County Salvage Piles Grow at Nation's Call

BOYS, GIRLS GO TO WORK WITH VIM

Estimate Drive to Collect 500 Tons; Quota 200 Tons

When Governor Van Wagoner needed action in the drive for salvage he knew just what to do. He called for help from the school children. Without long preliminary fuss and lost time spent in organization, the children went to work Monday morning. They knew just what to do, and where to get it. By Wednesday school house lawns or other available places, were decorated with stacks of junk, and the precious material is continuing to arrive. The school children have shown the Nation how to cut red tape and get down to result producing work.

"Iosco county's quota in the salvage drive was 200 tons," said School Commissioner Russell Rollin, "but the county will certainly go beyond this figure. The school children have apparently just started and they have collected some real tonnage. Thursday morning the Tawas City school reported that it had collected more than 75 tons. Oscoda reported a scrap heap of 35 tons. Other schools are undoubtedly doing as well. The Tawas City school has an additional scrap pile of 50 tons secured by collectors during the previous two weeks."

"The Hale, East Tawas, Whittemore and Alabaster schools have arranged to make their actual pickup during next week."

"WPA has more than 100 tons in a scrap pile on a siding in the West Tawas D&M yards. With this start we expect Iosco county to have more than 500 tons on the scrap pile by October 16."

"Drive around and look the scrap piles over. If you should happen to visit the Pyramids during your stay in Egypt during the next few months, you need not wonder how they were built. Old Ramses II called a school holiday in the nation for a week and set the boys to work. A 4 ton steam boiler, or a toy locomotive—just incidents in a day's work."

To Remove 1100 Road Signs From Highways

State Highway Commissioner G. Donald Kennedy said this week he ordered the removal of all signs indicating speed zones in excess of 35 miles per hour on state trunklines. Kennedy said by the end of the week all 1100 signs throughout the state will be replaced by new ones eliminating highway travel in "control zones" to 35 miles per hour in accordance with Governor Van Wagoner's proclamation regarding the new nationwide speed limit to save rubber tires.

From materials stored in advance, the new signs are made of masonite. Michigan motorists long accustomed to yellow pavement marking designating no-passing zones on hills and curves will soon see these sections marked with white paint, the State Highway Department announced this week.

State Highway Commissioner G. Donald Kennedy said that specifications marked with white paint, the tains chrome is no longer available because of the war. After the present stock runs out, white marking paint will be substituted for the duration, he declared.

As a safety measure, motorists are urged to observe white pavement markings on state trunklines. On black-top highways, a double white stripe indicates a no-passing zone while a single white line will mark these areas on concrete pavement.

Reception

The auditorium was the scene of an informal reception for the Tawas City school teachers Tuesday evening when about 40 parents and friends joined together to greet the teachers. After a few words by Sup. Carlson, the next half hour was given to singing some old favorites, with Miss Senob accompanying on the piano. The game of "Bug" was played by the groups at card tables. Several musical selections were enjoyed and also a solo by Miss Senob. Coffee and doughnuts were served by the committee.

The gasless and rubberless transportation problem has been solved to the satisfaction of two Tawas City high school boys. Elmer Ogden and Chuck Brown have purchased a genuine (so they say) western horse, and are spending their spare time in laying in a supply of hay and oats for their COLT.

They are now in the market for a buggy. Anyone having a buggy for sale should get in touch with either of the boys.

MANY ATTEND HALE CHURCH HOME-COMING

In the Service

Private Joseph H. Whitney of R. R. 1, Tawas City, has been selected to attend a special course at Camp Hood, Texas.

Dirk R. Van Loon, Route 2, Tawas City, today successfully completed a 16-week course of intensive training in the school for Fire Controlmen at the Service Schools of the U. S. Navy at Great Lakes.

Men graduated are sent either to the fleet or to an advanced Service School for additional instruction. Then they serve under veteran petty officers in their specialized fields, receiving more practical instruction and experience. Service Schools graduates will be eligible for petty officer ratings as soon as they are able to pass the qualifying examination after graduation.

A package to Pvt. Sylvester Klass was the first overseas parcel to be mailed from the local postoffice. It was mailed by Edward Nelkie.

Corporal Arnold G. Rollin graduated September 28 from Air Corps Technical school at Roosevelt Field, Mincola, Long Island. He is now stationed at Niagara Falls for a 27-day course, specializing in the Bell-Air Cobra.

Otto Ross, now in the navy, has been transferred to Sound School, Key West, Florida, and he wrote the following interesting letter describing the journey to his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Ernest Ross:

Dear Mom and Dad, Thank goodness I joined the navy. Can you imagine spending a millionaire's vacation down in Florida all expenses paid and extra cash besides? Of course school takes a great deal of time but there still is enough left for a lot of swimming, fishing, and a great deal of just "staring." Things are so entirely different that I don't think I'll ever run out of something new to see.

The minute we crossed the Ohio river on the way down here, things started looking different. Cotton fields, at first a novelty, gave way to field after field of "snowball" bushes. Evidently one picking had been taken off but to the uninitiated it still looked good. I spent most of my time on the observation platform "gawking" at coal mines, sugar cane, broom straw, long sculptured cliffs of red clay that would make an artist look a second time, small stations had large piles of cotton waiting for freight trains, with negro children scrambling all over them playing some sort of games.

Florida has them all beat. I never saw so many beautiful colors in plants, fish and trees. Nature surely went on one swell binge when it got down this far. Common coconut palms are profuse down here and I've got a stomach ache from eating an entire fresh coco-nut plus the milk. I had poor fishing luck yesterday, but borrowed someone's goggles and went down to look at parrot fish, sea gar, snappers, and a lot of fish that defied description. I saw crawfish that were 18 to 26 inches long. After dark I saw strings of lights floating about that would disappear as I drew my (Turn to No. 1 Back Page)

4 AIRPLANE OBSERVATION POSTS IN IOSCO

Located at Oscoda, Hale, Tawas City and Whittemore

"Everybody co-operating wonderfully," stated Norman Salsbery, chairman of the Iosco county Civilian Defense Council, when discussing the county airplane observer units now being organized. "There will be four observation posts in the county—Tawas City, Oscoda, Whittemore and Hale. Observers will serve four hours a week, and it will require a large number of people to man the posts. If you are approached and asked to act as observer we hope you will not refuse."

A general county meeting was held last Friday morning at the court house. The meeting was well attended with about 50 people present, representing each section of the county. Major C. M. Barnes, regional signal officer, of Fort Brady gave a discussion on the various phases of this work, with instructions on the organization of the posts.

Ernest Burtzloff, chairman of the Tawas City Civilian Defense Council, has appointed William Hatton as chief observer at the local post, with Karl Kobs as assistant. About 200 observers and alternates will be required under them. "Ordinarily, the observers are taken from the immediate locality of the post," said Mr. Salsbery, "but here they will be taken from both cities in the area. Tawas City will furnish about 75 per cent and East Tawas 25 per cent."

The observation tower at Tawas City will be located near the First Avenue pumping station. City employees are now securing material for the structure and it will be ready for use by the end of next week. William Gillmore is chief observer at the Oscoda post, with Mrs. P. McPhail assistant. The observation tower at Oscoda will be located on the public school garage.

A joint meeting will be held the first of next week at Whittemore to organize the Whittemore and Hale airplane observation posts.

Home Economics Group Met Last Wednesday

Sixteen Iosco county women met at the Federal Building yesterday for the first home economics leader training meeting on September 30, reports Dorothy Scott, home agent.

The lesson "Choosing Patterns and Materials" was presented by Marjorie Eastmann, clothing specialist from Michigan State College. These women have made a special effort to take advantage of this work. In spite of coming tire troubles and gasoline rationing. Believe it or not but two women walked four miles in order that they would not miss the meeting, and might save their tires. Clothing conservation is one of the homefront defense activities for which we are being asked to do our bit, and Iosco county women are especially fortunate in having an opportunity to learn how to participate in that phase of defense work with greater confidence and efficiency.

This year we shall learn about selecting patterns and materials suitable to each other as well as our own needs, to make various seam finishes and alterations necessary for the type of garment being made, and, finally, to make practical use of these principles by actually constructing and fitting a new or remodeled garment. A few hours invested now in preparing to meet any future emergency may pay great dividends when we just have to do something about the family wardrobe. If you are not already part of a home economics group please contact your home agent, or county agent, W. L. Finley, right away, and they will be glad to help you join a group.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Aid for Small Business Urged by WPB; Allied Land-Air Offensive Relieves Jap Pressure on Critical New Guinea Front; FDR Envisions Higher War Production

Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.
(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

British raids on the German lines in Libya have yielded considerable success in damage to enemy communications and supplies as well as in prisoners captured for questioning. Above photo shows some of the 97 German prisoners taken on a recent foray.

SMALL BUSINESS: To Get Lifeline

With the nation's inevitable progress toward total war economy, many a small business man faced the prospect of becoming a postwar casualty unless a lifeline were thrown to him.

Help appeared likely, however, when War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson urged on congress the immediate creation of a war liabilities administration charged with the job of seeing to it that the little business man survived.

Four essentials for saving little business were recommended by Nelson in testimony before the special senate committee studying wartime problems of little business.

No. 1 is to help little business enterprises take care of overhanging liabilities they would have been able to discharge under normal circumstances. No. 2 is to provide a means for financing small business after the war. Third is to furnish technical and other assistance for small business after the war; and fourth, is to provide a mechanism giving small business enterprises a priority in the acquisition of machinery and equipment when the war is over.

ROOSEVELT: High Goals Ahead

Expressing the opinion that war production was proceeding at an extremely satisfactory rate and that the rest of the nation was far ahead of Washington in war spirit, President Roosevelt returned to the White House after an unprecedented secret inspection of war activities from coast to coast. Mr. Roosevelt said that even higher production goals would be set in months to come.

Although every detail of the historic journey remained a military secret during its progress, the publicity which followed it reverberated across the nation once the censorship curtain was lifted. In a dramatic press conference that paralleled in drama his famous "horse and buggy" attack on the Supreme court seven years ago, the President hit out at certain elements in congress, in the press and radio and in parts of his own administration that were either deliberately or misguidedly hampering America's war effort.

The President had warm praise for the nation as a whole. The people in general, he said, have the finest kind of morale.

PACIFIC AREA: Yanks Infiltrate

In the New Guinea area of the Southwest Pacific, Allied mountain troops gave the Japs a taste of their own medicine by taking the offensive, sifting through jungles and over mountains to recapture Nauro in the Owen Stanley range, well beyond Ioribaiwa, the high water mark of the Nipponese advance on Port Moresby.

A communique from General MacArthur's headquarters in Australia revealed that American and Australian pilots attacked Japanese supply lines for 78 miles back to Buna, the main Japanese coastal base in New Guinea. Using native porters as pack trains the Allied troops covered difficult ground as rapidly as had the Jap invaders.

In the Solomon islands the marines continued to consolidate their positions and to strengthen the defense of the vital Guadalcanal air base against expected enemy assaults. MacArthur's airmen made repeated raids on the Jap-held northern Solomons.

Meanwhile in Washington the navy department reported the loss of two American transports in the original battle of the Solomon islands. These were the 8,378-ton naval transport George F. Elliott and the transport Gregorv, a small auxiliary.

RUSSIA: Race With Winter

As autumn brought blustery cold days presaging the advent of a Russian winter, the historic struggle for possession of the Volga area continued with the Germans hurling in new infantry forces, tank divisions and air units and the hard-pressed Reds stubbornly contesting every foot of territory.

In the ebb and flow of continuous battle, one Russian counterattack threatened the Nazis' right flank, while another against the Germans' left flank had pressed slowly down between the Don and Volga rivers. Meanwhile guns of the Volga fleet continued to pour death into the ranks of the Nazi invaders.

Despite local Russian successes, the gravity of the situation remained. The Germans retained mastery of the air. Their tank and mechanized forces were superior to those of the Red defenders. The German high command was spending blood and lives recklessly.

To the south of Stalingrad in the Caucasus, the news was more encouraging, for Soviet armies had continued to delay the advance of the Axis forces into the priceless oil fields.

SECOND FRONT: Churchill Enigmatic

Somber was the report Prime Minister Winston Churchill gave on the Dieppe Commando raid when he revealed that Allied losses were "very nearly half of the troops involved."

The prime minister said that British tanks were held up by the "altogether unexpected strength" of defense blocks placed at the ends of Dieppe's streets by the Nazi defenders.

These statements together with a later admonition to Parliament about the undesirability of public statements or speculations regarding the opening of a second front had the experts puzzled.

Was Churchill emphasizing the Dieppe losses to lull his Nazi enemies? Was he hush-hushing the second front for the same purpose, or to quiet home demands?

The between-the-lines implication of his statements, according to seasoned observers was this: "Let's keep Hitler guessing. Of course we have definite plans, but let's not expose our hands."

ISOLATIONISTS: Urged to Recant

Pre-Pearl Harbor isolationists were urged by Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter to contribute to "the spiritual unity which the peril of the hour demands" by publicly repudiating their former views.

In an address at the inauguration of Dr. Harry Noble Wright as president of the College of the City of New York, Justice Frankfurter said:

"Nothing would so make for a strengthening of the morale resources of the nation than a candid recantation of their foreshortened views by all prewar isolationists."

Justice Frankfurter cited as a distinguished example, the case of the Very Reverend Robert I. Gannon, president of Fordham university, who publicly admitted that he had been "completely wrong" in his prewar opinions.

LABOR: Gets Blunt Advice

American labor leaders were bluntly told by Rear Admiral Ben Morrell that the people could live without labor unions and "they will damn well live without them, if all of us don't get in there and pitch."

Speaking before the building and construction trades department of the American Federation of Labor in Toronto, the chief of the navy's bureau of yards and docks said he was not implying that labor has any exclusive responsibility for the country's failure to produce the maximum of war implements, but that he felt working people had the biggest stake in the war.

U. S. BIRTH RATE:

J. C. Capt, director of the census bureau, revealed that the population of the continental United States, including members of the armed forces abroad, was about 133,965,000 last January 1, as compared with an estimated 132,636,000 on January 1, 1941. This represented a gain of 2,290,000 over the 1940 census figures.

Births in 1941 accounted for a population increase almost 50 per cent above the average annual gain, Mr. Capt reported.

Marines Study Jap Equipment—and Japs

From time to time enemy land attacks to recover the now U. S.-held Guadalcanal island in the Solomons are made, but the marines have smashed them all. Photo at left shows two Jap officers who will no longer shout commands. They are taking it easy behind barbed wire fence on Guadalcanal. At the right U. S. marines look over Jap equipment taken when the strategic island in the Southwest Pacific fell to the Leathernecks.

U. S. Troops Attack 'Invader' Indian Style

Archbishop of Canterbury With Fleet

The archbishop of Canterbury, highest ranking prelate of the Church of England, is shown among some of the sailors of the British home fleet during his visit to the battle wagons recently. During his visit the archbishop held a service aboard HMS King George V. The archbishop of Canterbury exercises power over the English people second only to the throne.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
Consolidated Features.—WNU Release.

NEW YORK—Iron men and rubber transport is better than vice-versa, if one wanted to ring the changes on the old wooden ship adage. William M. Jeffers, president of the Union Pacific railroad, the new rubber administrator, is, by all accounts an iron man. The occasional rubber man in the railroad business is apt to come from the speculative zone of railroading. Mr. Jeffers, the iron man, has come all the way up, in 52 years, entirely in operation and management.

The Baruch rubber report has stepped up the deep-throated national roar demanding hard-boiled management in this war, to say nothing of operation. When Mr. Jeffers succeeded the late Carl Gray as president of the Union Pacific in 1937, this writer talked to a former associate of Mr. Jeffers.

"He's hard-headed, hard-fisted and hard-hitting," said this informant. "He'll highball an order right through to where it is going, and make sure that it never gets sidetracked and that it gets results. His effectiveness lies in knowing what he wants and then getting just that. Like all good executives, he will hire a specialized intelligence to look after details which he is too busy to master and in doing so he never gets buried under the small impedimenta which sometimes swamp less purposeful men."

Mr. Jeffers is supposed to have been grooved into his new job by Averell Harriman, chairman of the board of the Union Pacific, defense liaison official and lend-lease administrator for Britain. It is obvious that Mr. Jeffers knows how to "keep 'em rolling," which is the main idea in wartime, whether the tires be of rubber or iron. This is the prevailing explanation of the detachment of a master railroader from his job at a time when such mastery is urgently needed where it is. Mr. Jeffers writes off a $70,000-a-year salary.

It was in 1890, in his native North Platte, Neb., that he started his career with the Union Pacific, as an office boy. By 1900, he became chief train dispatcher and he hasn't had a vacation in the succeeding 42 years. A most inflexible man takes over our most flexible, and indispensable commodity.

IT WOULDN'T be surprising to see Thurman Arnold proceeding against Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr. under the anti-trust laws. His widening monopoly of diplomatic posts in the various countries has been still further extended by the President's nomination of Mr. Biddle as ambassador to the exiled governments of Greece and Jugoslavia. His other ambassadorships include Poland, Belgium, Norway and The Netherlands, and he is minister to Czechoslovakia and Luxembourg.

He seems to like his multiple job, although it has caused him much inconvenience and cost him a lot of money. Senator Guffey of Pennsylvania recently put in a bill to reimburse him for $243,640 worth of his furniture, strewn over Europe in the litter of fallen thrones and dominions. The senate postponed action on the bill until after the war, and Mr. Biddle didn't seem to mind. He gets $17,500 a year for eight jobs which at prevailing rates would run up to about $150,000 a year in salaries.

He got his start as a diplomat with his appointment as minister to Norway in 1935. Then came the Polish ambassadorship and since then he hasn't had much quiet home life, bombed out of any comfortable over-night stopping place. In London, he needed elbow-room, finding embassy facilities limited for his large-scale operations, and took a spacious apartment at 40 Berkeley square, where he and Mrs. Biddle clear a prodigious amount of European diplomatic wreckage. Mrs. Biddle is the daughter of the late William Boyce Thompson, Montana mining magnate.

Mr. Biddle frequently is confused with his father, who once fought Philadelphia Jack O'Brien and who, at the age of 67, is now teaching jujitsu to soldiers. Like his father, Mr. Biddle Jr. is an athlete, at 45, and has hawklike features and a long, sharp, shrewd friendly face. The confusion is understandable. Sifting out the relationships of Philadelphia Biddles is tricky business for an amateur, but the most reliable finding is that the trap-drummer diplomat is the eighth cousin of Attorney General Francis Biddle and his brother George, the painter.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

New York's old houses have a fascination for me. Before the Wendel mansion, a square, ugly red brick at Fifth avenue and 39th street, gave way to a store, I used to wander over there and stare in the hope that some day I would glimpse Miss Ella Wendel, the last of her line, who dwelt there alone with a fat poodle. That I never did detect so much as a flicker of life about the house didn't break the habit. So when the Collyer house, an old four-story brownstone at Fifth avenue and 128th street, got into the news because a bank was about to foreclose a mortgage, and Homer and Langley Collyer, who had lived there for years without gas or electricity, were to be evicted, I went up to Harlem and with a lot of others stood around staring.

After inspecting the house from all angles, without detecting any more life than the Wendel mansion had showed, I gave up and went downtown. It was that very night that Herbert Clyde Lewis, a Herald-Tribune reporter, had a piece of luck such as newspaper men dream about. As he was sitting on the steps shivering because—to quote him—"it was mugging time in Harlem"—Langley Collyer came out and not only talked but accompanied Lewis to the Herald-Tribune office where he posed for a picture. Lewis wrote a peach of a yarn which, along with his by-line, hit the front page. That of course was a fine thing for him, but not so good for Helen Worden of the World-Telegram, who broke the original story of the impending eviction.

As perhaps you have learned elsewhere, the Collyer brothers, whose family came to this country in the Speedwell which, according to Miss Worden was a "second Mayflower," will not be evicted after all. They had not known of the foreclosure proceedings because the notice had been torn down probably by mischievous children, possibly the same ones who took delight in breaking Collyer windows until there were no more to break. So, having made arrangements to pay back interest, the Collyer brothers can continue to live in the old house that has been their home since 1909, and Langley can continue to serve the blind Homer. And if they so desire, they can continue to be hermits in a great city.

There are a number of old brownstones on 87th street between Broadway and Seventh avenue, that appeal to me though I do not know their stories. Surrounded by business and apartments and with business in their basements and even the upper floors, they seem to stare at Central park as though they were brooding over the happy days when they were fashionable homes.

The first guest at the opening dance of the Open House for Officers at the Hotel Delmonico was a tall, wiry American from Texas. He was quickly set to work blowing up balloons for a prize dance to be held later in the evening while the hostesses waited impatiently for the refreshments to arrive. Finally when so much time had elapsed that they were just about desperate, a delivery man rushed in with the announcement that the freight elevator refused to run and he was unable to carry up the load. Immediately, the Texas lost interest in the balloons. Explaining to a hostess that he used to run elevators before going into the service, he disappeared. And in no time at all, the elevator was repaired and the party saved.

There are no dull moments at the Open House for Officers according to the hostess. At the opening cocktail party the first guest was a British torpedo officer six feet five inches tall, who towered above all the hostesses. Those who followed were of average height, however. The next day, another British officer arrived. He didn't attract attention because of height. But he had a badly torn coat and was distracted because he was on his way to a party. A junior hostess quickly made repairs and he went merrily on his way. When the same officer was suddenly ordered to another city it was that same hostess who collected his laundry and sent it after him.

Claude Thornhill declares it happened in a nightclub the other evening: A lovely young thing stared at a man sitting at a near-by table and then asked her escort, "Who is that homely man?" Without wincing, the escort confessed that the man happened to be his brother. "Oh, pardon me," flustered the bundle of beauty. "But really, I hadn't noticed the resemblance."

Australian Soldiers Get Alfalfa Ration

CANBERRA, AUSTRALIA. — Lucerne (alfalfa) is going to be mixed in food to soldiers in Australia, B. E. Isley, chairman of the food council, said.

He said the decision to use lucerne was made on the suggestion of the nutrition committee, which found it had a high content of vitamins A and C.

Gives Advice on Gifts to Troops

Yule Presents Should Be in Mails Early, Postal Official Says.

WASHINGTON.—Christmas mail for members of our armed forces serving outside the continental United States should be mailed by October, "the earlier the better," according to instructions by Third Assistant Postmaster General Ramsey S. Black published in the Postal Bulletin. The instructions deal minutely with the subject of Christmas mail for soldiers, sailors and marines abroad.

The bulletin said that the post office department had made arrangements with the war and navy departments for the acceptance of Christmas parcels for members of the armed forces serving outside of continental United States and that for the purpose of the instructions Alaska would be included in the term "outside the continental United States."

Each parcel, said the bulletin, should be endorsed "Christmas parcel" and special effort would be made to deliver the parcels in time for Christmas.

Keep Weight Down.

Christmas parcels should not exceed the present limits of 11 pounds in weight, 18 inches in length and 42 inches in length and girth combined, the bulletin said, adding that the war and navy departments had urged the public voluntarily to restrict the size of Christmas parcels to that of an ordinary shoe box and the weight to six pounds. The service departments asked that no food or clothing be sent, as the members of the armed forces were "amply provided" with both.

"Not more than one Christmas parcel or package," said the bulletin, "shall be accepted for mailing in any one week when sent by or on behalf of the same person or concern to or for the same addressee."

The bulletin pointed out that because of the great distance the mail must be transported and the handling and possible storage it would have to undergo, "it is absolutely necessary that all articles be packed in substantial boxes or containers and be covered with wrappers of sufficient strength not only to resist pressure of other mail in the same sack, but to withstand the weight of other sacks of mail, which in the long transit may be piled thereon."

Subject to Censorship.

Each parcel is subject to censorship, the bulletin said, and "delay in handling may be minimized by securing the covering of the parcel so as to permit ready inspection of the contents." Candy in thin pasteboard boxes should be inclosed in wood, metal or corrugated pasteboard, toilet articles should be tightly secured to prevent damage to the parcel or its cover and the points and edges of razors and knives should be protected so they will not damage other mail or injure postal employees, said the bulletin.

The bulletin said that no perishable matter should be included in the parcels and that prohibited articles included intoxicants, matches and lighter fluids, poisons and "compositions which may kill or injure another or damage the mails."

The bulletin stressed the importance of legible addresses. Postage must be fully prepaid. "Merry Christmas," "Happy New Year," "With Best Wishes," "Please do not open until Christmas," and the like may be written on the parcel's covering or on a card inside.

Small Siren Horn for Air Raids Is Adopted

WASHINGTON.—A quart-sized air horn which can carry an air raid warning effectively over an area of one-quarter of a square mile has been adopted by the Office of Civilian Defense as the "V-horn" to supplement the big victory siren.

The new horn, operated efficiently and effectively from an ordinary filling station air compressor tank, requires only two ounces of steel and about five pounds of cast iron for manufacture, but it depends on electricity.

French People Cannot Buy Just Plain Pepper

VICHY.—Pepper may no longer be sold in its pure form in France. It must be mixed with other substitutes.

Food rations for the month of August were about the same as for July, according to new ration cards. Rations for adults called for 275 grams of bread daily and 150 grams of fat and about 800 grams of meat monthly. Vegetables and fruit are not rationed but are difficult to obtain.

Enclosures Are Barred From Air Force Letters

LONDON, ONT.—Post office officials have drawn attention to the fact that no enclosures of any kind can be sent in the new armed forces air letters to the troops overseas. The armed forces air letter form is a combined letter and envelope.

Absolutely nothing may be enclosed, no snap shots or extra sheets of paper. If any enclosure is found, the letter will be sent by ordinary mail—not by fast air service.

U. S. Rangers in United Kingdom Train Under Combat Conditions

It is quite generally agreed that Germany will never be conquered until her army of occupation is driven out of Continental Europe. American forces, working shoulder to shoulder with Great Britain's, have long been preparing for the much talked of and vital Second Front. Above photo shows Sgt. Warren E. Evans (right) with one of the Commando sergeants with whom he is training somewhere in the United Kingdom.

DIGESTIVE DISTURBANCES

When an individual refuses food or a second helping of food and states that he or she is "on a diet," in most cases it is because they are attempting to reduce their weight. It is the "quantity" of food eaten that they have most in mind when they refuse more food.

There are other individuals who refuse certain articles of food because they know from experience that there is something about that particular food, or something about themselves when they eat that food that causes symptoms in nose and throat, stomach, intestine, and skin.

What many of us do not realize is that we may have symptoms due to eating certain foods not because there is anything wrong with the food itself, or because we are allergic to it, but because of the way the food is prepared, the large amount eaten, and the "overloading" with flavors and condiments.

In the Canadian Medical Association Journal, Dr. Joseph Daly, Toronto, states that if we are willing to play fair with our digestive apparatus, there are certain habits as to food that will reasonably keep us free of peptic ulcer and other disturbances of the stomach and intestine. Some of these food suggestions made by Dr. Daly are:

1. Avoid foods containing coarse fibers and sharp seeds—corn, celery, salad, cabbage, radishes, and onions.
2. Avoid salty, spicy foods.
3. Avoid stimulants—strong tea and coffee.
4. Avoid fried foods, rich desserts.
5. Avoid condiments—mustard, horseradish, catsup and highly seasoned gravies, sauces, relishes.
6. Use only tender meats.

As to ourselves and our habits of life, Dr. Daly suggests:

1. Avoid excesses of all kinds—overeating, overdrinking, overfatigue and great excitement.
2. Eat regularly and at the same hour each day.
3. Take a definite length of time for meals—20 minutes for breakfast and 30 minutes each for noon-day meal and evening meal.
4. No alcoholic beverages.
5. No large meals of very hot or very cold foods.
6. Chew the food well.
7. Eat six times a day—three medium size meals and three small meals—feedings of milk, biscuits, cereals, blanc mange, toast.
8. Keep slightly overweight.

Drugs by Mouth And by Injection

Perhaps you wonder why a physician uses injections of drugs under the skin, into a muscle, or into a vein, instead of giving it by mouth. Perhaps you are one who thinks that the physician gives the injections because it means that the patient must go to the physician's office instead of taking the pill or liquid by mouth at home.

Think for a minute and you'll remember that in a heart attack, a gall bladder attack, or an asthmatic attack, the physician injects the necessary drugs instead of giving them by mouth because he wants immediate action to save life or give prompt relief from pain.

There are many drugs that can be taken by mouth, in fact most drugs are taken by mouth but larger quantities must be taken, and the relief is not as prompt or effective.

What are the advantages of the injection of drugs? First, the drug gets immediately into the blood stream instead of having to go through the digestive system, where much of its strength is lost before it is absorbed into the blood. The dose by mouth is always double or more the dose used in injections. In fact, some drugs cannot be absorbed into the blood by way of the digestive organs and is thrown out in the wastes from the intestine.

Some idea of the greater amount of a drug needed to be effective is seen by the great amount of liver needed when taken by mouth and taken every day, as compared to one dose of the injected liver concentrate which lasts some patients for weeks.

The second advantage of injected drugs is that they do not disturb digestion in many whose digestive apparatus cannot handle the drug taken by mouth without causing symptoms.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—Is there any medicine which I can take to help develop my chest?

A.—Your own physician can use gland extracts.

Q.—What causes my face to feel very unpleasant after shaving? I use the best razor blades and finest shaving cream.

A.—Even the best soaps or shaving creams may cause irritation of face when the individual is allergic to these particular soaps or creams. Try another brand.

Vaccination of Calves Checks Bang's Disease

Immune Heifers Obtained Through This Process

Because of the war and the desire to step up milk production in line with the Food for Freedom program, dairy farmers have adopted calfood vaccination as a means of controlling Bang's disease more quickly than they would have in ordinary times.

Calfood vaccination makes it possible for herd owners to replace old, unprofitable cows with heifers immune from brucellosis, or Bang's disease, Dr. George E. Taylor, extension dairymen at Rutgers university, reminds herd owners. However, the answer to the question of whether vaccination is the best method of controlling the disease, depends upon many things, Dr. Taylor says.

"As an example, U. S. department of agriculture officials point to many farmers who have tried the test - and - slaughter method and have not been able to eliminate the disease from their herds completely," he reports. "These farmers frequently are in communities where brucellosis is prevalent. And in all probability, calfood vaccination would be recommended."

"On the other hand, a farmer may have only one or two cases of brucellosis in his herd. If he lives in a community which is comparatively free from the disease, he and his advisers often conclude that the best thing to do is to get rid of the reacting animals, make a thorough clean-up, and then keep close watch for any reappearance of the trouble.

This small herd, part of a larger one, is the kind that has to be watched for any outbreak of the dreaded Bang's disease.

"Also, there are circumstances which lead farmers to adopt a combination of calfood vaccination and test-and-slaughter methods in their control of brucellosis."

So if you have brucellosis or Bang's disease in your herd, talk the matter over with your livestock sanitary officials, veterinarian, and your county agricultural agent, suggests Dr. Taylor.

Agriculture in Industry

By FLORENCE C. WEED

Hops

The relatively unimportant hops crop contains hop oil, hop resins and acids, hop tannin, hop bitters and hop wax, but few of these possibilities have been converted to industrial uses. Hops are used mainly in brewing malt beverages where their flavoring and preserving qualities are of particular value. American hops are of high quality but a few individual brewers prefer to import varieties which have special properties lacking in the domestic hops. This makes the market variable and in some years, 5,000,000 pounds of hops have been left unharvested when the price is low and labor is scarce.

The yellowish aromatic substance called "lupulin" contained in hops, has some outlet in medicines. Research is under way to recover certain compounds found in hops which are lost in the brewing process yet might be valuable in other industries. Dyes, tannins, wax and pectin all might be recovered. Even the fibers left after the hop resin is extracted might be converted into plastics as is being done with soybeans.

Hops are like their name in the way they have moved about the country. They were first introduced in New Netherlands in 1625 and came to Virginia five years later.

Guard Livestock Health

More research on livestock health, and passing the information to livestock and poultry producers is urged. A report pointed out that livestock losses in the United States, because of poor health and disease, total about 268 million dollars a year.

It was also suggested that farmers may be given the facts best through newspapers, periodicals, and the farm press, telling of practices that will conserve the nation's livestock and poultry resources.

Do You Know?

by Dorothy Scott
Shall you pack bread and butter or sandwiches? It depends on how substantial the main dish is. Bread and butter for thick soups, chowders, stew and the like, or sandwiches with thinner soups, cocoa, tea or coffee (for adults).
Bread and butter can mean many things, and may well be the source of that "Surprise" element. Try enriched whole wheat, cracked wheat, rye, raisin, and graham breads, as well as the quick and steamed breads—oatmeal, Boston brown, date-nut, etc. These are best buttered.

Vary sandwiches in size, shape, and fillings. Try half and half (white with dark breads) ribbon or checker-board sandwiches (made with two or more fillings and several slices of bread, sliced the other way. To checker—rebuild the ribbon layers, and cut again). Chilling these helps in cutting, and they are a means of using much filling and little bread. Too much bread is a common lunch fault.
Different sandwich fillings are the product of imagination. With ground meat, cheese, fish or eggs mix chopped vegetables (carrots, cabbage, celery, onion, green pepper, parsley, cress or chives will do the trick.)

Peanut butter combines nicely with fruits—chopped prunes, raisins, dates, apricots, and a little milk or cream keep it from being sticky.
Flavor, color, and crispness are in cottage cheese to which you have added parsley, green pepper, carrots, or chives and onion. Hearty are sandwiches of mashed baked beans with salad dressing, catsup, or chili sauce. Especially nice with dark bread and cheap too.
Most any chopped vegetables are ground with chopped hard cooked eggs and salad dressing.

Jam and jelly go with cottage cheese and will stretch your rationed supply of them. Or, try grinding raisins, peaches, prunes, or apricots and blending with lemon or orange juice.
Fresh, sliced tomatoes are tops between slices of bread and butter.
These are the cook's ingenious tricks to pack in extra vitamins and minerals along with variety in color, texture, and flavor.

Raw vegetables and fruits are suitable additions several times a week—apples, oranges, peaches, plums, pears, tomatoes, raisins, dried prunes, apricots or carrots, turnip cubes, lettuce, cabbage wedges, celery and peanuts.
Wrap any foods that may dry out in waxed paper. In small screw top jars you can send applesauce, baked apples, pears, cherries, plums, berries, prunes, tomatoes, or juices and rhubarb. (Clip this article and watch for the next one).
