Tawas City Recreation Opens Tonight

Building Enlarged; Ten Alleys

The Tawas City Recreation will open tonight (Friday). Closed since it was badly damaged by fire last February, this popular recreation place opens with ten fine Brunswick alleys and the recreation room handsomely decorated with all modern equipment and fixtures. Charles Moellen, and his son, Harold Moellen, who is associated in the enterprise with him, have one of the finest appearing alleys in the state, comparing favorably with those in the large cities.

Following its damage by fire the building was enlarged to 62x151 feet. Construction on the building has not been completed, but that portion occupied by the recreation room has been finished. A feature is the fine lighting system for the alleys with its central control panel at the desk. The foul line will be observed from a raised box on the left hand side of the alleys. In addition to the candy and cigar counters, a modern low-boy soda bar has been installed.

Built of concrete blocks and steel, the building will again present a handsome appearance when completed. In addition to the lobby, the front of the building contains space for office rooms and for other purposes. The roof of the building is supported by huge steel girders and the recreation room is free from columns or other interior roof supports. Rooms have been built at the side of the main building for the heating plant, and repair department and storage of bowling alley supplies.

Officers of the various bowling leagues of the Tawas Bowling Association meet next Tuesday evening at the Bronson Garage to make arrangements for the coming season. Everyone interested is urged to be present.

SIDES FOR NEXT WAR
PARIS. — Perhaps it has ceased to be news but, even so, it can't be emphasized too often that this so-called peace conference is actually a choosing up of sides for another war unless something vital and electrifying in the way of diplomacy steps in to prevent it.

Events are moving with terrific speed while this conference moves with humdrum slowness. In the Russian zone of Germany, 12 factories are pouring out munitions for the Red army. In Czechoslovakia, the sum of 400 million dollars has been appropriated for munitions — all of a standard type, interchangeable with either the Czech or the Red army. Yugoslavia and Poland also are pouring out standardized Russian arms.

Meanwhile this peace conference talks sonorously, piously of procedure and precedents. Meanwhile, also, the sides are chosen — the line-up, unless heroic measures head it off — for the next war.

The line-up of Russian satellites never varies. In all the conference voting from San Francisco through the United Nations assembly in New York to Paris, Russia's stooges only once voted against their masters in the Kremlin. That was when Byelorussia got its signals crossed. Russia can be absolutely sure of the following votes on every rollcall, come hell or high water: Byelorussia, the Ukraine, Poland, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia.

The line-up on the other side varies. It is significant that the British dominions frequently desert England. This proves there's real democracy in the British empire. Australia and New Zealand vote more than half the time against England; Canada about 50-50. South Africa and India frequently are aligned with England, although not always.

The most forthright leaders of the anti-Soviet bloc are Australia, the Netherlands, Brazil and Belgium.

Note—Most pathetic satellite in the Soviet line-up is Jan Masaryk of Czechoslovakia, now nicknamed "The Prisoner of Zenda." Son of old President Thomas Masaryk, who founded the Czechoslovak republic in Pittsburgh in 1918 under the godfatherhood of Woodrow Wilson, Jan Masaryk's sympathies are all with the United States and Britain. But with his country solidly surrounded by Russia, he votes consistently with the Russian bloc.

ROARING UP MOUNTAINSIDE . . . Racer in the annual Labor Day classic is shown negotiating one of the breath-taking hairpin curves, bordered by rocky walls, which mark the treacherous ascent to 14,110-foot Pikes Peak. In the background can be glimpsed a panorama of the mighty Rockies.

'DADDY OF 'EM ALL'

Spectacular Pikes Peak Speed Classic Revived

By WNU Features

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.—Nature and man have contrived to provide the world's most spectacular and grueling testing grounds for an automobile on Pikes Peak, one of America's most famous mountains, where the annual Labor Day auto races will be revived this year after a wartime lapse.

A record field of big-time drivers is expected to vie for $7,500 in prize money posted for the race against time up the famous Pikes Peak highway, William H. Geister of the Pikes Peak information bureau reports.

Rise of 6,000 Feet.

The highway, known as the "world's most wonderful motor road," is a double track boulevard, 20 to 50 feet wide for the entire distance, and as smooth and even as pavement. Breath-taking hairpin curves mark the entire course, which is noted for the sensational rise of more than 6,000 feet in approximately 12½ miles.

From many points on the course, visitors may look downward thousands of feet to the starting point and watch the speeding demons climb the rock-walled sides of the giant peak to the snow-clad summit above the clouds.

Equally thrilling is the magnificent view, heralded as the most spectacular ever beheld from an automobile. A vast, 300-mile panorama of the mighty Rockies can be viewed from the New Mexico border line on the south, through the entire state of Colorado, to Wyoming on the north. Eastward, the billowy ocean of plains rolls far into Kansas while spread out below like a huge black carpet is the Pike national forest.

Started in 1916.

This year's renewal of the race, the first since 1941, will be on the 30th anniversary of the first race. The Pikes Peak auto hill climb was inaugurated in 1916 by the late Spencer Penrose, millionaire philanthropist of Colorado Springs and the Pikes Peak region.

Since that time, every famous race driver has competed on the famous serpentine course. The annual race classic has grown in popularity and importance until today it ranks with the Memorial Day race at Indianapolis.

Often dubbed the "daddy of 'em all" in the realm of hill climbs, the Pikes Peak race assumes proportions of an international event with cars and drivers entered from foreign countries as well as the United States.

Undergo Severe Strain.

As the racers roar up the steep slopes of Pikes Peak, their vehicles undergo terrific tests which are used by manufacturers as the basis for new car improvements. From the tires to the spark plugs, the test of strength and stamina is more intensive than any required of a regular passenger car.

The graveled roadbed with its hairpin curves and steep grades is a severe test for tires. The climb of 6,000 feet in a short distance demands expert performance for carburetion, cooling, ignition, spark plugs, wiring and other parts of the motor, as well as a real test of oil and gas.

Thorne to Compete.

Among the big-time drivers scheduled to compete in this year's classic are Joel Thorne, wealthy California racing enthusiast whose car won the Indianapolis Memorial day race; George Berringer, famous Indianapolis racer; Louis Unser, six times winner of the Pikes Peak race, who set the race record of 15 minutes, 34½ seconds in 1941; Rene LeBeque and Jean Treveaux, well-known French racers; Al Rogers and Johnny Morrow.

Of the total prize money of $7,500, first place winner will receive $3,000. Six prizes are posted, $2,000 going to second, $1,000 to third, $750 to fourth, $500 to fifth and $250 to sixth.

'Ham' Show Is Instrumental In Revamping Georgia Town

By E. L. KIRKPATRICK
WNU Features

Thirty years amidst hams and eggs is the reward of Otis S. Oneal, Negro extension worker at Fort Valley, Ga. Annually Oneal guides the farmers around Fort Valley, county seat town of 5,000, in staging a food show at which 500 to 600 home-cured hams are exhibited. This is in addition to more than 300 pieces of other cured meats and 250 dozen eggs packed in fancy cartons.

These topnotch hams come from hind quarters of peanut-fed or other well-nurtured hogs. They are the products of thrifty farm families in central Georgia who started out to lick the boll weevil through increased emphasis on diversified farming. Festeoned around the stage, they make a show that smells as good as it looks; in fact, the aroma permeates the entire school auditorium where the exhibit is held, while visitors look and talk and smell.

Present Program.

Among main events of Ham and Egg Show week, usually held in the spring, are a demonstration program on foods for housewives, roundtable discussion on ham and egg production, home-written and produced pageant in which "The Hog, Hen and Mule Speak," and joint barbecue and folk music festival. Each number draws its share of the 1,000 or more visitors but laurels go to the afternoon and evening festival of secular music where players of banjos, guitars, mouth harps and many improvised instruments attract the attention of regional and national musicians. W. H. Handy, composer of "St. Louis Blues," has become a constant attendant at the show.

Interspersed between the various major events are quartet and choir selections of old spirituals and circular folk ballads. All are preceded by a curtain riser of Negro folk songs by the school children, "Chula-hu," "Just From the Country" or "Old Dinah's Dad."

Boosts Community.

In fostering this show during the past 30 years, Oneal and his co-workers practically have remade the town and its trade area.

"Off We Go" AVIATION NOTES

MANY VETS FLYING

Representing nearly one-third of total airline employment, more than 25,000 employees of United States scheduled airlines are veterans of World War II, figures compiled by the Air Transport association reveal. The veterans are working in a variety of jobs, ranging from flight and ground operations to sales and administrative positions.

While a considerable number of the airlines' war veteran employees are men and women who left the lines to serve with the armed forces and have returned to their old jobs, a much larger number are new employees hired under the policy adopted by the airlines to give preference to servicemen and women.

Several companies have inaugurated courses designed for rehabilitation of the physically handicapped, one concern reporting that it can use regularly as many as 1,000 veterans with amputations.

Courses of instruction also are provided in flight and ground operations, communications, maintenance and general administrative work.

In addition to veterans employed by airlines in this country, ATA member airlines operating in Alaska, Canada and the Caribbean area employ an additional 1,900 World War II veterans.

UP IN AIR

Mrs. Henrietta McGinnis, 72, of Chicago, went "up in the air" over the double wedding of her grandson and granddaughter in Minneapolis. She used the event as an excuse for taking her first plane ride, "something I've wanted to do for years," she added.

SOARING HIGH

Captured German gliders, including one reputed to be the only "flying wing" model, attracted widespread interest at the 13th annual national soaring contest at Elmira, N. Y. Some of the captured gliders were flown at the meet while others were only on display.

Army gliders of the type used in airborne operations during the war were towed by gallant old Boeing B-17 flying fortresses and tough little Douglas C-47s.

SKY GIANTS . . . A fleet of four-engine double-deck Boeing strato-cruisers of the type shown here has been ordered by United Airlines for use on its nationwide system and newly-authorized route to Hawaii.

FLYING HAZARD

Add to your list of flying hazards—birds. They are considered a definite danger even with bullet-proof windshields. Airlines pilots reported collisions with birds at the rate of two a day during 1944. Planes frequently encounter flocks of waterfowl, especially in migratory seasons, resulting in considerable damage to equipment. Most feared by pilots is the eagle. Weighing up to 15 pounds, the eagle will swoop down and dive smack through a steel wing.

Treason Trials Not New in War

Connecticut Native Hanged In 1777 for Joining Enemy Forces.

HARTFORD, CONN. — Treason trials and the judgment that the one convicted shall die by hanging are not new in wartime in this country.

Connecticut had a treason trial in Revolutionary war days and it resulted in the sentencing of a man to be hanged in Hartford. The man was Moses Dunbar of Waterbury, caught by patriot leaders as a Tory and used, according to "Anderson's History of Waterbury," as an object lesson to others who might have too strong a leaning toward Great Britain's German king, George III.

Dunbar joined the Church of England as a young man despite objections by his father and held to that faith until his death, says the Hartford Courant. In the war he found he could not, without violating his principles, fight against England. He went to Long Island, was offered a commission in Gen. Sir William Howe's army and accepted. When he returned to Waterbury to arrange for transfer of his wife and family to Long Island he was arrested, tried and ordered to be hanged.

Document Found in 1880.

In 1880, in an old house in Hartwinton, Conn., a document was found bearing the signature of Moses Dunbar and believed to be his last written words before he went to the scaffold. The first part of the document was addressed to his children, exhorting them to remember their Creator, hold fast to their religion and "Love the Savior wherever you may be."

Proceeding with his statement to the world at large, Dunbar's document says he was born in Wallingford, Conn., and married in Farmington, Conn., to Phebe Jearman. "From the time that the present unhappy misunderstanding between Great Britain and the colonies began, I freely confess," the document relates, "I could never reconcile my opinion to the necessity or lawfulness of taking up arms against Great Britain."

"Having spoken somewhat freely on the subject, I was attacked by a mob of about 40 men, very much abused, my life threatened and very nearly taken away, by which mob I was obliged to sign a paper containing falsehoods. May 20, 1776, my wife deceased, in full hope of future happiness."

"The winter preceding this trial has been a time of distress with us. I had now concluded to entering into a voluntary confinement within the limits of my farm, and making proposals of that nature, when I was carried before the committee and by them ordered to suffer imprisonment during their pleasure, not exceeding five months."

Found Guilty of Treason.

"When I had remained there about 14 days, the authority of New Haven dismissed me. Finding my life uneasy and as I had reason to apprehend, in great danger, I thought it my safest method to flee to Long Island, which I accordingly did."

"But having a desire to see my friends and children and being under engagement of marriage with her who is my wife, I returned and was married. Having a mind to remove my wife and family to Long Island as a place of safety, I went there a second time, to prepare matters accordingly. When there I accepted a captain's warrant for the king's service in Colonel Fanning's regiment."

"I was tried in Hartford on Thursday, January 23, 1777, for high treason against the State of Connecticut. I was adjudged guilty, and on the Saturday following was brought to the bar of the court and received sentence of death."

"The time of my suffering was afterwards fixed to be the 19th day of March, 1777—which tremendous and awful day now draws near."

Jet-Propelled Fighter

Passes Dogfight Tests

LONDON.—British air sources in London said their new jet-propelled fighter, a guinea pig plane with swept-back wings resembling those of a swallow, had passed its mock dogfight tests with a Mosquito impressively.

Named by the De Havilland company, its manufacturers, as the D.H. 108, "The Swallow" is equipped with a De Havilland goblin turbo-jet engine, developing 12,000 horsepower.

It has neither tail plane nor elevators. Company officials said the ailerons at the wing tip performed the functions of elevators and were known as elevons.

Plans for Two Luxury

Liners Are Abandoned

WASHINGTON.—The maritime commission abandoned, at President Truman's request, immediate plans to spend $34,800,000 for construction of two luxury liners to operate between this country and South America.

Reconversion Director Steelman advised the commission the President wanted the construction awards held up for at least a year.

Oscar Purkey to Trygve Lie

"Mr. Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the United Nations, says U.N. has not succeeded in capturing the imagination and harnessing the enthusiasms of the peoples of the world."—News item.

Dear Trygve:

Me being a G.I. in the recent global shindig and having high hopes about the U. N. making breach of the peace unpopular, I am interested in your coming right out and admitting that it ain't so hot so far. The U. N. has not only not captured no imaginations, it has not even made contact with them.

And as a harnesser of enthusiasms it looks like most of the time it could not tell a horse collar from a fly net. And what is the trouble? I will tell you, Mr. Lie. There is no color, no zipper, no showmanship and no wallop in the routine. This U. N. has got the biggest chance in the world, it has got the center of the stage and extra spotlights and it is duller than another musical comedy interpretive ballet.

First of all why does it make so much fuss about a permanent home when it should be too busy to be home much anyhow and how does it expect to harness the enthusiasms of people living in one-story bungalows and Quonset huts all over the world when it keeps issuing maps where it would like to have maybe 40 acres of choice real estate including manor houses, mountain views, cross ventilation and swimming rights? I tell you as just another guy getting humped-backed living in a Quonset without even a shower that the U. N. would harness my enthusiasm faster if it could give me the idea it didn't need so much de luxe real estate.

You and the boys just grab yourself a few Quonsets here and there, do your laundry in the sink and be satisfied with one pot of geraniums for landscaping and you will make a hit with the peoples of the world okay.

And for the luvvapee put on some counterattraction to crab this Gromyko's act. If you want to capture imaginations do something about Mister Veto even if you have to fix it to bring in some delegates on our side, like Frankie Sinatra, Bob Hope, Hedy Lamarr. The world is pretty soft in the head and as all it goes for in a big way now is light stuff and crime you have got to get some big amusement world names in the show.

Look at the newspapers, the front pages are full of pictures of boy bandits, flagpole brides and 12-year-old gunmolls. Couldn't you fix it to have some of these kid out-laws stick up a meeting of U. N. and maybe have a delegate from Australia on top of a flagpole over U. N. headquarters so you could get immediate attention by people everywhere?

You will not capture no imaginations and harness no enthusiasms nowhere unless you do.

Yours with best wishes,
OSCAR PURKEY.

Ceremony Marks Centennial of Flag-raising

MONTEREY, CALIF. — To commemorate the 100th anniversary of first hoisting of the United States flag over California soil, an historic flag-raising ceremony was held here. The Stars and Stripes were first flown by Com. John D. Sloat at Monterey 100 years ago.

The flag was broken out on an exact replica of the pole of Monterey pine put up by Sloat's forces, and it was erected in the same rock cairn that supported the original one. Remains of that staff and cairn recently were discovered in excavations at the old Customs House.

A 40-year-old tree from the Del Monte forest was selected to correspond with the measurements provided by Col. Roger S. Fitch, president of Monterey History and Art association, and Dr. D. T. MacDougal of Carmel, retired director of Carnegie institution and authority on history.

Hospital Diagnoses Patient's Ailment

As 'Broken Heart'

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—Hospital treatment for a broken heart was requested—and received—by a sad patient entering the accident ward of Atlantic City hospital.

Wesley Mingo, 30, New York railroad worker, at first complained only of acute "chest pains." After denying any previous history of heart or lung ailments, the patient said the pain might emanate from a broken heart.

He explained that he came to the resort city to marry a girl, but they quarreled and parted. The physician prescribed a mild sedative, and Mingo left for the boardwalk, his broken heart apparently improved.

Marine Insists War 'Chow' Is Appreciated

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—Two inseparable marine buddies have returned to Salt Lake City.

When William F. Simons, former private first class, returned to civilian life, he was accompanied by "McGregor," combination chow and police dog which was dubbed a "sergeant" in the marines.

The dog served as a night sentry at Bremerton, Wash., marine base. His former master was killed.

DON'T MISS A TRICK

Chief trouble with the American delegation at this peace conference is that it lets the opposing team take too many bases on balls and steal second too many times. Meanwhile, the Russians are on the umpire's neck, yelling themselves hoarse over every close decision.

They don't miss a trick. If a hunt down the first baseline is called a "foul," the Russians will argue until blue in the face that it was a fair ball. Finally, the opposing side gets tired of wrangling and arguing and gives in.

MOLOTOFF COCKTAIL

The hard-hitting, mercurial foreign minister of Russia has changed his tactics a lot since the United Nations conference at San Francisco. Also, since the council of foreign ministers in London last September.

At Paris, Molotoff is playing his cards more carefully. Perhaps he realizes that public opinion has crystallized against Russia. At any rate, instead of hurling Molotoff cocktails when things go against him, he has been outwardly calm.

BIG CITY ADVERTISING PROVIDES 'FREE' LESSONS
CARSON, PIRIE, SCOTT & CO., of Chicago, operates a State street department store with sales running into many millions of dollars each year. That volume of sales is attracted through the store's advertising, appearing every day in the Chicago daily papers.

One of the highest paid executives of that store is the advertising manager. He knows sales psychology; what will cause people to buy. He knows the what, when and how of effective advertising. Every paragraph, every sentence, every phrase and every word of the copy of his advertising is carefully weighed in the scales of his trained ability.

Some 100 miles west of Chicago is a good country town of some 1,500 people, surrounded by a trade territory in which there are another 1,500 to 2,000 people. That town has several good stores with adequate stocks of merchandise to meet the requirements of the people of that community, but whose sales do not represent anything like all the purchases of the town and its trade territory.

No store in that town does, or could expect to do, a large enough business to warrant the employment of a capable, efficient advertising manager. The newspaper of the town would profit from the employment of such a man as would know the what, when and how of advertising by each of those local merchants. The publisher bewails the fact that he does not get the advertising he should because the merchants do not possess the know-how of effective advertising.

It has not occurred to either those merchants, or to that publisher that the extremely capable advertising manager employed by Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., is showing them every day, every week, what to advertise, when to advertise, and how to advertise the merchandise they have to offer. That advertising manager cannot cover up his ability. He displays it in every ad carried by the Chicago dailies. Through that advertising, circulated in that local town and its trade territory, through the distribution of Chicago daily papers in the community, Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. is attracting sales to the people that might be buying in the home stores. Advertising of equal effectiveness would keep much of that business at home.

What is true of Chicago and that local Illinois town, is equally true of all sections of the nation. It is a condition that could be remedied to some extent, at least, if both the merchants and the publishers would but watch, and imitate, the advertising methods and copy of the effective advertising managers employed by the large stores of the nearest cities. Each day and each week these high salaried, capable men offer, for all to see, examples of what, when and how advertising, the kind that sells merchandise. These examples can easily be applied to the stocks offered by the local stores, by either the merchants or the publisher. It would mean increased profits for both.

EUROPEAN NATIONS TRY TO 'BLACKMAIL' UNITED STATES

UNCLE SAM, it would seem, has become the victim of blackmail on the part of European nations. They know we wish to preserve world peace, with no reparations or territorial demands, other than a few small islands in the Pacific as naval and air bases. They are willing to co-operate so long as we keep on paying. "Pay, or we start shooting," is the demand and threat. England would have us pay for peace in Palestine, Russia would have us finance her reparation bill against Italy, Greece, Austria, Hungary, France and others are demanding American dollars to keep them quiet and peaceable. It might be well to show them a few battleships and atom bombs, and call their bluff. We have done most of the fighting in the effort to establish world peace for everybody. There is a limit and we have passed that limit.

THE TWO CENTS TAX on each dollar of wages earned—one cent paid by the worker and one by the employer—has been enough to meet all the expense of social security. In addition, it has produced a large surplus, represented by government IOUs. To increase the tax beyond the present two cents could mean only that the government is seeking additional general revenues to meet the federal deficit, or have more money to spend.

CLAIMS WORLD'S SMALLEST COLT . . . Whoever heard of a 15-pound colt? But seeing is believing and above is "Cricket," 15 pounds of long legs, fuzzy hair and frisky tail. They are shown with their owner, Homer Houser, Dayton, Ohio, who raises colts and shows them at fairs.

ALREADY MAKING THEIR MARK ON THE WORLD . . . Piloted by nurse Anne Lambiase, baby Marie Elena records her footprint on the hospital birth certificate, at the Long Island College hospital, Brooklyn, where the 22,000th mark was passed. At right, babies Marie Elena and Mildred Ann are initiated into the blackfoot tribe and seem contented. Movement has been underway for some time.

EXPARATROOPERS GO RIGHT ON 'CHUTING . . . When Lucius Rucker, left, and Fred Cole got out of the army, they thought they were through with parachutes. They had trained and dropped some 5,000 agents behind enemy lines in World War II.

WHALE OF A FISH—STORY! . . . Mildred Knight, Chicago, is amazed (and so are we) by the extremely rare "fur fish" exhibited by Pat Wilsie, Boulder Junction, Wis. The fur fish is one of three hippocampus specimens on record and there won't be another for 50 years. Wilsie is a member of the Burlington Liars club and claims the fish weighed 13 pounds when caught in waters 50 to 60 degrees below zero. It was 2 feet 6 1/2 inches long.

BROKE LA FOLLETTE TRADITION . . . For the first time in 40 years, a La Follette will not be a member of the U. S. senate at next session. This was assured by the defeat of Sen. U. N.'s Food Organization Discusses World Problems

FARM leaders, agricultural experts and government officials interested in agriculture are placing great stress on the outcome of the meeting of the food and agricultural organization of United Nations, which opened its fourth session in Copenhagen on September 2. The session likely will last approximately two weeks.

Organized in the United States, the FAO has held three organizational meetings, one in Mexico City, another in South America and the third in Canada. This fourth meeting is in Denmark.

Each of the national farm organizations has one representative at the meeting to press for the production and distribution plans which were the result of the recent international agricultural meeting in London. The state department, as this is written, has not announced names of the American official delegates, but the department of agriculture already has designated several men who will become, along with farm organization leaders, a part of the American advisory group. These include Under-Secretary of Agriculture Dodd, production and marketing administration's Shields, Wells of the bureau of agricultural economics, Bowles (not Chester) of the foreign agricultural relations department, Lambert of agricultural research and Stiebeling of home economics.

This meeting of FAO will hatch the first long range program for world agriculture, based upon a worldwide survey, which has just been completed and which includes 70 countries.

John Orr of Scotland, director general of FAO, will present the proposals for this food program which, if adopted, will be laid before the meeting of United Nations at its scheduled meeting in October.

Many Smaller Meetings

This program is the result of exploration into the reasons for surpluses and shortages in world food supply, and is expected to contain provisions for preventing the recurrence of such conditions. In the meantime, committees of the organization have been holding meetings in various European cities on such questions as diet, nutritional goal, possible changes in production to meet the goal, a current appraisal of the food situation in all the countries of the world, economics and statistics, forestry and agricultural production and research. Reports on these various phases of the agricultural picture will be presented to the meeting for rejection, adoption or modification.

Farm leaders here are convinced that the future of American agriculture is closely bound with world agriculture, and that never again can the United States draw within her shell with a policy of isolation.

Our own agricultural market is so sensitive that it will be governed largely by world agricultural production, prices and distribution. No longer can our expanded production depend upon the domestic market for consumption.

Seventy countries are now members of the FAO and two new countries, Italy and Switzerland, are expected to apply for membership at the Copenhagen meeting.

In connection with the economics and statistics report, it might be well to consider the recent report of the bureau of economics of the agriculture department, supplemented by findings of the Federal Reserve board, to the effect that some 32 million families in this country still are earning less than $3,000 per year. If that figure is true in this country, and it undoubtedly is, think what the meager income must be of untold millions of families of the rest of the world.

Most People Have Little

Despite the fact that the American people have savings of something like 81 billion dollars in bank deposits, currency and government bonds . . . yet 70 per cent of the American people have little or nothing saved for the inevitable rainy day . . . the saving being concentrated in the upper income brackets . . . the people who take in $10,000 or more a year, and who were well off before the war.

So the war, which poured hundreds of billions of dollars into the pockets of the American people, still left the country with the income divided just about as it was before the war. What then must be the plight of European and Asiatic countries?

So distribution, surplus and price too, at this important meeting of FAO will be one of the major factors to be discussed in any long range agricultural program, in which feeding of the world's population is the most essential job before the organization.

Former Tawas Man Has Early Auto Experience

Laugh at the wheezing "one lungies" or the early horseless carriage days if you will, but let there be no levity, when you consider certain automotive specimens dating back as far as vintage 1909. So says Luther Johnson, whose cabin beautifully situated on the north shore of the Little Muskegon river at Croton can rank as one of the real show places of this section. Luther should know, for he's handled automobiles, ornery and otherwise, whose origins go back to the year 1903.

It was actually on July 5, 1906, that he bought his first car. But that was a 1903 model, a Cadillac, bearing engine bearing engine No. 356, that stamped it one of the genuine pioneers in the long and honorable line of productions turned out by that firm of motor car entrepreneurs.

But the 1909 gas buggy that he purchased next, also a Cadillac; there was the car! It might well have served as the original inspiration for the old expression, "Pardon my dust," that 1909 model was capable of hitting a top speed of 70 miles per hour.

Went 45 MPH in Second
 Either in low gear or reverse, you could ramble along at 20 miles an hour, in second the speed could be stepped up to 45. Of course with the lack of improved roads at the time, there'd be little chance of putting the machine to that kind of test; the modern highway systems that make for safety in driving at higher speeds were then far in the future.

A resident of Tawas City, on the eastern side of the state above Bay City at the time he had his first adventures in motoring, he recalls that his was the third car owned in Isosco county. The other two were Fords, purchased by Dr. Charles V. Crane, now a brain specialist in Grand Rapids, and a Dr. Darling, who is now deceased.

When the one-cylinder contraption was wheeled off the boat, being shipped from Detroit, it was the object of considerable curiosity and not a little concern, for horses and drivers didn't take kindly to the fearsome racket set up by these new-fangled contraptions. He took the bus out for its "initial spin" next day and, you guessed it, he walked home.

Goes to 'Get a Horse'
 He didn't exactly walk home, that is, but was forced rather to jog home five miles by foot to get a team of horses that would drag the car back to its base. It required something of a mechanical wizard to understand the nature of the "beast" and there weren't any experts around. So, it was the general practice to write directly to the manufacturer for instructions.

Gasoline wasn't available in the town where he lived and had to be transported in cans by boat; later it was brought by railway from Bay City. The cars of the day, priced extremely high, came without "accessories" whatever. If you wanted lights, a windshield, top or such incidentals, that would be extra.

There were compensating features though. That 1903 model which he drove until 1909 averaged 42 miles to the gallon of gasoline. License plates as we know them now were non-existent. For the first set, he merely bought ordinary house numbers and tacked them onto a card. Wilfred Grise, the town blacksmith, attached the hard rubber tires for him in much the same manner that he used in placing wagon tires.

Has owned Eight Cars
 Quite a considerable degree of advancement had been reached in the 1909 Cadillac that he purchased next. This model had a five-bearing crankshaft, two complete sets of ignition and single tube tires that were fastened to the rims with bolts. The sets of Bosch and Splidtdorf spark-plugs were still working perfectly when he sold the car several years later.

Since those days, he has owned successively a Saxon and Six, Willys Knight, Chrysler 70 and 75 models, a 1935 Olds and the Buick which he now drives. One of his early automotive memories is of a race at the Isosco county fair in 1906, competing with the two doctors, a race incidentally which he and his 1903 Cadillac won.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson moved to Detroit in 1925, but the following year while on a trip through this region spotted their ideal home site at Croton, shortly built a small cabin and later made additions. Eventually they made that their regular residence. One remarkable record, of which Mrs. Johnson is particularly proud, is that which he holds of never being involved in even the slightest accident and having not so much as a parking ticket in his 40 years' driving. And that is a record at which to shoot.

ANTICIPATE HEAVY LABOR DAY TRAFFIC

Anticipating a surge of holiday traffic and accidents over the Labor Day week-end, Automobile Club of Michigan today joined police and other safety agencies in a plea "take it easy" on the state highways and city streets.
"Our record in the past ten years for the three or four days which usually comprise a Labor Day week-end," said Ernest P. Davis, Auto Club Safety and Traffic Director. "During this last big holiday week-end for motorists, it is hoped that every effort will be made to make it easy while driving or walking."
Davis emphasized that more cars will be on the road this week-end than anytime since 1941 and that most of them are more than six years old.
He listed six suggestions to insure a safe and sane motor holiday:
1. Take it Easy. Don't weave in and out of traffic. Maintain a steady driving pace without excessive speed or racing spurts in traffic.
2. Don't drive on the wrong side of the road. Keep to the right—particularly on curves.
3. Don't pass on hills, curves or at street intersections.
4. Get an early start, going and coming, to avoid tension in crowded traffic. Rest when necessary to overcome fatigue.

W. N. U. RELEASE

THE STORY THUS FAR: Sherwin reached the unconscious Stenhart, and painfully regained the ledge. He looked down to see the tree which had held his cousin fall into the stream below. The sheriff waited for the two men, then put the handcuffs on Sherwin. Stenhart regained consciousness, and supported by Jim began the descent. "I can't understand it," Stenhart said; "he was going to kill me." Jim reminded him that Sherwin had saved his life. A sharp report came from the thicket and Stenhart crumpled. He had been shot. The posse fired into the bushes and killed the man who fired. It was Jordan! Stenhart was taken to the ranch house and a doctor summoned. The nurse said he was dying.

CHAPTER XI

Shocked and dismayed, Jim hustled his sister into the old hall. Unconsciously he dropped into the chair at his desk. "I wish to heaven the doctor would get here!" he exclaimed roughly.

"He started at once—as soon as I phoned," Jane replied absently, touching the old desk affectionately; she remembered Sherwin there.

Jim, huddled in the chair, ruminated. "Jordan must have got us confused in the storm—he was a crack shot. Poor Max—it was for me and he got it!"

Jane said nothing; her hands were clasped on the desk. The wind swept the door open and drove the rain across the hall. Her brother rose and forced it shut, bolting it. Then he turned on her, at the limit of his patience.

"Good Lord, Jane, haven't you a heart? Max is dying—he loves you! You're—you're a perfect stick, standing there and staring in front of you!"

She looked up and her white face twitched with pain. "I'm sorry for Max, but I'm thinking of the man he sent to—a living death!"

Jim bit his lip. "Look here, Jane, he's a brave man, I acknowledge it, but he's been convicted of a cruel crime; you've got to let him drop!" "He's not guilty," she said firmly; "I'll never believe him guilty. No guilty man would have done that splendid thing—he saved his accuser!"

"Fine, I grant it. Nevertheless, he goes back to jail for life—you understand that, Jane? For life!"

"Not if there's any way on earth that I can save him!" she cried passionately.

"You!" Jim spoke with brotherly scorn.

"You can help, too, Jim," she went on, not heeding his derision. "Delay them, keep him here—and give him a chance to escape!"

"To what purpose?" Jim asked her dryly. "To be a fugitive anywhere, to hide away somewhere, in South America, perhaps, under a false name, hunted, advertised for, never to know a moment's peace—a condemned murderer! Bah, I'd rather go to jail! There's no capital punishment in his state."

"You've never been in jail!" Jane retorted. "And you—you phoned for Cutler, you know you did!"

"Stenhart—" Jim began, and stopped.

"Oh, I know!" Jane's gesture was eloquent.

Jim, remembering the man suspended between the ledge and eternity, to save his enemy, began to walk up and down the hall. Jane dropped into his vacant chair and laid her head on the desk. She could hear the fury of the wind outside. It grew dusky, too, in the old hall, for the day was passing swiftly; tomorrow—

"I'm sorry, but I can't do a thing!" said Jim hoarsely.

She made no reply. A shiver ran through her; tomorrow he would be on his way east! There is so little in a day—and so much. Then, suddenly, she heard Fanny's voice calling to Jim. Her brother answered hurriedly, went into the sickroom and the door closed behind him.

For the first time Jane was alone. She straightened herself in the old worn chair and looked about her. In the daygloom of the old hall she saw only shadows here and there. A clock ticked loudly over the desk, and it seemed to remind her of the brevity of the span of life. The rain no longer beat with such fury on the window-panes, but the wind shrieked and howled in the distant canyons. Sherwin was in the other building still. The men were there; she could see Jose and Pete Rooney rubbing down their horses in the open door of the stable. She rose cautiously and fled softly down the hall, past Stenhart's closed door; it seemed to her that she heard voices but she did not stop to listen. She opened a little side-door that led past the kitchen and ran into the rain. It was falling lightly now; the gray clouds had broken on the distant ranges and the high peaks shone in clear weather. It seemed almost like a promise, this lifting of the clouds, and she called Mac softly.

The old man emerged from his quarters with a long face. "You mustn't get wet, Jane, better run back," he warned.

But she caught at his sleeve with shaking hands. "Mac, I've got to see him!"

MacDowell hesitated. "He's got guards alongside of him, Jane; it ain't no place for you—"

She lifted her blue eyes steadily to his. "Mac, I must see him—it's—" she choked—"it's the last time!"

The old man looked away, swallowing hard. He had known Jane when she was five years old; he hated to see her face now.

"Quick, Mac, I've only got a little while—they may call me back—they think Stenhart's very bad!"

Her hands, on his arm, shook, and he felt them. Reluctantly, he led the way into the long low building; Jane caught a glimpse of the vacuqueros at supper and, with them, some men who belonged to Cutler's posse. But Mac got her past them to a door in the end of the room. There was a moment of delay and then it was opened. Mac had spoken to Cutler and the guard came out and sat down outside the door as Jane went in alone. The little room, with its one tiny window-slit, too small for a man's body to pass through, was dim with the coming of dusk, but she saw the tall man who sat at the little table, a tray of untasted food before him, his head upon his hands. Expecting no one whom he cared to see, he did not even look up and the despair in his attitude went to her heart. She thought of him, as she had seen him, brave and free, going down on that thin rope over the abyss to save his enemy! A proud light shone suddenly in her blue eyes, and she came close to him.

"John!" she said softly. He raised his head and their eyes met. For an instant he seemed dazed, then he rose to his feet.

"You've come to me—a prisoner?"

"I saw you," she said; "I'm so proud of you!"

He drew a long breath. "Jane, you did it! I'd vowed to kill him—I'd tracked him like a murderer—I had nothing in my heart but hate. I was waiting to kill him when you came up there, but when I found you cared, your touch drove out the poison—I couldn't do it!"

She looked up proudly. "You didn't know yourself, John, even I didn't know you, for when I saw you there, waiting for him, I thought you'd kill him. But it was never really in your heart, John Sherwin, for you're a brave man—no brave man is a murderer! You've—made good."

He smiled bitterly. "You forget what I am!"

"No, I remember! Some day it will come right; the truth can't be always hidden. I'll believe in you always!"

Emotion choked him, then, in a broken voice: "It means only misery for you to care; I'm as good as a dead man. Forget me, Jane, be happy!"

"Never," she answered softly. "Always I'll remember—until we meet again!"

He held her hands in a grip that almost hurt them, looking down into her brave eyes.

"You gave up your chance for him—and he's dying, John, Jordan's shot will kill him."

Sherwin was dumb, his head bowed in utter despair.

"Oh, if I could only get you out!" she murmured brokenly, then with sudden hope. "I've thought of a way—there used to be a shuttered window back here—" she ran to the wall, feeling it—"it's here—you're strong—come!" she whispered.

His heart leaped. Liberty! It would not give her to him, but free, he might carve out a destiny, retrieve something yet. His hands actually shook as he followed her guidance. In the darkening room he could just see the fastenings, old and covered with dust, half papered over. It resisted and he drew his table fork—they had not allowed him a knife—along the crevices. At last he released the shutter, turned it softly and looked out. He faced an open slope and the light from another window streamed across it. Sherwin drew back with a grim smile.

"They've beaten us, Jane!"

A man was sitting there, with his rifle across his knees. The sheriff, having caught a jail-breaker, was taking no chances.

Jane was crying bitterly now, but Sherwin tried to comfort her.

"At best, I'd have been only a hunted fugitive, dear girl; we must part—" He could not go on. Her sobs shook him with an even deeper emotion.

There came a soft knock at the door and old Mac's voice, a bit husky. "Time's up, Jane, an' the doc's here; he says Stenhart's dyin'—they want you!"

"God keep you!" Sherwin said hoarsely; all other words failed.

The girl, blind with tears, stumbled out, old Mac holding her up.

"They're callin' for you, Jane," the old man explained. "I had to come all fired quick. Jim's got th' sheriff an' two others, two that come with th' posse. Teresa's sayin' prayers with two candles in th' kitchen an' Ah Ling's outside, chatterin' something awful in Chinese."

As he spoke he guided the faltering girl on to the veranda and opened the door. A flood of light streamed out. Jim was sitting sumpily at his desk, sagged in his chair. Beside him towered the big sheriff, and a deputy was writing something on a paper at the table. Jane, coming in, half dazed and blind with weeping, felt Fanny's arms go around her.

"He's dead, Jane; it's over—Jim, tell her!"

Jim, speechless, made a sign to Cutler. "You do it!"

But the big sheriff had lost his nerve; he only made motions with his lips like chewing. It was Fanny who drew Jane down beside her on a bench by the door.

"He told us before he died, Jane," she said, "and the deposition was taken—'he confessed to the murder of his uncle. It was done in the garden; the man who swore that Max was with him at the time was a perjurer, paid by Max. His uncle quarreled with him and told him that he was going to change his will and leave every cent he had to Sherwin. Max broke out, they quarreled violently, and the old man struck him with his cane, as he would a little boy. Infuriated, Max snatched the pruning-knife and struck back without thinking. He killed him! He ran out and hid, saw Sherwin come, and the scheme to save himself and get the money leaped into his crazed brain. He swore to a lie to save himself; he framed it all up—Sherwin was utterly innocent!"

For a moment Jane neither moved nor spoke. She hid her face in her hands.

"Oh, Fanny, think of all those years!" she gasped at last.

Fanny nodded. "I know! Max used to tell us in his delirium; Teresa heard it, too. I thought it was the worry of the trial—delirium, fever dreams—but old Teresa always believed it!"

Jim, who had not spoken at all, rose suddenly and went out. With him went the sheriff and his deputies. The two girls were alone. Fanny, trying to still Jane's broken sobs, put her arms about her again.

"He's suffered so much!" Jane said, "and he gave up his chance to escape today to save Max! Think of it, to save the man who had ruined him!"

Fanny touched her softly on the shoulder. "Look up, Jane!"

The girl lifted her head. The door stood open and on the threshold, erect and radiant, stood Sherwin.

Economize on Clothing Budget By Making Youngster's Garments

By Ertta Haley

WHAT is more fun than sewing for children entering school? Nothing, that I can think of right at the moment, because these youngsters usually have such fine, healthy bodies, basically good figures, clear skin, and bright eyes. They look so perfect in almost anything you turn out, that it's a pleasure to sew for them.

Youngsters go through their clothing so rapidly, or outgrow it so quickly, that home sewing for them is a necessity. Not only can yard goods be made up into attractive dresses, but many other things can be remodeled to fit quick as a wink.

Styles in young girls' dresses vary little from year to year, so if you have two or three good basic patterns, these can be used over and over again.

You'll discover that your little girl is very style-conscious, not of grown-up styles so much, but in her own age and social group. She wants to wear dresses like her friends, the same type, if not the same fabric. Don't steer too far off that course if you want to keep her happy.

For school dresses and outfits, your best choices of material are velveteen, light-weight woolsens and plaids. For warm fall days, cotton will still be the choice.

Styling Important in Youngster's Garment

Though basic styles do not change much from year to year in this age group, little girls have fads and fancies which you'll do well to follow. If they should like wide ribbon trimming or bows, or a certain kind of ric rac, then let them have their own way to keep peace in the family.

Princess styles are very becoming on the younger figure. If you plan to have a button front on them, the little girl will be much more able to dress herself, and will require little help from you during rials for both jumpers and blouses. Remember that these will have to be washed constantly, and they should be easy to iron.

Popular Jumper

Any girl who is handy with a needle can make this jumper, a perennial favorite, for less than five dollars. The fabric recommended for it is a rayon and aralac with a wool finish.

Another must for the younger wardrobe is a skirt, or preferably several skirts to be worn with blouses and sweaters and even contrasting jackets when the weather becomes cool. Plaids are very popular with the younger set and these are easy to run off on the sewing machine.

If you are considering a suit for the young girl, make it very sporty for everyday wear. By that I mean have a loose jacket with a pleated skirt. Work in soft woolsens or all wool or part wool plaids. Both the jacket and skirt in such a suit may be worn separately with other things, of course.

Another good idea for a suit is the ever popular bolero style. This can be worked out attractively for the younger girl if you trim the hem of the skirt and the edges of the jacket in bright wool binding of a contrasting color, or even a decorative braided wool.

Whenever you sew with woolsens, remember these three pointers: Cut larger than average seams so that the material will not ravel. If the woolen does not tend to run and ravel, pinking shears may be used. Secondly, always press out the seams after they are sewed, and have them lie flat.

The third has to do with finishing the seam. Most woolen seams should be overcast and finished with a binding tape so there is no opportunity for raveling and loose yarns.

Know-How on Fabrics

A number of chemical processes are now used on fabrics which give certain types of finishes. It is essential to know them because care of the garment differs with its finish.

A resin process makes certain fabrics—cottons and rayons—crease-resistant, but not crease-proof. This is helpful in making skirts and dresses and suits.

Some fabrics contain permanent stiffening and as such will require no starching. Look for washing directions on this type to come with the material. Some stiffening will last only through a few washings, but others will last the life of the garment.

There are some stain-proof fabrics which resist certain stains and dirt. When you buy the material, ask which has a wax finish and which a chemical finish as this information will be important when you wash the garment.

When you sew for youngsters...

the breakfast rush hour. Sew buttons on securely, but do not fasten them too tight.

Another tip to help your youngster dress herself independent of your efforts is to have necklines open down the front rather than the back, whenever possible. This makes it easy for her to slip into the garment, and she won't have to wander about the house half buttoned until you can get around to her.

One of the cardinal "don'ts" in dressing children is not to have the dresses too long, just because you don't want to take them down every year. Long dresses can give a youngster an inferiority complex if her other friends are wearing them short. Another rule is to have them fit nicely enough to allow for movement, neither too loose or too tight.

Don't select fabrics that the youngster has to be careful of always. This will make her too worried about spoiling the dress.

Garment Choice Makes Wearing Easy

Just what exactly should be included in the young girl's wardrobe to give the greatest amount of wear? The answers to that question are easy. First of all there should be plenty of jumpers and blouses, or perhaps one or two good jumpers which can be con-

For early fall plan to use some of the more sturdy cotton mate-

Fashion Forecast

For warm school days there's no neater trick than the striped chambray dress that is so easy to launder. They will look especially youthful on the teen-age girl if they're made with touches of ric rac, saucy shoulder tucks and full gathered skirts.

A three-piece suit offers infinite possibilities for mixing and matching costumes.

Spotlight
 of GRANTLAND RICE

IT ALWAYS has been our belief that the time to compare athletes is at the end of their careers. For example, why try to compare Ted Williams, after five seasons, with Ty Cobb's 24 seasons?

Ty Cobb

Why try to compare Bobby Jones, retired for 16 years after winning 13 national and international championships, with Byron Nelson who so far has won 37? And don't forget that Jones ran 1-2 in the U. S. Open eight out of nine years.

Ted Williams and Byron Nelson have many years left in which they may rise to even greater heights, or for one reason or another suddenly fall away.

I recall just about the outbreak of the war when more than a few were placing Joe DiMaggio above Tris Speaker as an all-around outfield star. DiMaggio was and still is a great ball player. But even Joe's most vehement supporters today wouldn't place him above the flight of the Gray Eagle, the class of all outfielders in the air or along the ground, who could also hit from .350 to .385 in his better seasons through a long stretch of time.

Take Ty Cobb and Ted Williams. Few pitchers could, Ted Williams is the longer, harder hitter. But how many remember that Ty Cobb led the American league nine years in a row — that he led the American league in 12 out of 13 consecutive seasons. Think that one over.

What hitters were in Cobb's road? What was their class? Practically no one except Shoeless Joe Jackson, Napoleon Lajoie, Tris Speaker, Babe Ruth, Wahoo Sam Crawford, Bobby Beach and a few of that ash-tinted ilk.

I see they are now comparing Bob Feller and Walter Johnson, certainly two of the greatest. No one can tell me that Bob Feller or anyone else had Johnson's speed. Feller has a greater variety. But Johnson's speed was enough. They usually beat him 1 to 0 or 2 to 1 and even working with a weak-hitting outfit, he still could win more than 30 games a year pitching against some of the great hitters of all time. But none of these great hitters was on Old Barney's side. The idea is that Johnson has already turned in his 20-year record. Feller still has many years to go.

Feller isn't working with much of a ball club, either. He is to a certain extent in Johnson's spot. Johnson, pitching for the Athletics in those days, could have won 40 games more than once. Feller, working with the Red Sox, could be another 40-game winner. There will be time enough later on to rank Johnson and Feller.

'Old Pete' Alexander

If you talk to hitters who faced him and who have been around, they won't nominate Walter Johnson or Bob Feller as the top master of the pitching tribe. They won't give you Cy Young who won 510 or Christy Mathewson. Their nominee is an entry known as Grover Cleveland Alexander, also known as "Old Pete."

Working with the lowly Phillies, Alexander won 31 games in 1915, 33 games in 1916 and 30 games in 1917, a total of 94 games in three consecutive years with a ball club that never belonged — outside of Alexander.

In 1916 he pitched 16 shutout games, most of them in the Phillies' bandbox park. Through six years, he had an earned run average under two runs per game. As a rookie in 1911 he won 28 games with the lowly Phillies.

Alexander was a stretcher bearer with the army in 1918, one of the tough jobs of any war. He then had been pitching seven years. On his return to the Cubs in 1919 and 1920, he allowed 1.72 and 1.91 earned runs per game, an incredible performance. Through his career Old Pete had no interest in any form of training. He happened to be an eccentric genius, a great artist, which so few are. He knew exactly where the ball should go to certain hitters, and he could put it there too.

Johnny Evers, who had batted against the best, once told me that Alexander was the only pitcher he ever faced who made him feel like throwing his bat away. "I knew how useless it was," Evers said.

Cardinal Class

Overlooking the boisterous and heartfelt boos from Brooklyn, the Cardinals have been the class of the league from the start. They have had no better ball players than Dixie Walker and Pete Reiser and Pee-wee Reese.

But no sane baseball follower can tell you that the hustling Dodgers have the class to match Stan Musial, Marty Marion, Country Slaughter, Red Schoendienst, Terry Moore and Whitey Kurowski.

For years Clarence Darrow, famous attorney who had saved 1 hundred murderers from the gallows in his day, and a fellow lawyer were close friends. The latter spent many nights philandering.

"Clarence, do you see that little metal box on the mantelpiece? Jack was cremated and his wife keeps his ashes in that receptacle."

Joan Radcliffe, Ailen Brown as Arthur Westlake, earned the heartiest laughs with his portrayal of the ambitious young lawyer. The balance of the cast included Carol Stanforth as the maid, David Bergeron, the bell-boy, Floyd Clark, the chauffeur; Thelma Haines, Elizabeth Clochessy; Ethan Allen Nevin, Harvey Wilson; John Beeman, Mr. Clayton and Robert Ketcherside, as Theodore.

Due to hasty preparation for the season, "Goodbye Again" was the only play in which local people were cast. However, the plays for next season will be selected for larger casts and with the participation of local talent, we can anticipate a bigger and better summer theatre.

"Goodbye Again" will be shown Thursday, Friday and Sunday evenings at 8:30.
