

Tawas City Wins N. E. M. League Championship

Wins 6 to 2 Game With Standish

Last Pennant Brought Home in 1938

Tawas City clinched the North-eastern Michigan League Championship Sunday before a large crowd, by taking the second straight game from Standish, 6 to 2. This is the first championship for Tawas City since 1938. Before '38 they won top honors in the NEM League in 1933, 1935 and again in 1938. They also won the pennant in the Northern Division in 1939, but lost to Sterling in the playoffs.

Bob Rollin started on the mound again for Tawas City and had struck out fifteen Standish players the week before. Rapid Bob again had plenty of stuff, allowing Standish but five hits and whiffing nine.

The Tawas City team made several fine fielding plays, but the play of the day took place when M. Pavelka's would be single to right, was turned into a cut by D. Landon's strong throwing arm, nipping him at first. He also nipped a runner at the plate with a perfect peg from right.

D. Landon and R. Gackstetter paced the thirteen hit Tawas City attack, getting three hits each.

Manager Libka's men jumped into the lead in the third inning when singles by Dale Landon, Roy Landon, and Bob Rollin sent one run across the plate, and another run scored on Proulx's bad peg to second.

Standish scored a run in the fifth and sixth inning to tie up the game. Fifth, a run scored when M. Pavelka singled, two errors, and a fly ball scored Pavelka. Standish got their second run in the sixth on a single by Chevleskey, a walk and two errors.

Tawas went into a one run lead in the last of the sixth when Gackstetter and Prescott singled and D. Landon singled scoring Gackstetter.

In the seventh the locals put the game on ice with singles by Peterson and Thornton, Gackstetter singled driving in Peterson. Prescott was safe on a fielders' choice, Gackstetter out at second. F. Mark then singled driving in Thornton and Prescott for the final two runs of the game.

SUCCESSFUL COUNTY FAIR HELD LAST WEEK AT HALE

From the Grandstand

Not to go unnoticed at the game Sunday were the fine throws by Dale Landon. His pegs from right field to nip runners at first and home were gems that sparkled.

It was quite obvious Neil Thornton was making a try for the five bucks Harry Toms offered for the first home run in the contest. Did he swing! Toms kept the five.

Peterson, Rollin and Roy Landon evidently thought winning would be a cinch, and sat down on the job. "Slippery infield" was the alibi immediately forthcoming. As things turned out we'll let that stand; in fact, we will extend ourselves to the point of an expression of forgiveness.

The cold weather did not noticeably stem the enthusiasm of the crowd. Overcoats, blankets, and other means of keeping warm were noted among spectators.

Listlessness apparent in the first contest of the series was not in evidence last Sunday. Both Standish and Tawas were on their toes with the result that the game produced many fine plays. They showed the qualities which brought them the title in their respective divisions.

Odds and Ends—Little Bob McPherson getting kicked out of the local dugout by the great big bad umpire... Grant Shattuck heckling his favorite heckling subject—Dick Prescott... Bill and Marv Mallon, members of local pennant winners in former years, having a shivering good time... Ernie Moeller finally achieving a period of rest after his strenuous job as chief cheer leader during the season.

In line with the present fad of one man juries the services of Ted Jacques had been arranged for the purpose of settling any arguments arising during the game. Since such grievances were amicably settled he dismissed all cases; that is, all except a few—one at Tawas, Hi Speed and more at Davidson's, with members of the Tawas City and Standish teams acting as key witnesses.

With the end of the game came victory and the league championship. Thus was provided a fitting climax for the boys' struggles during the year. They had their ups and downs, it is true, but the ever-present attitude of never being licked paid off. The final out found the fellows in the "up" position. We are happy over the outcome. Congratulations, members of the Tawas City team and manager, Carl Libka, on the swell performance during the season which eventually brought the league title.

201 Exhibitors 8,300 in Attendance

The 1946 Iosco County fair was brought to a close Friday afternoon of last week and has been earmarked a county event of real success.

The three day event was blessed with unusually fine weather and officials estimate that some eight thousand people were in attendance during the three days and two evenings of fair activities.

Most departments received a larger number at this fair than has been shown at any previous event with the exception of the fancy work and canning exhibits, however officials of the fair were well pleased with the display in these two departments considering the scarcity of materials and the sugar rationing program which has confronted every family in Iosco County during the past year. 201 different individuals from Iosco County exhibited a total of 650 different articles at this popular fall festival.

Exhibits were assembled during the day on Wednesday with an evening program consisting of a band concert given by the High school band and followed by the customary amateur program. Judging of the exhibits took place upon Thursday with the featuring events including the baby show, horse pulling contest, and motion picture program in the evening.

The program on Friday featured a parade which was headed by the school bands from Oscoda, East Tawas and Hale. Races, husband calling, nail driving and a tug of war created interest for many in attendance. The afternoon program developed around the heavy weight horse pulling contest, the baked goods sale and the drawing of the baby beef which was given by the fair association.

The Lee United Shows of Bay City provided an attractive midway including games, contests and numerous rides.

The one event which created more interest than any other one part of the three day activity was the drawing of the six hundred pound baby beef which was given by the fair association. T. G. Scofield of Plainfield township was the lucky winner in the drawing, however Mr. Scofield immediately gave the calf to the Hale high school for the purchase of new band uniforms. Local auctioneer John P. Harris was then called to the stand and auctioned the calf to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ulrich of East Tawas for $160.00. William

BYRNES MAY RESIGN

WASHINGTON.—Friends of Secretary of State Byrnes have received word that he may have to resign shortly after the end of the Paris peace conference—for reasons of health. The news has come as a great blow to President Truman, who has leaned heavily on Byrnes.

Byrnes' doctors have told him that he might be able to continue as secretary of state provided he took long and periodic rests. However, Byrnes does not believe he should do this. Cordell Hull used to spend several months a year away from his office. In 1942, our first year in the war, he was away a total of six months.

Byrnes has told intimates that conducting the foreign affairs of the United States today is a constant, day-to-day job. He does not feel that a secretary of state can be off the job a minute, and he does not believe it would be fair to the American people for him to take a prolonged rest.

For instance, immediately after the Paris conference is the assembly of the United Nations, now already late. After that comes the Pan American security conference and the regular Pan American conference, to say nothing of various meetings of the United Nations security council.

WORKS AT TERRIFIC PACE

Byrnes has been hopping back and forth across the Atlantic ever since he became secretary of state. In 15 months he has made seven round trips. Cordell Hull, in 12 long years, made only one air flight across the Atlantic, plus two leisurely steamship trips to Latin America.

In Paris, Byrnes has worked at a terrific pace. Sitting in the peace conference all day, keeping on the alert to watch the moves of rival delegates, is a grueling job. It would wear out a younger man. But by going to bed every night immediately after dinner, Byrnes has kept going.

However, he is no longer young—68—and when the peace conference closes, he will have to decide whether to follow his doctors' advice and resign, or face eventualities.

MONTY'S POLITICS

Some of those who served in the American command in Europe are lifting their eyebrows over the U. S. visit of dapper, publicity-wise Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery. Searched in their minds during those bloody months in Europe are certain events involving the famed Monty which personally they would like to forget, but which nationally they hope won't be forgotten—especially in view of the fear of impending war.

General Patton's officers, for instance, remember Patton's race up the west coast of Sicily, in contrast to Montgomery's snail's pace up the east coast. Nobody can blame a commander for having hard luck or necessarily going slow. But what only a few officers around Patton know, and what has never been published, is the telegram he received from the vaunted Montgomery.

Montgomery actually sent Patton a telegram asking him to halt his offensive and wait until he, Monty, caught up. In other words, American troops were going too fast for Monty. He was afraid Patton would envelope not only the enemy, but also the British army. Inside fact is that Patton pretended he never received the telegram, showed it only to a few top aides, later told Monty it never arrived. Patton's army kept on moving.

Later, in the Normandy offensive, Gen. Omar Bradley's officers recall all too vividly how Monty was supposed to break through at Caen, but sat there day after day, yelling at Eisenhower for more troops (American troops). Finally Bradley, Patton and Joe Collins made the American breakthrough at St. Lo, leaving Monty still sitting at Caen.

British papers all this time were featuring headlines: "Monty Pivots at Caen." Actually all the pivoting he did was to break up a few tanks in the Normandy hedgerows.

Shortly after that Eisenhower made General Bradley top field commander, giving him a higher place than Montgomery—a shift that brought such a roar from the British press and Mr. Churchill that Eisenhower later took two armies away from Bradley and gave them to Montgomery.

ANOTHER CASUALTY LIST

Annual Observance Seeks Slash in Soaring Fire Toll

With America's fire losses soaring to an alltime high, public support in reducing the terrific toll from fire will be sought during Fire Prevention Week, which will be observed throughout the nation October 6-12.

In his annual proclamation setting the dates for the observance, President Truman said that fires threatened this year to exact the greatest toll of lives and the greatest waste of material resources the country ever had experienced.

He observed this was at a time "when the entire world is faced

 2. Have all worn or frayed electrical cords, or defective electrical appliances, repaired or replaced.
 3. Keep a metal screen in front of the fireplace.

 8. If supplementary heaters are necessary, fix them so they can't be moved around or knocked over.

with distressing shortages of food and housing and nearly every commodity essential to speedy reconversion to a peacetime economy."

Urges Precautions.
Insisting that the vast majority of destructive fires are preventable by the exercise of great caution, President Truman asked all Americans to do their part "by learning how to detect and eliminate all possible causes of fires in homes and businesses in order to safeguard both life and property."

State and local governments, fire prevention agencies, chambers of commerce, business and labor organizations, churches, schools and civic agencies are co-operating in the annual observance.

Fire Prevention Week was first proclaimed nationally in 1922 by President Harding although in 1920 President Wilson had proclaimed the first Fire Prevention Day. The observance is held annually during the week of October 9, anniversary of the great Chicago fire of 1871.

Exceeds War Casualties.
Startling evidence of fire's astounding toll is contained in a report that since 1920 more Americans have lost their lives by fire than were killed in all the devastating battles of World War II. During the last decade fire has claimed 100,000 victims, with another 170,000 burned or disfigured for life.

"The destruction of property in the hundreds of millions of dollars by fire is outrageous," avers Pres. William K. Jackson of the cham-

"In today's shortage of housing and building materials it would be in the interests of the American people if they made every week a Fire Prevention Week," declares W. E. Mallalieu, general manager of the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

Waste Increases.
Pointing out that with the number of fires increasing and waste of property in 1946 reaching its highest point in history, Mallalieu contends that "it is time for every individual to ponder the effects of national carelessness, recklessness and preventable destruction on his own life, job and family."

With monthly losses during 1946 ranging from 11 to 37 per cent higher than last year, indications point to a record-breaking toll exceeding 600 million dollars in 1946. This loss, the result of approximately 700,000 fires, will be more than 30 per cent greater than the 455 million dollar toll in 1945.

Year's Toll Cited.
During an average year, the toll of fire includes: 10,000 lives lost; non-fatal burns to an additional 40,000 persons; destruction or damage of 350,000 homes, 2,700 churches, 2,600 schools, 9,500 hotels and boarding houses, 10,500 restaurants, 1,000 hospitals and 3,100 amusement places; destruction of 50 million dollars worth of farm property; burning of forest lands equal to an area the size of Kentucky, and devastation of enough timber and lumber to build 200,000 five-room houses.

Chief causes of fire are matches and smoking, which account for 30 per cent of all fires from known causes. Other major causes are defective or overheated stoves and furnaces, misuse of electricity, inflammable fluids and open fires.

Fire losses are heaviest during the winter months, when more heating systems are in operation.

Children are the most frequent victims of fire, with children under five accounting for 20 per cent of all fire fatalities.

Fire Chief's Wife Insists on Nylons

DETROIT, MICH. — Most amusing incident witnessed by Fire Chief Ninnian Higby occurred at a blaze in his own home. Awakened by a dense smoke, the fire chief roused Mrs. Higby, who hurried into a bathrobe but refused to leave the house until he had secured a pair of nylons for her from the closet. Even then she sent him back—they weren't the right shade.

Flying Sparks Provide 'Touch,' Roofs of Farm Buildings 'Go'

WNU Features.

It was "touch and go" with 55,000 roofs last year, according to the National Fire Protection association, sponsors of Fire Prevention Week, October 6-12. The "touch" was provided by chimney or wind-blown sparks or flaming embers landing on flammable roofs, the third major cause of fires annually in the nation.

Property losses in farm and rural areas, according to NFPA's statistics, approach 200 million dollars annually. Included were 25,000 barns, with destruction of stock, feed, machinery and equipment.

"When a farm fire occurs, farm folk face the prospect of having

BEFORE Fire Strikes

1. Learn how to notify the fire department. Post the telephone number near your phone.
2. Learn the location of the nearest fire alarm box. Learn how to send an alarm.
3. See that every responsible member of your family knows how to notify the fire department.
4. See that your house is equipped with a garden hose and a water bucket. Sometimes a fire extinguisher may be advisable.
5. Rehearse in your own mind what you would do in event of fire.

their property completely destroyed," NFPA points out. Lack of adequate fire-fighting equipment generally makes it impossible to prevent spread of the flames from one building to another.

Emphasize Precautions.
Yet 90 per cent of all fires, it is pointed out both by NFPA and the U. S. department of agriculture, are preventable by the use of simple precautions and "good housekeeping."

Farmers should periodically inspect chimneys and flues, lightning arresters, farm storage of gasoline, storage places of kerosene, barns and other buildings where spontaneous ignition could occur, as well

AFTER Fire Strikes

1. Start getting every person out of the house immediately.
2. Notify the fire department as quickly as possible. Don't let the fire get a head start.
3. After the fire department is notified and every occupant is safely evacuated from the house, you can start fighting the fire.
4. If you have given the alarm through a fire alarm box, stay at the box until fire engines arrive so you can direct them to the scene of the fire.

as stoves, furnaces and pipes. Statistics show that a heavy loss of life on farms occurs when kerosene is used to quicken fires.

Hay should be properly cured and stored with ample ventilation, with inspections at frequent intervals for signs of heating. Barn roofs should be examined periodically for signs of leakage, since water dripping into hay can start the heating process. Worn and curled flammable roofs should be re-covered with weather-tight and fire-resistant materials, such as asphalt shingles.

Bar Smoking in Barns.
Smoking should be strictly forbidden in barns. Lanterns should never be left where an animal or a careless workman can topple them over, or near accumulations of litter or combustible materials. All old feed bags, rags, paper and accumulations of other trash should be disposed of regularly and systematically.

All main buildings should have lightning rod protection, properly installed and examined for maintenance as a matter of regular routine. Gasoline, kerosene and other combustible liquids should be stored in metal containers, underground, and at least 75 feet from main farm buildings.

Chimneys and heating plants require frequent cleaning for fire safety. Electrical wiring should be tested for adequacy and, when new wiring is installed, it should meet standards of the national electrical code. Worn electrical equipment and frayed cords should be replaced.

Establishment of air services between Canada and Australia is provided for in an agreement recently concluded between the two countries. The agreement specifies an Australian route from Sydney to Vancouver via Fiji, Canon island, Honolulu, San Francisco or other intermediate stopping places. All 48 states, District of Columbia, Hawaii and Puerto Rico have agreed to accept their respective allotments of air national guard units, which will supplement the regular army air forces. Seventy-two fighter squadrons and 12 light bombardment squadrons, manned by 3,000 pilots, 4,900 non-rated officers and 50,000 enlisted men, are planned. Slash Is Ordered In U.S. Pay Roll 104,000 Workers Face Lay-Off Within 3 Months.

WASHINGTON.—Budget Director James E. Webb has ordered a cut-back of 104,400 in the number of federal executive department workers this fall.

By November 16, he said, one out of each 25 current employees will be off the pay roll and the number remaining will be down to 2,362,300. "Normal decline in seasonal employment" and shift of the United States employment service to the states are expected to account for most of those who go.

Unaffected are congressional and court employees' agency heads, military personnel and civilian workers of the army, navy and war shipping administration outside the United States and its territories. Including these, the total number of federal government employees throughout the world stood at 2,686,000 at the end of June. Before the war the number was 887,500, and during the war it went above 3,000,000.

The brunt of dismissals will fall upon the "white collar" workers in the ordinary peacetime establishments of the executive branch—stenographers, executives, scientists, clerks, customs inspectors and so forth. The 537,400 in this group will be reduced by 49,800, Webb said.

The cuts follow directions laid down by congress earlier this year in granting a 14 per cent pay increase. Congress said that $321,000,000 wage boost must be absorbed by cuts in the number of white collar workers in the peacetime departments, not counting those employed in post offices.

Tight-Fisted Waiter Dies, Leaving $60,000

NEW YORK.—John "Old Frenchy" Sucher was known to the crowd at McSorley's Old Ale house in Greenwich village as a waiter who "wouldn't pay a dime to see Joe Stalin jump off the Brooklyn bridge."

For 13 hours a day, year in and out, he glumly plodded through the sawdust of New York's oldest saloon, a copy of a financial journal stuck in a hip pocket. His perusal of financial news was always good for a laugh among the regular customers.

Last January he was found dead in his $13 a month room on the lower East side. Police turned some papers they found there over to the public administrator's office.

Now the public administrator's office discloses that "Old Frenchy" died without kin and with only one mystery. The papers contained a package of 450 stocks and bonds he had purchased over the years and worth $60,000.

Russia Affirms Aims of Great Red Naval Fleet

MOSCOW.—Articles by Soviet admirals and editorialists in all newspapers today affirmed the need of a large Red navy and expressed the determination of the Soviet Union to add new war ships so that the Red fleet shall take its place among the world's great navies within a specified time.

The occasion of the articles was Red Naval Day, proclaimed by Premier Stalin.

The Red navy has gained new advantages from bases in the Baltic, such as Kaliningrad (the former East Prussian port of Koenigsberg) and in the Far East.

Vice Admiral Abankin, addressing a meeting attended by officers of the Red army and navy high commands, asserted: "The Soviet Union never pretended and does not pretend to dominate all seas and oceans, but the Soviet nation as a great naval power has its state interests on the seas and will defend them. The Soviet Union will continue to build a strong navy and strengthen its naval might in the interests of security and independence."

Egg Bag in Refrigerator Yields Church Collection

HAYS, KANS.—Mrs. Van Hartman was mystified when she reached into her ice box for a sack of eggs and pulled out a bag of silver coins and pennies.

Just then her father, R. S. Maxwell, telephoned to ask anxiously if she had carried home the Lutheran church collection the night before by mistake.

He had concealed the money in the bag and next morning found himself counting eggs instead of cash.

Son and Daughter See Parents Wed, Do Likewise

FORT SCOTT, KAN.—A son and a daughter watched their parents get married, and then wed too—to each other.

Clyde Marsh, 59, of Louisburg, Mo., was married to Alta Russell, 35, of Buffalo, Mo., then saw his son, Wendell, 31, and his wife's daughter, May Russell, 17, wed.

The older couple said they hadn't the slightest inkling their children had intended marriage too.

BASEBALL FOR JOSEF

The Army and Navy journal proposes that baseball be introduced to Russia. It would equip and uniform 1,000 Russian teams in the belief this would be one sure way to create a spirit of good will and make the Russians a little less tense.

This may be the best suggestion of postwar times. A world series between Moscow and Petrograd might cure the crustiness. It might even soften up Pravda. Certainly Molotov would not be the same difficult guy if he had a season in the bleachers. And does anybody think Gromyko would be the killjoy that he is if he could get an afternoon now and then at a crucial series?

We are for baseball on the Volga. It would be O.K. up to the time when a home-run swatter got too big a public following or a star pitcher got his picture in the papers above that of Joe Stalin.

Of course baseball in Russia would present some difficulties. Would the Soviets stand for any home-run hitter being called a "king"? Will the three strikes and out rule be subject to a veto? Will the base on balls, being a democratic institution, be ruled out as capitalistic?

Isn't there a possibility that any team that licked Moscow in a series would be liquidated?

Suppose Joe Stalin likes Minsk to cop a pennant and the Pinsk club takes it?

If Joe thinks a player is safe at first and the decision is that he is out by a mile can the umpire escape being sent to the salt mines?

Suppose the Russian baseball teams have a bad season and Stalin wants some big hitters and fast runners from American lend-lease?

Could there be any hope of peace if Stalin arranged to go to Teheran for a crucial conference with Larry MacPhail and Leo Durocher?

What? No Reason For Nervousness?

"No good reason for the break in stock prices and the current nervousness could be found."—News Item.

It couldn't be that reconversion is still behind the eight ball, that there's an ultimatum in every pot and two border incidents in every garage, that strikes are in flower again, that the administration recently set a course for Newfoundland and wound up in Bahama, and that meat, shirt-tails, peace and brotherly love are to continue shorter, could it?

The uneasiness wouldn't have a thing to do with the fact that Gromyko is still talking . . . that the only industry without bottlenecks is the holdup industry . . . that the victors in the global war trust one another less than they did Hitler—that general snafu has reached a new high in America and that there are increasing signs that the American public regards the Four Freedoms as (1) freedom of the daily double; (2) freedom to mob any depraved criminal for his autograph; (3) freedom to operate a black market in choice steaks; (4) freedom to dope out a newer and screwier program with audience participation.

Nervousness? Uneasiness? A return of the jitters? Well, possibly it has something to do with the fact that the world seems on fire, brass knuckles are becoming compulsory equipment in diplomacy, peace in Europe doesn't even look like a good show bet, labor and capital are still demonstrating new wrestling grips, you can't get a new auto except on a radio quiz program, nine more well-known Americans have become newspaper columnists. Russia still has the veto power, a couple aged 86 eloped the other day, 226 more strikes threatened east of the Rockies and Fala is back in the news!

Pettigrew the Penguin says: "Jimmy byrnes promised the germans a two car-mirage and a chicken in every potsdam."

Add similes: She was as bejeweled as if she had just helped launch a ship.

Mrs. Olivia Dionne has given birth to a baby boy. Two doctors and a trained nurse were on hand. Dr. Dajof's spirit must be enjoying quite a hearty laugh.

A Miss Elayne Keenan has been chosen "Miss C.I.O." in Detroit. John L. Lewis, the former C.I.O. beauty, is now, it seems, with the A.F. of L.

Delegates from nine nations are on the way to the United Nations session in Flushing, N. Y., which has been postponed. And in view of the truck strike it is doubtful if enough ice can be hauled to keep them 30 days.

The auto industry claim that the unions haven't a leg to stand on seems pretty well blasted.

Producers Who Refuse To Sell Are 'Strikers'

PRODUCERS Hold Meat From Stockyards; "Butter Scarce as Processors Divert Butter Fats"; "Farm Leader Deplores Labor Strikes"; "OPA Girds to Fight Black Market."

Headlines such as these in the newspapers have set official Washington to thinking, as they should set every citizen to thinking. What is the underlying cause of black markets? And the simple answer is, scarcity. What is the underlying cause of high prices? The answer is also, scarcity. If there were plenty of meat for sale, plenty of butter on the markets, plenty of automobiles in hands of dealers, or plenty of any other commodity on retail shelves, there would be no black market. Neither would there be high prices. It's that simple.

The next question is, "What is the underlying cause of scarcity?" There may be several answers to that question, but certainly one answer, insofar as manufactured products are concerned, is underproduction. As for foodstuffs, one answer is that farmers and ranchers are not marketing their produce, or that processors are holding their products off the wholesale and retail markets.

So the laboring man who strikes and the farmer who withholds his produce from market are by their very acts helping to build up scarcity and the black market, the very conditions against which they rail.

Why should the stockyards be teeming with beef and pork and mutton one week and the next be virtually empty? Because farmers and meat producers are holding their livestock for a higher price. That, in the opinion of this reporter, is a strike. It's a strike for higher price, identically the same as when the laborer walks off his job in a strike for a higher wage. The farmer gains nothing and neither does the laborer, for both are helping to build up the spiral of increasing cost of living for everything they buy.

Buying Power Counts

It doesn't make a bit of difference how many dollars the farmer or the laborer has in his pocket, if that dollar won't buy what he wants to buy. And it can't buy an automobile or a corn husker or a tractor if they are not being produced.

On the farms of the nation the unparalleled rise in living standards during the past 10 years is the direct result of rising productivity, in record crops with less work, less men working and on about the same acreage. On the labor front, increased production has brought higher wages, and shorter hours and better working conditions.

High wages for workers and high prices for farmers are good for the national economy if they are paid out of increased production . . . certainly not out of black market operations or through inflated prices due to scarcity.

That old law of supply and demand simply will not be regulated by legislation, either by union rules, by farm marketing agreements or by any governmental agency, because the fact is simply that what counts in a man's pocketbook is what his money will buy and not the number of dollars he jingles.

Congress has set our national policy throughout the establishment of governmental agencies which seek to hold-the-line on prices and wages by establishing wage ceilings and price ceilings until supply has reached demand. Whether these established ceilings are fair and equitable, this reporter has no way of knowing. We do know, however, that we have seen during the past few weeks certain labor unions defy the rulings of the Wage Stabilization board, declare they wouldn't work at the wage set by the board and strike. They struck against the government and the public. We have seen farmers and cattle and hog raisers defy the rulings of the OPA, declare they can't sell at that price, and strike. They struck against the government and the public. We have seen packers, food processors and manufacturers do the same thing.

Under such conditions, no policy, no formula, no legislation, however just and equitable, will work. One thing congress did not do and that was to give these agencies police power to enforce their rulings.

Stabilization Will Fail

If one group can get away with it, then so can others and the whole machinery of stabilization to prevent an inflation spiral falls down.

One thing is certain, the great mass of the American public is in the middle, the folks in the home towns of the country, in the cities, who work for a living.

There is plenty of food in this country . . . plenty of meat. We have proved that we can produce plenty of any commodity the American people want.

ON WAR'S WINNING SIDE—BUT THEIR BATTLE IS NOT OVER . . . Greece, which was on the Allied side in the war, is suffering just as much, if not more, than former enemy countries who were on the losing side. Typical of the little people—the common or average citizen—who are the real sufferers are these citizens at Kanalia, Greece. Starting from the ground up, in a destroyed city, they are building a new home without money and suitable material. Even their livestock went with the Germans.

NEW CALIFORNIA GOLD RUSH . . . Discovery of gold and a possible new "mother lode" at Crescent City, Calif., by a prospector, Joe Cronin, has started a full fledged gold rush with hundreds of people filing new claims. Shown looking at gold deposit in a pan are, left to right: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Miller, Alvin Farlet, Joe Azevedo, assayer, and Ernest Hey.

POLIO VICTIM KEEPS UP WITH CLASS . . . School bells rang for Bill De Smith, 8, Dayton, Ohio, who didn't let a little thing like a wheel chair keep him from starting his third grade classes. Billy was stricken with polio in May, 1944, and has been unable to leave his wheel chair since. He is taken to and from school by his father. With Billy in school, left to right, Janice Sherwood, Louis Malloy, Bill and Janet Scheve.

SPEEDY MITE REGATTA . . . Growth of the small-boat fad in America is epitomized by the many regattas held. Latest gathering of the clan was at Wrightsville Beach, N. C., where 150 entries participated. The youngest racer in the regatta was Carmen Davis, 12, Wilmington, N. C. Boat manufacturers are gearing themselves to supply the demand for thousands of inexpensive, easily handled boats.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE . . . Independent or join the CIO or the AFL. That was the question when A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, opened the 28th national convention at Miami Beach, Fla.

VIEWS SHRINKING WORLD . . . Using a magnifying glass, Trygve Lie, secretary general of the United Nations, gazes at a tiny sphere of the world whose peoples are becoming more and more like "next door neighbors." The globe is shrinking due to political considerations and air travel.

Buttons, Levers Cut Farm Work

University of Wisconsin Is Preparing for Preview Of New Device.

MADISON, WIS. — University of Wisconsin is installing a maze of buttons and levers for feeding and caring for livestock on a farm near here. This is to be the farm of the future and will be previewed at the university this fall.

When completely modernized, the farm will be used for a four-year experiment which agriculture professors hope will cut in half the time dairy farmers spend on chores.

Dairy farmers now spend 55 per cent of their time caring for livestock. The professors hope to cut it to about 20 per cent.

Cuts Personal Contact.

The less personal contact, the cleaner and better the product, says Russell H. Reed, research associate in agricultural engineering, who is in charge of the project.

So the department is installing several electric machines to do in minutes what now takes a farmer several hours.

The barn cleaner, moving on an endless chain in a gutter, will carry the manure out of the barn and dump it on a pile, while the silo unloader takes silage out of the silo and drops it into the feed room in front of the cows.

All the farmer has to do is pull a lever.

Another time and work saver is the feed processing and handling machine.

The farmer pulls a lever and the machine mixes, grinds the grain feed and delivers it to the animals.

Sees Change Ahead.

Reed thinks machinery of this type is going to become commonplace soon.

"There's going to be quite a change on the farms in a few years," he says, as soon as the equipment factories begin manufacturing this machinery on a large scale.

Already some Wisconsin farms have barn cleaners and silo unloaders.

Although production really won't start on a full scale until fall, the university already has installed a hay drier on the farm.

Half of it is constructed with one inch blocks, while the other half is a new type this year with slats supported by two by six blocks.

The latter method allows more air to circulate up to the hay at a time.

Large Part of U. S. Loan

Already Spent by France

WASHINGTON.—France already has spent or placed orders calling for use of at least three-fourths of the nearly two billion dollars in American credit granted her since last September, French diplomatic officials said.

Because less than $450,000,000 remains, they said France was now looking to the international bank to supplement the dwindling supply of American dollars needed to modernize French industry.

In reporting how France has used American financial help, I. Leviant, head of the French economic mission, said "more than one-third" of the last American credit of $650,000,000 had been spent since May 28 when the loan agreement was signed.

All of the previous American loan of $550,000,000, granted late in 1945, has been used, plus the $720,000,000 credit extended France last spring to enable her to wind up Lend-Lease and purchase surplus American property, he said.

About $750,000,000 of the loan funds, Leviant said in an interview, went for purchases of American machinery, transportation stocks and agricultural equipment.

Federal Revenues Drop

3 Billion in Fiscal Year

WASHINGTON.—Federal revenues dropped $3,128,290,000 in the last fiscal year, principally because of decline in collections from the excess profits tax, repealed after V-J Day.

An Internal Revenue bureau breakdown recently showed total revenues of $40,672,096,000 for the 12 months ended last June 30.

Corporation income and individual income taxes (including withholdings from wages) dropped $239,766,000 and $329,777,000, respectively, but there were off-setting increases resulting from the buying boom and spending for pleasure.

Liquor tax collections increased $216,298,000 and tobacco taxes $233,374,000. Taxes on admissions to night clubs, theaters and the like rose $57,801,000; those on club dues and initiation fees, $4,739,000.

Big Food Crops Dispel

Fear of Another Crisis

WASHINGTON.—Agriculture Secretary Anderson said that world food crops are dispelling fears of another famine emergency next winter.

He told a famine emergency luncheon meeting that present crop prospects indicate world export supplies of cereals will be just about sufficient to meet minimum requirements of deficit countries between now and the 1947 harvest.

Before stringing small beads dip the end of the thread in glue which will dry quickly. The beads will thread easily without the use of a needle.

Glue thin sections of cork to the back lower corners of picture frames to prevent a dust line on the wall.

To remove decalcomanias from your walls before painting, soften them a bit with denatured alcohol. Then sandpaper the surface carefully for its coat of paint.

Fried or stewed chicken goes far when it is cooked, diced, and mixed with sauce or gravy to serve on top of biscuits or toast.

Ever think of keeping strands of embroidery floss straight between pages of a book? Lay strands of one color across one page, strands of another color across another page, and so on. Leave ends peek out the top to find the color you want.

Nylon jabots make you a pretty frill and have the added advantage of being easy to launder. No ironing is necessary. Just finger press the folds so they will fall in graceful lines.

For a door or opening which appears too small, the eye can be deceived with a wallpaper border of the right width around the door.

A large paper bag slipped over the end of a furnace pipe will save a lot of dirt when cleaning the pipes.

For a change, paint your ordinary flower pots with black enamel. You will be surprised how well they set off bright flowering plants such as pink petunias.

DESERT ROSE

By ROLLIN BROWN

Deputy sheriff Jim Doane sets out to track down a gang of train robbers in the desert of San Loreto county. When his horse dies he walks until he collapses from thirst. Four horsemen led by a girl rescue him. He awakens in a bed three days later. He meets and talks with the girl leader, Dolores Alvaro, for whom he has a warrant, charging her with cattle rustling. Jim is charmed by her beauty. He talks with Monte Garcia, and learns how Star La Rue, a crooked gambler, tricked Dolores' father out of his ranch and later shot him. Jim comes back to the sheriff's office and resigns. Sheriff Flick is astounded and dismayed. "I never thought I'd see you fall, Doane."

CHAPTER V

It was seventy-five miles over to Maxmilla City. Doane caught the eleven o'clock local train. At half past two he walked down the hot main street of the little town. The deputy budge of San Loreto county was no longer pinned under the flap of his shirt pocket, but the single-action revolver he had always used swung low in the familiar holster at his hip.

He turned in at the Cowman's Mortgage and Loan bank, on the main street corner.

"Star La Rue," he told the cashier, "is some kind of a bug in this bank. I want to see him."

"Mr. La Rue is vice president of the Cowman's Mortgage and Loan," the cashier informed him, haughtily. "He is a busy man. Mr. La Rue is not here at present."

"When'll he be back?"
"Perhaps at closing time. It would be better to have an appointment, if you wish to see him."

"I'll wait," said Doane.

He waited, lounging in the corridor, amid suspicious glances. He had verified his own information, that La Rue's one-time Silver Palace had been closed out of business for some twelve or eighteen months. La Rue now confined himself to the bank and his ranching interests.

Jim Forces La Rue To Sign Over Ranch

Twenty minutes later a hard-faced, angular man came in through the swinging doors from the street. The man wore a business suit, his tall, knobby frame tipped off at each end by cowman's garb; respectively, a flat-crowned Stetson and high-heeled boots that showed below the trouser cuffs. A conspicuous, large-link gold watch chain hung across the front of his vest and jingled faintly as he walked. The man had a certain heavy dignity about him. He favored Doane with a sharp glance, without recognition.

"La Rue!"
The man halted, looked again at Doane.

"What is it?" he wanted to know, irritably.

"A certain matter of business," explained Doane. "In fact, I intend to purchase Rancho de los Hermanos from you this afternoon. But perhaps we'd better talk in private."

Without comment Star La Rue led the way through one of the office doors. He entered, closed the door, and turned to face Doane.

"You talk big," he said. "My price on Tres Hermanos is $50,000 . . . cash! Did you bring that much money with you?"

"No," drawled Doane. "But I brought all it'll take. I drew some of my savings this afternoon. I drew two thousand dollars. That will buy Tres Hermanos."

"I have no time for nonsense," said La Rue. He smiled thinly over dirty, yellow teeth. "Come back when you get the other forty-eight thousand."

Doane studied La Rue's eyes. "I don't believe you recognize me," he suggested.

"I do not!" snapped La Rue. "And what of it?"

"Just this. I was deputy sent down from San Loreto with the coroner, to see the body of one senior don Pio Miguel Alvaro, shot to death on Rancho Hermanos land some two years ago. At that time you confessed to killing the supposed horse thief with your own gun, as the coroner will be able to testify. You boasted of it. Now, a few days ago, I unearthed the motive for you to have murdered Alvaro, as well as his identity. I believe that within twenty-four hours I could bring circumstantial witnesses into the affair. The charge would be murder, first degree. Among the witnesses is a man you once employed, a man known as Monte Garcia. Mr. Garcia could explain events transpiring some twenty years ago, at the start of your career, also bearing on the subject. If I can't succeed in putting the murder of Alvaro on your head, La Rue, I can at least bring the thing . . . and your methods . . . close enough home to ruin any confidence the people have in you, and destroy your connection with this bank. I'm offering you two thousand, La Rue, and I don't have to offer that! Take it or leave it. Take it, or the murder charge."

La Rue did not move. The only evidence Doane had that the man even heard him was the mounting color in the other's face and a stiffening of corded muscles under his collar. There followed a moment of absolute silence.

"This is blackmail," La Rue muttered, finally.

"And the other," said Doane, "is murder. Don't forget that."

Another moment of silence. La Rue covertly studied his man. He nodded.

"Very well. Due to this—er—special circumstance, my price to you is . . . two thousand dollars. What is your name, sir? I've forgotten it, if I ever knew it."

"God help you if I ever get you under my hand, James L. Doane!"

"There'll be this to remember," said Doane, ignoring the threat. "The deed you're going to give me this afternoon will be recorded in San Loreto as soon as registered mail can carry it. There will also be a will, in case of my death; and need I mention that you will not be its beneficiary? Further, there will be a sealed letter of exactly the accusations I have made this afternoon against you, to be opened by state officials at my death. Do you think you can beat that, Star La Rue? I'm not senior Alvaro, who read English poorly and understood nothing of the technicalities of the law."

"Come back when you get the other forty-eight thousand."

La Rue had no answer.

"There's just one other point," said Doane. "That is a written statement from you, dropping all charges against Miss Alvaro, the senior's living daughter. This will be by way of a little spice, to sweeten our deal! After all, I'm giving you two thousand dollars; you don't deserve a penny of it. Well, I guess that's all. I bid you a very good afternoon, Mr. Star La Rue."

That night the new owner of Rancho de los Hermanos sent a special telegram to Sand Wells. It was addressed to Monte Garcia, operator who would take it from the wire, giving him the owner's authority to discharge every man then working at Tres Hermanos, if Monte would be so kind as to ride out there and do so. Monte obliged at dawn, with a strange underglow in those odd gray-green eyes.

But the new owner, arriving in person two days later, did not find Tres Hermanos deserted. Not that he had particularly hoped he would. He didn't care. Four hard-eyed riders awaited his coming. The four had taken his order seriously enough so that none had stirred to the saddle and customary work, but not to the point of departure. For two days they had loafed, talked excitedly, and brooded over the matter. The foreman, a black-eyed 'breed of thirty-five or so, named Tony Suarez, began to argue with Doane immediately.

"Look here! You may be the new boss an' all that, but—" "I am the new boss," said Doane. "No maybe's about it."
"I said get out! Pack your war-bags. And collect your back wages from La Rue. I sent you notice the moment I became owner."

The four packed their war-bags. Two men rounded up the horse herd in an adjacent strip of meadow and drove it to the corrals. There was roping and four mounts were drawn aside. At this point Doane, watching, left the shady veranda of the old house for the corral gate.

"Before any one of you starts ridin' away," he called, "each man had better make sure he's straddlin' his own private nag. The Tres Hermanos brand belongs to me. I'd look on anything else as a case of horse theft."

Doane stood by, the six-gun in the low holster at his hip. Out of the corral dust this time came two ponies and a lame old gelding, of vented brands. One man, evidently, didn't even own a horse.

With the extra saddle and war-bags packed on one pony, the riders finally mounted double. So they rode out the corral gates and down the road for Sand Wells. Doane waited an hour; then he followed.

The property he had purchased comprised close to five thousand acres. The old adobe ranch house, surrounded by great, gnarled yard cottonwoods and a sprinkling of tall, graceful poplars, stood roughly in the center of the tract. Behind the ranch house a long, flat-bottomed valley opened. Springs flowed from under the valley walls, spread into little cienega meadows and formed a small creek, which ran through the ranch yards before it sank into the earth.

The actual value of Rancho de los Tres Hermanos, in fact, lay in the waterholes, springs, and desert seepages it controlled. These were scattered, between the lines of drift fence, over an area almost ten miles in length and half that in width; or, roughly, better than six times the actual area of its patented lands was controlled by the rancho, useless to any other stock owner. To the north broke the arid miles of true desert, but in the good years stock could work out a long way to the north and west. Rancho de los Tres Hermanos had been, and could be made again, a big proposition.

The distance to Sand Wells was six or seven miles, angling southwest. Doane had already traversed this road once, since dawn this morning. His return mission now, however, was not at the little town with its few stores and shacks adjoining the railroad yards. He cut past the town, and half a mile beyond drew rein in the yard of a shaded little clapboard house. The old Mexican woman came to the door, smiling.

"Aqui tiene Ud. su casa—the house is yours, senior. Pase."

"Monte home?"

"Si, senior. Si."

In a moment the tall, slim Monte plainly just awakened from his day time slumbers, came to the door. His poise was none the less languid and cool for his awakening; he moved easily, smoothly, and he made a Garcia gesture with his simple white hands.

"A haciendado," he said gaily, smiling at Doane. "A ranchero, my friend, a land-owner—I greet you, senior."

"A ranchero—without a single cowhand working for him," said Doane heavily. "They left promptly this morning. Thanks. I want you to do me another favor, Montje. Deliver another message."

"If possible," agreed Monte. "My last had little success. But we shall see."

"The cold facts of the case are these," said Doane. "In the past twelve months Miss Alvaro has managed to run away with about a third of the stock La Rue had on the ranch. La Rue's riders had orders to shoot on sight. Dangerous. Two months ago La Rue secretly dynamited a certain waterhole, in the hope of trapping the girl. He moved men out and started a drive. That failed. At the same time La Rue took his troubles to Sam Flick. This was again dangerous. The Sand Wells train robbery was more dangerous still. . . . Monte, I won't fail. That's the message I want you to give to Miss Alvaro!"

New Owner Takes Over At Tres Hermanos

Monte pondered the glowing end of his cigarette.

"You are riding soon yourself, senior?"

"I am."

"An' if I should—well, happen to see Miss Alvaro somewhere in the meantime, I am going to tell her you do not think you will fail? That is it, eh?"

"That I do not fail," corrected Doane.

"Jus' so," said Monte, with a bow.

"And Monte, I have here a sealed envelope. If anything should happen to me at any time, I want you to deliver it to its addressee. Understand?"

"Si, senior!"

"Bien!" said Doane. "Uh—there's just one thing more. Can you find me three good men; three cowhands I can trust, to look after the ranch?"

"That I can, senior. Three good, loyal ones. They will be in my office, tonight."

"Good boy, Monte. See you tonight, then. Nine-thirty."

Sharp at nine-thirty that evening, three leathery cowpunchers loitered on the station platform outside Monte Garcia's office, each with his duffle-bag and saddle-gear. Doane crossed the platform, saw through the window that Monte was busy at his key, approached the men, "You are the men for Tres Hermanos?"

"Reckon we are."

"Good," replied Doane. "I'm the owner." They shook hands. "Sposse we go over to the bar, where we can talk things over, and where I can buy a drink for those dry throats of yours. That is, if you feel the throats need a little irrigation."

"O. K.," shouted the three, as one.

An hour later found them riding for Tres Hermanos, properly irrigated and in high spirits. Doane had explained their job; they were to act as watchmen, look after the stock.

WOMAN'S WORLD

Are You Tired of Your Old Coat? Give It New Life by Remodeling

By Ertta Haley

IF YOU'VE decided that your spring or fall coats have given you just about all the wear they will as coats, but that the fabric is still strong and durable, they can be converted into attractive suits, skirts or jackets.

As long as there is still an apparent scarcity of good woolsens, you will be well repaid for any effort you spend on the reconversion of old coats into useful and even smart clothing.

Practically speaking, there is enough material in almost any good coat for at least a skirt, and very often a short jacket. It's not even tedious work to do this remodeling if you will space out the work carefully, instead of trying to do the whole thing at once.

The time spent on sewing depends upon your own individual skill. It can be completed in an afternoon, but what's the rush? Take it slowly, because your reward will be a brand new outfit that no one would recognize as a made-over.

Choose Style to Fit Material on Hand

Naturally when you are remodeling you will be somewhat—but not too much limited—in what you can do with the material you have. If the coat has no seams in the back the job is an easy one because this can be used for the back of the skirt. If the coat is gored or pleated, select a pattern you can adapt accordingly.

Because of the coat opening in front you will want a skirt that has several sections in front—at least two. You can of course have a center pleat or center seam if you wish.

If you have an old coat . . .

You will find in many cases that a jacket can be made simply by refitting the top and cutting the sleeves down to three-quarter length. How is this possible? Well, if you've noticed the styles now being shown, you'll see lots of short jackets, and lots of figure-hugging ones which make them adaptable for this type of remodeling.

Once the lining has been removed from the coat there will usually be ample space in one of these coats for this kind of jacket.

Woolsens Combine Easily With Other Colors

If you find that you just can't make a jacket out of your coat in addition to the skirt, then select a lovely bright color—or dark one to go with it as a jacket. Some of the lovely combinations you see are black skirts with fuchsia or purple jackets, gray with kelly green, brown with toast or cinnamon or beige, black with beige or green. Tweeds combine especially well with bright green or blue.

Even if you find that extra material is necessary to make a jacket for the skirt, the material you have already used besides the economy of home sewing will work such an economy on the outfit that any small outlay of money is well worth the effort.

Convert it into a suit.

If you have purchased the coat to go with a skirt—they were selling coat and skirt sets some time ago, then use the coat for making the jacket.

As I've said several times, woolsens wear extremely well, and since they take colors with a great deal of ease, you can probably use the fabric easily after cleaning. However, should you discover spots or streaks of fading in the coat, turn the fabric to the wrong side and use that.

Weskut Suit

A navy wool suit with weskit-cut points for the jacket brings to the fore the new mode in suits. A white crepe gilet completes the ensemble.

Fading won't occur, of course, on the darker fabrics or tweeds, but blue and green pastel coats may show some traces of fading. You'll find that the weave on the wrong side, though not as smooth as on the side already used, is perfectly usable and serviceable.

If you are using an old coat for a jacket and find that the edges and buttonholes are worn, try a contrasting color for piping the opening and make buttonholes in that. A very good idea for this would be to use some fabric from the same material as the skirt as this would tie the outfit together.

Take as much care in remodeling as you would with details on a new fabric; otherwise it's foolish to put your time into the sewing. All seams should be pinked or otherwise finished so there is no raveling of the material when you begin sewing and wearing the clothing.

If you want to add decorative touches to the coat, find some interesting buttons or pins. You may even have some nice fur that could go to the collar and cuffs. Or, if you have only fluffs of nice fur, have the tailor make them into pom-poms or similar decoration for you and use them as you would a pin.

Spiteful Spots

Remove spots as soon as possible after they are made since the stain seeps deep into the fiber if allowed to stand in the garment. Often it is difficult if not impossible to remove these same spots later.

Fruit stains, blood stains and other stains which do not contain grease will often yield to a water or soap and water treatment easily.

Heavy grease, lipstick, etc., will not usually respond to ordinary cleaning agents. Use one of the following on them: benzene, carbon tetrachloride, gasoline or specially prepared cleaning fluid. Keep these substances away from flame because they are very inflammable.

If you get a cigarette burn on wool and it does not go beneath the surface, brush with sandpaper, unless the wool is white.

Never use too much cleaning fluid for home cleaning. This will leave a ring in the garment and may be difficult to remove.

Use cleaning fluid on a garment set over a blotter or another very absorbent material. Saturate a small piece of lintless fabric in the fluid and brush with light movements. After the stain disappears, brush with a dry cloth and let the garment hang to dry.

Fashion Forecast

The draped toe effect is very popular in some shoes, and the high wedge heel is really something in the way of comfort. Both are lovely and graceful to behold.

Jumper dresses have a new slant this year. The yoke treatment on them is new and different, and many have sleeves of a contrasting color so that the dress will still look like a jumper.

Some dresses have hemlines dipping in back, some on the side, and some in both places.

Sally Victor likes molding brimless bonnets and adds feathers swirling gracefully to fit the contour of the face.

To add sparkle to these close-to-the-head hats, rhinestones and feathers are sometimes introduced as a decorative feature.

Complete Obedience

Johnny on his ninth birthday had had a party. It was all over and he was now gazing wistfully at the remains of the cake.

"Mother," he said, "may I have a piece of cake—only a small piece, please?"

"No," replied his mother.

"You've had quite enough."

"Well, may I sleep with a bit under my pillow?" asked the boy.

"Very well, here you are, and remember to keep it under your pillow. Now run along to bed and go to sleep."

On going up to Johnnie's room some time later his mother was amazed to see Johnnie sleeping peacefully with the pillow over his stomach.

Ah, Herbert

"Herbert," said the young lady, "you shouldn't kiss me with all this crowd standing around."

"I didn't kiss you," replied Herbert. "And if I catch the fellow who did, I'll teach him a thing or two."

"Don't bother, Herbert," she sighed, "you couldn't teach him nothing."

Surprise!

"I saw you with a blonde last night, Tom. Where did you meet her?"

"I don't know. I just opened my wallet and there she was."

That's It
"Now, my son," said the father, "tell me why I punished you!"

"First you pouned the life out of me, and now you don't know why you did it!"

One more row to hoe

The boy from the farm is on foreign soil today!

Instead of overalls, he's wearing his country's uniform. He's standing watch over the hard-won peace. He's safeguarding your future!

At heart, he's still that farm boy. His laughter sounds the same—when he can laugh. He still goes for cokes and cakes—when he can get them. And he still gets mighty homesick—when he has nothing else to do but think of home.

Your USO has one more row to hoe. Another round of laughs to plant. Another crop of cheer.

Your USO needs your help, as much as ever. For millions of American boys still need the USO. They need the camp shows and clubhouses—the hours of relaxation and entertainment—a place to hang their hats and loosen their belts.

They need to know that the folks back home are still thinking of them—are still willing to pitch in and make their task a lighter one.

Tell the farm boy you're with him—every step of the way. Say it through the USO. Say it with dollars!

SPORTLIGHT
 by GRANTLAND RICE

FOOTBALL is moving in the direction of its record year. I am referring here to class and talent from over 40 football states. There has been no season before that could show as many fast and powerful teams, due partly to returning G.I.s from the various battlefields of the world. Any one team that can finish this season unbeaten must call on a miracle. There are too many who are good.

For example we might as well take up the matter of All-America backs. We brought this argument up before a group of coaches recently.

"That's simple enough," one of them said. "Why not pick Blanchard, Davis, Wedemeyer and Gilmer?" "It isn't quite that simple," we countered. "What about Fenimore, Buddy Young and Trippi? What about Tucker of Army or Justice of North Carolina? What about the best back on Michigan, Ohio State or Indiana? Or Patterson of Illinois? What about the pick from Notre Dame and Pennsylvania or Columbia, or one or two from the Southwest, including Texas and Missouri? Certainly Notre Dame should come up with a challenger from the group Frank Leahy has in tow, perhaps Johnny Lujack."

"If anyone is trying to pick the four best," another coach said, "why not put eight names in a hat and pick out the first four?" "Which eight?" I asked.

"Well," the answer came, "here are seven anyway—Blanchard, Davis, Wedemeyer, Fenimore, Gilmer, Trippi and Buddy Young. You dig up the other."

Columbia's Backs
 You can imagine how the argument will be in late November. For example, it might surprise many camp followers from the strong Midwest and the strong South to know that Lou Little at Columbia may end up with a better all-around backfield than Notre Dame, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio State, Alabama, Georgia and Texas. The line isn't there but the backs are, headed by Rossides, Kusserow and the brilliant passer Kasprzak, rated by Lou on a par with Luckman and Governali.

With two big tackles, Columbia could give Army, Alabama or Notre Dame an even scrap. But the line is still the front wall. It is the advance post. And Columbia so far hasn't the line needed to face such a schedule.

My guess is that Army has the best first-line backfield in football, with something to spare. This backfield, in addition to Blanchard and Davis, includes a brilliant quarterback and a fine passer in young Tucker. You'll hear a lot more about Tucker this fall than you ever heard before. He can move right up with Blanchard and Davis.

Alabama, Columbia and Oklahoma A. and M. have all-around backfield strength above the normal. So has Illinois with an attack headed by Young and Patterson, two of the best.

I believe the strongest lines are at Illinois, Yale, Notre Dame and Alabama. Notre Dame may have the best of the lot, but Yale isn't far behind. Alabama has a great center in Mancha, one of the best in many years. Illinois possesses top guards and Notre Dame has the best looking tackles.

Oklahoma, Yale Lines
 It might be added here that the Oklahoma A. and M. line is one of the best—a point Wally Butts of Georgia might remember for their October meeting. Yale's line is strong from end to end. Texas has all-around strength, backfield and line, and should be hard to handle in the country's major state.

The two best ends of the year should belong to Army in Barney Poole and Foldberg, veterans around 218 pounds who know what it is all about. They will have to be better than good with the tackle problem Army faces. Some squad may have two better ends than Army's big, experienced pair—but I doubt it.

Among the major teams the big guess is Navy. Capt. Tom Hamilton, undoubtedly the savior of college football through war years, is as good a coach as you'll meet anywhere. But Navy has lost more good men than any team in the country. The group of supposed stars under Swede Hagberg two years ago have either graduated, flunked or resigned.

Hamilton has little left from that old crew—Kelly, Scott, Minisi, Jenkins, Ellsworth, and on, are all gone. Most of the Navy line is missing. But Hamilton still has good football players left, not too many, but enough to give any team a busy afternoon.

Navy took the major rap in post-war football. Where most of the others were getting their former stars back, Navy was taking a heavy deficit. Navy may lose many games. More than two or three. But these games will be fought to the last play with Tom Hamilton in charge.

Northwest Indians Placed Wealth in Copper Plaques

Until a generation ago, the numerous tribes of Northwest Coast Indians used a standard woolen blanket as their medium of exchange, says Collier's. To concentrate their wealth, men invested their blankets in "coppers," painted and engraved copper plaques, the value of which increased through resale.

At a ceremony held by the Haida Indians on the Queen Charlotte Islands off British Columbia in 1893, one of these coppers brought 7,500 blankets and, incidentally, lived up to its lengthy name—"All Other Coppers Are Ashamed to Look at It."

Latter of Curtisville was runner-up in the bidding and all of these men

The pony that was given away was won by Carl Youngs of Whittemore.

The horse pulling contests which were held Thursday and Friday afternoons might well also be marked as events which created outstanding interest at this year's fair. Thursday afternoon four well matched teams entered the ring in the light weight pulling contest. Teams which are eligible for this event must weigh three thousand pounds or less at the time the contest begins. The winning team was a pair of light chestnut geldings, weighing two thousand seven hundred seventy-five pounds and driven by Joe Bannister of Hale. This team of cool headed well matched horses wor-themselves high favors among the crowd and pulled themselves to first position in the contest by drawing four thousand, four hundred pounds upon a stone boat the required distance of twenty-seven and a half feet. Runner up in the contest was a broken colored team driven by James Wilson of Hale. The Wilson team, well trained and much higher in life than the Baunister team afforded real competition until the end of the contest. A little black gelding in this pair has displayed unusual strength and ability in each of the contests during the past three years.
Third position in the light weight contest went to Jesse Mothersell of Hale, while the team owned and driven by Joe Romaine, also of Hale, earned themselves fourth position in this light weight contest.

The heavy weight contest which was held Friday afternoon was won by a big rangy pair of Belgian geldings owned by the James Mielock ranch and driven by Arthur Dennison of Whittemore. Keen competition came from the thirty-nine hundred pound Percheron mares which were owned and driven by John Dooley of Planfield township. The Dooley pair have won prominence for themselves throughout the entire area by winning numerous heavy weight contest which included the county fair of 1944 and 1945. Numerous bystanders offered frequent speculations regarding the outcome of the contest if it had not been that the near mare in the Dooley team broke a hame strap late in the afternoon, which caused her to give up easier than is normal. The Mielock team won the contest by pulling forty-seven hundred pounds a distance of twenty-three feet and two inches while the Dooley team pulled this same weight a distance of fourteen feet and ten inches. Third place in the contest went to a big quiet pair of Belgian geldings driven by James Wilson of Hale.
