YWL to Open Club Year Monday

Mrs. Gladys Creeger Guest Speaker

The Young Women's League of the Tawas will open its Club year on Monday, October 10 with a banquet at the Barnes Hotel. The program committee has prepared something very special in the line of entertainment in the person of its guest speaker, Mrs. Gladys Creeger. Mrs. Creeger not only designs and creates hats but teaches the art to other women in the Detroit area. Her classes are booked for a year in advance and clubs everywhere are clamoring for her appearance at their meetings, where she gives demonstrations of designs as she fashions models on the heads of one or more of the members.

Feeling that many women outside the league would find her talk of great interest the members are happy to extend an invitation to anyone who would like to attend. Reservations can be made by calling Mrs. Donald Herman, phone 945, before Sunday, October 9.

The program for the convention of the Federated Womens Clubs of Michigan, which is being held here on Saturday, October 15, is as follows:

9:00-11:00 A. M.—
Registration—Holland Hotel.
11:00 A. M.
Luncheon—Holland Hotel. Followed by business meeting.
3:30-4:30 P. M.
Color Tour.
5:00 P. M.
Tea.
Registration for luncheon and tea should be made at earliest opportunity with Mrs. L. G. McKay, Jr., phone 558-W, or Mrs. C. Busch, phone 601-W.

Miss Eunice Ross of Alpena spent Wednesday with her parents.

C. of C. Painters

Shown above are the volunteer workers giving the Chamber of Commerce building a new varnish job.

Included in the picture are: Cecil

Women's Clubs Open Year With Banquets

The Twentieth Century Club opened its 44th year with a dinner at the Latter Day Saints church dining room Wednesday evening. Thirty four members and guests attending.

An excellent three course dinner was served from an "L" shaped table by ladies of the church. The tables were lovely with colorful leaves, dahlias, low bowls of autumn flowers and candles as decorations.

The program committee chairman, Mrs. W. J. Leslie, was in charge of the meeting. The roll call "Since Last We Met" brought forth several humorous anecdotes and the recounting of summer vacations. The new president, Mrs. George Liske gave a short address of greeting to members.

A resume of the programs for the year was read by Mrs. Leslie from the new attractive year books.

DeMolays Elect New Officers

The Tawas DeMolays elected the following officers at their last meeting.

Counselor of Tawas Chapter, Ronald Johnson
Senior Counselor ... Carl Stephan
Junior Counselor ... Allen White
Scribe ... Morse Heineman
Treasurer ... Donald Hester

The chapter was host to the George Washington Chapter of Saginaw last week-end. There was a program of baseball, rifle shooting and fishing Saturday afternoon and an outdoor ceremony in the evening. Dinner was served at the Episcopal church. The visitors were housed at Tawas Lake.

First P-TA Meeting Next Tuesday

Tawas City Parent Teachers Association will hold their first meeting next Tuesday evening at the auditorium. This is enrollment night and all parents are urged to attend.

A reception for the teachers will follow the business meeting. Refreshments will be served.

Finley Secretary Feeder Cattle Association

W. L. Finley, former Isosco county agricultural agent, was elected secretary-treasurer of the Michigan Feeder Cattle Association at the annual meeting held last Friday on the campus of Michigan State College, East Lansing.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Buy Carlson Grocery

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Martin have purchased the Carlson Grocery at East Tawas. Mr. Martin is experienced in the meat business and will specialize in the meat department.

Both people are well known in the community. Mr. Martin, formerly in the business at Decker-ville, has been with the locker plant here for several years. Mrs. Martin is the former Lillian Sedgeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Sedgeman of this city.

In addition to operating a food market, Mr. Martin has established a slaughter house on US-23 south of Tawas where he is prepared to do custom slaughtering.

Mrs. Delbert Schrader entertained Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gaul, Mr. and Mrs. William Schroeder and Miss Edna Gillespie, all of Tawas City last Friday evening.

Don Gould President of Camera Club

Members Stage Color Tour for Sunday Afternoon

The Tawas Camera Club met last Monday night and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Don Gould, president; Rev. Robert Smith, secretary-planning director; Doris Brugger, treasurer. With about ten members present the secretary presented the calendar for the coming year.

This Sunday the club is staging a color trip, so that the color slide enthusiasts of Tawas will have a chance to get out and take transparencies of the beautiful fall scenery. The group will meet at Harbor Lights at 2:00 p. m. and anyone interested in going with the group, are invited. People interested in black and white photography are also invited.

October 17 will be "Portrait Night" with the members dividing into groups with the members taking pictures of each other. On October 31 there will be a "Print Night" and the portraits taken the meeting before will be judged. November 14 the club is staging a "Photo Scavenger Hunt," with the members breaking into groups and each group drawing a slip of paper with a title written on it. The group then sets out to take a picture portraying the title. November 28 will be print night, judging prints from the scavenger hunt. December 12 there will be a social evening with a big program on tab.

Anyone interested in photography is urged to join the club. The meetings are held every other Monday, in the basement of the St. Joseph school.

Glenn Harwood Dies Saturday

Funeral Services Held Monday Afternoon

The community was saddened Saturday by the death of Glenn K. Harwood, prominent in community work and justice of the peace. Death came Saturday morning after a few days illness.

Funeral services were held from the Methodist church Monday afternoon, Rev. L. Wayne Smith officiating. Interment was in Greenwood Cemetery.

Dr. E. A. Hasty Takes a Partner

Formal announcement was made last week of the association of Dr. George L. Schailberger with Dr. Earl Hasty at his West Branch office, effective October 1.

Dr. Schailberger, who for the past five years has been an instructor in the department of surgery at the University Michigan Hospital, Ann Arbor will specialize in surgery, as well as participate in the general practice of medicine.

Following his graduation from the Medical School at Ann Arbor, Dr. Schailberger spent two and one-half years in overseas service with the University of Michigan unit in the European Theatre of operations.

Dr. Schailberger has previously been in West Branch, relieving Dr. Hugh Jardine in 1947 and Dr. Hasty in 1948 while the medical men were on one-month vacations.

Mrs. Schailberger and the three boys are already residents of the community, having recently moved into the Caroline Wangler home in West Branch. They will be joined by the doctor at the end of this month.—Ogemaw County Herald.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORP

The Ninth District Convention of the Women's Relief Corp. of Michigan will be held in the Community Building in East Tawas, on Tuesday, October 11. The hostess is G. K. Warren, No. 170.

5th Annual Calf Sale to be Held October 18

900 Animals to be Offered by Michigan's Top Hereford Breeders

The Northeastern Michigan Hereford Calf association will hold its Fifth Annual Sale at West Branch, Tuesday, October 18. This is a co-operative consignment sale composed of breeders in Alcona, Arenac, Isosco, Oscoda and Ogemaw counties.

The sale will include 650 high quality Hereford feeder calves and 250 yearling steers and heifers. These feeders are out of high quality Hereford cows and sired by bulls from Michigan's top Hereford breeders.

The aim of members during the past ten years of their organization has been to improve the quality of their offerings each year. With abundant grassland in this area, it is ideal for producing quality feeder cattle.

Heifers offered in this sale are of sufficient quality to be used for foundations of commercial cow herds.

All female cattle over one year of age will have passed a negative test for Bangs disease.

All steers and heifers will be offered in uniform lots of size and grade. Grading will be under the direction of members of the Animal Husbandry Department, Michigan State College.

Calves will weigh around 300 to 400 pounds and yearlings from 700 to 900 pounds. This year we have a large number of choice quality feeder steers, some of which will require only a short feed to finish.

Grading and sorting of pens will be finished so prospective buyers can look the cattle over Monday afternoon and Tuesday morning. Judging of the ten best steer calves and five best pens of steer calves will be done Monday morning. Prizes and ribbons are furnished.

4-H and FFA members will have a chance to buy the best individual steer calves, or ten top pen of calves.

Prospective buyers are invited to attend the Jamboree at the Sales Yards at 7:30 p. m. the evening before the sale. They will meet the consignors and learn about the program behind the sale.

Sale catalogues will be available at the yards previous to the sale, listing each pen consigned with average weights. The ten best steer calves listing each pen consigned with average weights. The ten best steer calves will be sold individually.

Those who wish room accommodations for the night before the sale should write the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce at West Branch.

Buyers will have a better view of the sale ring this year. Bleachers have been enclosed. The yards have been enlarged to accommodate 98 pens of cattle.

Mrs. Evans Entertains Past Matrons Club

Mrs. Kate Evans entertained the Past Matrons Club of Isosco Chapter, Order Eastern Star at her home Tuesday evening. The party was planned in honor of Miss Ruby Evans, who has been appointed Grand Martha of the Grand Chapter of Michigan. She was presented with a gift from the club and with individual gifts from the members. There were several interesting games and a dainty lunch was served. Table decorations were autumn leaves, garden flowers and candles. Mrs. D. A. Evans poured.

M-Sgt. Lomas 1st in Golf Tournery

Master Sergeant George Lomas, of East Tawas, the son of Mrs. Emma Lomas of East Tawas defeated Captain David J. Allingham, Bristol, Connecticut, 4 and 3, to take first place in the South Post, Fort Myer Virginia Golf Tournament. The tournament was held from September 19 through 25, at the Fairfax Country Club, Fairfax, Virginia. The trophies were awarded by Colonel Donald McLean, Post Commander, at a party held September 29 in the South Post Service Club.

M-Sgt. Lomas is an Army veteran of over seven years service, including forty-three months overseas. He attended Isosco county Normal and East Tawas High School, and was formerly employed by the Ford Motor Company and the A. G. Spalding Athletic Company.

The annual October session of the Isosco County Board of supervisors will begin next Monday morning.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Red Delegate Urges U.N. Accord; World Awaits Pound Cut Effects; Walkouts Plague Major Industry

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

RUSSIA:

A 'Sweet' Note
The Russian theme in international accord was growing a little sweeter, it Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Soviet foreign minister could be taken at his word.

WEARING a broad smile, Vishinsky had urged United Nations members to cooperate. The gesture was made by the chief delegate as he arrived in New York by plane to attend the fourth United Nations general assembly sessions.

Disdaining the usual brusque "no comment" for reporters, Vishinsky was almost voluble. "The Soviet delegation," he said, "is fully confident that the United Nations is—as the head of the Soviet government, Stalin, said—a serious instrument for the maintenance of peace and international security."

Then he added: "There can be no doubt that the general assembly would be able to solve the important problems before it providing the nations of the U.N. show a sincere desire to cooperate with each other and in accordance with the principles of the U.N. charter."

Other delegates, advised of this and remembering the almost innumerable Russian "vetoes" in matters where cooperation might have been most valuable, decided to await development at assembly sessions to see just how far the Russian affable manner would go.

DEVALUATION:

Wait and See

To say that reaction to Britain's devaluation of the pound sterling was mixed, would be an understatement. Instead, reaction ranged from hope to fear, from confusion to jubilant "I told you so's" from all those who had held that devaluation was the only answer to Britain's current economic crisis.

AND that was the chief rub—was the solution one that would solve just the current situation, or was it the entire answer? The bulk of the thinking on that angle was that it was not the long-range panacea, with most observers preferring to "wait and see" before committing themselves to any analysis of the devaluation effect.

Meanwhile Canada had joined the parade of English-connected nations devaluing the pound.

THE DEVALUATION move was a two-edged sword in the British dollar crisis, for just as it might result in increased buying of British goods by Americans because of lowered costs, it would mean, too, that the English would have to pay more for the items they bought at home. The pound value was cut from $5.03 to $3.07, an action which alarmed most importers.

While expressing fear the move would cost them a great deal of money, most traders said they "didn't know a thing" yet and couldn't speculate until they had some word from British manufacturers.

SOME DEALERS and importers declared they would take a beating on the reduced values of their inventory of British goods already bought and paid for at $4.03 to the pound.

Fire Hazards

Of course one can live in a fire-trap—but the question is: How long?

The National Fire Protection association, calling attention to Fire Prevention Week October 9-15, poses this question and points out that 11,000 people lost their lives in fires last year. More than twice that number were seriously injured. One-third of that number, the association reported, lived on farms.

Reporting that a few structural hazards account for at least half of all farm fires, the NFPA urged farmers to take steps now to eliminate such hazards. These steps were listed as: checking of wiring systems; wetting down of inflammable roofs in dry weather; inspecting heating plants and chimneys, and protection of main buildings with lightning rods.

MARSHALL PLAN FUNDS

Money Helps Fight Disease in Europe

Critics of the Marshall plan could find little fault with one phase of it, at least. For the record showed that through this means the United States was throwing the full weight of modern medical science into Europe's battle against war-spawned disease and malnutrition. This was disclosed by ECA officials in Paris.

Through the Marshall plan,

New Justice

Judge Sherman Minton, of U.S. circuit court at Chicago, was named by President Truman to succeed the late supreme court Justice Wiley B. Rutledge.

WALKOUTS:

Cars, Coal, Steel

American industry, fighting to regain pre-war stability, was facing parlous times. John L. Lewis' coal miners had left the pits. The United Automobile Workers union had handed the Ford Motor company what amounted to a strike notice, and now the steel industry was next.

WITH these basic U.S. industries all down, production suspended, millions of workers out of jobs, the national industrial and economic picture appeared dim indeed.

President Truman was coming in for some blame in the steel industry dispute, with critics charging he had "fumbled the ball" in efforts to prevent a strike.

Four days before the deadline for start of the strike, federal conciliator Cyrus Ching had reported no progress in negotiations. Neither side would budge on the key point in negotiations.

The union contended that since it had agreed to forego its demands for a pay raise, the steelmakers should accept the presidential fact-finding board's recommendations for a company-financed welfare fund. While this seemed to satisfy steelworkers, it didn't please the UAW.

ON the other hand, the steel industry was buying newspaper space to claim that it was agreed at the outset that the presidential board's findings would not be binding on either party, and that if a strike resulted, the union would have to assume the responsibility.

Steel leaders took the position, too, that the workers should contribute to the pension-insurance plan costing 10 cents an hour for each man.

BOMBERS:

Gives Reds Pause

The declaration came from a man whose qualifications entitle him to the rating of expert—Gen. Henry H. Arnold, wartime chief of U.S. air forces. The statement, made in a book, "Global Missions," was that it isn't armies or navies that Russia fears, but only far-reaching bomber strength.

"Let's put it this way," the general wrote, "Russia has no fear of an army, she thinks hers is just as good and bigger than any other in the world; she has no fear of a navy since she can't see how it could be employed against her; but she does fear our long-range strategic air force which she cannot as yet match, or as yet understand. In the strategic air force, coupled with our atomic bomb, at this writing we hold the balance of power in the world."

"But," he warned, "by tomorrow the picture may change."

Arnold minced no words in the dim view he takes of the Russians. "The Russians," he says, "would have none of the American proposal that the American air force be allowed to build B-29 bases in Siberia to attack Japan." Similarly, he recalled that agreement for bases in Russian territory to be used for shuttle-bombing of Germany, was ended after a short time by Moscow.

The air force, in the current squabble over armed-service prestige as a result of the unification bill, could take much solace and encouragement from General Arnold's statements.

ARMS BILL:

Meddling Feared

The 1.33 billion dollars arms-aid bill had a stalwart supporter in Sen. Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.) who termed it a bargain-price peace insurance policy against Communist aggression.

He said he feared that any "meddling" with the bill might impair its force and effect.

Vandenberg, chief Republican spokesman in the senate on foreign policy, declared that the arms-aid program might be regarded either as life insurance or fire insurance and said that in any case it is a bargain policy as far as peace is concerned.

Referring to the North Atlantic defense pact, he said that pact included a pledge to maintain forces that can resist armed attack. Too, he pointed out, European allies have weaknesses that the arms bill would help overcome.

Vandenberg declared that it would be in "honorable keeping" with U.S. treaty obligations to adopt the arms bill. "I think it is definitely and specifically in the interests of our own national defense," he went on. "I think it is a discouragement to war... I think it is prime and vital peace insurance."

He argued that the plan to send American tanks, guns and planes to Europe falls squarely within the commitments of the North Atlantic pact which the senate ratified by a vote of 82 to 13.

He denied sending arms abroad would mean the start of an arms race between the East and West.

Vandenberg's active support for the measure was expected to help it materially in winning final adoption in the senate, since many dissident Republicans would probably go along on the basis of Vandenberg's admitted stature in the field of foreign policy and because of his prestige in the senate.

U.N. TOP MAN:

Soviets Object

Over Soviet protest, Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, anti-Communist campaigner from the Philippine islands, was elected president of the fourth United Nations general assembly. Only the five nations of the Soviet bloc opposed his election.

IGNORING the Soviet attitude, Romulo's first act was an appeal that the delegates make this gathering a real "peace assembly."

According to newsmen, Yugoslavia apparently voted against the Soviet bloc for the first time, in the secret ballot for president, but declined to admit it publicly.

The new president, acknowledging that many obstacles to peace still exist, said the danger of a new war had abated and that the delegates must press this advantage.

HE CALLED upon them to move forward boldly in the spirit of international cooperation called for by the Mexican resolution approved unanimously in Paris last year.

Romulo's choice as chief of the assembly was seen as indicating friction in debate on issues as the Soviet bloc could be expected to fight the anti-Communist leader at every turn where opposition could be maintained. Top Russian delegate Vishinsky had also spoken out for harmony, but on the basis of past performance by the Russians, his attitude was open to doubt.

Anti-Red

RAILROADS:

One Fireman

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen wouldn't like it, but nevertheless, there would be only one fireman on diesel locomotives. The presidential emergency board had ruled that a union demand for a second fireman on these locomotives was out of line, rejected the demand.

THE BOARD said simply that there is no need for an extra fireman on diesel-powered locomotives now in use.

TRADE BODY:

Carson Okayed

Despite some vigorous Republican opposition, John J. Carson was confirmed by the senate as a member of the federal trade commission. The Truman appointee was confirmed by a vote of 45 to 25. Carson's economic views came under heaviest fire from the Republicans, with many charging him with lack of sympathy for the American free enterprise system. Carson, 59, is a former newsmen.

LIFE SAVING SUB RETURNS HOME... The many relatives and friends of the personnel of the submarine Tusk and Cochino are on hand at the submarine base at Groton, Conn., waiting for the Tusk to pull into port. The Tusk sped to the rescue of the Cochino's crew when the latter exploded and sank recently. In the rescue operations, the Tusk lost six men who were swept overboard by heavy seas. The position of the Cochino when she exploded and sank was disclosed by the United States navy to have been in cold Arctic waters somewhere off the coast of Norway. No reason has been released by officials for the catastrophe.

SEA TRAGEDY... Nine died, two were saved. Crewmen aboard coast guard patrol boat remove some of the bodies of nine persons who perished in marine tragedy when the 28-foot cabin cruiser, Constance, was swamped in rough seas off Nantucket Island, Mass. Two other persons survived, one of whom was the hero of the tragedy. He was Carl Palmer, who battled wild seas, riptides and bone-chilling, gale-lashed waters for more than 12 hours to swim to the shore for aid. Identity of the dead had not been made when this picture was taken nor was the mission of those on the Constance made known at the time.

DULLES TO RUN FOR SENATE... Sen. John Foster Dulles (R., N. Y.), extreme right, appears at a press conference in Washington, D. C., at which he announced that he had decided to run for election to the United States senate seat he now holds by gubernatorial appointment, if the New York state Republican organization should nominate him. If the foreign policy expert becomes the Republican nominee, his probable opponent will be former governor of New York, Herbert Lehman. Lehman has said he would accept the Democratic nomination for the senatorial post. He has backing of party leaders.

CRUSADES FOR ITALIAN "BOYS TOWN"... Italian pilot John Brondelle, 36, stands beside his plane, the "Santa Susana," in Lisbon, Portugal, in which he hoped to fly to the United States on the first leg of a western hemisphere journey to raise three million dollars for a national Italian "Boys Town" in Turin, Italy. Brondelle's first American destination was La Guardia Field, New York City. He planned to carry on an extensive campaign throughout the United States. He said he would fly into at least 66 cities in the United States, Canada, Central America and South America on his mission to help unfortunate boys of his native Italy.

Sophomores Hold Bingo
A party given by the year was a party given by the Sophomore class last Friday night. A fine crowd attended. The proceeds of the party will be used to defray the expenses of the annual initiation banquet. After the game dancing was enjoyed by the guests. Mrs. Charles Bellville furnished the music.

Junior Class Host for Open House
Open House was held for the first time September 30 under the auspices of the junior class. Dancing and games, and refreshments were enjoyed during the evening.

Senior Class Plans Skip Day
Plans are underway for a senior Skip Day to be spent at Greenfield Village. The class plans then to go to Detroit and spend the next day there.

Carnival to be October 21
The Carnival given by seniors will be held October 21 at the school. Among the features this year are individual acts or stunts by the different grades and a play by the high school faculty, "Sis of the Ozarks."

Initiation
The secret was revealed when attractive invitations were given to the Freshmen Friday that their initiation into full fledged high school students would occur on October 7.

A track meet between the two classes will be held instead of the traditional football game. Coach Francis Clegg will direct it. The banquet will be given at seven o'clock at the high school, and dancing will follow the program.

P. T. A.
The annual White Elephant Sale will be held Tuesday, October 11, and all the members and friends are urged to bring in as many contributions as possible.

Dry Bean Support for 1949 Crop
Dry bean growers are advised that price support for 1949 crop dry edibe beans, based on 80 percent of the parity of beans on September 1, has been announced by the U. S. Department of Agriculture as follows for 100 pounds net weight, cleaned and bagged: Navy beans, $7.25 for choice handpicked; $7.15 for U. S. No. 1's; $7.00 for U. S. No. 2's. Red Kidney beans, $8.60 for choice handpicked; $8.50 for U. S. No. 1's; $8.35 for U. S. No. 2's. Cranberry beans, $7.95 for choice handpicked; $7.85 for U. S. No. 1's; $7.70 for U. S. No. 2's.

The actual support price to the farmers, however, will be the support price listed minus the normal processing and marketing charges, including pick, according to Earl M. Partlo, chairman of the Isoco County AAA Committee.

Bean producers may obtain price support protection through farm-stored or warehouse-stored loans or through purchase agreements or by using any combination of the three, the same as last year's program provided.

Loans and purchase agreements will be available to producers who apply for them at the County AAA office anytime from harvest through January 31, 1950. Loans will mature April 30, 1950, or earlier on demand.

"Buick's the Buy"

It's part of every street scene—something you see every day.

Car owners in three different price classes—all happy about the same thing.

Another will tell you there's nothing like the SUPER's "happy medium" of size and comfort, power and easy handling, style and standing.

And if you're looking for prestige, where is your money going to buy so much as in that handsome 18-footer, the ROADMASTER, with its 150-hp performance and really royal bearing?

But all these good folks get together on this:

There's no ride quite so soft and cushiony as the Buick ride, whatever the size and series. There's no power quite so satisfyingly lively as Buick's high-compression, high-pressure Fireball power.

Above all, there's no "buy" like a Buick—no car that gives you such a rich dollar's worth of smartness, handling, comfort and liveliness for every dollar you pay.

So why not look the whole line over? Your Buick dealer has these grand travel-mates in a baker's dozen of different body types and sizes. Start your shopping in his showroom—and you'll find that even on delivery he has exactly what you want.

BUICK alone has all these features

- Silk-smooth DYNAFLOW DRIVE*
- FULL-VIEW VISION from enlarged glass area
- SWING-EASY DOORS and easy access
- "LIVING SPACE" INTERIORS with Deep-Cradle cushions
- Buoyant-riding QUADRIFLEX COIL SPRINGING
- Lively FIREBALL STRAIGHT-EIGHT POWER with SELF-SETTING VALVE LIFTERS (Dynaflow Models) plus HI-POISED ENGINE MOUNTINGS
- Low-pressure tires on SAFETY-RIDE RIMS
- Double-Duty VERTIFORTS
- DUREX BEARINGS, main and connecting rods
- BODY BY FISHER

War on Coyotes

Airplanes are being used extensively in Nebraska for killing coyotes, and latest reports show 146 of the marauders eliminated in the past few months in Greeley county. With one plane two hunters killed two coyotes for every hour in the air. Contributions from farmers are being used to defray expenses for gasoline, oil, ammunition and a fair wage for the pilot and gunner.

WONDERFUL NEIGHBOR

by HOMER CROY

A prodigal son of northwest Missouri, Homer Croy drove along a country road amid the scenes of his youth. As he revisits familiar places, he remembers happy times with the Kennedys—Newt, the kindest man he'd ever known; Mrs. Kennedy; their children, Ida, Lucy and Harlan. He recalls the courage it took the first time he and Harlan tipped their hats to a city girl. He remembers the adventuresome Tom Davys and their quest for cheap land in the Little Big Horn. He remembers the D. Ward King road-drag and the four-horse grader that made roads passable after a rain and helped bring greater prosperity to the farmers—and closer relationships with city folks. . . .

CHAPTER XII

Meantime, Ida and Lucy were getting older; Harlan was "growing up." Ida continued to have many beaux. Now and then she was late getting home at night; her parents worried, then. Sometimes they wished she were dependable, like Lucy. But Ida was the laughing, the gay one who always had a good time. Newt's hitch rack was growing more and more gnawed.

Sometimes Mrs. Kennedy wanted to move from the farm. Life was too hard, she said. It was hard, there was no doubt of it; but it was the only kind of life we knew anything about. And always—above and beyond anything else—we had the land. Nothing could take that from us. . . . yet sometimes farmers borrowed money from eastern insurance companies and the insurance companies did take the land.

Now, with better roads, something was growing tremendously important; and this was the Harvest Home, the Pumpkin Show, the Street Fair, the Pure Bred Show, the Short Horn Show. Sometimes it had one name, sometimes another. People in our town got so they dreaded to have the show come, for every relative in twenty miles swooped down. Sometimes our town people developed "feeling poorly" spells; usually they got over them about the time the fair closed.

It was at this particular time that arrangements were made to have our annual autumn show; it was to be called the Corn Carnival. Streets would be roped off, there would be float parades, band concerts, there would be Pioneer Day, and there would be the Midway; this was where the "concessions" were; all of us boys hoped there would be some "bad" ones. Usually we could depend on one or two.

Always, at all fairs, there was a prize for the best ear of field corn.

It was an outstanding honor to be the one who brought in the best ear. Usually there was no money prize; just the honor. But a fine, full honor it was; it suddenly lifted a man out of obscurity and made him important in the county. When he came to town on Saturday, people talked to him with respect and admiration. Raising a prize ear was not wholly due to the man's being a good farmer. Luck was an exceedingly important factor, for a prize ear was a matter of chance as much as anything. Nature might, for some unaccountable reason, produce a perfect ear. No one knew why; the ear simply was and that was the end of it. But there were always ways to increase the chance to get a good ear. One was to plant on an old rooted straw pile; then thin the stalks and pull the suckers. But this could not be depended on; for if it could be, a hundred men would have show ears. A rotted straw pile, thinning and suckering was a start only.

This year there was to be a very fine prize, indeed. Corwin's had offered a suit of clothes. The search for the best ear began with corn shucking, a year before the prize was to be given; each farmer kept a gunny sack in the front end of his wagon and when he found a good ear, he opened up the sack and put it in. When the corn was cribbed, he would look at his would-be prize ears to see if he had one good enough to enter. But hardly ever was there one.

Newt Worries

About Competition

The men put their hoped-for prize winners away and kept them secret. Sometimes, when a farmer had what he thought might be a winner, he would not mention it even to his next door neighbor—the man he had swapped work with all the year. For that man might have an entry, too, and maybe by not talking about it, he could cut down competition.

This year Newt found the best ear he had ever raised; it was large and well filled; the rows were straight and symmetrical and the grains came down to the point.

When the Carnival announcement was made, Newt was delighted. It would have been an honor to walk off with just the blue ribbon; now also there was to be a suit of clothes!

But he mustn't be too hopeful. You could never tell what might turn up. Preparations were begun for the Corn Carnival. Three cars containing committee members went to the next county to put up posters and make good-will speeches. One car broke down. The uniformed band tooted away night after night in IOOF Hall. The churches began to compete as to which one could build the finest float. Relatives began to write in that they would be able to come.

As tagging day approached, Newt became apprehensive. Maybe he'd been too confident. "I understand there's some ears comin' in from the 102 Bottom."

"You needn't worry," Mrs. Kennedy told him. "You've got an almost perfect ear and I know you'll get that suit."

"I sure would like to walk around in that suit," said Newt.

"Don't be too sure," said Grandpa. "You can't count on anything in this world." Each year Grandpa was growing a little more pessimistic; and a little more tired.

Then suddenly and unexpectedly and dramatically—something happened. Delinsky came by the steer pasture short cut, stooped under the barbed wire and in a few minutes was up to the hollylocks.

"Hello, Anton!" Newt called out.

Delinsky Wins Himself a Suit

Everybody gathered around, for he was so strange and so different we couldn't keep our eyes off him. But he wasn't as strange and outlandish as he had been at the Welcome Party. He was getting to be a pretty fair farmer. When he got stuck with farm problems and didn't know what to do, he would ask Newt's advice. And Newt would tell him as best he could. "We've got to help new people just learnin' our ways," he would say.

Delinsky had an embarrassing, foreign way of asking personal questions no American would dream of asking. Nothing was sacred.

On the way he had passed Newt's new go-devil. "How mooch pay?"

Finally his eyes came to rest on Ida. "When she ge a man?"

Newt told him, for it was all right to ask a question like that. He sniffed. "What cook?"

"I'm baking corn bread," said Mrs. Kennedy.

He nodded understandingly. His black shining eyes went from one to another of us like crows flying from post to post. Finally his eyes came to rest on Ida. "When she gets a man?"

There was an embarrassed silence; sometimes Delinsky was entirely too frank and personal.

Ida laughed. "I don't know, Mr. Delinsky. You've got to help me!"

Delinsky laughed, too. "Sometimes when have too many, don't get none." His eyes flew to Lucy. "Not good looks like sister. But probly get man first."

Grandpa, always eager for the excitement of company, came slowly out and lowered himself on the edge of the porch. Then gave a little sigh. Delinsky watched him. For a moment it seemed as if he were going to say that Grandpa was not long for this world, but he didn't. He turned slowly and mysteriously around, exhibiting his queer Russian clothes. "See zis. Mebbe have new American suit soon."

"When are you going to get your new raiment, Anton?" asked Newt. He was puzzled for a moment by the fancy word. "Corns Carnival."

"You're going to blow yourself, are you?"

Delinsky shook his whiskers. At least, it seemed that way. "No. I got him here." He slapped his hip pocket.

That didn't make sense. Sometimes Delinsky didn't quite understand our words.

"How do you mean you've got it here, Anton?"

Delinsky's hand flew to his pocket and pulled out his wife's stocking. Then his hand dived into the stocking and carefully—almost tenderly—began to extract an ear. "My new American suit!"

Newt looked at it curiously. Then saw it was an exceptionally fine ear. Delinsky hadn't even seen it when he had gathered his corn and hadn't put it in a gunny sack and kept it; he had only found it when he was feeding out.

"See your ear?" asked Delinsky. Ordinarily this was not done, but Delinsky was so eager, so tremendously pleased with his ear that Newt went in and brought his own out. Mr. Delinsky's face fell, "Yah, iss goot."

Taking the two ears into his hands, he looked from one ear to the other; hope came and went in his face. "Iss goot," he repeated.

Newt's experienced eye could evaluate show points that Delinsky could not see; Newt's was better filled, the grains plumper, the color better and the cob smaller.

Delinsky was like a father seeing his own child as superior. "Yah, goot ear," he said, handing Newt's back; he gazed proudly at his own. "Vary goot."

Time to go. The doubt that Delinsky had had was gone. He wrapped his ear in the stocking and put it into his pocket. "My new American suit!" He gave the pocket a thump.

"Good luck, Anton. Next to me, I hope you win."

"Yah! Yah!" laughed Delinsky, now in a fine mood. "Hope you win, next to me." He started jauntily back by the short cut.

The opening of the Corn Festival came. Flags and bunting everywhere; the uniformed band tooted away as hard as it could; and so did the Midway. People walked up and down the roped-off streets—the farmers who had to work so hard—their wives and children.

It was Ida's day. She seemed to be everywhere—gay, laughing, susceptible Ida. She blew squawkers and threw confetti in boys' faces. Today was a day of fun and she was having it. And so was Lucy, but not in Ida's carefree, trusting way.

One section of the courthouse yard had a platform and on the platform were easy seats and hot coffee. A sign said: RESERVED FOR OUR PIONEERS, and there Grandpa sat proudly, visiting with old friends, talking of covered-wagon days. He would ask about first one person then another. Sometimes, as the other answered, there would be a catch in the man's voice: "He passed away last winter." Then a silence.

Almost the first thing the men did—and the families, too, for that matter—was to go to the tent that had been set aside for the corn exhibits—Corn Hall, a banner said. Up and down past the tables the people walked, stopping to look at the exhibits. On each ear was a tag with the name and address of the man who had entered the ear. As Newt walked down the aisle he met Delinsky who led him proudly to his own ear. "Iss goot!"

So thrilled, so self-absorbed was Delinsky that he did not seem to think of Newt. Finally he turned. "Where yours?"

"I had a bit of bad luck, Anton. One night I forgot it and left it out on the kitchen porch and the chickens came up and pecked off some of the grains."

Instantly Delinsky's peculiarly sensitive face was filled with sympathy. And yet, secretly, was he a little glad? . . .

During the judging the people were kept out, then the tent was opened and they rushed in. Almost the fastest of all was Delinsky. There it was—just as he had hoped—the blue ribbon and, in a little envelope, was the order for the suit. He was overjoyed and so was Mrs. Delinsky and so were the children.

Newt took him by the hand. I'm sure Newt's heart was thumping almost as excitedly as Delinsky's.

"That's fine, Anton! You're going to make a real farmer yet."

And then, with his wife and children and a little crowd following, Delinsky marched to the clothing store, a suit was picked out and he stepped into the change booth and drew the curtains. When he came out he beamed at himself in the mirror.

Medicine Show Comes to Town

Yes, changes were taking place. One was in what we called "doctoring." It had been a long time since Newt had vaccinated the neighbor children. When we had a smallpox scare now, the children were picked up and rushed to town. An outstanding change was in the way we got our medicine; and our doctors, too, for that matter.

Once all our medicine had come over the counter. When anyone "complained," he drove to town and described the trouble to the druggist. For stomach trouble, the druggist looked along the shelves till he found the patent medicine for stomach trouble. For rheumatism pains, the druggist got down a bottle good for rheumatism. If it was cough trouble, the druggist got down a bottle for that.

That was passing, too, and in its place had come the doctor who sold his medicine from a landau. He wore a tall hat, had a fancy vest and a tremendous gold watch chain. Before he sold his medicine, he put on an "entertainment." He had a dumb colored man who played a guitar and sang funny songs. Just as the colored man started to sing, the doctor would look at the people and say, "Sam, there are women in the audience. Sing that song low." That brought us in closer.

When the colored man finished, he and the doctor would spar back and forth. The colored man was so dumb he couldn't understand anything. Finally the colored man would get the better of the doctor and we would laugh delightedly.

Thoughts Differ On What Phrase Sums Up America

MILWAUKEE—What is the one phrase which would typify the conception "America?" There are many schools of thought on the subject.

For instance, Collier's magazine calls itself as "American as baseball." Philip Murray says his CIO is as "American as the hot dog." The Berkshire hills of Massachusetts are advertised as being "as American as apple pie," and a dramatic critic finds that the new Broadway musical, "Miss Liberty," to be as "American as a watermelon patch."

There can be no serious quarrel with any of those striking similes. Baseball is quite the American game, even though the experts find that English boys 200 years ago were playing a game called "base ball" with pitchers, batters, base runners and outfielders. Basketball would be an even better example of Americana. It was invented by Dr. James Naismith 58 years ago and has no other roots.

Had Foreign Origin

As to Mr. Murray's "hot dog" reference, we can go along with that. The "hot dog" is certainly American by adoption—what sports event, circus or festival is complete without it?—even though it did start life as a wiener of Vienna or a frankfurter of Frankfurt.

The benighted Germans were munching that delicacy for generations without realizing the treasure they had. We have taken the hot dog and raised it, along with the hamburger from Hamburg, to an American institution. It's like the case of the song "Dixie," which was written by a northerner and confiscated by the southerners for their own anthem. And when the Civil war was ending, Abe Lincoln asked that "Dixie" be played because it was one of his favorite tunes, and he jovially boasted that the North was entitled to it by right of conquest.

Is apple pie so American, as the Berkshires people claim? Jack Horner pulled a plum out of his Christmas pie back in the 16th century days of King Henry VIII, when America was unsettled. (The jingle was occasioned by Jack's grabbing some nice estates in a political shake-up.) And the pie experts believe that if they had plum pies then, they had apple, too.

Pumpkin Better Simile

But it is in America that the apple pie has approached the status of necessity and a fine art. "As American as pumpkin pie" is a little more apt. The pumpkin is a real American old-timer.

What can be as American as a watermelon patch? Well, a good many things. The watermelon is a native of Africa and grows in warm regions the world around—but most picturesquely, we are convinced, in our own Dixie land of corn and cotton, o' times dat am not forgotten. You may take watermelons out of America, but you can't take Americans away from their watermelon.

Now if you are looking for something peculiarly and symbolically American what about the giant redwood and sequoia trees? They are the biggest things that grow on earth, and they supposedly grow nowhere on earth but our West coast.

Mother's Courage, Stamina Save Life of 2-Year-Old Son

SPRINGFIELD, N. H.—A mother's courage and stamina combined to save the life of her two-year old son from drowning in a 20-foot well.

Mrs. Earl Dumont, 29, held the boy above her head for an hour while standing up to her neck in the cold water of the well. "I wasn't too scared," she said of her experience.

Garry fell through a 16-inch hole into the well while at play on the family's farm late Thursday. He landed in six feet of water. Mrs. Dumont removed her clothing, squeezed through the opening and dropped into the water beside him.

Grabbing her son, the woman swam to the side of the well and clung to a projecting brick as she held her son's head above water.

Meanwhile, her 6 year old son, Earl, and her 10 year old brother, Marvin Mason, lowered a bucket into the well. Mrs. Dumont boosted Garry into the bucket and kept him afloat.

Marvin ran two miles to a neighbor, who telephoned Mrs. Dumont's husband. He was working in New London, five miles away. He sped to the scene, removed his clothing and jumped into the well beside his wife and son.

One of Dumont's co-workers lowered a rope and the father helped to haul his son to safety. The baby, blue with cold, was taken to a hospital.

Neighbors then removed a heavy millstone covering the well, but it was another 25 minutes before the Dumonts were rescued.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Only an Expedient

FOR approximately 18 years the American farmer has been the guinea pig for governmental experimentation.

It began with the decree of Henry Wallace that sentenced millions of little pigs to death; that ordered the plowing under of much of a planted cotton crop; that stopped the planting of much of that year's corn and other crops in an effort to create a scarcity and raise the price of farm products.

It has continued through numerous other expedients that have called for payment to the farmer—and especially large sums to corporate interests that own and operate what are known as "big" farms—of billions of the taxpayer's money. All such plans could be nothing more than expedients for the solution of what has been termed the farm problem.

The effort was the laudable one of providing the farmers with an increased revenue. To benefit from any of the plans offered, the farmer must submit to regimentation and subject his farm operations to bureaucratic government planning of when and how much to plant. In the end, any and all of such plans could be only a temporary solution as all were based on government payments for which the taxpayers must provide the money. Of those taxpayers, four are from the cities and town to each one from the farms. The urban class could at any time outvote those of the farms by four to one. Such plans could lead only to political revolt.

A recent statement by Sen. Scott Lucas of Illinois, Democratic majority leader of the senate, indicated such a revolt is now on. He said the mass of the voters are demanding a cutback in the money being paid to the farmers through the government price support program. Those urban voters realized they were being forced to pay in two ways for the farmer's benefit. The government's maintenance of an artificially high price meant additional cost for the food those of the towns and cities must buy and the government was collecting from them, as taxes, the money used to maintain those high food prices.

The farmer is most certainly entitled to a price for his product that represents a reasonable return on his investment and his cost of production. When the government undertakes to maintain the price the farmer wants by using the money paid as taxes by the people of the cities and towns, a serious protest can reasonably be expected. Such taxpayers are paying at both ends for what the farmer produces.

The statement by Senator Lucas is evidence that those urban voters are objecting, and any political party that favors continuing such a policy must face a revolt from these town and city voters.

The fact is the world does not produce sufficient food to feed all the hungry people. While the American farms have produced a surplus of food so far as the demand of the American people are concerned, there are millions in other nations starving. There is a market for every pound of food our farms can produce.

A permanent solution of our farm problem is opening those world markets, finding ways through which governments can finance the purchase of food for their starving people, buy the products of the farms in nations like our own, that produce more than their home people can consume.

The demand for farm products up to the maximum of production would naturally maintain a fair price. There would be no surplus to be bought and destroyed. The American taxpayer would not be called upon to pay for maintaining a high food price and also to pay for high priced food. Some such plan could be a permanent solution of the American farm problem.

Any plan that calls for the people of the cities and towns to pay at both ends can never be anything more than an expedient. It can never be a permanent solution. They have four votes to the farmer's one.

Odd though it seems, Louisiana is reported to have the highest per capita taxes for state and local purposes of any of the states. New York is second and California third.

When Secretary of Defense Johnson moved in a big way to comply with the Hoover commission by drastically reducing the bureaucratic civilian employees of the armed services, he met with protests on the part of a number of senators and representatives. Those discharged employees were voters. Among those who objected was Senator Knowland of California. Evidently he believed his protest would be appreciated by those discharged when the next election day comes along a year from now.

WEEKLY COMIC SECTION

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger C. Whitman

Finishing Walls And Floor of Cellar

QUESTION: I should like some advice on finishing the walls and floor of our cellar, which we now are digging out. Our house was built without a cellar.

ANSWER: The floor can consist of at least four inches of good, waterproof concrete. If you intend to make a game-room, you could cover this with asphalt tile, which should be properly laid by an experienced workman. The walls can consist of poured concrete, or concrete block. They should be waterproofed on the outside below grade with two coats of hot tar or asphalt paint. The outside trench can be provided with drain tile to carry off water, or in any case should be solidly packed with earth formed into a bank at the top sloping away from the house. Do not throw any kind of rubble, stones or anything else into the trench can be provided with drain holds volumes of water that may work inside the cellar. (I hope you will have experienced help with this important work.) If you wish to paint the walls either inside or outside, use a waterproof cement-base paint. Get this from a dealer in building supplies or mason supplies.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS MEET

The Board of Directors of Iosco Farm Bureau met Wednesday, September 28 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tracey Vary, Farm guests were present: Arlo Wasson, District Manager, L. E. Runnels, Blue Cross District Manager, of Bay City, Harold R. Clark, County Agricultural Agent and Edwin Dotus, Farm Bureau Auto Insurance representative of Harrisville.

Plans were made for the annual Bureau which will be held on October 19, at the Hale Community meeting of Iosco County Farm Building. This will be an open meeting for all Farm Bureau members and for all farmers interested in learning more about this growing organization. The program will begin with a pot luck supper.

Stanley Powell, Director of Public Affairs and one of Michigan Farm Bureau's top speakers has been obtained by Tracey Vary for that evening's program high light. Mr. Wasson says that not one Iosco Farm Bureau member can afford to miss him. He's the best!

Chester Roberts, County Board President, appointed the following committee chairman: Tracey Vary, Program; Andrew Mathews, Supper; William Herriman, Norma Kobs, Arrangement.

The Board chose the following delegates to the Michigan Farm Bureau Annual Meeting in November: Andrew Mathews and Chester Roberts, Alternates are Burt Harris and Tracey Vary.

Edwin Dates, Harrisville, representing Farm Bureau Auto Insurance, introduced a plan relative to Blue Cross Enrollment. This plan originated in his Farm Bureau Unit in Alcona county.

Harold R. Clark, county agricultural agent, invited Farm Bureau discussion leaders to meet monthly with other discussion leaders and counselors of various organizations to study and talk over problems relating to the Farm and Rural life. Discussion material used is written in cooperation with the college and farm organizations.

Farm Bureau: A farmer's Force to Force the Fifties.

L. E. Runnels, Blue Cross Insurance District Manager from Bay City, met with the Blue Cross Secretaries of the various community groups at the Tracey Vary home Wednesday, September 28.

He reviewed and familiarized these officers with the current developments in Blue Cross benefits.

Blue Cross is made available as a Farm Bureau service to Farm Bureau members on a county-wide basis.

The next group enrollment in Blue Cross will be in March which will make the services effective the first of May.

Vine Farm Bureau Meeting

The regular meeting of the Vine Farm Bureau was held at the Walden N. Curry residence Wednesday, September 21. Twelve members attended the meeting, with two absent. Mrs. Margaret Prescott gave a report of the last Women's Activity Meeting and ask that we raise $150 from the group to aid the National Farm Bureau in bringing three German Women to the U. S. for the purpose of Studying Farm life in these United States.

A motion was made that contribution be made to the Polio Fund drive, everyone was in favor of doing so and a collection was made.

Charles Kobs was nominated Roll Call Captain and it was decided that we hold an open meeting at the Tawas Township Hall, Thursday evening September 29, for the purpose of securing new memberships. The Farm Bureau Personality Rating Sheet was discussed and work out by the group.

Election was held, electing the following officers: Mrs. Charles Kobs, re-elected Member to Board of Directors; George Prescott, III, Discussion Leader; Walden N. Curry, Chairman; Roger Earl, Vice Chairman; Mrs. Ray Kobs, Secretary; Mrs. George Prescott, Women's Activity Member.

The Farm Bureau group met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mienzie Wednesday evening. The meeting was called to order by president Harold Cholger. Roll Call was taken by secretary, Mrs. Bert Harris.

Officers were elected, they were: President ..... Harold Cholger Secretary ..... Mrs. Bert Harris Member County Women's Committee .. Mrs. Henry Hobart Discussion Leader .... Herry Hobart Board of Directors ..... Howard Rempert Recreational Leaders Bert Harris-Richard Darf

Pub. Chairman..... Margaret Cholger Our speaker for the evening was Harold Clark, who discussed the "Brannon Plan." Bureau members felt as though it was of much importance to the farmers.

Howard Rempert informed the group that Charles Harsch of Whittemore is our Farm Bureau Service man for this area.

The meeting was then adjourned and later a splendid lunch was served by the hostess.

DHIA Report Better Herd Production this Year

At the second annual meeting of the Iosco Dairy Herd Improvement Association, David Parent, tester, reported the average butterfat production per cow in the association, was 328.9 pounds. This is an increase of more than 37 pounds of butterfat per cow over last year.

Ten of the 16 herds which completed a full year averaged over 300 pounds of butter fat per cow, with Arthur Povish's herd leading with 507.4. Charles and Raymond Kobs' herd of Holsteins made the greatest improvement over last year. Their herd produced an increase of 84.7 pounds of butterfat per cow, producing 9,364 pounds of milk and 328-8 pounds of fat in 1948 and 11071 pounds of milk and 413.5 pounds of butterfat in 1949.

The high cow in the association is a registered Holstein cow, owned by Arthur Povish and produced 16,272 pounds of milk containing 608 pounds of butterfat.

Donald Murray, Extension Specialist in dairying, Michigan State College was the speaker of the evening. He commented on the fine increase in production in the association which proved that the members were using their records to improve their efficiency in dairy herd management. Their increased profits certainly made testing worthwhile. Mr. Murray pointed to relationship of quality of milk and consumer acceptance which is an important factor in consumption of dairy products. He said the quality of dairy products was determined by the producer and he should give every effort to produce as high a quality as possible.

A colored movie "No Strip Milking" was shown, the principles of milk production and why certain practices induced maximum production.

Removing Starch From Iron Starch is removed from iron either with a soft damp cloth and non-abrasive cleaner or with a very fine steel wool which can be purchased in any hardware store. Some cottons are recommended (10, 00).
