2 Tawas Fishermen
Have Chilly Experience;
Welcome Hot Coffee

Two Tawas Bay fishermen spent Tuesday night on a fish tug between Little and Big Charity islands because of a broken propeller shaft. After experiencing 1 1/2 hours of chilly weather on the water Theodore Trudell and Harold Johnroe, employees of the Hamell Fishery, welcomed the hot coffee and sandwiches brought to them by Tawas Point Coast Guards Wednesday morning.

Returning from Point AuGres Tuesday afternoon where they had been lifting nets, Trudell and Johnroe ran into a heavy fog. Over-timing Gravelly Shoals they ran into a reef, beraking a propeller shaft.

When the boat did not arrive at East Tawas at 8:00 o'clock Tuesday evening, a truck was sent to AuGres. Although the visibility was good, no boat's light could be seen from the road along the shore. The Coast Guard station was notified and Frank Morey, B. M. C., with a crew consisting of Joseph Langraf, E. N. I, and Charles Grantham, S. M. made a wide sweep around the Charities. Not locating the boat they returned at about 4:00 a. m. When daylight arrived the search by the Coast Guard was resumed and the boat was discovered in shoal water between the Charities.

The water was too shallow for the coast guard boat, and the Hamell boat was towed out by powerboat from the Brown Fishery at Alabaster. It was then taken to the Brown Fishery dock and beached for repairs.

While the fishing tug was discovered by the Coast Guard earlier, the shallow water prevented approach until the arrival of the Brown Fishery boat which could operate in less water. The actual rescue was made at about 10:00 o'clock.

The hot coffee, provided by the Coast Guard, seemed to be just what the two men needed.

I am for the Tawas
Memorial Hospital

I am for the Tawas Memorial Hospital.

I think the hospital, as planned, will be an excellent hospital, and if St. Joseph's Sisters accept its management, under the conditions and restrictions set up by the hospital board as to ownership, I believe that it will be excellently operated, and a hospital we shall be proud to have here.

I am for the Tawas Memorial Hospital because it will be built with private gifts rather than having the cost placed on the tax rolls of the county. People will then pay only what they feel they can afford. The people of Tawas City are pay-able about 4 1/2% on the assessed valuation of their property. That is a pretty high taxation, but with our new school expansion program, which I favor more than a hospital, the tax rate will be even higher.

Other communities in the county have corresponding high tax rates. East Tawas, Osoda, Plainfield and Whittemore have voted taxes greatly in excess of the limitation by constitution. Plainfield recently voted a 2% increase on assessed valuation for school expansion. The county as a whole voted an extra millage to build a new court house at Tawas City.

I believe that we have increased our millage rate to about all our tax structure will stand.

I cannot get enthused about adding another tax to build a hospital, even though it will be located in Tawas. I feel that there are a large number of people in the county who would hesitate a long time before adding to their tax burden to build a hospital at Tawas.

I am for the Tawas Memorial Hospital to be built without added taxation. Taxes are too high now, without additions and they are too hard to pay.

ADVISE CAUTION IN BUYING FARM LAND WITH HIGH MORTGAGE

Michigan farmers who now buy a farm mortgaged at much more than half its value may be in for financial trouble in future years, according to agricultural economists at Michigan State College.

The economists' appraisal of the farm real estate situation is contained in the current outlook issue of "Michigan Farm Economics," published monthly as part of the MSC extension service program.

Three changes in the farm real estate picture were considered significant. Land prices have passed their peak with a five percent drop since the November 1948 high. The number of farms changing hands in the last year has dropped sharply from the war-time peak. Farm mortgage debt is increasing again.

According to the economists, farm land is a riskier buy now because it will take more products to pay off $1,000 of debt than it did in the past several years. Farm product prices are falling faster than farm costs, which means less profit. And it's the profits which pay-off indebtedness.

Farmers in general are in very sound financial condition, however. This is indicated by records showing that in recent years half or more of the farms changing hands in this state have been sold on an all-cash basis.

It is important, the economist said, that a farm or additional acreage be "bought right," and that it is productive land. Farmers who can pay one-half or more of the purchase price in cash will not be taking more than the usual risk in buying a farm now.

Spread of Bangs Controlled by New Brucella M

More than 75,000 Michigan dairy cattle have been vaccinated with Dr. I. F. Huddleson's new Bang disease vaccine in the two years it has been available.

Surveys of its value, recently conducted by Michigan State College through its agricultural experiment station, show spread of the disease is being controlled by Brucella M in many Michigan dairy herds.

The vaccine, Brucella M, was developed by Dr. Huddleson, Michigan State College authority on the disease which causes losses amounting to many millions of dollars annually by Michigan dairymen alone. Brucellosis in animals is also the cause of undulant fever in man, since little or no indication has ever been found that this disease can be transmitted from man to man.

Extensive study was made in several counties in which veterinarians have used the vaccine. Records of more than 400 herds with more than 5,000 cattle were checked. A total of nearly 50 farms were personally visited. The survey was made by Drs. B. J. Killham and G. W. Reed, extension veterinarians at MSC, and Dr. C. F. Clark, who recently resigned as Michigan state veterinarian to return to the staff of the school of veterinary at East Lansing.

Here is what the study showed:

1. Spread of the disease was reduced by 50 percent in herds using Brucella M, when compared with herds not vaccinated.

2. Abortion in cattle practically ceased after Brucella M was used.

3. Enthusiastic support of the new vaccine came from dairymen and veterinarians using it.

Records were checked on 2,927 animals in 311 herds that were blood tested and not vaccinated and 2,402 animals in 117 herds blood tested and not vaccinated Brucella M. From 7 to 10 months later, animals were rechecked.

Dr. Huddleson, who since 1915 has devoted of his efforts at Michigan State College to perfecting treatments for brucellosis and undulant fever, developed the vaccine for prevention of spread of brucellosis.

Dr. Killham, in commenting on the survey, said that in visiting more than 50 herd owners that had used the vaccine, only one dairyman evidenced any doubt concerning its control of the spread of Brucellosis. A careful check of the herd records with veterinarians erased doubt in this farmer's mind and he since has vaccinated his new herd replacements with Brucella M.

Brucella M vaccine cannot be shipped out of the state of Michigan except for experimental use. Then it can go out only by special permit from the U. S. Bureau of Animal Industry.

Dr. Ed Sterner, Ionia veterinarian, has vaccinated nearly 3,000 cattle with the vaccine in two years in his area. He says it has been so successful that many dairymen who were already to sell valuable animals, have cleaned up their herds by using the vaccine and have remained in the dairy business.

The vaccine is popular with both grade herd and purebred owners. Sterner reports. He cited herds where new replacement disease-free animals were purchased and vaccinated with Brucella M before being brought to the farms. They were turned loose with Bang's infected animals and have never shown any reaction in tests after the customary 60 to 90 days after vaccination.

The veterinarian says he gets 25 requests for Brucella M to one for another vaccine, although it is necessary to make a higher charge for vaccinating animals with the new treatment. This higher charge for Brucella M, he explains is due to additional blood tests of vaccinated animals required in the program being used to prove the value of the new vaccine. Farmers learn of the success neighbors and friends are having with Brucella M in controlling the disease and consult with him about using it on their herds. Dr. Sterner explained.

Bang's disease has always been regarded as the dairymen's greatest problem, but Dr. Sterner exclaimed: "Dairymen I work with here in Ionia county don't consider Bang's as serious as mastitis now that we've used Dr. Huddleson's vaccine for two years. Most of them are enthusiastic about the results."

G. E. Peterson, Orleans farmer, stopped a Bang's break in his herd in 1947 using Brucella M. He thinks it's the answer to the brucellosis problem. In nine months of a test and slaughter program he eliminated seven animals from his Holstein herd. Since he used the Huddleson vaccine, he has had no more losses.

Peterson, whose herd averaged 483 pounds of fat this year, says vaccination did not cause any drop in production and that no animals that were with calf aborted after the use of Brucella M.

Dr. Nelso S. Howe, Jr., St. Johns veterinarian, says dairymen in his area are "pretty thoroughly sold on Dr. Huddleson's vaccine" for controlling Bang's disease.

The answer to whether you should remodel your house is probably no—if it is more than 75 years old, has a poor foundation, weak framing and excessively high ceiling advises Olevia Meyer, home management specialist at Michigan State College.

WONDERFUL NEIGHBOR by HOMER CROY

A prodigal son of northwest Missouri, Homer Croy drove along a country road amid the scenes of his youth. As he sees familiar sights, he associates them with the Kennedys—Newt, the kindest man he'd ever known; Mrs. Kennedy; their daughters, Ida and Lucy; their son, Harlan, his boyhood pal. He remembers returning from college to attend his mother's funeral. There were happy times, too, he recalls—times like the watermelon party at the Kennedys', or Ida's wedding day. Then he remembers the time Mrs. Kennedy's brother, Uncle Jim Wallace, and his family from the city came calling in their fine auto, and Uncle Jim tried to borrow $1,800 from Newt.

CHAPTER XX. It came time to go. The visitors put on their linen dusters and fastened their goggles into place. The Kennedy family stood by the car and looked with envy at their city relatives. Uncle Jim waved airily. "You must come and see us sometime."

Uncle Jim engaged the gears. And now—that the very last moment had come—there was a great deal of waving and excited calling of good-bys. Then the fine-looking automobile started down the road.

I come to something that stirred our neighborhood; it stirs me this morning as I sit thinking. For I can still remember our sense of shock. The idea had been growing in Newt's mind for some time and, although he had told no one, some of the people had their surmises. Anton Delinsky was the first to know; it came about more by chance than anything else. Anton had come to Newt's to borrow a hand planter for his wet spots and was ready to start back, but Newt detained him. He wanted to tell Anton something; yet very much he didn't want to tell him. Finally Newt spoke. "Anton, I guess I've got something to tell you."

"Yah, what is it?" "I expect it's goin' to come as a bit of surprise. He still delayed the actual saying. "It's this way. I've been thinking things over and doin' some planning an' I'm goin' to leave the farm."

Anton glanced at Newt to see if Newt were fanning, for Anton was not quite accustomed to American humor and sometimes was not sure whether a person was pranking or was really serious. "Yah, dot's goot," he said, taking no chances. Newt moved uneasily, looking at the ground and not at his friend at all. "I mean it, Anton. I'm goin' to pull off the land."

"For why?" "Because it's a back killer. It makes you old before your time. It drags your woman folks down. I tell you, Anton, land is a snare and a delusion! The more land the platt-book shows, the more trouble you've got."

Anton had been following him, but was still unbelieving. He smiled, but Newt didn't smile. "No more hard work for me," continued Newt. "I'm goin' to move to the city, get me a pair of carpet slippers an' sit on the front porch an' fan myself with a palm-leaf fan."

Newt's Decision Stuns Grandpa

Newt stumbled a bit, for he didn't want to say right out that he was going chiefly because his wife wished it. "Because I've worked hard all my life and I want to take it easy before they plant me." By now Anton understood Newt was really going. "Once I want to go to da city and work in my cousin's store, but you make me stay. You say poof! on da city. Now you say you go. Vhy?"

Newt was becoming more and more embarrassed. "Where are the smart men—on the farms or in the city?" "On the farms," said Anton stubbornly. "You tell me dot a 'ousand times. Your own boss, you say it yourself. Nobody can poosh you. Dat's what you say. Vot you say now?" Anton seemed to glare at Newt, so deep and sincere and earnest was Anton's feeling. For a moment they hated each other. "You're that same darned, bull-headed stubborn foreigner you used to be. I keep telling you; I've given you my reasons. Stay on the farm and become a broken-down man like everybody else who stays on the farm. I tell you, the land'll lick you!" "An' da city, vot?" "It will give me ease and comfort. It will give my family ease and comfort."

And he did start, but Newt—now that the moment of parting had come—walked a few rods with him, still talking, as if he realized that someday they would be permanently separated. "Listen," said Newt, his flash of temper dying down. "If you want me to, I'll come along and help you replant. I can bring a seed bag and work with the hoe. Of course it's not fast but it helps."

Anton was touched. "I do him alone, Newt. Tanks." He walked briskly away with the hand planter over his shoulder. Of course it was over the neighborhood in no time at all. Sometimes farmers moved to town and retired; usually they bought on the street where they could see their old neighbors come in. And kept a horse and buggy and would drive out every few days to walk across the old farm. But this was not what Newt meant. He was indeed going to the city.

The "Colonel," as we called the auctioneer, was half psychologist, half comedian; he stood there, a big gray hat on his head, his thumbs in his vestholes, his cane dangling on his arm, "reading the crowd."

which was three or four times as many as in our whole county. Of course it was not as simple as Newt had made it. Mrs. Kennedy was the one who wanted to go. She was not really of the land; she had never like it as Newt had and as most of our people did. Life was too hard; there was too much work to do, she said.

Uncle Jim's visit and his glamorous description of their easy life had added to Mrs. Kennedy's desire. Of course he had overdone it, but it was still plain they did not work as hard as the Kennedys did, and had more comforts. Also there had been a series of bad crops and Newt was discouraged. But for that matter, most farmers were discouraged most of the time. Yet no one wanted to pull out. Next year things would be better. One good year would make up for three poor ones.

The Auction Proves An Exciting Event

It was our custom, when a family was moving away, to have a series of farewell parties. And so now the entertaining of the Kennedys began. There was much laughing, but also there was sadness. However it was glossed over. Mrs. Kennedy's spirits were high. Something she had wanted for a long time was coming true. Yet, sometimes, it seemed to us, she was a bit sad. But it was too late now to turn back.

It was the biggest, the most exciting public sale we had ever known. In a way it was a kind of reception for Newt; for everybody wanted to speak to him. Some seemed to hope he would change his mind and come back among them. "It's nice of you to speak that way," he would say. "But it's for keeps. I couldn't if I wanted to. I'm putting my money into the implement store. That's my corner post and I'm going to anchor to it." The "Colonel," as we called the auctioneer, was half psychologist, half comedian; he stood there, a big gray hat on his head, his thumbs in his vestholes, his cane dangling on his arm, "reading the crowd." A haltered colt was led up. "All you men who have to go to the house to consult your wife before you can bid, leave now! And all you men who don't know a good chattel when you see it, step back and make way for smart men. What am I offered for this rangy, high-spirited, big-boned colt? Let the moths fly out of your pocketbooks and make me an offer. Who's going to be first?" He teased them along, pleading with them, cajoling them, insulting them, but all the time making them go higher and higher. "Sold!" he cried suddenly. The haltered colt was led away.

Anton was becoming prosperous and he hoped, unconsciously, would bid liberally; if he didn't buy an article himself, he could run it up on the others. But he didn't. He bought very little.

Grandpa walked here and there, leaning on his cane and peering at people "Ain't this Shooley Ford?" Then his old gnarled hand would go out. "I thought so. I don't see like I ust to. Your mother was a fine old pioneer woman. You don't mind if I find a seat do you? My legs ain't what they ust to be." Then he would sink onto a seat with a sigh. Usually he defended his son in everything. But he didn't now, quite.

"I don't stand with Newton. The city will strip him of everything he has like cutworms goin' down on early planting."

"Don't you hate to go?" "I can't speak what I think, Shooley. It wouldn't be seemly." There was none of this brooding for Newt. "I'm glad to get this back-breaker off my shoulders!" which was speaking pretty plain before others who had no hope of ever accomplishing this. "A farm wears you out before your time."

Cuckoo Clock Goes On the Auction Block

A quail-and-cuckoo clock went up. It was a Swiss ornamental clock made out of rustic wood, with three iron weights to pull the cords and spin the works. On top of the clock, on an imitation limb, sat a quail with its head turned jauntily to one side. Below it were two doors; when the hour struck, the doors flew open and a cuckoo popped out and called something that vaguely sounded like "Cuckoo!" At one o'clock it said "Cuckoo!" At two o'clock it said "Cuckoo! Cuckoo!" At twelve it almost sang a song. How fascinating it had seemed when they had sent to the Larkin Soap Company, in Buffalo, for it. But fashions in clocks were changing; everybody now wanted a cathedral-gong clock, or an ornamental imitation marble clock with two classic Greek figures holding harps. But how many happy hours Mrs. Kennedy had heard the clock tick-lock away; how many times the cuckoo had come out and spoken to her.

KEEPING HEALTHY What Is a Psychoneurotic?

By Dr. James W. Barton. IN THESE DAYS when all of us are more or less upset for various reasons, we can understand why the nervous, emotional, anxious individual is greatly upset. This mental and emotional disturbance affects the various organs and processes of the body, so that this type of individual is constantly consulting his physician or many physicians in an effort to be free of these various symptoms. We call this individual a neurotic. A good definition of a neurotic is given by Dr. Joseph L. Feltman, Cleveland, in the Merck report: The psychoneurotic is one who has failed to make an adjustment to life, who is troubled by inner conflicts of a greater degree than the average, and whose conflicts lead to a tendency to unhappiness, poor adjustment to others and to a great variety of physical complaints for which there is no organic basis or cause. Sometimes the symptoms are limited to one region, but they are more likely to be in a number of regions—heart, stomach, intestines, head, joints—and change often from one region or organ to another. Some of the symptoms pass away quickly, others seem to remain in the one region or organ. While some neurotics have a woe-begone expression others assume the attitude of being indifferent to their sufferings. Unfortunately for the physician, many neurotics are above the average in intelligence, yet fail to understand how their inner mechanisms convert disappointments and frustrations into disturbing physical derangements. Most physicians blame neurosis on parents who allowed the youngster to complain of illness when he was forbidden to do something he wanted or bidden to do something he did not want to do. Thus when the child grows up, he develops symptoms only "when overwhelmed by major trials and rejections of life." The treatment of the neurotic is a thorough physical examination in case some physical ailment is really present. If present, it is treated. Then follows an estimation by the physician as to the extent to which his emotional disturbances are to blame for his symptoms.

MIRROR Of Your MIND Healthy Love Creates Health By Lawrence Gould

Can love be a cause of illness? Answer: In itself, No. For love is a source of happiness or pleasure and these create health, not illness. But love for a person who is unattainable, or of whose return love you're uncertain, may arouse anxiety and "nervous tension" that will be both mentally and physically harmful. The less sure you are of your own worthiness to be loved, the more anxious you'll be, and while you will probably attribute your "love-sickness" to the loved one's being fickle or capricious (as may be true) it will be your self-doubt that makes you so vulnerable.

Are single women lonelier than bachelors? Answer: I know of no way to prove it, but I am inclined to think so. And there are some realistic reasons for it. For instance, a single woman is less welcome than an unattached man at most parties, and there are still many places where she cannot go without an escort. But this does not mean that every single person would be happier married. If you find it hard to 'compromise' with other people's tastes and ideas, the home that sometimes appears so empty without anyone to share it will at least be happier than one filled with conflict.

Do men speak in softer tones to women? Answer: Not instinctively, at any rate, reports Dr. John D. Black, Minneapolis psychologist in the Journal of Speech and Hearing Disorders. In experiments intended to find whether the pitch at which you are spoken to affects the loudness of your answer, it was noted that thirty male college students responded more loudly to a woman's voice than to a man's of equal volume. If this is the way that most men react, it might be because to the average male the presence of a woman is a challenge to his self-assertive instincts.

HEALTH NOTES

Pain in the back of the head, neck and shoulders sometimes is caused by a ruptured disc (cushion of hard tissue between spine bones in neck). After World War I there was a great increase in treatment of nervous symptoms of physiotherapy—hot and cold baths, electricity, massage and light physical exercise. Infected teeth can be a cause of rheumatic fever, so often followed by heart disease. More men than women suffer with stomach and duodenal ulcer. At this time there is not enough hospitals to supply the demand of hospitals to treat arthritis sufferers.

Fire College Lists Students Of Many Lands

NEW YORK.—There is no campus, no athletic teams, no college songs, but the fire college here has attracted students from all over the world.

The college was set up in 1912 by the New York city fire department. There are seven schools in the college of rookies, experienced firemen and officers.

There are thousands of fire buffs who would gladly pass up a three-alarm fire to attend one of the schools. But this courtesy, which may be extended to outsiders only by the fire commissioners, usually is extended only to fire chiefs of other countries and cities.

These fire chiefs, who come from every state in the nation, as well as England, Belgium, Brazil, Finland and the British West Indies, are put through officer's school. They go to class once a week for 14 weeks. At the same time they are assigned to a busy firehouse and roll with the company to get practical experience.

Recalls Norwegian

Deputy Chief Edward Conway, of staff and operations, who is in charge of the college, recalls a visiting chief from Norway:

"He was a big, fine looking chap. He wanted to cram everything he could in his short stay. So he spent his days at the college and his nights with a midtown engine company.

"He walked into my office a week later, and I didn't recognize him. He looked like he hadn't slept for a month. He'd been busy rolling to one fire after another. The only thing he said to me was, 'I never heard so many alarm bells in my life.'"

Chief Conway then told of a South American fire chief's short semester:

Taught Newest Techniques

Thirty to 40 newly appointed lieutenants attend a session of officers' school. They are taught every conceivable way of scientifically controlling a fire. Besides, they must become familiar with the intricate high pressure water mains under the street.

About once a year an entire fire company is ordered to the company school. Other firemen are assigned to its quarters for the day. Acting as a unit, the company is put through 24 basic evolutions in fire fighting. The members are timed and rated accordingly. Firemen receiving low ratings are recalled later for further review.

Pork Lovers Use Survey By College to Laud Swine

LINCOLN, NEB. — Results of North Carolina state college tests to prove their contention that the swine is the cleanest, smartest, most respectable animal on the farm, are being quoted hereabouts by pork lovers.

Compared to the chimpanzee, brightest of the ape family, the porker was a whiz at IQ tests, according to his supporters. He learned to match dogs in hunting, it was claimed, and only frustrated vanity and common sense drove him to the hog wallow.

Pigs have no sweat glands, it was explained, and the only way for them to cool off is to plunge into the wallow. No other means of cleanliness is provided.

Snide references to a "hogish appetite," or to the animal's habit of rooting in the soil draw instant defense from the pigs' friends. Can the hog help it if nature endowed him with one of the fastest growing bodies in the animal world? And it takes food to grow, they say.

As for rooting, the experts describe it as a good, clean habit and an economical way of getting essential minerals.

If Junior wants a pet, try a pig, according to these enthusiasts. They argue a porker makes a devoted pet, can be housebroken easily, and has one of the best constitutions for testing baby foods.

British Doctors Believe Worrying Makes One Fat

LONDON.—If you are prone to worry about things, you are likely to get fat.

That's the opinion of two British doctors. Writing it in the British medical journal, two members of St. Thomas hospital in London cited cases they said upset the popular notion that trouble keeps you thin.

Drs. H. J. Shorvon and John Richardson told of several women who gained weight rapidly after severe shocks or worry.

The doctors said they were treating these patients to "relieve their mental distress," and not to cut their weight. They added they could not explain the reaction, and suggested the subject needed further study.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Among the many uses for sugar bags are aprons, children's sun-uits, luncheon sets, quilt linings and garment cases.

To make cottage cheese, pour two quarts of hot, but not boiling, water into two quarts of thick, sour milk. Let stand five minutes and drain overnight.

Blend creamed cottage cheese with mayonnaise or creamy type salad dressing and serve over wedges of lettuce. Sprinkle with finely-cut pimiento stuffed olives.

If you want to remove a soiled line on collars, cuffs, etc., use an abrasive hand soap. It's easier on the fabric than scrubbing with a brush and removes the soil more quickly.

Chopped olives, parsley, peanuts or almonds added to melted butter that is served on vegetables gives variety.

In putting a paraffin top on jams and jellies, first coat with a thin layer, then lay a piece of string across and finish the coating. Let the end of the string hang over the glass. When the paraffin is to be removed, pull the string and it will come off whole.

Buying Perfume

Perfume shopping should be important occasion when "the nose knows." But you'll be wise to avoid eating strongly flavored food before you start sniffing. Smoking is another way of dulling your sense of smell. Don't sample more than three scents in succession. The best way to test perfume is to put a drop on your palms; rub them together until the alcohol evaporates; then breathe in. Reports show that one person in 100 either has no sense of smell or can't detect certain odors under normal conditions.

Holly and ivy have been identified with Christmas from a very early date. Holly is supposed to represent the master of the house and ivy, the mistress.

If you want your inlaid linoleum to have lasting good looks and give long wear, give it gentle care. Too much water, strong soaps and harsh abrasives are the worst enemies of a linoleum floor covering.

Tawas Memorial Hospital Questions and Answers

This is a review of the facts that have been presented thus far.

1. A group of citizens of the Community realizing the acute need of a hospital incorporated themselves into the Tawas Hospital Association.

2. This a non-profit organization. Its purpose is to build a hospital and then provide for its maintenance and administration as well best serve the community.

3. The members of the Tawas Hospital Association are not associated with any particular religious group. Among the members are four who belong to the Catholic Church and sixteen who are members of other Christian Denominations in the Community.

4. After an investigation this Association decided that the needs of the Community at large will be best served and more economically administered if the Sisters of St. Joseph take charge of the hospital.

5. The cost of the hospital according to the Office of Hospital Survey and Construction will be approximately a minimum of $12,500.00 per bed.

6. The cost of building a hospital which will accommodate the Sisters will be very little or no extra cost.

7. The fact that the Sisters are going to administer the hospital will in no way keep it from being a Community hospital it will serve everyone regardless of race, color or creed.

8. About 3000 persons have pledged to support the building of this hospital under the proposed plan.

9. All money and material for the hospital is given voluntarily. The Government will pay towards our project at least 47%.

10. The hospital will not be tax supported, any deficit will be the responsibility of the operators.

11. Because of the vocation which the Sisters have chosen they are well equipped and ready to serve the people of this Community.

Simplest Gifts Can be Exciting if Wrapped with Personal Touch

One of the most important things in even the smallest of gifts doesn't cost a penny. It's a heaping heartfelt of Christmas spirit as reflected in the personal attention given to wrapping, decorating, etc. Here are some suggestions for gifts that are different, as culled from the pages of Good Housekeeping magazine.

Tasty Touches. (Inexpensive!) A jar each celery salt, garlic salt, onion salt. If you wish to get fancy, add shakers of the new smoky salt or monosodium glutamate. Wrap each in tissue paper; then tie in a red-checked napkin and sling on a stick—hobo fashion.

American Tradition—Cans of chicken fricasse; package of noodles, precooked rice, or biscuit mix; dill-pickle slices or spiced peaches. Wrap in comic section of Sunday paper, and tie th epackage with green ribbon.

Snacker's Special. Assortment of special jams—seedless red raspberry or blackberry; damson plum; boysenberry or loganberry preserve; or comb honey. Place in breadbasket lined with red paper napkin. Tuck in a few pine cones.

For Bride Next Door. Buy assorted canned foods (fruits, vegetables, tomato sauce, beans) in the kitchenette size—about 8 oz. Place in a row on strip of heavy cardboard, cut to fit; top with another strip. Then you have a miniature pantry shelf. Cover with shelf paper, having one side exposed to show can labels. Wrap in cellophane tie with bow.

Christmas Bounty. Fill a cornucopia (or come made of gold paper) with large walnuts. The recipient may wish to hang it on the door, so all who come can help themselves. (Christmas is the time to give.)

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

West Asks Reds for Peace Effort; Pact Nations Would Rarm Italy; Costliest Steel Strike Terminated

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

PEACE TRY:
Reds Asked In

Russia's Andrei Vishinsky had said, in effect, to United Nations members: Set up an atomic control system of periodic inspection of manufacture and materials, and Russia will let you in to inspect Monday, Wednesday, Friday, this week and next week—but instead you want to inspect from minute to minute, day by day, week by week.

THE U. N. didn't go for that. Russia, its members claimed, was referring only to declared manufacture and materials, but what of the "hidden and undeclared" production and stockpiles. Vishinsky got nowhere with his proposal. Then, the U. N. turned around, placed the shoe of warmongering on the foot upon which they felt it belonged. The United States and other western powers called upon Russia to stop its "campaign of hate" and cooperate in a 12-point program for peace.

The 12 points were: Stop threatening or using force contrary to the U. N. charter. Stop interfering with the independence of any other country and the fomenting of civil strife. Carry out in good faith all international agreements. Afford all U. N. bodies full cooperation. Promote full freedom of religion and political expression and full respect of all other fundamental rights. Promote higher standards of living for all peoples. Remove information barriers. Participate fully in the U. N.'s work. Settle international disputes peacefully. Cooperate in armaments control. Agree to exercise national sovereignty jointly with other nations to attain international control of atomic energy. Urge five big powers to broaden their cooperation in the security council of the U. N., and to exercise restraint in using the veto.

THE FIRST REACTION of those conversant with Russian policy as it has been manifest thus far must have wondered if the western powers had taken complete leave of their senses in making any such proposal to Moscow. They might as well have asked the Russians to turn over the Kremlin to the Christian Endeavor society, enroll Joe Stalin as a Boy Scoutmaster, and to turn the politburo into a Sunday school. Even a kindergarten child would have known better than to expect Soviet agreement to any of the 12 points.

STRIKE ENDS:
Steel Costliest

America's costliest steel strike ended, appropriately enough on Armistice day, with the CIO steelworkers winning demands for an industry-financed insurance-pension formula.

THE CAPITULATION of U. S. steel, bellwether of the industry as regards labor relations, brought an end to the crippling strike. Four smaller firms settled on the same terms the same day, terms which followed the pattern accepted by Bethlehem steel, first big company to sign with the union.

According to a CIO spokesman, the union-company agreement embodied such terms as a minimum $100 monthly pension to workers aged 65 with 25 years service, with the employer paying all the cost, and an insurance program, costing five cents an hour per man, with the company and worker sharing the cost.

FARM RATS:
A Formula

The farmers in the Rio Grande tomato fields were beginning to get results in their interminable war on rats after garnishing their crops with poisoned grain.

A FEW WEEKS AGO the rats were swarming into tomato and green pepper fields near La Grulla, Tex. They spread methodically up and down the Rio Grande until the invasion covered a 15-mile strip, one to two miles wide in places. Farmers lost first pickings completely in several fields.

Then they began to dust their crops with poisoned grain. Said grower Ralph Jones: "That poison sure does the business. It's stopped the losses."

But not before serious damage was done to 2,000 irrigated and cultivated acres.

U.S. PAY ROLL:
Tops 10 Billion

United States government operational expense, long in the astronomical bracket, had reached a total annual figure of 10 billion, 200 million dollars. That figure, in the aggregate, is almost meaningless to the average American. But broken down to show how it affects the individual, it could be brought very much home to the taxpayer. It was costing each American $227 per capita.

Prize Winner

Dr. William F. Giauque, 54, professor at the University of California, was a Nobel prize winner for his work in the study of entropies. The entropy of a compound determines whether a chemical reaction can take place.

ITALY:
New Weapons

Experience, though a hard teacher, is supposed to teach well. In international events, however, this doesn't always follow.

FOR INSTANCE, Italy, two-time foe of the democracies in as many world wars, will be rearmed soon if top-planners of the Atlantic pact countries have their way. Discussions looking toward rearming the Italians under the Atlantic pact already were underway between high-ranking U. S. and Italian military officers and diplomats.

James C. Dunn, U. S. ambassador to Italy, attended the first of a series of closed sessions aimed at modernizing and re-equipping Italy's treaty-limited armed forces under the Atlantic pact's defense system.

ITALY'S RECORD in connection with disservice to the democracies smells to high heaven. In World War I the country started out with Germany and the Central Powers and turned coat only when it was evident her side was losing. In World War II, she started out with Il Duce Mussolini and forsook him only when it became apparent she was on the wrong horse again.

RAILS:
Fares Up

The third fare increase for eastern railroads in the past three years has been authorized by the interstate commerce commission. The increase this time amounted to a 12.5 per cent hike in rail passenger fares in the East, estimated to give the railroads another 37.8 million dollars a year in revenue.

THE RISE applies to the area east of the Mississippi river and north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers. Commuter fares were not to be affected.

In 1947 these same roads were granted a 10 per cent boost in passenger fares, and last year another hike of approximately 17 per cent. Southern and western railroads did not apply for the increase granted the eastern roads.

THE NEW RATES, it was said, would raise eastern coach fares to about 3.37 cents a mile, and parlor-car and sleeping-car fares to about 4.5 cents a mile.

In New York, a railway official said the new increase would boost one-way coach fares from New York to Chicago from $27.30 to $30.75. First class fares would be raised from $36.35 to $40.89.

A-BOMBS:
Men at Work

According to a British-licensed Berlin newspaper, the Telegraf, Russians are operating a plant near Berlin to produce explosives used solely for making atomic bombs.

THE PAPER, giving no authority for the source of its information declared, nevertheless, that the plant where the explosives are being made is the people's owned Teerchemie plant in Erkner, suburban east Berlin. The newspaper story said 600 workers were employed on the project.

It said the plant produced a chemical called "carbazol," which the paper described as highly explosive.

Rocket With 'Brain'

The U. S. air force appeared ready to hold its own in the guided missile department. It announced it had a rocket-propelled guided missile with "human intelligence" in tracking and destroying enemy aircraft.

Launched from a "mother" jet fighter plane, the missile, named the "Firebird," is capable of heading off and destroying its objective in a matter of seconds.

SWEDEN
Talks Back

The United States senate, collectively and individually, has been called by some colorful and lurid names—but it remained for some Swedish editors to hurl the most devastating blast at that august body.

A SWEDISH NEWSPAPER, the liberal afternoon Expressen, had this to say:

"The U. S. senate is certainly a high assembly, but it is also a dumping place for all sorts of quaint characters and the most ignorant politicians from the darkest corners of the union. And it must be pretty dark in Oklahoma."

The shaft was aimed, really, at Oklahoma's Senator Thomas, a Democrat, who was critical of the way Sweden had received a senate appropriations subcommittee visiting Marshall plan countries to see how U. S. funds were being used.

Sweden, it appeared, had received quite a bit of Marshall plan aid, but had sort of "snubbed" Thomas and his committee. Thomas declared the country to which he "referred" in his criticism, expressed in Vienna, "had helped no one in the past 135 years," and if it got any more Marshall plan funds, it would be over his protest.

The "QUAINT CHARACTERS" and "most ignorant politicians" the Swedes referred to in the senate, or who had ever been a member of it, included some right influential fellows who might have much to say about continuing Marshall plan aid—among them, President and former Senator Harry S. Truman.

GERMANY:
GI's to Stay

Russia might do as she pleased about occupying Germany, but the western allies intend to keep their troops in that country whether or not the Russians pull out.

THAT was the statement of a west German government spokesman who indicated this was one of the decisions reached at the big three Paris conference.

U. S. secretary of state Dean Acheson and German chancellor Konrad Adenauer had agreed upon the need for keeping western troops in Germany.

This same spokesman said the appointment of Soviet Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky as commander-in-chief of the Polish army was construed to mean that Russian troops would be withdrawn from eastern Germany soon.

EVEN THOUGH the Russians should withdraw their troops, this same source said, the Russian secret police and the Soviet-trained German people's police still would remain.

THE PRESS:
285th Year

With technicalities waived, the Official London Gazette, beginning its 285th year of continuous publication understandably laid claim to being the world's oldest newspaper.

THE twice-weekly government paper began publication in 1665 during the great plague which ravaged London. Since that time it has been the appointed organ for dissemination of all "announcements of the chief executive."

The paper is issued each Tuesday and Friday with official announcements from Buckingham palace, Number 10 Downing street, official residence of the prime minister, and government departments. And it never publishes much else.

Flannel Queen

Darlene Towns, 16, who was crowned "red flannel" queen by Michigan Governor G. Mennen Williams, is shown here attired in the red flannel nightie. Governor Williams called the square dances at what has become an annual Michigan event.

FREE TOUR:
All on a Bet

A 48-state, penniless tour of this country—could anyone do it?

A 30-year old Los Angeles veteran, who used the fictitious name, Paul Clark, did it. He did it on a bet to prove the extent of American people's hospitality. And in doing it, he won a bet of $4,800 from a friend. He kept his identity secret, he said, as part of the wager which he'd made. Other conditions were not disclosed.

NOBLESSE OBLIGE . . . Teen-agers all over the world will take comfort in the fact that Princess Margareta of Sweden went to school on her birthday to set an example for less regal children. Margareta, eldest daughter of Princess Sibylla and the late Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden, celebrated her 15th birthday recently. Margaret (center) stands with her sisters, Princess Birgitta (left) and Desiree (right), in front of the schoolhouse in Stockholm.

POTOMAC SURRENDERS AIR CRASH VICTIM . . . Rescue workers near Washington, D. C., reach the shore of the Potomac river with the body of a victim of the mid-air crash over national airport recently. Fifty-five persons perished when an Eastern airline four-engine airplane and a P-38 fighter collided as the big plane attempted to land. The pilot of the fighter, a Bolivian, said that he thought he had been given the all-clear signal to land by the control tower at the airport. Airport officials said he was ordered to change his course when it was seen he was endangering the passenger plane. Civil Aeronautics Board officials have been making an investigation of the crash, trying to fix the cause. Bolivia has offered to pay for damages and loss of life if the fault was the Bolivian pilot's.

LAST OF THE OLD FIRM . . . Jack Parisi, 50, allegedly the last of the Murder, Incorporated, triggermen, arrives at Pennsylvania station, New York City, from Wilkes Barre, Pa., where he was found after a 10-year hunt. He was to be taken to Brooklyn county court to face a first-degree murder indictment in the death of Morris Diamond, union official. A writ of habeas corpus to prevent his extradition was denied in common pleas court at Wilkes-Barre. The accused man was arrested by officers in Hazleton, Pa.

ELEVEN TOP COMMUNISTS RELEASED ON BAIL . . . There was vigorous handwaving and cheering by the 11 high United States Red party officials on the steps of the federal building in New York City after they were freed on bail amounting to $260,000. Since their conviction on a conspiracy charge October 14 by a West street, New York City, jury (who refused them bail), they had been held in the federal house of detention on a reversal of sentences imposed on them at their late trial. There have been reports that the judge who sentenced them has been threatened.

CIVILIANS SHOULD RUN DEFENSE

DURING WORLD WAR I, I had an appointment to see Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels. When I called, his secretary told me to go right in, despite the fact there were other callers. In the office were four South Carolina political friends, but they left within a few minutes, and purely as a pleasantry Mr. Daniels commented on his taking time out to discuss politics.

"You know," he said, "the officers of the navy know more about the details of operating the navy in time of war than I know. I feel the navy will do a better job if I leave the details to the naval officers, and it gives me time to discuss down home politics."

Pleasantry though it was, that statement contained much hard-headed war-time sense. It was then the job of President Wilson and Navy Secretary Daniels to define naval policies, but the details of carrying out those policies was in the hands of the officers. Those officers understood, as officers of all the armed forces have always understood, that civilian authority is supreme. Without quibble or protest they obeyed orders.

The Constitution provides for civilian control of the nation's armed forces. To-day that civilian control lies in the hands of the President, the secretary for defense, the secretaries for the navy, the army and the air force. All these services are presumed to be in a unified national defense force.

The Hoover commission found they were not operating as a unified force and the nation was suffering, both in lack of adequate defense and in excessive costs. The commission made recommendations for changes in the unification provisions that, in addition to rendering a greater degree of national security, would result in savings of better than one and a half billion dollars each year.

A bill, introduced by Senator Tydings (Maryland), when passed, provided for remedy of most of the ills the commission recommended be remedied. To the provisions of that law, or to the interpretations given by the civilian heads of the armed services, the navy objected and protested. That is what the row has been about.

Concerning who is right or who is wrong I do not feel privileged to have even an opinion, but I do know that every one in any armed force must obey orders, right or wrong, from higher authority if the armed services are to be of value to the nation. The supreme heads are and have always been civilians. There must be no quarrel, no quibbling, no protests at the decisions of those in supreme authority. There should be no question as to the right of selection by those civilians of officers in the armed services as their subordinates. Civilian control is the difference between "government of, for and by the people" and totalitarian dictatorship.

Admiral Denfeld undoubtedly had every right to express his opinions before the congressional committee regarding the unification of the armed services, but as a naval officer that was as far as he could go. His place in the unification plans and methods was to follow the policies as defined by the civilians in supreme authority. If he did not, they could do nothing less than make a change. If he, directly or indirectly, protested at the decisions of his civilian superiors or quibbled at carrying out their directions, that change was needed.

The time of making such a change was probably inopportune, the methods inappropriate, the words unseemly, in so far as affecting public opinion was concerned. The people are inclined to favor the "under-dog," without much consideration as to reasons. In the present instance Admiral Denfeld may or may not be entitled to the hero worship of the American people. There is one thing on which there can be no argument, the armed services must be controlled by civilians as provided by the Constitution and by acts of congress, if the republic is to be maintained.

The labor unions of England, largely responsible for the institution of the labor government, have found their new taskmasters more exacting in nationalized industries than were the private owners.

There are a lot of people in and out of congress who can tell the President how to avoid deficit government financing.

Advocates of socialism are those with but one or no goats

Fluctuating Water Edge Land Not Open to General Public

Fluctuating water levels on inland lakes may enlarge or reduce that strip of land along the shoreline which is not a beach area open to the general public in most instances.

The conservation department's lands division, which regularly gets letters conveying contrary opinion, advises persons confused on the matter to check the deed or the recorded plat of the land in question for possible exceptions. Local county records show plat dedications.

Usually the riparian owners own all the land down to the water's edge on inland lakes and also a proportionate share of the submerged lake bottom lands fronting the property. Thus, whether above the waterline or below at any one time, it is still the same person's property. In the case of a round-type lake, this submerged share is roughly shaped like a wedge of pie.

The department's lands division points out that the only exceptions are where there are reservations in the landowner's deed or in cases of platted property where the recorded plat shows certain areas such as parks, roads and promenades along the lake which are dedicated to public use. Reservations or restrictions may appear in the chain of title, and in the case of platted property, on the plat.

The same general ruling applies to privately owned land bordering Michigan waters of the Great Lakes except that submerged land is owned by the state of Michigan. That is—the title is held in trust by the state for use and benefit of the public. Again in the case of Great Lakes, there is no public strip along the edge unless there is a reservation in the chain of title, or public use dedications are recorded on the plat, in the event the land involved is platted property.

Illegal Hunting Heads Violations

Illegal hunting in small game seasons headed an increased list of October conservation law violations as expected, but total infractions were treble that of September and up 28 per cent over the comparative October period last year.

According to the conservation department's law enforcement division, penalties meted out to 1,193 violators amounted to $26,346 and 252 days in jail. September fines levied against 345 violators amounted to $8,806. In October, of 1948, 861 arrests resulted in $20,450 in fines and 172 days in jail.

Heading the list of October, 1948, infractions were 229 hunting and killing waterfowl before and after hours, 132 transporting loaded guns in cars, 96 having loaded guns in motorboats while hunting waterfowl and 90 hunting waterfowl with guns capable of holding more than three shells.

Violations usually hit the peak for the year in November. Latest reports on deer season indicate violations are normal with some 830 recorded in upstate big game territory. Deer season violations in November of last year were responsible for about 1,100 of the 341 arrests in that month.

Cold and Snow Ends Fire Hazard

Snow and cold weather have ended a 25-week forest fire danger period which started earlier this year and damaged an estimated 21,530 acres or nearly 7,001 more acres than last year, the conservation department reports.

Toll, in recent years was largest in 1944 when 30,000 acres were ravished by fire.

Fires started the middle of March, about two weeks earlier than usual and had burned over 15,000 acres by the end of April. Only 5,300 acres were burned through April of 1948. Cost of suppressing forest fires in 1948 amounted to $111,356 or slightly less than the record cost of $111,536 in 1947.

Smokers and brush burners were responsible for over half of the 1948 total. Causes and cost of 1948 forest fire now are being tabulated by the department.

Many of the seasonal lookouts and equipment operators are on deer patrol and with the end of deer season will end their tour of duty for the year. Following deer season, regular fire fighting personnel will be busy repairing and storing equipment.

Income Tax Bulletin at County Agent's Office

Income tax time is on its way, reminds Harold R. Clark, county agricultural agent, who believes farmers should begin getting their records together for the annual figuring job.

To give help to farmers in preparing income tax returns, the Michigan State College cooperative extension service is distributing a new bulletin, "Farmers 1949 Income Tax." It is issued annually and revised to bring it up to date on tax changes.

Tax savings are sometimes possible by knowing just which items may be deducted as legitimate expense. A handy check list is provided in the bulletin, showing items that may be deducted.

A series of questions most frequently asked by farmers preparing tax returns is also included. It deals with such topics as reporting patronage refunds from cooperatives, handling trade-in allowances, reporting agricultural program payments, liming costs, and hired labor.

Agent Clark now has a supply of the new bulletins and will supply a copy to farmers who call at the county extension office, located in the Federal Building, East Tawas.

Bounty payments climbed to a new high for the year in September when $24,510 was paid on foxes, coyotes and wolves.

The state again started paying bounties on upper bobcats on October 1.

Homemade Sweets are Ideal for Old-Fashioned Christmas Gifts

An old-fashioned Christmas means a great deal more than dinner at home and tree-dressing parties. It means hundreds of other things, too—like hanging up stockings and a family reading of Christmas classics. And the folks who delight in preparing for the big day by creating exciting gifts out of saved up odds and ends—just watch the kick they get when 's time to open presents.

Here are some ideas from Good Housekeeping magazine, combining home-made sweets with inexpensive ways to give them a "straight out of Toyland" look.

Norwegian Sugared Nuts
1 lb. shelled mixed nuts.
2 tablesp. butter or margarine.
¼ cup butter or margarine.

Heat oven to 325° F. (moderate). Arrange nuts and 2 teasp. butter in shallow baking pan. Bake stirring frequently, at 325° for 25 min. or til golden brown. Cool. Meanwhile, melt ¼ cup butter in shallow roasting or jelly-roll pan, in 325° F oven. Beat egg whites til they form moist peaks. Combine sugar, salt and cinnamon. Fold into egg whites. Stir in nuts. Spread nut mixture over melted butter. Bake at 325° F. 40 min. Cool break in pieces. Keep a week or more in covered pan.

Use clean, empty soup cans. Soak off labels. Place bands of colored unmed tape at intervals along can. Fill with nuts. To wrap out square of cellophane for each. Bring corners above top of can. Tie cellophane with festive Christmas ribbon.

Buttery Pecan Rounds

36 pecan halves

Drop by teaspoonfuls on ungreased baking sheets; top each with pecan half. Bake at 325° F. 12 to 15 min. or until brown around edges. Makes 3 doz.
Paint empty oatmeal box red, green, or blue with water-color poster paint. Cut out chain of paper dolls or Christmas trees, girdle box with them, and paste. Fill box with cookies. Place cover on box; make 2 holes through cover and box. Tie cover on box with gay ribbon.

Toy Express Wagons
Favorite toy express wagon of boyhood days is believed to have had its inspiration from early hand-drawn express trucks used over a century ago.

LOOKS like a Jet Plane TRAVELS the same way

You see it quick-stepping along the highway—and you can't miss the parallel.

You glimpse a bold front end—sleek tapering fenders—flaring, streamlined roof lines—even to "double bubble" taillights, here is the look of "the fastest thing that flies."

Then you try one on the road, courtesy of your Buick dealer.

Adjectives flock into mind—"agile"—"nimble"—"eager."

You realize that here is action, swift and easy—action born of Fireball valve-in-head straight-eight power—action floated on soft coil springs that, for all their lightness, keep your grip on the road sure-footed and firm.

This you tell yourself, is traveling as traveling should be.

Comfortable—in the spacious manner of king-size interiors. Easy—in the lightness of controls, which can include even the magic of Dynaflo Drive* if you wish. Pleasurable—in the wide, wide outlook that's yours, and the inner satisfaction of having a Buick for your very own.

And we might add another thing, just by way of being practical.

It's frugal too. Frugal in a first cost that's actually less than for some sixes. Frugal in the surprising way such a sizable car gives the go-by to gas pumps.

And if you have Dynaflo, frugal even in many upkeep costs you can forget about—such as clutch troubles, transmission maintenance, even many engine servicing costs.

Why not put yourself into one of these jet-lined beauties right now? It's more easily managed than you might imagine—as you'll see by talking to your Buick dealer.

Buck Shots

There is one happy hunter in town this week—Rudy Gingerich bagged his first buck in fourteen years of hunting. He won't have to take any back talk from his son, Don, who was successful in getting his buck last year and the year before, but unsuccessful this year.

For Sale—A slightly soiled hunting license. Tags intact. Contact Alpena Candy Co.

Joe Ebert, who works at Alabaster U. S. Gypsum Co., has this tale to tell. Hunted every day, all season, and didn't see a horn. But, while working in the quarry, Tuesday evening, about 6:30 p. m., a 7-point buck ran in front of him, but he had no gun. Guess those bucks know when to "peep" their horns, and then not to.

Eighteen bucks were shot at the Orville Leslie Camp this year. They "tagged" all but one. He was shot late in the afternoon, and though trailed for several miles was not found.

Clem Stephan had one last fling Wednesday, attempting to get his buck, but no luck. He hunted at the Four Square Club, near Curran. Though Clem's sights "were bad," 14 deer and two bear were bagged at the camp. Included among the successful hunters were: Hugo, Paul and Harold Groff.

Kenny Howitson, during the season, saw eight deer, six with horns. He didn't get any of them. His mother, Mrs. Albert Howitson, saw only one buck, a nice 149 pound, 8-pointer. She got it with one shot. She also was successful last year, getting her buck.

Auto Tire Chains

Speed in excess of 20 miles an hour rapidly wears the cross chain links of automobile tire chains and results in early failure of the cross links. These are the weakest links in tire chains because the rapid wear reduces the cross-sectional area of the links and the remaining section is not sufficiently strong to withstand the repeated pounding on pavements at the higher speeds.
