A Little Bit of America Transplanted in S. Pacific

BIKINI ISLAND.—There is an unforgettable picture spread before me here in this south Pacific atoll... a picture of great beauty and a lesson which portrays the American way.

For tonight as far as the eye can see in a huge arc which marks the curving length of this three-mile-long island thousands of electric lights wink in the soft trade winds and mirror their reflections in the gently swelling waters of the lagoon. Thousands of other lights from the fleet of some 200 ships anchored in array form other patterns of reflected lights, numerous searchlights stab the star-studded sky and the winking lights of ship communications play a soundless tattoo upon the southern night. Red and green riding lights atop the masts sway in the rolling waves and add color to the magical picture in this far-off place.

Yet only a few short months ago this island and the entire atoll of coral reefs and islets was as primitive and wild as when the first Polynesians steered their frail outrigger canoes into Bikini lagoon some 800 years ago. Today the small band of natives has been moved bag and baggage to another larger island and taking their place are thousands of American boys swarming the beaches and playing beneath the coconut palms from which the natives derived their chief food supply.

Paving, Steel Buildings

Concrete walks have taken the place of the rough native trails; coral roads have replaced the sandy paths trod for centuries; rough thatched huts have been replaced by sturdy American structures; handball, basketball, tennis and horseshoe courts edge into the palm groves. Steel towers form installations for radio, television and other communications standing high above the trees. The chug of a gasoline engine, the roar of bulldozer motors and the shouts of men in recreation break the stillness of the night... such sounds as have never before been heard since this ancient volcano thrust its crater rim above the waters of the Pacific and the countless millions of coral polyps deposited their skeletons for eons of time to form the rock and sand base of the atoll reefs... the crashing splitting thunder of two atomic bombs have broken the peace and stillness of this fairyland. American ships lie upon the coral heads of the lagoon floor... 30 fathoms down.

Soon divers will explore their wrecked hulls to note the work of atomic energy and blast upon the workmanship of shipbuilders. Oceanographers will again chart the lagoon bed to see what this man-made force has done to nature's work. Biologists will study the fish life to learn what radio-activity has done to the living tissues. In the years to come an entirely new species of fish may be one result.

A radio station, ice plant and electric plant lend their functions to this newest outpost of the American way... for where American sailors and American soldiers and airmen go so must go the American way in ships and planes.

Expensive, but Worth It

To date this mass movement of ships and men their supply and maintenance has cost the American taxpayers some $70,000,000 so that our military planners might learn the effect of atomic energy on ships and men and material. And it is costing an approximate half million dollars a day to keep it going... going well beyond the summer months for the third test is now scheduled for November and the total cost will run well over $100,000,000. Our congress and our military leaders believe it is well worth it. And they've left nothing undone.

A jazz orchestra plays sweet swing music and the sound is wafted across the water from the officers' club where the legend over the doors reads "Up and Atom." And there's plenty of refreshment in liquid form, so plentiful it may be the reason for the shortage in the States and cheap too.

Some 30,000 men are here... a little piece of the United States transported to the South Pacific. If we could only see a ferris wheel the scene before us would resemble nothing more than Coney Island.

About one-fourth of the animals exposed to the atom bomb test of July 1 are now dead. This does not include those killed for autopsy. Capt. Shields Warren, radiological expert, says that about one-third of the survivors are in a critical condition from burns. Four goats, all quite sick, have been flown to the U. of Chicago for blood studies. Their ailment is due to radioactive rays. One hundred and eight white mice have been flown to the National Health Institute at Bethesda, Md., where they will be studied.

COOKING QUEEN . . . Dorothea Fagnano, 15, Yonkers, N. Y., school-girl, samples some of her own cookies following her selection as cooking queen. She disclosed that she now is working on a new recipe for making bread without flour—a tall order for a teen-ager, but not too hard for Dorothea, who recently captured first prize in a competition which attracted entrants from 512 cities. Miss Fagnano is experimenting with potato flour as a basic ingredient for her new flourless bread.

AQUAPLANE STAR SPILLS . . . Fred Kerwin races for a fall in trial run during preparation for the National Aquaplane races to be held off the California coast along Hermosa and Manhattan beaches the middle of August. Aquaplane races were largely discontinued during the war. Many returned servicemen acquired the art in Pacific waters and promise to give strong competition in the sport. It has been estimated that several thousand will compete in aquaplane races in various parts of the United States during 1946.

BIG BOYCOTT GETS UNDER WAY . . . Hot as the weather is, Lorraine Anderson, 2, and Richard Kratzberg, 1½, turn indignant cold shoulders to the rise from five to seven cents in the price of ice cream cones. Being young people of action, they join the pickets around their store in the Glen Hazel housing project, Pittsburgh.

LEAVE FOR PILGRIMAGE TO CANADA . . . Group of 75 invalids before boarding a train in Chicago on their way to the Holy Shrines of the Saints in Canada, for the first of their yearly pilgrimage. Miss Mary Ellen Kelly, 23, Marcus, Iowa, (third from right, front row), inspired the pilgrimage and will lead the other invalids to the Shrine, seeking health through faith. They will be joined by thousands from other parts of the nation.

PHILIPPINE'S AMBASSADOR . . . Joaquin M. Elizalde, first ambassador of the Republic of the Philippines to the United States, is pictured as he called at the White House to present his letters of credence.

FIRST WOMAN CLERK . . . Mrs. Frances E. Dustin, Dexter, Me., who has become the first woman clerk to enter the senate chamber during a session. Intensely jealous of its members' prerogatives, senate previously barred women.

WANTS TO QUIT . . . Pres. Higinio Morinigo of Paraguay, who is reported to have asked permission from the armed forces to resign and leave the country, following upheaval in neighboring Bolivia.

WINNING WINDUP . . . George McGovern, 11, a future big league southpaw, who adds a bit of tongue technique to his windup. George is top pitcher in Class C league at Shaw playground, Somerville, Mass.

SHAW AT 90 . . . Eyes still as keen as his razor-wit, George Bernard Shaw, greatest figure in English literature today, looks out at the topsy-turvy world at the age of 90. He keeps his thoughts to himself—sometimes.

Killing Heel Flies With Power Sprays
Cattle Grubs Can Be Eliminated Profitably

By W. J. DRYDEN

The cattle grub and heel fly are different forms of the same insect. Starting in the spring, when it is in the fly form, the heel fly lays eggs in hairs of the animals. These eggs hatch into maggots which work their way through the hide and enter the muscle tissues. During the next nine months they migrate through the internal organs of the cattle and come out along the back.

Cysts are formed and the maggots then turn into grubs about an inch long. In the spring they work their way out of the holes in the hide and fall to the ground. Within a few weeks they turn into heel flies and the yearly cycle repeats itself.

The USDA reports an annual loss of $100,000,000 in milk, meat and leather due to cattle grubs and heel flies.

While the use of a 1/4 rotenone dust has proven effective, many will find it advisable to treating cattle with a power spray. For this method either of the following solutions will be effective: 20 pounds rotenone sulphur with 100 gallons water or cube or derris, 10 pounds, sodium lauryl sulfate, 2 ounces added to 100 gallons of water. There are many good commercial preparations on the market.

Know Your Breed Herefords
By W. J. DRYDEN

The grand champion bull at the 1945 National Hereford show, and owned by the Circle M. Hereford ranch, Senatobia, Miss., and illustrate here, will illustrate this remarkable beef type of cattle.

It is distinguished from all other beef breeds by its red body and white face. The white color is found also on the underline, flank, crest, switch, breast and below the knee and hock.

A product of England, they were brought to U. S. in 1817. Herefords are outstanding as hustlers and of utilizing grass very advantageously.

Try New Coccidiosis Chicken Treatments

The use of 1/2 to 1 pound of powdered sulfaguanadide to 100 pounds of feed for two to three days is being recommended as a cure for coccidiosis with turkeys and chickens by Missouri station.

The larger dosage, 1 pound to 100 pounds of mash, is recommended for severe outbreaks and when death losses are exceptionally high. The smaller amount is used for less severe outbreaks in the flock.

V. N. U. RELEASE

"So you can convince him?" Sherwin mocked her. "He isn't here, I tell you; I came alone!" the girl cried excitedly.

CHAPTER VIII

A man bound securely and hidden in that unknown cavern, beyond reach of the sun, beyond the sound of human voices, might taste something of the misery of a prison!

Gently, almost reverently, he took her in his arms. But with a flush of pride. Her blue eyes shone.

He did not question why he came thus. Instinctively he knew that the man was on an errand of betrayal, but his own heart leaped fiercely.

She would not turn; she stumbled on. But he overtook her. "Speak to me," he said brokenly.

She leaned back against the cliff behind her, panting, her face flushed and her lips trembled.

He drank his coffee hastily and ate little. Fanny Sewell had spoken the day before of going away.

WOMAN'S WORLD Old Coats Make Nice Toppers If Tailoring Is Well Handled

By Ertta Haley

THE most popular coat for the younger set for the present appears to be the short topper that fits well over all kinds of dresses and even suits.

It's surprising how many old coats can be converted easily into attractive toppers for school.

Look for a coat whose material is firmly woven with enough body to tailor nicely. If the coat has a nice top, such as a lapel style or even a collarless one that sets well on the girl, you will have to do little to the coat except, perhaps, to change the padding in the shoulders.

When working with woolsens, you can't have the ironing board too handy. All seams on such heavy material should be pressed open the stitching less conspicuous than if you stitched 1/4 or 1/2 of an inch from the edge.

Shoulder detail takes this blue and white striped blouse out of the ordinary class. Diana Lynn, star of "Easy Come, Easy Go," wears this costume, so ideal for the school girl.

Easy Guide Offered For Lining Coat. If you're remodeling a coat, chances are that the lining will have to be replaced.

Remove the old lining from the coat, rip it apart and use this as a pattern for cutting a new lining.

Remember that the linings are sewed on the outside, as the inside of the lining is actually the outside when it is placed in the coat.

While you are sewing on the coat, you will press it on the wrong side making sure all the seams are flat.

Pin the pockets in place, with the sides of the pockets on a true lengthwise grain of fabric.

Labels on ready-made garments and fabrics are an important guide to their care and will repay you well in the long run.

If you are an inexperienced seamstress, select only small prints and checks so that they can be matched easily to other pieces during the sewing.

Accessories are an important wardrobe brightener. Look for flowers, jewelry and interesting stitches in gloves if you want to be in fashion.

The romantic influence is still predominant in many fashions. You'll see it in suits with flared tails, in those colorful apron effects for dresses and skirts, and in very, very feminine hats.

Rather Dumb Show

A father and his young son were walking out together, and the boy asked how electricity passed through wires.

"I don't know," said his father. "I never learned much about electricity when I was at school."

"To tell you the truth," replied his father, "I never have understood about that myself."

"Oh, my Dad—," began the boy a little later, and then paused. "Oh, well, never mind—it really doesn't matter."

"Oh, go ahead," said the father. "Ask questions—ask a lot of questions. How else will you learn?"

By GRANTLAND RICE

YOU would think that Tom Yawkey, owner of the Boston Red Sox, after spending so many millions and waiting so many years to win a pennant, would now be a happy, carefree man. From what we hear Yawkey, usually a cool, calm individual in the face of any crisis, is now nervous as a cat on a hot stove. His team has shown no sign of the jitters, but Owner Yawkey has. He apparently can't believe that his dream has a most excellent chance of coming true.

Joe Cronin

As a high-class sportsman in every way and a real lover of baseball, winning a major league pennant became one of Yawkey's obsessions years ago. Money was never a barrier along the pennant road. It is estimated that the Red Sox owner has unloaded over $3,000,000 for the exclusive purpose of finishing in front. The amount may be considerably higher. But his pennant dream kept turning into a nightmare. Something always happened and it was usually to the Yankees.

In the meanwhile Yawkey refused to weaken, much less to quit. He also stuck to his manager Joe Cronin, where the Red Sox, under average baseball ownership, would have known four or five different managers in the last few years. While it was known early this spring that the Red Sox would be good, the Yankees and the Tigers were also in the pennant-race picture. The Yankees with Joe DiMaggio, Charlie Keller, Tommy Henrich, Joe Gordon, Phil Rizzuto, Snuffy Stirnweiss, Bill Dickey, Nick Etten, Johnny Lindell and Spud Chandler shaped up as a formidable looking outfit on both attack and defense. The Tigers, too, looked dangerous.

Many Uncertainties

The Red Sox at the time had several gambles to face; at first, at third, and their pitching staff. They had Tex Hughson and Boo Ferris, but the others were uncertainties, just as Yankee pitchers were outside of Chandler. You can understand, during those March days at Sarasota on the west coast of Florida, why Tom Yawkey should have been a trifle on the jittery side. Tom was—but Joe Cronin wasn't, although Joe knew this had to be his year. Cronin refused to make any predictions beyond saying this: "We've got a good ball club. We'll give anybody a battle."

Now past the midsummer spot with a long lead and the best ball club, you would feel that Tom Yawkey at least should be able to take a deep, free breath and relax. In baseball's greatest year, so far as attendance and public interest goes, with something close to an all-star team in one corral, every one connected with the Red Sox should be able to stand up and sing "Just around the corner there's a rainbow in the sky," or "Happy days are here again."

All of Boston, outside of the Yawkey office, are humming these cheerful tunes. After all Boston, one of the cradles of baseball, has gone 28 years without a pennant. Boston kept looking back these 28 years to the days of Long, Lowe, Duffy, Big Bill Dineen, Smoky Joe Wood, Carrigan, Speaker, George ("Duffy") Lewis, Hooper, including George Stallings' miracle Braves of 1914.

Boston also could look back to a burly fellow by the name of Babe Ruth and a great squad that Harry Frazee sold to New York to make the Yankees famous. It was Boston that gave New York its Yankee fame—Ruth, Penneck, Jumping Joe Dugan, Red Ruffing, these and many more. But Babe Ruth was enough. For 10 years the Yankees without Babe Ruth in his prime, would have been just another ball club. A good one—but not a great one.

Would Have Kept Stars

If Tom Yawkey had been owner of the Red Sox around 1919 or 1920, Boston would have dominated the game through the next decade, not the Yankees. For Yawkey would have kept Ed Barrow, one of the smartest men baseball has ever known. He would have kept Babe Ruth, Red Ruffing and Penneck and many others—and to these he would have added the best ball players a few millions of dollars could buy. This shows you what an owner means to a major league club.

Harry Frazee, a theatrical, not a baseball man, wrecked the Red Sox for at least 10 years. It has taken Tom Yawkey another 10 years to sweep away the debris and replace the damage. He faced an almost impossible job with the Yankees entrenched as they were—largely through Red Sox talent—all those years. From this you can understand why Tom Yawkey and the state city of Boston is so wrought up over the prospect of getting a long-delayed revenge over the Yankees, who robbed them of victory so many times.

A WRONG TWIST

The old Negro drayman's mule had balked in the middle of the road, completely blocking traffic. After working and pleading in vain, the old fellow made his way to a telephone in a nearby farmhouse. Calling his employer in town a few miles away, his conversation went this way: "Boss, ol' Puidin-Head done sulked ag'in. Ye'suh, I's give 'im a whippin'—I's built a fire under 'im, too. "Ye'suh, I done tried tawkin' wid 'im. Don't do no good. I's promised 'im 'bout ever'thing us got in de barn. "Dat's right, I's twisted his ears till dey's knotted lak ribbons. "Nawsuh, I do lak you say—I ain't gonna twist his tail. A gent'mun who driv up an' get out to he'p me done tried dat. Dey's tuk him to de hospital. He looked lak a city-bawn gent-mun."

QUITE A STROLL

The proud mother was telling the absent-minded professor of her wonderful child. "Can he walk?" he asked with affected interest. "Walk? Why, he's been walking now for five months!" "Is that so?" murmured the professor, lapsing into reflection. "What a long way he must have gone!"

Willing to Try

Two farmers had been bargaining over a cow at a leisurely pace for more than an hour. Finally the prospective buyer came flatly to the point. "How much milk does she give?" he asked. "Well," said the cow's owner, "I don't rightly know — ain't never measured what Prunella gives, to tell the truth. But she's good natured—she'll give all she can."

Proof

"Are you positive that the defendant was drunk?" asked the judge. "No doubt," growled the officer. "Why are you so certain?" "Well," replied the officer, "I saw him put a penny in the patrol box on Fourth street, then look up at the clock on the church and shout: 'Good heavens, I've lost 14 pounds!'"

IGNORANCE OF THE LAW

Justice in our early western courts was willing enough, but frequently abysmally ignorant. In a certain California trial, the suspect, having clearly established his innocence of the charge against him by an alibi, had the satisfaction of hearing the prosecuting attorney remark to the court: "I think, your honor, that this trial had better stop right here. The alibi has been fully established." "I think so, myself," replied his honor, with an approving nod; and then, summoning the prosecutor to his side, he said, in a stage whisper which was only too audible throughout the courtroom, "I say, what is the penalty for an alibi?"

A Bit Mazy

A New Yorker who went to live in Boston decided to get rid of an old cat left in his new home by the former tenants. So he put it into a sack and took it clear over on the other side of town and turned it loose in a vacant lot. "Well," remarked a friend, "I suppose you got rid of the cat all right." "Heck, no!" rejoined the new Bostonian. "Say, listen, if I hadn't followed that cat I never would have found my way back home."
