Reclaim Khakis and Navy Blues For Making Wearing Apparel

By Ertta Haley

NOW that many boys have marched home from overseas service, many a homemaker has begun to wonder about the possibility of using those wonderful khaki and navy blue clothes for something useful. It's very true that the fabric in these clothes is much too good to be shut up in mothproof bags or closets. They can be converted into excellent civilian wearing apparel.

The main problem in using clothing of this type is to really change the appearance, and experience proves that it can be done. Sad-colored olive drab can actually be dyed so you won't know the origin. And as for navy blue, it's a good substantial color which you probably won't change, especially if you change the style of the garment sufficiently.

If you've had a WAVE in the family, then you'll be surprised how beautifully her navy blue suit alters into something very attractive. If the girl herself is using the suit, it probably won't need much alteration in fitting. Remove the insignia, and add some bright red braid around the shoulders and sleeves, or run the braiding all around the bustline in several rows, and you'll be surprised at how nicely the garment reconverts.

It's only natural that you might hesitate at dyeing the heavy olive drab garments but it really can be done.

Wool Dyeing Requires Simmering Temperature

The important points to remember when dyeing woolens can be summarized in five steps. These are particularly applicable when you are dyeing such things as ex-service clothing.

1. Measure the garment before dyeing or draw its outline on a large sheet of paper for measuring purposes.

Convert service uniforms . . .

2. Make sure you have enough dye for the quantity of fabric you are dyeing. Because of their heavy weight woolens require more dye per yard than cottons or rayons.

3. Use a simmering temperature all during the dyeing period. Use a large enough vessel for the purpose so that you can stir the garment gently in its dye bath. Avoid rough treatment as this makes the garment shrink.

4. Remember that wools appear much darker when wet than when dry. Test a small strip of fabric by ironing dry to make sure you have the shade desired.

5. When you are satisfied with the color, rinse the garment thoroughly. Then stretch it to its original proportions, using the pencilled figure or measurements mentioned above.

Iron the woolens while they are just barely damp. Of course you understand this has to be done with a pressing cloth or the wool will develop an ugly shine. If the garment has not stretched to its proper shape, it can be stretched even more while you are pressing the fabric.

Into fashionable clothing.

While dyeing will cause some shrinkage, the most shrinkage you can expect of a properly treated garment should not exceed three-quarters of an inch. It can certainly be a lot less if you give the garment your most gentle treatment.

If you've been following fashion news lately, you know that the hip length boxy jacket is one of the very smartest things to own. The wonderful quality of service overcoats is excellent material to use for them.

Reclaim Those Overcoats For Smart, Boxy Jackets

Incidentally, you won't want the coat an olive drab. Dye it one of the following beautiful colors: navy blue, dark green, jade green, scarlet, cardinal red, dark brown or black.

Dyeing will be much easier if the coat is first ripped at the seams. This makes it less bulky to handle in the dye bath. And incidentally, once the ripping is done, a big job is out of the way and you can begin sewing so much sooner.

Use a pattern for cutting the coat down to your measurements and have it just as square and boxy as possible with trim shoulder lines. A double breasted model with large pearl buttons will look very up-to-the-minute.

If you don't want a collar on the coat, then have it collarless, buttoning up high. Make slit or diagonal pockets, and plan to wear it with a gay scarf and a snappy little hat. The cost for an outfit of this type is under five dollars, and you'll have both warmth and wear from the outfit.

Braided Rugs

You can do a lot to make your home more attractive with braided rugs, provided you use gay colors and good patterns. There's a definite place in the bedroom, den, dressing room and children's play room for charming braided rugs.

Nothing is too small or too large to use for rug making. Here is a list of some worn-out things that are often used: worn draperies, bedspreads, blankets, tablecloths, coats, trousers, formal, pleated and gathered skirts. You can even use towels, napkins, aprons, blouses and stockings. Don't forget to shop for inexpensive remnants at bargain prices, too!

For a rug that will please you when finished, work out a plan ahead of time and shape it with crayons. Then select material, dye it, if necessary, in accordance with the plan. Before you cut the fabric, write down the number of rows you will need of each color.

Colors in a braided rug should give a feeling of unity. Keep large areas quiet in their effect, and keep colors balanced by repeating them with discrimination.

Braids may be made of anywhere from three to eight strips, but the number of strips does not complicate the braiding process.

Fashion Flashes

Soft gray wool is another fashion favorite and is a wonderful neutral that you can use with gay accents of color. Green of course is very popular and so is magenta.

Want to give gloves a lift? Sew bands of contrasting colored material on the cuffs or make them glitter with sequins that highlight the colors of your costume.

Skirts seem somewhat shorter, but knees are still being kept covered. Probably this trend has reached its limit.

Femininity and gayness of mood are apparent in informal clothes. Raglan sleeves and dropped shoulder lines are still very popular, and bits of velvet or fur add a long absent luxury note to many clothes.

'The Honorable' Refers but To High Public Officials

No American is supposed to be addressed or referred to by the title "The Honorable" unless he is among the high public officials whose importance automatically confers the privilege upon them in the Style Manual of the Department of State, says Collier's.

However, members of congress bestow it widely, recent issues of the Congressional Record showing the title used in reference to such individuals as small-town politicians, lawyers and newspaper men.

This Home-Mixed Cough Relief Is Hard To Beat

So Easy. No Cooking. Saves Dollars. No matter what you've been using for coughs due to colds, you'll be the first to admit that this surprising relief, mixed in your own kitchen, is hard to beat, for real results.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking is needed—a child could do it. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.

Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any drugist) into a pint bottle, and fill up with your syrup. This gives you a full pint of really splendid cough relief—about four times as much for your money. Tastes fine—children love it. It never spoils.

You can feel this home mixture taking right hold of a cough. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Eases soreness and difficult breathing, and lets you sleep.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial irritations. Just try it, and if not satisfied, your money will be refunded.

By GRANTLAND RICE

WITH so many rumors and so many reports concerning salaries ranging from $1,000 to $12,000 for college football players, one begins to wonder what can be done about it.

Grantland Rice

It has been impossible to get any set facts, since alumni and outside interests are largely responsible for most of the deals and arrangements, and all you run into is quick and often bitter denials. But a good part of the salary scandal is undoubtedly true. We put the problem up to one of the ablest and best college presidents, who also has been badly worried over the situation.

"In the first place," he said, "those controlling the rules of college amateurism say no athlete can be paid. But, in permitting scholarships, they violate their own rules, since scholarships are worth from $500 to $1,000.

"I believe that a football player is entitled to a scholarship. I also believe he is entitled to a job that will help to pay his expenses. I also believe that it is important he take a standard educational course, and not some easy course set up for football players. The main idea is to get an education, to keep up in class work. Adding two and a half hours of practice and play to the daily college schedule should entitle the player to a scholarship reward. I think this reward should be officially recognized.

"I am completely against any other form of pay for play. If a football player is paid as much as $15 a month for expenses you have not only professionalism but the opening wedge to a professional scandal. The $15 will soon lead to $50, then to $500 and then to much more. This must be stopped."

Difficult to Control
"Don't you think," I asked, "that college presidents should be responsible for the enforcement of amateur football? They must or should know what is going on."
"Where so many financial arrangements are made by alumni and other outside parties away from the campus, how can the college president know?" he asked. "But he at least can be held responsible for seeing that his players are bona fide students who attend proper classes and keep up in their work. If we are given proper rules and regulations to enforce we are in much better shape to meet the situation which undoubtedly is getting out of hand in many places."

I have seen ads in leading newspapers asking for college alumni to subscribe to football funds.
One coach told me that with only $50,000 on hand he had no chance to compete with other teams which had a fund of $100,000 to back them.
There are many ways this fund can be used. Either directly with the player or with the player's father. I know of one case, given to me by responsible parties, where a certain father was paid as much as $5,000 to see that his football-playing son, naturally a good one, attended a designated college. Needing the $5,000 badly, the father made the proper arrangements, and there is almost no chance that he will talk about it.

It is a deal hard to uncover or to expose. The South admits certain financial arrangements, charging that other sections are equally guilty, but keep their deeds covered up. Charges and counter charges are being thrown back and forth with increasing venom.

Sectional Strife
One of the main reasons the Big Nine has voted to play in the Rose Bowl game is to keep that $100,000 fund from going to southern teams, where, as I was told, "they take this money and then raid the North and East. We'll stop that. Also, we are against teams from the West and North playing southern teams."
This would mean that the South would have to depend on the Cotton Bowl (possibly), the Sugar Bowl and the Orange Bowl, where only the Sugar Bowl can approach the Rose Bowl reward.

The best solution seems to be the Ivy league — which in the main plays only in its own circuit. Yet here, too, close observation reveals certain mutterings.

The Big Nine and the Southwest build most of their schedules among themselves. So does the Far West. The South doesn't go away from its borders too often.

As one leading southern coach told me: "The trouble with the South is that we spend most of our time attacking one another. We know other sections are equally vulnerable, equally at fault. But the pressure is so heavy to win in the South that we lose most of our judgment. Someone is always accusing some neighboring coach or college. We are far from being simon pure, but what section is? For my part, I'd much rather get back to playing with students who come to us of their own accord. It would make for better sportsmanship."

Octobass, 13 Feet High, Failure Because of Size

The octobass, a three-stringed musical instrument invented in Paris in 1849, was 13 feet in height and thus required its player to stand on a box to bow it and press its strings with artificial fingers which he moved by levers, says Collier's.
Owing to its unwieldiness, this giant instrument was a failure and only four were made, three of which are preserved today in museums in Vienna, Paris and London.

That Nagging Backache
May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fall to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

GIANT OF THE FUTURE

ELECTRONICS—tomorrow's giant in the civilian world—is today's field for research in the U. S. Army Signal Corps. Throughout the land, and in strategic bases abroad, Signal Corps men are developing the knowns and probing the unknowns of radio, radar, Loran, Shoran, and other vital developments which make a closer knit Army—geared up for swift and effective defense.

It takes highly specialized men to operate the "Nerve Center of the Army." Men so eager to attain technical perfection that they'll shelve every conflicting interest to "get the message through." This training and this attitude pay off—for the American people as a whole, and for the fine men who choose this career.
