Tawas Memorial Hospital 150 Attend Answers

1. I am still not satisfied with the plan to build such a large hospital for a community of this size. Will you explain further? In order to receive Federal Aid in construction of a hospital it must meet the spcifications set by the Office of Hospital Survey and Construction. The capacity of the hospital is determined by the population. The recognized minimum in sufficiency of protections assists. At a meeting held Monday evening at the court house, members of the Iosco County Board of Education were elected. Taking over its duties November 21, the new five-man board will organize tonight (Friday) at the Watts School House in Grant township.

The members of the board elected at the court of the service: Kitchen, laundry, medical and surgical facilities between the service is all and surgical facilities between the services at the court of the service is all and surgical facilities between the services at the court of the service is all and surgical facilities between the service is all and surgical facilities and sickness is five beds per 1,000 population. The office of Hospital Survey and Construction against accident and sickness is five beds per 1,000 population. The office of Hospital Survey and Construction advised a 55 bed hospital but would allow immediate construction of a 40 bed hospital. However, the service: Kitchen, laundry, medical and surgical facilities have to be built for a greater bed capacity, this allows for expansion in the future. To buy a small building and convent it into a hospital and convent it into a hospital the club which is judged as meaning the club which is judged which which which we will be club which which which which which which was a supplied which which which which we will be club which which which which which would be a waste of money and the club which is judged as most would not be approved consequently no government appropriation would be given. The present hospital is built not only for the present but also considering the future growth of this community.

Walter Martens told of the Consumers Power Company awards which are offered to outstanding clubs and members in electrical projects. 2. How does a person contribute to the community at large in making leader in tractor maintenance ana donation to the hospital?

Elmer Durant, of East Tawas was elected chairman. Mrs. Bernice Herriman, Mrs. Mary Rapp and Mrs. Edna Anschuetz acted as tellers.

Truman Renews Pledge of Support Of 'Safe Plan' for Atomic Curbs; Attlee Charts British Saving Plan

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

MAKES BID FOR STEEL PEACE . . . Cyrus Ching (facing camera) director of the U. S. mediation service, is surrounded by newsmen as he arrived from Washington to make another effort for settlement of the paralyzing steel strike. These conferences were described as "exploratory," although Ching later reported that the situation was "not hopeless."

TRUMAN: Supports A-Curbs

"To assure that atomic energy will be devoted to man's welfare and not to his destruction is a continuing challenge to all nations and all peoples."

In those words, President Truman pledged his support to any safe and effective plans that would outlaw the atomic bomb.

THE PRESIDENT spoke at a ceremony in which the United Nations laid the cornerstone for its permanent headquarters in New York city.

Mr. Truman called the cornerstone rites "an act of faith - our unshakable faith that the United Nations will succeed."

The President declared that control of weapons is essential to a peaceful world and said that "Ever since the first atomic bomb was developed, a major objective of U. S. policy has been a system of international control of atomic energy that would assure effective prohibition of atomic weapons . . and at the same time would promote the peaceful use of atomic energy by all nations."

HE ENDORSED anew the Bernard Baruch control plan which was rejected by Russia.

The chief point of disagreement between western powers and Russia on atomic energy control has been insistence by the West on an effective means of inspection to see that nations would keep their pledges to outlaw the bombs. Russia wouldn't hold still for that pro-

WASHINGTON - The United States in a new crackdown on Russia had obtained an indictment against Amtorg, Russian purchasing agency in the U.S., and six of its officers on charges of failing to register as agents of a foreign power. The maximum penalty for violation of that law would be $10,-000 fine and five years imprisonment. The firm itself was liable to a $10,000 fine. Shortly after U. S. attorney general McGrath announced return of the indictment, five of the Russians were arrested by FBI agents in New York. As was expected, Soviet officials vigorously protested the arrests.

There had been repeated allegations in congress that Amtorg acts as an espionage agent. Said assistant U. S. attorney Edward R. Rigney: "Diplomatic passports don't constitute a defense for the crime charged here." The indictments did not charge Amtorg with serving as an espionage agency for the

ENGLAND:

More Austerity

In a drastic effort to rescue Great Britain from its financial morass, Prime Minister Clement Attlee charted an economic course designed to save 784 million dollars annually. He also ordered a cut of 400 million dollars in dollar imports.

THUS did the prime minister plot a course of more austerity for the British people.

The savings effected, or hoped to be effected, would result from lopping off spending for national defense, capital investments, public relations and food subsidies.

Attlee presented a quick, graphic interpretation of what was proposed. "We must reduce expenditure and increase production," he told the house of commons. But it wasn't as simple as the formula would seem to make it.

To the already austerity-weary Britons it meant that many of the goods for which they now have to stand in line for hours would be The world picture was spotty as even more scarce. MILLIONS WILL RALLY . . . Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, only member of Communist party's ruling board still at liberty, gives her views to newsmen on the conviction of the 11 leaders. "Millions will rally to our cause," she said, condemning the conviction of the eleven as a "Hitler-like decision." She blamed the whole thing on President Truman, asserting that "in its attempt to start war with Russia, the administration is trying to outlaw the Communist party, because it represents a large segment of the population which is

THE MAN WITH TWO FACES . . . Communists claim to idolize the worker and Premier Stalin, often confused and identified as one and the same in Russian political philosophy. Here, in Berlin, part of an estimated crowd of 200,000 demonstrators in the east zone carry huge pictures of Stalin and a "worker of the people," during torchlight parade following election of Wilhelm Pieck, German Communist, as president of East Germany state. Pieck's statements touched off violent nationalist demonstration that exploded in Unter der Linden. He urged the crowds to smash plans of western powers.

FINDS AN OPENING . . . Football has found a gaping hole in the public interest with its T-formations, line plunges and off-tackle plays. With the season about half over, the stadiums are drawing capacity crowds, and the fans are discussing bowl possibilities. Here, in a New York Yankee offensive drill, a ball carrier finds the answer to every ball carrier's dream, a tidy opening large enough for a river barge. Hugging the pigskin is Bob Kennedy. Though neither of them competed, the ex-king and his consort were among the most interested spectators. The king has recently begun a campaign to regain his lost throne. He blames British lack of support for his surrender of Belgium's forces to the Germans during the war, and answers his critics in this vein. So far he has had little success in creating a strong movement to return him to

Furuhashi Is Unorthodox Swimmer

By GRANTLAND RICE-

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS ago I saw Arne Borg's Great Swim Paavo Nurmi run in the Olympic Games at Paris. He was something to see-just as Babe Ruth and Jack Dempsey were. You knew you were looking at the master-a runner good enough to win from the mile to the 10,000 meters.

"I felt the same way when I saw Furuhashi swim," Bob Kiphuth of Yale told me. "I felt as if I were looking at another Nurmi — another master." "I understand the new Japanese swimming records may force a change in swimming style and form," I said to Kiphuth, one of the greatest physical conditioners of all time.

Grantland Rice

"That isn't quite the way it is," Yale's director of athletics said. 'Furuhashi is another Nurmi another Ruth—another Cobb—far above the mass. You can't make rules for a genius."

"Furuhashi is now 21 years of age, is a junior this year and has another year to go at Nippon university in Tokyo. He started to swim when he was eight years old, was an outstanding school-boy competitor and many of his records are still on the books. During the war he was in war industry and as soon as it was over and pools were available, he started his practice again.

"With maturity, he has gained terrifically in power and skill with a great determination to be the world's outstanding swimmer. How he has succeeded is clearly shown in the results of his swimming the past two or three years.

"In the summer of 1948 on the same day of the finals in the 1,500 meters event at the Olympic games in London, Hironoshin Furuhashi in the Japanese consolation meet turned in 18:37.0 against the Olympic time of 19:18.0. This particular race was a dingdong battle between Furuhashi and Shiro Hashizume. The pictures show there was never more than a stroke separating these two boys, and Furuhashi finally won by 7/10 of a second."

TOOTH

OF GEAR

"One of the great swims of all times was Arne Borg's 1500 meter in the European championships in Bologne in 1927. Borg in that race swam about one minute faster than he had ever done before, and he never came within a minute of that time afterwards. It was truly one of the most astounding athletic performances of all time in swimming.

"When the Japanese came to great swimming power in the late twenties and early thirties, they went after that 19:07 plus record, trying to break the mark. I have seen them over and over again on my visits out there try to do the job, but they always missed by about two seconds because Borg with a very erratic pace, cut his lap time down after 900 meters and started to go even faster. In the natural process of deceleration, any advantage the Japanese had piled up at that point was slowly lost and by the end of the race the Japanese had lost out, too.

"However, in 1938, Amano finally cracked the Borg record by doing 18:58.8, so it was really amazing in 1948 when Furuhashi turned in 18:37.0. He also bettered the world time for the 400 meter and 800 meter events during the same sum-

"Nevertheless, we were not prepared for what he did in Los Angeles this past month. His 1,500 meter was 18:19.0 and he also went under his marks in the 400 and 800 meters, and was anchor man in the 800 meter relay, swimming his 200 meter leg in record time. He virtually threw the record book in middle-distance swimming right out the window, and it reminded me so very much of the middle-distance running of the Finns, especially Nurmi. in the Paris Olympic Games in 1924! "In doing this, Furuhashi has aroused a great deal of comment because of his unorthodox style. He has developed tremendous facility in the water and is really the only person who can swim the Furuhashi stroke. He is quite orthodox, in a sense, in his arm stroke, but in his leg kick he uses a six-beat rhythm and only kicks three or four beats in each style, dragging his legs the rest of the time. However, the beats that he does use are executed with a snap which gives him tremendous propulsion power.'

Can a person overcome a "nervous giggle"?

both because the habit usually is more or less unconscious and because it grows out of deep-rooted attitudes and feelings. What the giggler is really saying when he behaves as if everything were funny is: "Please do not take me seriously"-which in turn means: "Do not blame me for being the sort of person I am." Far from be-ing merely meaningless or silly, the habit reflects a chronic sense of personal inadequacy if not of downright "guilt," and getting the better of such feelings is the way to cure it.

Should a psychiatric patient read this column?

Answer: Several psychiatrists have told me that some of their patients are among my readers and have sometimes found the column helpful, but there may be danger in a person who is under psychiatric treatment reading along such lines. No two individual cases are exactly

Answer: It may not be easy, | alike, and there's always the temptation to adopt a ready-made solution rather than keep probing for your private and peculiar "answer," especially if you are a person who would rather theorize than come to grips with harsh facts. Let your doctor decide.

Do a couple's parents determine which will be "boss"?

Answer: They may, if both partners grew up in homes of the same type, reports Hazel L. Ingersoll of the University of Tennessee. If both the wife and the husband grew up in homes in which father was the dominant authority, they will be apt to take it for granted that the husband should be "boss," while if both were reared in families where mother "wore the trousers," their marriage will usually follow the same pattern. Different backgrounds will mean either discord, or a compromise solution on an "equal," "democratic" basis.

Their desire to get away from general practice with its long hours, and night calls, is only natural now that government the same basis as members of labor and other unions.

unions, so that it is a natural sequence to find the various specialists forming their own unions, demanding, of course, that before a member is admitted he must have received the education and acquired the experience necessary.

What about the general physician, if, as it is reported of one graduation class in medicine, only 12 per cent expressed a preference for general practice?

In the "Canadian Medical Association Journal," Dr. W. V. Johnston, Lucknow, states that he has come to look upon specialists as having three functions to perform. First, they are consultants and as should be on the staff or permitted such they help to keep me out of to use all facilities of a hospital.

Thirdly, they are our research workers.

Dr. Johnston states that he and his fellow practitioners believe that each university should have a chair of general practice and that general practitioners should be made thorough-going and integrated members of medical school faculties. Also that every general practitioner of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of diziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

The Winnah! A draw between Joe Coon, the battler from the woods, and city slicker, Pedro, ..a young spaniel, belonging to Goyle

Tuesday night a crowd gathered on the flats between Fletcher's Service and the bay to witness a ten round event betwen a young racoon, visiting in the city and a young spaniel dog. The dog's barks and growls brought forth his master and other interested spectators from the station. The dog, had a young, 16-pound coon cornered in a drainage ditch. After several attempts the dog dragged the coon into the open and both went at it for about five rounds. The bell for the sixth found both fighters, all tuckered out and they were sitting, not a foot apart, resting. Mr. coon then pulled a fast one, while the dog took his eyes off his opponent to size up the crowd, the coon nabbed him on the foot and this Mrs. Francis Dorey and children started things up anew. The fight ended ina draw when Kiley picked up his dog and went home and Rudy Gingerich, Bill ...Horen ...and Harry Goldsmith "bagged" the coon with Harry Goldsmith doing the dipping with a smelt net and Rudy holding the bag.

Juniors Play Real Success The first junior class play was put on Friday night, November 4, perore a large and interested audience, The comedy, "It's Never too Late" abounded in witticism which was put across well by the actors. The story dealt with the problems of a money maker, Robert Lee, to put finance into the packground and become acquainted with his family. This part was capably handled by Leonard Robinson. His tearful wife was portrayed well by Rosemary Cottins, whose tears caused many laughs. Other characters were: Arlen Beli as their son Charles; Reda Fortune, as his girl friend; Glenda Johnson played Virginia, the pampered daughter; Jim Freel, as Jim, the young tree surgeon; Elgin Provoast, as Lewis the breezy, overconfident financial advisor; Betty Belson, as his loyal secretary; Toni Perry was the wise cracking maid,

Line of Fire--Caues of Most Small Game Accidents

With the major portion fo the small game shooting season passed, the conservation department dis-closes that preliminary investigations again show most hunting accidents occur when hunters shoot with humans in lin of fire. Last year this type of accident was responsible for 35 of the 90 injuries in small game season. Incomplete accident reports by conservation officers this season indicate a dozen "in line of fire" accidents. Grabbing the second spot for the dubious honor of causing most mishaps are hunters who leaned loaded guns against insecure rests, especially automobile fenders. Grasping gun by muzzle and brushing it against an object has resulted in wounding of several more hunters.

"Screwball" accidents such as trying to pick up a gun and fire it at the same time, throwing gun butt down hard on the ground causing it to discharge and beating a porcupine with stock of leaded gun have added to the injury list.

Accidents Among Leading Causes of Death in U.S.

CHICAGO .- Are accidents now the leading cause of death in America? In a sense-yes. Accidents take a greater toll of productive years than any one natural cause of death, according to a study by the American Medical Association.

More actual deaths still are caused by heart disease, cancer and cerebral hemorrhage. But the report points out that such deaths usually befall older persons after their working lifetimes are ended.

In the usual working age span of 20 to 65, accidents claimed 1.75 million work years; heart disease, 1.5 million; pneumonia, one million; and cancer, one million, forty thousand.

early signs of spring-the farmers A prodigal son of northwest Missouri, Homer Croy drove along a country road anild the scenes of his youth. As he following their teams in the gray fields, the cattle with their heads sees familiar places, he associates them with the Kennedys-Newt, the kindest down trying to find grass, the pasture horses with ragged patches of shedman he'd ever known; Mrs. Kennedy; their daughters, Ida and Lucy; their son, Harlan, his boyhood pal. He reding hair hanging on their undersides. Then he remembers John Craig, the handsome stranger Newt hired as an extra hand.

I got off at the wooden depot and looked around for my father. Instead. Newt came toward me, wearing his Sunday celluloid collar and the ready made tie which fitted over the brass collar button. He held out a big brown ham hand.

"Yer Pa didn't feel up to comin', Homer. He ast me if I would mind drivin' in. Naturally I wouldn't." We went to the buggy at the row of hitch racks behind the depot. He spread the lap robe tenderly over my knees, then sat without it over him at all. Lap robes were for womenfolk and boys off at the university. "Yer Pa ast me to acquaint you with some of the details," he said as we jogged along. His voice was hushed and a little choked.

"When you left after Christmas she opined she wouldn't ever see you again. She wouldn't let your Pa write you she was fadin'-thought it'd be disturbin' to you in your school studies. But she was failin' all the time. She would keep watchin' the clock to see when the mailman would arrive. Yer Pa would manage to be around the feed lots and'd go to the road and get your letter out of the box and bring it to the house and read it aloud to her. I'm glad you was a good hand to write." My heart choked within me and I was deeply thankful I had written regularly and at some length.

"It was a shock to the neighborhood when the line call went out, although we'd been expectin' it. Nobody in the neighborhood ever had more friends, nobody's goin' to be missed more. You had you a good mother. Homer."

I was so stirred, so moved, I could hardly speak.

"It's goin' to be tough on your Pa. You've got you a good Pa, too."

My heart cried at that, too. I suddenly thought how little I had appreciated him, how rarely I ever gave him any thanks, and I resolved I would say and do things to show how much I loved him.

and Harlan were in the spring Newt Takes Charge

Of the Funeral Half a dozen rigs were in front of the house. Pa came out to the buggy, looking smaller and more frail than I had ever seen him. "I've been waitin' for you."

We went in the parlor by the box. There was a sliding panel; he pushed it back.

We stood, silently, side by side, with Phebe at the foot-Phebe with her gold-rimmed glasses, turned up nose and long, slender face, like my mother's.

"I expect you'll want to greet the home folks," Pa said, finally. "They always speak of you with interest." I went from one to another, shaking hands, receiving words of sympathy, my heart throbbing with the emotion that my boyhood friends and neighbors stirred in me. These were the ones I had gone to the white one-room school with, the ones I had worked in the fields with, gone to the cornfield church with, known so long and intimately. The next day, the day of the funeral, Newt "took charge." Little groups of men stood in the drive lot and talked in low voices; when the time came for the preacher to speak, Newt went from group to group, silently motioning the men to come to the house. The windows were open, the men stood in the yard; the women, for the most part, in the house. The horses at the hitch racks shook their harness and whinnied. I The heavy hand proved too much feel choked as I set these words down, for it was one of the most poignant, touching moments of my life. When the speaking was over, Newt waved the teams into line and started them in proper order down the road toward Cain's. My father, and looked out the window at the Phebe, an aunt and I sat in our spring wagon; my father drove. The line moved away. Cain's was set on a hill, with cornfields on two sides and a pasture on the other two. As the coffin was being carried in, horses came and looked over the fence.

When the preacher had said the final word. Newt gave a signal to two men and the three got their shovels from behind a tree. At last the grave was heaped and rounded; We were back in our house which seemed so lonely without my mother in a rocking chair by the window. There, on the center table, was something that had never been there before. My mother's picture in a frame made of colored yarn. The picture had been on the bureau in my father and mother's bedroom; now it was on the center table. I knew he had put it there. Some of the neighbor women remained to get supper. Newt said, "I'll stay and help you chore, Amos."

The two marched off to the barn lot. After a while my father came back for the milk buckets. "You needn't help tonight, Homer." And right there was a change; education had made me just about worthless.

Newt poured the milk into the separator, as my mother had done so many times, while my father turned the handle. Then helped crock it and carry it down the steps into the cave, as my mother had done so many, many times.

Finally, he said, "I expect I'd better get down the road, Amos. I hear the calves bawling."

He wasn't quite gone. "Maybe you and Phebe and Homer'd like to come in an' spend the evening with us tomorrow. A change of pasture'd be good for you."

Farming Becomes

More Specialized

I looked at the Kennedy sitting room with eyes that had seen so many strange sights and new places and new people since I had gone away. The baseburner was down; the zinc was gone. There was a hole in the wall where the stovepipe had gone into the flue. The hole was stopped with a piece of metal which had strips on the side to hold it in place. A new stopper now; it showed a ship at sea. Very fine, everybody said, our people who had never seen a ship. But on the wall was the harvester calendar with the dates circled when the cows were to freshen. The room that was so near and dear to me, the room where I had been vaccinated, the room where the Delinskys had danced, where Newt in the old days had written the One-Horse Farmer, the room where the detective had courted Ida after the old folks had gone to bed, the room where Harlan and I had shot a big hole in the ceiling.

The warm, the hearty, good-natured, joke-making household lifted us out of ourselves. We played broom, we talked and laughed. Suddenly I would feel guilty for laugh-

Phebe was the best quilter in the neighborhood. Mrs. Kennedy her how to make one of the designs and Phebe took the pencil and sketched it on paper.

At last, time to go. Newt lit his lantern, too. "I'll walk down the road with you a piece.'

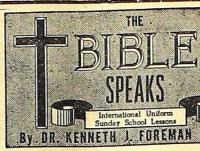

Our home was lonely and deserted, but not quite as lonely as it would have been if we hadn't gone to

The next day I started back to school. On the platform of the little wooden sanded depot again. Pa took my hand. "Write as often as you can, Homer. Always glad to hear from you." The train pulled out. The water tower fell away.

Specialization was coming among us. In my youth a farmer had been just a farmer and had never dreamed of being anything else. But the coming of machinery and of changed conditions made it possible for a man to be more than a general corn-hogsand-cattle farmer. A farmer was now a good "livestock man," or a good "corn raiser," or a good "small grain man." Some men-were even becoming wheat farmers. But ours was not a real wheat country. As an example, my father, due to poor health, began to specialize in cattle; he became what we called a "cattle man." He bought calves, let them grow into steers, then turned them. Sometimes he bought "Westerns"—that is, thin, emaciated, starved-out cattle from the hard-pan section of Kansas or Nebraska-then fed them out. And now, as I was getting farther and farther from the farm and meeting people who didn't know farms, or farm life, I was surprised that many didn't know the difference between a calf and a steer, or a gilt and a gelding. But I was still coming home; still living the life I had known and loved; and seeing the boys and girls I had gone to school with; and listening so avidly to all that had happened to our neighbors. Especially to my favorite. I realized now Newt wasn't well educated; that he made all kinds of grammar slips. But, for that matter, I was still making them, myself. The whole thing had a curious effect. After I had been away and came back, at first I noticed his mistakes in grammar very much. But soon I didn't

SCRIPTURE: Isaiah 42:1-4; 50: 4-9; 52:13-53:127 Jeremiah 38:1-13. DEVOTIONAL READING: I Peter 2: 19-25.

Love So Amazing

Lesson for November 13, 1949

LONG AGO riding in his slow chariot through the southern sands, a puzzled reader with Isaiah 53 in his hands asked the question other readers have asked ever since: Does the prophet speak of himself or of some other? The answer given by Philip (see Acts 8) has been the answer of the church ever since: This prophecy can be understood only in the light from Calvary's Cross. Philip did not say, and we need not insist, Dr. Foreman that the prophet had Jesus, and Jesus only, in mind when he wrote. What we do say is that while these words might have described some one the prophet knew, might have described the whole nation of Israel, might even have described himself, still the words make but a poor picture of any one else, compared with the picture they make of Jesus.

The Scarlet Thread

TSAIAH 53 has been in the center of the church's thinking about Christ from the beginning. It may be said to run like a scarlet thread through the New Testament. It was in the back of the minds of Paul and John and Peter alike. This great prophecy sheds a light on what otherwise had been a black opaque blot-the death of Christ.

What would otherwise be simply a horrible tragedy, perhaps the greatest tragedy of history, the perfect case of complete injustice, the final evidence that there is no God, in the light of Isaiah 53 becomes a center of glory.

Instead of being ashamed of the cross on which Jesus died, the church sings, "In the cross of Christ I glory," . . . "Love so amazing, so divine, demands my soul, my life, my all."

We believe that Christ suffered not for his own but for others' sake. Suffering, not forced but willingly undergone, suffering not as mere pain but that others might be saved, suffering on behalf of others and for love of them-this is the key to the riddle of existence, this is the key to the heart of God.

Not Christ Alone

TF CHRIST'S MEN had refused to follow where he led, if all Christians had been willing to let him carry, alone, the burden of the world's sin and grief, there never would have been any Christianityfor there would never have been any Christians. Peter and James and the rest of the apostles would have refused to die for Jesus' sake. The noble army of martyrs would have been an ignoble army of cowards.

No missionary ever would have left home and comforts and country; no mother would have laid down her life for her children; the unselfish service of those who have cared for the sick and the orphaned would never have been done; indeed, had no one ever been willing to suffer for the benefit of others, one wonders whether the world could have even held together this

Christ died that the world might live, yes; but others also had to die to make his death avail. He died for Africa, that Africans might live; but Africans died till men like Livingstone and Schweitzer and many a less famous man and woman also went out and lived there in loneliness and died in pain.

Christ died for the little children of the poor, but until the Salvation Army and others like them went down into the slums and suffered there with and for them, those poor little people died without so much as dreaming that God might love them.

Christ died for all the lepers in the world; but until a Father Damien, and others no less Christlike, went among the outcast lepers and became outcasts themselves for the love of Christ, those lepers died in the dark.

"Let Him Take His Own Cross Daily"

YES, Isaiah 53 pictures the selfsacrifice of our Lord, above all. But any one who has any intention of being a true servant of God must be willing to find his own life-direction right here. The world does not need more pain; it does need those who will suffer pain to serve others notice them. His heart and mind and in Christ's name.

Research Plan Opens New Fight On Schizophrenia

research program and important new discoveries are helping mankind's conquest of schizophrenia. Details have been made public by Dr. Nolan D. C. Lewis, field director of the study of the mental ailment being made by the supreme council of the Scottish Rites Masons at a cost of $750,000.

This all-inclusive study, believed to be the first of its kind, was summed up by Dr. Lewis as offering "many of the missing pieces of the puzzle that is schizophrenia."

"This disorder known as schizophrenia is like a gigantic jigsaw puzzle with pieces missing," he said. "However, many of them have been found and fitted together and the missing ones are becoming fewer.'

Study Infants

The researchers struck at schizophrenia from all possible directions. They studied the infant, the nursery school child, the adolescent and the aged. They looked at the parents, especially the mothers, of schizophrenics, and at the children of psychotic parents. They tried to find the answer to the question: "What type of person is likely to succumb to schizophrenia?"

They studied the effect of physical treatment, such as shock and insulin on patients, and of psychological treatment, such as group therapy. They analyzed what bodily changes took place during the illness.

These projects, plus the 226 articles, monographs and books that the money helped to finance, were described as representing a program that isolated the illness and 'brought all the principal issues involved into a clear focus."

The seriousness of this illness is shown, by the fact that "in the civilian population each year thousands of unsuspecting souls are struck down suddenly by the living death known as schizophrenia, which is particularly cruel because its victims are often children and adolescents."

Terrifying Thought

The mentally ill now occupy more than 50 per cent of the nation's hospital beds and schizophrenia accounts for the largest percentage of those who are mentally ill, he pointed out.

"It is terrifying that we have been able to predict that next year so many thousands of persons will start their weary march to the mental hospitals and that we are powerless to halt them and in most cases to help them.'

"We have not known why certain people break down in the struggle to survive in this uncertain world-why they must literally 'go out of their wits' to escape its pain."

The groundwork for the program was laid down fifteen years ago by Dr. Lewis, who visited more than 200 laboratories, hospitals and other scientific centers and read hundreds of scientific papers. which he wrote a book called "Research in Dementia Praecox" (now known as schizophrenia).

Lost: Three Acres Land In Bridgewater Township

SOMERVILLE, N. J. - Three acres of land are lost on either First Mountain or Second Mountain of the Watchung range, officials of Bridgewater township believe. Taxes are paid on the plot every year, although no one knows where

William H. Cunningham, township engineer, dug up an old description that seemed to indicate that the Shangri-La might be part of the old Teebles property. "Trouble is," he said, "that the Teebles departed long ago, leaving no heirs, assigns or successor. The Teebles were one of the old first families around here and they had quite a large holding. This three acres was probably part of it, but we don't know which part. Can't seem to find out, either." Nominal taxes have been paid on the three acres for the last forty-one years and the present owners are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mills of Astoria, L. I. They started the Bridgewater Township committee on a search for the land by saying that they would like to look at it after all these years. James J. Cunningham, tax collector for the township, said his records showed that the property was owned by Walter Martini, care of Mrs. E. Mills, Astoria. Collector Cunningham, unrelated to Engineer Cunningham, said Mr. Martini was the first husband of the present Mrs. Mills. The tract measures 100 by 1,400 feet, but the deed gives no "place of beginning." The deed was executed in 1908.

For the last few years the township has been trying to get up a tax map, without making much headway. If the missing three acres is not located by the time the map is finished, it may turn up purely through the elimination of identified property. Collector Cunningham said that might take a long time, though. He expects to continue levying taxes on the land while he tries to find it

Care of Rubber Tile

QUESTION: I have almost new rubber tiles on my kitchen floor. Although the tiles are the best kind, I have to scrub them often and can't keep them clean. Black streaks come off from our shoes. I have to use a scouring powder to take off the streaks. We have no children, only four adults.

ANSWER: Use a good nonrubbing type of floor wax, and do not use harsh soaps or coarse abrasives. Wash only with mild soap, rinse well and dry. Apply the wax when needed.

What to give? What to give? If that question has you running around in circles this Christmas, here's a smart suggestion. Make a list of your friends who enjoy smoking. Then take the list into your neighborhood dealer. He has a well-stocked array of gay gift cartons of Camel cigarettes—yes, mild flavorful Camels that bring pleasure with every puff. And for the pipe smoker or the man who likes to roll his own, your dealer will show you pound tins of Prince Albert Smoking Tobacco—the National Joy Smoke. Both these popular gifts come all dressed up in special, colorful Christmas wrap-pings. You don't even have to fuss with a personal greeting card—it's built right into the package for your easy-writing convenience. You'll be good to your friends and kind to your budget if you send them Camels and Prince Albert! -Adv.

Schools Examined

WHAT'S WRONG with your local high school? Why is it that about fifty per cent of your local boys and girls do not finish their high school education, most of them dropping out before the end of their second year?

Why is it that these 16 and 17year-olds can see nothing in a complete high school education for them? Are teachers or teaching methods at fault? Is the high school curriculum at fault? Are parents at fault?

Attempting to find out the answers to these questions, more than 200 educators from all sections of the nation recently met in Washington at the U.S. office of education for a four-day seminar. All agreed present conditions in the nation's high schools comprised a threat to the nation (1) by turn-ing out thousands of half-educated young men and women; (2) flooding a labor market with youngsters not yet ready to either make a living for themselves or to face life's problems in their inevitable roles as fathers, mothers or good citizens.

The national child labor committee recently published a study as to why so many thousands of these young people refused to finish their high school education. Among these reasons were included: (1) they could learn more outside, since the course of study meant nothing to them; (2) a desire to work and make money; (3) they were not getting along in their studies and were wasting their time; (4) they didn't like a certain subject in their curriculum or didn't like the teachers.

The study showed that about 20 per cent of the high school enrollment intended to enter the professions and for these the curriculum was probably adequate since they intended to go onto college; another 20 per cent were going into skilled trades, and if they were in a vocational school the curriculum was adequate. But for the other 60 per cent their high school education meant very little.

Generally, it was agreed that high school education must mean something more than a study of the three R's, which sufficed in grandfather's day; that high school education curricula in scores of instances must be brought up to date to relate it more definitely with modern-day life. Horse and buggy curricula must be eliminated, since most of them are based on the assumption the pupil is going to college when as a matter of fact only about 20 per cent ever even enter college.

What the average high school youth needs today, say the educators, is a new outlook . . atomic energy . . . current day happenings practical guidance on how to get a job and hold it . . . how to get along with people . . . how to progress in his own community to get along with his own specific human relations in his home, in his neighborhood etc. And these conditions vary in each com-

He will not be a professional man or woman, nor hold down a skilled job . . . but he must make a living in a fast-moving world and be an upstanding parent and a good American

He won't be if his high school education is geared to grandfather's time in which he is not interested in the slightest degree.

This is something for educators and parents to think about in every high school district in the country, for if that boy or girl can be kept interested in high school for four years instead of two, he will be fitted better for a happier life and for a more useful citizen.

Barkley on Farm Bill

Vice-President Barkley declares that the Anderson farm bill is the Hope-Alken farm law with a new pair of socks. And Rep. Wright Patman, of Texas is given credit for the statement that back in the 1930's the farmer was just "hoping and aching" and so it was natural he should come up with the Hope-Aiken bill.

Egg Tip

Here's a tip for you folks who must unfortunately buy your eggs at the grocery in neat cartons, every egg the same size, shape and color, at 80 to 85 cents a dozen . . . guaranteed graded eggs. And you are told the reason for this fancy price for these fancy eggs is that the government is paying the farmer a subsidy for these eggs, which is not wholly true.

In the first place the department of agriculture, is merely administering a law passed by congress, and it pays a maximum of 35 cents a dozen for nest run, non-graded eggs . . . all sizes, all colors, cracked or whole, clean or dirty, fresh or not, to Mr. Average Farmer.

The poultry-men who sell these graded, guaranteed eggs probably never see a government subsidy, and the nest-run, non-graded eggs would never reach the city market

Farm Bureau Accomplishments

Farm Bureau meetings go by what some reference is made to important leislative accomplishments by Farm Burea for farmers in Michigan. Should not the credit be given where it is due?

Highways—Farm Bureau promoted gasoline tax for relief of general property from tax burden for highway contsruction, maintenance and debt retirement.

Farm Vehicle Licenses—Farm Bureau secured and has safeguarded exemption of farm production supplies from the sales tax act,
