West Branch Paper Damaged by Fire

Fire of an undetermined origin damaged the Ogemaw County Herald, West Branch weekly newspaper, to the extent of approximately $10,000. The fire was discovered shortly after 5:30 Saturday morning. While the blaze was confined mostly to the basement, it did burn a hole through the floor of the lower story and caused a job press to be dumped into the basement on top of the furnace. Smoke and water caused the major part of the damage and caused the cessation of commercial printing.

Robert Marshall, publisher and editor purchased the Herald September 1 from W. A. Crandell. He stated the stock had been water-soaked and the machinery escaping the fire was badly damaged by water.

A defective furnace was believed by both Marshall and the fire department to have started the blaze but an investigation was to be made in an effort to determine the exact manner in which the fire started.

The plant was the second in Northern Michigan to be damaged by fire, the building housing the Ogemaw County Herald-Times at Gaylord also being swept by flames several weeks ago.

Potato Land
Ireland, the land of the "Murphys and the potato," lives up to its name by producing more potatoes per acre than any other country in the world. The Irish yield is 9.3 tons per acre, while the United Kingdom, Belgium and the Netherlands produce more per acre than does the United States, whose record yield is about four tons to the acre.

Chill Bacon

Slicing bacon by hand, especially when the cut is largely fat, has always been an unwieldy, difficult job, even with the sharpest knife. Meat specialists of the department of agriculture suggest hardening the slab before slicing, by storing it in the freezing compartment of the refrigerator. When chilled until firm, bacon is easily cut into thin, even slices.

WASHINGTON. — Speaking of holiday food, here is a prediction on various items on the housewife's shopping list and how long they will remain difficult to buy.

CANNED TOMATOES—Will continue to be short at least until next July. In the crop year ended with July, 1946, supplies were so short that we consumed 16 million cases of canned tomatoes, about half the normal demand. In the current crop year, ending July, 1947, there will be a slight increase to approximately 21 million cases, but this will still be far short of demands.

CHOCOLATE — Slight shortages of chocolate will continue for the next two or three years, due chiefly to shipping difficulties in trade lanes from Brazil and West Africa.

SALMON — The very unpredictable salmon continues to run late and short in the waterways of Alaska and our northwestern states. Normal salmon production in prewar years ranged between five million and eight million cases, but in the season which ended in September of this year, less than four million cases were packed for the American market.

TUNA — Fanciers of tuna fish salad will get all they want, due to a record-breaking production this year of over four million cases, 35 per cent above the 1945 tuna pack.

BANANAS — Shipments of bananas from Guatemala, Costa Rica and other Latin American sources will continue below normal for at least another year.

ATOMIC ENERGY VS. COAL
One thing the striking miners don't realize is that they are working for an industry which soon will be as out of date as the old steam-wheeler of Mark Twain's Mississippi river days. Unfortunately, what they especially don't seem to realize is that their present strike is hastening the end of the coal industry.

A brief news item from the little town of Louisville, N. Y., tells part of the story. Its 150 families have converted to oil, making it the first completely oil-heated town in the USA. Others are bound to follow. Some industries had started converting to oil even before the strike. Natural gas piped east will further cut down consumption — especially as coal becomes more expensive and more uncertain.

However, this only tells part of the story. The rest of the story began on August 5, 1945, when a bomb was dropped on Hiroshima. Scientists have been working ever since on the problem of harnessing atomic energy. Already Poland is constructing an atomic energy power plant. In the United States the first atomic power plants should be completed in two years.

Naturally the coal, steel and oil interests are not anxious to encourage this. Nor are the big power companies, whose water power installations would be scrapped. These incidentally are the same interests which have blocked the use of natural gas in the Big Inch and Little Inch pipelines.

Science, however, can be retarded, but not stopped. And when atomic energy is used on a wide scale, scientists estimate it will be much cheaper than coal or oil. When that happens, coal mining will be just as obsolete as the journeymen wagon builders of 1880. And unfortunately for the coal miners, the more uncertain they make the supply of coal, the more they spur the development of atomic energy.

DEMOCRATIC CONGRESS FIGHT
Despite all the talk you hear about a "dog fight" in house Democratic ranks over the election of minority leader, you can write it down that John McCormack of Massachusetts, majority leader since 1940, will win out.

Inside fact is that Sam Rayburn of Texas, outgoing speaker, not only has informed McCormack by telegram that he intends to stick to his decision against running for the minority leadership, but also has assured McCormack he will back him to the limit for the post.

However, don't be surprised if Congressman Francis Walter of Pennsylvania is put in the field as a candidate against McCormack—even though Walter made the unpopular move of opposing use of natural gas in the government-owned pipelines. Some southern congressmen have been proposing Walter as a "compromise" choice to avoid a party "split."

Another minority leader prospect is statesmanlike Ewing Thomason of El Paso, Tex.

FROM THE DIPLOMATIC POUCH
U.S.—British military officials in Rome, learning of a plan to scuttle the Italian fleet, have tried to de-commission it — without success. Intelligence reports are that Italian officers are awaiting the British and French attempt to take over the fleet—then will sink it. . . . The Portuguese government has vetoed a new American proposal for permanent military bases in the Azores. The U. S. government considers the Azores even more important than Iceland.

MORE PRODUCTIVE ACRES . . . Every acre of cultivated and pasture land on the F. D. Bartlett farm near Lost Creek, W. Va., has been treated with lime from the Rich mountain plant. Corn from these contoured strips provides proof of the increased production from use of lime with fertilizer to improve soil.

AID TO AGRICULTURE

Farmers Find Lime Effective Agent for Soil Improvement

WNU Features

WASHINGTON.—With increasing emphasis on soil improvement, the manufacture of farm lime has become one of the most essential agricultural enterprises in the nation, according to the soil conservation service of the department of agriculture.

The marked spurt in sales of lime to American farmers is revealed in soil conservation service figures which show total sales of less than 2 million tons in 1932 while sales for the current year are expected to exceed 25 million tons.

In Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio lime is as necessary for farm land as salt is in the every-day diet, SCS officials point out. If farmers of these three states did not have lime to counteract excessive soil acidity, some of them would have to close shop, they add.

To assure enough lime for their fields, farmers of the West Fork soil conservation district, which embraces Doddridge, Harrison, Gilmer and Lewis counties in West Virginia, now are operating their own processing plant at historic Rich mountain in Randolph county, West Virginia.

The $30,000 plant was built with state funds by the West Virginia soil conservation committee and then turned over to the district supervisors for operation. The plant has a production capacity of 50 tons of burnt lime a day. Production costs range from $8 to $10 a ton, which covers operating costs and a small return to the state conservation committee. The surplus returned to the state group will be utilized to help finance other worthwhile district enterprises in West Virginia.

"As soon as we get into full production, we hope to cut the price to $5 a ton," declared G. Manley Curry, chairman of the district board. Members of the board are elected by farmers belonging to the soil conservation district.

Application of lime is one of many soil and water conservation practices used in the West Fork district and some 1,700 other soil conservation districts in the country to keep the land permanently productive, stabilize agriculture and increase yields.

Soil conservation service technicians, who work in co-operation with district farmers, estimate that more than a million tons of lime will be needed as an initial application on the 7,400 farms of the district. Thereafter, 50,000 tons should be applied each year to insure continued maximum production.

A number of district farmers have paid off mortgages and put money in the bank after undertaking soil conservation programs. In addition, they are producing more and better milk, butter, meat, eggs, corn and other commodities.

HOME SWEET HOME . . . One solution to the acute housing situation is this self-propelled houseboat, which, however, is not equipped with the two nautical-looking girls. Six persons can live aboard the craft, of very shallow draft, which went on display at a New York store.

M. Q. (Marriage Quotient to You) Is Latest Test

WASHINGTON. — Possible prediction of the stability of a marriage is offered in a new psychological test reported to American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The test is a type of the familiar "word association" test. The majority of persons will make a similar response to a certain familiar word; 9 out of 10, for example, replying to the word "green" with the word "grass." Marked differences of response may mark a deviation from the common pattern of thinking.

Masculinity-femininity scores of happily and unhappily married couples and of divorced couples showed the highest number of rare responses among divorced women, with the least among married women. Single women also showed a high degree of variation.

IN THESE UNITED STATES

'Wife' Succeeds 'Grandmother' As Alibi for College Students

WAUKESHA, WIS.—Students still skip school, but the excuses nowadays reflect a new type of student, economic conditions and even the state of the family car, it is revealed in a survey of Carroll college alibis.

The traditional excuse, "my grandmother's funeral was yesterday," has been shelved as modern students concoct alibis more in keeping with the times.

"My wife had a baby," one former serviceman wrote, in an excuse typical of the increased number of married men and fathers among the G.I. students.

"My wife was sick and could not attend to the two children, who also were under the weather," another observed.

War injuries and war-incurred diseases, chiefly malaria, have been noted on some excuses.

A war refugee even came into the picture. One student said he had to "visit at home to see my aunt off to Scotland." She had been living in the United States during the war.

Taking no chance on any more lost records, another G.I. took off to convey his file folder from Veterans' administration in Chicago to the Milwaukee office. He was believed to have had army experience on missing records.

Indicative of the troubled housing situation, another sign of the times, were these excuses:

"I was absent because my presence was needed in court for eviction proceedings."

"I had to find a room in which to live."

Commuters' slips often contain mention of "car trouble."

Just for old times' sake, however, one student noted, maybe even honestly, "My grandmother's funeral was yesterday."

HEROINE'S PLAN . . . Pictured in her bed at a Hartford, Conn., hospital is Lt. Helen J. Armstrong, former army nurse, of Waterbury, Conn. She is the spark plug of a plan to build homes for completely paralyzed veterans in her home community. Her plan caught on in Waterbury, now may spread to communities throughout the nation.

"Off We Go" AVIATION NOTES

NEW VACATION LANDS
With the wraps still on Europe and the Orient, thousands of vacation-minded Americans with restless feet and loaded cameras now are pouring into Latin-America.

Airlines are making it possible to visit out-of-the-way attractions within a few hours, with plenty of time to relax on sunlit beaches washed by tropical seas.

New airplane schedules make it comparatively easy for tourists on a two weeks' vacation to visit almost any spot in Latin America, with Miami, New Orleans, New York, Brownsville, Texas, and Los Angeles as the "gateways."

As the good-neighbor policy is cemented further with increasing tourist travel, old but gay Havana, Nassau and Mexico still remain high among the tourist ports of call. Nassau, however, is destined to lose part of its tourist traffic to nearby Great Exuma island and Grand Cayman island in the Cayman group, now available by plane.

Of all the South American countries, Brazil promises to become the vacationer's paradise. Its capital is rated one of the most beautiful cities in the world and wartime ties have stimulated interest among North Americans.

Dr. Louis Leonpacher, flying veterinarian of southwest Louisiana, finds that his plane permits him to provide veterinary service in areas where no veterinarian has ever tread before. His territory covers marshlands and other areas accessible only by boat. Before the war Dr. Leonpacher had 100 to 150 landing flying places, where cattle were brought for vaccinations.

AIDED VISION
Wartime fliers of the Royal Canadian air force improved their vision by drinking milk, according to Kenneth F. Fee, state milk control director at Albany, N. Y. After experiments conducted by Canadian experts showed that vision of airmen could be improved by feeding them riboflavin, fliers were receiving 24 times as much milk at the end of the war as at its outset.

AWAITS TEST FLIGHT . . . First test flights are scheduled in December at Muroc flight test base in California for the army's SX-1, designed to fly faster than sound. Built by Bell Aircraft company, the plane is designed to fly at a top speed of 1,700 miles per hour at an altitude of 80,000 feet.

URGES MORE REVENUE
Municipal officials were advised by Leigh Fisher, Detroit airport consultant, to give more attention to providing revenue-producing facilities at airports. High revenue return cannot be expected without providing facilities in which people can spend money, he said, adding that most airports today would more than double their revenues if such facilities were constructed. The airport, he insisted, is a potential commercial, retail and industrial area.

Anderson Advises High Farm Output

Farmers Asked to Continue at Top Production.

WASHINGTON. — Agriculture department officials expressed confidence that the nation's farmers will follow through on the government's request to continue at top production for another year.

These officials said that although some farmers are "a little suspicious of hitting it hard for another year" in view of a possible drop in consumer purchasing power, they probably will try to achieve the government's goals.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson outlined a 1947 farm production program calling for a total acreage of three per cent larger than this year.

Anderson conceded that another all-out production effort was hazardous from the standpoint of good farming practices. But he said the world-wide need for food and other farm goods justified the risk.

Anderson urged sharp increases in the production of cotton, flax, dry beans, soybeans, barley and grain sorghums.

In view of the acute global shortage of fats and oils, the need for oilseed crops such as soybeans and cotton is very great.

He also recommended the slaughter of 34,500,000 beef cattle next year against only 32,000,000 this year.

Coupled with a 13 per cent hike in the spring pig crop and the production of the same number of sheep and lambs as this year, such a beef kill would provide Americans with an average of about 155 pounds of meat per person.

This is slightly higher than this year's supply of between 140 and 145 pounds of meat per person.

It is sharply above the prewar average of 126 pounds.

'Disappearing' Isle

Disappears Again
AUCKLAND, N. Z.—The jacking-in-the-box Falcon island—which has sunk and risen twice in the last 52 years—was reported to have disappeared again.

Crewmen of the New Zealand government steamship Maui Pomare, arriving in Auckland, said they passed the little-frequented spot in the Tongan group of the South Pacific without seeing any sign of the island.

When last seen it was a barren, volcanic plateau 150 feet high.

The island rises from the sea during periodic eruptions, sometimes as high as 360 feet.

Passengers Fly Backward

Just for Sake of Science

WASHINGTON.—Like the mythical bird that didn't care where he was going but wanted to see where he had just been, a plane-load of passengers flew backward from Washington to California.

It was an air transport command experiment, applying new safety theories and testing passenger reaction.

Principal reason for the change was a study of combat and crash research findings which showed that in rough landings passengers are safer when the deceleration shock is distributed over most of the body and absorbed by the back of the seat.

Muddy Street Problem Solved

By Use of Pulpwood Bark

BRAINERD, MINN. — Brainerd has solved its muddy street problem with another of those wartime created substitutes.

The city used to dump cinders on its dirt streets. During the war somebody thought of using pulpwood bark, the residue left from milling. After the first rain, the streets resembled mush. But they hardened as the resinous substance left after the fiber decomposed and combined with sand to form a heavy crust.

Now even bulldozers and garbage trucks can be driven over the once-muddy streets.

Alaska's Salmon Season Is Poorest in Two Decades

WASHINGTON. — Alaska's poorest salmon season in two decades and one of the greatest California tuna catches in history highlighted the nation's fishing industry as it swung into the final quarter of 1946 production.

Extremely low production in several major fisheries sent the pack of canned fish in the United States and Alaska during the first nine months of 1946 down to 386,580,600 pounds, eight per cent below last year.

Clocks and Sweaters Are Turned Out in Same Factory

DELAVAN, WIS. — George W. Borg, who makes electric clocks here, knits sweaters by electronics in the same factory.

He came here in 1928, bought a knitting mill and a plant making electronic devices and merged them with his clock business. His firm turns out about 4,000 electric clocks a day, and banks of machines knit sweaters like linked frankfurters.

The Auto-Telephone

The automobile telephone is now a reality. You can phone between detour signs and get an answer while skidding.

It's a queer world. Just when the auto engineers, after a 40-year struggle had eliminated all the noises, science puts the wife in the rear seat by long distance!

We fail to sense the necessity for the auto telephone except in the case of doctors, plumbers and grocers who got on the wrong road with the eggs. But it now is available to any autoist who can stand one more gadget and who doesn't think he has troubles enough getting from accident to accident without answering the phone.

If you think the joys of transportation are increased by a chance to argue with the complaint operator, with one fender gone and the other so loose that it sounds like a party wire the morning after a local scandal, an auto phone is yours for the asking.

The new auto-to-auto, house-to-auto, auto-to-house and nervous collapse to nervous collapse telephone was demonstrated in many cities the other day. Not a subscriber was badly injured. But there were several cases where the party on the motorized end of the line started the conversation in four lane traffic, warmed up to the subject over the white line and finished the chat up a telegraph pole with a tire to his ear instead of a telephone.

The effect on auto accidents will be watched with apprehension. Safety drives will have to be needed up 100 per cent unless we are to see a flood of accident reports, viz.:

Car N Y 810, phone Worth-4567, ran off viaduct at 6 a. m. Driver tried to drive between a fast moving beer truck and a slow moving hello girl.

Beach wagon, auto number gone and phone number too damaged for identification, found wrapped around tree on route 80. Driver tried to answer two phone calls at once and stuck cigar lights into ear instead of telephone receiver.

Flivver found wrecked over embankment. Driver, a pay station addict, put in a call, didn't get it and took hands off wheel in effort to get his nickel back.

U. N. and the Emblem Problem

The U. N. has been having emblem trouble. Not enough to start a new global war, but it has been quite a disturbance.) It seems the emblem originally taken over at San Francisco, showing a birds-eye view of the globe, put America in the middle. That's where Americans feel they too often are put, with curious appropriateness. But other nations didn't like the set-up on the emblem, and a new one had to be drawn up.

This time something described as an "azimuthal equidistant projection" of the globe is used. It lets everybody into the act except Antarctica. Europe and Asia no longer look at the emblem with the same feeling as the man whose face moved when the banquet photo was snapped.

LINES FOR A DEPARTED FISHERMAN

(To Roy Kelly of Waterford, Conn., a well-known fishing enthusiast and guide, who died recently.)

May he know new fishing waters,
Where the big ones like to play;
May he see more magic sunsets
And great dawns break o'er the bay!

May he glide down peaceful rivers
On a tide that's always high,
And the fish are always schooling
For a creek that's never dry!

May he know the best of buddies—
May he fish the deepest pools—
May he find the whoppers waiting
Just to test the whirring spoils!

May the streams wind to the ocean—
To horizons far and dim,
And remind him of the waters
That were, oh, so dear to him!

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

A MESSAGE OF LOVE (CHRISTMAS LESSON)

LESSON TEXT—John 3:16; Ephesians 3:14-21.
MEMORY SELECTION—Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift.—II Corinthians 9:15.

When Jesus was born in Bethlehem there were only a few men and women of faith who could see in the Babe of the manger the glory and the power of Christ. It was a dark and unbelieving age into which he was born—and who will say that it is different in the day in which we celebrate Christmas, 1946.

Indifferent, ignorant and sinful people are glad to try to capitalize on the spirit of Christmas, but they still despise and turn away from the Son of God, Jesus the Saviour.

It behooves us, therefore, to present once more the message of the Saviour who came at Christmas, that all men may hear of him.

Our lesson speaks of God's great gift of love and tells what manner of men and women we should be because he did give his Son for us.

I. God's Christmas Gift to Us (John 3:16).

God loved—so God gave. Love prompts the heart to give. One may give without loving, it is true, but one cannot love without giving.

God's love for man existed from all eternity. It provided a way of redemption for man and in due season the Saviour came, to live, to love, to die for all mankind.

It was no chance event, no accident in history; it was the heart of God speaking in his "unspeakable gift" (II Cor. 9:15) of his only begotten Son.

That leads us to our second Scripture and our second point. We who receive gifts try to express our appreciation in a polite and proper way.

II. Our "Thank You" to God (Eph. 3:14-21).

Paul's prayer for the Ephesian church (and for us also who are in the "family," v. 15) tells us how we may live our lives as Christians and express our gratitude to God.

The church of Christ, made up of those who are believers in him, should show its relationship to God, and its appreciation of his grace by its

1. Strength (v. 16). It does not honor God nor is he properly represented in the world by those who are spiritually weak and ineffective.

It is the privilege of the believer to be "strengthened with might" (v. 16) and this takes place as the Holy Spirit has liberty "with power penetrating to your innermost being," as Weymouth translates it. No part of man's inner being is then left weak or without the light and grace of the Holy Spirit.

2. Love (v. 17). This is the strong foundation of all spiritual development and usefulness. Roots are put down deep (as we change the figure of speech) to hold the life steady, and to provide the nourishment for spiritual living.

This is all possible because Christ makes his home in the heart. Think of the privilege of making such a guest feel at home in our hearts! Let us be grateful, and let us recognize him and honor his presence.

3. Knowledge (vv. 18, 19). The believer has to know not only the knowable, but also that which passes knowledge, namely, the love of Christ.

We shall grow in grace as we grow in the knowledge of the love of Christ (II. Pet. 3:18). We with all of God's people—what a great and delightful company—are to comprehend, to really grasp, the length and breadth and height and depth of his love.

We say with the psalmist, "Such knowledge is too wonderful for me; it is high, I cannot attain to it" (Ps. 139:6). But then we remember that it is as Christ dwells "in our hearts by faith" (v. 17) that we are able to comprehend such truth.

Most Christians live on a very low plane, going along with a limited and unsatisfactory Christian experience when all this is available to them by faith.

4. Faith (v. 20). Here we see why it is possible to do the impossible, to know that which passes knowledge, to see the unseen. It is by faith in him who "is able to do infinitely beyond all our highest prayers and thoughts" (Weymouth, v. 20) that we attain unto this blessed place of blessing.

So this is the "Thank you" that God wants this Christmas. He wants the unbeliever to turn to him in faith, and the believer to really be what he ought to be and can be in Christ. Then a man's whole life will say, "Thank you, Lord, for saving my soul."

For the tenth successive year the writer of these notes expresses to his readers everywhere his good wish for a most blessed Christmas both in heart and home. May the Lord give us all special grace this year to thank him for his great Christmas Gift by a life wholly dedicated to him.

A "business district" within the walls of the federal penitentiary in Mexico City contains scores of rent-free stores and offices which are operated by the prisoners for their fellow inmates, says Collier's.

County Airport Board

Each of Michigan's 83 counties will be urged to appoint a county airport board or commission by the State Aeronautics Commission which met with Governor elect Kim Sigler at the Hotel Olds in Lansing for their regular session Thursday.

According to Colonel Floyd E. Evans, Director of the State Department of Aeronautics, the State is delegating authority to the proper interested in establishing airports in each county and the State Department of Aeronautics. The establishment of Aeronautics, these county

The latest food among New York negotiators between various groups in- ment of such commissions would deal with one group only in each able the Department of Aeronautics county on airport problems, thus commissions will be empowered to These aeronautics commissions will handle aeronautics problems in the counties the same as County Road Commissions now handle all high way problems.

Governor elect Kim Sigler urged the appointment of technically qualified men to the Detroit Metropolitan Aviation Authority which has its organizational meeting Friday in the Detroit Edison Building with William B. Stout, Chairman of the State Aeronautics Commission presiding. The initial purpose of the Metropolitan Authority is to thoroughly study the Metropolitan area for airport sites and develop plans for a satisfactory solution of traffic problems. The Metropolitan Authority will consist of eight members: two representatives from the Dept. of Aeronautics; two each from Detroit city and Wayne County and one each from Oakland and Macomb counties.

Colonel Evans reported that 182 towns have been airmarked and paint furnished 80 more this year, and under the present plans 300 additional towns will be marked next summer. It was brought out that 200 flight schools operating under the Federal GI Bill of Rights have more than 8,000 students in Michigan taking flying lessons.

Mention was made of aircraft registrations which number 1740 since last August 1st; 177 being registered during the month of November.

FOR PHEASANT TALLY

Hunters given an opportunity this fall to aid in a pheasant aging study have only until the end of the month to make their contribution count. Returns to date, according to Joe Linduska, conservation department pheasant specialist, are too small a sample to support strong conclusions.

Twenty thousand of the cards—each sufficient to record the findings of an entire party of hunters for the whole season—were distributed before the season opened. A few of the cards dribble in daily, but many more are needed. Postage on these pheasant cards is prepaid, and they may be dropped in any mailbox without a stamp.

The first few hundred cards returned indicated a ratio of a few as four young birds to each old one, while smaller control samples indicated ratios of 7 to 1 and 12 to 1. The ratio is a key to the success of the previous spring's hatching season in the different counties.

RABBITS GET INSIDE WHEN TEMPERATURE GOES DOWN

Rabbit hunters who find rabbits scarce on days of bitter cold can take it from game research men that cotton-tails have sense enough to stay indoors when temperatures are away down.

Joe Linduska of the conservation department's game division, reporting on the examination of 181 ground dens at Rose Lake wildlife experiment station, found den occupancy by rabbits three times as great when the temperature ranged from 8 below to 12 above as when the temperature was 13 to 32 degrees above.

More significant finding in the study was that cottontails will use dens and brush piles in open fields more intensively than similar cover in swales and woodlots.

Temperatures in dens examined seldom fell below freezing, even when outside temperature were below zero. Temperature readings in brush piles showed they provide limited but definite protection from cold.

Reverse Skirt
Before discarding a wool skirt that has begun to look worn and shabby, consider the possibility of giving it a new lease on life by turning it inside out. Wool goods and garments still are scarce, so every effort should be made to get full wear from the clothes on hand. Often the faded color, spots and wear that make a skirt look worn are only surface deep. If the underside looks new and if the fabric, when held up to the light, shows no sign of wearing thin, the skirt is probably worth reversing.

Plywood Manufacture
Although the principle of making plywood was known to the ancients, and cabinet makers glued wood together for artistic effect, the first commercial factories to produce plywood were erected in Russia in the 1880s. Since that date factories have been built all over the world to make plywood.

Two-Humped Camels
Bactrian camels, which get their name from Bactria, a province in Afghanistan, are two-humped and reddish-brown or black in color. Found throughout Asia, these camels are able to withstand zero weather in the mountains of Mongolia. They have long, shaggy coats, are shorter and sturdier than Arabian camels, and a difference in foot structure enables them to traverse rocky, uneven terrain. South American llamas, alpacas and vicunas are members of the camel family.

Sewerage System
In 1942 about 70.9 million persons, or 87 per cent of the total urban population of the country, were provided with some kind of sewerage and there were 5,600 treatment plants with an estimated connected population of 42 million, or about 60 per cent of the population served by sewer systems.

Tick Experiment
Tests made by USDA workers at the Mendar, Texas, laboratory indicate the possibility of developing a dip containing DDT for the control of the sheep tick in a single dipping.

Skin Treatment
A researcher at the University of Pennsylvania school of medicine successfully has treated certain skin ailments — boils, eczema — with low sugar diets and insulin. Some of these conditions he attributes to "skin diabetes."

Nitrogen Fertilizers
Four materials now make up 90 per cent of the present big stream of nitrogen flowing to farms—ammonium sulfate, 28 per cent; sodium nitrate, 25; ammoniating solutions, 18; and different forms of ammonium nitrate, 18. Use of the ammoniating solutions and ammonium nitrate has been on the increase in recent years, partly as a result of new techniques in preparing the latter so it will not cake in storage and will flow well from the distributors.

Michigan Recruit Climbs to 2nd Lieutenant

Lt. JACK LELAND

Proof that the Army offers an opportunity for rapid promotion and a real career is offered in the story of Lt. Jack Leland, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Leland, 209 W. Division St., Traverse City, who advanced from Private to 2nd Lt. in 7 months seven days.
 Jack enlisted on 2 January 1946 in Traverse City, for an 18 month enlistment. He was sent to Ft. Sheridan, Ill. for indoctrination and left for basic training at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.
 Before basic was completed, the Army had impressed Jack as a career. He applied for Officer Candidate School and upon completion of his basic training, Jack was transferred to Engineer's O. C. S. at Ft. Belvoir, Va.
 Commissioned in the Engineer Corps on August 7, just seven months, seven days after entering the Army, Lt. Leland was ordered to Washington, D. C. for an Army Map Service course.
 Upon the completion of this course Lt. Leland was given a leave. While home, he called on the Traverse City recruiters to thank them for starting him on a successful career.

Early Books

According to history, wooden boards were first used as book covers. In book binding of those early days, animal glue, the standard adhesive known to the ancients over 33 centuries ago, was always used for its strength and flexibility. Wooden boards as covers were first abandoned in favor of paper by the craftsmen who bound the books of the famous printer Aldus of Venice in the 16th century. Prior to this time, even small books had wooden covers one-fourth of an inch thick.

TREASURE OF THE SEA

BY George E. Walsh W.N.U. Release

THE STORY THUS FAR:

The crew of a small sailing vessel in the Caribbean pick up Dick Jordan, adrift on a raft. Dick realizes that he is among men who are virtually pirates. They come upon a drifting schooner, with only two people aboard. They are the demented captain and his daughter, Rose. Tucu, the pirate captain, attempts to take the schooner by force, but is driven off by Rose, assisted by Dick. During the night Tucu returns and then take Dick and Rose prisoner. Tucu then begins searching the ship for the "treasure." Tucu finally leaves with nothing. He takes Dick with him, but Dick escapes and swims back, to find Rose battling a black pirate.

CHAPTER VII

The shock of the explosion startled Dick so that his hands unconsciously relaxed their grip and the big Carib rolled from him. He was so dazed that it took him some time to realize that Rose had come to his assistance at the critical moment, putting the Carib where he could commit no further deviltry, with a bullet through his brain.

Captain Bedford had been knocked on the head and left for dead by the Caribs before they attacked Rose in the cabin.

They found him hunched up in the scuppers, where the sea brine was threatening to finish what the blow on the head had failed to do. They carried him to the cabin and placed him on a bed, and, while Rose worked over him to restore him to consciousness, Dick quietly removed the dead bodies of the Caribs and dropped them into the sea.

With this unpleasant task finished he glanced at the sky before returning. The schooner was laboring heavily in the sea, rolling and plunging like an old bull walrus, every seam groaning under the strain. The gale was playing havoc with what was left of the sails and rigging.

"This means her finish," he muttered. "She can never ride through a second storm."

He returned to the cabin where Rose had partly revived her father through the liberal use of his favorite stimulant. He was far from being dead. It took more than a Carib's bludgeon to kill the doughty New England skipper, born and bred on the water, giving and receiving blows as a part of his daily life for half a century or more.

Rose glanced up at his entrance and smiled.

"He'll recover," she said simply. Dick nodded gravely, but did not return the smile. He was worried, and could not conceal the fact from her.

"What're we going to do?" he asked. "The schooner is rocking and shaking like an old man with the ague. She'll never hold together until morning."

"The Betty of New London," she replied slowly, a gleam of pride in her face, "was built in the days when ships were made to hold together and not fall apart in the first storm. Her keel's of hard white oak, and her ribs of the best hackmatack. She'll ride through this storm as she did the other."

"We'll pull through," he said, "but it's going to be a narrow squeeze. The wind's blowing great guns, and the seas are playing the devil with the wreckage—using it as a ram to batter in the sides."

"Yes, but we can stop that. Were you ever a sailor?"

Dick shook his head. "Nothing but an amateur. I could sail a yacht, and maybe qualify for a second-rate seaman. That's about all."

"Then I'll take command," she replied quietly. "You'll take orders from me?"

"Aye! Aye! At your service, Captain Rose!"

He touched his forehead in salute and clicked his heels in true military form. Her face was very grave, not a flicker of a smile lighting it up.

They Rig Up a Sea Anchor

"It's going to be a hard night for both of us," she went on. "We can't raise any of the sails, and if we could the wind would blow them to tatters. But the schooner's wallowing broadside to the waves. We must stop that or we'll go under."

"Quite right, Captain. But how are we going to do it? She won't obey her rudder with any sail."

"No," she answered shortly. "But there's that wreckage. It may save us yet. We must get axes and clear it away before it's too late."

"Aye! Aye, Captain. But you mustn't risk your life in that work. Let me do it."

She made no reply, but began pulling an oiled slicker over her shoulders, nodding to Dick to do the same. She selected two stout axes from a rack, and after handing one to him started for the companion. Dick started to protest. "This isn't your work, Rose. Leave it to me. I'll follow orders."

"Then do as I do," she replied curtly.

Her plan was simple in explanation but difficult of execution. The schooner was wallowing loggily in the sea, half buried at times by the brine, but the crash of the wreckage against the outboard was the most alarming thing. It threatened to smash the bulwarks and shiver the timbers of the hulk to splinters. Either that had to be removed or the Betty was doomed. But Rose's idea was to use the thing that menaced their lives for saving the schooner. By cutting it loose from the side, and fastening it with tow lines, the wind and waves would convert it into a sea anchor.

Dick attacked the wreckage nearest him with his axe. "Make your lines fast first," she cried, intercepting him, "or we'll lose it."

With three slack lines running from the mass of wreckage to the forward towing bits, they were ready to cut away the rigging that held the battering ram in position. They hacked steadily at ropes and wire rigging, cutting in water sometimes a foot deep. They were drenched to the skin, and nearly exhausted when all but a single line was severed.

Rose raised her axe to cut this. Dick seeing her danger shouted to her, but she did not hear. The rope parted with a loud snap and writhing and twisting like a sea serpent it struck up and caught the girl as if it had been the tentacle of an octopus. Dick saw her stagger under the blow, fall to the deck, and then with the rope twisted around her she was carried overboard as the released wreckage brought the line taut.

One horrified glance, and he was after her, plunging recklessly into the green brine. In his leap he caught the slack end of a short rope and clung to it. With his other hand he clutched her skirts.

Fortunately the snake-like line that had wrapped itself around her waist unwound as quickly as it had coiled. Dick held her limp figure in one arm, and with the other fought to pull himself back on deck.

The struggle lasted for only a few minutes, but to Dick it was an age before he finally got a hand on the rail and with the aid of a gray-back lifted Rose over it and rolled on deck.

Exhausted by his supreme effort, he lay there, clasping the girl.

Rose stirred first, coming to her senses with a little sigh. She was too dazed for a moment to understand the meaning of it all. Dick clasped her still tighter.

Dick Trys His Hand At Nursing

"What happened?" she breathed faintly.

"Everything!" he laughed, recovering his breath. "We cut the wreckage loose, and it's working beautifully. We're no longer wallowing like a grampus. The Betty don't deserve her name if she doesn't ride out the storm now."

She sighed again from sheer physical weariness. For the first time she seemed to be conscious of his arms around her.

"Did—did I faint?" she faltered.

"No, that last line jerked you overboard. I got you just in time. In another minute, we'd both been lost."

She considered a moment in silence. Then in a low voice that would not have reached him if her lips had not been close to his ears:

"You—you jumped overboard for me?"

"I caught you before it was too late," he replied.

Dick helped her into the cabin where she fell exhausted on the bed beside her father. While he hunted around for a stimulant, she closed her eyes and drifted off into a doze. She accepted the drink he applied to her lips, sipping it slowly, and under its stimulus

Dick stood before her, watching her with greedy eyes. The nearness of death had shaken him fully as much as her and he had difficulty in keeping back the emotion that threatened to overwhelm him.

"You seem to be in command now," she said, smiling faintly when he ordered her to take another sip.

"Yes," he laughed. "It's the second case of mutiny aboard the Betty."

His words recalled the other time when her authority had been ignored and the crew deserted. She frowned and closed her eyes again. "You can imprison me later," he went on, "but until the storm's over I'm captain, and my first order is that you keep in the cabin and not appear on deck again."

"I can't do that," she replied, shaking her head. "There's too much to do."

"Not for you. I can handle it."

"Not alone—"

"Yes!"

He pushed her gently back when she attempted to rise.

"You'll have to stay here if I have to tie you," he added gently but firmly. "We're in no real danger now. The sea-anchor's holding her nose up in the wind and waves. If she hasn't sprung a leak we'll ride safely until morning."

"If she's leaking we must man the pumps!" she exclaimed, attempting to rise again.

"All right! Stay here until I find out. I'll report to you."

Doubtfully and unwillingly she agreed to this. Dick made her comfortable, and then started up the companion to see how much water the ship carried in the hold.

Ten minutes later when he returned she was sleeping, with one brown arm thrown across her breast, the other limply crooked above her head. The hair, disarranged by the storm, fell in tangled strands over her shoulders and neck.

Unmindful of the shriek of the wind and tumultuous roar of the waves, he sat by her side, silently watching her comely face and youthful figure, his eyes glowing with yearning desire. He stretched forth a hand to touch her arm, to stroke her hair, to caress a cheek, to clasp a limp hand in his and press it to his lips; but he did not touch her, nor permit his fingers to come in contact with the bed or clothes.

Instead he drew back slowly, as if actuated by some subtle force that was stronger than his newly awakening love brushing his eyes with a trembling hand. His face grew suddenly pale and drawn, adding years to his age. As a fugitive from justice, with a price on his head, he had no right to touch her—no right to drag her into the net that entangled him. The wreck of the steamer had temporarily freed him, but Pettigrew would take up the search and run him down.

He could not elude the law for long; it had hounded him persistently for two years, driving him from pillar to post, and, when he had felt the safest, found him buried in a small, obscure corner of South America, living under an assumed name, and started him back to answer for the crime he had never committed. He could never feel safe again!

First Hints of Love Come to Dick and Rose

An unconscious groan escaped his lips, followed by a bitter laugh, the sound of it filling the narrow cabin and awakening the slumberer. Her eyes opened and stared at him in bewilderment. Then, with returning intelligence, she smiled, and with an impulsive little gesture thrust both hands out to him. The gesture, simple and innocent, was the unconscious feminine invitation of love, and Dick, knowing she had betrayed her feelings, groaned inwardly and stood in indecision, struggling with himself.

"You saved my life, Dick," she said simply. "Is there anything you want of me?"

The atmosphere of the cabin grew hot and stifling to him, so that he breathed heavily; a giddy sensation swept over him; his hands trembled with passion, and he moved swiftly toward her to seize what belonged to him. But he checked himself in time, stopping abruptly at her side. He was so near he could have touched her, but he slowly folded his arms, and forced a smile to his lips.

"Your friendship, Rose, always," he said gently. "You'll give me that—no matter what happens?"

She gazed up at him in bewilderment, a hurt expression coming into her eyes, such as you see in a child's denied some precious wish. The hands slowly dropped to her side and the lips murmured so faintly that the words were almost inaudible:

"Yes—always! How could you doubt it?"

The Betty of New London proved worthy of her namesake—if tradition be true that the original Betty was a staunch little craft who broke hearts galore and lived to see most of her loves married or buried at a good old age—and when morning dawned, with breaking clouds and a warm sun, she was still riding on an even keel, with none of her timbers cracked or weakened.

Forward the sea-anchor held, bobbing up and down on the waves like a golden mass of driftwood, with the tow lines slackening and jerking rhythmically as the schooner backed and lurched in its struggle to break loose from them.

Neither Dick nor Rose had slept throughout the night; they had to keep constantly on watch.

WHEN Mercedes McCambridge was screen-tested for "Little Women," her friends thought she'd fit the role of "Jo," but it was "Meg"—she was considered for, which certainly doesn't seem right for her. She's got them puzzled on another count; Mercedes, who's always solving problems on "Big Sister," does it in her dreams when she has to take an anesthetic. Has the dream so many of us have—thinks she knows the answer to what life is all about. The last time, the dentist said she shouted "I know now. Please remind me to tell you." But the gal who does so well on so many air shows, including "Grand Central Station," never can remember what she learned in her dream, to her friends' annoyance.

James Baskett owes his film debut in Walt Disney's RKO released "Song of the South" to the fact that the "Amos 'n' Andy" program came to Hollywood. Hearing that Disney wanted someone for "Uncle Remus," Baskett made a recording; when Disney heard it, the 41-year-old Baskett, who's "Gabby Gibson" on the air, got the job. He also doubled for the voices of the butterfly and "Br'er Fox."

Joyce Reynolds, who received a leave of absence from Warner Bros. eighteen months ago to marry Marine Lt. Robert Lewis, has returned to the fold, and will star with Robert Hutton in "The Wallflower." She was last paired with him in "Janie."

Skinnay Ennis, of the Abbott and Costello Show, got his best break because a friend got a bad one. Saxy Dowell was vocalist of Hal Kemp's band, Ennis was drummer. When Dowell fell and broke his hip, Kemp literally forced Skinnay to get out and sing—and was the bashful, scared Mr. Ennis amazed when the girls went "Whee!" over his breathy, confidential style! (Note: He's no longer bashful!)

If Vali, the Italian actress, arrives in time she will make her American screen debut in Alfred Hitchcock's "The Paradine Case," working with Ethel Barrymore, Gregory Peck, Ann Todd, Louis Jourdon, Charles Laughton and Charles Coburn. According to United Artists, she is Italy's greatest dramatic actress; she won the equivalent of our Academy Award for her work in "Piccolo Mondo Antico."

There must be something about Virginia Brissac and Tom Fadden that makes casting directors think they look like a minister and his wife. They were a preacher and his wife in "Destry Rides Again"; in United States Pictures' recently completed "Pursued" they're also a sky-pilot and spouse. And come spring they'll work in "Distant Drums," a story of the Oregon Trail—as a pastor and his helpmeet.

A nationwide survey revealed that the best known motion picture star ever to appear on a screen was Rin Tin Tin. The survey was conducted for PRC Pictures, Inc., in connection with the forthcoming "The Return of Rin Tin Tin," starring R.T.T. III.

When British actor Rex Harrison was on the CBS "Academy Award," he invited Director Dee Engelbach to tea; telling the guest how to reach his home, he said, "It's a five-minute walk to the top of the road, a tuppence ha'penny ride. You can't miss it. The bobby at the round-about, just beyond the pub, will direct you." Despite those well-nigh fatal words, "You can't miss it," Engelbach found it.

ODDS AND ENDS—Sponsors for CBS "This Is Hollywood" have closed a deal with Universal-International to do eight of their story properties on consecutive broadcasts this season. . . . Humphrey Bogart's going to try a new slant on being a menace in "Dark Passage"; in several sequences only his hands and feet will be seen. . . . Joan Crawford, vacationing in the East, is taking ice-skating lessons; that gal can learn to do anything she wants to, and do it well. . . . William Cagney has bought screen rights to William Faulkner's "Two Soldiers"; Audie Murphy, much-decorated soldier, will star.

LOOKING over some piled up mail we find a flock of queries asking how Army or Notre Dame would come out against the best of the pro teams. There is no real basis of comparison, for many reasons. For example Army's team has 16 hours of hard work, outside of football. The Army squad is up at 5:30 a. m. for a tough day.

Doc Blanchard

The pros have nothing to bother about except football. They have no outside interests. Football is their business. The pros have one great asset—experience. They know more football than college players know.

Despite this factor how much do you think pro teams would offer Glenn Davis, Doc Blanchard, Hank Foldberg, Arnold Tucker, Barney Poole and a few other residents of West Point? The answer is that the Giants handed out something like $20,000 to Dewitt Coulter, Army's tackle, who isn't in the same league with Davis or Blanchard as a drawing card.

Army, around 14 deep, couldn't match the manpower of the pros. But I don't think of a pro team that has a Davis or a Blanchard, a better quarterback than Tucker, a better end than Foldberg.

I don't know of a pro line that is better than Notre Dame's. In Lujack, Connor, Mastrangelo and a few others, Notre Dame has men who could match any pro star to star—and overmatch most of them a year or so away.

Experience vs. Youth

The pros depend entirely on college stars coming along. The younger, the better. The pros have the soundest sort of coaching. So do most of the college teams. But in the colleges the coaches have a far greater problem, for their players are also students, who are supposed to have a busy day outside of football. This doesn't always happen. What the pros get is experience. This is a big factor. What the college teams get is youth—just as big a factor.

Happening to run into three or four veteran college coaches, we sounded them out on their viewpoint. And these coaches were all tops, able to command big salaries in either pro league. Here was the answer.

"The pros know much more than the college players know. They are picked men that we've worked over for two or three years. They begin where we left off. But few pro players who have passed 26 or 27 years can match the speed or the enthusiasm of the college player. At 29 they are through—or should be—looking for a future living."

"Also the pros, through sound business reasons as far as the crowds are concerned, work entirely on offense. We wouldn't want to put on the field such a defense, especially the forward pass defense, that pro teams do. We work at least three times as hard on defense as the pros. They only stress attack—for that is what the crowds want. How can you have any strong defense in games where veteran football players, stars from college teams, run up 30 or 40 points on each side? How can a strong defense allow 30 points to a beaten team in a pro league? The pros are smart. They give the public what the public wants—which is a lot of scoring. There is nothing off-side about this. It's on the level. But it is a different game."

Out to Win, Regardless

College coaches have a very different problem. They are out to win, regardless of any public reaction. I happen to know what coaches such as Lou Little, Bob Neyland and a few others were offered by the pros. I can tell you it was plenty.

I asked one of these coaches how he figured Army or Notre Dame would compare with the best of the pro teams. Here was his answer. "A picked team from Army and Notre Dame, relieved of its student and scholastic work, would be equal to any pro team today. I mean where they had nothing to do but play football. I mean Davis, one of the greatest backs of all time, Blanchard, Tucker, Lujack, Connor, Mastrangelo, Foldberg, Strommeyer, Cowhig and many others.

"Just remember what that younger bunch did to the Rams in Chicago last August—fellows just out of college. They ran the Rams off the field."

It is only natural that such great Coaches as Fritz Crisler, Dick Harlow, Ed McKeever, Howie Odell, Wallace Wade and many other college coaches have entirely different assignments from the pro coaches. The college coaches have the unfinished products. The pro coaches handle experience, where fundamentals are supposed to be a small part of the job. Both the colleges and the pros apparently give the crowds what they want to see. And here is one game where the colleges outdraw the pros because, in the main, the colleges have the bigger stands.

Splendid Cough Relief, Mixed In Your Kitchen
Saves Big Dollars. No Cooking.
Yes, ma'am, right in your own kitchen, you can easily mix a cough medicine that is a wonder for quick results, and gives you about four times as much for your money. And it's no trouble—a child could do it. You'll need a syrup. Make it by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.
Now get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any drugist, and pour it into a pint bottle, and fill up with your syrup. There you have a full pint of remarkable medicine for coughs due to colds. It lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.
You'll say it's not to beak for real relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Eases the soreness, and lets you rest at night.
Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for quick action on throat and bronchial irritations. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

Putting the Shot
The shot put, a standard event in any modern track meet, was first done in ancient Irish games in 632 B. C. In later years, the stones which had previously been used were supplanted by cannon balls, hence the name putting the "shot." In 1860 the 16-pound shot was made standard for track contests, although 14-pound shots were also used for many years.

Egg Uses
Eggs serve to thicken custard or sauce, to lighten a soufflé or cake, or for mayonnaise made at home. Specialists suggest using egg whites to make cloudy soups clear, or an egg shell with some of the white still clinging to "settle" muddy coffee.

dairymen to register the third cross daughters which are produced by this breeding program. Fourth cross males will also be eligible for registration.

Geneticists expect that some eighty per cent of the first cross calves from Red Danish sires and Holstein cows will be solid black in color, perhaps thirty per cent of the second cross will be black and some two to five per cent of the third cross are expected to be solid black. Other individuals from Holstein mothers and all offspring from Guernsey or Shorthorn mothers are expected to be solid red in color.

Most of the recent purchases are black in color, being daughters and grand daughters of Holstein cows from the Springport Dairy Farm owned by Otto Klein of Harrisville. Four other Danish bred heifer calves were brought to Isoco county last June by 4-H Club members, Leslie Pfahl and Ronald Herriman of Grant township, George Strauer and Dale Strauer of Sherman township.

These dairymen and some thirty others from Isoco County with herds enrolled in the artificial dairy breeding Association are developing plans for establishing a dairy herd improvement Association in order that official production records will be available when Danish cattle breeding stock is offered for sale some five or six years from now. At the present time all Red Danish sires in this country are owned by the Federal Government.

Developed Celluloid

Celluloid was developed by an Albany, N. Y., printer who was trying to win a $10,000 award from a billiard ball manufacturer which in 1863 sought a substitute for ivory. The printer, John Wesley Hyatt, developed cellulose nitrate plastic in his experiments, and from that came the trade name "celluloid," and the entire basis for the modern plastics industry.
