WASHINGTON. - Most important question facing every housewife on Monday morning—soap—probably won't be solved for some time. This is bad news, but it's hard to get

There are two main reasons for the soap shortage, one of them unavoidable, the other avoidableprovided the government had been tough enough with industry.

First reason is the loss of coconut trees in the Philippines and the war-torn South Pacific. Whereas coconut oil and copra used to be a glut on the market, many trees were destroyed in the Philippines, in the Solomons and wherever fighting occurred. There are still plenty of trees left, but it takes time to get neglected plantations going again and General MacArthur at first refused to let Philippine civilians re-turn to some of these areas.

The other reason — which could have been avoided—is that the soap manufacturers diverted a larger percentage of their materials to higher-priced toilette soaps. That is why some housewives actually are using perfumed soap to do their wash-

The situation in soap is similar to that in the men's clothing industry, where civilian production administration permitted clothing manufacturers to divert material to higher-priced women's wear instead of men's clothing. Profits in the women's trade were larger.

Likewise, profits are larger in the expensive perfumed soap trade. Government authorities have done little to divert soap materials to the cheaper brands used for kitchen and laundry. Of course, the minute the government tries to intervene, it gets accused of interfering with private enterprise, so some of Mr. Truman's aides are getting a little chary.

Another factor in the soap shortage is that housewives have grown careless about saving kitchen fats. During the war housewives were conserving fats at the rate of 200 million pounds a year, a great part of which went into soaps. However, with no patriotic impulses to continue the practice, much fat is now going down the drain or into the garbage can.

Another difficulty has been lack of inter-island boats for moving coconut cargoes to Manila. The U. S. navy recently stepped in and allocated several hundred small landing boats for this purpose, but even so the commerce department estimates the laundry-soap shortage will continue until the end of the year.

ED PAULEY'S LATEST REPORT
When Ed Pauley gets away from oil and politics he assumes much greater stature. As a result of his travels in Europe, he has just written a private report to President Truman on the question of Jewish refugees which makes those who have read it understand not only the plight of the refugees but the sensitiveness of the Jewish peo-Here are some of the most striking portions of the Pauley report: The more one hears about the wanton murder of the Jews by the Germans, the more one wonders why this great crime has not shocked the conscience of mankind more than it has.

"Newspapers are accustomed to speak of mass murder when a half-dozen victims are shot down by a gunman. What shall we call it when whole towns die and the slaughtered are numbered by millions?

'When I first heard that the Germans had used the flesh of these victims to make soap, I did not believe it. There are a number of exhibits at the trial from the 'soap

"The clearer a picture one gets of what happened to over five million Jewish men, women and children in Europe during the last several years, the clearer an understanding one develops of the tragic situation of the surviving Jews in Europe.

"We cannot bring five million dead bodies to life - we cannot breathe the breath of life into the pits of human ash and human bones -we cannot even find the little bodies that once wore the thousands of baby shoes found amongst piles of shoes of every size. But we can take action-and take it now-to make certain that the over one million European Jews who survived the Nazi terror are given a chance to live. The time for talk has long passed—the time for action is long-overdue."

MERRY-GO-ROUND

It hasn't been publicized but the American Legion's "Americanism" program proved a complete flop. Alvin Owsley, Americanism chair-man, called off the deal when Texas legionnaires could raise only $32,000 of a $450,000 quota. The program will be revamped at the San Francisco convention. . . . Worthington is the center of a raising community where flocks range in number from 250 to more than a thousand. Largest flock in the area contains 40,000 birds.

To provide poults for the turkey raisers of Worthington and other Midwestern areas, three large turkey hatcheries are located here. They have a total egg setting capac-

Returns are High.

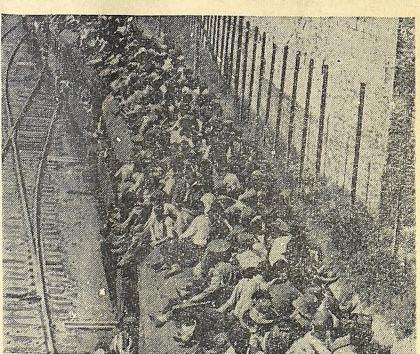

From the Worthington turkey hatcheries, approximately three and one-half million turkey poults valued at about two and one-half million dollars were hatched last year. The hatcheries' output was distributed to 40 states as well as to Central and South, America.

Taking advantage of modern modes of transportation, hatchery operators utilize air transportation to rush the poults to their destination. Largest single air shipment involved the transportation of 15,-525 poults from Worthington to New Orleans and thence to Mexico and South America.

Pack 20,000 Daily.

King Turkey Day is held annually during the marketing operations preceding the holiday season. From Worthington's processing plants approximately 15 million pounds of turkeys valued at 61/2 million dollars are marketed each year. During the peak of the season, 20,000 birds are packed and boxed ready for shipment daily.

During the war Worthington did its bit to provide a home-like touch to holiday dinners for fighting men on all fronts. The turkey which featured many holiday dinners came from this Minnesota area, the two ity of 3,580,000 eggs. In addition to Worthington processing concerns the turkey hatcheries, several packing almost exclusively for the chicken hatcheries and two large army throughout war years.

Observance Sparks Program To Get Jobs for Handicapped

WASHINGTON.—Importance to the nation of maintaining employment for handicapped workers is being stressed in the first observance of National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week, being held the week of October 6-12.

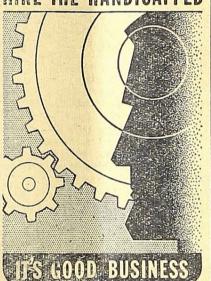

The observance, authorized by The observance, authorized by congress and proclaimed by President Truman, is intended to spark a nationwide drive to provide work for millions of handicapped persons, including thousands of veterans of two World wars, millions of victims of industrial and other types of accidents and those who are handicapped as a result of sickness, discovered as a result of sickness. capped as a result of sickness, disease or birth.

Join in Promotion. Under leadership of United States Employment service, Veterans' administration and Disabled American Veterans, governmental and private agencies are promoting the week. Through numerous citizens' committees information concerning the physically handicapped and their abilities as workers will be disseminated and public education will be fostered.

Introduced during the week was the new official "trademark" of the selective placement program for physically handicapped and its slogan, "Hire the handicapped-it's Perform Skilled Jobs.

Disabled workers, for the most part, are veterans who came home from the war with amputations or other permanent injuries and civilian war workers involved in industrial and other accidents, according to the director. Discussing the problem of the handicapped veteran, Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine of the retraining and re-employment administration says: "The disabled veteran is a vitally important man in our postwar economy. If the nation, the state and the community fail to make suitable provisions for disabled veterans, the loss will be great. ARLINGTON, WASH. - When a mother sow refused to raise her nine little pigs, A. R. Leaquee didn't worry — he just devised a new "mother." The ingenious farmer taught the pigs to drink from a bottle and then built a rack with nine bottles suspended from it. The pigs got the idea quickly and are growing rapidly.

Idaho pilots will hold their last breakfast of the year at Challis October 13. The menu will feature venison steaks, according to Chet Moulton, state director of aeronautics. Recently the Idaho pilots held a breakfast at Gooding, with 125 pilots and friends attending. Oldest pilot registered was Christopher P. CLOUDHOPPERS REVIVED

Grounded since beginning of the war, the cloudhoppers of University of Akron at Akron, Ohio, have become airborne again. Revived by many former army and navy pilots, the Cloudhopper club has purchased an army BT-15, the "hottest" ship with which the group ever worked. The club also plans to buy a Cub plane for students who do not want to learn to fly in so fast a ship. Bulk of the increase was accounted for in fighter planes, production totaling 105 compared to 58 in July. This increase reflected renewed output of jet engines and stepped up production of a new navy carrier fighter. Total military plane production for the eight months of 1946 is 834, compared with 45,338 in eight months of 1945.

Build 35,000 Trailer Homes This Quarter

About Half of Them to Get Vet Housing Priority.

CHICAGO.—Approximately 35,000 trailer coach homes will be built in the last three months of this year to reduce the housing shortage, H. L. Bartholomew, Chicago, president of Trailer Coach Manufacturers association, said.

About half will be built under veterans' priorities established by the veterans' emergency housing program and will be available to veterans, educational institutions providing veteran housing, and to public organizations for local emergency housing situations, Bartholomew

The priority trailers will retail for not more than $2,500 with minimum standard equipment and for less without standard equipment. The coaches will be produced by approximately 100 manufacturers, largely in the middle west and on the west

The VEH program permits trailer manufacturers to apply to the er manufacturers to apply to the national housing agency in Washington, D. C., for priorities on such scarce materials as hardwood flooring, lumber, millwork, construction plywood, plumbing fixtures, building board, builders' hardware, nails, electric wijing devices, and other electric wiring devices, and other

Although preference will be given to actual war veterans, a number of other classes of persons also will have certain priorities. These include wives of deceased veterans, United States citizens who served in the military forces of an allied nation in World War II, United States citizens who were interned or held prisoner by any enemy nation, and persons who have a certificate of continuous service in the United States merchant marine.

Bartholomew said trailer manufacturers since the war ended have urged their dealers to follow a policy of veteran preference in disposing of short quotas of the vehicles.

Explosives Factory

Turns to Fertilizer PITTSBURG, KANS. - Tiny white pellets to enrich midwestern soil are pouring from the same machines in a Kansas factory that a year ago were turning out deadly explosives. Without interrupting its 24hour-a-day schedule, a huge, warborn chemical plant on the prairie has turned the steady flow of ammonium nitrate from blockbuster bombs to the production of harmless fertilizer.

Now it ranks as one of the world's largest producers of fer-tilizer-grade ammonium nitrate. No visible change came over the sprawling Jayhawk ordnance plant, 22 miles south of here, when it became the Spencer

Chemical company.

Most of the 550 employees didn't even know when their machines stopped turning out material for explosives and began producing it for fertilizer.

Woman Tosses Money Out of Hotel Window

NEW YORK.—Police and ambulance attendants, rushing to the sixth floor of the Paramount hotel to investigate a report that a woman was about to jump, found a Cincinnati, Ohio, matron amiably throwing money out of a window.

Police, who summoned six radio cars and an ambulance to the scene, identified her as Mrs. C. Betzner. Thomas Baker, house officer, said Mrs. Betzner, clad in a back negligee, had one foot on a window ledge when he entered her room and seized her.

She pushed him away, Baker said, but when an elevator operator arrived to reinforce him he got her away from the window.

'Jump out the window? Don't be absurd. I was having lots of fun,' Mrs. Betzner told police.

1946 Lumber Output Expected to Top Goal

WASHINGTON. - Department of commerce predicted that the output of lumber in 1946 would exceed the goal of 32,000,000,000 board feet.

It also reported "substantial increases" in the production of most key construction materials during the first half of 1946 as compared with the first six months of 1945, However, it emphasized that in many cases output is inadequate to meet demand.

Virtually one-half of the lumber goal was reached during the first six months, the department said, adding that production normally can be expected to be greater during the last six months.

THE CUSTOMER IS ALWAYS A PAIN IN THE NECK

What's become of the old-fashioned American who wanted more work? The fellow who was out to increase his business? The man who wanted to hold his customers?

Have you tried to get anything done lately? Have you needed a paperhanger, a painter, a plumber, an electrician, a mason or even somebody to cut the lawn? If so, you know what we're driving at.

Nothing seems to startle a business man like the prospect of some new business. "Can you do it right away?" has become a phrase from a dead language. "Immediately" has become the most futile word in English. "Soon" is almost as mean-

Once every community was full of alert, good-natured proprietors of their own businesses, all eager for customers. You could get the pipes fixed, the walls papered, the porch repaired, the roof shingled and the lights fixed any time.

Today these very same people put on a sourpuss at your approach, freeze if you enter the office and register a complete lack of interest if you start telling them that you are in a jam and want something

The plumber tells the help, when the phone rings, "If it's an old customer, hang up." The electrician exclaims "You mean this year!" when Mrs. Trooksey phones and says: "All my lights are out! Will you please come over and fix them?"

Your chimney collapses and you rush to the mason. There's a young lady reading a book. She looks up after the book begins to bore her. You tell her you have a chimney emergency and would like to get the boss. Her expression tells you "Haven't you heard? Mr. Spinellio isn't interested in new chimney troubles. He has a waiting list."

The water pipes spring a leak. You phone your old friend Gus Hofnagle, who was your first plumber. You have been giving him your work for years. Good old Gus Hof-

"Gus, there's two feet of water in the living room, I'm sinking,"

"What is the name again?" asks

You have to spell it for him. He says languidly that there are 18 flooded living rooms ahead of you and that he couldn't possibly get around to an old reliable customer before Christmas Eve.

And carpenters! You can get only as far as "One of my front stairs needs a . . " before he pulls his whole head and neck turtle and starts backing away across country.

This "Customers are such pests" attitude is sweeping the country. Only this morning we watched a waitress in a chain restaurant perform in the 1946 pattern. She glared at you as you took a table; she put on a "Dare give me an order" expression; she took it down reluctantly, and when she returned after an hour or so she slammed the food in front of you and seemed to say "I'll teach customers not to come in this place twice!"

What's come over people? Are they all sore doing what they are doing? We pause for a reply. And we expect an insult!

Juvenile Delinquency, Didja Say?

There will be a national conference on the control of-guess what? -juvenile delinquency in Washington next month. President Truman has declared that "juvenile delinquency is of serious concern to the whole country," and Attorney-General Tom Clark, who has called the conference, says 500 delegates from 48 states will "pool their forces to meet squarely this grave problem."

We will bet right now that within a stone's throw of the conference hall there will be at least six movie theaters instructing the kiddies in the fine art of murder, gunplay and general lawlessness. In technicolor!

Heigh ho and alackaday! Also a heigh nonny nonny and a hot cha cha. (Is Eric Johnson, the chief of the board of movie censorship, in the house. And if so, what for?)

WHEN you find that you have to replenish the wardrobe with woolen garments of one kind or another, you'll notice that the clothing budget takes a leap. It's wise to space the buying of woolens for different members of the family as much as possible to keep this item in tow.

I don't know how you feel about it, but I know that many people, including myself, feel it's a crime to waste woolen material of any kind. It's a fabric that wears extremely well; it washes and it dyes very readily, and it can be reconditioned and used in so many ways, that no piece of woolen or knitted goods or garments should be dis-carded until you are satisfied that every possible use has been made Woolen suits, coats, sweaters and skirts which you have worn for years are often discarded because you and your friends are so familiar with them that you feel they are too old to use. Well, don't do it without considering the possibilities of using them in other ways first.

Sweaters of good woolen yarns may first of all be dyed to give them a fresh new appearance, and you'll find that woolens dye very easily.

The same holds true of woolen skirts, coats, suits, etc. There is no need to rip them apart at the seams unless alterations are necessary.

Boil Water Slowly. Gently for Woolens

The most important point to remember in the dyeing of woolens is to keep the water just at the boiling point. If the fabric is faded and spotty looking, it is best to remove what color is left by one of the commercial preparations for this purpose or the dye will not take evenly. Or, if you do not want to remove the color, dye it black.

After the dye has been applied, rinse in three clear, lukewarm waters so the garment will be nice and fluffy. Also hang the garment properly and straighten it out as much as possible so there will be no hard wrinkles to iron out.

Recondition your old woolens . . .

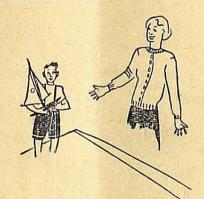

After dyeing, woolen materials must be pressed before they get a chance to dry thoroughly. This saves hard pressing. Lay a cloth on the fabric, sponge, and then on the damp spots.

It's important never to press directly on the wool as this will create a hard shine that is difficult to remove. Always use a pressing cloth, dampen it and press over it to get a lovely finish on the goods.

When dyeing, use a vessel large enough for the garment to be moved around in comfortably. Keep moving it so that some parts do not acquire more dye than others.

Sweaters Need More Dye than Other Things

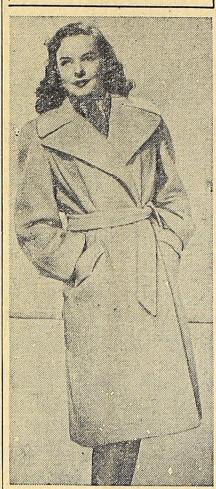

Because sweaters are so very absorbent, plan on giving them three times as much coloring as ordinary materials. Use the same method as just described for dyeing woolens, and rinse in three lukewarm waters afterwards.

By remodeling, dyeing or cleaning.

It's easy to shape and handle sweaters while they're still wet, so lay them on a flat surface and pull gently back to their original shape. An old cloth may be used by patting it gently over the sweater to absorb excess moisture. Allow the garment to lay on its flat, stretched out position until it is thoroughly

Here's What to do

With Old Trousers

If Dad has had all the wear he expects to get from woolen trousers, and they still have wearable material in them, make them over for his namesake. If both boy and Dad are about the same size, little alteration is needed. Sometimes it just requires pipping in at the world. just requires nipping in at the waist, new buttons, and a lifting of the trouser cuffs to make them fit and wearable, at least for play or Saturday morning chores.

If the trousers are in good condition and there's a big difference in size between Dad and Junior, rip the trousers apart carefully and then cut them down with a pattern. Faded trousers should be dyed as described in this column before they are recut and sewed.

Good tailoring on woolen material requires that each seam be pressed open fully immediately after the sewing is finished. Do this by laying a pressing cloth over the seam which has been folded back, sponge lightly, and press with a warm iron.

Washing Sweaters

A well kept sweater is a thing of beauty for many years if it is properly cared for. Wool sweaters, particularly, have a tendency to become shabby and shrunken unless proper tech-nique is applied in cleaning them.

Before washing, it is wise to draw an outline of the garment on a sheet of paper as a guide to pulling the sweater to proper proportions after washing.

Whip up some thick suds of mild soap and water and dip the sweater in them. Squeeze the sweater gently in them, but do not rub. Or, let the sweater, after being dipped in suds, run through the wringers of the washing machine after every time it is dipped in the suds. Re-peat until the garment is clean and bright.

Sweaters should be rinsed in at least three lukewarm waters, as it is very important to remove every trace of soap. Here again, do not rub the sweater, but squeeze it gently in the water until only clean water comes out. Extra moisture may be squeezed out by putting through the wringer.

Now shape the sweater to the proper size over the form you have made previously. Allow to dry flat to prevent sagging.

Fall Fashion Notes

Short boxy jackets are an excellent choice for daytime wear. They go to school, work or shopping, and can be developed in almost any fabric as well as fur.

Taffeta is another material which you might consider for that dressy dress or suit of the season. If brown is your color, there are beautiful shades worked out in that as well as others.

You'll be in fashion this season if your clothes show the following features: high necklines, dolman sleeves and draped skirts.

There's a lot of wool and velvet combinations being seen in suits for this season. The velvet may be one of the lovely dark shades if used in the skirt and a brighter, contrasting tone used in the jacket which is of wool.

An Announcement

All of My Customers and Friends

It has been a pleasure to serve you the past twenty-five years as a mechanic and salesman, and with our 24-hour wrecker service. Sometimes it was a great task, especially during storms, and during the war years, when I was alone.

I will now admit that during the war years, I could not render the kind of service that I would have liked to, but I hope and think that you will agree that under the circumstances, I did the best I could.

Now, with the war over, I have decided to turn all of the service over to ex-servicemen, whom, I think you will agree, deserve it.

The moving of the McKay Sales Co. does in no way effect our method of operations. We will still maintain a complete line of genuine General Motor parts, and will continue to give the same Chevrolet service as we have in the past twenty years, along with our Buick Sales and Service, and Case Farm Implements and Tractors.

track down a gang of train robbers in the desert of San Loreto county. He meets Dolores Alvaro and Monte Garcia.
Garcia tells him how Star La Rue once tricked Dolores' father out of his ranch and later shot him. Jim resigns as deputy, and confronts La Rue with the story. La Rue agress to give Jim the Alvaro ranch in return for a promise of silence. Then Jim hires a new crew and tells them that he will be traveling about the extensive ranch for the next few days. He starts off alone with supplies for ten days on his pack horse. He leaves certain papers and instructions with Garcia and a message for Dolores, telling her, "I won't fail."

CHAPTER VI

He would be in and out of the ranch-house for a few days, he said; they were to keep their eyes open and their mouths shut. Did they savvy? They did.

At dawn next morning, they corralled every available head of saddle stock on the ranch. Doane picked two of them, one for a mount and one to pack grub and water. He rode off into the desert, leaving them in the corral. He had rations and water for ten days; an extra water container on the pack-animal held twenty gallons more of water, for an emergency. At noon he changed mounts, and rode the packhorse. This was the rule. Sometimes four changes of saddle each day. It was mile-eating progress.

The morning of the seventh day he hit a hard-ridden trail. At least a dozen animals had made the track. Following, he swiftly learned more. Two bands of horsemen had traveled this way, one close on the trail of the other, neither set of tracks over two or three hours old. "Here we are," muttered Doane.
"There's company ridin ahead.

Let's go, old nag.' Shortly after noon, on a trail that looked like a cross-country stampede, he caught up with a band of six riders, headed by Sheriff Sam Flick of San Loreto. Flick had come south following the mountains.

Doane and the sheriff met without the formality of a handshake, un-concealed enmity on Flick's face.

Sheriff Flick's Posse Hunts Bank Robbers

"So you decided to do a little work on this job after all, eh, Flick?" was Doane's greeting.
His former chief glared.

have!" he exploded. "And no thanks to you, either. No help requested, what's more."

"I wasn't offering any, Flick. But say . . . are you sure you're on the right track?'

Flick exploded all over again, puffing, red-faced.

"She's done it now. That girl had the nerve to ride right into San Loreto, two nights ago. Two of her men held up a cow-buyer on the street and took close to eleven hundred dollars off him. An' the other two raided Hank Hawley's cash register, an' went on to the hotel. Got a hundred and eighty-six dollars. They broke into the bank, but the lock on the vault stumped 'em. No end of hell to pay!"

"Whew!" ejaculated Doane. "I feckon there might be, after that. Er . . . you followed the girl's tracks out of town?"

Flick glared at him. "No," he sputtered, "I didn't. But I had the good fortune to pick up some men that know how to ride an' how to trail. They know the country down here, too . . . an' a lot more to boot!"

Doane had already looked over Flick's men. They were the four cowhands he had discharged from Rancho de los Tres Hermanos the morning of his arrival, headed by the lank breed, Tony Suarez! Each was well mounted, and presumably deputized, to ride at Flick's side.

Doane made a halt while the posse went on. As his mounts rested, he climbed a ridge and kept watch over the country with his binoculars.

"Unless I'm mighty wrong," he mused, "they're hitting for that north water-seep. And I know a short cut that will beat 'em there."

Twelve hours later, at midnight, he rode cautiously into the north seepage. There were smoking embers of a fire there, and a few moist tracks. That was all.

"Hm-m-m. They're headed either for Tres Hermanos or Sand Wells," he concluded. "Reckon Flick made a dry camp behind them, waiting for dawn to show track."

Again Doane was right . . . &n part. Pressed from the unexpected angle of the Sierra Nuevas, the pursued had hit directly for the Tres Hermanos country. But Flick had not halted overnight.

Dawn disclosed the new shifting of the pawns on that vast, arid landscape of the desert. The pursued crossed the Tres Hermanos boundary, plainly on familiar territory; five miles in their rear followed Doane. At sunup he sighted the tiny dust head that meant sher-Iff Sam Flick, to the rear.

The situation was decidedly serious. But just this also offered an unusual opportunity. Or unusual

Doane now rode straight for the ranch. He threw aside his packs and saddle, turned the tired, gaunted animals free and had his men rope and put his gear on fresh ones. To the saddle again, in less than twenty minutes, moving across Tres Hermanos once more to intercept the trail. By this time, two independently moving, galloping forces were on the heels of the fugitives. Flick had shown unexpected generalship and split his forces at a strategic point, with Tony Suarez commanding one wing with two men. The ride went

It became a game of hare and hounds. The hares were five in number, on worn mounts that already had seen over twenty-four hours of continuous labor. Before middle afternoon, forced to zig-zag innumerable times, the quarry was turned back toward the desert by Flick's party, and the second posse, under Suarez, was racing obliquely toward them, to cut them off. Capture seemed inevitable, with this maneuver. Doane, watching the play through his binoculars, saw that Tony Suarez, riding hard, was gaining ground fast. That worried

"My God! What have I done?"

Flick and Suarez were shooting slowed. Doane bit his nervous lips. Then, suddenly forced to it, the fuginervousness vanished.

"Good work, old girl! I know you dare to kiss me!" now. And I want you, senorita Dolores Alvaro. I'll get you, and then we'll outride Sam Flick and leave him holding the bag."

The fugitives were riding swiftly into the chaparral when he lifted his binoculars again, gaining distance over Flick in the brush despite the hurt animal.

They popped up again in an utterly unexpected position; it was a crafty move. Riders swerved directly back into Flick's course, where the sheriff could not help but pick | Dolores Pulls up the trail, turned sharply aside, and were gone. Flick hit the hot scent and tore after them. He did not see what Doane had seen with his glasses: that now they numbered four, instead of five. They had turned aside into the chaparral, left the wounded animal and its rider hidden there, and lured Flick off in a new direction.

Doane leaped into his saddle, put spurs to his horse and went clattering down the ridge. He could tell within five hundred yards of where the wounded mount and the rider had taken cover. The last he saw of the posse, as he turned at the edge of the brush, was a lifting cloud of dust over the ridges to the

"Now, Miss Alvaro!" He sank his spurs into the horse's flanks, and they went down the slope like a pair of cats. He struck the spot where the four had turned Flick aside. He turned the other way, back-tracing carefully. The trail wove through thick walls of brush, a perfect screen. At the end was a small clearing. Doane broke into the clear-

A small lithe figure, in man's clothing, stood in the open space working on the injured horse.

The figure whirled. Expressive eyes widened. Doane saw again the lovely, delicate mould of Dolores Alvaro's features. Anger and surprise held her motionless, staring at Doane, for a matter of seconds. Doane swept off his hat.

"Did Monte Garcia deliver my message to you, Miss Alvaro?" he asked pleasantly

She whirled avery. With all the supple strength of a man, she vaulted into the hurt mount's saddle. The animal responded gallantly, for the length of four or five paces toward the other end of the clearing. Then he stumbled. Stumbled, sickeningly. Stiff in a foreleg, trying desperately to recover. Then he fell, head-on, in a kicked-up swirl of dust. Up-ended! The girl went free of the saddle, I'm tharkin' you for the help you thrown half-a-dozen paces beyond. It all happened before Doane's horse could make two leaps after her. She lay in a still, small, pitiful little heap on the ground, one arm doubled limply under her, the other flung straight beyond her head. Her mount scrambled stiffly to its feet again.

Doane blinked, trying not to believe what his eyes saw. He slipped from the saddle and bent over her.
"Dolores! Dolores!"

She lay limp and passive in his arms. He could feel the light, slender weight of her body. He moaned. He cursed himself and his stupidity, madly.

"My God! What have I done?" He laid her gently on the ground again and ran to the roan, for his canteen. Returning, he paused, listening once more to the irregular sound of her breathing. He bathed her face gently, washing the bleedng wound on her forehead.

"What a fool!" he groaned to himself. "What a fool I've been. She . . . she might have been killed."

He stared hard into the still face for a long time. He bathed her face again, as he held her close. Suddenly he noticed that her breathing was stronger, more regular. The color was returning slowly to her cheeks.

"Dolores!" And then, as though commanded by that indomitable will so much stronger than his own which had carried him through that day and night in the desert, his head bent slowly and he touched her lips. Touched them reverently, and long. Twice he kissed them, three times, four, in a frenzy of relief. For a split instant, he felt her free arm go up and around his shoulder, and he thought he felt just the slightest pressure of her hand upon his neck. In a wild burst of joy, he lifted his head and looked squarely down into those midnight eyes, while his arm tightened about her. To his utter amazement and confusion, he found himself looking into two pits of fire. Her face was flushed with anger, and her eyes were blazing, and she was pushing him away.

"Let me go. Let me go, I say!" Awkwardly, he helped her to her feet. She stood swaying, making him think of a reed swaying gently in the wind, her eyes locked upon his, her hand brushing at her lips, trying to rub away the kisses he had left there.

"You are indeed a fool, senor, spasmodically, although the range was long. One of the mounts stumbled, but kept going. The pace that I save your life that morning in the desert. And the story Monte told you, that meant nothtives made a right-angle turn ing! Or perhaps you used that story around the point of a hill, riding to help yourself, eh? To buy de los now at the very face of the chapar- Tres Hermanos next to nothing, for ral ridge where Doane watched. His yourself. And now, just for more insult, you trick me again. You

"But . . . but Dolores; I . . . I love you. From the first moment I saw you, I have loved you. Please, listen . . ."

She clenched her fists at her sides, and stamped a most impressive foot on the ground.

"Don't you touch me! Don't you touch me, nor put your hands on me again, or I'll . . I'll kill you.' She dropped a trembling white hand to the gun that swung at her hip.

An Old Trick

Doane's lips turned white. He stood there like a foolish schoolboy; he picked up his Stetson from the ground and stood twisting it inanely in his great gnarled hands. Desperate, in a sudden panic, he turned his back on her, walked away and stood fussing with his kerchief and his hat and swearing at himself for his helplessness. He came to his senses as he heard the sharp slap of leather against horseflesh, and whirled around just as the girl settled firmly into the saddle, and struck the horse a blow with her quirt. She had his roan!

She tore across the clearing and into the brush of the chaparral. A hundred yards away, atop a little mound, she reined up the roan, almost pulling his forefeet into the air. She stood there, silhouetted against the sky, looking down at him. Her face broke, he thought, into a tantalizing smile; she lifted her sombrero and waved it at him.

"Adios, senor. This is the trick you teach me, pretending sleep, you remember? Next time, you will use the handcuffs, yes?" She swung the horse, dug in her spurs, and was gone.

Doane's heart leaped, and sank, He wanted to believe that she was not so mad, after all, that this had been an act. But her words had burned their way into his heart. He couldn't forget them. Sulkily, he stood stroking the mane of the injured mount she had left him. "Well, come on, stranger. It's a ong way to Tres Hermanos." It was midnight when he arrived at the ranch, leading the horse. His cowhands were waiting, anxiously, for Flick and his posse were camped near the corrals. Doane gave no account of himself, except that he had lost his mount by accident. "Sure mighty obliged to you." yawned the sleepy sheriff, gratefully. "But I don't savvy you, Doane. Never did, I guess. None the less, give me today. We'll run that out fit into the ground tomorrow,"

PAUL MAKES A NEW START

LESSON TEXT-Acts 26:9-18; I Corinthi-

MEMORY SELECTION—This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners.—I Timothy 1:15.

All that a man has by nature is not enough. We saw last week the preparation by heredity, education and environment which Paul had for a place of leadership. But it was not enough. The capable, wellborn, well-trained young Jewish aristocrat had to be born again spiritually before he could do God's Careful Bible students regard the conversion of Paul and the resurrection of Christ as the two outstanding events of the New Testament. Without the resurrection of Jesus, the conversion of Saul of Tarsus (whom we know as Paul the apostle) would not have been possible, and at the same time his conversion is one of the strongest proofs of the resurrection.

We find him in three relation-

I. By Nature-Contrary to Christ (Acts 26:9-12).

It is not enough, as some of us suppose, that a man be sincere. Paul was entirely sincere in his conviction that he ought to persecute the Christians. He did it with a good conscience (Acts 23:1), for a man's conscience commends him for doing what he believes to be right, even though he may be wrong in his thinking.

He was sincere, but he was anti-Christian. By nature man is at enmity with God. No good thing dwells in the flesh apart from the redeeming grace of God (Rom. 8:7; James 4:4; Rom. 7:18).

Stirred, probably by the faithful testimony of Stephen, to even greater zeal against the followers of Christ, Paul had to find new worlds to conquer, so he set out "breathing out threatenings and slaughter to destroy the church in Damascus' as he had sought to do in Jerusalem.

He was a bold persecutor, doing all he could "contrary to the name of Jesus" (v. 9), until he met the Lord himself on the Damascus road. Ah, that meeting made him a different man and he became

II. By Faith-Converted to Christ (Acts 26:13-18).

Stricken down by a brilliant heavenly light, he found himself talking to the Lord Jesus. He heard from his holy lips the solemn indictment of those who persecute God's people -"Why persecutest thou me?" He who lays unkind hands upon, or brings untrue accusation against, God's children had better beware, for so closely is our Lord identified with his people that when they suffer, it is he who bears the hurt.

In a single sentence the Lord disposed of the persecuting zeal and the sinful skepticism of this proud young Pharisee, and Saul entered into Damascus not as the haughty persecutor, but as a man trembling and astonished. He spent three days shut in with his own soul and God; not seeing, not caring to eat, but entering into communion with God. By God's grace the old life was pulled up by the roots as it was displaced by the new life in Christ Jesus.

God had a great commission awaiting Paul as soon as he was ready for it (vv. 16-18). He was to be the apostle to the Gentiles, and that includes so many of us. The gospel which had come first to the Jews, was now to go out into all the world and to all people. The change in Paul was a drastic one. He was as one who was alive from the dead. It was not a case of adjusting or refurbishing the old persecutor Saul-here was a new creature in Christ, ordained to good works (Eph. 2:8-10).

III. By Grace-Confessing Christ (I Cor. 15:8-10).

Twenty years had passed since Paul's conversion. He had been out serving Christ, in season and out of season. He had known persecution, suffering and opposition. Now he was writing, by inspiration of the Holy Spirit, about the resurrection, telling of those who had seen the risen Christ. He included himself as one born out of his time. It is a personal vision of the living Saviour which vitalizes the spirit of a witness and makes his testimony ring true. Paul saw Christ. We too may see Him with the eye of faith, and by His grace become wit-

Effort and labor are involved. This matter of witnessing is not something which automatically does itself. "I labored more abundantly," said Paul, and yet he knew that it was the grace of God in him which accomplished the result (see v. 10 and Phil. 2:13).

That is it! The grace of God working on and in and through a man. And at the same time, that man laboring diligently that the grace bestowed upon him should not be found vain. It is in this manner God's work gets done on earth!

If a door sags, just a wee bit, throwing the bolt out of line with the striker plate, you can correct the difficulty quickly by filing the striker plate.

Save the material from the children's worn out cloth-covered rain coats. These can be made into serviceable aprons or handy capes to wear when applying make-up.

When ironing sheets and tablecloths, piace a card table in front of your ironing board. This will catch the sheet or tablecloth before it falls to the floor and gets soiled.

WNU-O

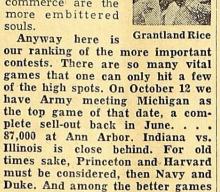

HE college football campaign of 1946 is so packed or studded with important dates that millions of football followers are left in a somewhat bewildered state. Many requests have come to this also bewildered department, asking us to pick the major games from a dizzy schedule that has more class than any football program we have known.

We hestitate to pick up this assignment since it means denunciation from a few colleges and many chambers of commerce, who insist their home - town games deserve high ranking. Complaints from the colleges are rare. The chambers of commerce are the more embittered souls.

The big game on October 19 will be Georgia vs. Oklahoma A. and M., (at Athens, Ga., not Greece). This will be one of the season's high spots. A game of almost equal importance will be Alabama and Tennessee - Bob Neyland vs. Frank Thomas. On this date Army faces Columbia in a toss-up. A possible thriller.

The schedule now carries us to October 26 when Army meets Duke and Ohio State meets Minnesota. Just a moment — Michigan meets Illinois in a game that might easily decide the Big Nine championship. And Pennsylvania meets Navy in a traditional rivalry.

The big game of November 2 is Georgia and Alabama. This game is fragrant with a Rose Bowl odor, a Sugar or an Orange Bowl . Trippi vs. Gilmer. Here taste is one of the most vital or important games of the year, if you have the feeling that football games are vital or important. Probably they are not. Anyway this is the game of that particular date, closely followed by Notre Dame and Navy.

Army-Notre Dame Clash

The outstanding melee of November 9 is Army and Notre Dame. This is the game that could easily draw 500,000 fans. Biff Jones says 1,000,000 tickets could be sold if there were only room enough. This will be the feature game of the considering the Army's year, wrecking assault on Notre Dame in 1944 and 1945, plus Frank Leahy's trek of vengeance.

Later on we have Penn and Army, Harvard and Yale, Ohio State and Michigan. Also Southern California and UCLA, Army and Navy. The schedule makers this season have given the country the top menu in football history. With few exceptions they have all picked the strongest opponents they could find. You might add a few sprigs of laurel . blossoms to Tulane and Southern California who have done the widest ranging in the tiger jungle, battling everyone in sight until December 21. Both play Notre Dame and both play each other, as well as such teams as Alabama, Ohio State, L. S. U. and a few more.

This fall campaign of 1946 will be the high spot of campus play since Princeton met Rutgers over 75 years ago. The schedule we have outlined is only a small part of the big show-a mere fragment. But there isn't space enough to cover all the turmoil.

Batting Crowns

The National league pennant fight between the Cardinals and the Dodgers has been baseball's leading feature this season and will remain the year's high spot.

SODAS

SILENT SAM

The Red Sox runaway victory and the Yankee collapse have been the American league's contribution to the comment of many busy tongues.

But the individual side has more than its share of public interest, which has overwhelmed all past records in the way of attendance. One of the main entries in this field is Ted Williams, star of the Red Sox. Ted, a great natural hitter, started out to lead both leagues at bat, in home runs and runs batted in-the triple batting crown. For a while it looked as if the walloping Williams would run away with all three marks. He began blasting home runs at an early date as his batting average hovered around .380. But toward the close of the season he found himself tied into a number of knots. Serious competition was coming from Musial, the N. L. batting star.
