HERTZLER WINS RACE FOR PROSECUTOR

Alabaster Only Precinct To Give Democratic Majorities

In a complete Republican victory so far as the government at Lansing is concerned, Isosco county voters continued their policy Tuesday of giving substantial Republican majorities for state offices, and national offices, and this policy extended down to the office of prosecuting attorney.

For representative, Arenac district, S. Andy McKay won an easy victory over Henry J. Nehls, Democratic candidate. Isosco county gave McKay 1674 votes and Nehls 570. Ben Carpenter was not contested for state senator.

Isosco county continued to favor Congressman Roy O. Woodruff and gave him 1560 votes. John E. Morrison, the Democratic candidate, received 759 votes.

In the contest for United States Senator, 1325 votes were cast for Homer Ferguson, 853 for Prentiss M. Brown and 160 for Gerald L. K. Smith, the "sticker" candidate. Harry F. Kelly received 1536 Isosco county votes in the race for governor. Murray D. Van Wagoner received 854. Frederic S. Goodrich, the prohibition candidate, received 16 votes.

Eugene Keyes, the Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, received 1573 votes here. His competitor, Frank Murphy, received 774.

The vote cast in this county for Herman H. Dignan for secretary of state was 1592. Maurice Eveland received 658.

Herbert J. Rushton, candidate for attorney general, received 1585 votes. John W. Babcock received 680. Dale Brake, candidate for state treasurer, received 1485 votes. Theodore I. Fry received 650. Vernon Brown, candidate for auditor general, received 1660 votes. Carl B. Brandenburg received 602.

BASKETBALL TONIGHT

The local basketball season will get under way Friday (tonight) at the Tawas City gymnasium when the Camp Skeel Fliers will play the local Independent cagers.

A good game will be assured the fans as the Fliers boast several college players and have been getting in shape for the past month.

The local hoopsters have been holding a weekly, Wednesday night practice for the past several weeks, getting the "shooting eye back and holding player tryouts. Tawas City will have several new faces in the lineup, besides the remaining last year players. The list includes: E. Coyle, E. Davis, C. Haglund, J. McMurray, J. Herrick, R. Green, N. Thornton, E. Peterson, E. Carlson and H. Malcomson.

Lets all come and out and give the local boys a good send-off. Admission will be the same as last year, 25c for adults, and 10c for children while all service men will be admitted free.

Mrs. Joseph Smith

Margaret Leigh was born in Clark county, Ohio, May 1, 1868, and died on October 25 at the age of 74 years. Funeral services were held Wednesday, October 28, from the Methodist church at Turner. Rev. Scott officiated. Burial was made in the Cedar Valley cemetery.

She was married to Joseph Smith of Sherman township on June 15, 1915. She is survived by her husband and four step-sons, Frank and George of National City, Charles of Detroit and Matt of Flint, besides other relatives and friends.

Boy Gets Negligent

Richard Bullock of East Tawas, charged with negligent homicide, was examined last Friday before Justice W. C. Davidson and the case was bound over to circuit court.

The charge arose out of an accident during the early morning of July 5 when a car which Bullock was driving hit a tree on the Tawas Beach road. At the inquest on July 10, a coroner's jury determined that Bullock was driving the car and that he lost control because of excessive speed. The car collided with a tree causing the death of Kenneth Ellis.

The charge of negligent homicide was brought because of the findings of the coroner's jury.

Steve Birkenbach, Jr., was brought before Justice Davidson Saturday and fined $75.00 and costs, and sentenced 30 days in jail. He will be on probation until March 1944. Birkenbach was driving the car which caused the collision Tuesday, October 27, in which Mrs. Russell Binder was injured.

To the People of Isosco County:
The generous vote which you gave me at the election is a warm welcome to Isosco County, which I acknowledge with real gratitude. I am aware that the rest of the story depends on me. Your election of me as prosecuting attorney involves responsibilities which cannot be assumed lightly. I hope I am big enough for them. I will always try to stick to the rule—First to investigate the facts before deciding a course of action or making a conclusion. Even so, I know that I shall not always be right—but I will do my level best.

Dear Perce,
I received the Herald and read it through. I was especially interested in the "In the Service" column. I was surprised to see my own name there. I am in the Air Corp Technical School down here in Texas.

We are in Northern Texas so it is a bit cold here. We are situated in Red river Valley and it is clay everywhere.

This is a training school for technicians who take care of airplanes and operate them. It seems there is a different man for every part of a plane.

I haven't taken any courses up yet due to my being in the hospital but plan to do so in the near future, at least the army has it planned for me and they always get their way one way or another.

Well I'm due for some K. P. duty at 11:15 and it is 11:00 so I will sign off.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Thornton,
Have been receiving the Herald right along and will write a few lines to let you know I am getting along fine so far and really enjoy reading the news from home.

During August I was sent to the U. S. Coast Guard guard training school near Philadelphia. At present I am patrolling the beach about five miles from Atlantic City. We go out in pairs and patrol for four hours and then we have eight hours off and go back on for four more hours. Every fifth day we have to ourselves. Excuse my scribbles.

AUTO GASOLINE REGISTRATION NEXT WEEK

Car Owners Will Register At Their Nearest School

The task of registering Michigan's 1,500,000 passenger car owners and issuing to them their Basic A Gasoline Ration Books will be undertaken next week. In Isosco county the days will be November 12, 13 and 14.

At the same time, the teachers will register motorcycle owners and issue to them D Gasoline Ration Books. Eligibles who receive their A books and wish to make application for supplemental rations will be issued the application forms in the school at the same time.

This huge task of registering automobile owners will follow much the same plan which was developed for sugar registering last May, and which, though the unstinted cooperation of teachers was highly successful.

Three days, November 12, 13 and 14 have been designated by the Office of Price Administration for the A or basic registration.

REQUIREMENTS

Before an auto owner can obtain his A Book, he must meet the following requirements:

1. Agree to the 35 miles per hour speed limit.
2. Possesses no more than five tires per vehicle. (trailers are permitted only the tires mounted on running wheels, i. e., no spares or extras.)
3. List the serial numbers of his tires on his application and on his Tire Inspection Record.
4. Agree to have tires inspected at regular intervals at official tire inspection stations.
5. Positively prohibit tire abuse.

Tire inspection is not necessary before making application, however all tires must be inspected and a report issued by the inspector before January 31, 1943. Be sure that you do have a list of the serial numbers of your five tires, however, as no ration book will be issued unless you can meet the requirements as previously set forth.

The general instructions concerning the place where each individual is to register, is that you go to your local school or to the nearest school. To make the work more uniform and to avoid rushes we have designated alphabetically the date which you will be registered at your school. If you cannot be at your school on the date specified, then come when you can. But please cooperate with your school and follow the schedule as nearly as possible.

The schedule is as follows:
Names beginning with the letters A thru F report on November 12. Names beginning with the letters G thru M report November 13.

Names beginning with letter N thru Z report November 14.

The hours when each school is to open for registering is as follows:
Whittemore and Burleigh Townships: November 12, 13 and 14: 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. daily.
Hale and Plainfield townships: November 12, 13 and 14: 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. daily.

Tawas City: November 12, 13 and 14: 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. daily.
East Tawas: November 12-4 P. M. to 9 P. M. November 13-4 P. M. to 9 P. M. November 14-10 A. M. to 2 P. M. Alabaster

November 12-1 P. M. to 9 P. M. November 13-1 P. M. to 9 P. M. November 14-10 A. M. to 5 P. M. Oscoda

November 12 and 13, 10 A. M. to 9 P. M. November 14 1 P. M. to 5 P. M.

Rural schools of Sherman, Reno Grant and Tawas townships.

Rural schools will not register on Thursday, November 12, but will be open Friday and Saturday, November 13 and 14, between the hours of 9 A. M. to 4 P. M.

Again we ask that you cooperate with the schools of Isosco County and carefully study the program so that you will know when to go to your school and just what information you will need. This is a big job for the teachers and we do want to do our share and make this undertaking a success.

A meeting of registrars will be held at the court house, Tawas City, at 7:30 Wednesday evening November 11, for instruction and the distribution of supplies.

Isosco Social Welfare Director Gives Report

Public assistance under the Direct Relief program was extended to 10 families in Isosco County during October, according to Sarah J. Brown, Director of the County Department of Social Welfare.

At the same time, Mrs. Brown said, 10 persons under care at the county infirmary, and a total of $219.40 was expended for hospitalization of Afflicted adults.

The Direct Relief rolls showed no change over the preceding month, but an increase is to be expected during the winter. This seasonal increase explained Mrs. Brown, is due in part to the termination of the farming season, when a considerable amount of labor is in demand. Also, there are some families who may have small incomes the year around and who are able to provide their own needs in the summer and early fall months, but not during the winter when added expenses for fuel, adequate clothing for school children, and increased medical needs must be met. Such families require occasional aid in supplementation of their own incomes.

The Direct Relief caseload has shown little change as a direct result of the general increase in industrial activity during the past year, Mrs. Brown said. Aid to Dependent children grants, however, decreased from 59 cases in June to 53 cases in October, due mainly to a local increase in employment. These cases, financed by state and federal funds, represented an expenditure during October of $1,674.50. The Old Age assistance rolls, which have remained nearly static during the past few months, in October numbered 293 persons who received a total of $4,820.20.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Act to Defer Stock and Dairy Farmers; Southwestern Pacific Control at Stake In U. S.-Jap Struggle for Guadalcanal; Wage Ceiling Sets $25,000 Limit on Pay

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.) Released by Western Newspaper Union.

A cigarette was the first thing this wounded Australian soldier asked for and got, when the medical corps got him safely behind the New Guinea fighting lines. Fighting in the Port Moresby area, the Australian army succeeded in pushing the Japs back in the jungles beyond the Owen Stanley mountain range.

GUADALCANAL: Nip and Tuck

It had become increasingly evident that the Japs had massed a more powerful naval force in the Solomons than the United States could assemble from a navy divided between two oceans. Moreover, the enemy had concentrated superior land and air forces in its supreme effort to knock out the United States defenders.

Outnumbered on three sides by Jap forces with heavy artillery, tanks and supplies, American marines and army units on Guadalcanal Island fought doggedly to hold a small strip of land six miles long and three miles deep and to retain control of Henderson air field.

Whether the embattled Yanks faced another "Bataan" was dependent on how soon planes, heavy weapons and supplies could be brought to Guadalcanal. That the Japs were paying dearly for every effort to dislodge the Americans from the airfield was evident from a navy communiqué which declared that "enemy losses in men and equipment in troop actions on the island have been very heavy as compared to our own."

Jap onslaughts were repeatedly thrown back. One attack pierced American lines south of the airfield, but prompt counterattacks recaptured the lost positions.

The critical nature of the situation was revealed by mass landing of Jap troops indicating control of the sea in the Guadalcanal area.

With the sinking of the aircraft carrier Wasp reported in a communiqué, navy losses in the Solomons fighting were brought to 14 ships, including three heavy cruisers, six destroyers and four transport vessels.

NORTH AFRICA: Mediterranean at Stake

American-made and American-manned planes and tanks continued to play a prominent part in the British armored offensive against Marshal Rommel's Africa corps along the El Alamein front—an offensive which might decide the control of the Mediterranean.

Britain's cosmopolitan eighth army, comprising English, Polish, South African, Australian, New Zealand, Fighting French, Greek and American detachments, smashed at Axis troop and supply concentrations. In the forward areas, crack infantrymen picked their way gingerly through tricky land mines and fortifications.

Fighting on both sides had a cautious, feeling-out character in the early stages as Allied and Axis forces tested their strength for decisive blows.

Allied troops showed their mettle in beating back counterattacks by Rommel's tank corps. Meanwhile American and British airmen continued their assaults on key Axis supply ports, bombing Tobruk repeatedly, destroying enemy planes and shipping.

Elsewhere in Africa, evidence had been mounting for weeks that action was imminent. The Vichy government had concentrated most of its available ships and men at Dakar, while American troops were reported in Freetown and Monrovia, Liberia, south of Dakar.

FARM LABOR: Deferment at Last

Steadily worse had become the farm labor shortage. Drastic action was necessary to prevent a breakdown in the all-out war program. Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower commission, supplied that action when he ordered into immediate operation a far-reaching plan calling for occupational deferment of 3,000,000 "necessary" dairy, livestock and poultry farmers.

Under the program, draft boards are to reclassify from 3A to 3B all such workers already deferred on grounds of dependency. Local boards were likewise requested to grant occupational deferment to other farm hands who are "necessary men" and for whom replacements are not available.

A further step toward keeping essential workers on the farm was the army and navy's agreement to refrain from recruiting key farm employees.

SALARY CEILING: $25,000 Limit

From fabulous-salaried Hollywood stars to low paid shop girls, every American wage earner would feel the impact of Economic Stabilization Director Byrnes' order putting a ceiling of $25,000 on individual salaries and freezing all other wages at September 15 levels.

Purpose of the new regulation was to combat inflation and increase federal tax revenue on corporations.

Control of all wages and salaries up to $5,000 yearly was given to the War Labor board. Under the regulations salary increases could be granted only in cases of individual promotions, individual merit raises, length of service raises, or under the operation of employee trainee systems.

Jurisdiction over all salaries above $5,000 was assumed by the treasury department. After the order was issued, President Roosevelt instructed Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau to make future payments of his $75,000 a year salary conform to the regulations. The wage ceiling covers salaries only and does not affect income from stocks, bonds or other sources.

WILKIE: Reservoir Leaking

American radio listeners who may have expected a rousing, table-thumping tirade from Wendell L. Wilkie when he reported on his recent globe-circling air tour, got instead a quiet, solemn discourse. But there was no mistaking the urgency of action he advocated.

Appealing for second fronts in Europe and Burma, Wilkie urged that we give our Allies more than "boasts and broken promises" before the great reservoir of good will toward this country throughout the world turns into a gulf of resentment.

Washington, D. C. DEMOCRACY STREAMLINING

If the President and the country want to get a full realization of how democracy is streamlining for action they should think back to the summer of 1941, just one year ago, when, for what seemed like unending weeks, the congress stewed over extension of the selective service act.

Senate and house isolationists were haranguing the galleries on the iniquities of keeping the boys more than one year in camp; telling the public how the navy was already convoying ships; revealing in advance that Roosevelt had sent troops to Iceland.

Finally by the thin margin of one vote, 203 to 202, and thanks to the sage generalship of Speaker Sam Rayburn, the selective service act was extended. Had it not been for that narrow victory, we should have had no army to rush to Australia, and the whole war effort would have received a tragic set-back.

But last week, a war-gearred house of representatives passed the 18-19 year draft extension act in three days; and it should be passed by the senate and signed by the President inside the week.

Politically and personally, nobody wanted the 18-19 year draft extension. It was the worst time to pass it, just before elections. But congress is doing a much better job than most people realize for streamlined democracy.

ATROCITY PICTURES

A strong debate is raging among propaganda chiefs over the question of atrocity stories and pictures. The government has received a lot of such material from Allied sources, especially the Chinese and Poles, including such horrible scenes as Japanese attacking Chinese women, and pouring oil on live bodies before setting the torch to them.

Opponents of publication argue that the atrocity stories of the last war were largely invented, and when so exposed left the public disillusioned; thus the people might now react unfavorably and charge the government with pulling the same tricks.

Other officials argue, however, that the material is authentic, that it is not posters and rumors, but actual photographs, and the public should know what sort of enemies we are fighting.

It is apparently a part of the German psychological warfare to treat British and Americans with reasonable humaneness in order to keep us lulled in a state of moderate warfare. They save their worst tricks for the conquered nations and the Russians.

The Poles and Chinese are urging use of the material as a necessary means of fully arousing the American public to the menace.

Elmer Davis' Office of War Information is set to go, once the debate is settled.

DAIRY MANPOWER

Forthright Sen. Berkeley Bunker of Nevada had a long talk with the President the other day on the war manpower problem, in which he emphasized the need of swift action to meet the labor shortage on dairy farms.

"I'm from a farm area myself and I know what these dairy people are up against," said Bunker. "Unless we move fast we will have a serious shortage next year. Already, many farmers are beginning to slaughter their dairy herds because they can't get help to tend them."

The President admitted the problem was serious, and assured Bunker that the War Manpower commission was aware of it. He added, however, that he doubted any steps the government might take to relieve the farm labor shortage would be a complete answer.

"The government can't solve this alone," said Roosevelt. "We are going to have to depend on the farmers themselves for individual initiative. I'll give you an example of what I mean."

The President then told how a neighbor of his in New York state, owning a large dairy farm, had partly solved his labor shortage by employing students from a near-by high school to milk the cows.

"Boys did the milking in the morning and a group of girls from the same school took over in the afternoons," he said.

"That sounds like a good idea, Mr. President," observed Senator Bunker, "but it isn't exactly a new one. When I was a boy on a Nevada farm, I used to milk 10 cows every morning before school and 10 at night. And I had to ride eight miles to school on a bus."

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Congressman Ed Izac of California, who is crusading against army and navy "cellophane commissions," is the only sitting member of congress to receive the Congressional Medal of Honor in the last war. Taken prisoner after his ship was sunk by a U-boat, Izac four times tried to escape, once jumping from a 40-mile-an-hour train. He still bears the scars of German prison camp beatings.

Unsung Heroes of Solomons Battle

U. S. navy pharmacists' mates, attached to the marines as corpsmen, are the unsung heroes of this war. Acting as stretcher bearers, and giving first aid to the sick and wounded, they are frequently under fire. This crew is bringing in a wounded marine through the sweltering heat and rains on Guadalcanal island.

As Red Army Moved to Stalingrad Front

Red army infantrymen are pictured above, moving towards prepared positions in the outer defenses of Stalingrad. At the same time, far south of the besieged Volga river city, under the blizzard-swept Caucasus mountains, heroic Russian defenders stubbornly resisted the Nazi invaders.

New South Pacific Navy Chief and CINPAC

Vice Admiral William F. Halsey Jr., famed task force commander who carried out the smashing attacks on the Jap-held Gilbert and Marshall Islands, is shown (left) with his chief, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the U. S. Pacific fleet (CINPAC). The navy appointed Admiral Halsey as successor to Vice Admiral Robert L. Ghormley as commander of U. S. naval forces in the South Pacific. Halsey, who is 60 years old, boils his tactics down to these few words: "What we do we do fast." Admiral Ghormley, who has been in command of the U. Yank Fliers in Australia

By W. B. Courtney

(WNU Feature—Through special arrangement with Collier's Weekly)

I am writing this from Port Darwin in the Northern Territory of Australia. The Darwin area is about as far from Sydney and Melbourne as Death Valley is from New York. It is probably wilder in nature and ruder in its white men than any other part of earth under a United Nations flag.

Even the Australians, usually sensitive about references to whatever section of their country, admit it's "bloody Godforsaken." But it's home, for the time being at least, to many Yank bomber and pursuit kids whose advanced flying bases, hacked from the desert scrub and the moribund red earth by their own engineers and labor battalions, white and Negro, dot the "bush" hereabouts.

So very young and lean, habitually wearing only shorts and rubber sneakers, cooked to a partridge brown, raising as much beard as they can, with huge pistols dangling from web belts, these rakish and raffish airmen look, after a couple of weeks, like student pirates.

Life Without Women.

They have to be tough and ingenious to survive down here—the flies, the mosquitoes, the snakes, the heat and the eye-splitting glare that makes the inside of your head raw, the unbearable loneliness of life without women.

They eat only Aussie chow—and second best at that. When they get lump sugar, they mark it with ink for use as playing cards or dominoes. The difficulties of transportation have bogged down most of the commissary, recreational and morale services of our own army.

Cigarettes and other amenities are likely to be stolen before they can pass the long overland trek from our base ports.

When staff officers fly in for visits, they usually load their planes with comforts for the Yanks here—magazines, candy, playing cards, cigarettes and the like. I saw a whole group jump away from unfinished dinner, with shouts of boyish glee, when Gen. Ralph Royce produced out of his plane a baseball, a bat and some fielders' mitts.

American Ingenuity.

Their toughness they take out on the Nips. The only superiority we have in the air of the Southwest Pacific is skill and heart. Their ingenuity is expressed in little ways at once familiar and endearing to an American visitor.

Northern territory is the Land of the White Ant. These various termites build structures, some low mounds, some 20-foot columns, until the plain around Darwin, seen in the moonlight, give you the impression of ruined castles and villages in miniature.

The so-called "magnetic" nests are the most famous—tall, slabwise, sharply tempered pillars, the ends of which always point exactly north and south. Woody substance inside, they are covered with fine clay that hardens into fortresses that repel all the termites' enemies.

The Yanks found a use for these. They ax off the tops, chisel out a hollow in the bases—and have fine barbecue or picnic stoves!

All Kinds of Hunting.

The chief unrationed recreation of the Yank airmen here is hunting—Nips in the air, kangaroos, snakes, dingoes or wild dogs, emus, ducks, buffalo, crocodiles on the ground.

The kangaroo remains of greatest interest. The boys catch young ones and try to tame them; each plans to take a 'roo home with him. But they find the 'roos dumb and irresponsible; "just misshapen rabbits."

One squad tent has a mascot—an old 'roo that, on his own, attached himself. He will eat food that's set on the ground. He comes in at night and sleeps under one of the cots. But if you try to pet him he runs out. At reveille he moves out about 30 feet from the tent; sits there all day, watching, sidestepping anyone who goes near him. In four months of this, no one has succeeded in touching him.

The Yanks try to build up auxiliary air-raid warning services with their wild-pet friends. Goannas, a type of monitor lizard, are plentiful in all the camps—roam about all day on their business of catching insects, not allowing the advent of thousands of men to disturb their lives. They are not dangerous—except that if you stand motionless, one may think you are a tree and run up you, with unfortunate results to your clothes and skin from his knife-like claws. The goannas stand on their hind legs and turn their heads when planes go over.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

BOSTON: Dr. Victor Heiser, medical consultant and author said that 42,000 American war production workers had been killed, either on or off the job since Pearl Harbor, "in spite of industry's best efforts to forestall accidents. Approximately 121,000,000 man days will be lost to vital war work this year because of absences from the job from all causes."

LONDON: The United States marine corps announced that additional units of marines have landed in the British Isles. Col. William T. Clement, Navy Cross veteran of Bataan and Corregidor, commanded the troops. He will serve on the staff of Adm. Harold Stark, commander of United States naval forces in the European war theater with headquarters in London.

Velvet Is a Fabric Favorite For Lovely 'Dress Up' Things

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

VELVET has ever been a magic word in the fabric realm and this season its flattery is being played up more glamorously than ever. It is in lavish mood that designers are stressing velvet throughout fall and winter collections, bringing out most exciting "date dresses" and evening modes styled for "date" wear, for afternoon and after twilight formals, in charming off-duty contrast to sturdy uniforms and functional workaday outfits.

There are many outstanding slants to the velvet Vogue that make for big news just now. One is that of the simply tailored afternoon velvet suit that is conceded to be one of the smartest items on fashion's program this season. It adds to its lure that it is so dramatically adaptable to the accompaniment of show-piece furs, lovely, lacy blouses, glittering jeweled buttons and, what is most important, high color touches in gloves, bags and beguiling hats.

Then, too, stunning separate coats made of ink-black velvet luxuriously collared in ink-black fur carry a message of ace-high chic for winter. Which all goes to show that no matter how formal or casual your sociable moments are, there will be lovely, appropriate costumes for the occasion done in regal velvet which will make you as feminine and elegant as your best beau's heart could desire.

Suitable for any "date," from afternoon to midnight, is the charming priority-correct furlough frock shown to the right in the above illustration.

As Scotch as heather is this plaid outfit made of spun rayon yarn fabric dyed for true color combinations. The material has a warm, woolly finish. The navy sweater is piped in the plaid of the skirt. The outfit includes slacks, a mannish lined vest, a calot and, most important of all, a three-cornered fringed shawl made of the identical plaid used for the dress. The idea of a cunning shawl "to match" is taking the young campus crowd by storm. These are often embroidered in peasant style and colorfully finished off with hand-tied yarn fringe or with a self-fabric, frayed-fringe edge.

It is fashioned of handsome, wine-colored, crush-resistant transparent rayon velvet. The grand thing about crush-resistant rayon velvet is that it is all that its name indicates—crush-resistant! You can wear it with confidence, knowing that it will keep its freshness. Note especially that gleaming metallic embroidery defines the simulated two-piece effect. Many of the new velvet fashions are gleaming with bead and sequin touches. The slimly fitted bodice has a deep V-neck. Worn over a properly fitted foundation garment (the new slenderizing fashions call for just that) the youthful, slim-waisted lines of this lovely dress are unusually graceful.

The Vogue for contrast has inspired the charming "after five" bolero costume to the left, which is done in rich crush-resistant rayon velvet in deep midnight blue. The long slim lines of the colorful rayon-and-metal bodice are accented by the patriotic fabric-conserving brevity of the bolero jacket, making a well-corseted figure a necessity for effective wearing.

The flattery of handsome velvet in deep, rich black is combined with the enchantment of exquisite lace in the charming dinner dress illustrated in the center above, which is designed especially for the woman whose program includes club activities. The graceful, long lines of this dress are accented by effective, velvet-banded puffed sleeves of thin-transparency black lace. A cluster of flowers adds coloring to the softly draped neckline.

Enthusiasm for velvet is also finding a new outlet this season in that most important vogue which calls for accessory accents, especially velvet gloves matched to hats, the ensemble carried out in daring colors, notably fuchsia shades, kelly green, turquoise, and flaming red.

Shawl to Match

Small or Large—Hats Are Feathered

Gorgeously colorful feather hats are out in full force. They range from the pheasant-pad calots (so tiny you have to look twice before you can identify them as hats) to pillboxes and dashing types that flaunt towering crowns with imposing feather motif trims.

A charming feather fantasy that does the "pretty-pretty" gesture is the halo of pastel feather flowers that pose back of your forehead curl.

The single ostrich plume swirls from the front over the top of the hat to the back where it falls low to the nape of the neck.

Ruffles Galore Are Seen On Coats, Skirts, Suits

Be on the lookout for ruffles galore, for many of the newest fashions are being smartly styled with ruffles.

Even cloth coats are taking on ruffle effects, such as cascades of self fabric running down side closings from neckline to hemline. Tailored suits, too, are softened with jobs of self fabric on the jacket fronts. Afternoon dresses have cascades of ruffles on both skirts and bodice tops. Tiny flutings and ruche effects finish off the hemlines of narrow skirts.

Cozy 'Nighties'

The flannelette nightgowns that we'll be wearing this winter will be old-fashioned, long sleeved ones. Women who never wore these quaint types will be wearing them with pride. Some of them are really very pretty, made as they are of flower prints in delectable colors.

THE Big Minds of college football have plenty to worry about as the 1942 season reaches the half-way point. Transportation problems have plagued more than one college. Schedule changes have caused quite a few disappointments and decreased attendance figures are responsible for considerable grief.

The latter problem looms exceedingly large at the moment. Not that the others aren't important, but gate receipts—or lack of them—cause no more concern to the average college than would an onslaught of the black plague.

A comparatively early analysis of college football attendance revealed some discouraging information. In the first 127 games played by 44 major colleges this year, attendance was about 25 per cent lower than in 1941.

The decrease was general. In the Big Nine, only Purdue showed an increase in its first three games. Attendance throughout the conference was off almost 50 per cent.

The Big Drop

In their first 127 games, the 44 colleges played before a total of 2,296,797 spectators. A year ago the same number of home games for the same teams brought a turnout of 3,028,955.

While these early-season figures are subject to decided change, it must be taken for granted that they indicate a trend. Football has proved more exciting than ever this year. Upsets are more numerous. Nevertheless, attendance slumps are the rule rather than the exception. The sharpest drop was reported by Cornell, where attendance was slashed from 49,070 for last year's first three games to 19,587 this year. Cornell places much of the blame on inaccessibility, the rest on poor performance.

Ohio State dropped from 246,831 to 173,161. Buckeye officials figure that it will take all 10 games on this year's schedule to equal the eight-game 1941 total of 486,468. They're not too sure the extra two games will make up the difference. Last year scores of school buses from all sections of the state brought students to take advantage of reduced admissions. Today such use of buses is forbidden.

Major Problem

While the importance of paying customers cannot be overemphasized, colleges are faced with a still bigger problem—the future of football. It's none too rosy. In fact, you may be looking at your last college games for some time.

James B. Conant, president of Harvard, recently told the incoming freshman class they had but a "relatively few months of college life" ahead of them.

"I say 'few months,'" Dr. Conant said, "for I believe the draft age soon will be lowered and I feel sure none of you wish to be left behind in college as your contemporaries march off to war." Subsequent draft legislation regarding 18 and 19-year-olds proved the truth of the educator's remarks.

His statements left little doubt about the future of football at Harvard if the war continues. And the factors influencing Harvard will have as profound a bearing upon all other colleges of the nation.

Effect of War

It is obvious, of course, that war already is having its effect on football. Freshmen and sophomores are seeing more action all the time. Most of the conferences allowing freshmen to play are doing so for the first time. The many startling upsets of the present season are due in part to the more widespread use of youngsters. They are not as consistent as the juniors and seniors, and are more likely to turn in an excellent performance one game, a ragged showing the next.

In almost every college, football practically supports the entire athletic program. The present lack of cash customers is likely to result in a curtailment of minor sports—especially those which are consistent drains on the athletic department treasury. Some schools have attempted to overcome the transportation problem by shifting their games to centers where the transportation problem is less of a hazard. But a large proportion of schools find this solution geographically impractical.

When a Washington sports writer asked Stephen Early, secretary to the President, what the chances were for the continuance of sports, he said: "I frankly don't know whether sports will be able to continue or not—but I certainly hope they do."

He voiced the hope of millions.

SPORT SHORTS

Al Ettore, retired heavyweight, and Young Terry, middleweight, are new members of the marine corps.

A Memphis golfer made an evenscore for nine holes without paring a single hole. He made three birdies, one eagle and five bogies.

The usual tenure for head coaches of the Detroit Lions is one year.

The football used in the Michigan-Northwestern game went to a spectator who bid $15,000 in war bonds for it.

'The Marines Have Landed . . .'

The marines have landed and have the situation well in hand.

For more than a century and a half that statement has been literally, as well as figuratively, true. For November 10 of this year marks the 167th anniversary of the founding of the United States marine corps and within a year after its birth the marines WERE landing and DID have the situation well in hand.

As a matter of fact the marine corps is older than the republic itself—if we date the latter from July 4, 1776. For it was on October 13, 1775, that the Continental congress took the first official step to develop a navy. A small fleet was formed later and Esek Hopkins was selected as its commander-in-chief.

On November 10, 1775, congress authorized the formation of two marine battalions and provided for one colonel, two lieutenant-colonels, two majors and several other officers.

The oldest existing marine corps commission, dated November 22, 1775, was issued to Capt. Samuel Nicholas, who was destined to lead the marines on their first expedition.

Marine recruiting was first undertaken at Tun tavern in Philadelphia where Robert Mullan, proprietor of the tavern, became captain of a marine company and was one of the principal recruiting officers during the Revolution.

More difficult than obtaining men for the marine corps was the problem of arming those it did secure.

MAJ. SAMUEL NICHOLAS

There was no standard armament for a marine—muskets, blunderbusses, pistols, bayonets, cutlasses, lances, pikes, spears, even tomahawks, all were used.

In contrast to the scanty armament of the Patriots were the ample military supplies of the British and it was because of this fact that the navy and marines set out on their first joint mission—an epoch-making expedition which started the 167 years of close co-operation between these two branches of the service.

With a fleet of eight ships, Commodore Hopkins, with his detachment of marines, set sail late in the winter of 1776 for New Providence island in the Bahamas where the British had large quantities of military supplies stored. The fleet arrived off New Providence in March.

Directed by Captain Nicholas, the marine force was transferred to two smaller vessels for landing operations. Under cover of gunfire from two larger vessels, Nicholas and his men landed without resistance.

Nicholas seems to have been a diplomat as well as a fighter for he sought to accomplish his mission with the least bloodshed possible. When the governor of New Providence sent him a message asking his intentions, the marine commander replied that he wanted only the military stores and that if they were surrendered no harm would come to the inhabitants.

But the governor was not willing to hand the supplies over so easily. So as the Americans advanced toward Fort Montague, near the town, the governor ordered the garrison to open fire. Three 12-pounder shots were sent hurtling toward the marines but did no damage and as they continued to advance, the British spiked the guns of the fort and abandoned it.

Commodore Hopkins then sent word to the inhabitants of the principal town, Fort Nassau, that he wished to carry out his mission without doing them any harm or damaging their property. Accordingly, they offered no resistance and soon afterwards Hopkins' little fleet sailed for home, taking with it the British governor and other British officials and the much-needed supplies which had been turned over to the invaders.

After the Revolution both the navy and the marine corps went out of existence. But the scourge of piracy along our coasts caused congress on March 27, 1794, to authorize establishment of a navy and to direct that each ship carry a marine detachment. The marine corps as it is known today, was established by an act of congress on July 11, 1798. It provided for an organization of "one major, four captains, 16 first lieutenants, 12 second lieutenants, 48 sergeants, 48 corporals, 32 drums and fifes and 720 privates, including marines who had been enlisted."

THE illustration shows what became of a mirror and piano stool. To the mirror and stool were added two wooden boxes from the grocery. These were placed on end about 18 inches apart and a shelf of half-inch plywood was screwed to the top. A frame was then screwed to the back of the boxes as shown. A curtain rod was placed across the top and the mirror hung lengthwise under it. An arm was then hinged to the front of each box. Paint was next. White, because white furniture is smart and because it matched the woodwork.

The dressing table skirt was made with a one-inch heading at the top and tacked along the ends of the table and the hinged arms with thumbtacks through a double strip of the plain material.

Abnormal Tire Wear
If tires show abnormal wear the trouble may be caused by under-inflation or misaligned wheels, according to the California State Automobile association. Another cause of uneven tire wear is unbalanced wheels. At high speed a wheel only slightly out of balance develops a powerful centrifugal force. This force jerks the wheel up and down as it rotates. In addition to abnormal up and down motion there also may be side motion as the heavy spot moves fore and aft. Unbalanced wheels frequently cause shimmy, abnormal wear in steering mechanism, as well as cupped spots in the tire tread.

Notice of Hearing

Notice is hereby given that the petition of the undersigned, Roy B. McDonald, for leave to construct a dam across the Main Stream, or the so called Middle Branch, of the AuSable River, in the Southwest Quarter of the Northeast Quarter of Section 1, Township 26 North, Range 1 West, Crawford County, Michigan, on lands owned by the undersigned, approximately five hundred feet upstream with the intersection of said stream with the North Branch of the AuSable River will be held before the Board of Supervisors of Crawford County, Michigan at the Court House in the City of Grayling in said county on the 13th day of November, A. D. 1942, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon, Eastern War time.

The proposed dam is for the purpose of the operation of a water wheel to be used by the undersigned for the generation of electric power for the purpose of supplying light and power solely for his own private use, the dam to be constructed of reinforced concrete and to have a height of approximately four feet from the river bed at its deepest part, raising the water in said stream approximately eighteen inches. The dam will provide a concrete chute sufficient for the passage of fishing and pleasure boats and will provide means as shall be approved by the Department of Conservation of the State of Michigan for the passage of fish up and down said stream. Provision will also be made for lighting said dam so as to provide for the safety of fishermen and others upon the stream.

Abnormal Tire Wear
If tires show abnormal wear the trouble may be caused by under-inflation or misaligned wheels, according to the California State Automobile association. Another cause of uneven tire wear is unbalanced wheels. At high speed a wheel only slightly out of balance develops a powerful centrifugal force. This force jerks the wheel up and down as it rotates. In addition to abnormal up and down motion there also may be side motion as the heavy spot moves fore and aft. Unbalanced wheels frequently cause shimmy, abnormal wear in steering mechanism, as well as cupped spots in the tire tread.

BOMBS BURST ONCE

By GRANVILLE CHURCH

THE STORY SO FAR: Jeff Curtis and his wife, Lee, are on their way to Tierra Libre when Jeff receives a note from Zora Mitchell warning them not to come. Later he learns from Jerry McInnis that Zora's husband has been murdered and that it is his job as chief engineer for a fruit company that Jeff has been called to fill. When they arrive in Tierra Libre, Jerry tells Jeff there is something strange going on. Jeff and Lee meet Montaya, Jeff's employer, and go with him to San Alejo, where Montaya tells them that Zora Mitchell has "committed suicide." Neither Jeff nor Lee believes that her death was suicide. Zora, they agree, was not the type to commit suicide. Jeff suspects Montaya of arranging, or at least of knowing about both Zora's and her husband's death.

NOW CONTINUE WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IV

Every day was a new day at San Alejo, fresh and cool and clean at dawn no matter what the blazing sun might bring later. Even the asphalt underfoot was toned up by the dew as Curt swung along for his early appointment with Montaya. Curt's mind should have been toned up, too, by the tangy air so much like a Fall morning at home, but his last words to Lee just now—he'd read the pucker between her eyes—were still in his ears.

"Don't you be worrying about Zora Mitchell," he'd told her. "I admit suicide doesn't sound like her, but we hadn't seen her for six years and that length of time will work changes in any of us."

"It was her little girl I was thinking of," Lee had answered him soberly. "I'll find out about her."

Curt made his way to Montaya's office, a high-ceilinged room paneled and furnished in unvarnished whitewood. An impression of coolness was heightened by Venetian blinds and a grass rug.

Curt came to the point before Senor Montaya could broach business. He said, suggestively, "The news of Mrs. Mitchell's death was a considerable shock to us—to my wife and me."

Montaya looked at him in silence as though the words needed elaboration. "I mean, we should hardly have expected suicide of Zora Mitchell, especially as she was leaving a small child."

"Nor did I expect it." The senor made this statement as a sort of admission. He fumbled among papers on his desk, bringing forth two large square envelopes.

From one he spread several photographs before Curt. They showed, from different angles, Zora Mitchell slumped over in a bamboo "peacock" chair, her head at a curious angle. There was a bullet-hole in her left temple, and blood had run from the wound, coagulated, stained her dress.

Her left hand, hanging over the arm of the chair, held a gun Curt recognized as a Luger. A Luger! he thought instantly. Funny! Where'd she get that?

He recalled how Mitchell had always favored a Colt .45 against all foreign makes of small arms.

And if you should interest yourself in the case, you might perhaps invite a similar fate, no?"

Montaya put an end to the subject with an apologetic flash of teeth. "I cannot risk that. Engineering work is behind schedule. I need you so very badly, Mr. Curtis."

The next hour was spent in meeting key workers of the general staff, persons with whom Curt would have frequent contact.

It was a whirlwind tour. The bulk of employees, numbering fifty to sixty, were Americans, with a sprinkling of Britishers and other Europeans.

Then said Montaya, "This is the best time of day for you to meet Dr. Toenjes. Later he is likely to be in the field."

Using a handy phone he called for the laboratory, and when he got his connection spoke in French.

"French?" queried Curt, as the other hung up. "I thought the name was Dutch."

Montaya smiled perfunctorily. "Oh, Dr. Toenjes also speaks Spanish and English—after a fashion. He is more successful with French. You do not, then, speak French?" As Curt shook his head, "I thought not. He will use English with you."

The Agricultural Department occupied an adjacent building, filling a corner left by the administration building and the hospital. Montaya pushed on through the outer office, vacant except for a young man typing cards, and on to a door at the rear.

In the huge working laboratory there was shelf upon shelf, and row upon row, of carefully labeled boxes and jars. Along one side of the room a number of steel filing cabinets stood in a straight line. On the work tables were odd-shaped vessels—alembics, glass funnels, retorts.

Dr. Toenjes below medium height, in a dirty linen laboratory smock, proved a colorless individual. Indeed, with his full-bearded face and careless dress he looked fair prey for a caricaturist. Near-sighted, he wore thick-lens spectacles which gave him a bug-eyed appearance.

The first words were conventional greeting. Then: "Your shipment of—ah, chemicals at Cabeza aroused Mr. Curtis' curiosity yesterday," Montaya said. "I told him such questions were your special province."

Geniality left the bearded face. Hostile gray eyes bored through the thick lenses into Curt. "You ver vonce with der beebles across der riffer?" asked the Dutchman.

Curt nodded, smiled. Montaya's deprecation of the doctor's English hadn't been an exaggeration.

dump, bearded man had, he'd sold Montaya on it pretty solidly. At last, as final courtesies were being said, the worthy doctor let down the bars. He asked with what could best be described as a cunning look, "You blay gribbage, ja?"

"Cribbage?" Curt laughed. "Sure, I know the game." "Goot. We play sometime, ja?" "Certainly."

Montaya explained as they left the laboratory. "Dr. Toenjes' one regret here is that he has no good opponent at his favorite game." He smiled politely. "He is very good at it. I hope, Mr. Curtis, you will be able to stand up to him."

Curt chuckled. "If I can't, I'll sic my wife onto him. She can play the game backwards and forwards." He added, with another chuckle, "If he'll comb out his beard first."

His final stop was the engineering office, a one-story structure, square like the laboratory. It occupied the corner between the general offices and the clubhouse, thus completing the layout of principal company buildings about the square and balancing the community center.

Here Curt was introduced to his own staff. It was now midmorning. Three draftsmen were at work, two at detail drawings, the third on maps. One room was reserved for the field men when they came to San Alejo to submit their progress reports. There was a dark-room, and a big vault containing records and master charts. From photostatic machine down to electric erasers the equipment throughout was ultra-modern.

Curt's own office was airy, light, cool, with both desk and big table on which to spread out his papers, a swivel chair between, a handy upright rack for rolls of blueprints. But the one thing which instantly took his attention was the huge aerial photographic map of the C. A. T. tract permanently framed against the wall. Here was something!

Montaya led the way across the room, to tap proudly with his finger tips. "I'd never have gotten my planting under way without this."

This map showed a rough triangle of about 20,000 hectares, or 50,000 acres. The Quebrado Mountains formed the western boundary. Along the south and east flowed the Masica River, joining the turbulent, unruly Rio Negro, the northern boundary, just below the rise of land where stood Tempujo.

No buildings and no engineering work showed on the map. It had been made before any preliminary work had been done. But it gave Curt an instant picture of the entire project; of the drainage necessary to clear the huge swamp, dotted with stands of jungle; of the levees necessary to hold back the rivers; of the best terrain for spur tracks to feed the farms.

"The Negro is a wild stream that requires taming," said Montaya. "We worked on that now. Along here," he indicated with a pointer taken from a rack beside the map, "we make a twenty-three-foot levee. Your most important job, Mr. Curtis, is to see that it is completed within the next five months. On that I gamble 8,000 acres of planting!"

"The Masica will hardly worry us this year. In fact, since the—ah, unfortunate happening to Mr. Mitchell, I have halted work on the Masica levee and put those machines on the Negro levee. Flooding of the Masica will not endanger present planting."

"Along this line," he indicated with the pointer, "is our main canal. Already it has drained several thousand acres. Here will be secondary ditches. But we have so much to do, yes, so many laterals to dig. The canals in the upper half of the tract must also be completed before the rains come."

"Now, we have four draglines and a three-yard shovel and 6,000 laborers at work on the engineering projects..."

Best Food Storage in Outdoor Cellar or Cave

Storeroom Style Depends On Contour of the Land

The most nearly ideal food storage space on the farm is the outdoor, underground cellar or cave.

It is set all or part way into the ground, banked over with earth, floored and lined with masonry, and fitted with one or more ventilators for air movement. This type of storage provides the best natural conditions for canned fruit, pails or other tightly covered containers, as well as for whole fruits and vegetables. It also serves as a storm cellar for the farm family.

In some areas the bank cellar may be the best solution to the storage problem this fall. The bank cellar belongs on rolling ground. The lower part is masonry construction and is set back into the sloping ground. The upper part may be made of lumber, insulated in the upper walls and roof with sawdust or commercial insulation.

Another useful storeroom—and usually the simplest and best for the home with finished basement—is the special storage room in the basement.

A small room space, five or six feet wide and as long as may be needed, is separated from the rest of the basement by a tight wall. A door is fitted into one of the partition walls. At least one outside window is needed so air circulation can be maintained and the temperature controlled to some extent. It is important that the basement room be insulated overhead and in the partition walls to cut off all possible heat transfer from the basement or from the room above.

Hundreds of grain elevators similar to this one at Grafton, Ohio, are holding grain from thousands of farms across the nation.

Wormseed

In one corner of Carroll county in the state of Maryland, farmers have been growing Wormseed for more than 100 years. Western farmers would likely not even recognize the plant if they saw it growing, although in its uncultivated state, it can be found in weedy areas over the entire country.

From Wormseed is distilled "Baltimore oil" or wormseed oil which is used in the manufacture of disinfectants and sprays, in paints and lubricating oils, in the treatment of hookworm, and as a vermifuge for cattle.

The plant is an annual which is sown in seedbeds in the early spring. In June, when the plants are six to eight inches high, they are set out in the fields, either by hand or with a mechanical planter which digs a small trench, drops the plant and waters it, then covers it with soil, all in one operation. The usual rate of planting is 3 feet by 14 inches, making about 2,400 plants to the acre.

Frequent cultivation keeps the weeds down until the plants ripen and the seeds turn brown and black. The plants must be harvested at just the right time, when not too green to have a high content of ascaridole, and not ripe enough to shatter. After curing several days, the plants are hauled to the still and made into oil.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for November 8

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

CHRISTIAN NURTURE IN THE FAMILTY

LESSON TEXT—Deuteronomy 6:4-9, 20-25; II Timothy 3:14, 15. GOLDEN TEXT—Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it.—Proverbs 22:6.

The religious life of the home is a determining factor in the life of the child, for it is in the home that the child's whole existence centers and from which he receives the repeated impressions, day by day, which determine character and destiny. Then too, it is in the home that the parent has the opportunity to demonstrate the reality of the faith professed in the church and to show the child that Christianity really counts in the ordinary experiences of life.

I. By Recognizing God's Word (Deut. 6:4-9)

Twice a day the orthodox Jew repeated the words of verses 4 and 5, "The Shema," in his time of prayer, morning and night. It was the foundation of his faith, declaring the oneness of God in a world of many heathen gods, and calling for complete and absolute devotion to Him.

But it was not enough that these words should be repeated in the service, they were to be taught with all diligence to the children and to be a normal and natural part of their daily conversation.

Here is a matter of great significance to us. The faith which we profess in the church must be effectively brought into the home. It is not enough to carry a Bible on Sunday, it should be in use in the home throughout the week; not only in family worship, but in the incidents of daily life.

The family altar has gradually disappeared, and it is regrettable that it has, for the testimony of generations indicates that in family worship some of the most useful men and women of all ages have received the direction of life which made them great for God.

Let us not readily assume that it is not possible for us to have a family altar simply because of the difficulties of time, place, etc. But if we cannot have such worship regularly, let us show our children that we have a real interest by reading our Bibles, by sharing some blessing found therein with them, and by making prayer the natural thing in the home at all times, not just in hours of trial or adversity. Let us recognize God's Word in our family life.

II. By Remembering God's Blessing (Deut. 6:20-25)

The nation that forgets its past will have no future worth remembering. The Israelites were to recall the glorious history of God's loving kindness toward them bore testimony to the truth of His Word and to the faithfulness with which He had kept them. Their young people would thus be encouraged to trust God for the future. "Hitherto the Lord hath helped," means that henceforth we may count on Him.

III. By Continuing in God's Grace (II Tim. 3:14, 15)

That which we learn of Christ and of God's Word is to be translated into living for Christ. The experiences of grace and the remembrance of God's blessing of childhood are not for that period of life alone but for a continuing in God's grace. This carries our thought a bit beyond the responsibility of the parent to provide the proper surroundings and training, and stresses the duty of the child to apply, perfect, and continue that experience of Christian truth and testimony.

Too many careless individuals, who because of the desires of their own wicked hearts have abandoned the church and the Book, blame it on the parents. "They were too strict. We had to go to church too much. They made me go to Sunday school"—such are their excuses. Of course, we know that they are only excuses, not reasons. They are the refuge of the hypocrite who is not willing to face his own terrible responsibility.

The obligation is on each one of us to continue in the things we have learned, and if we do not, the judgment must come upon us. If we do, salvation and blessing will come to us, and we in turn will pass it on to others.

May this lesson turn many an American home back to God's way,

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

For years the U. S. has consumed over half the world's supply of rubber. Close to 70% of the rubber imported by the U. S. was used in the manufacture of tires and tire accessories.

Last year a 6.00 by 16 4-ply black sidewall tire weighed 21.54 pounds, of which 11.2 pounds was crude rubber. The balance of the weight was in rubber, fabric, wire and chemicals.

Several years ago a man from Seattle traded a small house for one of the earliest types of automobile tires, of which he was a collector.

The most welcome gift for a Ugandan bride of Africa is an old automobile tire, which she wears as a necklace on special occasions.

The tires on the "Spirit of St. Louis" in the Smithsonian Institution are fifteen years old and still good.

Kidneys Must Work Well

For You To Feel Well
24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging backache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling. Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

Do You Know?

by Dorothy Scott
No doubt you have already made some plans for storing some vegetables and fruits for winter use. Most of us forget that stored food products are still living plants, and though they no longer develop normally, they do continue to respire. The rate of respiration can be controlled so that the produce will keep for a short or a long time by regulation, and light conditions. Different products have different requirements for greatest preservation. Here is a guide to better storage:
Root crops (beets, carrots, parsnips, beets, turnips, salsify, winter radish)—just above 32° and with high humidity to prevent shriveling.
Leafy vegetables (cabbage, celery, chives, chard)—low temperature, high humidity, plenty of air to prevent rot.
Onions—low temperature, fairly dry humidity (not when too damp).
Squash, pumpkins 45° - 55° temperature, dry humidity (too low temperatures cause too much sweet-ening which increases spoilage.

Potatoes—32° - 34° F temperatures too low, potatoes sweeten. Best stored at 40° - 42° F with less humidity then is required for other root crops. These conditions are also suitable for apples.
Next week there will be suggestions for constructing storage facilities suitable to maintain the ideal conditions for each group of products.
Tung Oil From China
U. S. imports of tung oil from China have been seriously curtailed by the war. The oil is used as a waterproofing and drying agent in paints and varnishes.

pect a ten day furlough sometime in November and will be glad to stop in and thank you personally for the Herald and see everyone again. Dear friend,
Just a word about the paper you are sending me. I sure appreciate your generosity toward the soldiers and this paper is a life saver way out here, because we like to get the news of Tawas.
I am in the 778th Military Police Battalion and it is a good healthy branch of the service.
This kind of life is tops with me and I am sure that the rest of our boys feel the same as I.
Pretty soon our outfit will be through with its basic training and after that—we know nothing about. We are all waiting our turn to join our boys who are across the pond and help whip those lowdown slant eyed Japs.
As far as the army way of life, I think it is very good for any one of us. For an example, I came in the army on the 27th day of August and when I came in I weighed 140 pounds and now I weigh 168. I feel much better as I am getting the right amount of exercise and the right amount of sleep and best of all, we get the best of food. If we get sick we get our medical care free of charge.
Well I'll say so long for now. Will write again.

Richard Walter Ziehl, who has recently completed his "boot training" is spending a five day furlough with his father and brother.
Pvt. John Ulman, Jr. is now stationed at Camp Gruber, Oklahoma.
Word has been received that Miss Bessie McCall, who enlisted in the Red Cross Nursing unit has sailed for over sea duty.
Willard Wright has been promoted to second class rate in aviation radio. A recent letter to his brother, Chas. Wright, says he is feeling fine, chow good and wishes he'd get more mail as delivery is pretty slow.
Ensign Neil McKay is spending a short leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd McKay.
Pvt. Gilbert Moeller has arrived safely overseas according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Moeller of East Tawas.
Tech. Sergt. John N. Brugger from Fort Lewis, Washington arrived Wednesday to spend a 15 day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Brugger.
Percy Frank, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Frank left Wednesday for Detroit where he joined the air corp.
