Giddings-Oates

In lovely double-ring rites read Saturday afternoon at the First Methodist church, East Tawas by Rev. Frank Benish, Miss Ruth Giddings of Tawas City became the bride of Clarence E. Oates, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Oates, also of Tawas City. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Giddings.

A half hour of organ music with James F. Mark, accompanist, and Nyda Campbell Leslie, soloist, preceded the ceremony during which time "Always," "At Dawning" and "Now Sleeps the Crimson Petal" were sung.

Two hundred guests witnessed the rites read before an altar decorated with bouquets of white gladiolas and Esther Reed daisies. Mixed bouquets of white gladiolas, pink larkspur and Pom Pom asters adorned the side walls. Tall white gladiolas attached to sides of pews marked the path of the bridal party.

James F. Mark played Mendelssohn's Processional and accompanied Nyda Campbell Leslie who sang "Because" and "Beloved." "It is Morn" during the services.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of tissue taffeta and cable net. The bodice with its traditional sweetheart neckline and leg-of-mutton sleeves topped the full net skirt and long train. Her finger-tip veil of Illusion net featured a coronet head dress and satin heart appliques. She carried a shower bouquet of Rapture roses and sephanotis.

As matron of honor, Mrs. Marvin Snyder of Lachine, a college friend of the bride, chose rose pink net. She carried a Colonial bouquet of blue Delphiniums and pink Carnations.

Identically gowned in Alyce blue net were the bridesmaids, Mrs. Betty Chestler and Miss Dorothy Buch, close friends of the bride. Their dresses were Colonial in design matching that of the Matron of Honor with clever bertha collars making the sleeves. Beaded skull caps with full circular veils completed their costumes.

As flower girl, Susan Chestler, little daughter of the bridesmaid Mrs. Betty Chestler wore a floor length dress of white organdie and net. She carried a tiny colonial bouquet of white carnations. A white carnation worn in her hair added to her costume.

Robert Oates, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Ernest Potts of Tawas City, John O'Brien, brother-in-law at the groom of Bay City and Charles Faul, cousin of the bride, of Hastings.

Asks for Recount in 3 Counties

Recount Will Start Next Monday

J. Stuart Bicknell, defeated candidate in the race for the nomination for State Senator against Charles T. Prescott, has asked for a recount in three northern counties of district, Iosco, Ogemaw, and Alcona. Bicknell alleges that election boards in the precincts of the three counties mishandled the counting of ballots and that there were grave irregularities in the procedure of the boards. He alleges that the boards favored Prescott in instances by counting Bicknell votes for Prescott and throwing out Bicknell votes for no lawful reason. Disappointed in the result of the election, Bicknell cannot believe that the voters of this section of the district would prefer Prescott to Bicknell for State Senator.

Following the filing of Bicknell's petition the State Board of Canvassers ordered a recount. The recount will start next Monday with the following as chairmen of the several canvassing boards: James Mielock of Reno township, Iosco county; Noble Ferguson, Lincoln, Alcona county and, W. J. Cummings, Rose City, Ogemaw county.

The vote for state senator in the three counties was:

Iosco County—Prescott	1539;
Bicknell	188.
Alcona county—Prescott	145.
Bicknell	299.
Ogemaw county—Prescott	1267;
Bicknell	732.

Clare Bicknell's home county, Prescott received 417 votes and Bicknell 1451.

Bicknell, who is a Clare county banker, was defeated two years ago by Senator Ben Carpenter in a vote of 5154 to 3,792. With only one local contest in the field Iosco county gave Carpenter 630 votes and Bicknell 240. With a field of several contested local offices in the primary Iosco county has cast 3,300 votes in primary elections. In the past two primary elections the vote has been small.

Anschuetz-Luedtke

Miss Shirley Anschuetz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Anschuetz of East Tawas and Neil Luedtke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Luedtke of Tawas City were united in marriage June 28 at 4:30 p. m. at the home of the brides' parents.

The double ring service, performed before a back ground of Mockorange and fern was read by Rev. F. L. Yokers of Fowlerville, brother-in-law of the bride. Peonies, Mockorange and fern decorated the home throughout. Members of the immediate family were in attendance.

For her wedding Miss Anschuetz chose a suit of soft green, complimented by white accessories. Her corsage was of Gardenias.

Miss Louise Luedtke, sister of the groom, was the brides only attendant. She wore a dress of white eyelet embroidery and her corsage was of pink carnations.

Norman Anschuetz, brother of the bride, was the groom's attendant.

A bridal dinner was served to members of the families following the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Luedtke are enjoying a weeks wedding trip through Northern Michigan and Wisconsin, after which they will make their home in East Tawas.

Mr. Luedtke is a graduate of the University of South Carolina where he was a member of N. R. O. T. C. He received his commission in the Naval Reserve as an Ensign at Great Lakes at the time of his discharge.

Mrs. Luedtke has been an employee at the D. & M. Railroad office for some time.

4-H'sers Make History for Themselves

Purchase Four Fine Dairy Heifers

George Strauer, Leslie Pfahl, Ronald Herriman and Doreen Strauer made history for themselves and Iosco county last week by the purchase of four Red Dane heifer calves which will be used as 4-H Club projects during the coming year.

The 4-H members and their dads visited the Danish cattle herd owned by Otto Klein of Harrisville and completed their purchase Wednesday last week. These are the first Danish cattle to enter Iosco County and without question will be influential in developing the herd for many years to come.

The purchase include a March heifer and three January heifers. They are big well grown calves, very similar in type, and plainly characterize this newly established breed.

The first and only Danish cattle ever to have entered the United States were imported directly from Denmark by the United States Government about ten years ago. Sons of this original importation still owned by the Federal Government, have been leased to farmers in Alcona and Saniac Counties. These sires are crossed with native cattle to develop the new breed in this county by a grading up process.

The Iosco County 4-H calves are known as second cross heifers being granddaughters of Puredred Holstein cows which Mr. Klein has developed over a period of many years. The daughters of these quarter blood 4-H calves will be eligible for registration providing they make

COURT FEUDS OLD STORY

WASHINGTON. — Some people seem to be laboring under the impression that wrangles are new in the Supreme court. Actually, wrangling began soon after the court was formed, with the attempted impeachment of Justice Samuel Chase, continued vigorously under John Marshall and has flared up intermittently ever since.

Latest wrangle, prior to the Jackson blow-up, was between amiable Chief Justice Harlan Fiske Stone and austere Justice Owen J. Roberts. Although Republicans and Hoover appointees, they did not get along well in recent years, and there was one hot, though private argument between them over the question of sitting on a case involving Stone's former law firm.

Before that, however, the most virulent feud on the Supreme court revolved around cranky, crusty Justice James C. McReynolds, the only justice credited with driving an associate off the court. For six years Justice John H. Clarke sat beside him, and for six years McReynolds never spoke. Finally Clarke resigned.

McReynolds also tried to drive the late Justice Louis D. Brandeis off the bench. He would rattle his papers or even leave the bench when Brandeis rendered an opinion. And, when the jurists adjourned for their customary sandwich or soup and crackers at the noon recess, McReynolds turned up his nose at lunching at a table with Brandeis. Instead, he duffed his robe, drove downtown and lunched by himself.

ROW DURING GRANT'S REGIME

Another bitter battle inside the Supreme court took place during the Grant administration over the legal tender act. Justice Robert C. Grier, then senile, was induced by Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase to change his vote, thereby helping to make the legal tender act unconstitutional. This was a great embarrassment to the Republicans, who needed the legal tender act to support their fiscal policies during and after the civil war.

"The chief justice," charged Justice Samuel F. Miller, "resorted to all sorts of stratagems of the lowest trickery."

LINCOLN SPANKED JUSTICE
Another period of near-civil war took place in the court after the last war, when the nine justices were called upon to pass on the espionage cases. The court was so split, that a committee, including Justices Willis Van Devanter and William R. Day called on Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes to ask that he not write one of his usual vigorous dissenting opinions.

"You know what my ideas of the law are, and I will not change them," he replied. And for some months following this, the justices stopped speaking to each other.

Probably the most vitriolic criticism ever leveled against the court by anyone in high places came from Abraham Lincoln, when Chief Justice Roger B. Taney called upon the commanding officer at Fort Mifflin in Baltimore to relinquish a prisoner during the Civil war. This the commanding general refused to do.

"The judicial machinery," remarked Lincoln at the time, "seems as if it had been designed not to sustain the government but to embarrass and betray it."

FEUD OVER JUSTICE FIELD

There was also the court feud over Justice Stephen J. Field at the time the Supreme court declared the income tax law unconstitutional in 1895. Field, then nearly 80 years old, led the attack against the income tax. Senile, and frequently asleep in court, a committee of his colleagues suggested his retirement but he only flew into a tantrum. His vote against the income tax made it necessary to pass a constitutional amendment to make the income tax legal.

EVERYBODY GETS HIS
Sen. Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma introduced an amendment to the OPA bill removing price ceilings on timber, petroleum, cotton, milk, livestock, tobacco, poultry, fish, grain, fruits and vegetables.

This caused Connecticut's Sen. Brien McMahon to remark: "You can't beat that one. Elmer's got something in there for every member of the senate."

In this case, though, the amendment was beaten.

HELL-BENT FOR INFLATION

Despite all the confusing furore of the senate OPA debate, two things definitely stand out: (1) when price controls are removed, prices rise; (2) most senators are far more susceptible to the pressure of business lobbies than to the unorganized but overwhelming demand of the American public in favor of price control.

Florida oranges were selling for $3.85 when price controls were removed. Immediately they jumped to $4.47, then to $5.45.

In These United States Utah Has Set 1947 as Year For Centennial Celebration

SALT LAKE CITY.—On July 24, this year, Pioneer Day will be celebrated in every community in Utah to mark the date when, 99 years ago, Brigham Young and his 142 travelers entered Great Salt Lake valley.

As on each July 24, the 1946 celebration will be one of the biggest events of the year. Since July 24 is a state holiday, all business will be suspended and covered wagons, Mormon handcarts, and old-timers will pass in review in parades all over the intermountain territory.

But the big celebration will be held in 1947, which marks the 100th anniversary of the arrival of Brigham Young and his group. The state legislature in 1939 passed a bill setting apart the year 1947 for the centennial.

"This Is the Place."
One of the features will be a wagon train of pioneers, starting at the site of the winter quarters of 1846 near Omaha and following the original pioneers' trail into Salt Lake valley. The train will enter at the spot where Brigham Young looked out over the desert and said: "This is the place." That was on July 24, 1847.

The centennial commission appointed by Gov. Herbert Maw include John M. Wallace, chairman of the finance committee; Ward C. Holbrook, John F. Fitzpatrick, Frederick P. Champ, Judge James A. Howell and Gus P. Backman, members. Backman was also selected as director of the centennial celebration. Albert J. Southwick, Salt Lake City musician, is chairman of the Days of '47 pageant committee.

The rich Salt Lake valley of today was a bleak desert when the pioneers arrived. Only one tree was to be seen on the site of what is now Salt Lake City. The pioneers built dams in the mountains to store water and dug ditches to carry it to their crops.

Supporting this speculation is the fact that Great Salt lake is a mere remnant anyway—all that is left of a once great fresh water lake that, in ages past, covered as much area as the present Lake Michigan. Evidence of this lake are numerous in the geology of the region, noticed by practically everyone living here.

The recording of Great Salt lake elevations started in 1850, three years after the arrival of the Mormon pioneers. Since that time, although there have been ups and downs, the general trend of the lake has been a loss of one foot of depth every 15 years.

Found a Cure for Plant 'Wilt' and
'Athlete's Foot'
WASHINGTON, D. C. — The department of agriculture scientists started out to find a way to battle troublesome tomato plant "wilt." They discovered a chemical called "tomatin" which combats the wilt.

But they discovered something else, although they insist it is still "in the test tube stage." Tomatin will combat fungus organisms which plague human beings, and may be the source of a new drug to fight "athlete's foot!" They have found it powerfully active against the widely prevalent ringworm fungi which often attacks the feet, hands, face and scalp.

Roosters Motored to Town for Night Life

VALENTINE, NEBR. — Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Roe parked their pickup on Main street one evening recently, and shortly afterward Buck Junod, who was standing near by, heard roosters crowing.

"But we don't have any roosters in the pickup," protested the Roes.
Junod made an investigation, however, and found three roosters. They were perched on the drive shaft beneath the car where they had gone to roost and ridden to town with the Roes.

Southern Girl Is Mechanical Engineer

KNOXVILLE, TENN. — Odds were pretty heavy in September, 1942, when a 17-year-old freshman, Mary Porter Fain, entered the school of mechanical engineering at the University of Tennessee, that she would change her course before completing requirements for her degree. At least that is what the professors thought.

But on May 3, this year, when Mary got her bachelor of science degree and became the first girl to finish in mechanical engineering at the university, the professors had to eat their words. During her entire four years, Miss Fain managed to keep up with her male classmates.

Mary intends to use her knowledge, too. She wants to do design and research on engines or household appliances. A native of Murphy, N. C., she hopes to work somewhere in the south, but she will go up north among the Yankees if the right job is offered.

FAMOUS LITTLE TOWN Askov, Minnesota, Known as 'Rutabaga' Capital of U.S.

By E. L. KIRKPATRICK
WNU Features.

There are numerous capitols of America, including National at Washington, "Swiss Cheese" at Monroe, Wis., and "Rutabaga" at Askov, Minn. Last named is smallest of these three but its work in the field it represents is plenty heavy on per capita population basis.

Picture a town of 300 people around which is grown and through which is marketed 400 carloads of rutabagas per year. Most farmers in the community grow at least a half acre; some as many as 40 acres, depending on the prospective market. Eight tons per acre is a good yield. Price sometimes goes to $40 a ton, but is more likely to be around $20.

Rutabagas fit well in the community's dairy farming rotation, soil variations and family unit farming. They thrive in soil too heavy for potatoes, and farmers who are growing them say, "you can't beat 'bagas for a cash crop." So well is the crop liked that before the war, Askov staged annual rutabaga festivals, which likely will be resumed this year.

Also a Co-Op Capitol.
In addition to rutabagas Askov makes a strong bid for U.S. "Co-Op Capitol." Among the active local groups are Co-Operative Creamery association, handling whole milk and making Land O' Lakes butter; Askov Co-Operation association, selling flour, feed and seeds; Pine Co-Op Oil association (centered in Askov with three sub-stations in neighboring villages) selling gasoline, oil, hardware and appliances; Askov Livestock Shipping association, trucking livestock to South St. Paul; Federated Co-Op Trucking association, hauling agricultural products and supplies; and Co-Operative Mercantile association, operating a grocery store.

There are still other groups, such as the Askov Buying club, organized by the high school students to purchase supplies for their own use; the Askov Co-Op guild, acting as a discussion club, and meat rings furnishing fresh beef, direct from local farms to members, weekly.

All Community Shares.
Both farmers and townsmen are shareholders in all of the co-ops except the creamery, feed store and trucking groups which deal strictly with agricultural products and supplies. Many retired farmers in town still hold shares in several of these enterprises and take an active part in the meetings. Askov has a marked interdependency between townsmen and farmers in business, social activities, family ties, school, and the one church, Danish Lutheran.

This interdependency, as well as the habit of co-operation, dates from the start of the Askov community by families from the Danish People's society of America who just 40 years ago looked for and found a home where they might live and prosper. Together they have co-operated and prospered, making their community stand out in more ways than one as a "capitol."

Planes for Harvesting
"I fly ahead, spot fields of ripening wheat, land and make deals with farmers, fly back, see how the work is coming along, take repair parts to distant towns where I learn by long distance that spare parts can be had. My plane has saved a lot of bread," recently declared Gene McGill of Avarad, Okla., president of the National Flying Farmers association.

Farms in Two States
John Hueske farms 2,200 acres in Washington county, Colo., and owns an interest in an implement business there. He lives in Adams county, Nebr., 225 miles away, where he owns 400 acres of land and operates an airport. He makes a round-trip flight each week to Colorado to look after his interests there.

FLIGHT ENGINEER . . . WAC
Cpl. Mary "Torchy" West, 23 years old, from Gary, Okla., is assigned to the west coast air transport command and claims the distinction of being the only woman checked out as a flight engineer on transoceanic trips. She has made five round trips to Hawaii.

NEBRASKA LEARNS TO FLY

All over Nebraska farm folk are learning to fly. Out near the Colorado border in Chase county, population about 5,000, enrollees in flying courses number 125, and the majority are from farm families. There are few flying services in the state that do not have 25 students or more. F. G. Fuelberth, Wayne, has more than 100 logbooks out. D. W. Bair, Bradshaw, who spent three years training pilots for the army, now has 30 students who take turns at receiving instruction.

CAA NOTES
CAA Administrator J. P. Wright has estimated that flying activities are now more than 1,000 per cent above the 1935 status. Air traffic congestion at city airports has already reached alarming proportions. . . . Registration of aircraft will be up to date by July 1, and fast service will be provided for aircraft purchasers and finance companies thereafter, says F. M. Lanter. . . . But club ownership of an airplane introduces new headaches for all concerned, particularly if the plane is mortgaged. . . . Private enterprise will construct many new airports before the federal funds get into the hands of cities.

Know Your Breed Polled Hereford By W. J. DRYDEN

Since 1902 American cattlemen have developed within the Hereford, a naturally hornless strain—the Polled Hereford. Since the early work done by Benjamin Tomkins in 1742, with English oxen, the breed is now classed as one of the greatest of beef cattle.

There are now some 200,000 on the official records. When original hornless bulls are mated with registered horned Hereford cows, about half the resulting calves are hornless. First known exhibit of hornless cattle was at Omaha fair in 1898. Today they take a leading part in every fair or show entered.

Vaccinate for Control Of Sleeping Sickness

Horses should be vaccinated in areas where sleeping sickness has been a problem in recent years. It is believed that the virus of the disease is carried over from year to year by birds, and it has also been found that chickens can harbor the virus, according to the American Foundation for Animal Health. Mosquitoes and other blood-sucking insects pass the virus on to the horses and human beings.

Electrical Drying Soft Corn Practical

Ohio Farmer Develops
Own Economical System

The problem of drying soft corn is not the difficult chore it once was, according to farmers who have experimented successfully with fan-operated, forced air systems installed in their own cribs.

Heat is not an essential factor in most installations, particularly when drying operations are conducted in the fall or early spring. The danger in cribbing immature corn is that it may spoil before cold weather arrives to restrain spoilage processes during the winter, or mold during the first few warm spring days.

Forced air drying is practical and economical without heat in temperatures as low as 50 degrees. Higher temperatures, however, speed up and cut costs of drying operations. Karl Mohr, Ohio farmer, for example, reported having spent $10 for electricity to crib-dry 60 tons of immature corn by forcing air through it for 100 continuous hours during a period when daytime temperature reached 80 degrees.

Mohr's drying arrangement is typical of workable, successful types which farmers can install themselves. His 35 by 10-foot, tight-sided crib has a slatted floor, with 1 1/4 by 2-inch slats installed edge-wise and spaced five-eighths of an inch apart. A 42-inch fan, driven by a 5-horsepower motor, blows air into a closed tunnel extending under the entire crib. Air, forced under the crib, moves up naturally through the slatted floor and out vents in the top of the crib, taking excessive moisture with it. Smaller fans and motors will work just as well with less extensive drying operations.

Mohr's crib vents serve a double purpose. In addition to being exhausts for air, they also serve as openings into which corn is elevated for storage in the crib.

Commerce Commission Fails To Protect Public Interest

GOVERNMENT agencies which have been in business over a long period of years, particularly those agencies which deal directly with the affairs of Big Business, often lose their perspective . . . they seem to forget that their objective or reason for being is the protection of the general public.

A case in point is the Interstate Commerce commission. A long-time member of the commission, Clyde B. Aitchison, in a recent senate committee hearing let slip a remark which indicates the line of thinking of this guardian of the public's interests with reference particularly to railroads. The committee was considering the so-called Bulwinkle bill, which had already passed the house.

This measure would permit railroads to make their own rates and other agreements among themselves, subject to ICC approval, and would immunize the railroads from prosecution under the anti-trust laws as a result of these agreements.

During the questioning, Commissioner Aitchison referred to the railroads as "our clients and customers." Of course, the railroads are not their clients or customers and Senator Wheeler of Montana was quick to call Mr. Aitchison on his statement.

"Why do you refer to them as your clients? I thought the public were your clients, or supposed to be?" was Senator Wheeler's observation. And Mr. Aitchison rather lamely and naively answered that he was merely being facetious.

'Transportation Department'

Facetious or not, the attitude of Mr. Aitchison is too often the attitude of other agency members who are supposed to represent the public interest as against the encroachments of business and industry or any other factor. It is such an attitude which is causing some talk here proposing another cabinet post to be known as the secretary of transportation and bringing all forms of transportation under one head including air, shipping, railroads, bus and trucks and communications. Another plan would be merely the setting up of a new commission to regulate all transportation facilities.

The attitude of President Truman, at least his attitude while in the senate of the United States toward the transportation question, is well-known. He is on record as favoring the setting up of a transportation commission, for in a debate in the senate, he declared, "I believe that every kind of transportation should be treated alike by government, equally regulated, equally taxed. I think a transportation commission to control all transportation is coming. . . all methods of transportation must be co-ordinated. If the government must finance them, let us face the situation and do it. Let us retire a lot of old fellows and give the boys a chance and a career to look forward to. . ."

President Truman went so far as to co-author a bill introduced by himself and Senator Wheeler of Montana, which would, in his own words: "We are rewriting the entire Interstate Commerce act and are subjecting all forms of competing transportation to the regulation of a single independent regulatory agency."

The railroads have enjoyed unprecedented prosperity throughout the war years and government has been their biggest customer, and yet today, with reconversion only well started, the railroads are joining the procession in demanding increased rates amounting to 25 per cent.

During the past months, reams of propaganda has come from the railroad publicity offices to prepare the public for the recent demand of the railroads for the rate increase.

The Civil Aeronautics administration has done and is doing a creditable job in the regulation of air transportation, but they are now under fire from the shipping industry which is seeking trans-ocean routes in conjunction with their steamship lanes although the CAA has confined its franchises to a select few air lines for these routes to foreign countries. Whether this is in the interest of the public or the interest of these few airlines is a matter for conjecture.

At any rate, such statements as come from the lips of Commissioner Aitchison, which he explained as facetious, raises the question as to whether or not the interest of the public or those of the railroads are paramount with the ICC.

The ICC has a tremendous job to do in this postwar era, so has the CAA and so has the Federal Communications commission, and unless the public interest is the primary interest, these agencies are merely paving the way for their own extinction and the setting up of a central regulatory agency

Newsman Argue A-Bomb Results While They Wait

By WALTER A. SHEAD
WNU Correspondent.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This dispatch was filed from the atomic bomb testing area only shortly before the first test bomb was scheduled to be dropped.)

ABOARD USS APPALACHIAN—BIKINI ATOLL (Via Navy Radio)—This reporter does not intend to delve into the scientific aspects of this atomic bomb test, leaving that to the scientific writers and the scientists themselves. This test is primarily a military experiment to determine how the United States navy and other armed services can figuratively "keep its powder dry" in the face of any future atomic warfare.

The experiments however by their very nature and the various tests which are to be made of atomic energy will produce by-products of knowledge in the fields of biochemistry, biology and medicine.

Further knowledge will be gained also in the fields of radio, photography, geology, fish life and all the sciences which apply to ocean life.

Many Conjectures.

A tour of this ship and a visit to the staterooms where the newspaper men are housed conjectures on the outcome of this bomb test measured only by the number of newspaper men aboard. This is almost true of the scientific writers themselves, for most all have different viewpoints on the possible developments.

These conjectures run the gamut of total destruction by tidal wave or earthquake of the entire task force in the vicinity of the bomb down to the theory that the bomb might even prove a dud forecasts of the destruction of the atomic bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki made by the scientists connected with Uncle Sam's military establishments were fairly accurate and this reporter is willing to discard the more fantastic conjectures and string along with some of these more conservative forecasts.

Earthquake or Tidal Wave?

In the first place Bikini lagoon, where the bomb will be dropped, is roughly 25 miles long and 10 miles wide and the water averages 100 feet in depth and one scientist likened the dropping of the bomb into such an expanse of water and air to a spark from a welder's torch dropped into a 30-acre lake. Scientists admit that the bomb may cause a slight earthquake and tidal wave but that in comparison with nature's earthquakes it will have no destructive violence and will only be recorded upon seismographic instruments. The release of atomic energy at the given point of the bomb burst will in the opinion of these scientists release heat and energy at that spot of a nature never before experienced upon the surface of the earth but its effects will be confined to a relatively very small area. One scientist declared that the radio activity released from the bomb, if absorbed by living tissues, would result in chemical changes in the proteins of the tissues, in some cases of sufficient intensity to kill the tissues and in other cases likely to produce a new kind of living tissue or a new variety of organ. It is a well-known fact that X-rays have created this phenomenon in living tissues and the radio-active rays from the bomb are practically the same as X-rays. Thus a man who comes in contact with these radio-active particles may well become sterile and be chemically changed as to other characteristics. On the other hand, some scientists predict a tremendous tidal wave as result of dislodging a huge landslide along the slope of Bikini atoll which rises some 14,000 feet from the floor of the ocean. Another predicts the bomb will crack open the ocean floor and let the water into the molten matter beneath the floor resulting in a tremendous volcanic explosion. These predictions, however, are generally discounted.

LONELY REEF . . . Far out in the Pacific. Bikini atoll holds the 97 ships of the "suicide fleet."

Are Sworn to Secrecy.

This reporter anticipates plenty of action and plenty to write about when this bomb is dropped by the B-29 over the target array of naval ships. The most dramatic will be the second test when a bomb is detonated below the surface of the water in the midst of what is left of the target ships. The handicap under which the lay members of the press work is, however, that we will not know nor will we be told whether or not these bombs exploded at full efficiency or whether or not in fact they were duds.

Modern Furnishings

Among the building innovations in houses of tomorrow will be windows that close automatically when it rains. There also will be a new floor covering with the softness of rub-stone.

Eyes Dim

Most persons upon reaching the age of 45 cannot read easily the names in a telephone book. Ability of the lens of the eye to focus on near objects declines with age, and reading glasses are needed by most persons in middle age.

Carrot Something New

The familiar carrot was seldom used as a vegetable in the United States before 1920. By 1941, how-produced, with California, Texas,

New York and New Jersey as the largest producers.

W. N. U. RELEASE

THE STORY THUS FAR: The newcomer tells Jane he is a bookkeeper and she has him start on the ranch books that evening after the work is done. "What's your name?" she asked. He hesitated, then said: "John Hazlett." He flushed and stammered, and she told him that he had not given his right name. He admitted it. "I ask you to make good," she told him. A bullet through the window wounded Hazlett. Dousing the lights, he rushed from the room to grapple with the assailant. It was Jordan. Wounded and dazed, Hazlett was unable to prevent Jordan's escape, setting fire to the corral and sheds before departing. Hazlett saves Jim's life during the stampede of cattle.

CHAPTER III

For the second time her soft, cool fingers touched his, her clear blue eyes looked into his, and he wavered. He reddened to his hair and felt his purpose growing soft at her touch!

"You don't like to be thanked and you won't tell me your name. Can't you—trust me?"

"If I told you I couldn't stay here, and I want to stay!" His voice shook. In the shadowed hall she could see that he paled to the lips, but his eyes held hers.

"You will stay?" she exclaimed, and her hands trembled slightly as she pressed them against the wall behind her. "Don't you realize that you saved my brother? We're in your debt."

"There's no debt about it—it was my good luck; you owe me nothing," he replied gravely. "If I should tell you why I came across those mountains you might send me away."

She was silent for a moment, and her eyes looked at him steadily, gravely. She seemed to challenge him.

"I haven't told my brother," she said simply. "He's going to do all he can for you; he's in bed now—I made him go, he was worn out—but you'll see him later. I told him nothing."

Hazlett was shaken; he stood staring at the first rays of sunshine on the threshold of the open door.

"Which makes me your debtor," he said at last, hoarsely. Then he turned and saw her fine face and her clear eyes and choked back the words that came, ending abruptly: "Why didn't you tell him?"

"I didn't tell—," she hesitated, and added quickly—"because I want you to stay!"

"You—you want me to stay?" he exclaimed, his face aflame.

He got no answer. Quick as a flash Jane opened the door behind her, slipped in and shut it in his face.

Suddenly, a door opened far down the corridor and he heard Stenhart's voice. It rang strong and hearty; the invalid was getting well! It was like an electric shock to Hazlett. He straightened himself, turned sharply and went out of the house.

The sun had risen, the wide acres of the ranch were bathed in beauty, doves were cooing in the trees, Jane's roses filled the air with fragrance. He turned and was going toward the creek. He had forgotten that he was hungry until he heard old Mac shouting at him.

"Grab's waitin'!"

The old man was beckoning from the low adobe in the rear. Hazlett followed him into the bunkhouse. The vacueros had bolted their food and returned to the work of hunting up the strays. There was no one about but MacDowell, Ah Ling and old Teresa, the housekeeper. The little brown woman chose to wait on the stranger herself.

"You saved the senior," she said, gazing at the young man with intent dark eyes.

He laughed. "By accident. I'm not much of a cowpuncher, Teresa!"

"Madre de Dios, but you are a brave man, senior!" she replied filling his cup with Ah Ling's strong coffee.

"Teresa likes you a heap better'n she likes Stenhart," laughed old Mac, lighting his pipe.

Hazlett looked around at the little old woman. "So you don't like Stenhart?"

She shook her head violently, crossing herself. "He has got a devil, senior!"

The young man laughed loudly, thrusting his plate aside. "Come," he said, "tell me—what sort of a devil?"

Teresa only shook her head more violently than ever.

Old Mac, taking his pipe out of his mouth, laughed outright. "What you goin' to do, Teresa, when he marries Jane?"

"God forbid!" said Teresa, rolling her eyes.

"I heard it was comin' off soon as he got well," teased Mac.

The old woman gave him a ferocious look, scowling like a witch.

"Ca! Then I will tell her," she said bitterly. "I will tell her what kind of dreams he is having!"

MacDowell chuckled. "Dreams? Nightmare, I reckon—hello, there he is now; they've got him out under the trees, Jane an' th' nurse. First time, too!"

As he spoke he pointed out of the window, and Hazlett saw the three figures under a group of live oaks. Fanny Sewell was seating the convalescent in a large wicker armchair while Jane stood talking to them.

Teresa, crossing herself and mumbling, retreated suddenly on Ah Ling, and upset a dish of fried potatoes. The Chinaman began to scold loudly and old Mac laughed at them. It gave Hazlett his chance; he rose and went out quickly, standing still in the shadow of the house and watching the group under the trees. The morning light was wonderful, he could see every object clearly. Stenhart looked thin and pale. Fanny Sewell, needing something she had left indoors, turned and went back to the house. Jane was alone with Stenhart. The man watching them turned white; he had no difficulty in seeing that Stenhart was taking advantage of his opportunity. He was leaning forward now to plead with the girl. And Jane? The watcher could see that she blushed. For one tense moment he meant to intervene, it was more than he could hear; then she laughed at the man, turning away.

"I came a long way, Stenhart. Look well at me—I came to kill you!"

"You're a lot better, Max!" she teased, and her fresh young voice came clearly to Hazlett's ears.

Stenhart answered inaudibly, stretching out his hand, trying to detain her. Jane laughed at him again. Meanwhile, the trained nurse, coming to the door of the house, called Teresa.

Hazlett heard the slap of moccasins on the stone floor behind him. He stepped back and caught old Teresa by the arm before she came in sight of the others.

"Don't go yet," he said, in a low voice. "If you go with the nurse—Miss Keller will be left alone with Stenhart!"

The little old woman stared up at the big stranger.

"Madre de Dios!" she said below her breath. "You hate him, too, eh?"

Hazlett nodded grimly. "He and I are old acquaintances, Teresa. Come—tell me what he dreams about?"

The old woman shrank. "I promise the nurse; I can't tell, senior!"

He frowned. What was it that the fair haired nurse and the little brown woman were hiding from Jane? Had Stenhart told things in his sleep? He pressed his hand hard on the woman's wrist.

"Tell me! See, if I knew I might keep him from marrying her."

Teresa looked up at him with shrewd dark eyes. "I do not know you, senior!"

"But you like me better than Stenhart?"

"Tck! I like a bad tooth better, senior!"

"But you won't betray him? You—"

"Teresa! Oh, Teresa!" called Jane's young voice close at hand. She was going up to the house to answer Fanny's summons.

Teresa broke away and ran after her, and together, the three women went into the house.

Stenhart sat alone under the trees, a paper open in his hand.

Hazlett stood a moment longer, listening to Ah Ling's chatter with old Mac. He could smell the strong tobacco in the old man's pipe. Stenhart's dark head was bent over his newspaper. His profile was handsome, clean-cut as cameo; his hands looked thin and white. Far off by the corrals some men were building a new gate, and the distant sound of their hammers came on the wind. The stranger left the shelter of the low adobe and walked swiftly over to the trees. On the turf his footsteps made no sound. The paper rustled in the invalid's long fingers, and he stirred uneasily, as if he felt a presence, and looked up. The paper dropped to the ground and he covered in his chair.

"My God, Sherwin, you! How did you come here?"

The young man, standing in the sunlight, looked back at him, quite unmoved.

"So you know me? I came a long way, Stenhart. Look well at me—I came to kill you!"

In the terrible silence the hammers seemed to grow clamorous. Stenhart tried to rise.

"I'll call for help—I'm still a sick man, John Sherwin!" he babbled wildly.

Sherwin thrust him back in his chair. "You coward!" he said bitterly. "You'll have your chance; I don't deal blows in secret—as you do!"

Stenhart groaned. "You're crazy—I always said you were! How did you get here?"

"That's no affair of yours! I came to kill you."

Stenhart gripped the arms of his chair with shaking hands; he was not a well man but he tried to summon his old courage. "I'll raise the alarm—why, I can settle you in five minutes, Sherwin!"

Sherwin's eyes glinted like steel. "Can you? Try it!"

Stenhart tried again to rise, then something in the other man's look held him, he shrank. "My God, what do you mean to do? You—you can't kill me out here—in cold blood!"

"I can," replied his tormentor, "but I mean to let you think about it, imagine it, wonder how I mean to do it. It would be too pleasant if I finished you now!"

Hope kindled in the other's eyes; he knew a way to end this braggart, he said mockingly; "thank you!"

But it was Sherwin who laughed, and the sound of his mirth sent a horrible chill through Stenhart.

"I know your plan, Friend Max," he said coolly, "but it can't save you. I shall kill you just the same—only a little more quickly."

Stenhart's courage began to rise, his face reddened. "You'll not stay here; I'll make Las Palomas too hot for you! You'll see. I can make any place too hot for you."

Sherwin looked at him steadily for an instant, then he spoke as steadily.

"It wouldn't save you, Stenhart—nothing will save you—but the sooner you drop that stuff the longer you'll live. Get me?"

Stenhart writhed in his chair. "You can't do it! You don't mean to do it! You're threatening me to—hush me up!"

Sherwin bent down and, grasping the arms of his chair, he looked deep into his eyes. "You know what I've endured, you know what you did—do you think that I wouldn't kill you?"

Stenhart, staring back into those steel gray eyes, wavered and blanched. He was still weak from illness; his limbs shook.

"You—you fiend!" he gasped.

"You call me a fiend—what do you call yourself, you liar?" Sherwin's voice was low but it was terrible. He let go the arms of the chair and straightened himself. "You're half sick still. I'll let you get your strength first, but—I shall kill you presently."

Stenhart said nothing; he was shaking now from head to foot. Something deeper than his fear of Sherwin shook him. He set his teeth, but they chattered.

Sherwin, watching him, laughed. Then he looked toward the house and saw Fanny Sewell emerge, carrying a tray.

"Your nurse is coming," he said to the invalid. "Get your strength quickly; I don't care to kill a sick man, Stenhart."

Stenhart leaned back in his chair and shut his eyes. He was feigning more weakness than he felt; he was trying to plan some way to rid himself of this peril, for he knew that Sherwin meant every word he said. He would kill him! Though his eyes were closed, he listened keenly and he heard Sherwin's footsteps retreating across the grass; then came the rustle of a woman's skirt and he looked up and saw Fanny Sewell coming with her little tray. The sun was shining on her fair hair and her serene face, and he tried to think he had just awakened from a nightmare.

Sherwin, passing the young nurse, went to the house. The door stood open and he entered, going at once to Jim's desk. He had promised Jane to straighten the accounts; mechanically he sat down to his task, but his mind was full of the scene under the trees, of Stenhart's aghast face. He drew a deep breath and his clenched fist struck the desk sharply, rattling its shabby litter out of the pigeonholes. He had no pity for Stenhart's apparent weakness; he had evidently been near death and he was glad that he had not died. If he had died he would have escaped.

There was a little rustle of paper; a breeze from the window had got among the papers that his violence had shaken out of the pigeonholes. It lifted a thin tissue covering a flat cardboard and rustled it. As Sherwin looked down it blew the thin paper completely away and he saw what it had covered. A photograph, the photograph of a very young girl, her hair in braids on her slim shoulders, her chin lifted, her eyes looking up at him, a smile on her young lips—Jane! Unconsciously a great change came over him; the blood rushed to his face, his eyes softened.

Outmoded Dresses Converted Into Well-tailored Play Togs

By Erta Haley

THE blazing sunshine is very much with us, and lazy, perfect summer days are indeed a welcome to those who like outdoor sports. No active woman wants to stay indoors all day, and most want to plan at least some outdoor activity for every day that is seasonal.

Long ago we learned that if we are to take full advantage of perfect sunshine and fresh air, we must be suitably dressed for it. Yes, even if it's just weeding the garden or going down to the beach, wear something that's cool but comfortable, and do try to get your quota of the beneficial rays from the sun if you want to build health reserves for winter.

Whether you bicycle or golf, loll around at the beach or picnic grounds, one of your first essentials is a playsuit. Now, that might be anything from a sun-back dress to a pair of shorts with a halter top or a large shirt, but it's definitely a must in the summer wardrobe.

If you feel that you don't want to go to the expense of buying a playsuit of some type, then check over the dresses you no longer consider suitable for wear as such, and make them over. Most dresses will provide at least the top of a playsuit, and others will give you perhaps the two or three-piece set, the latter one with a skirt to match or contrast the top.

Select Becoming Pattern In Play Togs

Because sports clothing such as a playsuit is used either for active work or for lounging, it should be both comfortable and attractive. Armholes, for example, must be large enough to allow the arms to move around freely. Shorts for playsuit should never be tight, but should fit smoothly through the hips and waist, and must be large enough around the legs to allow for easy running or bicycling.

If you are making shorts for the playsuit it would be a good idea to fit the pattern to yourself, pinning it together to see that you have enough freedom of movement and still enough seam allowance to sew it together properly. Or, an even better idea is to baste together an inexpensive muslin pair of shorts cut from your pattern and fit them on before making pattern adjustments.

Never attempt to put together a pair of shorts or blouse without knowing for certain that the pattern will fit. It may correspond perfectly to the measurements of waist and hips, for instance, but think how much valuable material and work would be wasted if the shorts were not long enough to fit over the abdomen to allow bending and other exercises that are bound to come in sports.

The best type of seam for shorts—both from the point of view of the most comfort and also tailored appearance, is the flat fell or French seam. This is not at all difficult to make, and the shorts will fit easily together, hold well and permit ease of wear.

If there is a wide discrepancy between waist and hip measurement (more than seven inches), a good idea in shorts would be one with the straps—the short overall effect that is popular. In this case you do not need to nip in the waist so much as the straps will hold the shorts up

Sleeves for both coats and dresses are loose and graceful. And another graceful note, particularly in summer is the softly gathered waistline that ties easily at the front.

Princess styles are lovely for summer sports wear. They give the impression of perfect grace rather effortlessly, and they are not tightly nipped in at the waist so they permit freedom of movement.

Toddler Fashion

For this young miss of one to three years of age, there's this striped Yolande dress of fine madras tailored with fagotting. The Hope Skillman fabric is well handled with bias edges for the bodice panel, collar and cuffs.

very well. Interesting buttons can of course give the waist, top or straps a good decorative effect.

Some shorts do use zippers—and this can be done to give a good fit over the hips and waist—but another nice effect is to use a placket with buttons.

Action Back Gives Freedom in Blouse

Most blouses for playsuits carry the action back for a very good reason. An active sport like tennis, golf or bicycling requires plenty of shoulder action and unless you want to put undue strain on the garment, an action back is the only answer. The yoke in this type of garment enables you to have a smooth fit over the shoulders, thus giving you comfort, but the gathering in the back of the blouse will give you extra room when back muscles are called into play.

It is easy to fit the yoke to the back of the blouse if you put small running stitches at the edge of the back part of the blouse and pull them to gather until they fit the yoke itself.

Sleeves must be eased in very carefully to fit properly. Here again it is best to make a small running stitch around the sleeve so that it can be gathered evenly to fill the armhole. All the gathers, however, should fall on top of the armhole, and there should never be any gathering underneath the arm.

Another idea which is gaining popularity in playsuit tops is the poncho style which you may have seen in blouses for suits. This style, too, permits plenty of freedom of movement. The tie at the waist front also offers an opportunity for decorative effect.

Make-over Ideas

Sleeves are the first giveaway to the age of the garment. If sleeves are worn, remove them entirely and cut sleeves from a contrasting material with a smart, new pattern and insert them. If the garment has long sleeves, cut them at the elbow or wrist and make short or "capped" sleeves from them.

Leftover sleeve material can be used for neck facings, pockets or even as reinforcements under the arm.

Old dresses—particularly if the tops show undue wear, can have the sleeves cut out entirely. In this case, make a brand new contrasting colored jacket to wear with them and no one will know whether the dress is old or new.

Too-short drindl skirts for young daughter can be made to fit by lengthening at the waist or the hem. They are ideal when there is a wide contrasting colored hem. In this case be sure that the piece of material widens sufficiently at the hem so that it will look as if it belonged to the garment. If this is made double, it can be let out the next year if the girl has outgrown the length. Another idea is to put ruffing or an embroidered eyelet at the bottom of the skirt to add an inch or two of length.

Summer Fashion Notes

Suits themselves are kept neutral or pastel. If you want the sparkle of color in that ensemble, bring it out with a plaid blouse.

For summer sports and simple daytime dresses, nothing is smarter than the lovely linens now seen so much. Suits of linen always look crisp and neat and smart women will include at least one in their wardrobe.

AROUND THE HOUSE

A broom that is sprinkled with kerosene occasionally will gather dust more easily.

On any small apron sew numerous pockets. Into these slip your toilet articles. Fold the apron and put it in your suitcase. Then when you need a freshening up, toilet articles are where you need them.

Here's a way to hang your criss-cross curtains so you won't have to use a double rod. Takes a little sewing on your part, but in the end none of the rod will show. Simply baste the top curtain to the lower one over the curtain's top row of stitching. Run the curtain rod through the heading on the under curtain. Top one gathers with it.

To give your dinner party an air of the unusual, serve a small scoop of orange sherbet floating in chilled apple juice.

Use the cuffs from dad's worn-out shirts for making shoulder pads. They're firm and generally give you all the padding you need.

Put some cologne on cotton and tuck it into your clothing for a delightful scent.

In patching underwear, use small cross stitches around the edge of the patch, say the experts. This makes for elasticity.

To remove scratches on woodwork and floors, rub with a little lard, then rub off with a clean cloth.

When the edges joined in a seam are cut on the bias, it is helpful to baste a piece of paper in with the two edges of fabric. After the seam is stitched tear away the paper. This little trick keeps the bias edges from stretching.

In order to get much Vitamin C, turnips should be eaten raw. Turnip sticks or slivers really are delicious in the relish dish or salad bowl.

Sportlight by GRANTLAND RICE

THERE was a pleasant period of existence during which one could turn to the sporting page with the prospect of reading about sports.

"On the sports page," as the late William Lyon Phelps once told me, "you read about competitive achievement—a round of golf in 67, a home run with two on, a three-hit game, a long run, a thrilling horse race, a story to lift you above the humdrum of dull days."

Those features still exist—but lately they have been clogged with strikes, unions at work, Mexican lawsuits, football players being haled before the courts for contract troubles, lawyers' pleas, judges' decisions.

There isn't any questioning the fact that many things have been out of line. Neither football nor baseball contracts can be held legally valid when the employer can hold a man for life, but also fire him on 10 days' notice.

In professional football we read where most of the clubs in the two leagues sign up from 50 to 60 players apiece—but their league rules say they can keep only 33 of these players.

What the Future Holds All this happens during the best season baseball ever has dreamed of in the way of crowds and public interest; and to what looked to be the best season professional football ever has known.

Just how the sports public will react to all these complications still is a guess. It may be that the public has taken such a beating from so many wrecking strikes that it has become numb and no longer feels any pain.

There are many tangles and tough breaks to beset the athlete. Those drafted or sold to tail-end teams get all the worst of it.

It wouldn't have been a bad idea if baseball and football players followed the lead of the golfers, who have had their Professional Golfers' association working ably for some time.

The one cheerful note in all this is that a large part of the public is turning more than ever to the playing side rather than toward that of the spectator.

For the best service from pillow cases, select cases of a firm weave, little sizing, and with smooth and even hems. It's also well to remember that sizes are important—cases too large wrinkle under the head, and if too small, they bunch the pillow into a hard lump, and are more likely to be strained. The best size is a case one and one-half inches wider and six inches longer than the pillow.
