RECORD BUDGET:

Asked of Congress

President Truman, presenting a proposal for the largest peacetime budget in U. S. history to the congress, was greeted with the expected reaction. Democrats applauded, Republicans instantly demanded deep slashes in recommended outlay. It became evident quickly that the fight on adoption of the budget would be carried out strictly along party lines.

THE PRESIDENT declared it would take 41 billion, 858 million dollars to run the government right for the next year. And the punch line was that half of every American tax dollar would be spent to hold back the Communist tide in the world.

On a party line basis, approval of the budget was assured, assuming, of course, that the Democrats hold fast. The President had a comfortable majority in both houses and there should be no difficulty in getting his proposal adopted.

But the 41 billion-plus figure wasn't all. Mr. Truman served notice he will ask more funds later to supply arms to non-Communist nations, a step which would push the budget even higher.

THE ONLY possible bar to approval of the Truman budget was public reaction to the plan to finance with 50 cents of every American dollar anti-Red activities abroad. Would the people go along with American foreign policy and the theories of policy-makers that such a step was the only answer to Communist menace? Apparently the President is confident, because of his victory at the polls, that the people will support him in such a move and thus showed no hesitancy in his budget proposals nor in making his declaration that he plans to call upon the American people for even more money to stem the Communist tide.

Already thoughts are turning to the 1950 congressional elections and congressmen whose senses were not completely lulled by the 1948 Democratic sweep, may want to sound out the public sentiment on the hugh expenditure program. If that is the case, public opinion may be the final factor in adoption of the budget.

PALESTINE:

Toil And Trouble

The British lion was roaring at a gnat. In a prepared statement, the English government declared that Palestine developments are "grave-ly threatening world peace." Coupled with the dither was a report that Ernest Bevin, British foreign secretary, had offered to DESTRUCTION: resign because of his Palestine policy and that Prime Minister Attlee had refused to accept the resignation.

THIS WAS instantly and emphatically denied.

All these developments came as Israel formally filed with the U. N. security council at Lake Success a complaint that the British were fomenting an "artificial crisis" over Palestine by troop movements and various actions just as negotiations were about to open with Egypt.

The British foreign office statement warned that the security council has been "losing control over events" and said it had a reason to fear new Jewish violations of the cease-fire orders in the Holy Land

Meanwhile, the critics of British policy in the Middle East prepared to demand that Secretary Bevin explain how it happened that five RAF planes were shot down by the Israelis near the Palestine border. Britain's air ministry asserted all five planes were shot down while flying over Egypt.

IT COULD NOT be denied that the situation was difficult. Broken perhaps an aerial photograph of a down to its basic essentials, it is a condition where one people must, or have been told they must, give way to the infiltration of another people-the Jews moving into Palestine and the Holy Land area, the Arabs moving out. It has never been a secret that British sympathies, for whatever reason, lie with the Arabs and John Bull looks with jaundiced eye on the partition action and the influx of the Jews. But the United States and some other nations have sided with the movement to return the Jews to their homeland, and thus the stalemate. It may yet require organization of and action by a United Nations police force to settle the affair. not yet reached its zenith. TRAILER DEMONSTRATION

CHAIN STORES: Food Dollar Chart

Despite the prevalence of many convictions to the contrary, consumers who lay a dollar down on the counter of a chain store gets food that costs an average of 83 cents.

This leaves 17 cents to the chain with which it must pay all its incidental expenses and 10 cents of this, or about three-fifths, goes out in wages to employes of the chain.

IN PAYING 17 cents to the chain the customer thus lays out that amount for the chain's combined wholesale and retail services. After the 10 cents goes to employes, the remainder is allocated in this manner: one and one-half cents for rent and maintenance; two cents for warehousing and cartage; a little over one cent for shrinkage, spoilage and theft, and one-half cent for advertising. This leaves from one to one and one-half cents net profit to the chain, less income taxes of one-half to one cent.

These figures were developed in the latest in a series of price studies by the family economics bureau of the Northwestern National Life Insurance company.

The survey disclosed that individual markups vary widely, of course, within the store, being much higher than the general 17 per cent average on perishable items like fresh fruit and vegetables, and much lower than average on very competitive staples like sugar.

ACCORDING TO the study result, the average food chain markup before the war was 221/2 cents -a third greater than today. Today's far greater dollar volume per store, and therefore per eson is certain to be taken over employe, is mainly responsible for the lower handling costs per dollar of sales. Should either prices or total volume shrink materially, the cent or so profit margin per dollar would vanish rather quickly and "red ink" would take its place.

Before the war, the farmer re-ceived an average of 40 cents of the consumer's food dollar and 60 cents went for processing, canning, shipping, wholesaling and retailing. Today the farmer gets 53 cents per dollar and 47 cents covers all the various steps in processing and dis-

LONGER LIFE:

Science Has Key

If parents would insure long lives for their progeny, they must marry young.

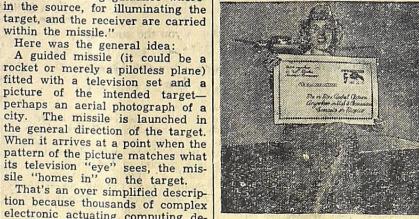

DR. I. A. LANSING of the Washington university school of medicine, St. Louis, reported to the Gerontological society of New York the discovery of a mysterious chemical, called X, which seems to time how fast a human being grows old. "X" is something that parents transmit to their offspring and it is set like a clock, either for long or short life.

rustle as the Acheson hearings. The age clock was found in rotifiers, but a little human evidence was sighted. Rotifiers are microscopic water bugs, swimming with long lashes that make them look like whirling dervishes. The setting of the X-clock in rotifiers depend on how early they mated. IT APPEARS, Dr. Lansing stated, that the amount of X stuff in a fertilized egg sets the clock. When there is little X, the rotifier lives long. As parents get older, the eggs contain more X and life is shorter. He also said that the mysterious stuff also regulates growth-as the volume of X increases, growth stops. The human evidence is indirect. tained in a "glossary of guided missile terms" made public by the Dr. Lansing said. A study by Dr. Louis Dublin, showed a tendency for children of young parents to live longer than those born later. The glossary's reference to the And, it must be remembered, subject was terse, saying merely humans come from eggs.

New Air Postcard

Air line stewardess Betty Scheiner displays the newest form of communication—slightly larger than natural, of course. It is the new four-cent air mail postcard which went on sale at post offices over the nation on January 10. The postal department expects vast popularity for the new card.

Ranch Girl, 14, Is Youngest Licensed Guide in America

WAYNESVILLE, N. C.—If you're looking for Juju Alexander, the 14year-old Catalhoochee ranch girl you'll probably find her jogging through the Great Smokies on Dynamite, leading the way for a party of grownups.

Juju, whose short career has included everything from breaking fractious colts to comforting tenderfeet unaccustomed to the wilds of the Smokies, is the youngest licensed guide in the United States park service.

Juju has been wise in the ways of horses, people and the wilderness for a long time. By the time she was five, she thought nothing of climbing into feed boxes and trying to bridle horses considered on the frisky side by other wranglers. By 12, she needed little instruction from her mother and father, who have ridden most of the 600 miles of Great Smoky trails.

Her father is convinced Juju could lead a week's pack trail group, but right now he confines her to day rides or "short nighters," in which guests ride to predetermined campsites, spend the night and return next day to the mile high ranch.

She can stretch a sketchy leanto-by herself if she has to, but she seldom does. Her scarce concealed contempt for city dude helplessness, plus the fact most of the ranch hands want to go along, leaves her little more to do than supervise.

Says her father: "It's her only fault as a guide; she takes all the hired help away."

Florida Educator Urges More Play for Teachers

TALLAHASSEE, FLA.-A Florida educator asserts that elementary teachers need more time during the school day to "relax, drink a coke, smoke a cigarette or gossip with other teachers." Dr. J C. Peel, dean at Florida

Southern College, says the teacher in the lower grades "has children under foot or in her hair from 8:30 a m to 3 p.m. five days a week." The lack of free time, he says, is directly responsible for the shortage of instructors in schools all over the country. He thinks something should be done to attract more teachers to the elementary schools.

Professor Asserts Device Can Prevent Deadly Smog

CINCINNATI. - An Indiana University professor said that a simple electrical device could be used to avoid deadly smogs like that which killed 19 persons in Donora, Pa

The professor, Dr. Frank T. Gucker, Jr., said the device, known as the Cotterell precipitator, filters factory fumes.

Gucker said the smog frequently found in industrial areas comes when water vapor condenses upon particles of dust and smoke in the air These particles are known as aerosols.

"These aerosols may be removed rapidly and completely," he said, by means of a high-voltage electric discharge, which charges the individual particles and draws them over to one of the electrodes where they are deposited."

Italian Midget Submarine Takes Unscheduled Dive

NAPLES, ITALY. - An experimental Italian midget submarine took an unscheduled dive-and it sank. No one was aboard. The submarine is Pietro Vas-sena's C-3, a cross between a watch pocket submarine and a diving bell. It is 25 feet long and 41/2 feet wide, shaped like a barrel and equipped with pincers fore and aft to grapple for treasures on the floor of the sea. It carries two men.

The inventor, who tested it at Lake Como, said it could go 2,400 feet underwater and stay there 20 hours. Vassena brought it here to dive in reported 2,700 foot depths between Naples and Capri. While being towed it went under suddenly and sank in 330 feet of water within 40 seconds.

Is U.S. Going Socialist? It's World-Wide Argument

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator. WASHINGTON.—As congress sharpens its teeth for the "True-Deal" program (The "true being for Truman), some of the gentlemen who have watched things going on behind the scenes in Washington for a long time (maybe too long) have a habit of blinking and saying in

"Say, is America going socialist without knowing it?"

Long before the November election a number of European States. men, editors, professional politicians and others who are backing the various socialist and socialistic-inclined governments, including Britain's, were getting really worried lest a probable Republican victory should make an emphatically capitalistic America less sympathetic toward left- sible.

The Truman upset caused them to whoop with joy. After they read the President's state of the union message on January 5, and after his appointment of Dean Acheson as secretary of state, they pulled out a chair on the left side of the international table, expecting him to sit right down and join

What was probably as much wishful thinking as any-BAUKHAGE thing else caused the official Socialist party organ of France to hail the administration program as definitely socialistic. Most of the rest of the French press took about the same view, even to the somewhat lonely, pro-capitalistic Figaro which said the message was "close" to socialism.

The same view was taken by the left-wing press in other European countries-(I'm not counting the Communists who merely rang the old propaganda changes). How-ever, the independent Manchester Guardian, long known as the rock of liberalism and likewise as an outstanding voice in British journalism, took a different tone. The Guardian always has been exceedingly well informed concerning the United States and probably understands America as well as any foreign newspaper. It said:

"Mr. Truman's program is an indication that socialism is not the only path for the left. Its goal might be called the insurance state. Its method the deliberate shortening of the odds against the weak. But without abandoning the basically individualist way of life which is accepted as characteristically American."

Comment from the extreme right in this country, in congress and out, chose to see Skipper Truman charting a course for the Ship of State which veered far to the left of center, in fact headed straight "It is impossible to do good high for the rocks on which free enterschool or college work on a base of prise, individual initiative, in fact all phases of capitalism, would be

> That, however, was not the opinion of the majority of the Republican party, and, already signs are showing that it isn't the intention of the majority of the Democrats to let such a catastrophe overtake us, even if they think the Skipper would be willing to risk it, which they don't believe he is.

> The alarmists point to the rather startling suggestion on the part of the President that the government study production with a view to offering loans to the steel and other industries for expansion of plants and increased production.

If the companies refuse to cooperate, it was suggested the government-owned steel plants would be erected. That does sound like a long step toward nationalization of industry. But other observers, both those who consider the idea fatal to free enterprise and those who believe in such government-run ventures as the Tennessee Valley Authority, consider it more of a threat than a promise.

In that connection the recent controversy behind the iron curtain which had finally leaked out in specific and detailed form is interesting. One document consists of reports of a three-day conference of Soviet economists held last May, the other is a study of Russian economy during World War II, by a member of the all-powerful politburo. Both documents attack the theories of Eugene Varga, internationally known Russian economist and former director of the World Institute of Economics in

Those 'Anxious' Russian Leaders

This controversy, according to Walter Lippman, may be the real basis of President Truman's Kansas City statement that there were "certain leaders" in Russia who were "exceedingly anxious" reach an understanding with the United States. Even if the row among the economists wasn't the inspiration for the President's mysterious remarks, it might indicate that there is or was an element in the Soviet leadership which felt it was better to try to get along with us.

The explanation of the controversey among Russian economists is this: Soviet foreign policy, specifically maintenance of the cold war, is supposed to be based on a belief that the United States is headed directly toward another depression. This "bust" will so sap our strength that all the Soviets will have to do is take us over with little or no real military struggle. (The revolt of the proletariat). We'll be too down and out to help anti-communist Europe. The anti-Communist countries will fall easily into Communist control. Then we can be beaten largely by infiltration, fifth column "action committees" and other methods because there will be general unemployment, discontent and general

This belief is based on the teachings of Marx and Lenin that capitalism is bound to destroy itself because it produces "boom and bust" cycles which grow increasingly worse, and therefore, it is impossible for a capitalistic country to try to do anything permanent for the masses to increase their standard of living.

Now, however, along comes Varga, introducing a new argument. He argues that by adopting measures which he describes as "state socialism" any major depression in the United States can be prevented or at least postponed for 10 or 20 years. If this thesis were accepted by the Soviets it would be wiser to cooperate with the United States and other non-Communist countries, rather than to take for granted that our economic system as well as theirs is going to continue for some time. On that theory it would be to the Soviet's interests, for the present at least, for the Kremlin and the White House to play ball.

What are the measures of "state socialism" Varga is talking about? The various social and welfare proposals like expanded social security, national health insurance, federal aid to education, undertakings like the Tennessee Valley Authority and the many other reforms which started under the New Deal, and which President Truman now urges should be carried forward or expanded.

In the early part of the President's state of the union message he announced in popular language the underlying theory of his administration. He said:

"We have rejected the discredited theory that the fortunes of the Nation should be in the hands of the privilged few. We have abondoned the 'trickle-down' concept of national prosperity. Instead, we belive that our economic system should rest on a democratic foundation and that wealth should be created for the benefit

Whether or not the majority of the people have rejected that theory remains to be seen. There are still many people, who believe that no country can be prosperous unless it is strong at the top and that it cannot be strong at the top, that business and industry cannot prosper, unless free enterprise have the widest liberty possible. That capital should be encouraged by the incentive of profit to take risks and challenge competition. That government interference destroys the initiative which has made the country great. That once business is unshackled by federal bureaucracy, the benefits flow (not trickle) down and spread out to benefit the whole

The National Association of State Chambers of Commerce, one of a hundred business organizations testifying against a bill which would permit the TVA to build a new steam plant at Johnsonville,

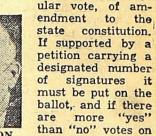

". . . this government cannot continue much longer to aid in th growth of tax-exempt or government-owned enterprises, this narrowing the nation's tax base, without throwing greater burdens upon the remainder of the taxpayers and without gradually strangling free enterprise to death."

A Dangerous Dilemma

THE PEOPLE of California have carried the referendum and recall idea, which has been tried in many states, far beyond the original concept of discarding an unpopular law, or firing an unwanted public official. In California minority groups can, and all too frequently do, change the basic law, the constitution of the state, at any state or national election. It is, so far as I know, the only state in which such a result is pos-

The process is simple. Any individual, or group, can propose the enactment, by pop-that particular proposition, it becomes a part of the state constitution, including all the details of operation. Throughout the state are organizations that make a business of getting at a price, the needed number of signatures.

Regardless of what the proposition may be-or what its enactment cost the state-neither the legislature, nor any state official can voice either approval or disapproval. When a majority of those voting on the proposition have registered approval, the proposition becomes a part of the state constitution and cannot be written off except by another amendment.

FOURTEEN SUCH proposed amendments were on the ballot of the last general election. No voter understood what all of them meant, and only those of the interested minority group proposing it understood the meaning of any one. Each was described on the ballot by a brief paragraph which gave no details of explanation. Three or four of those proposed received the needed majority of affirmative votes to make it a part of the state constitution.

Let's take one of those as an

It provides for a considerable increase in the pension paid to the old aged. It takes the administration of that part of the welfare laws of the state out of the hands of county welfare officials and places that responsibility in the hands of a state organization which it sets up. It names the personnel and provides the salaries they

The proposed legislation also would provide that the pensions shall be paid out of any money in the state treasury to any and all beneficiaries named by the bureau the amendment has created. Those and other details have all been written into the state constitution. Nothing the governor can do will change this in any particular. It is not fundamental, but it is made a part of the fundamental law of the state, even to the smallest detail.

IN CALIFORNIA the people elect a state legislature, but there is little for the legislature to do. The legislature can have nothing to say on the things the state constitution provides for, and such things are numerous. The method gives to the minorities an opportunity to put over class legislation that would have difficulty getting through any legislative body. The amendments get by because the mass of the voters do not realize what the amendments mean or what they do.

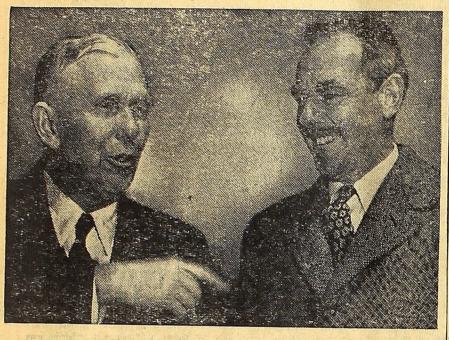

The increase in the old-age pensions, the method of distribution and administration, etc., may possibly bankrupt the state, or force the levying of heavy additional taxes-but whether reasonable or otherwise, whether there is money available or not, those pensions must be paid; yet they were decreed by a small percentage of the total voters of the state.

It is the application of the town meeting system as a means of regulating the affairs of the state. I am told the idea originated in the mind of Sen. Hiram Johnson. He considered it as "progressive" legislation, a way to determine the wishes of the people.

The Constitution of the United States should have a place in the curricula of every school. The children of the nation should be taught its meaning as applied to themselves as individuals; they should realize the advantages it provides. Not many children of today can offer a descriptive meaning of its provisions. It is not a popular subject with all to many of our teachers. They, too, would profit from a study of that immortal document. It would stop the trend toward communism.

Divorce Is Tragedy

Bell Syndicate-WNU Features By KATHLEEN NORRIS

DO YOU think it is right for divorced persons to be friendly after the divorce?" asks Donna Wilson of Minneapolis, "It always has seemed so vulgar, somehow. Yet I find myself helpless against the friendliness of my husband and his new wife.

"We are neighbors and her little girl by an earlier marriage and my little girl are inseparable friends.

"This wretched situation has come about," the letter continues, because Len and I were undisciplined children seven years ago. Oh, we were respectively 26 and 23, but no one ever had taught us anything of the practical or the psychopathetic values of marriage. Len's salary was $66.66 a week. It seemed a lot, when everything was all fun, bridesmaids, presents and excitement. It got to be pretty grim almost as soon as the honeymoon was over.

"We were perfectly amazed at the way bills accumulated. We both had had cars, cameras, trips and spending money from our families. Now neither family could help us; we were on our own and anxious, quarreling, dissatisfied days began.

Applied for Divorce "Deborah was born and I was overtired and continually on duty. When she was six months old I brought her home to my mother and applied for a divorce on the grounds of cruelty. Mother is arthritic; she needs me. She cannot be moved from the cottage that has been home to her all her life.

"Len's old home is around the corner. He owns it now and he and his wife and her little girl live there. There is going to be a new baby. He came in especially to tell my mother of it. Mother always liked him and I know now I always have loved him.

"Isn't it a terrible pity? Deb could have had her father; I could have had the lovely old home. Now I have to stand by and see another woman share the setting, love and protection that ought to be mine. All because I was so ignorant, so spoiled, so demanding those few years ago.

"Len's wife is pretty and has some money. He tells me that it is Helena who feels that my $100 alimony is not large enough. She says that since he has prospered so remarkably since he inherited his father's property that Deb and I should share his good luck. She has no friends in this city and now she has asked Deb, Mother and me to come to them for dinner.

"Oh, I know," this unhappy letter concludes, "that I forgot the better or worse, richer or poorer part as well as Len, that I didn't know anything of budgets, forbearance, patierce and-yes, love, the married sort that forgives and waits. I could do it now, I could make Len happier than Helna ever can, but she's the wife and there's going to be a baby. Do you think I should force myself to keep up a friendship that costs me so much in humiliation and regret?"

So here is one more twist in the great divorce tragedy that seems never to be the same and pever to end. The only thing that is unchangeable about it is the suffering that hits somebody-now husband, now wife, and always small children if there are small children.

My advice to Donna would be to see as little of Len's household as she possibly can. Then she ought to build up other interests, keep herself busy and perhaps someday find love again and get another chance.

Meanwhile, we are stupid parents, indeed, who allow our children to be taught so much that they don't need-algebra and manners and how to dress and what king succeeded Louis XIV and yet not teach them the secret of how to handle their own lives. We let them blunder into the irrevocable partnership of marriage absolutely unprepared in character and practical training, although if they propose to enter any other business we exhause ourselves with advice and preparation.

To become a doctor, lawyer, musician or writer involves actual years of study. Most courses in languages and business take several years. But our girls and boys undertake the most serious relationship of all with no more training than is involved in the arrival of 60 engagement cups.

What Donna didn't know, but knows now, is the tremendously important rule - marriages don't start with ideal happiness, that happiness only comes after years.

TOURIST BUSINESS ACCOUNTING SYSTEM

Tourist business should be making their accounting plans now for the 1949 season, re-ports county agricultural agent Harold R. Clark.

Just like any other business, resort and motor court managers should keep an accurate and com-plete set of financial records, the agent believes. The Michigan State College tourist and resort service has prepared all necessary forms in one handy book. Robert W. McIntosh, extension specialist at MSC, points to the book as essential to good managemen.

Study of business, McIntosh

vises, can show weaknesses in financial control and help to correct them. Discovering profit and loss trends alone is a good reason for keeping records. The simplified single-entry "Account Book for Small Tourist and Resort business" is now ready for distribution. Owners of motor courts, cabin camps, cottage groups, small resorts, small restaurants, tourist homes, boat liveries, bait sales and similar establishments will find the book of great use. It contains 46 pages and is suited for persons with no previous bookkeeping experience. To cover costs of printing and distribution, a charge of 25c is made per copy. It can be obtained from agent Clark's office or by writing to the Conservation Institute

East Lansing, Michigan.

When Buying Spinach

Spinach is the basic seven group of leafy green vegetables that should be served at least once a day. When purchasing bulk spinach, avoid wilted, bruised or crushed leaves, yellow leaves, insect injury, seed stems and overgrown stalky plants. Good quality spinach has fresh, crisp, clean leaves and a good green color. Spinach wilts if it is not refrigerated, and as greens wilt, their vitamins are likely to disappear. Packaged spinach wilts just as the bulk spinach does if it is not kept cool.

The Gentle Extortionist

Things have a way of working out for the best and giving you renewed faith in people—people like Marty Stone, who fancied himself a pretty hard-headed business man, and Doc Howell, who found that Marty's heart was softer than his head, but who couldn't cure the lump in his own throat.

He was small and frail-appearing. There was nothing spectacular about him except his tie, but it was an eyecatcher. Like a nervous monkey, he batted his eyes rapidly to adjust them to the semi-gloom of the garage. I had time to catalog him as a cinch for a lot of extras.

Seeing me in the office, he came over hesitating at the door until I said, "Come on in." I stood to shake his thin hand.

He had blue eyes that were deepset in their orbits; they hung on mine like those of a dog that isn't sure of a kick or a caress. The flesh beneath them sagged into pouches, and his face was deeply lined. He had the unwholesome pallor of a man who spends a great deal of time in-doors. "What can I do for you?" I asked. "Why," he said, "I want to buy a

Even as I told him it would be at least two years before he'd get his car, the way thing were moving, I was remembering things that I had heard about him—how his home had least two years before he'd get his Fred liked the social life and late hours. I sort of figured that accounted for the bags under his eyes.

But Doc Howell set me right. He been broken, how his wife had taken and I got away for a few days hunttheir boy and gone out to the coast. I ing, and somehow on the way to the two years from now." I'm sure he only half-heard me. He said, like he was almost talking to himself, "Eighteen hundred. About what I figured. I'll have it."

He wasn't like most of my customers; he didn't keep harping on me for the new car. Until summer came, at any rate. Then one day he brought the boy in. He was lots taller than the old man, already, and devoted to him. From then on until the boy went back to the coast, they were in the garage at least once each day, poring over pictures of the new auto. questioning my mechanics, and discussing it between themselves. Even after the boy had gone back to the coast, Fred would come in and pick up any new literature I might have on the car. I knew what he'd do with it, too; make notes in the margins, write letters about the auto, and send them all on to that boy.

Time went along. The wife and my boys went off on a vacation. I never liked going home to an empty house, so I would put it off to the last minute, and hang around the club till bedtime. That's how I found out that

"Here's something Fred wanted you to have," I told him. His eyes were so full he could hardly find the door handle.

He had some sort of minor post in one of the government agencies in town; I knew it owes everyone, including me." couldn't pay very much. I didn't see I thought about all the times I ha how he would be able to pay me the price of a new auto, but two years is a long time and much could happen in the interim. Anyway, I could always sell a new car. So I felt around in my desk and finally came up with the list. "What kind do you want? Coupe? Sedan?"

"A coupe, please."

"With or without wheels?" Fred smiled, tentatively. He wasn't sure whether or not he was supposed

"I'd like wheels, of course," he answered.

"Want to put something down?" "Yes, I'd like to. How much do you require?" "Suit yourself. Even if you give me the full purchase price, it won't bring your car any sooner."

He nodded. "Fair enough. I'll leave you two hundred." I took the bills and gave him a receipt. Then I asked if he had a trade-in. He looked startled. "No, Mr. Stone,

I haven't. Is it necessary to have one?" "Oh, no. Not absolutely necessary." A trade-in is still nice to have, though, for there is money in those used cars.

"I don't really have a car at all," he explained. "That's why I want this one. My boy will be coming to visit me every summer and he's getting pretty big now." His eyes lit up, talking about the kid. "In two years he'll be eighteen and he'll want a car. This is no town for a boy if he has to walk everywhere or depend on others for transportation. I plan ready for it." "Yeah, yeah. That'll be fine." There was something holding back in him when he talked about that kid, and it made me uncomfortable. As though he might talk about him the rest of the day if he had any encouragement.

But I wasn't giving him any. "We'll see what we can do," I said, and stood up.

"Not at all," I said, "come in and see me again."

"Oh, I will," he answered, "you'll seen Fred down at the club Now it costs money to belong, and if one gets into the games very often, that's expensive, too. Fred didn't stack very high with me right then, because I couldn't see how he could be broke and keep up the activities I had observed. I guess Doc read my thoughts. "Don't be too hard on Fred, Marty." he said. "You may not know it, but he isn't down there at that club every night just for fun. He has a sort of job; assistant to the steward. I rather suspect he lives on what he makes there, and sends his regular salary check out to the wife, for that boy. He watched the road for a few moments before continuing. "Fred is not at all well. If he would take it easy, get a lot of rest and stop drinking, he might last a long time, but-" rarely talked about his patients, I figured he thought he had said too much already. I forgot about Fred after that until one fine summer day I found that the next car on my list was for him. But I was dubious about the deal. After all, I was in business to make money; there were a lot of names after his that would be a great deal better business. It looked like Fred Miller was about to get the go-by, at least for a little while. Then that same day I twisted my knee and had to go to Doc's office to get it wrapped. Climbing the wellworn stairs, I met Fred coming down. He looked just about all in, and very sad. I thought to myself: "Oh well what can I lose?" and told him about the car.

His face broke into a million wrin-kles as he smiled. "That's fine," he said, "That's good. The boy will like that." He went on down the steps He went on down the steps with a lot more life to his tread. I went on up to Doc's.

Just to make conversation, I asked him what was wrong with Fred. His answer was vague, as I might have known it would be.

"Can't understand the little fellow; he goes right on doing all the things I tell him are bad, yet he keeps coming in here to have me check him over. All I can do is shake my head, tell him to get more rest and stop burning the candle from both ends." He adjusted a couple of pads around get so tired of seeing me around you'll my leg, plugged some wires into a want to throw me out. By the way, machine, and flicked a switch to say.

"Doesn't seem to worry him. Can you tell me why?"

Neither of us knew then, but we got the answer later.

When his car was being unloaded at the railway dock, I called him. Most of my customers like to be on hand to get a first glimpse of the car for which they have waited so long. After awhile, he showed up, and I was shocked at his appearance. He was walking slow and easy, like the old man he looked to be. His cheeks were hollow, his sunken eyes deeper than ever. The pouches below them hung away down.

But he was surely happy about the car. I told him it would take a couple of days to get it into shape for "Good enough," he said, "I expect the boy over about then.'

I never saw Fred again.

Doc let me know. He called me. 'Come on over, will you, Marty?" I knew from his tone it was important, so I hung up and went right away. He was sitting in his private office.

When I came in, he pushed a bulky envelope across the desk to me. It was addressed to me in an unfamiliar hand. Opening it, I found a twothousand-dollar insurance policy with me as the beneficiary. The name of the policy holder?

Fred A. Miller! I showed it to Doc. "Yeah," he said, "Fred died last night. Natural causes, yet he could have lived a lot longer. Only eventually he would become an invalid, and his son would want to take care of him. On the other hand, he could duck out now and leave the lad something. I guess he chose to have the boy remember him as something other than a sick old man."

I could see the picture. But you just don't know what to say in such cases. So I guess I sounded a little irrelevant when I said, "Cars have gone up, Doc. This two thousand won't cover it now."

Doc looked as though he were disappointed in me. He pulled out his check book and picked up a pen. "Well, I want that boy to have that car, Martin. How much is the difference?"

"Put that stuff back, Doc," I said, 'you don't have a corner on soft hearts and softer heads."

He grinned then. "I want to share it. at least."

After old Fred had been decently tucked away-and it was amazing how many friends the old boy had-I called the kid over to the garage. Doc and I led him to the car.

"Here's something Fred wanted you to have," I told him. His eyes were so full he could hardly find the door handle. "And here's another thing he told us to give you." He took the slip of paper I handed him, and I was glad he couldn't read it right then. He only nodded; he couldn't talk, although twice he tried. He put the car in gear and backed out.

Doc and I stood on the sidewalk to watch him drive down the street. About a block away, he pulled over to the curb and stopped. My guess was that he couldn't see through the tears that must have been tumbling down his cheeks. After all, he was only a kid.

I shoved my hands into my pockets and looked at my feet, not talking. For a minute, Doc didn't say anything, either. Then: "What was that you gave him?" My tone was defensive. Hadn't Doc treated Fred for nothing? "You really didn't think I could keep that policy, did you?"

Doc's voice was sort of soft and strange when he finally answered.

"Fred sure knew a soft-hearted sucker when he saw one, didn't he?" He turned and started cff. "Now I'm going down to the office and see if his voice trailed off into silence. He modern medicine provides anything for a lump in the throat."

CHERRY FAVORITES

FOR A MONTH whch is short, February has more than its quota of holidays. Just in case you're entertaining for even one of these, I've planned a number of popular desserts from which you can take your choice.

Youngsters and oldsters alike will enjoy colorful desserts whether they're for family diner or a party. You may serve them ice cream cake or pudding, or pie, if that's your favorite dessert, and it's bound to be a hit.

Here are a number of top-notch cherry dessert recipes which may be used during this month or any other. Starting with a cherry pie filling, you'll find that several other desserts can be made from it. Filled cup cakes, cherry sundae topping or a cherry frozen pudding, all are made using the same, easy basic cherry sauce that is used for pie filling. The sauce may be stored in the refrigerator for later use or for quick snacks when company drops in to call.

YOU'LL FIND that canned cherries are convenient to use and somewhat lower in price than last year. The following recipes call for waterpacked cherries. If you use those packed in syrup, reduce the sugar

Famous Basebali Duels

IT HARDLY seems possible that in less than two months several thousands of ballplayers will be headed for the sun again, south or west.

In the meanwhile, the hot stove league is getting hotter now that football is packed away where it be-And one stove league feature has been the argument involving Tris Speaker and Joe DiMaggio Here's one leading example "Dear Sir: The other night we sat around and. Grantland Rice after the inevitable late-hour discussion of the comparative abilities of Joe Louis and Jack Dempsey, naturally the chitchat switched to the all-time baseball team. One man averred that there should be a place for Joe DiMaggio.

That he is such a great star that it seems ridiculous to bar him.

"It was pointed out that currently, and for the last 20 years or more, the all-time outfield had been made up of Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth and Tris Speaker, and which of those three could a fellow toss out in favor of DiMaggio, no matter how great Joe is. It was said we could throw out Speaker, that old Tris had only been a great flyeatcher and that he didn't really rank with Cobb and Ruth and DiMaggio.

"When I got home, I got out the record book to look up Tris' records and I was convinced that DiMaggio is forever locked out of the alltime outfield. Surely, no one questions the rights of Cobb and Ruth and, after a bit of study, no one can query the right of Speaker to the center field spot, either.

"Now look. In the 22 seasons, embracing 1907 through 1928, all Tris did was average .344 at the dish, in the 2,789 games and after 10,208 times at bat, during which he got 3,515 hits. Only Cobb, Rabbit Maranville and Hans Wagner went to bat more than 10,000 times. The only others in the histors of the games who hit safely more than 3,000 times are such stars as Cap Anson, Cobb, Eddie Collins, Nap Lajoie, Wagner and Paul Waner. Even Ruth didn't make that category.

"The only others to top his lifetime batting record were Cobb, Rogers Hornsby, Dan Brouthers, Ed Delahanty, Billy Hamilton and Willie Keeler. Ruth is two points back. Think of the other greats who couldn't bang .344 in their careers, and Tris did it for 22 years!

"He's in the book for hitting 50 or more doubles in five different years, showing his amazing speed, and a knack of taking the extra base that DiMaggio has. He leads in the matter of two base hits, with 793. Aside from those figures, Speaker also shares the record for most assists from the outfield in one season-35. He once was guilty of perpetrating a pair of unassisted double plays in a season, and his mark of four triples in his three World Series stands alone: Caswell Adams."

Speaker vs. DiMaggio

The Speaker-DiMaggio duel is a tough one to analyze. addition to being hard and timely hitters, both were great outfielders. On the defensive side alone, they were better than Cobb and Ruth. Both had better arms than Cobb and both were faster than the Babe.

Speaker had a better chance to show his all-around outfield ability than DiMaggio. He played in the day of the dead or at least deader ball. This gave him a chance for a much longer range.

Speaker was a star at going back for a ball-and so is DiMaggio. Both could also come in. Speaker was a master at fielding ground balls, perhaps the best in baseball.

No one would be more dangerous in a pinch than DiMaggio has been -with men on bases, waiting to be driven home. I doubt that Di-Maggio can ever reach Speaker's all-time batting mark of .344. Few have ever passed this set of figures in baseball.

Connie Mack has the idea that there should be new baseball rankings every 20 years since so many things change. This is a good idea.

DiMaggio then would certainly head the new order-dating back to 1920 or 1925. Or possibly beginning with 1930, when Cobb and Speaker were through-when the Babe was fading-when Wagner and Collins and Jajoie had all finished.

Beginning of Textile Industry

Spinning wheel of the 14th century, the fly shuttle of the early 18th century, and the steam loom of Edmund Cartwright in 1785 provided the first real impetus to weaving. But it required the inventive ability of many early Americans, the skill of many others in the late 19th century, to give the world today its present textile industry. Great electrically driven looms today work automatically, so delicately adjusted that the instant one warp yarn breaks the loom stops until the broken thread is repaired.

Life of Samuel Colt

After being expelled from Amherst Samuel Colt was sent to sea. The ship's paddle wheel gave him an idea for the revolving pistol cylinder. At the age of 14 he whittled out a model and it worked. Later, he quit his father's dye plant to seek his fortune as "Dr. Coult". In 1832 he sent his plan of a gun to the U.S. patent office, and was awarded a patent in 1836. After the original company failed, Colt invented the submarine "mine." while still in his twenties. He died wealthy at the age of 48.
