would have saved you." France may invoke Scripture and remind the world that she came through with two.

The bullet-headed, bull-necked, pompadoured Herriot, former pedagog and for 25 years mayor of Lyons, was long known as the Theodore Roosevelt of France, supercharged with energy.

He won the premiership in June, 1924, and he and his cabinet of radical Socialists held power until the following April. Then as later the radical Socialist party was full of termites and included in its leadership many of the men who later supervised the moral and political collapse of their country. From then, Herriot was an outsider.

He rose again in 1933 defeating, appropriately, the Tardieu-Laval faction. French politics, in those years, was no place for an honest man and he soon was on the sidelines again. He belongs in the picture of staunch bourgeois liberalism.

Jules Jeanneney, long a bearded patriarch, is an old-school politician who, like M. Herriot, made his political career in the provinces. Several times he narrowly missed being president of France.

SOME people were talking the other night about econometrics, ecology, geo-politik, and logistics. We asked one of them how about it and he There Appears No said: "I'm Movement Against a stranger Dictionary Inflation here my-self." That goes for a lot of us these days, with new names and events outrunning both dictionaries and encyclopedias. Our fat and conservative old dictionary doesn't list econometrics, but here it is, on the financial page, thoroughly respectable.

The news is that Jacob Baker, formerly Harry Hopkins' righthand man, down among the alphabetical folk at Washington, has been elected vice president of the Institute of Applied Econometrics, Inc. As we get it, after asking many innocent bystanders, econometrics has to do with teaming statistics and economic theory, in mutual aid, by which the statistics take on meaning and the theory becomes possibly provable or plausible.

Within the last four days we have pegged news stories touching on all of the above four new bright facets of dinner-table talk. They have to do with post-war reconstruction. Whatever happens, we'll have a word for it.

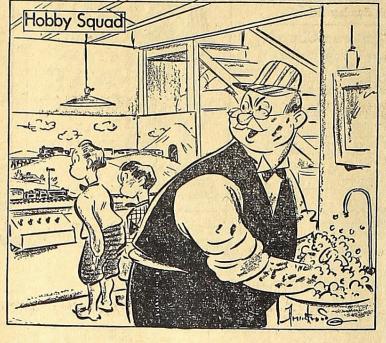

Mr. Baker was born and reared in Colorado, was graduated from the Colorado Agricultural college and the University of California school of engineering, found plenty of adventure as a mine manager in Mexican hot spots, and started his Chicago career in the service of oil, utility and engineering firms.

He is genial and baldish, casually dressed, usually smoking a pipe, and is the last man you would pick for such precision and incisiveness as his new title would suggest. We used to meet him at singing parties, a few years ago, at which he was Jake Baker, quite unlike the Jacob Baker of the consulting engineering firm of House, Baker and Associates of Chicago. He was a good catchas-catch-can close-harmony singer and everything about him was at variance with his career of zig-zag price charts, co-efficients of expansions, torques and obsolescence.

Planned, well packed lunches do taste better. They must furnish one-third of the day's food supply and a vitamin of "hidden hunger." And it vitamin of "hidden hunger." And it vitamin of "hidden hunger." And it is just as important that grown-ups have good lunches as it is that the have good lunches as it is that and method of preparation may dif-fer. Give children plenty of milk foods not to highly seasoned, and sim-ple desserts. Adults may need less milk, may have tea or coffee, and will need larger servings of more highly seasoned, richer foods. But first, let's select a lunch box, one that is ventilated, can be scalded daily, will not absorb odors, is adequate in size, easy to carry and equipped with a thermos bottle.

In it put something crisp, juicy, colorful, sweet, hot, and cold. When you do this you should also have a main dish, milk in some form, fruit or tomatoes, or uncooked vegetable, bread and butter or sandwiches, and a dessert. Add plenty of water and a regular eating time to help yourself to health.

It is true that the cook must give thought, kime and careful preparation to provide really good lunches, but the reward is great in strong, active bodies, bright faces, and contented minds. Eating from a box day after day can be monotonous, or ex- preaching. citing, depending upon the amount of "Surprise" that is included. Try to include some new way of serving foods often, or a different kind of food, often.

In the lunch box, as at home, the main dish is apt to be the hot dishcarried in the thermos bottle, it is an appetizing and nourishing milk, rich soup, cocoa, vegetable soup, a thin type of stew, hot tomatoes or toma-

One and one-third cups strained pinach or chard plus onion juice.

One cup mashed lima beans plus One quart sieved tomatoes plus onion juice.

*From six to sixteen (and over and under) America's youngsters are helping to fight the war.

They're buying War Bonds and Stamps with the money they get for collected junk.

They're making it easy for others to buy War Stamps when they deliver newspapers.

They're studying to take their places in the ranks of America's fighting men when their call comes.

They're All-Out for America—and we're all-ou for them and their Schools at War Program.
