Deep Freeze Gifts 'Chill' Demos; Senate Kills Welfare Setup Plan; Taft Is Target of AFL Vote Drive

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

DEEP FREEZE:

Capitol 'Chilled'

To paraphrase an old tune, it was "January in June" in Washington as the story of the gifts of the home freezer units unfolded and expanded. Finally, the sordid angles of the "5 per centers" operations reached to the White

WITNESSES before a group probing the extent and results of "influence" obtainable by the "5 per centers" testified that of several deep freeze units given away by the manufacturers, one went to Mrs. Harry Truman, wife of the President of the United States. Others who apparently received a similar gift were Chief Justice Vinson of the U.S. supreme court, James K. Vardaman, Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, Mr. Truman's military aide. In fact, General Vaughan got two, so the witness said.

In connection with that development, there was a question which it seemed should have been answered long ago by the man most concerned. The man was President Truman. The question was: Why hasn't the President declared that White House influence and prestige are not for sale, cannot be wheedled by favorite hangerson, and cannot be swayed by anything except the best interests of the people of the United States?

ANY FAIR-MINDED citizen will concede that there is no reason to think the acceptance of the gifts mentioned involved any law violation. Even though the company which paid the bills for the home freezers is linked with the ubiquitous John Maragon and the inquiry into the activities of "5 per centers" the mere fact of receiving personal gifts does not constitute legal offense.

In any sense of the word, it seems to be an offense against propriety. It is further evidence of a downward trend in political morals, a not too new development in these changing times. On the evidence at hand thus far, the deep freeze affair is not important-it is merely symptomatic.

ELECTIONS:

Taft Is Target

The American Federation of Labor, looking to the 1950 congressional elections, set plans for raising a million dollar war chest with which to knock off candidates obnoxious to the organization.

THE MILLION DOLLAR figure was the "minimum" officials said, with a voluntary contribution of $2 a head to be asked of the federation's members for work in the 1950 campaign. AFL efforts, with the second target being Senator Donnell (R., Mo.) who was described by AFL's William Green as "more like Taft than anyone in the senate." The per capita contribution. double that of the organization for the 1948 elections, will be split evenly with the state federations whose share is to be used in working at the precinct level. AFL's election activity will have an important bearing on the future of the Republican party in the nation. For instance, if Taft should pe knocked off in his race for reelection to the senate, it would seriously and immean that Dewey would remain as substantive evils. a top figure in the GOP hierarchy. On the other hand, if Taft should De all Taft's

The army was deemed subversive. committee which took things into its own hands was replaced by a new coalition cabinet which was who headed the revolution.

IT APPEARED that civilian rule would predominate, inasmuch as he new cabinet was composed mostly of civilians. The new government represented three political parties and various independnt groups that opposed both Zayim and the constitutional regime which fell last March.

The premier is Hashim El Atasy, head of the national bloc and former president of Syria.

It wil be slim pickings for holdup men who go after Frank B. Tippins' store in Miami. Twice within one month holdup men came and got a total of $513. Smartened up now, Tippins will no longer be a lure for robbers.

WELFARE:

No Cabinet Status

The senate was having none of President Truman's proposal for creation of a federal department of welfare with cabinet status. A coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats dealt the project a pulverizing blow by a vote of 60

WITH a constitutional majority in either house able to veto any such plan, the senate action meant complete and final defeat of the plan to transform the federal security agency, which handles the nation's education, health, and social security functions, into a department of welfare.

This proposal stemmed from the recommendations of the Hoover commission which spent two years seeking ways and means to make government more efficient and eco-

OHIO'S Republican Senator Taft, denying the Republicans were repudiating Hoover in opposing a plan they believed ran counter to the Hoover commission recommendations, declared:

"I believe very strongly that Mr. Hoover was misled."

This led Senator Lucas, Illinois, Democratic floor leader, to state that he was both "shocked and surprised that the good Republican from Ohio would deal with Mr. Hoover in this manner."

'THOUGHT' LAW:

Held too Broad

been highlighted by a Maryland circuit judge. The judge, Joseph Sherbow of Baltimore, ruled that the state cannot punish a person for what that person thinks.

The opinion was given in a case involving a state law against peo-ple who join or work with subversive organizations. It was the first courts test of the new law that required loyalty oaths by public employees and candidates for office.
"The supreme court," Judge

Sherbow said in his opinion, "has made it clear that laws may punish acts and conduct which clearly, seriously and imminently threaten

"They (the laws) may not intrude into the realm of ideas, rewin and Dewey were defeated in ligious and political beliefs, and a bid for his third term as New opinions. The law deals with overt York's governor, the party would acts, not thoughts. It may punish for acting, but not for thinking."

The law which Judge Sherbow tossed out did not specifically ban the Communist party. Its preamble said communism is a dangerous, world-wide conspiracy that fits the definition of subversive activity. Anything that aims at the overthrow of this government by force

Justice Sherbow said the law was too general. Declaring it violated the first, fifth and 14th amendorganized by Col. Sami Hennaui ments to the constitution, and Maryland's declaration of rights, he added:

"As stated by Justice Jackson (in a West Virginia case before the supreme court):

"If there is any fixed star in our constitutional constellation, it is that no official, high or petty, can prescribe what shall be orthodox in politics, nationalism, religion or other matters of opinion, or force citizens to confess by word or act their faith therein.'

BARKLEY: --

"Much Ado . . ."

Although he had declared it was "much ado about nothing," the nation wasn't dismissing Vice-President Barkley's seeming romance with a pretty 37-year old widow so lightly.

RECEIVING almost as much publicity as the Rita Hayworth-Aly Khan love story, Barkley's attentions to Mrs. Carlton S. Hadley, St. Louis, was second only to the "5 per center" probe as a topic of national speculation

The "Veep"—as Barkley likes to be called—didn't seem too distressed by all the furore. He was smilingly posing with the widow for pictures; he had taken her to "meet the folks" in his home town of Paducah, Ky., and he had squired her to some baseball games and social affairs.

WOULD HE and the widow get married? Most folks seemed to think so. And, if that were current opinion, it was touched off by the 'Veep" himself. Newspaper readers would remember that, crowning a beauty queen at Culpepper, Virginia, Barkley had declared that one day he would crown a "queen" of his own. The fact that later, at Paducah, he referred to his granddaughter as being the "queen" to whom he referred, few people believed him.

MacARTHUR:

Problem for Truman

No matter how the Truman administration plays it, Gen. Douglas MacArthur is a tremendous public relations problem.

THE GENERAL has twice declined the invitation to appear before senate committees, the second refusal being in conncetion with a bid to come home and tell a probe group what he thinks about the Chinese situation. The general replied that he thought he could do better staying in Japan. Of course, President Truman could order the general home, but if he did so, and MacArthur accepted the order, both the White House and the state department would be in a constant case of jitters over what the 69-year-old prima donna might say in speeches throughout the country.

If the President chooses not to order the general home, then his critics will have fuel for added clamor that MacArthur is being isolated and persecuted.

APPARENTLY, no one seems to know the procedure in the event MacArthur refused to come home if ordered. There seems to be a prevalent conviction that Mac-Arthur can stay in Japan forever, if he so chooses.

There are those who say for the general to make that decision would be a typical MacArthur gesture and that it would fit in superbly with his fine sense of the

The ambassador, a retired admiral and former envoy to Belgium, held the first meeting with Stalin that any American official has had in nearly a year. He described his visit to Stalin as a "courtesy call."

In for Year

Seeking to win a bet of $1,000 against $25,000, Don Haynes, Ashland, Ore., is to spend a year in this deluxe car. He made the bet with rancher D. M. Mauldin, a neighbor. The year wil be up next February. Haynes holds a girl's picture he found in the road and she was to be given a new car if she identifies herself.

SAILORS:

Pockets, Mac!

The navy has relented at last. Harkening to a complaint stemming from 1797, the seagoing branch of Uncle Sam's forces has promised sailors they'll have pockets in their pants-but not until June, 1952. But, having waited this long, sailors could wait two more years. And that wasn't all. Promised, too, was elimination of the 13-button front on sailors' trousers, to be replaced with a zipper.

CATGUT QUARTET . . . The Italian Davis cup team members arrive in New York aboard the Queen Elizabeth for the finals of the challenge round. They were scheduled to play against the Australian team and the winner of that match was to play the United States team, holder of the cup. Left to right the Italian tennis players are Vanni Cianepele, Giovanni Cucelli, Illo Quintavalle (captain of the team) and Marcello Del Bello. Bello. The Italian foursome was confident that it would return to its homeland in possession of the

ALL THIS AND TALENT TOO . . . These finalists in Chicago's junior Miss America contest were judged for talent as well as beauty. The winner was Marlene Born (center). Second was Donna Hutchison (left) and third was Charlene Stuckerman. As winner, Marlene received more than $1,000 in prizes and the right to represent Chicago in the finals. This picture shows that the junior lovelies are seniors when it comes to charm and loveliness. Maybe from their ranks will come some winners of the Atlantic City senior Miss America contest in later years.

NEW ATTORNEY GENERAL . . . J. Howard McGrath, Democratic senator from Rhode Island, (center) assures newsmen at the White House that he will accept the post of attorney general of the United States. He had already informed President Truman of his decision to accept the appointment. McGrath said he would resign his seat in the senate and his post as chairman of the Democratic national committee when his appointment to the cabinet office was confirmed by the senate. He fills the vacancy created by Tom Clark's appointment to the supreme court.

POSSIBLE CABINET MEMBERS . . . John J. McCloy, United States high commissioner-designate in western Germany was authorized to pick 10 men as cabinet members when the west German government is established and the allied high commission begins to function. Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor (left) was expected to replace Brig. Gen. Frank L. Howley as U. S. commandant in Berlin. James Riddleberger (center), acting political adviser, was expected to head the office of political affairs. N. H. Collison (right) is expected to head the office of economic affairs. Germans went to the polls recently and when the results were in, they showed that the rightists had come out on ton.

'NO STARCH'

THEY STARCHED my shirts again," we said to the wife. "Well, don't say it so accusingly," she replied. "I didn't do it. It's the laundry.'

"But the laundry has been told again and again not to put any starch in 'em," we said.

"I'm all in from repeating the word 'No starch' to it," said the wife.

"What does the laundry say?"
"It says 'O. K.! No starch.'"

"And back it comes starched in technicolor, with the collars on summer shirts as hard as lawn-mower blades, and the cuffs so hard you have to button them with a chisel and hammer. Why don't we change laundries?" we moaned.

"Hah!" snorted the missus Change 'em and what do you

"More starch," we suggested.
"Exactly! The laundries or the laundry workers are in a great national conspiracy in restraint of soft collars and cuffs. They are in a secret society dedicated to the use of starch. Their motto is 'You'll take starch and like it!' "

We resolved to investigate. We spread our shirts among different laundries. Our routine was the same at each laundry.

"Does this laundry do shirts without starching them?" we asked. "Certainly. All you gotta do is specify you don't want no starch, mister. "I so specify. Do you want it in writing?' "Naw. I'll put a note on it 'no starch.' Then it goes through and comes out with no starch."

"I've been putting notes 'no starch' on my shirts for years," we said. The laundryman looked surprised. "I can't remember that," he said. "Are you sure they came back starched?" "Look at my neck. You think those red circles are from rope?" we demanded.

"Some laundries are careless, you know how it is. With us when a customer says no starch he gets no starch. We got a system."
"What is it?"

"We have a starch department and a no-starch department. All the stuff that don't want starch goes to the starch department. Also we got a starch superintendent and a no-starch superintendent. And on top of that we got starch and no-starch classification clerks and inspectors. Here's something else, we don't use much starch anyhow, even if you ask for starch.

"So these shirts will come back with no starch then?' "You men take my starch-beg pardon-my word for it.'

"Positively no starch!"

"Positively!" The laundry came back in a carefree as we opened it. Then we leaped through the second story window. "I know," called the wife, looking out, "Starch!" 'Starch,' we admitted, crawling

too much as it is.

College courses by television are now being announced. We suppose the grads will win iceboxes instead of diplomas.

And get minkskins instead of sheepskins.

We can see it all now . . . the baccalaureate by Howdy Doody. But a lot of people have felt that our educational system flickered

Personally we feel that edu-cation hasn't been dramatic enough. A jackpot could have helped us through ancient history. And we are positive that we would have done better under our professor if they had introduced puppets in the Latin, French and mathematics courses.

We just had to get an education such as it was, by study. We had no outside aerial.

But now we are entering an era when ignorance may be easily attributed to the fact that the set was connected up poorly and lacked a "booster."

Ira Hirschbaum, former education and now a video official, makes the announcement that Hunter college will make the first tests in video education, with history the first televised subject. Lectures on historic events will be synchronized with the picture, the cash prize on the commercial.

Your education may become a little dependent on fuses and you may find that your low scholarship resulted from a small screen.

Benzedrine Banned

THE HALT of America's new dope craze when manufacturers withdrew benzedrine inhalers from the market was the culmination of a long publicity campaign by Drew Pearson.

Working with Congressman George Grant of Montgomery, Ala., Pearson published a series of columns and broadcasts beginning last February, which pointed to the manner in which prison inmates, dope addicts and even high-school children were tearing the benzedrine-treated paper from the inhalers and using it as a cheap dope. Simultaneously, Rep. Grant introduced a bill banning the in-

Final result came when manufacturers stopped the sale of benzedrine inhalers. Instead they will sell benzedrex, a new inhaler containing a non-stimulating com-

Diplomats Worried

One thing the Senate investigating subcommittee is likely to avoid in its probe of Messrs. Vaughan and Maragon is the part they may have played in influencing the Truman doctrine for

It seems inconceivable that an ex-Greek federal narcotics agent from Kansas City should have had anything to do with U. S. foreign relations. Yet it happens that members of the Greek embassy in Washington are now as jittery as sunflowers in a Kansas cyclone for fear their relations with John Maragon will be probed by the senate.

Every administration has its hangers-on, who love to bask in the limelight of the White House. But no administration since Warren Harding's day has had the benefit of such a weird and apparently influential character as General Vaughan's so-called "Greek adviser," John Maragon.

Maragon's Record

District of Columbia's police records show that Maragon once pled guilty of transporting liquor (7/17/20), was three times arrested for disorderly conduct but never prosecuted, and once got into a brawl in the locker room of the Washington Senators where some of the ball players threatened to beat him up.

Maragon also got into a fist fight with Don Watson, chief of the state department's transportation section at the United Nations convention at San Francisco; was fired by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad; got into a street scuffle with Brig. Gen. Wm. L. Lee in Rome, Italy; was found to be distributing anti-Semitic literature at the Democratic convention in Philadelphia last year; and was questioned in the death of police detective Arthur Scrivner in 1926, one of Washington's most mysterious homicide cases. Maragon established an alibi and later married the girl whom Scriviner was scheduled to marry one day after his death.

Yet, on top of all this, the amazing Maragon turned up at the White House 30 minutes after President Roosevelt died to console President Truman, accompanied the Roosevelt funeral train to Hyde Park; showed up at the Stalin-Churchill conference in Potsdam, was the proud possessor of a White House pass, flabbergasted the admirals by accompanying Truman on the presidential destroyer during the Navy Day fleet review in New York, sat next to the President's box with General Vaughan during the Army-Navy game, and even had a private compartment on the special train that carried the President to the Maragon's influence with his old friend, Harry Truman, has been on the wane since first exposed in this column two years ago. But his influence with Harry Vaughan appears just as strong as ever. When Maragon wants to see the president's military aide, he goes to the east wing of the White House.

Truman Doctrine

Maragon's influence was near its zenith in the winter of 1947 when the famous Truman doctrine for aid to Greece was formulated.

That the amazing Maragon directly inspired Greek policy is doubtful. That he and Vaughan influenced it indirectly is more than probable.

The Truman doctrine for Greece, it will be recalled, was announced in March, 1947, shortly after Jimmie Byrnes retired as secretary of state. One of the things Gen. Vaughan constantly needled Truman about was that Byrnes was too much his own boss, that people talked on the "Byrnes policy," not the "Truman policy," and that Truman should get more credit for directing foreign affairs. That doctrine, which has now cost us a billion dollars, was precipitated when the British notified us they were pulling out of Greece.

Teams Fall for Michigan 'Pitch'

By GRANTLAND RICE

ISN'T THERE some way someone can spill bim? Isn't there some way one can stop him?

Isn't there some way one can kill bim?

Isn't there some way one can drop bim? Isn't there some way someone can show him He should be placed in his last, final rest? Isn't there someone-one who might know him To prove without doubt he's the world's greatest pest?

Summer, Smoke and Football

Mr. Tennessee Williams, an eminent dramatist, some time ago delivered an epic known as "Summer_ and Smoke.' We'll make this "Summer, epic Smoke and Football." For it suddenly occurred to us that football was just around the

corner and before any could guess what had happened. Michigan would be throwing passes again and beating teams 20 to 0 that were just about as good as Michigan. Which proves that it still pays to be smart. Michigan is al-ways smart. And as long as the forward pass is legal, Michigan will continue to throw forward passes, dating from Ben-ny Friedman to Charley Ortmann.

Why murder running backs along the ground when you can pick up 55 yards on one pitch? Which brings to mind the thought of what an amazing combination Michigan has in Fritz Crisler, graduate manager, and Bennie Oosterbaan, head football coach.

Crisler, a great coach on his own, adds 15,000 to Michigan's seating capacity-giving Wolverine followers space enough for 100,000. Also Crisler has already sold out his four big games-Army, Minnesota, etc. for a 400,000 four-game total. And in the same interim Benny Oosterbaan is starting with 22 lettermen this fall, plus a flock of promising sophomores, to keep the Maize and Blue where it has been for the last two years-at the top.

Red Blaik will have a fine Army team. It will be ably coached and directed. But it will have to be something extra to invade Ann Arbor and return with a Wolverine hide.

Look at that Michigan backfield -Charley Ortmann and Leo Koceski-the brilliant 220 pound Dick Kempthorn - Teninga and Tom Peterson-these and many others. Will Minnesota with its powerful line finally return to the Big Ten's top? What about the reviving West Coast, determined to slip back into the big picture? California, U. S. C., Stanford, Washington, UCLA and Oregon-all stronger? What about the revival of the Ivy League, headed by Cornell and Dartmouth? This 1949 season can be the all-time peak.

Great Pitching

In a season of rather shoddy pitching where the average pitcher has only a vague idea of where the plate is located, we took a brief journey through years long under dust to see what past performances had to offer.

In juggling around we ran across a compilation by Tex Oliver known as "Kings of the Mound." In this review from the present to the long ago, Oliver put together- some of the most remarkable feats of the

For example, he gave highest rating for the year to Eddie Rommel, the umpire, back in 1922. That year Rommel won 27 games and lost 13 with the Athletics, who finished seventh with one of the worst ball clubs on record. Oliver figured that any pitcher who could win 27 games with the 1922 Athletics should wear an Oliver wreath studded with laurel blossoms.

He gives his next rating to Jack Chesbro in 1904, who won 41 games and lost 12. Walter Johnson runs third in 1913, when Old Barney won 36 and dropped only seven with Washington, as remarkable a record as one can recall.

The same is true of Ed Walsh in 1908 with the weak hitting White Sox. Walsh that year won 40, lost 15 and saved nine other games. Walter Johnson won 23 games with the 7th place Senators in 1911 and Urban Faber won 25 with the 7th place White Sox in 1921.

PRETTY ROSEMARY PETTIT thinks she's just like any American girl; had no exotic birthplace for Hollywood to make a fuss about-she was born in Tulsa, Okla. She went to high school and college, one year, in California, where she lives. She had to go to New York for Hollywood to dis-cover her and take her back for bits in Michael Curtiz productions.

ROSEMARY PETTIT

She returned to New York to study, went back again, really ready for films this time. You will see her in Warners' "The Lady Takes a Sailor," and later in Curtiz'
"Young Man with a Horn," for which she's just gone west, after a season in summer stock at Princeton, N. J.

Paul Henreid, seen currently in Paramount's "Rope of Sand," will be long remembered for his appearance as the family counselor on "The Second Mrs. Burton" August 31. Vitally interested in doing what he can to further the conquering of polio, Henreid's own experiences when a member of his family was struck by the disease gave him touching material for his talk.

Joan Crawford's six-year-old son, Cristopher, believes that his mother is the bravest woman in the world. So does Joan. During her vacation in the wilds she caught six lizards for him, put them in a box and brought them home.

Until he put in four weeks on the U. S. S. Antietam, starring as a U. S. S. Antietam, warners' "Task Force," Gary Cooper hadn't gained or lost a pound in 25 years. Navy rations agreed with him-he gained nearly nine pounds.

Helen Hayes returns to radio's "Electric Theatre" Oct. 9 in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street"; meanwhile she and her daughter Mary are doing a new play for six weeks in summer stock; if good enough they will do it on Broadway. 12-year-old Jamie, last member of the family to become an actor, has appeared in "The Corn Is Green"-once in a part all written in Welsh!

Andre Kostelanetz re-visited a little cafe in Cannes recently and found on the wall a bronze plaque inscribed-"The first dinner after the liberation was served to Andre Kostelanetz and Lily Pons." He says it wasn't a very good meal.

His role in "Mighty Joe Young" brought Robert Armstrong back to RKO where he made his first picture 20 years ago. "RKO was much smaller then," he says. "The big shots were Gloria Swanson, Ann Harding and Bill Boyd. It was the lot where Clark Gable made his first picture, "The Painted Desert'." Armstrong's first one was "The Main Event."

Warren Hull really knows what he's talking about when he discusses their home towns with contestants on CBS' "Spin to Win." During the 10 years he co-starred with Parks Johnson on "Vox Pop" he travelled all over the country.

After 11 years of preparation, Edward Small announces that "Valentino as I Knew Him" is really under way. The difficulty lay in finding an actor who would satisfy Valentino fans; Small found him two years ago.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

Wishing Won't Make It So

By Lawrence Gould

"Is it morbid to feel you are useless"?

Answer: It is certainly not mor-bid to wish you could be of more use to your family and to society, provided you don't just "take it out in wishing," for you cannot enjoy normal self-esteem unless you feel that you are of value to somebody besides yourself. But there is a morbid or neurotic sense of uselessness which is mainly an expression of self-pity, since it grows out of a feeling that you've never been appreciated or given a chance to show your real worth. You may also ignore minor ways of being useful because your pride demands big ones.

Can delinquency be foreseen?

Answer: Yes, says Dr. Kate Frienlander, British child psychiatrist. Children whose essential attitude is "anti-social" all have one characteristic: inability to wait for gratification of their desires, which in turn springs from the fact that they have never felt sure anyone would love them and take care tha their needs were supplied. The life histories of these potential delinquents show that there has generally been some serious disturbance of their home lives during their first five years which prevented normal character development.

Is psychosomatic medicine misunderstood?

Answer: Sometimes rather dangerously. Because disease is an unpleasant fact and most people try to find an excuse for ignoring such facts, the idea that much disease starts in the mind is twisted into the belief that a "psychosomatic illness" is imaginary and can safely be neglected. But as a friend writes: "A person may develop tuberculosis because he is unhappy, but he may also be dead if he does not seek medical treatment for it." Even solving an emotional problem will not always undo the harm it has done. That needs separate

KEEPING HEALTHY

Teeth May Cause Heart Disease

By Dr. James W. Barton

SOME YEARS AGO an old boy- lining of the heart can do a lot of damage to the valves of the heart asked me if there was anything that could be done for his 12-yearold boy who had heart disease. He told me that his family doctor had called in a heart specialist who said nothing could be done.

However, since I was an old friend he thought I might know of something. I had to admit that in this type of heart disease, inflammation of the lining of the heart, endocarditis, once the inflammation was under way, rest was the only known treatment. The boy died a few days later.

Today physicians are not helpless in the treatment of endocarditis, now that we have penicillin and streptomycin which render these dangerous organisms harmless. These organisms, as do many other dangerous organisms, the streptococci, start in infected teeth and tonsils. Thus, instead of all these cases of endocarditis dying, the majority of them are saved. Unless they allow infected teeth, tonsils or other parts to remain in the body they will live many years.

in a short time, heart specialists advise proper dosage of penicillin into a vein at once. While streptomycin is also effective, reactions to streptomycin occur in some patients so penicillin is the treatment of choice.

In "Modern Medicine of Canada," Dr. Leo Loewe, assistant professor of clinical medicine, Long Island college of medicine, warns patients and families of the danger of further attacks of endocarditis despite the fact that an eight weeks' course of penicillin cures the great majority of cases. He reports a series of 33 dangerous cases in which 81 per cent were cured by

To prevent further attacks Dr. Loewe and his associates state that they early recognized the danger of infection as a cause of new attacks and following attacks. Dental infections are particularly notorious as planting the seed of infection in the blood stream. It is dangerous to try to continue to keep infected teeth; heart disease and Because an inflammation in the rheumatic fever may result.

HEALTH NOTES

When the pain of a headache is at the top of the head, it may be caused by thin blood, mental and physical tiredness (neurasthenia), hysteria, and diseases of the bladder and the generative organs.

Emotions can increase or decrease the flow of digestive juices and the regularity or irregularity of the heart beat.

More than half of all patients with heart diseases will have heart failure during their lifetime. With the first sign of heart failure, the physician now takes a long time view and plans the patient's method of living for years ahead. . . .

One of the symptoms now known to be caused by the emotions is pruritis. or itching.

Driving along the country road amid the scenes of his youth, Homer Croyolder, wiser now-recalled the people he knew, the friends he had had as a boy in northwest Missouri. He remembers happy times with the Kennedys-Newt, the kindest man he'd ever known; Mrs. Kennedy; their daughters, Ida and Lucy; their son, Harlan, his boyhood pal. He remembers the Delinskys, the "for-signers" on the scrubby farm behind the poor farm; shiftless Tom Davey and his long-suffering family, befriended by the Kennedys before the Daveys headed west again; Lester Forkade, the "city boy" betrothed to Ida; Lester's haughty parents from St. Joe. He re-calls the Forkades' first call.

"We've had some of the la grippe through here," said Newt. There was a painful silence during which everybody tried to think of something to say, but couldn't quite make it. Finally Newt said: "Our people seem to be coughing more than

Lucy, ine imaginative one, coughed just from thinking about it. One or two moved their feet; Mrs. Kennedy looked out the window to see if anybody was passing. But nobody was.

Ida and Lester sat primiy against the wall, not talking at all, both very self-conscious. Ida suggested they go out to the barrel-stave hammock. There was a rope tide to a stake; Lester took hold the rope and pulled at the right place. The hammock swung back and forth, giving off a pleasant, dreamy creaking. "How long have you lived here?"

asked Mrs. Forkade.

"Always," said Newt. "I was born in what is now our smokehouse." "Oh," said Mrs. Forkade. She turned to Mrs. Kennedy. "And you?"
"I was born in town."

The clock on the shelf began to tick very loud; the dog came up to the porch, his nails scratching on the floor. "Hello, Kaiser," said Newt and snapped his fingers.

The dog made a little eager noise. "He's a good cattle dog. Do you folks have a dog?"

It turned out they had a pedigreed

Newt had never seen a pedigreed dog in his life, but he didn't want to give himself away. "A person grows fond of any kind of dog, I guess." "We have two ribbons," said Mr. Forkade.

That's sire nice," he added. "They must give you a lot of satisfaction." The clock got louder.

"I'll ask you to excuse me," said Mrs. Kennedy politely. "Lucy." They began to rattle around in the kitchen.

Newt was alone and it was his job to entertain the company. Must make a good impression for Ida's sake. There'd been quite a bit of rain lately, he said; too much for the good of the crops; especially the millet, millet couldn't stand rain. Also there was blackleg around. Suddenly he gave a self-conscious laugh. "Oh course that ain't one of your problems in the city.' "I'm sure it's interesting to hear about it," said Mr. Forkade. "Yes, indeed," chirped Mrs

Mrs. Kennedy took off her apronand came to the door. "Won't you folks come out to dinner?" she asked politely.

"It's just plain, simple cooking," said Newt humbly. "You'll find we don't set much in the way of style." But there wasn't any humbleness in old Grandpa. "We set the best table anywhere round."

Mrs. Forkade smiled at the quaint old gentleman. "I'm sure you do." Ida and Lester came in and seated themselves side by side, like a married couple.

"Pa," said Newt. Grandpa bent his old gray head over his plate and thanked the Lord for what had been set before us. Then we all raised our heads up, ready to eat.

Mrs. Forkade Admires An 'Antique' Dish

The chairs creaked, the knives and forks clinked. Mrs. Kennedy picked up the peacock fan and swished it over the table.

Mrs. Forkade continued to chatter Country cooking! There was nothing like country cooking, she said.

Her eyes fastened on the peacock fan. It was about three feet long and had a white braided leather handle and a little loop at the end to hang up the fan so the feathers wouldn't get crushed out of shape. "Where did you buy it?"

"I made it," said Mrs. Kennedy. Mrs. Forkade glanced at her with respect. It wasn't everybody who not bring censure on him."

Newt. "We use it for everyday wear." First we ate the filling food, then the fancy vittles. Afterwhile the two kinds of cake and the two kinds of pie; they were good. People were slowing up now.

At last we got up. Then kind of wobbled into the parlor and dropped down on chairs.

Ida and Lester went back to the hammock, soon it was dreamily creaking again.

Newt Talks

Frankly, Too

Always, after Sunday dinner, Newt went into their bedroom and took a nap. But he couldn't before fashionable city company. He tried to talk, but in spite of himself his eyes kept slipping down. "Will anybody have a drink?"

Mr. Forkade looked up with in-erest. "Thank you, I will," he said terest. promptly.

Newt went out and pumped up a drink and brought back the blue glass pitcher filled with water; the blue glass pitcher had bumps on it. "Thanks," said Mr. Forkade shortly when Newt handed him his drink.

"What do you do, Harlan?" she asked in the superior way grown people sometimes speak to children.

"Do you like living in the country, Mr. Kennedy?" asked Mr. Fork-any thought to the matter."

"I'm glad I don't live on a farm," said Mr. Forkade, unexpectedly. "You'll excuse me for being frank, won't you Mr. Kennedy?"

Newt looked at him in amazement. For it didn't seem possible to him that a person wouldn't want to live on a nice well-improved farm. "I suppose people have to differ in their tastes.'

"Such crude surroundings," continued Mr. Forkade. "You see, I am being quite outspoken. But I like for Newt blinked in utter bewilderment. "We think we've got things fixed up pretty well." His eyes went out to where Ida and Lester were knocking the croquet balls around; then came back to the cold, formidable city people. Something was going on in his mind. Some people have the ability to see through things quickly and to size them up rightly. But Newt couldn't; as he himself would have said, "He was a slow worker." But he worked to pretty true conclusions. He seemed to be trying to find a topic of conversation. Finally he said, "There's been a good deal of flux around.'

Flux was a forbidden word. Mrs. Kennedy glanced at him, horrified; but it didn't stop him. Yes, there'd been, he continued, shaking his head sadly. Mrs. Kennedy tried to change the subject; and she did, but he shot off on another one which was just as

"I've just bought a new Poland China boar. Would you want to see him? He's out in the pen." Mrs. Kennedy glanced at him, horrified; but he did not stop. "I've got some fine brood sows, too. Would you want to see them?"

"I don't believe so," said Mrs. Forkade coldly. "Well, you'd be seeing some fine breeding stock." "I think I'd drop the subject," said

Mrs. Kennedy.

He glanced at her in what seemed to be shocked surprise. "Good land, honey, what's wrong talkin' about that? A preacher could speak out in his pulpit anything I've said and

At last, Mrs. Kennedy got him stopped; but he sat looking at the floor, hurt. "Good land, Minnie, that's moved up and down the table. One part of life. An' Mr. Forkade said

The bashfulness that had gripped Newt so long seemed to have departed, for he wanted to do all the talking. He talked about how many gilts were going to pig and about the calf Dixie had dropped. It was the way farmers talked among themselves-not the kind of talk city people ever heard. He turned to the big harvester calendar. He had made a circle around one of the dates. "I guess that'll interest you, Mrs. Fork-

Mrs. Forkade looked politely. "That's when one of our cows is going to freshen."

Mrs. Kennedy's face was suffused with shame. She tried to turn the conversation, but nothing-nothing in the world-seemed to stop Newt. "I suppose that seems kind of shocking to city folks, but I don't see it that way; it seems kind of beautiful to me, bringin' nice calves and foals into the world." Newt meant that, too.

Mrs. Forkade glanced at Mr. Forkade and lifted her brows. He pulled out his watch. "I expect we'd better think about going back, dear."

Newt sprang up excitedly. "You haven't seen my farm yet! Come on and walk across. You'll see some mighty nice layin' land."

They didn't want to, but Newt insisted and got them started. At last they came back, weak in the knees, not being used to walking on plowed ground. Mr. Forkade sat down on the edge of the porch like a farmer and looked at his soiled

"It was most interesting. Most interesting," he said weakly.

At last, the afternoon was over; Mr. and Mrs. Forkade and Lester went out to the livery rig and got in promptly. But Newt wouldn't let them go. When could they come back?

"You must come and see us sometime," said Mrs. Forkade, faintly. Newt leaped at it, "We sure will, Mrs. Forkade. That'll be a real treat to us, won't it, Minnie?"

Mrs. Kennedy said it was nice for Mrs. Forkade to think of it. "We're sure goin' to accept," said

Newt. night." "Maybe we can stay over-"You must," said Mrs. Forkade.

The livery rig rolled away. Ida did not see Lester for several days; then he came snorting up in his automobile, but the novelty of riding in a car was wearing off. And Lester-the dandy, the exquisite-did not seem quite so glamorous. The family sat on the porch, as they had so many other evenings, and watched Lester chug down the road with Ida beside him.

The family gathered around the coaloil lamp with the dog's head on the shade. Reading time, now. Newt got his livestock paper and settled in his rocking chair, his big brown hands gripping the paper.

There was a clattering and chug-Never before in all his life had anyone ever asked Newt such a cuestion of the stopped. Who could that be? Too early for Ida. But it wasn't, for in "I suppose I do. I just never gave a few moments there was the sound of her steps on the porch and the sound of Lester rattling down the road in his car, alone. For a moment it seemed that she had been crying. But she hadn't, instead her eves were flashing. She extended her hand, but this time there was no ring on her finger. She turned to her father. "Do you know what he said?"

"I wouldn't rightly know, Ida." "He said his parents said you were crude and that we were not the same kind of people and that only the same kind of people should get married.'

"Crude!" exclaimed Newt, "They did? They said that about me? Now how did they get that idea?"

This was the end of Ida's affair with the city boy who was too good for her. But she had plenty of beaus.

Grandpa Prefers

The Old Ways

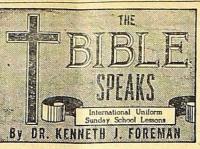

As I read back through what I've written I find I have got in hardly anything at all about Grandpa. Yet what a vivid character he was. Nearly every family had a grandfather or grandmother living with them; for the most part they had learned to keep quiet, for sometimes the children didn't want them. But Newt and Mrs. Kennedy wanted old Grandpa and he wasn't "held down." It's hard to think of Grandpa Kennedy being "held down" by anyone, such a determined individualist was he.

Most grandparents didn't think their children were farming right; old ways were best. Grandpa Kennedy though old ways were best too. but also he thought Newt was a good farmer. Indeed, took pride in him. "If you want to know what to plant, or when to sell, you just watch what Newton does," he would say to neighbors.

Old neighbors, old ways, old days —that was what interested him. News about the "old pioneers," as he called them. When Newt came back from town he would go to him and say, "Pa, I've got some bad news to tell you. Old Mrs. Bentley passed away." Grandpa would remain silent a moment. Then say, "She crossed two years after me." Another silence "Did you get perticklers?"

What Is Justice?

Lesson for September 4, 1949

EVERYBODY is in favor of justice but not everybody knows what justice is. Justice is more fundamental than democracy, If we believe that democracy is the best form of government, it is only because we believe that justice can be better secured in this way than in any other.

Justice is as old as God Since for at least 3,000 years his torians, politicians, philosophers and theologians have been wrangling over the meaning of justice, you won't learn the last word about it merely by studying one Sunday school lesson. But this is the place to remind ourselves that justice as an ideal, Dr. Foreman and democracy as a means of reaching that ideal, were not born yesterday.

Labor Day will recall the great services rendered to democracy by the organized workers of the world, for example, in the push they have given to free and universal education. But democracy is older than the labor movement, is older than July 4, 1776, is older than the Magna Charta, is older than the Roman empire, in which one of many mottoes was "Lat justice be done even if the sky caves in!"

Justice and democracy go back to the ancient Hebrews, the people who wrote the Old Testament. It was written in their laws, preached by their -prophets, sung in their Psalms. But of course they did not invent it. They proclaimed it; but justice is older than the human race. The whole Bible and not only the Old Testament teaches that justice is rooted in the nature of God himself. No unjust person can be called godly.

Songs of Justice

OUR Psalms for this week give us some valuable light on what justice is. Some people think that if everybody were rich, that would be justice. Psalm 49 shows how foolish that notion is. It says in almost so many words, "You can't take it with you.

Riches do not spell happiness. Making everybody rich might mean making many people miserable. Money by itself does not cure the ills of lire, it may make them worse or even create new ones. Many a family in the "upper brackets" has troubles that would vanish if they had less money

Psalms 72 and 82 give us more positive suggestions. Psalm 72 sees it as the king's main duty to judge the people with righteousness and justice. The king was the government, in those days; he was the executive and the legislative and the judicial branch of government all rolled into one. In modern terms, the business of government is something more than furnishing police to lock up and punish wrongs after they have been done.

The welfare of the people is the concern of government. When public officials take any other view of their job, they are off the beam. In a democracy, the government is the people, that is to say, ourselves.

If things are bad we are to blame for it; if they are going to be any better, we shall have to work for it. Every appeal to a king, in the Old Testament, when translated into terms of a democratic country, means an appeal to the peo-

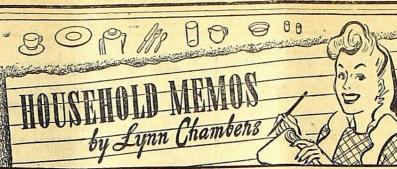

The Little People

TUSTICE always has to be concerned with the little people. It was true in the simple little world of the ancient Hebrews, it is just as true in our global complex world, that the strong will always exploit the weak if there is not a hand to stop them.

God is always for the "poor," the "children of the needy," and he is always against the "eppressor." In ancient Israel the oppressor was usually the big land-owner who treated his slaves with cruelty or under-paid his workers. Nowadays the oppressor is any exploiter, any man or group of men who will use power to squeeze out or crush down the little man.

But justice is positive, not negative, prevention and not cure only. Concern for social justice includes taking care of people laid low by an epidemic or made homeless by fires; but it goes far beyond this. It will mean working for conditions such that no one will be forced to is firm.

Delicious Fruits Still Available for Housewife In Canning, Preserving

IF YOU'VE suddenly decided to embark on canning, there's still time to put up jellies, pickles and favorite winter meals. Then, too, some of may still have space on canning your cupboard shelves for some of the arrivals. Peaches, pears, grapes, plums and apples are now reaching markets to be available for preserving.

All these fruits have a definite canning appeal whether you're past master at the art of preserving or a new bride about to embark on her first jelly-making adventure.

HERE ARE SOME colorful and combinations which are guaranteed to please because the flavors of fruits used compliment each other:

Peach-Plum Jam (Makes 12 6-ounce glasses) 41/2 cups prepared fruit 7½ cups sugar

1 bottle fruit pectin Prepare fruit by peeling and pitting 1½ pounds soft ripe peaches, chop or grind fine. Pit but do not peel 1 pound fully ripe plums. Cut in small pieces or chop. Combine fruits and measure 41/2 cups into a large saucepan.

Add sugar to fruit and mix well.
Using high heat, bring to a full boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add pectin, stirring. Stir and skim by turns for 5 minutes, ladle quickly into glasses and paraffin at once.

Pear-Peach Jam

(Makes 6 8-ounce glasses) 2 cups finely chopped pears 1½ cups finely chopped peaches 1 box powdered fruit pectin 41/2 cups sugar

Add powdered fruit péctin and sugar to fruits which have been mixed together. Mix well and heat to the boiling point, stir ring constantly. When a full, boil rolling

Make certain your canning cupboard has shelves well laden with pickles, jams and jellies for good winter eating. There's still time to make the pickles and jellies from lateripening fruits, berries and vegetables.

LYNN CHAMBERS' MENU Cold Sliced Tongue

Potato Salad Apple Relish Carrot Sticks Celery Curls Toasted Buns Beverage Fudge Cake with Chocolate Frosting

Water barely to cover Sugar

Select under-ripe apples and grapes. Wash and pick over. Add just enough water barely to cover the fruit and boil until soft. Mash and pour into a jelly bag to drip. Do not squeeze. Measure juice and let boil for 5 minutes. Add sugar (3/4 cup sugar for 1 cup of juice) and cook until a drop jells on a cold plate, or until two drops come off spoon at the same time. Pour into sterile glasses and seal with paraffin at once.

Delicious Cucumber Pickles

6 quarts of cucumber slices 1 quart sliced onions 4 large green peppers, cut fine

6 cups sugar 3 teaspoons turmeric seed

6 cups vinegar

onions and green pepper in a crock or large vessel and cover with salt water, made by using 1/4 cup salt to 1 quart water. Let stand for 3 hours. Drain.

Mix together vinegar, sugar and spices; heat thoroughly but do not boil. Pour over the vegetables and seal in sterile jars.

> Raw Tomato Relish (Makes 6 pints) 1 peck ripe tomatoes 2 cups chopped celery

6 large onions, chopped 2 cups sugar 1/2 cup salt 2 ounces white mustard

seed

1 quart vinegar Peel tomatoes and chop fine Drain in a bag overnight. Add celery and onions and remaining ingredients to tomatoes. Mix thoroughly and seal in sterile jars. This may be served just as it comes from the jar with sandwiches, or it may be warmed slightly to serve with leftover meats.

Sweet Pear Pickles

1 peck ripe pears 6 large onions 2 red peppers

2 green peppers

1 cup brown sugar 1 tablespoon mustard seed 3 cups vinegar 1 teaspoon salt

Pare and quarter the pears. Slice onions thin and mince the peppers. Combine all ingredients and cook until the pears are tender. Seal in sterilized jars.

Hungry men will appreciate a sandwich from the pork roast when it is made by placing slices of the meat on buttered bread, then topped with thin slices of unpeeled, cored apples. Top with a slice of buttered bread and serve with cheese-stuffed celery stalks and potato chips.

Combine canned fruit juices for interesting beverages to serve with sandwiches and cookies. Half and half combination of apricot whole fruit nectar and sweetened grapefruit juice is most refreshing.

Rumpus Rooms

TO THEIR ATTRACTIVE home my neighbor and his wife are adding an addition, a rumpus room for their boys.

That room, a sizeable one, has a floor especially constructed for dancing. The room will be equipped with phonograph, radio, television, a screen and projector for movies, movie cameras to produce films showing people, their friends, and places and scenes they have vis-

As I have watched the workmen erect that play place for boys of this generation it served to recall for me the various rumpus rooms I enjoyed in the boyhood of my generation. There were several of them for different seasons of the year. Some of them I did not then associate with playtime, but as I look back at them now they all provided boyhood recreation.

Chief of the summer rumpus rooms was the swimming hole in Long's creek. It was a mile from town, a place where no girl was permitted within seeing distance. There were no automobiles, bicycles, scooters or roller skates for transportation. We boys ran the mile to the creek, but we invariably walked home.

Another summer rumpus room were the wild berry patches. Of course Mother would always want to can or make jelly at inopportune times, but just the same, we enjoyed the picking, the races to fill the pails, and especially the eating times in the winter months. Still another was the family garden with weeds to be pulled and, when rains did not come at needed times, the water to be carried from the well that there might be potatoes, beets, turnips, beans and other root or vine crops, an essential part of the family larder for the winter. And they were appreciated as good eating and compensated for the chores of summer.

In the fall there were nuts to be gathered, and the woods became the rumpus room. The hickory nuts, black walnuts, butternuts, bazel nuts were the winter evening feasts that provided amusements and goodies instead of the phonograph, the radio or the movies of today, and they were pleasant evenings.

The long, snow-covered hill in front of the home and the ice covered mill pond at the bottom of that hill were the rumpus room of the winter season. Belly-bustering down that hill on home-made sleds afforded more pleasure than can be supplied today by radio or television. A roaring fire on the banks of the pond and a pair of ice skates were more fun than the then non-existent movies could have provided.

Another of the many, but not the least important, of the rumpus rooms of my boyhood days was the family wood pile and the dead red elm logs that were to be cut into cook and heating stove lengths. They certainly provided the physical exercise a boy needed to keep the red blood flowing in his veins. Keeping pace with the wood box demands was a never-ending occupation.

Through the winter there were rabbits to be trapped in boy-made traps. What a treat was mine when dad would praise me for the food I could contribute to the family kitchen table. The same thrill was my reward when in the spring, when the ice in the creek had melted, I could catch a mess of bullheads. My equipment was one prized fish hook fastened to a cotton string and a willow branch for a pole. Those bull heads were not nearly so large as they seemed-a half pounder would be a whoperbut because I caught them they tasted better than mountain trout.

Such were some of the rumpus room privileges of boyhood in my generation. For the present generation it is decidedly different, but I am not so sure it is more pleasing. We elders strive and strain that our children may have more than we had in our youth, but we too had fun, and we enjoyed it, both work and play. I am not sure I would wish to exchange the rumpus rooms of my boyhood days for those we provide for the boys of to-day. Ours were as nature and boys made them. They were real.

The armed services committee of the house took the cost reduction teeth out of the Tydings bill as it was passed by the senate. The senate bill would take close to a billion dollars out of the armed service cost. The house bill would take out practically nothing and would not reduce the useless jobs held by civilian employees, where the Hoover commission had anticipated making a big saving. Those useless civilian employees had more pull than has the interests of the American people.

Tawas Team Wins It's 22nd Victory

By virtue of their last two wins in league games, the Tawas soft-ball team took over second place in the Twin Cities Softball league. In Tuesday night's contest, Frank Mark yielded three hits in downing Anderson Coach 8-0. Priest hurled for Anderson, and was touched for eight hits. D. Myles and L. Pfeiffer collected two each. Wednesday night's game saw plenty of action as Hill outlasted F Katosh and Kennedy as Tawas defeated Hemlock Road 9-5. Hill allowed six hits, while the Hem lock hurlers were touched for eleven hits. L. Pfeiffer with a dauble and two singles paged the double and two singles, paced the hitting attack.
