Control Atom, Keep Alert: Baruch; Senate Clashes on Price Supports; U.S. Seeks Method to End Strikes

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

A-CONTROL:

'Truly Effective'

After President Truman's announcement on September 23 of an atomic explosion in Russia, U.S. citizens worked up a kind of peculiar, detached tension that seemed to have been born out of the expectation that somebody-maybe Bernard Baruch-ought to say something significant pretty soon about the world and the atom bomb.

And Mr. Baruch, who is the author of the plan for international atomic control that was rejected by the Soviets in 1946, measured up to the demand for an opinion by coming out with what looked to be some practical suggestions.

PRIMARILY, he urged that "nothing less than a truly effective" system of international control be put into effect.

He supplemented this major point with three other recommendations as to how to face up to the Russian

1. Pending such "safe and sure" control, make every effort "to maintain our overwhelming advantage" in the development of atomic weapons.

2. Re-examine our strategy for peacemaking.

3. Enact a standby mobilization plan, including civilian defense, immediately.

BASIC IDEA, of course, is for the U.S. to do its moral best with the olive branch, but in the meantime keeping a gun handy, just in case. Baruch's conception of a mobilization plan would include price, wage and rent controls, rationing priorities and anti-profiteering measures. Russia's counter-proposal to international control-the outlawing of the bomb and international agreements to destroy all existing stocks of the atom bomb—oversimplifies the problem, Baruch said. HE WARNED that a would-be aggressor easily could divert "peaceful" atomic material to "international blackmail and destruc-

5. Daily loss of 30 million dollars worth of business in the steel and coal industries alone.

6. Daily loss of 11 million dollars in wages to nearly 900,000 striking steel and soft coal workers. President Truman had indicated that he planned no direct government intervention in the strikes, but Federal Mediator Cyrus Ching was trying to figure out a new attempt to settle the disputes. With the steel mills and coal mines idle, Ching's massive problem was to find a workable solution first of all to the pension demands of Murray's United Steelworkers and Lewis' United Mine Workers. Making it more difficult was the fact that neither the industry leaders nor the unions were in mood to make any concessions.

An added grim note was sounded by Philip Murray, CIO leader, when he warned that still another 500,000 of his steelworkers would be going on strike by the end of October unless the company-financed six-cent pension and four-cent insurance program was accepted by the steel industry.

HIGH SUPPORTS:

Good or Bad?

Despite worried administration warnings against setting farm price suports so high as to "price the farmer out of the market," the senate went ahead to hit a new parity ceiling for six basic groups.

Senators Young (R., N.D.) and Russell (D., Ga.) spearheaded the successful drive for an amendment to peg support prices on wheat, cotton, rice, corn, tobacco and peanuts at 90 per cent of parity. Previous support prices on those crops had been 75 per cent of parity.

SEN. SCOTT LUCAS of Illinois, senate Democratic leader and voice of the administration in this case, had opposed the Young-Russell amendment to Sen. Clinton Anderson's bill and had fully expected that it would be defeated in the senate.

But after a lusty battle, the measure was sent back to the agriculture committee where attempts were made to work out a compro-

Senators Anderson, Aiken and Lucas had argued that a high-support measure, keeping food prices high, might one day cause consumers to rebel and possibly throw out the entire price support program.

Backers of the 90 per cent parity legislation contended that any serious lag in farm prices could set off a depression affecting the whole national economy.

THERE MATTERS stood for the time being. Prior to the senate fight on the support bill, however, Sen. Scott Lucas had delivered himself of an opinion that could, 4. Reduction of steel output to an under the right circumstances, turn out to be prophetic:

Here are five questions, based on recent happenings in the news, which are practically impossible to answer - unless your children give you enough time to read your newspaper before they start playing tug-of-war with it. Anyway, try them on your I.Q. for size.

1. Yugoslavia, aided by the U.S., recently bid for election to a seat on the U.N. security coun-cil. How many elective members are there on the security council?

2. News from London following the devaluation of the pound made frequent mention of the "shadow cabinet!" What is it?

3. U.S. aid to foreign countries in fiscal 1949 totaled 5 billion dollars. Would you say Britain, Germany or France received the

4. Oklahoma voted recently to keep its 42-year-old statewide prohibition law. How many other all-dry states are there?

5. Guam, a U.S. possession formerly run by the navy, recently inaugurated its first civilian goverror. When did the U.S. get

ANSWERS

1. Of the 11 seats, five are held permanently, six are elective. Elective members now are Argentina, Canada, Cuba, Egypt, Norway and the Ukraine.

2. The phrase describes a group of leaders of the Conservative opposition, headed by Churchill.

3. Germany, 983 million dollars; Britain, 899 million; France, 750 million. ANSWERS d. Mississippi is the only other tate with a statewide prohibition iaw.
5. In 1898, by the Treaty of Paris, after the Spanish-American war.

SECURITY:

On the Way

Judging from all the activity that has been generated around the idea recently, apparently the thing Americans are most concerned about is how they can keep a few dollars rolling into the family till each month after father reaches the ripe old age of 65.

Pension plans have been an issue in major strikes confronting the nation, and congress was coming up fast on the outside of a greatly expanded social security measure.

Even as the administration-sponsored bill was reported out onto the floor by the house rules committee, it had been fairly obvious that the house would approve this portion of President Truman's program. Briefly, the current measure provides for: 1. An increase of 11 million in the number of workers covered by oldage and survivors insurance for a new total of 46 million.

2. An average 70 to 80 per cent increase in old-age benefits. 3. Creation of a new insurance system for persons who became totally and permanently disabled. 4. An increase in the payroll taxes by more than 300 per cent during the next 20 years.

At any rate, the prospects were bright for those legislators who were plumping for passage of the expanded social security law. Senator George (D., Ga.) chairman of the finance committee, freely predicted that the senate would pass the hopped-up social security program in 1950.

REVOLUTION:

With Trailers

Tomorrow's butcher, baker and candlestick maker may desert main street to come rolling right up to Mrs. America's doorstep to sell their wares.

This minor revolution in retail salesmanship was forecast this week by America's trailer coach manufacturers as they prepared to display commercial and industrial trailer models at their first national exhibit in Washington, D.C. November 18-20.

In addition to a complete line of house trailers, the show will feature, among other specially-designed coaches, a well-stocked traveling grocery store, mobile beauty parlor, library, dental unit, field office and medical unit.

Hailed as a progressive step in relieving congested shopping centers and simplifying the housewife's marketing problems, the new trailer stores already are winning favor in both metropolitan and rural areas, say sponsors of the idea. Tell that grocery store to wait, Mother—I'll be right out!

Are men capable of true love?

LEADERS of both political parties are casting about for answers to a $64-dollar question which adds up "How to woo and win the farm

There is no question in any political leader's mind but that it was the farm vote which swung the 1948 election to President Truman . . .

an eventuality which few if any leaders here foresaw. This reporter remembers well, and with some satisfaction, the thinking at both the Democratic and Republican national committees here prior to the 1948 election when we asked what they were doing about the rural The Republican leaders came up with an answer something like this: The farmers have been traditionally Republican. True, they went off the reservation in 1932, but they began to swing back in 1936 and by 1940 were all back in the Republican fold. They're in the bag this year so why waste money and energy in electioneering the farm-

The Democratic leaders came up with an answer something like this -The farmers have always been traditionally Republican and while they were with us in the depression years, they are prosperous again now and are voting Republican. Anyway our votes are in the cities and so why waste money and energy in electioneering the farm-

So neither the Democratic or GOP camp did much of anything toward selling the farmers. The only person who did was President Truman, who hopped on action of the 80th congress in taking away from the commodity credit corporation the authority to provide storage for grain under CCC loan or purchase. And the President made hay on this issue. But both parties are now out to sell the farmers without sparing the horses. There is another tradition attributed to the farm voter: that he always has been isolationist. This reporter does not believe the farmer as a class has always been isolationist. The farmer has been a strong nationalist, but he always has had a deep and vital interest in exports and the effect of world markets on farm products. But the farmer of today realizes as well as any other citizen that because of modern communication, transportation and other factors, this country cannot remain oblivious to what is happening in the rest of the

Foreign Policy Target

But the Republican leadership is planning to hammer away on the administration foreign policy, which up to this point, has been a bipartisan policy. They are planning to appeal to the farmer on the theory that he is being taxed to death in order to pour billions of dollars down a European rat hole through- ECA, European loans and military aid.

They are planning to hammer away at the farmer on the theory that the various aids set up in behalf of the masses of American people are "socialistic," and "statism" and are a welfare state."

They are planning to get away from a "me tco" policy, so called, and to adopt a policy of damning everything "Fair Deal" and everything "New Deal." It will be a policy of spreading fear that our foreign policy will bankrupt the nation and fear that the administration domestic policy will end individual freedom and bring about a socialistic state.

Conditions Hold Key

Whether such a campaign will be effective will depend largely upon the conditions in world affairs next summer and whether or not the farmer continues to be prosperous. This reporter does believe that farmers generally are now prepared to take stock of our foreign policy. We believe this attitude is reflected in both house and senate. There are still a few isolationists in the congress, but the general feeling is; "Yes, we have spent a lot of money in the rehabiliatation of Europe and it is now time to act with caution, to ask questions as whether or not this money has accomplished its purpose." But that does not indicate that isolationism is rampant again. It, rather, is a wise attitude and reflects the thinking of the country.

Active Lobby Probably the most active and most vigorous lobby currently operating is the American Medical association. Despite its report, however, that it spent $508,397 during the first half-year in its campaign against national health insurance, Clem Whittaker, head of its propaganda bureau, said only about $15,000 was spent in Washington. The rest was spent at the "grass roots" level.

A Spendthrift Department

EACH YEAR the post office department reports to congress an ever increasing deficit, now amounting to approximately one half billion dollars annually.

Each year congress appropriates the amount needed to make up that deficit, and the American taxpayers put up the money to meet that appropriation.

At fairly frequent intervals the department suggests that congress pass legislation increasing postage rates as a means of preventing the annual deficits. The people would pay in increased postage instead of in taxes. A bill for such an increase is being considered by congress at this time.

Also before congress now in both senate and house, are bills based on recommendations of the Hoover commission that would reduce the post office department's costs, without effecting the efficiency of mail service. It would take out of those costs more than one half of the annual deficit and save the people approximately 300 million dollars each year.

The post office department has not had an overhauling for the last three quarters of a century. Methods of communication have changed decidedly in that period. New bureaus and divisions have been added to meet changing conditions, but the old outmoded ones have not been discarded. The people still pay for the employees who man unneeded, out of date bureaus and divisions. The elimination of these employees represents but one phase of the Hoover commission recommendations covering the post office depart-

Why does congress hesitate to act on the commission's recommendations that would relieve the load on the tax-payer? The answer is, patronage. Those unneeded employees' jobs are rewards for the politically faithful. They mean votes. Those votes are considered more important to those who represent our states and districts in Washington than the interests of the people.

For months there has been no action on post office department reorganization bills in either the senate or house. There is no evidence that there is any intention of permitting them to reach a voting stage, but there has been hours and days devoted to the consideration of increased postal rates. The people will pay those postal increases.

Those senators and representatives who are failing to consider the interests of us, the American people, are working for you and me and the other fellow. We are in a position to demand results; to demand that senate bill 2062, and house bill 5177 have consideration. It is possible for us-you, me and the other fellow-to demonstrate to those who would sacrifive our interests in order to protect a bit of additional patronage, that we can, and do, represent more votes than these patronage jobs can supply.

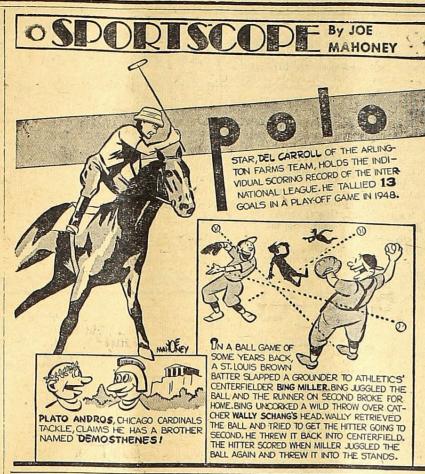

Congress has enacted a portion of the legislation needed to effectuate the Hoover commission's recommendations despite the organized opposition of the bureaucratic employees. It has been accomplished because of the demand of the people back home, but if we are to reap the full benefit of that promised saving of more than three billion dollars a year, we must keep on demanding until congress is forced to complete the job.

The citizens committee that is backing the demand for those savings has done a wonderful job of arousing public sentiment, but all of us, including the members of that committee, who do the paying cannot lay down until congress has completed the savings we have a right to expect. We want that three billion and more a year now and through future years. The enactment of all the Hoover recommendations into law will accomplish that saving. Tell your senators and representatives what you expect if he is to get your vote.

A definite demonstration of the result of socialism is the devaluation of the English pound. It is a step toward run-away inflation. The English people are finding the socialistic "something for nothing" they were promised must be paid for. The price is longer hours, harder work, more production. The devaluation is but an expedient.

On any one subject there is such a divergence of opinion among economists that one wonders whether economics is a science or merely a guessing contest.

It is a speedy world in which we live. In less than one lifetime the travel time between New York and San Francisco has been reduced from more than 100 hours to less than six. In the span of two life-times it has been reduced from six months to six hours.

Foes Again Fear Fordham, Pitt

By GRANTLAND RICE_

SOME YEARS ago football had three big teams marching under winning banners. They were Pittsburgh, coached by late Jock Sutherland, Fordham, directed by Jimmy Crowley, and New York university, handled by Chick Mee-

They formed a rugged triumvirate, directed by three fine coaches, willing to play anyand usually body, and usually successful. Then they all

Grantland Rice

decided to give big - time football the Arctic air. They turned their coaches loose to graze in foreign pastures or to make up some other occupation. All of the schools went downhill at a dizzy clip. Now in the case of two of these universities there has been a turn to the past. Old ghosts are back again. Pittsburgh grew extremely weary of playing a schedule no one could face. Pitt apparently wanted to break into the Big Ten.

At any rate, the Panther decided to be a wolf in Panther clothing. Pittsburgh had a lucky break in being able to get Captain Tom Hamilton from Navy. Tom was both a good coach and a fine athletic director at the academy. He was given the job of rebuilding Pittsourgh, with the aid of Walter Miligan, the Panther coach.

Pitt began improving last fall. This season the Panther schedule includes William and Mary, Northwestern, Indiana, Minnesota, Ohio State, Pennsylvania and Penn State. This is a big-time schedule, and Hamilton is trying to field a big-time team, good enough to hold its own. Starting in 1950 Pitt will play Notre Dame for four consecutive years.

The same change of mind has struck the Fordham Ram. Fordham doesn't meet all comers, east and west, north and south as Fordham and Pitt-once did. Years ago, Pittsburgh was even too hardy for Notre Dame, who left the Panther alone for a while.

But Fordham is moving out again. This season the improved Rams meet Yale, Army, Boston College, Syracuse, Georgetown, Rutgers and

This is a good schedule-possibly a trifle more than the Ram can digest at this spot in his return to old-fashioned years - when Fordham picked

The Tribe of Murphy

Many years ago, probably the greatest of all trainers and coaches combined worked at Yale and Pennsylvania.

His time goes back more than 40 years. His name was Mike Murphy. There is no one living todaywhether he be a Yaleman or a Pennsylvania man, a football player or a track man—who worked under Mike Murphy who won't tell you that here was the all-time tops. Mike was something more than a star trainer and a fine coach. He was an inspiration to all who knew

His grandson, Bill Murphy, is now one of the coming stars at Dartmouth. Young Bill may be one of the best men on Tuss McLaughry's Green squad-that won't be so green.

A few days ago I met another Mike Murphy, the son of Thorne Murphy and grandson of old Mike. Young Mike is now in a western prep school but he, also, will be heard from before too long. He is a good-looking, well built kid who is a promising football player and a first-rate track man. His father played at Yale well over 20 years ago. His uncle is George Murphy, the famous motion picture star.

Young Mike wasn't quite sure what his destination would be laten on but he gave me the impression that he was looking at Yale and Dartmouth. The chances are he'll head for Dartmouth as Yale isn't getting its share of young star football players the way old Eli once

Ranking Ray Robinson

It has been the general opinion of those who follow the ring game closely that Ray Robinson has been the world's best all-around fighter for some years. Certainly since Joe Louis moved over the hill quite a while back.

If you start comparing Robinson with Stanley Ketchel you immediately wade into the middle of a verbal typnoon. The old Ketchel rooters, those who saw him fight, won't tolerate any comparison with anyone. Ketchel died at the age of 24, just when he was on his way up.

Harry Greb was wrecking heavyweights before be began to lose his eyesight. Any middleweight good enough to trim Gene Tunney and Tommy Gibbons, one after the other, had to be good. Later on Tunney got his revenge. For all of that Greb was a great fighter.

Youngster Gets Tips on Railway Prexy's Skills

ster get the opportunity for the kind of advice that came to 15-year-old Eugene Knol, of Blue

Eugene had wanted to be a railroad president ever since he can remember. A high school freshman, he has his heart set on that job. Now, he has taken the first step in that direction.

He was assigned in school to write a paper on what he planned to do in adult life. He needed expert advice, so he wrote to C. H. Buford, president of the Milwaukee railroad.

The letter finally found its way through all the intricate channels in a huge railway office to the desk of President Buford.

Buford said later he read the let-ter with a nostalgic feeling. It had been years, he said, since railroad presidents received letters from boys with that ambition.

Ambition Fading

He recalled that at one time it was the mark of a typical American boy. But today, Buford said, that ideal seems to have disappeared in a world of atomics and jet planes.

Buford was glad to write the letter, he said, and took considerable time from his duties. He was "on the spot," so he thought about it for a long time, then sat down and outlined the steps he believed brought him to the top job.

This is his advice: 1. Keep strong and physically fit. This is a must for railroad men.

2. No young man can succeed in any line unless he is scrupulously honest, conscientious and considerate of others. Develop confidence in yourself, but don't be a smart aleck.

3. Industry and co-operation are important. Teamwork is as essential on a railroad as on a football field.

Don't be Miserly

4. Learn and remember the value of the dollar. Don't be miserly, but get value received for what you spend, and don't squander either your own or your employer's

5. Cultivate and develop a pleasing and friendly personality.

6. Finish college, and, perhaps, a technical or professional school. Specialize in some type of engineering, accounting, business administration, law, or some other field. It is possible to achieve the presidency through any of these

7. Spend your summer vacations working on a railroad. You must know a great deal about all types of railroad work.

8. When you get that vacation job, get a letter of recommendation or go on your own. Sell yourself to your employer. Tell him that you are not afraid to work and that you are ready to start.

9. When your preparations are finished, go after your permanent job the same way you went after the vacation job.

From then on it's up to you. The railroad president concluded:

"I sincerely hope that your ambition may be achieved and that some day, when I am not around, those of your generation will read the annual report of a large rail-road, signed by Eugene Knol, presi-

'Dream Voyage' Ends For Boston Engineer

PITTSBURGH.—The Seven Seas, "dream ship" for the Frank Potter family, ended an 11-month, 6,000 mile voyage here. The trip was begun at Boston where Potter, a sales engineer, dreamed his dream of a sea voyage, and then made the dream come true.

On its journey from Boston, the vessel-a 46-foot schooner carrying two masts-followed the Atlantic coast around Florida, crossed the Gulf of Mexico and sailed up the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. Potter bought the schooner at a Long Island dock. He sailed her up to Boston, where he quit his job as a sales engineer, packed his wife and children aboard and set sail for his home town of Beaver. After a brief stopover in Pittsburgh, the Potters set sail again up the Ohio river to Beaver. There the Seven Seas was to be put up

"Dreams have to end sometime," Potter philosophized, "Now we expect to settle down and buy a home and I'll have to hunt a job.'

First Incubator Baby Asks It as Anniversary Present

Just as doctors despaired of keeping him alive, the incubator he now wants arrived in New York from France.

The incubator disappeared, however, after having been shown at the Columbian Exposition here in 1893 and later at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington

BUMPER CORN CROPS COME FROM HYBRID VARIETY RESEARCH

Pioneer botanist W. J. Beal was thinking of higher corn yields when, in 1879, he first brushed pollen on a silk from the same corn plant. But little did he dream that his early work at the Michigan Agricultural College would lead to the tremendous corn crops of recent years.

This year's crop sets a new record. Michigan's crop of 80,730,444 bushels is 20 percent above last year, and 45 percent above the 19-38-47 average.

Beal's was the first recognized work in developing hybrid corn and scientists have continued his search for higher yields through the years. When it becarme evident what hybrids offered, agricultural colleges and state extension services "preaching the gospel" of hybrid corn.

Michigan farmers were quick to realize the benefits that hybrids bring. In 1936 only one-half of one spent Tuesday in Bay City.

Byron Lomason entertained his sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs.
Dedrick of Vassar last Sunday.

Mrs. Charles McKenzie accompanied Mrs. United States is about 78 percent.
Farmers estimate that they get about 22 percent greater yields from hybrids when the growing season is favorable.

Despite the bumper crop in Michigan this year of almost 81 million bushels, research work continues to find new and better hybrids that husk more cleanly with mechanical harvesters. Farm crops scientists at the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station carry on Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Charvance and two sons spent Tuesday in Mt. Morris with their parents.

Ow's the time when Autumn calls you out for a ramble in your Buick.

Slide under the wheel and answer that call! Take a Fireball cruise through the countryside, with your heart growing lighter and the years slipping off your shoulders at each mile!

Just one reminder, though. Make sure your Buick is in top shape to keep step with you. First bring it in to us - and let us clean summer's dust out of your air filter, flush out tired summer crankcase oil with its grit and goo, check your carburetor adjustment to see that you're getting the most powerful, most economical mixture with October's cooler, heavier atmosphere.

We can do this quickly, economically, with a sure touch. Our thorough Buick training and long Buick experience in doing each job the factory-designated way have earned us a reputation-we're the "Fountain of Youth" for Buicks.

To make it easy, we've printed a Fall Check List below. Just tear this out, drive in this week and hand it to usand when you head out for the open road there'll be a happy smile on your a prodigal son of northwest Missouri, Homer Croy drove along a country road amid the scenes of his youth. As he revisits familiar places, he remembers happy times with the Kennedys-Newt, the kindest man he'd ever known; Mrs. Kennedy; their children, Ida, Luey and Harlan. He remembers when the traveling doctor came to town and how, under his spell, Ida followed him to Gallatin, 70 miles away, in order to "doctor" for a pain in her side and dizzy spells. And how Newt finally went to Gallatin to try to persuade his daughter to come home with him. When Ida refused even to tell him what she was "doctoring" for, Newt decided to call upon the doctor.

CHAPTER XIV

"Good evening," said the doctor politely as he proceeded straight to the team. In a moment the other man was out and the doctor was holding the lines in his gloved

"Good evening," repeated Newt, wanting desperately to say something, but taken so by surprise that he could not utter anything. "Listen, Doctor, I want to see you?" Then added from nervous agitation. "That is, if you don't mind. I was just on the way here to see you."

"Certainly," said the doctor pleas-

Newt moved uneasily, now not knowing at all what to say. "Listen, Doc," he began, trying to be friendly and informal, "I want you to give up my daughter. I mean, let her get her head and come home with me."

The doctor was getting in and adjusting himself to the seat and arranging the lines. "I'm not keeping her. She can return any moment she wishes." His manner was not quite so pleasant. "She is under my medical care. That is all."

"I-I wish you would," said Newt agonizedly, trying to think of the right thing. "I tell you, Doctor, she's young and foolish."

The doctor gave the lines a flap, the tugs tightened and now Newt had to walk alongside the moving vehicle. "I'm goin' to ask you not to go out with her tonight, Doctor." "I'm sorry, but she's expecting me," came the sharp, clipped words. The team moved faster; in a moment it was swinging down the street, leaving Newt gazing after it. He walked broodingly up and down, stopping to gaze in a window, then going on again. He looked about for a farmer to talk to. But the farmers had gone. Chores. He saw something which made him stop—a metal gilt sign projecting out from the wall. Chief of Police, it said. He hesitated. Police! The very word had a terrifying sound. Never in his life had he been arrested; never had anyone in his family had police trouble.

In a moment he was inside. He saw a man in shirt sleeves sitting at a desk; the man had on black sleeve protectors and wore a green eyeshade which was held in place by metal ends pressing against his temples. The man watched him silently.

Newt moved closer, growing more and more uneasy . . . maybe he had made a mistake. Finally he said, "Are you the chief himself?"

The man studied him for a moment before he answered. "I am."

A silence. Newt stood before the desk and the cold boring eyes. "I've got a problem on my hands. I thought maybe you could tell me what to

"Well, tell it." "It concerns my daughter."

"How old is she?" Newt told him. "I've got one about that age. Go ahead. "Well," said the officer when Newt finished, "that is a problem! I can telegraph St. Louis and see if they've got anything. There's a medical association there, but they don't give out morning "I've got something I expect'll interest you!" It did, indeed, interest Newt. The doctor was duly licensed, the message said; but the police records showed that he had been sued twice by women for broken promises of marriage. But each time the case had been settled out of court.

We Decorate the Church Christmas Tree

The rest did not take long to happen. But he must not rush too hard at Ida; it'd be quite a shock. And it was indeed. She was defiant; he was not to blame. Besides he was doing her a great deal of good and she meant to stay and doctor with him. Newt was understanding enough to let her take her time. It did take Ida two days to make the decision; meanwhile Newt remained at his hotel, going patiently and cheerfully to see her whenever she would let him and not criticizing or blaming her. Little by little Ida became less headstrong; also the traveling doctor's glamour was wearing off.

Finally she was on the train and finally they arrived at the little wooden sanded home depot. They walked up town to the livery stable and Ida's suitcase and her father's shiny valise were put in the buggy clucked. It was not long before Newt drove up in front of his house and sitting beside him was Ida, just as he had been hoping. And now I come to something dramatic. At least it seemed dramatic then; it still does, so deep an impression did it make.

None of our neighbors ever had a Christmas tree at home; it was always at the church. As I set these words down I am again at Wesley Chapel-our white church surrounded by cornfields. The "young people" always decorated the tree. It meant something indeed, for this day a girl could ask a boy to go with her without setting tongues wagging like a toy celluloid turtle on a pivot. There they are; I can see them. The stepladders and the chairs, the strings of popcorn, the cotton batting. We always let the girls throw the tinsel on top of the tree where it would hang like cornsilk on a roasting ear. Home to do the chores. At last Newt's sled jingles by and I come out with my soapstone and my manuscript and get in. So much laughter, and such good time . my foolish old heart thumps just for me to think about going to the Christmas tree at the church.

In the distance is the church, gleaming and shining, and there at the hitch racks is everyboy's financial standing. Home-made bobsleds for the poor, the young couple just getting a start, the renters, and for people starved out on the hardpan. Big double-rippers for the prosperous.

We walk across the crinkling snow with our lanterns. On the floor, in the vestibule, is a great pile of overshoes, each pair buckled together. Across one wall are half a dozen shelves; and under these are hooks for our coats.

"You come and go home with us,"

The door opens and our hearts leap at sight of the brightly gleaming lamps along the wall; behind each lamp is a reflector all polished for this, the biggest night in the

Now comes the game of trying to get the presents in without the children seeing. Of course, the children see, but no child is going to be fool enough to let it be known.

Tragedy Mars Santa's Visit

Nothing can begin until after the silver offering. God has blessed us, the preacher says, and now is the time for us to remember Him. Two men-one for each aisle-take little flat wicker baskets and walk down the aisle, reaching out the baskets and drawing them back again. Mr. Holt, our rich man, puts in a silver dollar. The benches creak, the children squirm, a tuft of cotton batting falls off the tree. The men bing the offering back, the preacher raises his hands; his voice trembles a little, so sincere and earnest is he. "And now may this offering tonight help carry on God's work. May people all over the world come to know and to love the Christ child whose natal day we celebrate."

"Amen," everyone says softly.

see the choir now. Yes. I can! I can see Brother Ford, our bass singer, with his high single-ply collar, his necktie slewed around to one side. And I can close my eyes and hear the songs our choir sang. The songs give up farming, "you don't want my mother loved to sing. They stir . this moment. "Throw Out the Lifeline, Someone Is Drifting "We Shall Meet on That Away." Golden Shore," "Blessed Assurance"

-how much they meant to me. The recitations begin. It seems to us they are all good. Lucy Kennedy takes one step forward and rests her weight on the ball of her front foot. Suddenly and dramatically she begins to-yes, I knew it-"Bingen on the Rhine." The soldier of the legion is dying again.

Now comes the moment I've been dreading. I walk forward, give a bow as quick as the flick of a jay bird's wing and begin to read aloud together. He picked up the lines and the short story I have written. A whispering fit selzes the children. "Mama, what's in that package?" "Mama, when will Santa Claus come?" Old Mrs. Vert has a coughing spell. The janitor gets up, just as I reach the climax of my story, and throws the stove door open with a mighty clang. At last I finish; a hand clapping goes up. As I walk back to my seat, Maude Stark looks up admiringly, Ah!

Newt has been busy out behind the church and now a door opens and there is Santa Claus with binder-twine whiskers and with a pack on his back. As he comes down the aisle he calls the children by name and gives them bags of candy.

Up and down the aisle goes Santa Claus; smaller and smaller grows the pack; orange peels on the floor now and mothers wiping sticky hands. At last the bag is empty and Santa Claus disappears out the door he had come in. In a few minutes he is sitting innocently in the back row.

It is one of the rules that a present must be opened before everybody and held up so that we can all see and enjoy it. The presents are taken off the tree, or pulled out from under it, and passed to the minister who reads the name on the package, then hands the package to the superintendent of the Sunday school who opens it and holds the present up to view.

I tell you it makes a young man feel mighty proud to have a turtleshell dresser set he's bought for his girl held up so everybody can go "Ohhh!" One of the little boys, who delivers the presents, takes it down the aisle and gives it to the girl it's meant for.

But they are not all fine, dresserset presents. Joke presents, too. The minister holds up a fancy-tied box, reads the young man's name, then reads what is printed on the box: "Nail polishers." We can hardly breathe waiting for the superintendent to get the box open and hold up the presentscorncobs! How we laugh.

At last it's all over; the presents are distributed, the tree looks as if a cyclone has stripped it; the popcorn loops are crooked and the cot-ton batting hangs like a billy-goat whiskers.

Delinskys Are Taken Under Kennedy's Wing

Then came the drama I spoke of. Mr. Booth, who lived nearest the church, came running across the churchyard, waving his lantern and shouting. There has been a line call -the Delinsky house is on fire. We stand appalled at the news. It is dreadful enough for a house to burn down any time. But in winter-on Christmas Eve!

Delinsky stands holding his lantern and looking at Mr. Booth incredulously. "Is not!" he says fierce-

In no time at all the people are driving as hard as they can toward the red, ominous glow in the sky. The Delinsky house was not on the public road, as most houses were but set back at the end of a lane, almost in the middle of the farm, the way poor people lived. The gate was thrown open and down the lane we went. But it is too late; the house is gone. But the stable is saved.

For some reason or other the Delinskys wanted to be by themselves, and so we let them be; they stood in a little group, talking Russian.

At last it was all over; the uneasy horses in the barn had been quieted; and now water from the well was thrown on the last sparks.

"You come and go home with us," Newt said. Some of the neighbors offered to take the children, but Newt said the family should be together, and so it was not long before the Delinsky bobsled was following ours down the road.

Mr. and Mrs. Delinsky stiil seemed stunned as the baseburner was poked up. Delinsky looked from his wife's face to the faces of his children and we knew what he was thinking-what was going to become of his family? "Is gone," he said. Why had he ever left Russia? Why had he ever tried to be a farmer? Cursed was anybody who tried to make a living on the soil. He spoke for some moments to Mrs. Delinsky in Russian; then he turned to us, as if suddenly realizing he was not being polite. He had a cousin in Omaha, he said; had a fine little store, growing all the time; cousin want him to come to Omaha and join hands and make At last, the program begins. I can a fine big store. Delinsky spoke fiercely. "Only fools try to farm. Anton Delinsky t'rough. No more farm, never." "Listen, Anton," said Newt, distressed that anyone would want to to get any foolish ideas in your head. You've had an upset-a pretty bad one-but you've still got your land and that's what counts. An' you're developin' into a pretty good farmer-even if you did go and name a horse for yourself. Who raised that prize ear? I didn't. Look at that suit." Delinsky glanced at it proudly.

"Is goot." "Of course it is. It's an extremely fine suit-finer than I ever had." Delinsky nodded.

"Your children are going to school, will fail, because the God of Justice learnin' to speak correct. We'll pull has set his face against it. you out of this. We'll get up a shower for you!"

Trust God

Lesson for October 23, 1949

SHOOTING WARS and cold wars were going on. A great whirlpool of international intrigue was roaring around and around, and Judah was in the midst of everything. The star of the once-great-empire of Egypt was setting, and the star of the new and powerful nation of Assyria was rising. Judah was only one of 20 or more little countries between those giants. Some of the little nations were trying to take advantage of the disturbed situation by getting up little empires of their own. All of them were scheming and scrambling for a place in the sun. Some were betting on Assyria, some on Egypt; no one knew just what to expect, but every one was afraid.

Cowardly King, Bold Prophet

INTO ISAIAH'S little country of Judah an invading army was marching, and the hearts of king and people trembled "like leaves in the wind." Little Judah was being invaded by a combination of two ambitious powers, Syria and Israel, either one larger and stronger than Judah. Isaiah had to go out and try to calm the mind of the King. It was of no use; it was clear that King Ahaz did not believe the prophet. But Isaiah was right nevertheless.

The foreign army that looked so big would not win the war. The alliance that looked so frightening did not last. It could not last, because God was against it. Military men and others too find such things hard to believe.

Is not God "on the side of the largest battalions"? Is not "Git thar fustest with the mostest men" the one and only recipe for victory? Nevertheless, the prophet was right. In fact, whenever a prophet raised a banner inscribed, Trust in God, it was not likely to be at a time when things were going smoothly in the world. That banner most often appeared in times of trouble, of darkness and dismay, of wars and invasions.

Leagues Don't Always Last

The situation had a different angle, later on. The Syria-Israel invasion collapsed, just as Isaiah said it would. But still the little nations jockeyed and maneuvered It looked like a death-grapple between Assyria and Egypt and every nation wanted to be on the winning side. So it was a great time of treaty-makings, of pacts and agreements and alliances. Isaiah changed the form of his message to suit the changing times, but the core of it was still the same. To King Ahaz he had said: Don't be afraid of hostile alliances; trust in God. To King Hezekiah and others he said, in effect: Don't put all your hope in alliances; trust in God. Egypt will fail you, any alliance you form will melt away in time.

But God will not melt away. You can depend on him. Now in our time the sintion is strikingly like what it was in Isaiah's day. People today are tempted to put their trust in what is big and imposing. Big nations, big armaments, big armies, big alliances.

Men once put their trust in the League of Nations, and it died (of cowardice and dishonesty, among other things). Millions put their trust in the Axis, and for awhile it looked as if the Axis powers would overspread the earth. But the Axis vanished under the blows of the Allies.

Are All Alliances Bad?

THIS does not mean that no alliance is good, or that no treaty can be relied on, or that the United Nations (for instance) is bound to collapse. What Isaiah is driving at is this: God has a Purpose to work out in this world, and the name of it is Justice, Righteousness, Peace,

Any nation or combination of nations, any pact or agreement or program, that goes against God's purpose is going against the grain of things and is bound to fall. Pure "power politics" always looks impressive; but the question is: What is the power going to be used for?

If it is really for the benefit of mankind, God will bless it; but if it is selfish and unjust and against the peace of the world, it
