Takes Hospital Controversy to Supervisors

Iosco County Board Now in its Annual October Session

Dr. L. A. Lambert who has been campaigning for the past few weeks against the Tawas Memorial Hospital, which will be built through funds raised by private subscription, and which has the approval of the Federal government and Kellogg Foundation, appeared before the Board of Supervisors Wednesday morning with a petition asking that the county provide the money for building and operating such a hospital through the channels of taxation.

Dr. Lambert's petition reads.

Dr. Lambert's petition reads, "We the undersigned taxpayers of losco county request that your body initiate and carry out means of providing the people of Iosco county with a non sectarian hospital to be owned, controlled and operated by and for the people of losco county, taking full advantage

Tawas Memorial Hospital Questions and Answers

l. What is the Tawas Memorial Hospital Association?

The Tawas Memorial Hospital Association is a group of citizens of the Community who are organized and incorporated. "To build a hospital in the Tawases, Michigan, which when in operation will provide a general hospital, serving the public in Iosco County and adjoining areas. To purchase land, materials, equipment and labor for construction therof, and upon completion to convey by gift some private or public organization to be operated by such organization as a general hospital serving the community and area. And also, for the purpose of accepting and receiving Association is a group of citizens purpose of accepting and receiving gifts of monies and materials which shall be used by the Assocwhich shall be used by the Association towards the purchase of land, materials, equipment and labor incident to the construction of said hospital." taining the hospital and equipment from the Oscoda Air Base. It was learned that the Oscoda Air Base would not be discontinued and the only alternate was to lease the building there. However, this building was a temporary structure and would not be adequate for hospital facilities as were needed. Then a Doctor submitted a plan that a Committee buy a house and Then a Doctor submitted a plan that a Committee buy a house and convert it into a Hospital. The Hospital was to be under the administration of a doctor and the community would have to make up the deficit each year. This plan also proved to be too unstable and to expensive for the Community.

Local businessmen then came together to make the plans for the construction of an accepted hospital. This group of men were incorporated into the Tawas Memorial Hospital Association.

for a new look at the world situation. Congress reacted as might have been expected. The arms-to-Europe program hailed the announcement as added proof of the correctness of their stand. Other congressmen blamed laxity over the past few years in our state department and defense setup for Russia's having the bomb now if she does have it.

A noted atomic scientist declared that for Russia to contend it had the bomb in 1947 was fantastic, that the date was "one pulled out of a hat." But he said the Soviets might program in congress. With his usual well have the weapon.

Most tangible result in congress of the President's statement that there had been an "atomic ex-'plosion'' inside Soviet Russia was agreement by house and senate conferees on the 1.33 billion-dollar appropriation for arms to Europe. The legislators got together very quickly on the view that to cut the appropriations, as had been first planned, would be an unwise move.

TITO: Get Out!

Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito ordered nine Hungarian diplomats expelled and accused Russia and her Cominform satellites of "rattling their arms" along the Yugoslav border.

HE STATED that his Cominform enemies were "digging trenches in Hungary and Romania.'

Apparently, the fiery dictator of Yugoslavia was not frightened, still ready to wage war with Moscow, verbally or otherwise. "We will permit no one to impose their will upon us," he thundered.

Despite the dramatic atmosphere surrounding expulsion of the Hungarians, Tito's action was a retaliatory one, since it followed within 24 hours a similiar action against 10 members of the Yugoslav legation in Budapest.

TITO CLAIMED the Russians were plotting to stage a revolution in Yugoslavia in order to supplant his government with a regime servile to Moscow.

Whether or not the Russians had the atomic bomb, as has been re-ported, Tito didn't seem to be any less disposed to quarrel with the in Germany, it's a high level mat-

Cripps Gets Tough

Sir Stafford Cripps, British finance boss, lost no time in bringing home to the people the import of devaluation of the pound sterling as an effort toward the country's financial problems.

His labor government raised the tax on business profits and threatened to restrict dividends by law in defending the devaluation move at an emergency session of parliament.

At the same time, the government rejected any pay raise propo-sals declaring this must be done to prevent an inflationary spiral.

Cripps made these moves as he opened the cabinet's appeal for a vote of confidence from the parliament.

President Harry Truman was still battling vigorously for his domestic expansive attack on critics, he charged present detractors with being "160 years behind the times."

NEVERTHELESS, the President was making a strategic approach to the congressional races next year in a drive for women recruits to the Democratic party.

Just before the end of World War II, the Germans reported experimenting with rockets that could span oceans. Now, according to information emanating from the Soviet zone of Berlin, German scientists are producing such rockets for the Russians.

AMERICA:

The Big Story

The Advertising Council, Inc., has just issued its revised booklet, "The Miracle of America," which tells why Americans live better, how. machines make jobs and why freedom and security go together.

THE BOOKLET should be pre-scribed reading for that fast-grow-ing element among the people's of-ficials which seems to think everyone should apologize for America. rather than be proud of it.

Approved by representatives of both labor and management, "The Miracle of America" tells in interesting, readable prose why America is great and why every American should be proud of his country. In the booklet the mythical Uncle Sam asks questions about

America which might be posed by any typical American family. EXCERPT: "Freedom and security go together," Uncle Sam asserted. "Men follow two great impulses—to be politically free and to be economically secure. In America we have won freedom and we are winning economic security Dictators promise security if the people will give up their freedom. But experience shows that freedom and economic security must grow together. The history of the United States proves it."

The Bible has always had significant place in the lives of Americans. Acknowledgement of and homage to a Supreme Being is inherent in the American government setup, with American trust in God declared on the nation's coins Therefore, National Bible Week, October 17-23, will be observed throughout the nation, with mayors and governors in the 48 states joining in proclamation urging the people to support the observance.

OUTLINING the purpose of National Bible Week, Rear Admiral Reginald R. INCOME TAX:

Up & Up & Up

Total income taxes collected in the United States show an increase of over 1,100 per cent in 10 years, from two and one-quarter billion dollars in 1939 to just under 31 billion dollars in the fiscal year of 1949, with individuals paying 60 per cent of this total, says an analysis by the family economics bureau of Northwestern National Life Insurance

NUMBER of persons hit by income taxes has increased proportionately, the bureau finds. There were 3.9 million individual income taxpayers in 1939; in 1948 there were 41.8 million. Although that number will be reduced for 1949 by the elimination of several million small taxpayers from the rolls due to increased exemptions and other changes made by congress in 1948, the list should still run somewhere around 36 million individual income taxpayers in 1949, the bureau estimates.

'Unto Caesar'

"Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's" was a Biblical line that stuck in the mind of Pastor Eugene M. Austin of the Baptist Temple in Charleston, W. Va. Con-struing that "Caesar" meant the government, the pastor set an amazing precedent: He voluntarily went to the courthouse and had his personal property assessment increased sixfold. He announced the action to his congregation.

SUNKEN HULK OF CRUISE SHIP . . . The paint-blistered remains of the liner Noronic are grim reminders of a raging fire which swept through the ship in Toronto Bay early one morning in mid-September to precipitate the worst Great Lakes disaster since 1915. Between 200 and 250 persons are believed to have died, with 190 of the bodies already discovered. The death toll was swelled as 10 persons died in the hospital. Fifty persons still missing are presumed to be dead, with the hope that a few might have been rescued and their rescue unreported.

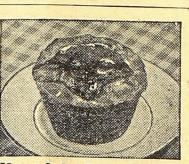

POOR LITTLE RICH SKUNK . . . He hasn't got a scent. They call him "Dynamite," but his main armament was removed when he was a baby. So the six-months-old skunk is socially acceptable and is the pet of Billy Joy Langston of San Francisco. Billie takes the wood-pussy out on a leash. "Dynamite" likes crowds, but he is not so enamoured of soap and water, although he has to endure it just the same. Once the family went out and left "Dynamite" home alone. He went AWOL and was found next day a few blocks away with his head stuck in a mayonnaise jar.

'Moral Support' Can Do Harm

By Lawrence Gould

Can "moral support" do more harm than good?

childishly dependent on it. The man whose self-confidence in business depends on his wife's continually "bucking him up" may not only be unable to take credit for his own successes, but unconsciously place the blame on her for his failures and feel she has cheated him by not making her assurances come true. On the whole, the oftener a man goes to his wife-or to anybody else-for "moral support" of this kind, the greater the likelihood that instead of giving him strength, it encourages his weakness.

Does psychoanalysis cure "nervous symptoms"?

Answer: Almost dangerously easy-both for him and for you. A child's attitude toward almost any thing or person depends on the feelings he associates with it (or him), and the earlier these asso-ciations are formed, the more lasting the attitude will be. The tone in which your child hears you speak a person's name may influence him to love or to fear that person ever after. But you'll seldom influence a child to like something by saying that it is "good for him"—he likes things that he asinnate capacities for dealing with sociates with "fun" or pleasure.

When men and women are under stress as during war they cannot live their ordinary everyday lives, and so develop odd behavior, so different from that of their normal selves. It was natural, therefore, that during World War II there was an extra demand for the services of psychiatrists.

These psychiatrists got the logical idea that, as so many cases of odd behavior had similar symptoms, it would save time to treat patients in groups. It was learned at the very beginning that not only was time saved by group treatment, but also that the members of the group were greatly encouraged to find that so many others had the same odd ideas and be-

Through group discussions he comes to realize that he is not so different from others.

Where the patient is treated privately, he leans upon the psychitrist for help and guidance, in group treatment he depends on the other members of the group who in turn, look to him for help. They all help and are helped, which raises their morale.

This group treatment has shown values not found in individual haved as oddly as themselves.

difficult to work up a great wave of sympathy for the $25,000-a-year man, but a little examination of the subject will disclose that this salary-category doesn't mean the man making that much money annually is living in a bed of roses.

According to agencies specializing in these ultra starched-collar jobs, the holders thereof have their problems, chief of which is what to do to improve themselves and is there any chance for advancement. But, these agencies say, if the $25,000-a-year man works hard, and uses his brain, he may get ahead.

More Big Jobs

"There's no question that more big jobs are available today than at any time in at least 10 years," says W. Gail Camp, head of one of the upper bracket agencies.

"Scores of good openings have gone begging for want of the right man," says Walter A. Lowen, director of another agency.

These and other experts in the field cite recent examples of $25,000 a year men who made good.

The merchandise manager of a large electrical company got a $40,-000 job with a machine manufacturer as vice-president in charge of sales. After several reorganizations, he was made president.

A veteran salesman went to a pharmaceutical company as salesman, was promoted to sales manager of a subsidiary and then became president of a new branch.

Another man left his job as sales manager of an electrical appliance firm to become sales manager of a chemical company. In three years, he climbed to the presidency at

To Remember These Ladies LEWISTOWN. Ill. - Two Illinois men will long remember the girls they left behind them- in fact, they'll never hear the end of it.

J. D. Raker of Liverpool, Ill. brought the anecdote back from a recent western trip.

He and James Raker of Liverpool, Ill., stopped for gas and oil at Kingman, Ariz., one night. They got out for a smoke and a coke, leaving their wives in the car. Shortly afterward, they returned and started for Williams, Calif.

About 135 miles from Kingman, James Raker chattily addressed his wife. No answer. J. D. Raker then chanced conversation with HIS wife. Silence. A mutual doubletake disclosed a uninhabited back seat.

Several hours and 135 miles later the men were rejoined with the by now extremely talkative girls they'd left behind them.

Cool Weather Provides Excellent Opportunity For Baking, Desserts

THOSE COOL, much longed for days are here again, and many homemakers are happy to see they've arrived if only for the

FORTY DWELLING FIRES EACH DAY TAKE HEAVY TOLL

Protect your home against fire! This is the urgent advice of State Police Commissioner, Donald S. Leonard, who points out that last year an average of more than 40 dwelling fires occurred in Michigan each day.

Leonard, who is also state fire marshal, made his comment in connection with the observance of fire prevention week this week.

"Last year 164 persons lost their lives in fires in Michigan and most of the victims were children,"

"The total fire loss of $29,000,000 in the state in 1948 represented money sufficient to build a 100-room hospital each month for an entire year. The loss in dwelling fires alone amounted to $7,000,000.

"An average of three persons are burned to death each week in Michigan, Most of these fatal fires occur in homes and are the result of carelessness and oversight. "Now is the time to check all heating equipment and make necessary repairs, clean up rub-bish, put combustible materials in a safe place, and check all possible "Most fires can be avoided by

Carrots Aplenty

The 1948 carrot crop in California, Arizona and Texas was the largest on record—50 per cent above average. By the pound, in bunches or canned, raw or cooked, carrots supply large amounts of vitamin A. So do spinach, kale, broccoli, squash, and sweet potatoes. Nutritionists recommend eating one vegetable from this group every Sudden Death of Calves

On many dairy farms, there are occasional sudden losses of calves 6 to 12 weeks old which show no apparent signs of illness before death. Autopsies on a large num-ber of such cases have disclosed severe inflammation of the intestinal tract and degeneration of the heart muscle as the probable causes of death.

Unlike cattle, horses rarely swallow metallic objects, as they chew their feed carefully and reject unfit materials

Pacific Coast Crops In the three Pacific Coast states, 70 per cent of all crop production is grown under irrigation.

CROY

A prodigal son of northwest Missouri, Homer Croy drove along a country road amid the scenes of his youth. As he revisits familiar places, he remembers happy times with the Kennedys-Newt, the kindest man he'd ever known; Mrs. Kennedy; their children, Ida, Lucy and Harlan. He remembers the shows that brought people from miles around awooping down on their little town—the Harvest Home Show, the Street Fair, the Pure Bred Show, the Short Horn Show. He remembers how, with Newt's secret help, Anton Delinsky, the "foreigner," won himself a blue ribbonand a new American suit-for his entry in the Corn Carnival. Then there were the medicine shows. . .

CHAPTER XIII

Then suddenly the fun-making doctor would grow serious and tell us about what he called his "sovereign" remedy, and would read from the label the diseases it would help. We didn't believe all he said; but we believed some of it must be true. So we bought his medicine, especially when it was at what he called his "introductory offer" of half price.

This quack was hardly ever on our streets any more. Sometimes during a carnival he would be there; but he did not sell much.

A new kind appeared among us. He was what we called the "traveling doctor." He would advertise in our paper that he would arrive on a certain date and would stay at the hotel for a certain number of days. Our doctors were not well dressed; in fact, they took pride in being what we called "simple and unassuming in dress." But the traveling doctor was a very different type. He was the most impressive, the most elegant individual, we had ever seen. He did not wear a showoff silk hat, as the street quacks had done, but wore the latest and most fashionable high-crowned derby. He had a long-tailed cutaway coat, striped trousers, cloth-topped shoes and an ascot tie. In the center of the tie was a pearl pin which, we believed, had cost a fortune. Also he carried a cane and wore expensive yellow chamois gloves turned impressively back on his hands.

He always came to our best hotel; in the window, on an advertising placard, would be a picture of him, and after his name would be the degrees he held. We never knew what the letters meant, but they were impressive. On the placard was a space to be filled in with the hours he would be "available for personal consultation." He always had his meals served in his rooms at what we heard was a fearful expense.

On Sunday he went to the leading church, sat down front and gave liberally. After church, while the farmers were still in town, he would walk slowly up and down the square, past the farmers getting into their Suddenly and dramatically a traveling doctor entered our lives. Mrs. Delinsky, who had never been sick, became ill. It was as if she were want to go to a town doctor who would be there all the time and know about her weakness, so she chose a traveling doctor who was just arriving. It was arranged for Ida to take her.

What a moment it must have been for the two when they arrived at the hotel and went up the stairway to "the doctor's soot." And how heart-thumping it must have been when the impressive doctor received them. And how his eyes must have lingered on Ida. Anyway, Mrs. Delinsky was to take the medicine he gave her and was to come back

Ida took her back the next day and again his glance lingered on Ida who was pleased that such an important person would show interest

He wanted to see Mrs. Delinsky again, he said. This time Dr. Ellzer got a moment alone with Ida. "It's too bad you haven't anything the matter with you! Will you stay and have dinner with me tonight?"

Ida was flattered and delighted, but could not accept, for that would be too bold-and there was Mrs. Delinsky who must be taken home. But Ida could not get the doctor's interest in her out of her mind; and the next day she went back again. He had to move on to his next town, but she began to receive letters. She became secretive. She would go to the box herself, to meet the carrier, then walk slowly to the house reading her letter.

Spellbound,

Ida Leaves Home

Newt began to worry. "Ida, I wouldn't encourage him. His interest isn't on the healthy side." "If he wants to write to me, I'm going to answer him." Tension developed; one after another of the family tried to influence her, but without result. The elegant doctor had made too deep an impression. The climax came when she announced she was going to the town where he was in order to "doctor" for a pain in her side and dizzy spells. The family was stunned and tried to persuade her out of the idea, but the more they said the more set she became. If she must go, she would go with her, her mother said. But Ida did not want her mother to go with her. She would

The foolish girl, carried away by the spell of the fashionable doctor, made Newt and her mother take her to the depot where she stood, beside her suitcase, looking down the track in the direction the train was coming from. Hope fluttered in Newt's heart . . . maybe at the last moment.

. . He began to use tones and gestures and intonations which he employed in their moments of understanding. She was touched, a tear came. But the spell was too deep. In a few minutes Newt and Mrs. Kennedy were standing on the wooden platform looking after the train as it sped away. Finally they turned and started for home.

They expected a letter, but it didn't come; and now indeed the family did worry. Finally Newt said: "I'm going down there and see what I can do."

But what could he do? Instead of helping, he might make matters worse. He drove to town, left his horse and buggy at the North Star, and started to the depot, carrying his old shiny valise. Then mounted the very train Ida had left on.

Although Gallatin was only seventy miles away, he had never been there in his life, so little at this time did farmers travel.

The train finally came to a standstill, the conductor picked up the stool by the little slot in the middle,

"It's too bad you haven't anything the matter with you! Will you stay and have dinner with me to-placed it on the platform and Newt stepped down with his valise. He so." walked up the street, suddenly feeling very far from home, glancing here and there, hoping to see Ida.

He knew he was right, when he arrived before the best hotel, for with the dates filled in in ink. Should he wait, hoping Ida would come along? There was a rubber runner leading from the door to the clerk's desk; here and there were worn spots; and in orderly rows were brass cuspidors.

Newt's Mission

Looks Hopeless

He walked down the runner and paused before the important-seeming clerk who was scratching away. When he finished, the clerk stuck the pen in a bowl of shot and said, "Yes?" without even glancing at Newt.

"Is the doctor in," then ingratiat-ingly added, "please?"

The clerk jerked his thumb over his shoulder, still not bothering to look at Newt. "Up the stairway, then to the left."

Newt felt more self-conscious than ever when he saw what seemed to him to be a very elegant room, with lights burning in the daytime. The furniture was upholstered and, to him, it represented fashion; and so did the pictures on the walls.

Half a dozen people-mostly women-were in the room and as Newt came in, they smiled and one made a place for him. A religious fervor hung over them; they told each other about their diseases and spoke in awed, hushed tones of "the doctor" who was going to take away their troubles.

There was a click; instantly all talk stopped and the people gazed expectantly, hopefully-almost hypnotically toward the door. A woman came out, her face radiant, as she kept murmuring, "Yes, Doctor; yes, Doctor."

The doctor's eyes swept over the office. He gave a start, but only for an instant, for the poised, exquisite gentleman with the dapper mustache was too thoroughly in control of himself to be upset. He knew people; especially he knew how to handle country people who were never sure of themselves.

"Do you want to see Ida?" He must not make the doctor mad; must act just right. "Yes, I do."
Then added, "That's what I came

The doctor was studying himeach movement-each inflection. He took a pad from his pocket and wrote. "That's where she's staying. Who's next?"

A woman sprang up. "I am!" "Come in, please."

"Yes, Doctor." The door closed.

Newt found himself on the street, a little dazed by the speed with which things had happened and growing more and more apprehensive. How could he stand against this important, confident man of the world?

A sign in the window said, "Furnished Rooms." The grass in the yard was dry and withered and hard-packed. On the porch were rickety chairs and a swing.

He went to the door. There was a wooden bell-push, but the contact piece was gone so that the whole thing looked like a dead sunken eye.

"I came to see my daughter, Miss Ida Kennedy," he said politely. "Top floor, front room."

He creaked up the stairs, his heart thumping. Before he got there, Ida opened the door.

He did not try to kiss her, for he had not kissed her in years. There was a rocking chair and an upright chair. He sat down in the light, uncertain rocking chair, holding his hat in his hand and looked at her uneasily. "I guess you know what I came for Ida?"

She nodded-this girl who didn't seem like his own. "I guess I do." "Are you coming back with me?"

There was a painful silence. "I'll put my hat on the bed, I guess." He pitched it over, then rocked a few times; in his heart was an ache such as he had never known before. "I'm going to ask you why, Ida."

"I'm still doctoring. "Do you figure to be through soon? "I don't know." He asked, as guardedly as he could, just how she was doctoring. She went every day, she said, and took the medicine he prescribed. In the evening he hired a team and they drove into the country. "He talks so wonderfully. I never knew anybody who talked so nicely, and he's so lovely to me." Her eyes glowed.

He moved uneasily. "We've got some pretty fine boys back home, Good farmers, all round dependable boys." Now he must ask the question. The question that troubled him so deeply and profoundly. "Have you done anything that would hurt your Ma?"

She was silent so long it seemed to him he couldn't stand it. "No." "You wouldn't mislead me, would you, Ida?"

She shook her head firmly. "I don't lie, Pa. I never have." He gazed at her, a very warm pounding in his heart. "That's true, Ida. That's one reason I esteem you It was as if a crisis had been safely passed. He talked of his train trip, crops down here were not as far advanced as he'd expected. He began to speak of home and home ashamed of being ill and did not in the window was the same placard news-maybe that would cast her mind homeward. "Do you think you could come home with me, Ida? Your mother is pretty much upset." "I'm sorry, but I'm not coming."

It was a long, heartbreaking moment before he could speak. "I'd hoped to get better news, Ida."

They talked of other things; but always the conversation got back to the subject that concerned them both so deeply. Finally he stood up and reached for his hat. "I just don't know what to do, Ida. I just don't," he repeated.

What should he do? What could he do? Nothing-nothing in all the world-it seemed to him. But he must do something. Must come drivin' up with Ida sittin' beside

He went to the short order; his kind, here, farmers and plain people like himself. As he ate, an idea worked itself out in his head. He would go to the doctor's "soot" where the two of them could be alone.

Newt Meets

'The Doctor'

As he walked down the street, he thought over what he would say and what the doctor would say. Then what he himself would say. Little by little he would win the doctor over.

As he reached the hotel, a team came swinging up with a tinkling of harness. He looked with interest, as he did at all teams, and knew instantly it was livery. Usually livery stables did not have good horses, but this was a fine, high-stepping pair. The driver pulled in to the curbing.

"You've got a nice pair there," said Newt.

The driver glanced at Newt with approval. "It's the best livery team in town! In fact, it's more than that. It's the boss' private driving team. • He gets extra." "If you don't mind me asking, how much do you get for a team like that?" But that was being pretty forward. "Y'see, I'm a stranger here.

Live up the line."
"I don't mind telling you. Two dollars an hour!" "Whew!" A man and a work team would get only five dollars a day.

There was a sound behind him and when Newt turned, the doctor was alone is salvation. coming out of the door. And now Newt understood.

God and Nations

Lesson for October 16, 1949

WHEN the Spanish fleet was about to invade England, back in Queen Elizabeth's time, nothing the English had could stop them. But when the Armada arrived, that vast fleet had been blown to bits by a storm, and the English neatly mopped up what was left. How do you account for that? The English always said God was with them. When the Nazis had overrun France in 1940, it would have been Dr. Foreman simple for them to invade England. There was next to nothing to stop them. But Hitler delayed from summer till fall . . . and by that time the British were able to mount an invincible defence. How do you account for that? Over and over again in history the unexpected, the unexpect-able, the "miraculous," has happened. Some call it chance; but others call it God.

God In History

BUT GOD does not always or usually operate in spectacular ways. God works in history as he works in nature, out of sight, visible to the eye of faith but seldom if ever otherwise. History, from the Christian point of view, is the working-out of the purposes of God.

The pattern is not entirely clear to us, because we cannot see enough of it at once. But looking back through history, we can see signs that God has been there. This is the message of the prophets of Israel, especially of the great Isaiah.

In a troubled era, when everything seemed to be in most complete confusion, Isaiah gave out some clear and plain truths from God, and helped men then and now read the pattern of God's design.

The Life Of A Nation

ONE TRUTH is that justice is a nation's life and sin is a nation's death. God being the God of justice, his purpose is to set justice in the earth. God plays no favorites among nations. Any nation that lives by God's laws, lives; that nation that defies God has signed its own death warrant. There are no peoples who can "get by" with what they please, if what they please is not the will of God. are people now who do not believe that. They would say, Look at Russia! In Isaiah's time there were those who would say to Isaiah: You must be wrong-look at Assyria! There is a nation that does not know God, and yet grows every year stronger and stronger.

God's Ax

ISAIAH has a startling answer to that objection. (Chap. 10.) Assyria is a tool in God's hand, no more. He admits that Assyria has no standard but force, she worships only sheer Power. But there are other nations, wicked ones, which God intends to punish; one of these is the nation of Israel.

Assyria was destined to destroy Israel once and for all, and to damage Judah so severely she never would recover. All this, Isaiah says, is in God's plan.

God does not punish an evil nation with legions of angels; he punishes it with invasions and defeats in war. Assyria was an ax in the hand of God, cutting down the rotting trees of selfish and unjust

Return To God!

PEOPLE in Isaiah's time were putting their trust, just as we do nowadays, in alliances, pacts, international combinations of all kinds. Isaiah warns ominously that this will not do, by itself. Not that all alliances are bad; in chapter 19 he actually pictures Assyria, Egypt and Israel as brothers-in-arms.

But he does not hold out any political scheme or combination as the best hope of a nation. Return to God! is the prophet's call. So in our time, whether it be a general Mac-Arthur or a theologian Brun-

Many of our ablest men are warning us even now, that humanity is facing an alternative; Either go on the way of selfishness and war down to destruction, or else go back to the Source of justice, truth and love, the God in whom

Origin of the term "red letter day" may be traced back to the 15th century, when red and purple colors were used for marking saint or church festivals on the calendar. From this ancient custom arose the practice of designating any memorable day as a red letter day.

erfly" weather is the way the con-servation department describes the opening days of the duck s eason his year. In the Pte. Mouilles marshes of Lake Erie, one location where the department has a positive check of waterfowl hunters, 532 ducks were taken the first day, 114 the second and 104 the third day. If a bag of 155 coots are inculded in the three day tally, 905 ducks or about one duck per hunter was the average The Pte. Mouille area drew the maximum of 300 hunters permitted daily. A number of hunters were turned away on opening day.

Preliminary reports from con-servation department checkers indicate more hunters were out and dicate more hunters were out and shot more ducks than last year in other key areas such as the St. Clair Flats, east side of Saginaw Bay and the Tawas area on Lake Huron. Below average kill on the west side of Saginaw Bay was attributed to "sky" shooters. A large huntng army did almost as well in two inland locations checked, Kalamazoo river marshes and the Kalamazoo river marshes and the Dead stream marshes of Roscommon county.

Conservation department observers also were in agreement that flight ducks have yet to put in an appearance in large number in any of these areas.

Hunters are reminded that it is lawful to shoot woodcock from one half hour before sunrise to sunset. The lower peninsula season runs October 15-November 5. The upper peninsula season, which started October 1, ends October 20.
