Japanese efforts to dislodge the marines from Guadalcanal and obtain possession of this strategic link in the Solomon islands chain have taken a three-pronged pincer movement, according to military experts. SOLOMONS:

All-Out Struggle

Good news balanced bad as the navy made public accounts of thunderous encounters between American and Jap war craft.

On the credit side was the report that five Nipponese warships and a transport had been sunk in a midnight battle near the Solomons. Included in the sinking were a heavy Jap cruiser, four destroyers and a transport. In addition, another destroyer was reported probably sunk, three cruisers torpedoed and bombed and 15 aircraft destroyed.

On the debit side was the somber tidings that three heavy American cruisers had been sent to the bottom of the Pacific in a night engagement during the first phase of the Solomon islands offensive last August. Announcement of the sinkings had been withheld as a military precaution. The cruisers were the Quincy, Vincennes and Astoria.

The struggle for naval supremacy in the area was accompanied by engagements in the air and on land for control. On strategic Guadalcanal proper, the marine defenders had been re-enforced by U. S. army units. Offsetting this added American strength, the Japs had landed Outlines Manpower Plan re-enforcements of their own, covered by heavy naval concentrations. Continued possession of their positions including the Guadalcanal air base by the U. S. forces meant that a heavy gun was thrust in the ribs of Japan's positions to the north and

Persistent Advocate

Back from a 31,000-mile aerial tour of 14 countries in the war zone, including embattled Russia, the Middle East, India and China, Wendell L. Willkie reiterated a demand for a second front in Europe. He had made this demand frequently during his tour.

Reporting personally to President Roosevelt the results of his observations and of conferences with Joseph Stalin, Chiang Kai-shek and other Allied leaders, Willkie emphasized his conviction that the United Nations inevitably will defeat the Axis and that "Germany will never crush Russia."

In an interview later the 1940 Republican presidential candidate defended his right as a non-military expert to advance proposals which he believes will help shorten the war, reduce its cost in human life and help shape a better post-war

EMPLOYMENT:

To Reach 62,500,000

Eventual employment of 62,500,000 Americans in all lines of industry, commerce and agriculture by December, 1943, was predicted by the National Industrial Conference

The board reported that current employment figures were 57,700,000 with the total moving steadily upward.

Rise in employment in the past 12 months has been 4,000,000, while 10,000,000 have been added to payrolls since the defense program was undertaken in 1940.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

VICHY: For lack of merchandise to supply the half million saloons and cafes, or one for every 80 inhabitants, a virtual prohibition regime has been established in France. Thousands have gone out of business since it has become impossible to get supplies. When a cafe proprietor gets a little stock of liquor or wine there is an immediate run on his place.

MIAMI: Albert John Capone, younger brother of Chicago's former gang czar Alphonse Capone, obtained a court order here to change his surname from Capone to Rayola. The order covered Capone, his wife and their son Robert Francus. Capone told the court the family wanted the name changed for the future benefit of the child.

AIRCRAFT OUTPUT: Approaches 60,000

President Roosevelt's goal of an annual airplane production of 60,000 planes this year is being approached, the aeronautical chamber of commerce revealed. Reporting that monthly plane production was pressing at 5,000, the chamber noted that more than 4 billion dollars worth of airplanes, engines and propellers will be produced in 1942.

"From the standpoint of numbers," the report said, "it is estimated that what was once a year's production of combat planes is rolling out of the American aircraft plants in a single week.'

As production mounts, quality improves, the report stated. "Despite the stellar performance of Amer-ica's combat planes," it said, "the aircraft manufacturers are perfecting new and improved types which can fly higher, travel faster and spray more lead and destruction than the models presently in serv-

TIRES: Limit Is Five

The four tires they drove on, plus a spare for emergencies were all that American motorists could legally possess, as the U.S. government began acquiring excess civilian tires. The government was paying ceiling prices of from $1.50 to $11.15 for used tires, depending on the amount of tread.

Although the tire sale was voluntary, officials of the Office of Price Administration warned that car owners with more than five tires would be denied gasoline rations when the nation-wide registration took place November 9. Fines of $10,000 and prison terms of 10 years faced those who falsified their tire statements in applying for gasoline rations.

The government asked each motorist to keep the five best tires he had. Owners of two cars were told to keep 10 tires, five for each. The American Railway Express, with 23,000 offices in the United States, was the official collection agency.

The program to buy excess tires was expected to increase the national stockpile by from 2,000,000 to 5,000,000 units.

ENEMY ALIENS: Italians Lose Stigma

'the splendid showing they have made in meeting the test of loyalty to American ways and traditions since the attack on Pearl Harbor."

Under a new department of justice policy, the attorney general revealed that Italians would still be subject to internment if they proved "dangerous or disloyal." But he explained that the general regulations affecting enemy aliens, specifically Germans and Japanese, would no longer pertain to Italians.

LABOR: More 'Farm Union'?

Extension of his attempt to union-ize agricultural labor was announced by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America in a statement at the close of the organization's convention in Cincin-

"There are millions more to organize, clamoring for organization," he said. "Great segments of agriculture are knocking at the door of the UMW for help toward becoming free and independent citizens."

While Lewis' statement sounded optimistic, observers recalled that his previous efforts to unionize dairy workers in a number of states had failed signally.

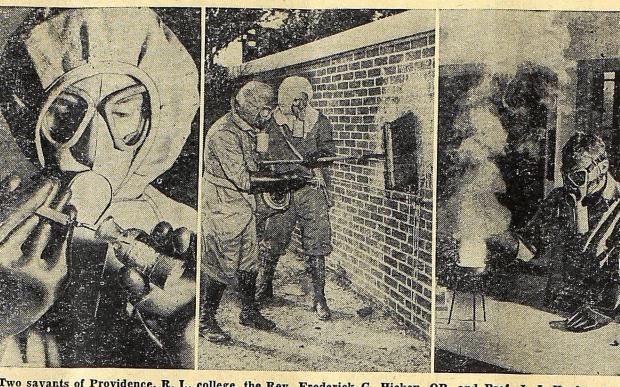

CHURCHILL:

'Stern and Somber'

In ancient Edinburgh, once the home of the Scottish kings, Prime Minister Churchill served notice on the Axis that the United Nations have built up their striking power remarkably in the last two months.

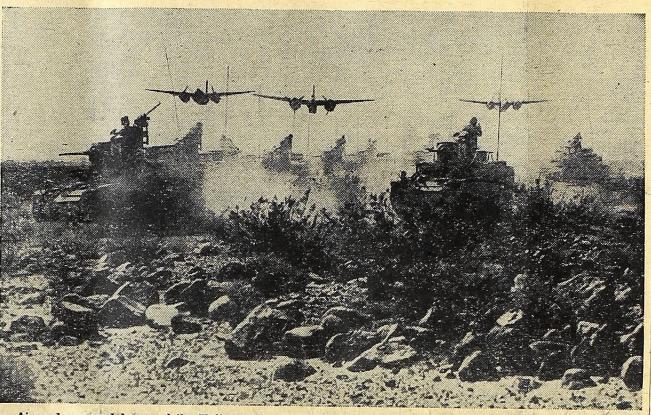

One of Churchill's statements was interpreted by some observers as implying an early opening of a second front, when he said the United Nations had reached a "stern and somber moment in the war."

'Sniff Sets' for Air Raid Precautions

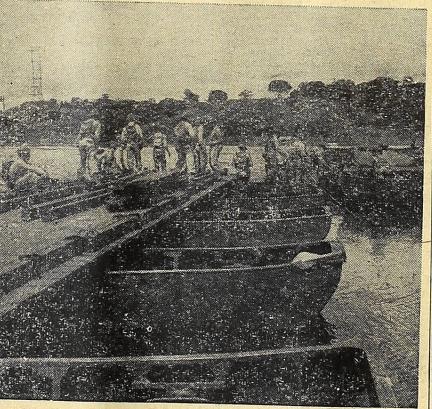

Two savants of Providence, R. I., college, the Rev. Frederick G. Hickey, OP, and Prof. J. J. At left, Prof. Hanley fills one of the sniff set bottles with mustard gas sample. Center: Father Hickey and his colleague show the correct technique of decontaminating a vertical surface. Army engineers in the Canal Zone set what is believed to be an alltime record by spanning a river with a 1,070-foot pontoon bridge in one hour and 40 minutes, in a test to show how they could span rivers under fire. The last section here is swung into position ready for a test run of a ten-ton unit.

Another Step Toward Tokyo

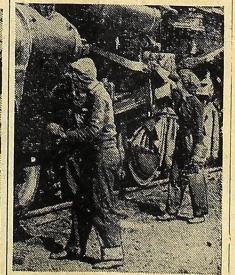

Struggling through the cold night to bring tons of supplies ashere during the surprise landing by American forces in the Andreanof group of Aleutian islands, U. S. doughboys did not think the job complete without setting up a sign which reads "2,640 miles from Tokyo."

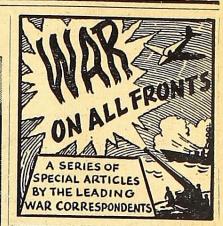

Sergt. Maj. Vootha, of the native police, who was captured by Japs at Guadalcanal, was tortured with a bayonet when he refused to give information about U. S. forces there. Left for dead, Vootha escaped and returned to a U. S. marine camp with valuable information. This picture was taken before he was captured.

Our Soldiers in Ireland

By Beverly Smith

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with American Magazine)

To find out how our soldiers were behaving in Ireland, I spent a few days in the small town of Ballynlank, where several companies of Americans had lately moved in, after passing some months in a muddy but strategically located forest.

They took up quarters in an abandoned textile mill, in a noble mansion, and the outbuildings of a huge estate, in refurbished stables, in Niseen huts. When I arrived, I found the soldiers puzzled by the attitude of the townspeople. The one main street remained almost deserted. Few children were to be seen. Older people hurried furtively along

"What's wrong with us?" asked disconsolate soldiers. "You'd think we were lepers."

Hillbilly Band Warms Up

On Saturday evening the outfit's hillbilly band decided to go into action. With portable amplifiers, they marched into town, took up a position in the deserted square, and tuned their weird variety of instruments, many of them homemade. Then they swung into "Deep in the Heart of Texas."

The square was still vacant, but soon I noticed little faces peeping out through doorways. The hillbilly boys warmed up, tooting mightily as they went into "Elmer's Tune."

Now the children were out of the houses, creeping closer, timidly but irresistibly drawn. Soon the square seemed to be full of children crowding about, and the older Irish folk were moving in, too, still aloof, but hypnotized by the strange music.

Then Private Vernon Claussen, a big farm boy from Gilmore City, "Ioway," gave his famous "Old Sow Song," with elaborate sound effects of gruntings and squealings. Soon bearded Irish farmers in the crowd who know their hogs, began to smile, chuckle and snort with glee.

Now the party was really going. The hillbillies sang "She'll Be Coming Round the Mountain," and the crowd and the children encored it again and again.

At this point the master of ceremontes, Private Sam Cicerale, a hillbilly from the Bronx, New York, pulled a stroke of genius. Noticing that a six-year-old towhead in the crowd had caught the words and was joining in, he suddenly silenced the band and held the microphone close by the little boy. Amplified and alone, the child's voice rang out shrill, clear and in tune over the square, "She'll Be Drivin' Six White Horses When She Comes." That brought down the house, the square, the town and the barriers.

Why People Were Suspicious of Americans.

I dropped in at the local station house a few days later to talk things over with a veteran sergeant of the Royal Irish Constabulary, who handles police matters. I asked him why people were so suspicious when the Americans first arrived.

"Well," he said, "a lot of strange rumors got about. Your boys were supposed to be mostly savages and desperadoes from the Wild West."

But that's all over now, and the local folk are ashamed of it.

I asked the old sergeant how the constabulary reports showed American boys had been behaving. He said: "I've never, in 40 years, seen sojers better behaved."

He went on to particularize: "Of course, sojers will be sojers, especially on payday. Sometimes a lad gets a bit too much, sometimes there's a bit of a rumpus. But not often, not much. As an old sojer myself, I like the discipline of your fellows. It don't show so much on the surface, but it's there underneath when it's needed.'

A couple of years ago, I wrote an article for the American magazine about the formation of our first American armored divisions under the leadership of the late hard-bitten General Adna Chaffee. Now, 4,000 miles away, I have been riding with units of the tankers again.

The cub has grown into a bear cat. There are tanks in Ireland that were just a designer's dream two years ago, and better ones are coming

Nor is the change just in equipment. The armored units have developed powerful teamwork, ruggedness, esprit de corps. The men have invented new things, methods and techniques which they have reason to be proud of.

If General Chaffee were alive and here today, he would be pleased with much that he saw. That's praise enough for any man in armored forces.

Inventiveness runs all through this man's army. It is the fastest learning, most ingenious army in all the history of the world.

Underground: It is possible to ride in New York's subways 40 miles or more for an expenditure of only five cents. But this transportation bargain has a drawback-there isn't any scenery. Stations are pretty much alike and while the train bangs along all there is to be seen is a dingy wall unwinding like a roll of dirty ribbon, signal lights of various kinds, emergency exits and now and then a lantern-equipped trackwalker with his body pressed tightly into some niche only a foot or so from destruction. Nevertheless, war which does so many strange things, has driven New York sightseers into the subways. Instead of riding from one point of interest to another in big busses as they did in the past, they now travel in the subway with the barker acting as the bell wether. He doesn't wear a bell, however. Instead he informs his flock of his whereabouts by constantly jingling a pocket full of nickels.

Diplomacy: Crowds that congregate in front of the New York Times bulletins in Times square read the war news with tense interest. Frequently arguments occur over the meaning of happenings in various parts of the world and so hot do they become and such throngs collect to listen to the disputants, as well as to take sides, that the police have to go into action. One cop assigned to such duty is big, fat and jolly. Also he is a practical psychologist. Realizing that curt commands might cause trouble or possibly a riot, he usually gives his orders in humorous terms. For instance, the other afternoon when an argument spread from the two principals to a group of considerable size and much loud talk was being exchanged, up came the officer with the command, "Come on, you bunch of generals, before a dive bomber breaks you up." The disputants melted away with grins.

Gratitude: Four RCAF men were enjoying dinner at the Schrafft's "Vittles for Victory" table when a guest called a hostess to his table and informed her he'd like to order a few rounds of liquid refreshments for the boys, but he didn't want them to know who sent them over. The hostess replied that it was very kind of him to do something for the fliers, but she was sure they would want to thank him. "Thank me!" exclaimed the stranger. "Oh, no. It's my turn to thank them. Just last week two RCAF men snatched me from a watery grave in the Atlantic ocean. I'd been adrift in a life boat for 21 days and might still be out there if it hadn't been for those heroic aviators. The four boys at that table are not the ones who saved my life - but they might well have Rain: A sudden downpour, though it may be heavy, doesn't sweep Broadway clear of its pedestrian stream. There are always those who have urgent reasons for keeping on their way. those to whom a little thing like getting wet has no special significance. But the majority of foot passengers scramble for shelter of some kind. On Broadway, shelter usually means a marquee or a door-way. Those who stand under marquees regard passers-by as inter-ferers with their rights. They, unless a cop happens to be handy, refuse to allow even a narrow passage. The result is that the walker, if he would keep on going, has to step into the street. Those in doorways not only refuse to budge, but scowl as customers who would force their way inside. Proprietors, who like to do business even during a rain, may get sore and give orders but that makes no difference.

About Manhattan: Broadway looking down-at-the-heel in the afternoon . with the bright lights dimmed, not even attractive at night anymore . . . Just another street with hot dog stands, movie theaters, cheap stores, saloons and restaurants . . . Wonder if its glamour will ever return . . Every Broadway clock, and they are numerous, showing different time . . . But nary a reaper has been delivered to reaper has been delivered to The bridge is, by reason of its sectional construction, capable of use purebred has ever set hoof inside the barn. War Inspires New Machines

British Engineers Quick to Learn Lessons of the War in Progress.

LONDON .- Aside from the new mplements mechanized war has brought into being, new methods of instruction have been developed for their use. One of these schools in Britain is engineering with new placement, fortifications and bridge building. The campaign in the western desert is responsible for the first two, lessons learned from the Don and Donetz for the third.

The military expert of the Times of London, at an engineering school with the "Northern Command," writes of some things he observed, beginning with a military bridge:

"It can be constructed more quickly and simply than any comparable bridge known to be used y the Germans.

"It is a bold claim, but it is supported by the highest technical authorities. Nor need it be doubted that, on whatever front he may have to construct such a bridge, the sapper will combine the finest fighting qualities with all his engineer-

Easy to Assemble.

"This new type of service bridge s particularly impressive for its simplicity of design. Its various sections and component parts can be moved easily and rapidly under normal training conditions. That is not o say that the work is light, but it does mean that it can be done quickly and without strain by the men whose job it is. It may be aken that the sections of framework, girders and so on are designed to a carefully studied optimum length and, besides this, the method of fitting sections together has the same quality of simplicity. as a pontoon bridge.

"An inexpert observer might be most impressed with this development in bridge construction by comparing the new type with the Inglis bridge. In the latter the gantry method and the network of girders seem extraordinarily slow and elaborate. But the Inglis bridge has had an honored place in the history of military engineering, and its day is not yet over. It is admittedly slow-er in construction than the latest type of service bridge, but will still be used in rear areas.

"A demonstration of earth-moving machinery at the school brought into action a giant bulldozer that enabled one man to move earth on a really large scale.

Water Purification Set.

"Among lighter equipment there was a reminder of how the armies in Libya depend on the royal engineers for their vitally important supplies of water. There was, for instance, a mobile water purification set, for filtering and sterilizing, providing drinking water in bulk, and having a capacity of 3,000 gallons

"At the other end of the scale there was the portable hand-operatset, weighing only 140 pounds, with a capacity of 100 gallons (or 400 water bottles) an hour. Again, there were machinery lorries for use as field machine shops, and compressor trucks which carry, and produce power for pneumatic tools.

"It might have been forgotten momentarily that all this machinery and equipment, so essential to the maintenance of an army, is right in the battlefield under conditions of war today.
"But the school recalled the fighting skill of the royal engineers by staging an assault river crossing. Here the most recent types of folding boats, raft ferries and kapok floats were put into use for transporting men and guns and ma-

STEPS TOWARD SOLUTION OF THE ALCOHOL PROBLEM

LESSON TEXT—Ecclesiastes 10:17; Amos 5:21-24; Romans 14:19-21 II Corinthians 6:17; I Peter 4:1-5.
GOLDEN TEXT—Let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream.—Amos 5:24.

Let's do something about it! That is the right word regarding the liquor problem now. The time is past for theorizing or deploring—we need action. The liquor interests have redoubled their efforts of late because they fear the aroused public opinion of decent Americans. Why do not America's 65,000,000 church members say the word now, and curb this awful thing which is threatening to destroy us?

I. Right-Minded Rulers (Eccles.

National leaders should set the example for the people—an example of sobriety, of clear-headed thought and full devotion to the cause of our country. Are they doing it? We quote: "Washington is the wettest spot in the nation. The per capita consumption of alcohol in the capita consumption of alcohol in the District of Columbia is almost twice that of the wettest state in the Union. In 1940, 4.26 gallons were consumed for every man, woman and child. Nevada, the wettest of all our states, consumed 2.65 gallons per person. There at Washington where they need the clearest heads, the steadiest nerves, and the heads, the steadiest nerves, and the highest morals, they are drinking the most booze" (Dr. I. M. Hargett). What about 1942? Those who have been able to observe, indicate that conditions are probably worse now!

The secretary of war and the secretary of the navy have insisted on the desirability of the sale of beer in service canteens. No wonder the Brewers' Digest of May, 1941, gloated: "One of the finest things that could have happened was the insistence by high ranking officers to make beer available in army camps . . . Here is a chance for the brewers to cultivate a taste for beer in millions of young men." America had better wake up!

II. Right-Spirited People (Amos

God has no pleasure in the re-ligious observances and the pious words of a people who profess to worship, but who come with unre-pentant hearts and unclean hands.

Can God bless the man (or his money) who profits either directly or indirectly from the sale of intoxicants? Amos has the answer. Let us heed his plea that righteous ness should run through our national, as well as our personal lives, "as a mighty stream."

III. Right - Living Christians (Rom. 14:19-21; II Cor. 6:17; I Pet.

We have already suggested that there are 65,000,000 church members in America. If they were all rightliving Christians there can be little question that they would long since have eliminated the liquor business, for it is certainly most unchristian. Apparently they are either not real Christians, or they are asleep to their responsibility. Our Scriptures in this section tell us that in a true Christian life there is

1. No offense (Rom. 14:19-21). The question here is that of eating meat offered to idols, which does not concern us; but the great Christian principle here stated is of the highest importance and bears directly on our daily life.

None of us lives to himself (Rom. 14:7). Everything we do counts either for or against Christ. Such an ordinary (we regret) thing as staying away from church service speaks to the world and especially to our neighbors of our loss of interest and respect for the worship of God. Apply that principle to the use of any alcoholic beverage, and every Christian must be a total abstainer.

2. No Compromise (II. Cor. 6:17) We have come to the unscriptural and deeply dangerous viewpoint that if a Christian wants to compromise a bit with the world, the flesh and the devil, that's his "business." God does not think so. He says: "Come out from among them, and be ye separate." The weakness of the church on this matter of liquor is that too many of the 65,000,000 are guilty of the sin (and that's what it is!) of compromise.
3. No Worldliness (I Pet. 4:1-5).

Here again the assumption of many is that there are two groups in the church-worldly Christians and spiritually minded ones, and that each is as good as the other. Both classes are there, no doubt about that, but God never has and never will countenance worldliness on the part of His people.

Essentially, there are just two opposing principles in this world-selfwill and God's will. We are either controlled by the flesh or by the Spirit of God. Peter makes it clear that the one who claims to belong to Christ should no longer be controlled by self-will, but by God's will. Are we ready, fellow Christians, to yield to Him?

and his wife, Lee, are already on their way to Tierra Libre when Jeff receives a note from Zora Mitchell warning them not to come. It is too late to turn back, so Jeff decides not to tell Lee, who was opposed to their return-ing to the tropics. She finally agreed to go only after Jeff had persuaded her-that the job of chief engineer for a newly organized fruit company is the chance of a lifetime. He nearly changed his own mind about going after talking long distance to Jerry McInnis, a former associate of his in Tierra Libre, who told him that Zora Mitchell's husband had been killed. It is Mitchell's job that Jeff has been called to fill. They are docking now at Cabeza de Negro, Jeff thinking of Zora's note, "Don't come." NOW CONTINUE WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER II

Don't come! And here he was with Lee in the curve of his arm, Buddy and Chuck tugging at his trousers, with Tierra Libre rising up out of the morning sea, the buildings of Cabeza de Negro taking shape. His arm unconsciously tightened about

Long before they drew close enough to make out details of the sturdy new docks and receiving sheds they saw the motor launch cutting along the coast as though to intercept them. It, too, was headed for the port, and at last Curt recognized the figure standing in the

He yanked off his hat to wave it wildly.

"Jerry, you old muckle-head," he shouted. "I might've known you'd come down to meet us.'

"Yeh, got your wireless you were coming through Cabeza. Hiya, Curt. Hiya, Lee," called the stocky man in the launch. "It's good to see you folks again. Where're the Curt and Lee each picked up a child and stood him on the broad rail. Buddy, from his new vantage point, piped up: "Mummy, what's a muckle-head?"

"A muckle-head, darling," she answered gravely, "is your Uncle Jerry down in the little boat. See?"

There was no opportunity for dallying here. The launch drew away and by the time the Pisces warped up to the dock Jerry McInnis-leathered face, close-cropped hair, weather-stained clothes-was waiting for them.

A dockhand delivered a message from Senor Montaya on a company briefhead. The senor had been delayed in getting down river to meet them but would reach Cabeza in another hour or so.

"That one of their river boats?" "Yep. They have two. But we can talk later, Curt." Jerry scooped up the children, one in each arm.
"Let's find a more comfortable spot for the wait. Lee, you're looking great! If I didn't know better I'd guess you were twenty. Hard to believe these are yours. Marta sends her love and can't wait to see you.' McInnis, chuckling, nodded from Curt's piled luggage to his own launch boy, and the mestizo immediately took possession to stand guard. Then the Associated man led the way from the dock to the paused. one main street of the town. There were signs of recent construction. The new company was booming the village.

"That's a good dock they've built," Curt said. "I suppose Mitchell did it?"

"Sure." Just the one word, and it sounded strange. Clipped and odd, for Mc-Innis. Curt threw his friend a side-big here." Associated Fruit Growers-where Curt and McInnis, fresh from M. I. T., had their first years of practical engineering - stretched along the north bank of the Rio Negro, a hundred kilometers or more of banana plantations in an only ones who ever get to Soledad, almost unbroken line. These were fed by a narrow-gauge railroad, and vise receipt of shipments. there was one handling of fruit from farm pick-up platforms to conveyor belts at shipside.

But the new Compania Agricola Tropical, south of the Negro, had more of a problem. It wasn't possible to run a railroad through to the sea. Salt marshes lay between their concession and the coast and made it necessary to handle fruit by rail from farm to river port, and by steamer or lighters from there to Cabeza where ocean vessels could pick it up. Not so good, two handlings of perishable fruit. Costly, too. And the delay and expense of hauling construction materials up river was sharp in Curt's mind.

"Well, here we are." McInnis stopped before a small cantina, the facade a blinding, bilious green in the raw sunshine. Mc-Innis put the boys down, led them inside. Lee and Curt followed.

"It's nearly lunch time," McInnis remarked. "Shouldn't the kids be fed, Lee? You know what the cooking is like here, but we can probably get canned soups."

Lee smiled. "I don't need a brick wall to fall on me. Go ahead, you two. Have a drink. I know you have plenty to talk over. I'll drag out my rusty Spanish and get along."

The men turned to the deserted bar at the end of the room, mount- death. They say it was no native ed uncomfortable stools and ordered did the job, but a couple of white

"Jerry, it'll cost so much to produce and ship fruit here that I don't see how these people can hope to compete with Associated. Not without a subsidy, and Tierra Libre does not grant subsidies."

McInnis grunted. "Well, that's their business."

"Of course," Curt mused on, "it's a pretty slick hombre who could put anything over on Old Man Moore. I could give even money the Old Man figures they'll go broke getting into production, then plans to bid in and take over the conces-sion cheap. Maybe throw a bridge acress the Negro and handle the fruit once from pick-up to the dock at Soledad."

McInnis grinned, but said nothing. The bartender placed the drinks before them, then left to lend a hand in the kitchen lean-to.

Alone now, and with a furtive glance to be sure Lee was occupied with the children, Curt pulled forth Zora Mitchell's letter. He spread it open before the other, and his face was serious, his voice low.

"Jerry, what've I got into?" McInnis read the note, refolded

"Come on, pal, we know each other's first name. Spill it."

It came out slowly and in pieces. "Well, Curt, I can't help feeling there's something fishy about your new outfit. They have more men on their payroll than we have, for instance, Americans as well as natives, trying to get things set before the next rainy season. That's all right. But Soledad's the only live spot-such as it is-within their range. You couldn't call Cabeza a satisfactory place to liven a fellow up over a holiday. "So-well, damn it all, you'd expect that gang to come to Soledad once in a while. But no one ever does. The two Swedes and the Dutchman I told you about are the and that's only on business, to super-

"And they don't talk! We tried to get up a ball game with your people once. No go. It's as though this Montaya was afraid his men'd spill something to our advantage. And that's carrying the rivalry theme a bit far for this business and this country. I-well, you see how vague it is, only a feeling . . ."

Curt reflected. He pushed his glass around in circles on the bar. Ever get over to the new planting yourself?"
"No," grinned McInnis. "That wouldn't be etiquette. The Old Man paid them a courtesy visit once. but we're rival outfits. If I went over they'd think it snooping. All the dope I've had on them is picked up from natives. You know how stuff gets around.

"And that leads right into what I really came down here for. It was especially to-uh, warn you. But, he held up his hand, "don't ask me against what. I don't know. That note from Zora Mitchell-I'd talk to her as soon as I could. Sounds like she knows something."

He held an uncomfortable silence for a moment. Then:

"I got hold of a rumor after you called me several days ago. There's no evidence, mind you, and it was too late to stop you by cable. Well, the natives working for me have their own ideas about Mitchell's gin rickeys. While the native bar- men. But Curt," he expostulated, a guy to pieces the way Mitch was found."

Curt thought this out.

"Huh, unless it was to hide the fact that it was a white man's killing. And suppose it was a white man, Jerry, or a couple of them? So what? Old Mitch knew his job, but he certainly piled up enemies. You and I know that well enough. He made engineers out of us, first job out of college, but we got plenty bruised in the process. Men with less sense of humor than we have can't take the treatment he dished out.

Curt pulled at his drink reflective-

"You didn't give me any details," he mentioned after another moment.

"There aren't many. A track-walker found him early in the morn-ing—fortunately before the buzzards did. Let's see, the 11th, it was. About a kilometer outside of Tempujo, in a ditch by the track. The damn zopilotes were wheeling overhead, so he got the section handcar, loaded the body onto it-"

"The 11th?" interrupted Curt. 'That's the date of their letter to me! They didn't waste any time. Wonder how they picked a man so quickly?"

"Well, the date's correct. I remember because we had an early evening dinner-dance on the Tekla at Soledad the night before Mitch was found. And the Tekla pulled out for Cristobal about 9:00 p. m.

on the 10th."
"It did!" exclaimed Curt softly. He looked at McInnis. "Their letter to me was dated the 11th, but air-mailed from Cristobal on the 12th. Didn't notice that discrepancy at first. When I finally did, I figured the letter either made a plane to the Canal Zone, or was misdated in error."

"We have no air service to Panama from Soledad-direct. Course, it's less than two hours by air to the Zone, but I doubt they'd make the flight just for a letter. Anyway, I know a messenger from Tempujo brought mail to the Tekla just was breaking up and going ashore.'

"Then the chances are the letter to me, dated the 11th, was put aboard the Tekla which sailed the 10th. Actually mailed before Mitch was found murdered. Right?"

"By God, Curt, that's so!" Mc-Innis brought his palm down on the bar. "Mitch was killed some time after dark on the 10th and discovered early on the 11th."

"Meanwhile . . ." Curt fell silent, then looked up keenly. "The two Swedes are white men."

plenty more white men where you're going. No, Curt, the Swedes are not what we'd want for bosom pals, but we've no right to jump to conclusions. Besides," he dropped the scowl and grinned, "I did some checking up myself. Had my motor The Swede made the run from Tempujo to San Alejo late that afternoon, while Mitch was staying in Tempujo overnight."

Another silence fell between them. Then Curt spoke harshly.

"Jerry, there's more here than meets the eye. If Mitch's killing was a grudge payment, then, Tierra Libre being what it is, there's lit-tle we can do about it. Nothing, in fact. And there's nothing for me to worry about. I don't make enemies like Mitch did. But if there's more behind it . . .'

McInnis heaved a sigh. "Curt, be careful! Don't mount any white charger over Mitch. He asked for it. He's been asking for it for years. And you've got Lee are indicated. and the kids here now. But if—well, I don't have to say it, but if you find you're in a spot, call on me."

They're best when to asted—with lots of butter. musfind you're in a spot, call on me." They downed the last of their drinks and swiveled to face the room. But before rejoining Lee Curt brought up another matter.

"By the way," he said slowly, studying his friend's face, "I saw a destroyer headed for Soledad this morning. American, I suppose—looked like ours. Any particular reason for it?" "No. The country's quiet as a church meeting. Dr. Arecas only one step removed from being a dic tator, sure, but a good one. Seems to be what the people need, they're satisfied. He's solidly entrenched too, there's no opposition to speak of. But . . ." He paused. "Well?"

"Well, we had a Navy visit only a couple of weeks ago, and they cer-tainly aren't scheduled to stop in again so soon." He added, in a puzzled tone, "Funny I didn't see the ship as I came down the coast."

You were pretty low in the water and they were some distance off. "Huh. Well . . ." He shrugged.

They started across the room to rejoin Lee and the boys. McInnis dug his fingers into Curt's arm. "See Zora Mitchell, Curt, first thing you get to San Alejo. But only to find out if you have anything personal to guard against," he said insistently. "Don't borrow trouble.

You're a family man now. What's more, the family's right here with you. "Yeh, I see what you mean," Curt answered dryly, his eyes on Lee kidneys, heart, sweetbreads and and the children.

Halloween Pranks

October's the month which flaunts her gay, burnished colors as a prelude to winter. It's the month of apples and cider, of pumpkins and squash against dry sheaves of corn stalk, of fragrant gingerbread or doughnuts fried crisply tender in hot sizzling deep

October's the month of Halloween -when witches, spooks and black cats make merry. Big ones or wee ones will love a party that mingles. what's best in October with the spookiest of what's Halloween.

Pretty up with a party and give your spirits a lift with traditional food that's easy on purse strings, a hit with the party-goers. Decorations can be nature's own, a pumpkin or two whole or cut into a jolly face lit with candle glow, squash and apples banked with deep yellow, brown before it sailed. Came as our party or red leaves, bowls of apples, grapes, popcorn and spicy drinks.

> Let the children paste black cats, owls and witches onto mugs and invitations inviting guests to come as their favorite spook be it an owl. witch astride a broomstick, or a slinking cat.

Have a good hot dish if you are having the Halloween party indoors -something fixed in advance that you can put in the oven to get warm, slip out in a hurry to get to the table like tuna fish souffle, cheese fondue macaroni and cheese with broiled McInnis frowned. "And there are bacon slices, or a hamburger roast.

Outdoor plans may include a wienie roast, with the children participating at the outdoor fireplace or grill. If you prefer hamburgers, fix the patties indoors with their seasonings, wrap in wax ready for broilboy ask questions here and there. ing. Wienies require thorough washing.

> Construct a simple grill outdoors for roasting wieners if you aren't lucky enough to have a brick grill. This will take a lot of the roughhouse outdoors and save wear and tear on your house. Games will most likely be outdoors if it isn't too cold as the revelers will want to roam with spirits and ghosts.

Few foods equal the deliciousness of wienies roasted over the flames on forks or sticks fashioned from branches, depending on your degree of going in for naturalness.

Plenty of long buns, already split indoors before the party and heaped high in a basket, of butter, mustard, relish, catsup or homemade chili sauce as accompaniments for wienies roasted to doneness with a taste of smoke and ashes.

If you go in for toasting marshmallows along with wienies, try them rolled in coconut just for a taste of something different. They're really good! You can't have enough hot foods as the weather is bound to be on the crisp and chilly side. There will

T IS not necessary to make our economies so dull and dreary that they depress every one. Let's nake them so gay and attractive that they give us a lift and a bit of a challenge too. This old rocker is an example.

A saw and a wood chisel were used for removing projections and rockers. An old quilt was found for padding and the feathers from an old bolster were packed into a thick seat cushion to raise the seat which has been lowered by removing the rockers. This required a yard and a quarter of ticking. Four and one-half yards of inex-pensive chintz in a bold, modern pattern did the rest. Total cost for an up-to-date chair less than two dollars, that will serve well for the duration.

NOTE: This remodeled chair is from BOOK 5 of the series of booklets that are offered with these articles. In this book an old-fashioned couch is modern-ized; end tables from spools; new uses are found for a camp stool; other types of chairs are made over; and a love seat is made from an old car seat. Also patchwork designs and directions for designing and making hooked rugs. To get a copy of BOOK 5, send your order to:

Abnormal Tire Wear

If tires show abnormal wear the trouble may be caused by underinflation or misaligned wheels, according to the California State Automobile association. Another cause of uneven tire wear is unbalanced wheels. At high speed a wheel only slightly out of balance develops a powerful centrifugal force. This force jerks the wheel up and down as it rotates. In addition to abnormal up and down motion there also may be side motion as the heavy spot moves fore and aft. Unbalanced wheels frequently cause shimmy, abnormal wear in steering mechanism, as well as cupped spots in the tire treed.

Recently a crippled holdup man made a desperate attempt to escape from the custody of a deputy by felling him with a crutch outside of Tombs prison.

To speed drying of automobile finishes, parts are moved through "tunnels of light" in which hundreds of electric lamps provide heat from infra-red radiation.
