Harvest This Year Second Largest In U.S. History, Government Says; Reds Purge Czech Property-Owners

HARVEST:
Second Largest

America's horn of plenty continued to go all out in its production of food for the world. Latest crop summary of the U.S. department of agriculture showed that good harvest weather would assure the nation of its second largest volume of crops in history, topped only by the record-breaking haul of 1948.

EQUALLY important was the fact that a record supply of corn was on tap for producing meat, dairy and poultry products.

The month of September brought conditions sufficiently favorable to boost total production prospects 1 per cent, despite a slight decline in the corn estimate. Total crop volume was indicated at 131 per cent of the 1923-1932 base level, second only to last year's 137 per cent.

However, present indications are that this may be the last year for some time that crop production reaches such astronomical heights. As surpluses were mounting almost alarmingly, the government was preparing to take action to reduce output next year.

There was every likelihood that market quotas would be slapped on some of the basic crops which have been overflowing into storage in recent years.

THIS YEAR'S huge output is the result of fairly large production of most individual crops, rather than record-breaking yields of just a few.

Nearly 128 million tons of livestock-feed grains are being produced this year, including a corn crop of about 3.47 billion bushels. Last year's corn crop of 3.65 billion bushels set an all-time record.

The 36.5 billion tons of food grains now estimated, though exceeded in each of the past three seasons, is greater than in any earlier year. Included in this figure is a bumper wheat crop of 1.12 billion bushels, virtually all of which has been harvested.

CONGRESS:

Half a Loaf

The first session of the 81st congress headed toward an October adjournment with less than half of President Truman's program written into law.

THE PRESIDENT could count 15 major accomplishments, by his reckoning, at least, on the part of the congress he helped ride into office last November.

Left as unfinished business for the 1950 congressional campaign, however, were a number of highly controversial proposals among the 22 requests that Mr. Truman had laid before the present session without getting final action.

Chief among these is the Taft-Hartley act repeal, which was turned down in both houses during this session. The President undoubtedly will revive the issue in January, and the outcome this time may depend upon how some special elections this year to fill senate and house vacancies turn out.

SOME OF THE other requests which Mr. Truman is almost sure to re-introduce early next year will be for a system of compulsory health insurance, civil rights legislation, standby price-wage controls and the passage of "Point 4" legislation to guarantee U.S. support in developing backward areas of the world.

PAY BOOST:

For Cabinet

There was good news for cabinet members, who have been plugging along at the same old salary ever since 1925.

A joint senate-house conference managed to arrive at an agreement to boost cabinet members' salaries from $15,000 to $22,500 a year. THE CONGRESSIONAL group also approved pay raises for some 200 other top-drawer federal officials—at a cost of $1,087,000 annually.

In addition to raising cabinet salaries, the pay bill will:

GRANT Undersecretary of Defense Steve Early $20,000 a year instead of $14,500, and the armed-forces secretaries $18,000 a year instead of $14,000.

Most of the undersecretaries of the various departments will go up from $10,330 to $17,500. J. Edgar Hoover who, as head of the FBI, now receives $14,000 will get a raise to $18,000.

IGNORANCE COSTLY

Story of $200-Bills Trips Up Gambler

It was not the first case where unfamiliarity with big money had tripped up an individual who was attempting to finagle with it, but navy petty officer James G. Stratton, New York, might have made his story stick had he known more about money when he reported to police he'd been robbed. He said a tall, thin, mustachioed man held a knife to his back and took $31,500

Witness

Admiral Arthur W. Radford took the stand before the house armed services committee to testify that current defense plans and military setup relegate the navy to a role "useless and inadequate" in the event of an atomic war.

CZECH PURGE:

Slow Terror

Slow terror, the kind that eventually is born in persons living under any totalitarian government, was seeping through Communist Czechoslovakia.

Cause of it was a Red purge, aimed primarily at supposed bourgeois elements, but leaving no man—be he a Communist party member or not—free from the fear that he may become a victim sooner or later.

UNCONFIRMED reports of the total seized or marked for arrest in the Communist police roundups ranged between 30,000 and 40,000. No information was being given, either as to causes, results or any other details of the widespread arrests.

The pattern of the purge was clear. Landlords, architects, confectioners and other small shopkeepers were being picked up and their businesses confiscated. In some cases, their apartments were seized and families dispossessed.

In the main, it was a drive against Czechoslovakia's proprietary classes, theoretically the mortal enemies of Marxist communism.

HOWEVER, the prosecution of the property owners was accompanied throughout Bohemia and Moravia by purges of government employees, the clergy, army and even the Communist ranks.

Charges, where there were any, ranged from high treason and sympathy with Titoism or "western imperialism" to simple denunciations by snoots who had overheard suspicious bits of conversation.

Possible hint as to the reason behind the purge was the report that the government is having trouble not only in its campaign to control the Roman Catholic church, but also its efforts to prod higher production out of the workers.

CHINESE REDS:

Win Diplomats

Was it a case of rats deserting a sinking ship?

That might have been a plausible construction of the move as Chinese diplomatic staff members in Paris deserted to the Communist regime at Peking and called on Chinese diplomats throughout the world to follow their example.

GEORGE MONG, counselor of the Paris embassy, made the announcement. He reported that 11 diplomats, eight from the embassy and three from the consulate had walked out on Chiang Kai-shek and the Nationalist government at Canton.

The development posed a problem for the French foreign ministry's Asiatic affairs section. They were particularly concerned by the threat of a rebel sit-in at the embassy. However, the issue was resolved when the French moved firmly to back up the Nationalists and struck the dissident Chinese envoys off its diplomatic list.

THE FRENCH difficulty was clear. While Paris still recognized the Nationalist government, it was becoming increasingly apparent that the western powers eventually may recognize the Communist regime of Mao Tze-tung. Already there have been conversations on that subject.

BURLEY:

U.S. Likes Quotas

The government took first steps toward continuing existing rigid marketing controls on burley tobacco amid calls by agriculture secretary Charles Brannan for another three-year control program and for views by interested persons on the question.

BRANNAN'S REQUEST for the three-year extension of control on the burley crops stemmed from the fact that this year's prospective production of about 590 million pounds is well above the current annual rate of disappearance.

The leftover of burley on October 1, the beginning of the 1949-crop-marketing year, was estimated at 970 million pounds—about 7.5 per cent above that of a year ago. It was the highest on record.

Brannan, in asking for expressions of views by interested persons, was acting under requirements of the law. The question is expected to be submitted to a referendum in December. Approval by at least two thirds of those voting would be required.

QUOTAS for the 1947, 1948 and 1949 crops were voted in 1946.

Brannan is also required by law to proclaim quotas by December 1 if he finds there is a surplus within terms of the law, and there would be few who would not concede that a surplus exists.

BIG STEEL:

Try, Try Again

The government was pledged to do its best to bring peace into the steel industry.

MORE AND MORE meetings had been arranged in an effort to end the deadlock between workers and operators. Cyrus Ching, U. S. conciliator director, made the first peace move in the extended strike when he arranged informal meetings with steel companies and the striking CIO United Steelworkers.

Both sides had been holding doggedly to their pre-strike positions—the union for company-paid insurance and pensions recommended by a presidential board, and the industry for welfare benefits with workers helping to foot the bill.

SOME COMPANIES had agreed to accept the union terms, but this did not mean strike's end.

The stakes were big in the contest. Where big steel went there would go most of U. S. industry, inasmuch as steel usually sets the pattern in wage and labor negotiations.

NAVY:

Blue Fading

The man with the charming smile, the iron will and a weakness for salt water and blue uniforms was no longer in the White House. Top man in U.S. government, instead, was a hard-bitten captain of artillery in World War I, an army enthusiast with little in common with sailors.

THUS THE NAVY, embattled against a horde of critics, detractors, and air-minded big brass was literally fighting for its life before congress. The battle dragged on and on, while the huge B-36, world's largest bomber, shook and bumped about in the verbal hurricane raging in Washington.

The U.S. air force, for the moment, at least, held the center of the stage, seemed assured of most support. The navy, according to one witness, would be relegated to the status of a convoy force if present unification plans for the armed services were carried out.

Hitting out viciously at the air force, the navy declared building of the B-36 was an inexcusable waste of taxpayer money, claimed the big ship could never do the job expected of it, argued and fought for a chance at a duel between the navy and the bomber.

Conferee

BENEFITS:

For War I Vets

President Truman signed into law a bill increasing disability and dependence payments to World War I veterans by an estimated 112 million dollars annually. Among its major provisions were:

Provide full compensation, instead of 75 per cent, for veterans whose disability is presumed to have resulted from war service.

Increase the length of time for which payments may be made.

BOSTON BRAVADO AND YANKEE DERISION . . . A small army of Boston Red Sox rooters, bearing a sign that speaks for itself, had it pretty much their own way until a lone, wee hero in miniature Yankee uniform strode on the scene outside Yankee stadium during the waning season and told the Bostonians what he thought of them in the time-honored manner, using thumb and nose to clarify his statement. The Yankees won the game, clinching the American league pennant, and the Boston fans had to go home more insulted than ever. The Yanks defeated Brooklyn in the World Series.

FILM GANGSTER RELEASED BY COURT . . . A vindicated Humphrey Bogart was escorted through a crowd of cheering film fans by two policemen as he left Yorkville, New York, court after a command performance before Judge John Starkey. Model Robin Roberts had charged that Bogart twisted her wrist at El Morocco night club. It started, she claimed, when she asked Bogart if she could have one of the pandas he carried. Judge Starkey dismissed the case.

NEW AMBASSADOR TO ARGENTINA . . . Stanton Griffiths (left), recently appointed by President Harry Truman as new ambassador to the South American country of Argentina, is sworn into his new office with appropriate ceremony by Stanley Woodward (right), chief of protocol, United States state department. In the center is United States Undersecretary of State James E. Webb. The post as ambassador to Argentina is a difficult one to fill adequately, due to different political philosophies held by that country and the United States. Argentina is ruled by a virtual dictatorship and is nearly Fascist.

DEFENSE SECRETARY TAKES A LOOK . . . Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, aboard the carrier "Franklin D. Roosevelt," watches navy maneuvers, aimed at showing that the navy's air force has a place in atomic warfare. Among the top defense officials on hand were Air Force Secretary Symington, General Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, and Defense Secretary Griffiths. This marked the first time all the chiefs of staff have been aboard a carrier at the same time. At present, there is a "cold war" between the navy and the rest of the armed services over unification. The navy claims America can't win a war with the B-36 and the atomic bomb.

Household Hints

Dusting Fryables
For dusting fryables, pancake flour gives a better flavor than ordinary flour. The handy way to do the dusting is to put the paper in a large paper bag along with the pieces of meat, fish or fowl to be coated, then shake up the works.

Stuffing Fowl
If your aim isn't so good when it comes to getting the stuffing inside a fowl, stuff it through the kind of wide-mouth funnel that's used for filling preserving jars.

Prevent Cracking
To prevent the glaze on chinaware from cracking, don't pile freshly washed cups on top of each other. Spread them out and give them plenty of time to cool before they are put away.

Temporary Adhesive
For a temporary adhesive—or to mend something that will just be kept around and never used or put in hot water—try transparent nail polish. It works on dishes as well as glassware.

A & P Anti-Trust Suit

IN HUNDREDS of Home Towns throughout the country there are stores of the A & P grocery chain. Their red fronts and gold lettering are a familiar part of the American landscape. And prior to the red front stores, the traveling salesman of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company was a welcome visitor at farm homes as far back as the horse and buggy days.

Despite the casualties, along the years, of independent competitors the A & P company can tell you just how many thousands of dollars they spend each year for farm crops in your state; they can tell you how much taxes they pay; how their local managers and their clerks are home folks and a part of the local scene and there is not much argument over the fact that as a result of their integrated system of purchase of raw food stuffs, manufacture and process of many items in their own plants and their ability to purchase in such tremendous quantities, A & P has had a hand in bringing about lower food prices for the nation.

But this reporter cannot help but feel that it is either stupidity or a deliberate turning of their noses at the department of justice by A & P officials that again has placed the company in the role of a defendant in an anti-trust suit, this time with the threat of dismemberment of the corporation into seven companies and a divorce of the retail and non-retail activities at the penalty, if found guilty.

For it was only a few months ago that A & P was found guilty in federal court on criminal charges of violation of the Clayton anti-trust act and they paid a fine amounting to $175,000. The government in that suit did not charge A & P with being a monopoly because of its bigness, but did charge it with certain monopolistic practices in restraint of trade and in violation of the Clayton act.

Two federal courts, including the federal court of appeals at Chicago, found them guilty. It was Judge Sherman Minton, who has just been named to the United States supreme court, who wrote the opinion in the case holding A & P guilty.

The new suit against A & P is a civil suit and if the government wins, the company will be broken up. It seems a shame to break down an efficient organization like A & P which undoubtedly, at least at the present time, is partially responsible for lower food prices.

It seems a shame that A & P did not correct its operation, after it was found guilty of law violation, to comply with the Clayton act. But even at the risk of higher prices, the people cannot permit continued law violation. A & P has waged an advertising campaign against the suits.

For although for a short time unfair competition practices, such as the government charges against A & P, may benefit consumers by lower prices, in the long run these temporary consumers benefits may be dearly paid for by the suppression of normal competition and the ruin of many other small businesses, which would finally leave one monopoly or a few dominant powers, with consumers at the mercy of dictated prices.

Day for Farmers

Rep. George M. Grant, of Alabama, introduced a resolution suggesting that the first Wednesday in October be named a national Farmers Day, whereby the nation could pay tribute to the tillers of the soil.

Another New Era

Whatever happens in the immediate controversy as between the United States Steel company and the CIO union steelworkers, this reporter believes that a new era in labor-management relations has been opened as a result of the report of the President's steel fact-finding board.

Pensions and insurance for workers in lieu of labor increases definitely will alter the picture in collective bargaining, and in the opinion of many from the ranks of both capital and labor opens a new chapter in industrial relations. Some one has given it the name of welfare capitalism as opposed to the welfare state.

Postal Employees' Lobby

It seems the postal employees have a better lobby or a more effective approach to congress than has the postmaster general. Postmaster General Donaldson asked for legislation to streamline his department and for realistic postal rates to wipe out an annual deficit of some $450,000,000. It looks like he will not get it. But postal employees asked for a pay increase and got it to the extent of some $167,000,000, increasing the deficit.

I Love You, Adore You—Will You Divorce Me?

. . . AND BEST MAN AT DIVORCE TRIALS

By H. I. PHILLIPS

MY HUSBAND AND I are parting on the friendliest terms. I am very sorry to say we have been parted for some time," said a charming star of the stage and screen the other day. The mood was that of numerous recent divorce announcements. What's become of the old-fashioned couple who used to part with the crash of pots and pans, mutual cries of "Sez you!" and a stern demand from the cops: "Make way for the wagon. They're both all cut up?" In Hollywood a husband announcing that he is through with his bride says she is a very fine person. I have the highest regard for her. We just agree to disagree." A New York society gal, enduring matrimony for a couple of years, announces: "We are both very fond of each other."

What goes?

Away with these folk who announce a separation in tones and manner of making known a decision to cancel a magazine subscription or change the brand of white shoe polish. Let's demand some harsh words, a few swings and a blow by blow of the fight leading up to the parting.

Divorcee has been a sufficient blight on the social fabric without this nonsense about it entailing merely a slight drop in friendliness. It is getting routine to read of marriages being busted up because he and she like each other so much! If matrimony must go on the rocks, let's cut the business of fitting the ship with loveseats and assigning a flock of harpists to sit on the rocks and play "When We Come to the End of a Perfect Day," and "Dear Old Pal of Mine."

What is civilization coming to mates? There was a time when the marriage state was regarded as sufficiently binding to command a little respect and nothing to be smashed up without a rousing battle. Some broken furniture, a few shattered window panes and mutual shrieks of "Oh, Yeah! I was warned about you three months before the wedding."

You couldn't get a good lawyer to take the case if neither side had an arm in a sling.

Not even a gossip reporter would credit a rumor of divorce proceeding if the principals were still capable of exchanging tender looks. No court would go on with the hearing if there were no dirty looks.

No self-respecting neighborhood would stand for a couple breaking up a home on the friendliest of terms, and a sweet "please don't get the idea we dislike each other." It would regard such a mood as definitely tougher on community morals than if all the kids had seen him throw her from the second story window, and if what she said to him withered the leaves on the backyard maples.

Parting on the friendliest of terms! The very thought is corroding. It cheapens marriage. You wish to break up your home? Gwan, get in there and do it right away! There should always be an excuse for divorce.

YE GOTHAM BUGLE AND BANNER

The picture of the year was Arh Whitaker's recent flash of the Sonia Henie wedding showing the kids "under the tent" with expressions which painters strive to catch. . . . Sonja's new husband has failed in three marriage tries, but the skating star figures that if he keeps hold of her arm he can get the hang of it yet. . . . Attorney General McGrath has sued the A & P stores. . . . The Democrats want those little bundle-wagons in the chain stores to carry the customers, too. . . . Walt Disney has the screen rights to the life of Sigmund Freud, and F. U. Sancinasi says the title may be "Who's A-Freud of the Big Bad Wolf". . . . Broadway now has a sort of hip sheet on new shows with quotations on what it costs to get a share. . . . What're Rodgers & Hammerstein First Refunding Sixes selling for?

Joe's Star and Big Muddy won a daily double at $2,420 in Chicago recently. "I nearly had it," declared Shudda Haddim today, "I was at the mutuels window when I changed my mind."

A Peruvian mummy has been unwrapped at the Museum of Natural History. He is dry as dust and about 3,000 years old. At noon today, strange as it seems, neither party had nominated him for the presidency.

When Jesus Saw Their Faith

HERE are phrases running through the word of God.

That strike the ear, that gleam to catch the eye:

These simple words, "When Jesus saw their faith,"

Ring out as clear and startling as a cry.

He saw their faith, the one thing he required

Before he granted what their hearts desired.

When Jesus saw their faith, the lame arose, And darkened eyes were given sudden sight; The dead were quickened into life again, And hearts bowed down with sorrow were made light.

Because of that white inner burning flame

He changed the world for everyone who came.

Lord, Lord, I, too, have faith; behold the fire That burns in me and grant my heart's desire.

RANDY'S GIRL

By Richard H. Wilkinson

Corner

IN 20 YEARS Gertrude Berg has made "The Goldbergs" one of the best loved families in the country, with herself, as "Molly Goldberg," its most popular member. This is one radio show that the country evidently cannot do without. It went off the air in 1946, and

GERTRUDE BERG

Mrs. Berg turned it into a successful play; last January it began on television, and soon people were giving its presence as the best reason for buying a set. Now it's on the air again, on CBS Friday evenings. And charming, warm-hearted Mrs. Berg is spending her days writing and rehearsing, but saving evenings for her husband, two children and friends.

Some years ago Susan Hayward was brought to New York by Paramount, part of a plan to build up a gorgeous looking young actress into a star. Everyone who met her admitted that she was all the press agent said. Susan has gone right ahead, though not still with Paramount; it's reported that she gets $5,000 a week since 20th Century-Fox bought her contract from Wanger.

Paramount's stars will be linked with a kind of crackers on the air beginning November 14. Three times a week, over 366 Mutual stations, Erskine Johnson will interview a Paramount star—one star each week. Alan Ladd leads off.

Vaughn Monroe will have Ella Raines to sing to in the color movie he is slated for; made independently, it will be released by Republic. It's a wild western, "Singing Guns"; Monroe will broadcast from Hollywood while making it.

George Burns and Gracie Allen have been joking for years on the air about brother Willie. Few listeners knew that Burns' brother Willie wrote gags for the show and managed George's affairs. Now he is the show's producer.

RANDY SUMNER told the girl he loved her. She was beautiful and he was human and he couldn't help himself. He felt chagrined when he thought of it later because that night he had forgotten that he was a police detective and she the girl friend and accomplice of the notorious Tony Quarles. He had to get away from her for a few days. It was the only way he could think clearly. So he ran up to Chicago and there he dropped in on the chief. The chief got sore when he saw him.

"What the hell! The dame will take a powder on you. If she blows it's curtains as far as our chance of bringing in Tony is concerned."

Randy felt like telling the chief to jump in the lake. But he didn't. He knew the chief was right. Pamela was Tony's girl. A new one. They'd been seen together at The Lobster Club and the story was that Tony was nuts over her.

Right after that the Ryegate job was pulled; a night watchman and a cop shot dead. Of course Tony vanished. They couldn't hope to find him. The girl vanished too. A week later one of the boys saw her down at Ocean Bluffs. She was an usher in a movie theater.

They didn't pick her up. The chief was too smart for that. He sent Randy down. "You're a good looking kid, Randy, with a nice, friendly smile. Go down there and play the sucker game. Sooner or later she and Tony will join up. It's our only chance."

Randy's part was easy. He played the part of a lumber king's son down from Michigan on vacation. The friendly smile worked. Pamela trusted him. She seemed lonesome and glad to have him around.

Then came that night when impulsiveness gave way to logic. He kissed her and told her he loved her. Randy made plans. The payoff was due to come soon now. He had orders to take both the girl and Tony. Well, he'd do just that.

Days passed. They saw each other once at least every 24 hours. They danced and went sailing and swam and played tennis. Randy suffered. He was haunted by the scene that was inevitable.

There was a haunting light in the girl's eyes also. He wondered if she too, were suffering because the same thing had happened to her.

THEN ONE DAY he called for her and found wild fright in her eyes. "Randy! I'm afraid! He's here!" "That man. The man I tried to tell you about—why I left Chicago. He—he's horrible! At first he was nice to me, then—I had to run away to keep him from—from—"

"What's his name?" said Randy hoarsely.

"Lancey. Tom Lancey. He's at the Seaside. He called and said—"

"We'll go down and have a talk with him," Randy snapped. "Randy! I can't! I—"

"You're coming too!" She didn't understand Randy's attitude, but she trusted him.

They went to the Seaside. Inside the door Pamela whispered. "There he is!" she whispered. "On the divan reading the newspaper."

It was Tony Quarles. Randy felt sick. He put his hand under his coat and started across the lobby. Tony saw him coming. But it was too late. Randy got his gun out and shot before Tony reached his feet.

He looked around, and there she was, staring in wild-eyed horror.

"Randy! You shouldn't have—you've killed him."

Randy's lip curled. Tony Quarles opened his eyes and saw the girl. "Hello, sister," he managed. "Congratulations. You're the first woman a copper who ever fooled me, but I guess you were worth it. Baby, you're a looker."

Of course she wasn't a copper. But she wasn't Tony's girl either. She was just who she said she was. She'd been telling the truth. And Randy was so surprised he let her swoon in his arms before he could gather his senses enough to explain his own identity.

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE by Roger C. Whitman

QUESTION: Our drains are stopped up very often in spite of the fact that we have had the pipes cleared by a tree-rooter machine. I am of the opinion that it is a clogged vent and not tree roots in the pipes. Can you give me any advice?

ANSWER: It is possible that the pitch of the horizontal soil pipe is insufficient, so that grease and other sediment matter congeals and closes up the line and retards the flow of waste matter to the sewer. Re-laying of the pipe is one solution, if that is the case. I doubt if a clogged vent would cause the condition. The other solution to such a problem is to install a grease trap in the line from the kitchen sink and clean it out periodically.
